since its tones are kept low and the dramatic element is deliberately subdued. Moreover, the reader realizes from the beginning, as he shares Diony Hall's maiden day dreams, that into the epic texture Miss Roberts has woven a passionate realization of the woman's part in primitive life and of the woman's consciousness throughout of her own personality, her own strength and her representation of permanence, present or future, in a chancy, masculine life. This book is another sign that the poetry of America's past is beginning to inspire her best writers more than her garish present."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p666 Ag 21 '30 550w

ROBERTS, ELIZABETH MADOX. Under the tree. enl ed 85p il $2.50 Viking press

811 30-30902

A new edition of Miss Roberts's poems for and about children, first published in 1922. Enlarged, and illustrated with drawings by F. D. Bedford.

Booklist 27:216 Ja '31

"Poetry of no little beauty springs from the honesty of Miss Roberts's imagination, disarmingly childlike in feeling and expression. Her poems will delight children of picture-book age or near it, for the simplicity of vocabulary and metre speak to them in their own language and, rare though it is, they will hear a child speaking of the very things that children really do notice and enjoy." K. G. Landon

+ Bookm 72:248 N '30 220w

"It would be a shame to grow philosophical about the rare sweetness of these poems; but it strikes me, as I re-read them, that the quality of innocence and active joy in them, comes from a prevailing experience in childhood. Miss Roberts has expressed a sense that the little worm, the enchanting small bugs, the hens and rabbits and even the wind and the leaves are all a part of one shining and untroubled reality. The child closeness to all creation, and the period before self-consciousness is gently portrayed." Genevieve Taggard

+ Books p8 D 14 '30 400w

Reviewed by Edwin Seaver

N Y Evening Post p4d D 27 '30 150w

"The verses in this volume have that quality so seldom caught by writers of children's verse, of looking at things once again with the eyes of a child. It is one of the most difficult effects in all creative composition to capture, and Miss Roberts succeeded notably, to the end that these are poems which may be read with equal pleasure by both children and their elders. The decorations are both simple and charming."

+ N Y Times p14 N 16 '30 100w

Pratt p25 winter '29

"The best book of poetry dealing with children that has been produced in recent years. . . This book is an American classic." W. R. Benét

+ Sat R of Lit 7:342 N 15 '30 650w

ROBERTS, GEORGE. Heart of words. 158p $1.50 Macmillan

422 English language—Etymology. Homiletical illustrations 29-19901

This little book is a homiletic as well as an etymological novelty. Its author has selected some 200 words from the English Bible, and brought out their fuller and richer meaning by tracing them back to their origin. The passages of scripture from which they are selected serve as texts for brief and effective homilies.

"There are more pretentious books on the study of words, but the combination of word study and scriptural illustration seems to be new, and many no doubt will find it helpful. There are many 'seed-thoughts' for talks, sermonettes, and probably sermons." B. S. Gowen

+ Christian Century 47:597 My 7 '30 380w

"The Heart of Words merits the claim of its publishers as a 'Homiletic Novelty.' "

+ Churchman p16 D 28 '29 40w

"The author adds the most interesting illustrations which sometimes develop into very effective and beautiful homilies. . . The book will prove invaluable to any pastor who uses it as a stimulant and not as a source of supply." G. F. Finnie

+ Crozer Q 7:136 Ja '30 180w

ROBERTS, JOHN HAWLEY. Narcissus. 301p $2.50 Sears

30-10086

"The youth, adolescence and young manhood of Millwater Crane, who was determined to be true to his own ideals."—Publishers Weekly

---

Books p12 Je 1 '30 150w

"This character sketch is clearly done, with few false notes and with no confusion as to type."

+ Boston Transcript p2 Jl 2 '30 380w

"The theme, while touching, fails to arouse our sympathy. The style is equivalent to the theme." Edwin Seaver

— N Y Evening Post p10m Ap 26 '30 60w

" 'Narcissus' is a smooth and uniformly adequate piece of writing. It is to Mr. Roberts' credit that his subject, which in clumsier hands might have seemed more than a little ridiculous, holds the reader's interest and attention so successfully here."

+ N Y Times p8 My 18 '30 600w

Springf'd Republican p5e Je 22 '30 100w

ROBERTS, KENNETH LEWIS. Arundel; being the recollections of Steven Nason of Arundel, in the province of Maine, attached to the secret expedition led by Benedict Arnold against Quebec. 618p map $2.50 Doubleday, Doran

Arnold, Benedict—Fiction. United States—History—Revolution—Fiction 30-3872

An historical novel of the Revolutionary period, the setting of which is the garrison house at Arundel in southern Maine. Steven Nason, the hero of the story, goes with his friend Benedict Arnold on a hazardous expedition against Quebec. Young Nason has a very personal interest in the success of the enterprise, since Mary Mallinson, the girl he loves, has been taken by the Indians and is a captive in Quebec. Steven's recollections of the hardships, and dangers of the expedition, and its blunders and failure in spite of individual acts of heroism, make up the bulk of the narrative.

Booklist 26:282 Ap '30

"We shall see a thousand silly sex novels before we see another story so well told as this. Its appearance is a healthy sign that the pendulum may soon swing away from the false erotic to brave romance; for swing it must, as it always has swung." C. J. Finger

+ Books p21 F 9 '30 700w

Reviewed by D. L. Mann

Boston Transcript p2 Ja 25 '30 1850w

"As a full-blooded, human, heroic chronicle of a gallant adventure, and as a memorial of Revolutionary days in Maine, and as a fascinating story, this is a book of special importance."

+ Christian Science Monitor p7 F 1 '30 850w

Cleveland Open Shelf p80 My '30

"In 'Arundel' there is good observation, good humor, good characterization and an apparently accurate representation of the spirit of the times. . . Much more than half of this 618-page novel deals with Benedict Arnold's heroic Canadian expedition in the first year of the Revolutionary War. And Mr. Roberts has taken advantage of the inescapable hardships of that long journey to make the march as vivid a piece of writing as anything of its kind since Masefield's 'Sard Harker.' '' Thomas Boyd

+ N Y Evening Post p6m Ja 18 '30 600w

"'Arundel' is an achievement—a really fine and stirring historical novel. . . Kenneth Roberts has succeeded splendidly in capturing a fragrance belonging to the past, a faint but indispensable aroma which is the chief charm of a historical novel, and which most American historical novels have notably lacked."

+ N Y Times p8 Ja 12 '30 650w

"The plot is conventional. But the manner of telling is decidedly out of the ordinary. It is done with an unusual amount of vivacity, originality, humor, and a knowledge of woodcraft and Indian lore that would put a J. Fenimore Cooper on his mettle." B. F.

+ N Y World p11m Ja 26 '30 300w

"The account of the unsuccessful storming of Quebec is especially good, a pitiful story of defeat. The story aspect of the book is good enough, though it is seldom definitely interesting. There is only one thing the matter with 'Arundel,' but that one thing is a rather serious error of judgment. The novel is much too long. It is almost a third longer than 'Kenilworth,' and four fifths the length of 'Vanity Fair.' We look askance at such extensiveness these days, especially when it seems to have been far from necessary."

+ — Sat R of Lit 6:1049 My 17 '30 480w

"The narrative is of that fortunate sort that permits but does not require steady reading in order to hold the thread of interest and keep in the spirit of the history."

+ Springf'd Republican p10 Ja 22 '30 300w

ROBERTS, MORRIS: Henry James's criticism. 131p $3 Harvard univ. press [13s 6d Oxford]

814 James, Henry 29-19637

"Mr. Morris Roberts gives a survey of Henry James's critical writings, ranging from his early American days to the last elaboration of his literary faith in the prefaces to the collected edition of his novels. Mr. Roberts shows how much there was in James's culture, in spite of all its later sophistication, that was always constant to the taste and principle of his youth. It was a case of development carried to its utmost, without a break; and though his criticism was always a by-work in the intervals of fiction, it was plentiful enough to show every step of the gradual change."—Times [London] Lit Sup

---

Boston Transcript p7 N 13 '29 650w

"The author of this study has performed an excellent service in tracing through the ample and complex mass of Henry James's work something like an ordered view of his development as a critic and self-conscious artist. . . The result constitutes a more than usually profitable 'manual of the novel,' and at the same time confirms the frequent assertion that James, in addition to his claims as a novelist, must be included among the few really great and conscientious critics in the language." William Troy

+ N Y Times p2 Ag 10 '30 520w

"Mr. Roberts' monograph is more successful as a record than as a synthesis and gives evidence of having been written as a thesis. But it is carefully prepared, it assembles data of varied interest and, as a whole, it makes a comprehensive and fairly satisfactory summary of James's critical ideas."

+ Springf'd Republican p10 Je 28 '30 850w

Times [London] Lit Sup p1037 D 5 '29 150w

ROBERTS, RICHARD. Christian God. (Merrick lectures for 1928) 154p $1.50 Macmillan

231 God 29-18755

For descriptive note see Annual for 1929.

Boston Transcript p2 Mr 8 '30 300w

Cleveland Open Shelf p19 F '30

"This is a little book. Its worth, however, is out of proportion to its size. It is an admirable example of the preacher's art. The author discusses a most difficult theme with rare skill in use of his material and in literary presentation. He knows the fields of recent biological and psychological research and easily adduces illustrations from each field to clarify and make attractive his logic. . . He acknowledges his sources for his material in a brief bibliography, but these have been only the stimulus to real creative thinking on his own part. The art of vivid portrayal and illuminating allusion is his own." M. G. Evans

+ Crozer Q 7:117 Ja '30 230w

Reviewed by E. E. Aubrey

J Religion 10:291 Ap '30 1200w

ROBERTS, RICHARD. Spirit of God and the faith of today. 185p $2 Willett

231.3 Holy Spirit 30-11528

The author has tried to show the evidence of the Holy Spirit working in the world today, the ways in which it manifests itself and the conditions under which it works.

Books p17 Je 8 '30 180w

Reviewed by C. T. Holman

J Religion 10:632 O '30 350w

"While recognizing the worth of the doctrine [of the Trinity], especially as preserving 'in a symbolic form the two conceptions of transcendence and immanence,' his discussion of the traditional terminology is unsatisfactory. He asserts that 'hypostasis' and 'ousia' really mean the same thing. 'You may translate the formula as "three substances in one substance" or "three essences in one essence."' Surely this assertion cannot be maintained. All will, however, commend the real purpose of the book, which is to urge upon the Church 'to cultivate the life of the Spirit,' and to follow the example of those earnest men of the Middle Ages who banded themselves together for a common life of ordered prayer." F. L. Palmer

+ — Living Church 84:276 D 20 '30 480w

Reviewed by E. B. Chaffee

Outlook 155:388 Jl 9 '30 120w

ROBERTS, SYDNEY CASTLE. Eighteenth-century gentleman, and other essays. 131p $2.40 Macmillan [6s Cambridge univ. press]

824 Johnson, Samuel 30-16415

The central figure of this little volume of six essays is Samuel Johnson. The first essay deals with Lord Lyttelton. Contents: An eighteenth-century gentleman; Johnsoniana; Johnson in Grub Street, Johnson's books, The focus of the Lichfield lamps; Two imitations; Lord Macaulay —the pre-eminent Victorian.

"It will not be difficult for readers of these delightful essays to understand why Mr. S. C. Roberts is one of the most popular lecturers at Cambridge University. Sound knowledge, sane critical judgment, and a gracious manner of presenting ideas, the three indispensable attributes of fine scholarship, are equally at his command. With entire justice Mr. Roberts as eighteenth-century scholar and essayist may be said to occupy that position in English letters left vacant for so many years since the death of Austin Dobson." E. B. H.

+ Boston Transcript p1 Ag 9 '30 420w

Christian Science Monitor p13 Jl 26 '30 100w

Nation and Ath 46:868 Mr 22 '30 650w

New Statesman 34:580 F 8 '30 600w

Sat R 149:169 F 8 '30 500w

"Mr. Roberts' essays are slight. But they combine original research and wide reading with genial humour and a picturesque touch. This is a book in which all bookmen should browse with pleasure."

+ Spec 144:166 F 1 '30 260w

ROBERTSON, EILEEN ARBUTHNOT. Three came unarmed. 328p $2.50 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Cape, J.]
30-839

Herel, Nonie and Alan Druce, of English and Norwegian parentage, have grown up like young savages on Kapal Pechah, a delta island off the coast of Borneo. At the death of their missionary father they return—glorious physically, innocent and truthful mentally and morally—to the home of relatives in England. There follows inevitable conflict between these independent, nonconforming young people and modern civilized society. Each in his own way falls a tragic victim to this new and artificial environment: Herel is destroyed by mob fury in the factory that employs him; Nonie finds that her lover's work means more to him than her love; and Alan, the artist, having become involved in fraudulent transactions, is forced to return to Kapal Pechah.

Booklist 27:30 S '30

"There is material here for a fine book, but it did not get written. To write it would have been to admit that civilization is not all the work of Satan, nor the life of nature God's own way of life. And that was more than Miss Arnot Robertson was prepared to acknowledge." Dorothea Brande
— + Bookm 71:102 Mr '30 550w

"Individualists will read E. Arnot Robertson's 'Three Came Unarmed' with a relish as keen as that with which it appears to have been written. Its author at least does not come unarmed, but carries a wit sharper than the knife of her barbarian hero. . . As a novel 'Three Came Unarmed' has the faults of its satiric virtues. If the three principal characters do not seem altogether human, it is because they have been made for a purpose: the criticism of civilized society." Garreta Busey
+ Books p3 Mr 2 '30 950w

"If you read this novel carefully you will perceive underneath the excellent dialogue the seasoned skill of a good story teller blending with that stern defiance of cheap mediocrity that only youth can give and middle age take away." D. F. Gilman
+ Boston Transcript p4 F 15 '30 1500w

"There are some amusing passages in the book, some salty and clearly realized descriptions of sailing craft. Evidently Miss Robertson is a sailor. There are several irrelevances and many evidences of a determination to be very post-warish and outspoken no matter what the cost. Miss Robertson has used a promising, though of course impossible situation, and she has adopted a lively, picturesque and willfully frank way of writing about it."
— + Christian Science Monitor p5 Mr 8 '30 450w

"Notwithstanding the fact that it is a bitter attack upon civilization—upon the cruelty, the sentimentality, the stupidity and the irresponsible might of organized society—'Three Came Unarmed' certainly deserves to be called one of the most civilized novels of recent years. The narrative is skillful and restrained, enlivened, in an extraordinary degree, with pungent and witty comment. Miss Roberston's style is graceful and urbane. But under her deceptive lightness and urbanity are concealed a weight and thrust of ideas, as bitter, as biting and implacable—and perhaps as unbalanced—as those of Dean Swift." Margaret Wallace
+ N Y Evening Post p11m F 15 '30 700w

"Miss Robertson has brought to the telling of her story a flashing wit and a quality of vital imagination. Whatever one may think of her ideas, one can hardly fail to be captured by the form in which they are set. As any successful novel of ideas must be, 'Three Came Unarmed' is first of all a good story." Margaret Wallace
+ N Y Times p7 F 16 '30 900w

N Y World p7m Je 1 '30 240w

" 'Three Came Unarmed,' says Miss Robertson. Alas, they came armed, with every quality that could drive peace from home or charm from conversation. However, the merits of a book do not depend upon its point of view, and Miss Robertson's has vigour, invention and the power of developing its theme." L. P. Hartley
+ Sat R 148:110 Jl 27 '29 260w

"No one will be able to read the book without being stimulated, and many people will be healthily shocked. Yet one always feels that there is no trace of a desire to astonish the middle class, that Miss Robertson herself was sorry to have to conclude that the two things the late war showed were quite useless were cavalry and clergymen, that she has been regretfully forced to her conclusions. Hers is that rare thing, a book of satire that appears a triumph of intellectual honesty, not of intellectual agility." Basil Davenport
+ Sat R of Lit 6:1125 Je 14 '30 600w

ROBERTSON, JOHN MACKINNON. History of freethought in the nineteenth century. 2v 635p il $7.50 Putnam [25s Watts & co.]

211 Free thought. Rationalism. Philosophy, Modern. Philosophy and religion 30-13691

J. M. Robertson, head of the Rationalist press in England, traces in these two volumes the conflict between religion and rationalism from the French revolution to the present day. Volume one, which begins with the reign of orthodoxy and the religious reaction in Britain, ends with the general advance and a discussion of European literature relative to free thought organization. Volume two opens with a study of the doctrine of evolution and its immediate effects upon the development of various sciences, follows thru the passing of orthodoxy and a discussion of later philosophy and ethics, and concludes with a summary of the achievements of free thought.

"That the book shows a bias throughout cannot be denied, but it is no more evident or distorting than the pietistic slant which runs through the usual histories of modern thought and religion. It is a fine corrective in this sense. Robertson's narrative and argumentation should be approached equally free from gullibility and hostility. It is both stimulating and vastly informing. He is a master of the encyclopedic art of the Britons of a generation before his own." H. E. Barnes
+ Am J Soc 36:308 S '30 420w

"A very remarkable book; it is what every book ideally should be, a book which no one in the world could have written but its author. It is chiefly remarkable for the way in which Mr. Robertson combines minute detail with enormous range; if you can imagine an astronomer successfully observing the stars through a powerful microscope, you will get some notion of Mr. Robertson's achievement." Leonard Woolf
+ Nation and Ath 46:205 N 9 '29 1400w

"A work that is important not only by virtue of its subject, its timeliness and the significance of the period it covers. The style, content, treatment and point of view of the author make it valuable above all other discussions in this domain." Louis Sherwin
+ N Y Evening Post p11m My 10 '30 850w

St Louis 28:258 N '30

"Those who do not go the whole way with the freethinkers may find a number of points in these volumes to which they must take exception, but no one can deny the solidity of Mr. Robertson's contribution to modern knowledge."
+ — Sat R of Lit 6:1077 My 24 '30 400w

"Mr. Robertson has written an account for 'the plain man' as well as an indispensable guide for the student. The intellectual grasp and power of the successive summaries and estimates, and the mental energy of their presentation, are remarkable; and though the prose seems often lacking in the finer graces of the English language the author rarely permits one to be in doubt of his precise meaning."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p1070 D 19 '29 2050w

ROBERTSON, WILLIAM SPENCE. Life of Miranda. 2v 327;306p il $10 Univ. of N.C. press [45s Oxford]

B or 92 Miranda, Francisco de 30-4357

"Francisco de Miranda was a Venezuelan patriot who, more than any other individual, stood at the very fountain head of the stream of South American liberty. No other person, it is believed, participated in all three of the great revolutionary movements—the American revolution, the French revolution, and the revolution by which the South American colonies threw off the yoke of Spain. His remarkable career brought him into contact with almost everybody of importance in Europe and in North and South America during four troubled decades. Professor Robertson, who was already the leading authority in this field, has notably enriched the knowledge of his subject by utilizing the important collection of Miranda manuscripts which he discovered a few years ago in Gloucestershire, England."—Christian Century

---

Am Pol Sci R 24:1071 N '30 300w

Booklist 26:394 Jl '30

"Professor Robertson has the facts at his fingers' tips; he knows his man and his Latin history; but something of the flatness of the Illinois plains creeps into his narrative. Miranda must, by all accounts, have had the peculiar charm which only a Latin at his best can have. One suspects that Professor Robertson's Spanish is faultless. But he writes prose, and Miranda's biographer should be a poet. Yet the facts are here, old facts and new, the book is an indispensable part of any library of Latin American history." Lewis Gannett

+ — Books p14 Ag 17 '30 1100w

Boston Transcript p7 Mr 15 '30 650w

"Professor Robertson's work is scholarly historical research and writing of the highest grade." W. E. Garrison

+ Christian Century 47:432 Ap 2 '30 270w

"Dr. Robertson's biography is characterized by fairness and impartiality all the way through. He gives full credit to Miranda for his exploits wherever he conscientiously can. He is writing history, not romance. This must be taken into account if, and when, the reader misses that enthusiasm for Miranda that would have made a biography of such a colorful character a book of consuming interest."

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 Ap 12 '30 700w

"The coolness of judgment and the impartiality shown by Professor Robertson are thoroughly admirable. A monument of scholarly research, this study follows the romantic career of Miranda from his birth in Caracas in 1750 through his adventurous life abroad to his ill-fated expedition to Venezuela from New York, his subsequent battles for Venezuelan freedom at the side of the great Simon Bolivar and his surrender to the Spaniards at San Mateo." Francis Snow

+ Current Hist 32:4 Ap '30 250w

"Professor Robertson's unflagging zeal for his subject has unearthed a vast mass of manuscript material of the greatest importance in relation to it, and in two massive and scholarly volumes he has given us the story of the man's whole life with a wealth of detail at every point. The result is a work for the reference rather than the private library. The scale is great for a minor figure. It is a good deal as though the tenant of a flat were presented with a full-length, life-size portrait of a great-uncle. A miniature would suit his quarters better. The historian, however, will be grateful. Miranda is no longer a shadowy figure. The amount of new material concerning him is immense, and is presented lucidly and accurately. Anyone handling the period of Hamilton and Jefferson has a new tool of prime importance."

+ — Nation 130:712 Je 18 '30 250w

Reviewed by R. M. Lovett

New Repub 64:211 O 8 '30 700w

"Professor Robertson has written the 'Life of Miranda' in the academic tradition, so that it is nine-tenths political history and one-tenth biography, too cautious to re-create the man. Perhaps the weight of the sixty-three volumes of Miranda's diary and private papers censored his imagination. The book is unquestionably scholarly, beautifully printed and illustrated, full of exciting fragments, and invaluable to students of history, but dull." Anita Brenner

+ — N Y Evening Post p11m Mr 15 '30 1000w

"Throughout his book Professor Robertson makes copious use of the immensely valuable Miranda documents which he unearthed, after a century of oblivion, in England. This fact alone gives to his work an extraordinary interest for all students of Miranda's career. Indeed, it is not too much to say that Professor Robertson's new life of Miranda will easily leap to first place among all the books about the great South American adventurer and apostle of liberty; not one of the works written up to now about him—so far as the present reviewer is aware—equals it in scope and depth of research." T. R. Ybarra

+ N Y Times p3 F 16 '30 1800w

Reviewed by L. G. Woodman

N Y World p11m Mr 23 '30 1100w

"The picture of the Venezuelan patriot that Professor Robertson portrays is historically accurate and the most complete yet presented. It will undoubtedly take its place among the best biographies produced by American scholarship in recent years. . . It is refreshing to find a biography in which no effort is made to psychoanalyze the subject, no attempt to connect every action in a long, romantic, and eventful career to some peculiar complex developed as a child. The work will do much to enhance the reputation for historical scholarship that the author already enjoys in the Latin American field." L. S. Meyer

+ Sat R of Lit 6:798 Mr 8 '30 1650w

"The interest of the book is not that of the revelation of a great personality or the history of great achievement. It lies rather in the light which it throws on the activities behind the scenes during one of the greatest dramas ever played upon the world's stage. It gives vivid pictures of men and manners during the revolutionary period in Europe and America; and, above all, it is a notable contribution to the history of diplomacy."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p877 O '30 1250w

ROBESON, ESLANDA CARDOZA (GOODE) (MRS PAUL ROBESON). Paul Robeson, Negro. 178p il $2.50 Harper [10s 6d Gollancz]

B or 92 Robeson, Paul 30-18186

When Paul Robeson graduated from Rutgers college in 1919, he was not only a football hero and four-letter man in athletics but had won his Phi Beta Kappa key, and been elected to Cap and skull. He has since become famous on two continents as an actor and singer. His biography is written by his wife.

Booklist 27:63 O '30

"Mrs. Robeson has written a chatty, informing and naively intimate book that couldn't have been bettered by the best press agent. In it one learns as much about Mrs. Robeson as one does about Paul—and a good deal about them together." Langston Hughes

+ Books p1 Je 29 '30 1800w

"It is difficult to see why, aside from the interest accruing from his recent portrayal of Othello, this book ought to be necessary. The color of Paul Robeson's life could have been much more richly etched in. As the book now appears, an American printing of the original English edition, it is little more than a rapid, but nonetheless an intensely interesting summary of the life of a negro artist." W. E. H.

+ — Boston Transcript p1 Ag 9 '30 500w

Cleveland Open Shelf p151 D '30

ROBESON, E. C.—Continued

"Of this book we can only say that it might easily have been by some mediocre and tedious little school teacher from some Northern public school. It shows in itself most of the qualities that such a fine nature as her husband's fortunately lacks; and there is not in the whole book a word or a phrase or a reaction that betokens the depths, warmths, common sense, simplicity of nature, and artistic instinct, which he undoubtedly possesses. The whole case of this book is most regrettable. Its mediocrity spoils the fine material it attempts; its trite, and sometimes specious, plausibility invites a certain approval that is only another kind of condescension." Stark Young

— + New Repub 63:345 Ag 6 '30 1600w

"This book is compelling by its simplicity and naïveté." R. C. Feld

+ N Y Times p5 Jl 13 '30 420w

"This book is inspiring for a number of reasons. It is, first of all, a restrained but highly revealing biography of a talented and intelligent man who has given many proofs of his abilities. Then it is a clear exposition of the relation of the intelligent Negro to the American world. And the work is all the more remarkable because the sympathetic author who writes so well with restraint and balance is none other than Eslanda Goode Robeson, his wife." Harry Hansen

+ N Y World p11 Je 25 '30 1000w

"Mrs. Robeson is bright and a good publicity writer, and those who enjoy personality sketches will find her book readable. But fine singer, exciting actor and charming person as Robeson is, he scarcely rates a biography, yet." F. L. Robbins

+ Outlook 155:350 Jl 2 '30 100w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:86 D '30

"The details of Paul Robeson's life though interesting, are not so interesting as to justify the price of half-a-guinea for the book. But the humorous and cunning 'peaceful penetration' methods by which the negro colony at Harlem was established; the mysterious disappearance of many thousands of negroes, coinciding with the equally mysterious—and extremely significant!—appearance 'out of nowhere, of an approximately equal number of white Americans; the American colour-problem as it appears to a well-bred, highly educated, negro artist, these and other matters dealt with in this 'book about' Paul Robeson are not only of great interest but of very great importance."

+ — Sat R 150:27 Jl 5 '30 200w

"Mrs. Robeson paints the portrait of a very attractive personality, and does so with a frankness of detail which will be almost alarming to some English readers, accustomed to a greater reserve. Still more interesting, however, is her vivid picture of negro life."

+ — Spec 145:230 Ag 16 '30 420w

"Written in an artless but quite attractive strain, this biographical record illuminates many aspects of negro life and character which are not strictly relevant to the main narrative. . . It is a simple and unpretentious narrative, which leaves a very pleasant impression of both the subject and the writer of the book."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p432 My 22 '30 550w

ROBINSON, BENJAMIN WILLARD. Sayings of Jesus: their background and interpretation. 277p il $3 Harper

232.9 Jesus Christ—Teaching. Jews—History. Bible.New Testament—Selections 30-19843

The purpose of this book is to combine an historical study of the Jews from the time of Alexander the Great to the fall of Jerusalem in 70 A.D. with a study of the teachings of Jesus. The sayings of Jesus are newly translated by the author.

"Doctor Robinson's new book gives us an intelligible picture of the Master as he is known to modern scholars, but it accomplishes its scholarly purpose while retaining a warmth and vigor which is possible only when the author is a lover of Jesus. . . The book also contains a new translation of the sayings of Jesus into modern speech which makes these sayings live again for modern men and women. Particular emphasis is placed upon the sayings of Jesus found in the earliest sources, these being grouped together in one chapter for the reader's convenience." E. J. Bruso

+ Christian Century 47:1187 O 1 '30 280w

"As a whole the volume is decidedly worth while. The attempt is seriously made to see life through Jesus's eyes. The author is to be highly commended in his refusal to view Jesus as a social engineer. How refreshing to see a man convinced that Jesus actually was concerned with individuals! The last two chapters of the book are particularly good, 'The Inner Dynamic of Jesus' religion' and 'The Forceful Quality of his Expressions.' . . The arrangement of the book is unique. The sayings and also parallel or illuminating passages from the Old Testament are printed in the author's own translation; then comments and discussions follow. Convenient indices add to the value of the book." M. S. Enslin

+ — Crozer Q 7:523 O '30 450w

Int J Ethics 41:277 Ja '31 100w

ROBINSON, MRS CAROLINE (HADLEY). ^{3} Seventy birth control clinics; a survey and analysis including the general effects of control on size and quality of population; foreword by Robert Latou Dickinson. (Medical aspects of human fertility; ser. Issued by the National committee on maternal health) 351p $4 Williams & Wilkins

613.94 Birth control. Population 30-24440

"This survey and analysis, including the general effects of birth control on the size and quality of the population, is the first of a series of socio-medical studies in course of publication under the auspices and encouragement of the National Committee on Maternal Health." (Survey) Part one is devoted to a survey of organization, staffs, and statistics for seventy clinics with treatment of related administrative problems. Part two discusses social implications of birth control with especial reference to its effects on quantity and quality of population.

"The gradual transition of the subject of birth control from the stage of propaganda and attack to the stage of calmer scientific treatment is indicated by this volume." J. H. T.

Int J Ethics 41:272 Ja '31 150w

Reviewed by Haven Emerson, M.D.

Survey 65:231 N 15 '30 320w

ROBINSON, MRS CORINNE (ROOSEVELT). ^{2} Out of nymph—. 108p $2 Scribner

811 30-27693

Mrs. Robinson's latest collection of verse contains a group of nature poems; a series of vignettes and portraits of well-known people, including Ruth Draper, John Erskine and Thomas Lamont; a section of letters in rhyme entitled As poets correspond; and a concluding group of poems, In lighter vein.

"Mrs. Robinson's poems show that she has had a robust feeling for life, which she has remembered here and paid tribute to in various moods, some serious, intense, others light."

Books p26 N 16 '30 100w

"Many of the pieces are verses to or about various people, several of whom are more or less well known. These, always graceful bits, are interesting for their wit, but, as must be the case with particularizing poetry, they fall short in universal interest." Percy Hutchison

— + N Y Times p22 D 14 '30 180w

"We marvel that such an eminent publishing house should print such extremely third-rate work, while the sections in it entitled 'As Poets Correspond' and 'In Lighter Vein' made us positively squirm." W. R. Benét

— Sat R of Lit 7:370 N 22 '30 50w

ROBINSON, EDWIN ARLINGTON. Glory of the Nightingales. 83p $2 Macmillan
811 30-24530

Mr Robinson's latest narrative poem in blank verse tells the story of two friends, Malory and Nightingale. Both fall in love with Agatha; but Agatha loves and marries Malory, who is only a struggling young bacteriologist, while Nightingale has attained to great wealth. The latter invests all of Malory's money, but, thru jealousy, allows him to become financially ruined. Agatha cannot bear the shock of tragedy, and dies. Malory, who goes forth to seek vengeance upon Nightingale, finds his enemy a very ill man, near to death. Malory realizes that Nightingale is to be pitied as much as blamed, and on this human note the poem closes.

Reviewed by Theodore Morrison
Atlantic Bookshelf p50 D '30 180w
Booklist 27:149 D '30

"Mr. Robinson has said all these things before, and he has said them in passages charged with greater poetic energy than can be found in 'The Glory of the Nightingales.' There is no mutual kindling of thought and emotion in this poem, as there is in the great lines of 'Tristram,' 'Merlin' and 'Lancelot'; the diction never becomes magically effective, as it does in many hundreds of lines scattered through Mr. Robinson's work. In brief, it is all a little cold and dry and labored, and as such must rank among the minor productions of a poet who has amply proved his greatness." B. R. Redman
— Books p5 S 21 '30 1000w

"'The Glory of the Nightingales' is not to be classed in the first order of Mr. Robinson's work. Surcharged as it is with a certain heavy atmosphere of dead futility, it cannot compare in beauty, intensity, or effectiveness with 'Cavender's House,' to which it bears a distinct resemblance. To be sure, there are striking passages in the poem but fewer than one is accustomed to expect from the pen of Edwin Arlington Robinson. Yet to insist that 'The Glory of the Nightingales' does not approach the poet's best manner, is most emphatically not to suggest that it will not well repay reading—and rereading. Everything of Robinson's is worth reading." E. B. Hall
— + Boston Transcript p3 O 18 '30 1250w

Reviewed by Raymond Kresensky
Christian Century 47:1595 D 24 '30 180w

"That Robinson has weaknesses 'The Glory of the Nightingales' once more makes clear. There are times when his methods become mannerisms and his psychological analyses move along, in the worst Jamesian manner, by their own momentum. His perceptions, it is obvious, function only within a limited area of experience, and his imagination is subtle rather than intense. He has known, however, how to make excellent use of the talents with which he is endowed, and the method he has evolved for his longer poems is close to perfection. For passages of exposition his blank verse lapses into an unobtrusive flow that has all the useful flexibility of prose, but it can rise, when the occasion requires, to an elevation richly poetic." Granville Hicks
+ — Nation 131:382 O 8 '30 400w

"In relation to the main body of his work, 'The Glory of the Nightingales' merely proves again that Robinson has already said very nearly everything he has to say. We think of Nightingale and Malory as first cousins of Richard Cory and Captain Craig or Bewick Finzer. Even the Arthurian heroes have the familiar gestures that we recognize at sight as belonging to Robinson's fraternity. If 'The Glory of the Nightingales' contributes little or nothing to the advance of Robinson's fully recognized reputation, most certainly it verifies the opinion that he is an artist of remarkable ingenuity." Horace Gregory
New Repub 64:303 O 29 '30 800w

"The whole is told in Robinson's perfect and fluid blank verse, a medium particularly his own for the telling of just such involuted tales, a blank verse very different from the more traditional and elaborate form the poet made use of in the Arthurian legends. Such verse is a fine narrative medium and carries one forward, by means of constant semicircles, as it were, wave upon wave, idea upon idea, floating to the surface." E. L. Walton
+ N Y Evening Post p8s S 13 '30 800w

"Truly the poem is a literary achievement the magnitude of which must grow with renewed reading. Psychological analysis of a peculiarly penetrating and accurate sort, philosophic profundity, and a dramatic human episode—only Robinson can so weave such things together that one exclaims that he has achieved, or nearly achieved, the ultimate in his elected genre. This writer confesses that he still yearns for a repetition of the gorgeous panoply of the 'Tristram.' But that does not deter him from acknowledging the more austere perfection of the present work." Percy Hutchison
+ N Y Times p5 S 14 '30 1850w

"He is probably one of the great poets, and his intentions, in these long narratives, has an emotional impact of great power, but the intellectual terms of this effect are elusive. And this testifies to his greatness. It is possible that Mr. Robinson's service is at once the slyest and the most implacable piece of irony in the whole record of a poet steadfastly devoted to the ironic method." Allen Tate
+ N Y World p3e O 12 '30 750w

"A newspaper clipping could have told the tale with more succinctness; a state drama with less terrific accumulation and monotony; nobody but Robinson and his almost diabolical form could have piled up the terrible weariness and horror of vengeance and disgrace as he has done."
Outlook 156:145 S 24 '30 300w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:82 N '30
St Louis 28:268 N '30

"The poem is a sustained achievement of thought, wherein the motives of two men, one the doer the other the recipient of evil, are presented as an epitome of human beings facing their spiritual opportunities. The execution is sustained in flexible and fluent verse, which partakes of the abstractness of the theme, yet does not lack occasional flashes of aphoristic condensation."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e O 19 '30 600w

ROBINSON, GERTRUDE. White heron feather. ² 300p il $2 Harper 30-24626

Nausaka, a sixteen-year-old white girl, has been reared among the Maine Indians who had made a captive of her mother. The escape of the girl and her mother is accompanied by many thrilling episodes and adventures in the wilderness of Maine in pioneer days.

Booklist 27:214 Ja '31

"I cannot feel that this story is of itself important in the ranks of juvenile literature. Although the author writes well and without over-sentimentalizing her characters, and despite the fact that she has chosen a little familiar background of northern Maine in the days of early colonization, still, it seems to me, that when all is said and done she gives little real sense of the past in it. Far less, I am sure than did Mrs. Smith in her Deerfield tales. . . Even when many interesting stories of Indian life are brought in, they seem curiously unrelated to the rest. I feel a lack of richness, a hurried quality in the writing as if the author felt she must at all times compete with the movies." Rachel Field
— + Books p8 D 28 '30 500w

ROBINSON, LOUIS NEWTON, and STEARNS, MAUDE ETHEL. Ten thousand small loans; facts about borrowers in 109 cities in 17 states. (Small loan ser.) 159p il $2 Russell Sage foundation
332.3 Interest and usury. Loans 30-18720

Some statistics on borrowers from small loan offices, gathered by means of questionnaires sent out and percentages tabulated. This book is the outgrowth of a study made thru the

ROBINSON, L. N., and STEARNS, M. E. —Continued
Russell Sage Foundation, which resulted in the adoption by 24 states of the uniform small loan law.

"Unfortunately the results of this study have remained unpublished for seven years after the completion of the investigation. Publication at an earlier date would have been helpful in subjecting small loan companies to scientific analysis. . . The Russell Sage Foundation could perform a valuable service by making another study, using the experience of this one, based upon the reasons for which loans are made. This study is made with care and the authors do not attempt to make unwarranted conclusions from their data." C. O. Fisher
+ — Am Econ R 20:533 S '30 500w

"The work is a distinct addition to the limited small loans data available to the public at the present time." E. E. Davidson
+ Ann Am Acad 152:416 N '30 200w

Reviewed by Day Monroe
J Home Econ 23:72 Ja '31 450w

St Louis 28:231 O '30

"Dr. Robinson, in addition to his close relationship to the Russell Sage Foundation, has enjoyed much direct contact with the small-loan business, while Miss Stearns has been in constant contact with the customer's side of personal finance through the Foundation's division of remedial loans. Their combined efforts have resulted in a work of profound value and an authoritative source of information regarding the field of consumer borrowing." Burr Blackburn
+ Survey 65:229 N 15 '30 320w

ROBINSON, WILLIAM ALEXANDER. Thomas B. Reed, parliamentarian. (Am. political leaders) 423p il $5 Dodd

B or 92 Reed, Thomas Brackett 30-30931

The biography of Thomas Brackett Reed, lawyer, and American politician, who sat in the House of representatives from 1877 to 1899 and for three congresses was Speaker of the house.

Reviewed by S. L. Cook
Boston Transcript p3 N 8 '30 1900w

"Professor Robinson's careful and adequate research has been embodied in clear and pleasing prose. The author describes rather than evaluates the life of Reed. He does not clutter the book with his own sprightly observations. None are needed. Reed's wit sparkles in the profusely quoted remarks on almost every page. The result is that the personality of Reed outlines itself clearly against the chronological background of his life. The author's self-effacement and method of handling his material reproduce the flow of a man's life, and he is happily lacking in the tendency to depict a man as a sustained ethical judgment." Samuel McKee, Jr.
+ Hist Outlook 21:397 D '30 500w

"Professor Robinson's new biography of 'Czar' Reed is a competent piece of work, though I am afraid that the extravagant praise he lavishes on his hero will fall on deaf ears. Reed had a mordant wit and undoubtedly was an honest man. . . Otherwise, he was a Republican standpatter of the customary stripe. . . Professor Robinson seems to think that this achievement of Reed's will number the gentleman from Maine among the imperishably great, but then, Professor Robinson may have his own ideas about the true role of parliamentary bodies." L. M. Hacker
Nation 131:653 D 10 '30 350w

"Professor Robinson, who has written an extremely able and full biography of Reed—though he should not have disguised the man under the opprobrious epithet of 'Parliamentarian,' as if he were the author of Cushing's Manual, since Reed was a statesman—gives a coherent and lucid account of the way in which the overshadowing figure of 1890 fell by the wayside and McKinley, rather than some important person like Senator Allison, became the popular idol in three years. It should be said that this biography is no eulogy; in fact, it makes too many subtractions from Reed's overpowering eminence." C. W. Thompson
+ N Y Times p6 D 28 '30 1150w

Reviewed by Harry Hansen
N Y World p9 D 20 '30 450w

Reviewed by W. B. Shaw
R of Rs 82:6 D '30 200w

ROCHE, ARTHUR SOMERS. Age of youth. 299p $2 Sears
30-7306

"A former chorus girl writes to a wealthy clubman, a total stranger, to ask for $25,000 so that she can win for a husband one of those young eligibles who appear in the rotogravure supplements. Moreover, she stipulates that he is to expect no return on his investment except a thrill such as he might get from watching a horse he has financed run in a race. Randolph Granby accepts the conditions and Donna Raynor, with surprising luck, gets into social circles immediately."—N Y Times

"Mr. Roche has merely dusted off the old Cinderella theme, with a passing glance at 'Daddy Longlegs' and turned out a machine-made novel amply supplied with action and bedecked with remnants of what passes for society."
— Books p20 Ap 13 '30 280w

Boston Transcript p2 My 7 '30 380w

"Aside from its opening, which the reader can easily take with a grain of salt, Mr. Roche has written a story which is not only convincing, but interesting."
+ — N Y Times p27 Mr 30 '30 180w

Springf'd Republican p5e Jl 20 '30 250w

ROCHE, ARTHUR SOMERS. Among those present. 298p $2 Sears
30-16608

"This is the fable of Lacy Crandall, society thief but still somehow a splendid fellow, who is forced by his dastardly confederates to rob the girl he loves. For the delectation of the reader there are numerous descriptions of high life."—Sat R of Lit

Books p15 Ag 24 '30 220w

Boston Transcript p2 Ag 6 '30 200w

N Y Times p7 Jl 13 '30 250w

"We are continually dispirited by the characters' parade of intense nobility, as well as by the low intellectual level of the tale. 'Among Those Present' is light reading with a vengeance."
— Sat R of Lit 6:1195 Jl 12 '30 70w

Springf'd Republican p7e S 28 '30 100w

RODD, RALPH, pseud. See North, W.

ROEDER, RALPH. Savonarola; a study in conscience. 307p pl $5 Brentano's

B or 92 Savonarola, Girolamo Maria Francesco Matteo 30-25503

The sub-title indicates the line taken in Mr Roeder's interpretation. This study in conscience shows the great friar as a man of unwavering conservatism at odds with the extravagance and corruption of his age, a man, moreover, whose pride was the controlling factor in his life and whose belief in himself and his leadership was traceable to the need of compensation for his early years of isolation and humiliation.

"Mr. Roeder's book is distinguished by quite fine writing. It recommends itself to the hack biography-sated reader as a work expressly fresh and good, and to the collector as a neat bit of printing. There is an adequate bibliography appended, and the illustrations are fine examples of offset lithography." Leo Kennedy

+ Bookm 72:315 N '30 300w

"While there is no evidence that this author has added anything by his own research to the sum of previous knowledge of Savonarola's life, he has added one of the most delightful and informing volumes to the voluminous literature in that field. . . For a brilliant restatement of facts, supplemented by the results of some later researches in manuscript sources, and for an absorbingly interesting as well as essentially fair presentation of this whole thrilling episode in the history of religion and culture, Roeder's book is incomparable."
+ Christian Century 47:1596 D 24 '30 200w

"Luminous, pinnacled and sure above merely temporal babbles, Ralph Roeder's biography of Savonarola towers to eminence. From this book is to be found a response superior to that of hero-worship, deeper than the surface masquerades of gossip, more complex than acute psychological insight. Here is realized the drama of a man presented in his representative humanity: a realization that leaves an altered and enriched attitude of mind. Here, as the subtitle states, is 'a study in conscience.' Here is design—creative selection. In a word, here is a work of intelligence." Raymond Weaver
+ N Y Evening Post p6d N 15 '30 850w

"Mr. Roeder's logic in arriving at his conclusions is not always clear and sometimes contradictory. One feels, on occasions, that he sacrifices his subject to the mot juste. His prose, by way of compensation, is rich and dramatic. It serves admirably in depicting the stormy background of fifteenth century Italy against which his thesis posed." Dino Ferrari
— + N Y Times p11 Ja 4 '31 700w

"This volume has the supreme quality of excitement. One tingles reading it. In addition it is sound, if not exhaustive history; with deft selection, with assured understanding, it recreates the strange, turbulent life of Florence at the end of the fifteenth century." Shaemas O'Sheel
+ N Y World p3e Ja 4 '31 550w

ROERICH, NIKOLAI KONSTANTINOVICH. Shambhala. 316p il $2.50 Stokes
915.15 Asia, Central—Description and travel. Tibet—Description and travel. Tales, Indic
30-9209

An account of an artist's travels through Central Asia and Tibet in the "Shambhala"—or new era of their civilization.

Booklist 26:392 Jl '30

"The chapters are exceedingly uneven . . . but the average is high. Seldom can one find within the covers of a single volume such breadth of outlook, such balanced treatment of material things, together with an appreciation of the abstractions of Buddhism which verges on sheer psychic mysticism." William Beebe
+ Books p24 Ap 13 '30 350w

"The reader cannot help but feel the privilege of sitting at the feet of Nicholas Roerich, through his book, and learning not only about Asia but about life and all the civilizations of the world. Professor Roerich is historian and prophet, poet and preacher, artist and philosopher, idealist and realist, writer and worker, yet he humbly writes as a student rather than as a teacher." F. E. W.
+ Boston Transcript p2 Jl 23 '30 450w
N Y Times p17 O 12 '30 500w

"To the numerous disciples who hang on the Master's every word there is no doubt that 'Shambhala' will seem an extremely important document, but to most westerners, firmly anchored to the earth, it will all seem as distant as the Himalayas. Mr. Roerich's style is excessively grand at times, and one rather wonders in what language he originally wrote the book; yet at his best, like all prophets, he convinces, in spite of reason."
+ — Sat R of Lit 6:1150 Je 21 '30 300w

ROGERS, FREDERICK RAND. Future of interscholastic athletics. (School administration ser.) 137p il $1.90 Teachers college
371.74 School sports. College sports. Extracurricular activities 29-29839

Dr Rogers, director of health education for the state of New York, attacks the evils of championship teams in interscholastic contests, and advocates a return of athletics to its rightful place and function.

"His book has packed into 120 pages some of the most vital and significant ideas on sports that have been published in the past twenty years." J. R. Tunis
+ N Y Evening Post p6s Ja 4 '30 450w

"Every individual engaged in the administration of education or in the management or coaching of athletics should read the book critically. It undoubtedly represents a contribution to the movement for the improvement of interscholastic athletics." W. W. Haggard
+ School R 38:390 My '30 1050w

ROGERS, LEON W. His own people. 295p $2 Laidlaw
29-24735

"This is the long and apparently more or less autobiographical account of the experiences of a 'preacher's son.' The scenes are laid in Texas during the '90s. The central character is the son of a Methodist minister who was a strict Fundamentalist. Paul Wesley Polk was dedicated to the ministry by his father as soon as he was born."—N Y Times

"The feelings of a normal boy who suffers under the affliction of being a minster's son and the hard life of a circuit rider and his family, saddled with poverty and constantly on the move, are described with a crude effectiveness that makes this story better worth reading than many more carefully written ones."
+ Nation 130:334 Mr 19 '30 100w

"The picture of the difficulties and disabilities inflicted upon Paul by virtue of his position as the 'preacher's boy' is sympathetically drawn, and the descriptions of the yearly migration of the minister's family, as 'Brother Polk' was shifted from one parish to another, read as if they were memories of personal experiences. The book has no trace of any plot."
+ N Y Times p7 Ja 5 '30 350w

ROGERS, ROBERT EMMONS. Fine art of reading. 299p $2.50 Stratford
801 Books and reading. Literature—History and criticism 29-22703

Professor Rogers discusses in the main divisions of his book, the reader, writer, the critic, and the material. He deals with the obstacles within the reader himself that keep him from understanding a book; he tells what to look for in writers; he defines the function of criticism; and he analyzes the various forms of literature.

Booklist 26:152 Ja '30

"Professor Rogers has read much; he has likewise remembered much, or he could not have written so comprehensive a guide to reading, away in the country, out of the reach of libraries and reference books. He is also very categorical in his opinions and likewise quite sure of himself, amusingly so at times. All of these qualities combine to make his book interesting, and not only that, it furnishes a good starting point for argument." G. R. B. R.
+ — Boston Transcript p5 N 16 '29 580w
Cath World 131:115 Ap '30 230w

"Amazingly little of this has an academic tinge, and the writer practices tolerance as well as preaches it. This does not mean that he is vacillating. Far from it. He always has a vigorous and downright way of expressing himself. It does mean that he advocates a pragmatic attitude toward criticism and books, setting the intelligence to work selecting, surveying, comparing, choosing."

ROGERS, R. E.—Continued
+ Christian Science Monitor p15 Ja 4 '30 320w
Cleveland Open Shelf p152 D '30

"To the service of spreading his eclecticism upon paper, Professor Rogers brings a knockabout style which gives promise of breaking a few score of heads, but which breaks surprisingly few. A rigid system maker could easily go through 'The Fine Art of Reading' and discover twenty or thirty contradictions, but Professor Rogers wouldn't mind, for he distrusts systems. He is a creature of prejudice, but they aren't primarily literary prejudices; they are prejudices against the parroting of knowledge. It is quite natural that Professor Rogers should have written a catholic book, a lively book, and a book that will fade out in no time —leaving, withal, the impression of a personality who is undoubtedly a good catalytic agent between literature and student."
+ — N Y Times p2 Ja 19 '30 700w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:33 Ap '30
Pratt p30 spring '30
Reviewed by W. B. Shaw
R of Rs 81:10 F '30 150w
Wis Lib Bul 26:99 Mr '30

"In a whimsical, delightfully non-academic manner the author discusses some of the reasons why people don't read more and tells them what they are missing. He does not exhort you to buy a five-foot shelf nor to read a blue book a day. But if his casual asides and provocative references to novels, plays and poems don't inspire you to read them (provided you already haven't) we are no prophet."
+ World Tomorrow 13:232 My '30 100w

ROGERS, STANLEY REGINALD HARRY. The Atlantic. 243p il $2.75 Crowell [7s 6d Harrap]
910.4 Atlantic ocean [30-30600]

Mr Rogers makes no claim that his book has historical sequence. "I jump," he says, "with the facility of a pair of thousand-league boots from north to south, or from east to west, and bridge five centuries in a paragraph." In this manner he tells of the first crossing of the Atlantic in 1492, of some freak crossings in small boats, of lonely isles associated with tales of shipwreck or buried treasure, of pirates, battles and mutinies, of sailing packets, and the steam ferry.

"Once in a blue moon the right man gets the right idea and does a book like this. Mr. Rogers has written a history of the Atlantic that is worthy of that great ocean. It is not a thorough book nor complete, but scarcely a noteworthy or romantic event has been missed. . . The amazing illustrations in black and white and in color lure one on through this most engaging book. Even a dyspeptic landlubber could dance a sailor's hornpipe when he finishes it." + Bookm 72:xv D '30 100w
Cleveland Open Shelf p156 D '30

"Sets forth a great deal of information in a manner both interesting and entertaining. The book will be welcome, however, as a supplement to existing histories and accounts of discoveries, since it gives many details which are not easily found elsewhere. Boys and girls of 12 to 15 will enjoy reading it through as a whole. The illustrations by the author are delightful and have the same zest and lively quality as the text." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p12 O 12 '30 260w

"A book in which all boys who feel the fascination of the sea and ships will find something to interest them."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p702 S 4 '30 120w

ROGOFF, HARRY. East Side epic; the life and work of Meyer London. 311p $2.50 Vanguard press
B or 92 London, Meyer. Socialism in the United States 30-4954

"Next to 'Gene Debs, who was their household god, the Jewish workers on New York's East Side most loved Meyer London. Mr. Rogoff, a member of the staff of the 'Forward,' has in Meyer London a rich subject. There were color and fire in the life of this gentle, sensitive spirit and suffering and struggle and triumph of which but the most meager hints are given on the pages of the biography. He gives but three pages to London's youth, three more to his socialistic beginnings. The bulk of the book is given over to speeches delivered by London in Congress, dull letters to London from dull laborites, the scufflings of petty Socialist politicians."—Books

"It is a hurried snapshot, taken in an unfavorable light, despite the anxiety of the photographer to have his subject look pleasant. It is certainly no portrait of that Meyer London the East Side loved. Had the author thrown away two-thirds of his notes from the 'Congressional Record' and Socialist newspapers before he started to write this might well have been an East Side epic. As it stands Mr. Rogoff's book contains a valuable amount of source-material for some future biographer."
— + Books p18 F 16 '30 450w
Reviewed by M. P. Levy
New Repub 64:27 Ag 20 '30 120w

"Mr. Rogoff has done a craftsmanlike piece of work in his biography. He has perhaps given too long excerpts from London's many addresses. He has perhaps glossed over to too great an extent the little foibles of London which London would have been the last to deny, his well-known impetuousness, his impatience at details, his lack of system, his love of the spectacular. But he has seen through these frailties to the mainspring of London's activities and he has rightly sensed the beauty and idealism of London's life." H. W. Laidler
+ N Y Evening Post p11m F 15 '30 700w
Reviewed by Louis Stark
N Y Times p6 Mr 9 '30 460w
Reviewed by Bellamy Partridge
N Y World p10m F 9 '30 550w
Reviewed by W. B. Shaw
R of Rs 81:10 Je '30 80w
World Tomorrow 13:476 N '30 50w

ROHAN, JACK. Rags; the story of a dog who went to war. 242p il $2 (7s 6d) Harper
636.7 Dogs—Legends and stories 30-24081

Rags, the terrier mascot of the first division of the A.E.F., followed his good friend Donovan into action, and learned how to carry messages. Both Donovan and Rags were gassed and wounded, but Rags came thru like a gallant veteran, and now lives in retirement on Governor's Island.

"Jack Rohan's account of this great little terrier is one to warm the heart."
+ Books p15 Ja 4 '31 100w

"This is a true story and well told."
+ Boston Transcript p3 N 1 '30 300w
Cleveland Open Shelf p144 N '30

ROHEIM, GEZA. Animism, magic, and the divine king. 390p $5 Knopf [21s Routledge]
291.211 Animism. Magic. Kings and rulers. Society, Primitive [30-19146]

"Dr. Róheim bases his study of animism, magic and the Divine King, the superstitions and rituals which lie at the base of all human cultures, on the theories of Freudian psychoanalysis. Throughout the whole investigation, Dr. Róheim's interpretation of the mental phenomena he describes and the rituals to which they gave rise is phallic; and he demonstrates very persuasively, though not so conclusively as he believes, that the fear which bade primitive man invent the magic that in one form or another is or has been practised from China to Peru—notably to-day among the Australian blacks—is the fear of castration." —New Statesman

---

"This book is baffling. It is a mass of raw material which the author attempts to predigest for the reader under the single concept of sex. . . It has as large a proportion of notes to the text as any work of Herbert Spencer's, but if the reader expects to gain much help in the way of generalization he will be disappointed. Instead, he will be offered a mysterious game of logomachy where a fantastic use of psychoanalytic terms converts mythology into dream symbolism." Woodbridge Riley
— Books p10 D 28 '30 850w

"'Animism,' says the author, 'means our mental past; it must therefore mean many things superimposed on each other,' and in this learned and interesting book he proceeds to examine these superimpositions by the light of modern psychological research. . . The author is a Hungarian, but he writes fluent and nervous English and, in spite of a large number of necessary 'examples,' keeps his main theme before us with admirable lucidity."
+ Nation and Ath 47:418 Je 28 '30 230w

"Dr. Róheim continually pushes his argument too far. It would be idle to censure the unpleasantness of much of the argument, though it becomes at times dreary reading; for, provided the diamonds discovered are valuable, the amount of dirt that has to be sifted is really immaterial; and there can be very little question that Dr. Róheim's psycho-analysis of animism and the rituals of magic does give us valuable clues, even if they are no more than clues, to the mental states of those who created them, and so to their real significance."
+ — New Statesman 35:60 Ap 19 '30 500w

"While we have many pages dealing with shamanism, which is the effort of certain peoples in Mongolia, India, the remoter parts of Mexico and elsewhere, to communicate with the spirits of their dead, either directly or through certain exceptional organisms, there is no consistent effort to work out the illuminating parallels with modern spiritualism. . . Dr. Roheim is evidently a devoted follower of Sigmund Freud, and has made a consistent effort to use Freud's ideas as a clue through the labyrinths of anthropology. But he appears to us to carry his explanations to such a degree that they end by being wholly unconvincing." Charles Johnston
— N Y Times p24 O 19 '30 1000w

"The Primal Horde of Freud, Urvater Oedipus, all the abracadabra of an undigested sexuality are thrown into the anthropological melting-pot. The results are often startling and rarely worth while."
— + Spec 145:167 Ag 2 '30 220w

"Dr. Roheim has given us a well-documented attempt to reach a deeper and richer conception of animism, working along one line. Any such attempt, properly carried out, is valuable, even if some may hold it too heavily drawn; at least it helps to clear the ground."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p448 My 29 '30 550w

ROHMER, SAX, pseud. (ARTHUR SARSFIELD WARD). Day the world ended. 306p $2 Doubleday, Doran
30-20636

Brian Woodville, English journalist; John Lonergan, American detective: and Gaston Max, of the French Sûreté jointly discover that some stupendous evil genius, with headquarters at the ancient castle of Felsenweir, is plotting the destruction of the world. The three men have only two days to discover the meaning of the giant bats haunting a graveyard in the Black Forest, the mystery of Mme Yburg, and to gain access to the strangely guarded castle.

Bookm 71:xx Ag '30 80w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p12 Ag 24 '30 120w

"The first chapters go along sprucely enough, but this sort of thing is with difficulty carried the full length of a book, and the shudders are few after the hundredth page."
— + N Y Evening Post p5s Ag 2 '30 100w

Reviewed by Bruce Rae
N Y Times p17 Ag 10 '30 220w

"Sax Rohmer, creator of Fu Manchu, must have been very tired when he wrote 'The Day the World Ended.' It is one of those superscientific criminal affairs, with Dracula trimmings, and just won't go down even in a very idle hour." W. C. Weber
— Sat R of Lit 7:94 Ag 30 '30 40w

ROLLAND, ROMAIN. Prophets of the new India; [tr. from the French by E. F. Malcolm-Smith]. 683p $5 Boni [21s Cassell]

181.4 Philosophy, Hindu. Rāmakrishna. Vivekānanda, swāmi 30-25250

The book comprises the story of two extraordinary men—Ramakrishna, the village Brahmin of Bengal whose name is half legendary, tho he died only forty years ago, and his disciple Vivekananda who became known in America from his appearance at the Parliament of religions in Chicago in 1893.

Booklist 27:186 Ja '31

Reviewed by John Carter
Bookm 72:331 N '30 430w

"The beauty of Rolland's style, the force of his presentation, and the sincerity and perfection of his comprehension will impress the message of those 'madmen of God' upon a circle of readers whose racial or intellectual prejudices would otherwise have permitted only boredom or antipathy." W. N. Brown
+ Books p7 O 19 '30 1150w

Boston Transcript p2 O 29 '30 800w

Reviewed by Gertrude Emerson
Nation 131:619 D 3 '30 220w

"So far as we are aware, it is the first treatise of the kind by a European man of letters in the front rank. It is a fascinating book to read, the work of a writer of universal culture with a brilliant gift of exposition."
+ New Statesman 36:276 D 6 '30 900w

"Rolland has steeped himself in his subject and has given us an unforgettable picture of these two men with their unslakable thirst for God. He has not laid aside in any way his critical faculties, but he has accepted the fact of mystical communion through ecstasy." L. H. Titterton
+ N Y Evening Post p4d O 25 '30 400w

"Romain Rolland has undertaken a difficult task with love, and has carried it out with scholarly patience but with a certain lack of the sense of measure. He has made far more available than before a mass of well-documented material recording the life and activity of a group of remarkable men, leaders of Indian thought, men distinguished for the breadth as well as the depth of their thought." Charles Johnston
+ — N Y Times p9 N 9 '30 950w

St Louis 28:288 D '30

"In his syncretic mission, M. Rolland never blinks the truth: Indian Vedantists are as often misinformed about Christian mysticism as we are of the high truths of the Vedas: they are not idolators, nor we the worshippers of an anthropomorphic God. The author's grasp of both philosophies makes him an ideal interpreter of East to West, and vice versa, so that we may consider this book as one of the most important contributions recently made towards the synthesis of two great cultures. . . It is full of intuition, and has in it the very rhythm of the best thought of Hindu thought. But we would warn our readers (as the author himself does) that the literal accuracy of his facts may sometimes be questioned." F. Y-B.
+ Spec 145:639 N 1 '30 900w

ROLLINS, WILLIAM. Obelisk. 419p $2.50 Brewer
30-12141

"This is a study of the decay of a romantic. We follow Lewis Raey from his first year at school until he is, say, twenty-five; these years show that he is fundamentally undistinguished and unsound. At the end of the book all his fine notions have collapsed, and he is nothing more than a unit of the population."—Sat R of Lit

Bookm 72:xvii S '30 100w

"Lewis is too unrelievedly craven to be quite credible. One feels that the author has punctured a hollow windbag, then beaten it flat to demonstrate that it has no substance at all. Perhaps, despite the very really courageous and discriminating flashes in this book, its author is a little more interested in showing futility than people." Mary Ross
— + Books p2 My 18 '30 750w

" 'The Obelisk' is not a book that will appeal to the average reader. Its interest is not in the plot, which is almost negligible, but in the character of the hero, and to those who are not interested in following the psychological development of adolescence, it will be a dull book indeed. Yet it is a book so sincerely conceived and brilliantly executed that recognition of its merits is inevitable." E. H.
— + Boston Transcript p4 Je 7 '30 700w

"An unusual and engaging piece of work."
+ Nation 130:739 Je 25 '30 150w

"Mr. Rollins writes a taut and broken prose. He slips without warning from reality into scenes projected by the imagination. The results are sometimes confusing but more often sharply effective. He lacks discipline and, to a certain degree, taste, but he manages to break through external crusts and show one actual emotion. He has vitality and is obviously an experimenter. His next book should and probably will be satisfactorily mature." E. H. W.
+ — New Repub 63:241 Jl 16 '30 220w

"There is a good bit of humor in 'The Obelisk,' or rather, what is deadly serious to Lewis appears in a humorous light to an older reader. Compared with Joyce's 'Portrait of the Artist as a Young Man,' with Lawrence's 'Sons and Lovers,' or with Mr. Wolfe's book 'The Obelisk' seems a trifle thin; but Lewis Raey is at once less positive and less sensitive than the adolescents of the greater novels. The tone of 'The Obelisk' is admirably sustained until the very close. Then Mr. Rollins lapses into a facile sort of satire. It cheapens the book, because it seems a willful intrusion on the part of the author."
+ — N Y Times p8 My 4 '30 650w

Reviewed by Henry Fuller
N Y World p7m Je 22 '30 230w

"As a story, The Obelisk is as slight as Lewis' claims to fame. As a study of a lad, an adolescent and a young man it is sound and touching. As an experiment in modern prose style, it is insignificant, but it is a good illustration of the importance of typography to certain writers of the current school." F. L. Robbins
— + Outlook 155:22 My 7 '30 400w

"Mr. Rollins favors the Joycean technique (a superficially confused narrative of mental action), but he is not always able to use the method to advantage. Sometimes he is hardly more than grotesque, but usually he portrays Lewis Raey's adolescent confusion with a fair degree of convincingness."
+ — Sat R of Lit 6:1113 Je 7 '30 380w

RØLVAAG, OLE EDVART. Pure gold; English text by Sivert Erdahl and the author. 346p $2.50 (7s 6d) Harper
30-4299

Louis and Lizzie Houglum were ambitious to make their farm land in Minnesota pay well. They worked hard, were happy in their work, and prospered. Then one day Louis brought home, as a present for his wife, a shining ten-dollar gold piece. From this small beginning the couple's lust for gold grew, and like misers they hoarded gold pieces, secreting them in various hiding places about the house and barn. Finally, grown completely apart from each other, they divided their wealth, sold the farm at a high price following the war, and moved to town. Having no means of adding to their thousands, and no other emotional outlet, insanity, coupled with starvation, gradually brought the two to lonely and sordid death.

"To my mind, Mr. Rölvaag's skill in developing character works automatically to the partial disadvantage of this book. He portrays so effectively the stunting, the cramping, and the terrible isolating of husband and wife by their passion for hoarding that the dramatic events of the latter chapters, and the catastrophe, lose something of their force." E. W. Hawkins
— + Atlantic Bookshelf p22 My '30 280w

Booklist 26:282 Ap '30

"The author of Giants in the Earth and Peder Victorious has written another powerful, simple story about simple people and their powerful emotions. Pure Gold is a tale of avarice—convincing because it is neither altogether horrible nor altogether pathetic, but a mixture of the two that is recognizably human."
+ Bookm 71:98 Mr '30 250w

" 'Pure Gold' is a tenser and a tighter book than the two preceding novels by O. E. Rolvaag. It is frankly a study in morbid psychology, powerful because it is so concrete and sure in its progression; fascinating as the destruction of Louis and Lizzie creeps on as inevitably as the embrace of a boa constrictor. By reason of these same qualities it is far from 'pleasant.' " Mary Ross
Books p6 F 9 '30 650w

Boston Transcript p2 Mr 19 '30 1250w

Reviewed by F. T. Marsh
Nation 130:273 Mr 5 '30 230w

"The novel quickens only in parts four and five. A change of translators has not freshened a commonplace style. Mr. Rolvaag should cleanse and compress his writing, and return to his more successful chronicle of Peder."
— New Repub 62:200 Ap 2 '30 160w

"Future writers on Norwegian national literature will be obliged to consider the Norwegian novel as written in America by O. E. Rölvaag. And students of American literature will be under like compulsion when discussing the novel of the West. And 'Pure Gold,' although it is lacking in the epic quality which enhanced the impressiveness of 'Giants in the Earth,' will claim its share of attention. In the meantime those whose interest in fiction is confined to the satisfaction of the moment may rest assured that here is a story firm in its grasp, deep in its analysis, vividly unfolded and carried to a climax that is as humanly ironic as it is dramatically bold." Percy Hutchison
+ N Y Times p9 F 9 '30 850w

Reviewed by Harry Hansen
N Y World p10m F 9 '30 850w

"Professor Rölvaag, one of the most interesting literary phenomena of our day, progresses unerringly toward his objective. Like many of the great Scandinavians, Rölvaag has genuine moral force and he has also that understanding of lives lived close to the soil, which is the essence of Hamsun's genius."
+ Outlook 154:267 F 12 '30 350w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:32 Ap '30

Pratt p42 summer '30

"Dr. Rolvaag, one feels, has either revived here an earlier and 'prentice work, or after 'Giants in the Earth' and 'Peder Victorious' has taken a little rest by trying a simple and age-old theme which can be treated in narrow limits. In either case, 'Pure Gold' counts neither for nor against him. It can be disregarded."
— Sat R of Lit 6:856 Mr 22 '30 400w

Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 16 '30 200w

Wis Lib Bul 26:107 Mr '30

ROLYAT, JANE. Lily of Fort Garry. 287p $2.50 Dutton [7s 6d Dent]

Pioneer days in western Canada form the setting for this romance. Margaret Moore, the "lily" of the story, a daughter of Victorian aristocrats, is carefully guarded and prepared for a marriage of her parents' choice. The main interest of the novel centers, however, in the life of the period.

Reviewed by Guy Holt
Bookm 72:207 O '30 20w

Books p12 Ag 31 '30 200w

"Under the simplicity of its manner considerable cleverness is exercised in developing this story of the timid, gentle girl who dared at last 'to exercise her discretion.' . . There is a freshness as well as a delightful simplicity about it."
+ Boston Transcript p2 Ag 23 '30 280w

"Miss Rolyat writes with a delicacy which gives her readers a feeling of intimacy with her people and locality. The characterizations are excellently drawn but one wishes that the author had developed her story further. One closes the book with a feeling that the story is only half told. Miss Rolyat's style is decidedly marred by an annoying repetitiousness."
+ — N Y Times p24 S 14 '30 220w

"The style has a quaint charm about it. Its curiously stilted phrases, its decorous grace fit the period in which the story is set and give worth to what would, in the hands of a less gifted writer, be too slight a story." F. L. Robbins
+ Outlook 155:428 Jl 16 '30 100w

Times [London] Lit Sup p812 O 9 '30 250w

ROMAN, FREDERICK WILLIAM. New education in Europe; an account of recent fundamental changes in the educational philosophy of Great Britain, France, and Germany. 2d ed rev and enl 438p il $4.40 Dutton [18s Routledge]

370.94 Education—Europe E30-118

The second edition, revised and enlarged, of a work first published in 1923 contains 438 pages as against 271 in the first edition. Chapters on Scandinavia, Austria, Italy and Soviet Russia have been added.

Booklist 26:409 Jl '30

"The only stricture to which this most timely and scholarly book might be subjected is that it attempts to compress so comprehensive a study into such small compass. Its scope well deserves a series of volumes rather than attempting to do justice adequately to all of the systems surveyed within the limits of one volume. The work will prove to be of very great value as a source of reference to educators, ministers, social workers, and all who are interested in social progress." A. LeR. Huff
+ Christian Century 47:1216 O 8 '30 750w

J Home Econ 22:689 Ag '30 80w

"The chapters on education in Russia, Italy, and Scandinavia are three new and important additions to this, the second edition. They are fully documented, and, like the rest of the book, have a fine impartiality." James Thornton
+ Nation and Ath 47:414 Ja 28 '30 200w

Reviewed by E. T. Devine
Outlook 155:227 Je 11 '30 100w

Reviewed by W. B. Shaw
R of Rs 81:12 My '30 50w

"Dr. Roman is no armchair theorist; he has accompanied school inspectors on their rounds. His book is stimulating just because he has recorded."
Sat R 149:362 Mr 22 '30 800w

"The book is somewhat unequal; some of the sections, notably those on Sweden, Norway and Finland, are very meagre. The editing also leaves something to be desired, part of the book having been left as it was written in 1923, and the rest brought up to date. On the whole, however, it is a remarkable feat to have brought within the covers of a book of moderate size such a large and well-digested mass of information regarding the European countries." Alfred Zimmern
+ — Spec 144:sup825 My 17 '30 870w

ROMIEU, EMILIE, and ROMIEU, GEORGES. Three virgins of Haworth; being an account of the Brontë sisters; tr. from the French by Roberts Tapley. 230p il $3 Dutton

B or 92 Brontë family. Brontë, Charlotte 30-25443

Seeing the three coldly austere English sisters from a Latin viewpoint, the French authors of this account of the Brontës conclude: "They were never loved, and they never loved." The authors dwell with compassion upon the lack of affection, warmth and nourishment which the three sisters suffered; they picture the strength of the bitter but indomitable Emily; and they consider to some extent Charlotte's affair with Heger, the Brussels schoolmaster. They are most successful in painting with truth and clarity the three women against their peculiarly individual environment.

"The two writers are, by and large, more understanding than most of the self-appointed censors of the great. In the main they tell the extraordinary story rather well, weaving into the narrative first given by Mrs. Gaskell the more recent discoveries of Charlotte's unrequited love for M. Heger. An occasional quotation from Charlotte or Emily or Branwell stands out livid as a wound on the smooth surface of their easy and pleasant pages, reminding us that the Brontës have not yet found their Strachey." A. B. Parsons
+ — Books p10 N 30 '30 600w

Boston Transcript p1 N 22 '30 550w

Christian Science Monitor p6 D 13 '30 320w

"If 'Three Virgins of Haworth' seem to be viewed with French eyes that are somewhat skeptical, and are treated in a Gallic manner which is at times faintly ironic, the book is all the more lively and pleasurable reading in consequence. However, although the pages display an understanding that is devastatingly keen, the authors admit a racial inability to appraise with complete sympathy the agonizing spiritual self-torture of the Brontë women."
+ — N Y Times p9 O 19 '30 1400w

Outlook 156:468 N 19 '30 100w

RONAN, MYLES VINCENT. Reformation in Ireland under Elizabeth, 1558-1580 (from original sources). 678p $7 (21s) Longmans

274.15 Reformation—Ireland. Ireland—Church history. Ireland—History. Fitzmaurice, James 30-8693

A continuation of the author's previous volume, The Reformation in Dublin, 1536-1558. Writing with a strong Catholic bias, Father Ronan takes up his survey of the secular and political situation before the accession of Queen Elizabeth, outlines the period of Sydney's deputyship and of the Desmond rebellion, and concludes with a study of the career of James Fitzmaurice.

"It is amazingly well documented, and compactly presents an immense volume of historical data. The author also has a gift for dramatic power and the presentation of personalities, so that the material is not simply a collection of dry although important matter. It is so well divided and arranged that what else would be confusing and wearisome becomes clear and interesting. Few volumes so large hold interest so well, or leave with the student such a clear impression." R. K. M.
+ Boston Transcript p3 Ag 6 '30 420w

"Father Ronan has bestowed a distinct illumination on a dark period in our annals. As revealed to us in this dispassionate chronicle the record is not all glowing. But it is an impressive record for all that: impressive in its unadorned literalness, without the decoration of rhetoric or the warmth of racial enthusiasms." P. J. C.

RONAN, M. V.—Continued

+ Cath World 132:122 O '30 700w

St Louis 28:203 S '30

Spec 144:717 Ap 26 '30 100w

"We might be inclined to complain that so much of secular history is included in a book dealing chiefly with religious matters, but in a period in which religion and politics were inextricably intermingled and of which the details are so little known to the general public this may have been unavoidable. Yet it is clear that the author is more keenly interested in the career of James Fitzmaurice than he is in that of any bishop or archbishop on either side, and that one purpose of his book is to eulogize that remarkable man's career."

Times [London] Lit Sup p488 Je 12 '30 700w

ROOF, KATHARINE METCALF. Colonel William Smith and lady; the romance of Washington's aide and young Abigail Adams. 347p il $5 Houghton [24s Constable]

B or 92 Smith, William Stephens. Smith, Mrs Amelia Abigail (Adams) 29-12431

For descriptive note see Annual for 1929.

"A delightful picture of American life and manners in the days of the Revolution and early Republic is given by the letters and journals on which this book is based."

+ New Statesman 34:574 F 8 '30 700w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 34:63 O '29

Pratt p39 winter '30

"The book is diffusive, and there is too much of the delighted showman about Mrs. Roof, who will not trust her readers to discover for themselves what there may be of wit and wisdom in the letters and conversations that she quotes, or to form their own opinions about Abigail's beauty and sweetness and the honesty of William Smith."

— + Times [London] Lit Sup p115 F 13 '30 850w

ROOME, WILLIAM JOHN WATERMAN. Tramping through Africa; a dozen crossings of the continent. 330p il $5 Macmillan [15s Black, A. & C.]

916 Africa—Description and travel [30-28209]

"An account of a missionary's travels through the Congo, Uganda, Tanganyika, and Northern Rhodesia as an agent of the Bible Society." (Sat R) "These, performed almost entirely on foot, were made with the object of studying and classifying native languages and dialects, and Mr. Roome is able to give details of strange racial customs and characteristics, and descriptions of places and people never visited by white men before. The book is illustrated with numerous photographs." (Nation and Ath)

Reviewed by Allan Macgregor

Nation and Ath 47:684 Ag 30 '30 80w

"Mr. Roome starts off with a good description of his ascent of Mt. Kilimanjaro; but the rest of the book is not as energetic as this. What Mr. Roome offers is a selection of tit-bits picked up in his twelve journeys across the continent. He is at home in Africa, but he does not expect his reader to be."

— + New Statesman 35:548 Ag 2 '30 100w

"The author has a keen eye for the varieties of native character and the effect of European administration and evangelization on local society. On the other hand, the naturalist will be disappointed that he shows little interest in sub-human life."

+ — Sat R 150:182 Ag 9 '30 80w

"Mr. Roome is an extremely able observer and has recorded the legends and customs of the various tribes he has met in a clear and graphic manner. The book is well illustrated with excellent photographs, the majority of which depict scenes of native activities. The only criticism of the volume might be that Mr. Roome is too impersonal. One feels that it would be pleasant to hear of some of the traveler's reactions to the many scenes he has witnessed. The book is almost too scientific in its lack of emotion." Julian Feiss

+ — Sat R of Lit 7:208 O 11 '30 470w

ROOSEVELT, NICHOLAS. America and England? 254p $2.50 (7s 6d) Cape

327.73 United States—Relations (general) with Great Britain. Great Britain—Relations (general) with United States. United States—Economic conditions. Great Britain—Economic conditions 30-1917

"Nicholas Roosevelt presents, without heat or reticence, an excellent picture of the two naval and political protagonists of the post-war world. We are competing with the British in almost every sphere and the Shearers of the world deduce therefrom an 'irrepressible conflict.' Mr. Roosevelt shows that this is neither true nor necessary. In many lines, both financial and political, the British organization of power is infinitely superior to our own. On the other hand, he also shows that the bases of our industrial and commercial strength can not be undermined by any amount of diplomacy." —Outlook

---

Am Pol Sci R 24:521 My '30 150w

Booklist 26:300 My '30

"Mr. Roosevelt's book, written with no thought that peace is likely to be perpetual, has the healing courage of frankness." Lewis Gannett

+ — Books p1 Ja 12 '30 1000w

"It is to clear up many misunderstood facts and to correct many loose statements regarding the situation between these two powerful nations, that Mr. Roosevelt has written his wonderfully clear and comprehensive book." C. K. H.

+ Boston Transcript p1 F 1 '30 550w

"Because it appears at the moment of the London conference, and discusses in some detail the comparative strength of the United States and British navies, this will be described as a 'timely' book. But it is rather more than that. Instructive and suggestive as is the author's discussion of the difficulty of achieving parity between the navies of the two nations, his study of their economic and political relations is of greater importance." W. J. A.

+ Christian Science Monitor p7 Ja 25 '30 750w

Reviewed by P. W. Wilson

Current Hist 31:840 F '30 1400w

Reviewed by William MacDonald

Nation 130:154 F 5 '30 700w

Reviewed by Bruce Bliven

New Repub 62:356 My 14 '30 200w

"Mr. Roosevelt's book is notable not so much because of any striking novelty that it offers, although to many readers the information which he masses will have all the characteristics of news, but rather because of the skill, the effectiveness, and the sober practicality with which it exhibits the essential contrasts in temper, habit and policy between the American and British nations." William MacDonald

+ N Y Times p1 Ja 5 '30 2400w

"There is nothing very new or startling in America and England?, except the revelation that the Washington Naval Conference was actually inaugurated as a result of British, and not American, initiative; but it is sane, balanced, fair and the most compact picture of the relations of the two countries which is today available to the general reader." John Carter

+ Outlook 154:190 Ja 29 '30 250w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:32 Ap '30

Pratt p10 autumn '30

Reviewed by W. B. Shaw

R of Rs 81:18 F '30 250w

St Louis 28:95 Ap '30

"Mr. Roosevelt has evidently taken much trouble over the economic documentation of the book, which is excellent, and there is no reason to doubt the sincerity of his belief in an Anglo-American understanding based upon the omnipotence of the State in each case following its narrowest self-interest. Nevertheless, the spirit of his work is too many centuries out of date for his views to stand much hope of acceptance in the English-speaking world."

— + Sat R 149:234 F 22 '30 800w

"Mr. Roosevelt's concise essay is by far the most valuable assistant to understanding of the proceedings of the London Conference on naval disarmament that has come to the notice of this reviewer. Its lucid presentation of facts and figures brings home a number of generally accepted facts and disposes of a number of misapprehensions. . . Emotion has been rigidly excluded and the actual facts stressed. Yet there is no suggestion of hardness or militarism. The author is a firm believer in the desirability of Anglo-American coöperation. He insists, however, that this coöperation will be more easily attained and will be more lasting if it is based upon actualities and not upon sentimentalities." H. K. Norton

+ Sat R of Lit 6:751 F 22 '30 1000w

"Mr. Nicholas Roosevelt writes with a high sense of responsibility, sensitively recognizing that the economic clash between Great Britain and the United States may cause a dangerous rift if both sides do not set seriously about the business of understanding one another. . . Mr. Roosevelt's positive suggestions are thoughtful and could come only from one who is sincerely concerned to prevent any check to the progress of mutual understanding."

+ Spec 144:279 F 22 '30 500w

Springf'd Republican p10 Ap 11 '30 400w

Times [London] Lit Sup p278 Mr 27 '30 250w

Reviewed by Dorothy Detzer

World Tomorrow 13:230 My '30 100w

ROOSEVELT, THEODORE, and ROOSEVELT, KERMIT. Trailing the giant panda. 278p il $3.50 (16s) Scribner

915.1 Yunnan, China (province)—Description and travel. Szechwan, China—Description and travel. Hunting—China 29-23712

In behalf of the Field Museum of Chicago, Theodore and Kermit Roosevelt made this expedition to the Chinese-Thibetan borderland in search of the giant panda, a rare animal about the size of a bear which had never before been shot by a white man. The authors describe the adventures, joys, hardships and final achievement of the chase.

Booklist 26:156 Ja '30

"There is much more to the volume than a mere record of a hunting expedition; it adds to the world's knowledge of a strange people in the remote corner of the earth."

+ Books p21 F 23 '30 200w

Boston Transcript p4 D 11 '29 550w

Christian Century 47:115 Ja 22 '30 140w

Cleveland Open Shelf p150 D '29

+ Nature 124:944 D 21 '29 270w

N Y Evening Post p10m D 28 '29 120w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:27 Mr '30

Pratt p33 spring '30

St Louis 28:51 F '30

"The book, lively and attractive in style, makes a valuable contribution to the geographical knowledge of a little-known region."

+ Spec 143:sup865 D 7 '29 150w

Times [London] Lit Sup p20 Ja 9 '30 950w

Wis Lib Bul 26:66 F '30

ROOT, EDWARD MERRILL. Bow of burning gold. 171p $2 R. Packard & co., 15 E. Washington st., Chicago

811 29-29133

"E. Merrill Root's lyrics in the 'Bow of Burning Gold' show two complementary tendencies. Those in the first division of the book are loaded with cosmological panegyrics to the universe and all its manifestations; the signs of the Zodiac, the legends of mythology and the thunder of ancient gods are his favorite stamping ground. In the second division, we have the rebel against the present. This time his desire, expressed in Whitmanesque fashion, is for a 'New America.' He dreams of the future, wherein a second Columbus shall come and rediscovery take place. Before this can happen, however, the Machine Age must go."—Books

Bookm 72:ix O '30 50w

"His verses are stormy, bombastic, heavily colored; his stars, perforce, are fierce; his trees white-hot, his sun terrible, his cyclones recurrent, his soul 'a hawk, earthbound but unreconciled,' and life, symbolized by the Burning Bush, an eternal bonfire."

Books p21 Mr 16 '30 270w

" 'Bow of Burning Gold' places Merrill Root inalienably with the few who are chosen from among the many who are called. It is a powerful, vital, beautiful achievement, this book. And for me personally it wrought the impossible miracle—the fall into something akin to ecstasy!"

+ Christian Century 46:1508 D 4 '29 800w

Reviewed by Granville Hicks

N Y World p11m D 22 '29 100w

"In spite of the title, there is little of the pure gold of poetry in this volume. Most of it is straightforward verse, verse which communicates a story, or a mood, or a fancy. Here and there one comes across a stanza which is splendid, and in almost every poem there are occasional striking lines and excellent figures. But the total effect is rhetorical—verse written in haste, and not laid aside 'in the wood' long enough to mellow and ripen.' " Wilbert Snow

— + World Tomorrow 13:138 Mr '30 400w

ROSE-TROUP, FRANCES. Massachusetts Bay company and its predecessors. (New Grafton hist. ser.) 176p $4 Hitchcock

974.4 Massachusetts—History. Massachusetts Bay company. Dorchester company 30-15560

"An Englishwoman has painstakingly traced the story of the founding of Massachusetts through its various stages and the result is this little book. The first company that took steps toward the founding of Massachusetts was the Dorchester Company. . . These people laid the foundation stones of Massachusetts 'although their share has been, to a large extent, overlooked.' 'Having through misfortune failed to accomplish its object, this company ceased to exist in 1626,' and was succeeded by the New England Company under Governor John Endicott, which added its work to the superstructure. Finally the Massachusetts Bay Colony, led by the aristocrat, John Winthrop, took possession of a ready-made colony and finished that stately thing now known as the Commonwealth of Massachusetts."—N Y Times

"Unfortunately the story is not as clear as one might hope. Partly this is the fault of a singularly tangled subject. But the author's style is hardly lucid, and she assumes greater familiarity with the matter than most readers will possess. There is some carelessness in noting titles and imprints both in the footnotes and the bibliography." V. W. Crane

— Am Hist R 36:204 O '30 380w

Boston Transcript p2 Ag 20 '30 550w

"Students will find help in her findings if not in her inferences. A valuable portion of the book is that which contains brief biographical notes about little-known adventurers in the Massachusetts Bay Company. Here is assembled material laboriously gathered from many sources and never before collected in a single book."

ROSE-TROUP, FRANCES—Continued
+ Christian Science Monitor p4 Jl 5 '30 420w

"Not much material is at hand for informative purposes, but such as there is has been chronologically arranged and 'strung together by inferences and conjectures' in order to make a clear story of the early work of laying the foundations of the Colony. The result shows the careful study of a research worker."
+ N Y Times p20 Je 15 '30 200w
St Louis 28:275 N '30

"This book is somewhat controversial in character. But when this is said, it is necessary to add that the controversy is kept within the limits of historical study. . . Though Mrs Rose-Troup's thesis may not seem important, she succeeds in illuminating some of the internal squabbles which helped to disfigure the early record of the Massachusetts Bay settlement."
+ Springf'd Republican p6 Jl 5 '30 900w

ROSEBAULT, CHARLES J. Saladin, prince of chivalry. 303p il $3.50 McBride [12s 6d Cassell]
B or 92 Saladin, sultan of Egypt and Syria
30-11045

"A swift-moving biography of the mighty sultan and valiant warrior who figures largely in Scott's Talisman. An account of the crusades provides a background for the career of Saladin, who is presented as 'a cavalier at all times, magnificently generous and superbly courteous.' "—Cleveland Open Shelf

Books p17 My 4 '30 300w
Cleveland Open Shelf p59 Ap '30

"Mr. Rosebault does splendidly with the great king, civilized and humane, who saved his land from the barbarous Franks and the picturesque and incompetent Richard Lion-Hearted. His book is another admirable reminder of the wisdom of the East and the crude heroism of the West, whose jealousy of Eastern culture resulted in all kinds of invented lies about 'barbarous infidels.' " Donald Douglas
+ New Repub 63:106 Je 11 '30 120w
New Statesman 36:342 D 20 '30 30w

"The hero is, as it were, swamped by the rush of historical events in which he moves and fights. For long stretches Saladin seems scarcely to figure at all. The author does not disengage Saladin from his surroundings; he does not disentangle him from the wrappings of his epoch; he does not project him into the forefront of the narrative, and keep him there." T. R. Ybarra
— + N Y Times p9 Mr 23 '30 750w

Reviewed by W. R. Brooks
Outlook 154:467 Mr 19 '30 100w
St Louis 28:148 My '30

" 'Saladin' is not a great book either as a history or as literature, but it is the most readable account in English of a striking personality, and an exciting time. The most readable, that is, but one. And for the sake of its superior accuracy and its wider background it ought to stand on your book-shelves—if you care about these things—beside your copy of 'The Talisman.' " Garrett Mattingly
+ Sat R of Lit 7:99 S 6 '30 550w

"The volume, though lacking in literary fascination, is interesting in the portrayal of a noble soul."
+ — Springf'd Republican p12 Ap 2 '30 550w
Times [London] Lit Sup p952 N 20 '30 1000w

ROSEN, FRIEDRICH. Oriental memories of a German diplomatist. 295p il $5 Dutton [15s Methuen]
B or 92 [30-31480]

Dr Rosen, a well-known Persian scholar and diplomat, has written in English this volume of his experiences in Oriental countries which cover a period of about forty years, ending with the last century. His earliest recollections of Jerusalem date back to the time when his father was German consul in that city. Later he himself became consul first in Syria, then in Persia, in Baghdad, and finally in Jerusalem. He describes these places, the customs, the people, and interprets the Oriental thruout with humor and understanding.

"Despite its rather heavy-weight title, the book has a quality of easy narrative and simple sensitiveness to outward things, as well as a fund of important facts concerning this land of 'poignard and poison', and that interplay of politics and personalities which the Orient inevitably accentuates."
+ Bookm 72:xiv N '30 200w
Books p16 N 16 '30 550w

"Dr. Rosen is extraordinarily kindly and genial in his judgments of men and things, and yet every now and then there is a certain subacidity in his humorous comments which adds a flavour to the book. Of politics he says little, but when he does, it is always interesting." Leonard Woolf
+ Nation and Ath 47:535 Jl 26 '30 600w

"A collection of first-class yarns, culled from many years of labor and adventure in the Near East and presented with a keenness of observation, a comopolitan urbanity of treatment and a charm of style that make them wholly delightful." T. R. Ybarra
+ N Y Times p11 D 7 '30 1650w

Reviewed by W. B. Shaw
R of Rs 82:16 N '30 100w
Sat R 150:568 N 1 '30 550w
Spec 145:141 Jl 26 '30 150w

"The whole book, whether it is dealing with the author's experiences in Palestine, Syria, Mesopotamia, Luristan or Teheran, is full of amusing anecdotes. . . There is much of interest about Persia and some of the great Shahs of the now fallen Kajar Dynasty."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p546 Jl 3 '30 1000w

ROSENFELD, PAUL. Hour with American music. (One hour ser.) 179p $1 (4s 6d) Lippincott
780.9 Music—United States. Musicians, American
29-24162
For descriptive note see Annual for 1929.

Booklist 26:271 Ap '30
Reviewed by Peter Bowdoin
Books p16 Ja 12 '30 400w
Cleveland Open Shelf p51 Ap '30

"Mr. Paul Rosenfeld is a very good friend of modern music and of the young American composer. He is an enthusiastic and optimistic listener who not only provides the sympathetic response so needed by our often discouraged creative artists in music, but embodies his enthusiasms in prose which becomes yearly more distinguished. He has a gift of critical insight and a flair for le mot juste. Also he has an ability unequalled by any contemporary in reproducing the spirit of music in words." Douglas Moore
+ — Sat R of Lit 6:650 Ja 18 '30 800w

ROSEWARNE, D. D. Science of nutrition simplified; a popular introduction to dietetics. 314p $3.50 Mosby [6s 6d Kimpton]
613.2 Nutrition. Diet

"A book intended to provide the ordinary reader without scientific knowledge of food values with a simple statement of everything essential for a proper understanding of the principles of dietetics."—Survey

"In the profusion of books on nutrition this one has the distinction of being scientifically sound and free from faddism. It is a straightforward, unembellished account of modern dietary principles. No one can complain about its accuracy, but a popular book needs a little more than that to make it appealing to the lay reader. This book lacks color in its style." J. A. Tobey

+ — Am J Pub Health 20:228 F '30 140w

"A book in which the form of presentation is rather more academic and the use of technical terms rather freer than the title would lead one to expect, but which otherwise offers a clear, well-organized exposition of commonly accepted facts."
J Home Econ 22:52 Ja '30 40w
Survey 63:732 Mr 15 '30 50w

ROSEWATER, VICTOR. History of coöperative news-gathering in the United States. 430p il $3.50 (12s 6d) Appleton
071 Journalism—United States. Press—United States 30-10687

Written by a newspaper man of long experience the book is a complete account of the agencies of systematic news-gathering in this country from the days when rowboats brought the news from incoming ships, before they docked, to the highly organized news service facilities of today.

"Dr. Rosewater has done a scholarly piece of historical research, a significant addition to the comparatively small list of important books in their field." W. G. Bleyer
+ Am Hist R 36:209 O '30 550w
Booklist 27:8 S '30
Cleveland Open Shelf p106 Jl '30

"Mr. Rosewater has made a most elaborate and valuable study of the history of news-gathering organizations in the United States, and he has brought together a number of very interesting new facts about the origins of the various news services. Especially valuable is Mr. Rosewater's summary of the development of the legal rights of the Associated Press, its meeting of the charge of monopoly brought against it, and its establishment of its right of property in news. Altogether, this book takes its place as a standard reference volume, and it will be placed on the shelves alongside the critical studies of the various news-gathering services." O. G. Villard
+ Nation 131:420 O 15 '30 550w

"Even had Mr. Rosewater come in the guise of a special pleader for one news organization or another in a field where rivalries have been intense, his contribution would have been valuable, doubtless, as giving new light. It is much more valuable because he falls into the objective rôle of the newspaper commentator which is natural to him, bestowing his space and his judgments with an impartial hand on each important unit in the group." A. S. Will
+ N Y Times p20 Je 1 '30 1000w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:71 O '30
St Louis 28:229 O '30

"No hint of the dramatic character of this scholarly but far from dry-as-dust volume is conveyed by its sober title. Toward the end of his long and animated story the author speaks of 'passing in review the successive advances from rowboat to radio.' . . The complicated history of all these organizations, including the old United Press and the one now flourishing, is set forth by Mr. Rosewater with conscientious accuracy and scrupulous fairness. His book is an invaluable contribution to the history of American journalism."
+ Sat R of Lit 7:14 Jl 26 '30 400w

ROSMAN, ALICE GRANT. Jock the Scot; the adventures of the dog of the house who gave up town life to run a country estate. (Minton, Balch lib. of illustrated classics) 204p $2.50 Minton [7s 6d Cassell]
Dogs—Legends and stories 31-26111

Jock, a very dark little Scotch terrier, was rescued by Gillian from a harrowing situation and gave her his ardent devotion in return. Roger Perch, the new owner of Brindlea, was also fond of dogs and aided and abetted Gillian in her championship of Jock. A gossiping woman almost brought disaster on them all, but did not quite succeed.

For biographical sketch of the author see Boston Transcript p1 Jl 5 '30

Booklist 27:209 Ja '31

"The brief action of the book is speeded along with the usual light touches of harmless intrigue and conversation for which Mrs. Rosman is already well known. For background there is a constant stream of amusing dialogue concerning the notables of a small English village." Barbara Nolen
Books p8 N 16 '30 600w

"'Jock the Scot' is a real dog book, with Jock the unchallenged hero, and four other charming dogs in natural relations with their human associates, taking their real share, but always a dog's share, in the affairs of the community, often putting their paws and noses into these affairs in a way to give a fateful turn to events." Florence Milner
+ Boston Transcript p5 N 19 '30 1400w

Reviewed by Fanny Butcher
Chicago Daily Tribune p15 O 18 '30 80w

"An ingenuous little tale, told pleasantly enough."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p989 N 20 '30 120w

ROSMAN, ALICE GRANT. Young and secret. 312p $2 Minton [7s 6d Mills] 30-18861

Una Swithin, young and rather lonely because of her parent's absorption in their own affairs, became much attached to her dog, Tim. One day in Kensington Gardens Tim had his life saved by a personable young sculptor. That was the beginning of a delightfully naive courtship, and in due time Una found that she was no longer lonely.

Booklist 27:30 S '30

"The unexciting but deftly wrought complications make the story a pleasant entertainment for those who, seeking mere amusement, prefer to read of characters that are lifesize and recognizable and skillfully managed. The relationship between Una's beautiful mother and her serious, jealous, devoted father, troubled by his sense of inferiority, and the effect of his relationship on their child form an unusually delicate study." F. T. Marsh
+ Books p10 Je 29 '30 550w
Cleveland Open Shelf p149 D '30

"For the sort of book she writes, Miss Rosman writes well." Edwin Seaver
N Y Evening Post p8m Je 28 '30 80w

"There is an undercurrent of strong and grave emotion which makes the story something more than a merely amusing tale. Miss Rosman has, in fact, achieved an admirable blend of the important qualities which render a novel at once intensely readable and deeply stimulating." Margaret Wallace
+ N Y Times p7 Je 29 '30 600w

"A charming tale, sensitive, intelligent, warm with humor and sympathy." F. L. Robbins
+ Outlook 155:349 Jl 2 '30 120w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:70 O '30
Pratt p39 autumn '30

"Miss Rosman's novel has a slick plot, but she writes quite amusingly, and manages to interest us, though faintly, in a number of people besides her hero and heroine."
+ — Spec 145:644 N 1 '30 180w
Springf'd Republican p9e Ag 17 '30 300w
Times [London] Lit Sup p686 Ag 28 '30 250w

ROSS, JOHN ELLIOT. Truths to live by; with an introd. by Glenn Frank. 246p $2 Holt

230 Religion 29-23909

Father Ross, religious adviser to Catholic students at Columbia university, in this book discusses the values of religion by treating three particular elements of religious belief: God, freedom and immortality. His book is written especially for young people. Preface by Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin.

Booklist 26:340 Je '30

"He expresses many opinions which this reviewer does not share, and he seems to fall back too often—as in the discussion of the problem of evil—upon what 'the theologians tell us' in the face of mysteries which he admits to be insoluble to reason. Nevertheless, the general course of his argument is marked by sweet reasonableness and intelligence no less than by a thoroughly orthodox conservative faith."

+ — Christian Century 47:759 Je 11 '30 150w

Cleveland Open Shelf p19 F '30

St Louis 28:258 N '30

ROSS, MALCOLM HARRISON. Hymn to the sun. 316p $2.50 Scribner [7s 6d Chapman]

30-6154

"Tom Steele, something of an artistic idler, falls in love with the wife of a medical missionary in Labrador, and abandoning his friends' yacht attempts to return North and win Louisa Grahame for himself. The hardships he encounters, the struggle between himself and a woman who loves him and is yet loyal to her husband make an exciting story."—Cleveland Staff Notes

Booklist 27:30 S '30

"The novel has moments of high drama; at no time is it dull. The story moves along in as swift a fashion as though it were not set in an ice-locked land where there are no taxis, newspapers or the modern conveniences for lovemaking."

+ Bookm 71:548 Ag '30 300w

"'Hymn to the Sun,' for all its stretches of uneven and sometimes careless writing, manages to be tremendously effective. Bizarre to the point of downright unreality in spots, the story, once swallowed, makes considerable impact. It should form the basis of one of the grandest motion pictures ever made." Stanley Walker

+ — Books p5 Mr 9 '30 750w

Boston Transcript p5 My 3 '30 150w

Cleveland Open Shelf p79 My '30

New Statesman 35:680 S 6 '30 80w

Reviewed by Edwin Seaver

N Y Evening Post p7s Mr 1 '30 70w

"The climax is powerful drama, almost melodramatic in its intensity, but closely linked to every aspect of the story, so closely as to be inevitable. . . 'Hymn to the Sun' is worth reading, for its action, for its convincing pictures of 'the land God gave to Cain,' for its clear and attractive style. It represents a notable advance in the author's power."

+ N Y Times p8 Mr 9 '30 620w

"This reviewer, possibly corrupted by too many Frozen-North novels of the usual kind, cannot help wishing that Mr. Ross had given us a little more of the melodrama that his own data would easily permit. He has escaped sentimentality without quite persuading the reader that he has achieved realism. What does come through splendidly is the Frozen North itself—the picture of the life of Labrador."

— + Sat R of Lit 6:848 Mr 22 '30 680w

"An entertaining if not very profound or original story, placed in the unusual setting of Labrador, which country the writer presents most sympathetically."

+ — Springf'd Republican p7e S 7 '30 280w

Times [London] Lit Sup p717 S 11 '30 400w

ROSTAND, EDMOND. Last night of Don Juan; ^{2} tr. by T. Lawrason Riggs; with an introd. by William Lyon Phelps. 123p $2.50 Kahoe & co.

842 29-22700

A dramatic poem, written before the war, in which Rostand undertakes to prove "that Schopenhauer was right when he declared that everything represented by Don Juan was an illusion. The tragedy of self-deception is that it does not last."

"This is bad playmaking. In fact, it is almost the negation of drama. It seems very doubtful if 'The Last Night of Don Juan,' in spite of Professor Phelps and in spite of its many high merits, will ever be a real success on the stage." W. P. Eaton

— Books p14 F 2 '30 160w

"The epigrams of Rostand gain much precision by his aptly rimed couplets. Father Riggs has substituted blank verse. It is not the ideal medium for such delicately pointed wit. Nor is the rhythm nor emphasis always true. . . Father Riggs's sound prose might have proved more trenchant." E. VR. W.

— Cath World 131:627 Ag '30 400w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:22 Mr '30

St Louis 28:77 Mr '30

ROTH, JOSEPH. Flight without end; tr. by Ida Zeitlin. (Griffin ser.) 299p $2.50 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Hutchinson]

30-11277

Franz Tunda, a young Austrian officer, had been captured by the Russians and held for three years in Siberia. When he hears that the war is over he returns to his old haunts again to take up life where he had left it. Nothing seems to be the same; he fits in nowhere. It is as if he were dead, and only his ghost has returned. He arranges for a meeting with his former fiancee—and she fails to recognize him. There is nothing left.

Reviewed by Louis Kronenberger

Bookm 71:331 Je '30 350w

Reviewed by Vincent McHugh

Books p12 S 7 '30 550w

"A moving and a tragic book, and the artful simplicity of the style which an excellent translation has well preserved adds to the power and the impact of this unusual novel." L. Y. Tarleau

+ N Y Evening Post p5s Je 7 '30 330w

"Franz Tunda may be the prototype of an actual person, for there is nothing improbable, or even uncommon, in the deeds attributed to him. But, however closely Mr. Roth may have adhered to the truth in point of detail, in the realm of emotion he has transmuted his story into art, and consequently into fiction of a high order."

+ N Y Times p7 Ap 27 '30 550w

"The subject of 'Flight Without End' is one which a great short-story writer might have turned into a little masterpiece . . . but unfortunately it occurred to Herr Josef Roth. He has expanded it, distorted it and altogether vulgarized it. For, like so many recent German novelists, Herr Roth is too clever by half. He has swamped the moving simplicity of his theme amid a flood of detail, much of which is irrelevant and pretentious."

— Sat R 150:262 Ag 30 '30 350w

"If it was the author's aim to demonstrate the effect of the Russian experiment on the individual character, he cannot be said to have succeeded to any marked extent, for right from the beginning of the book Franz seems as undependable, as aimless and as generally lacking in character as at the end. Considered merely as a narrative, however, the tale is interesting: it is written with vivacity and contains some pleasing imaginative touches."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p670 Ag 21 '30 300w

ROTHERMELL, FRED. Fifth avenue; twenty-eight X-rays of a street. 299p il $3 Harcourt
30-6537

Twenty-eight short stories about Fifth avenue life, with illustrations by the author. Each of the stories is a flash picture featuring some particular character or incident; the settings move the length of the Avenue, from Washington Square to Harlem.

"There are nearly thirty of these snatches of New York, each one with a geometric drawing by the author to accompany it. They are brash, jagged, told without sentiment, and with a certain saber-toothed cruelty. A few move so swiftly that their meaning eludes you. Some are limned on your mind like new buildings on the skyline."
Books p27 Mr 16 '30 340w
Cleveland Open Shelf p96 Je '30

"In the construction of his tales Mr. Rothermell displays a considerable talent. He writes with economy and with a very neat sense of irony and contrast. If his work errs occasionally in the direction of obviousness or sentimentality, there are still moments when his method results in a very clean, finely drawn and effective story, almost photographic in the intensity of the impression which it leaves with the reader."
+ — N Y Times p9 My 25 '30 320w

"Cinematographic stories, which when they turn into shorthand are rather tiresome, but when—as in 'Hands,' for instance—they abandon a too modern method, become vivid and gripping. They do give a cross section of New York." W. R. Brooks
+ — Outlook 154:467 Mr 19 '30 50w
Springf'd Republican p7e Je 1 '30 230w
World Tomorrow 13:281 Je '30 70w

ROTHERY, AGNES EDWARDS (MRS HARRY ROGERS PRATT). South America; the west coast and the east. 294p il $4 Houghton
918 South America—Description and travel
30-22746

Modern South America—her rapidly developing resources, republics, trade, and cultural strength—is described by Miss Rothery in such a way as to interest the intelligent traveller or the practical business man.

Booklist 27:154 D '30

Reviewed by A. B. Maurice
Bookm 72:xvii O '30 220w

"The volume gathers together impressions and bits of information picked up by a fairly industrious traveler making the usual steamship stops between the Panama Canal and Valparaiso and from Buenos Aires to Pernambuco, together with various inland excursions. One scans the book in vain for adequate analysis or interpretation of life and events in the great continent to the south of us, though the author has an understanding for the feeling engendered by some of our pretensions and policies."
Books p10 O 12 '30 220w

"It can be recommended heartily to those who like to have their travel books served with a touch of magic, who want, while they are getting their information and description, to be made to feel the romance, the moving quality, the appeal to the imagination of the scenes about which they read."
+ N Y Times p35 D 14 '30 200w

ROTHMUND, FRAU TONI (LUDEMANN). Amber bead; tr. from the German by Winifred Katzin. 175p il $2 Longmans
30-20354

How little Heide who lived on the mountainside with the old herb woman for company and the animals for playmates finally found her way to her own home thru the cleverness of the animals, guided by the amber bead.

"The book is well illustrated. It will be enjoyed by the child who likes fairy tales and the child who enjoys animal stories." M. R.
+ Library J 55:924 N 15 '30 70w

"A certain type of symbolic nature story seems popular in Germany and frequently tempts the translator and the publisher in this country. These stories usually appear as juveniles. It may be that German children read them. In translation they lack the childlike quality. . . The illustrations, especially the full-page ones in color, have charm and the childlike quality which is lacking in the text." A. T. Eaton
— N Y Times p15 Jl 6 '30 300w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Outlook 156:586 D 10 '30 30w

"Children who like books about animals, and who do not mind the little stretch of imagination by which birds and beasts take on much of the character of human beings in their various plots and intrigues, will be delighted with it. Together with the fantasy there is much real lore of wild animals and their ways. There is a friendly and charming quality both in the story itself and the way it is told, which one feels has lost none of its spontaneity in translation."
+ Sat R of Lit 7:333 N 15 '30 180w

ROTHSCHILD, SIGMUND I. Stories postage stamps tell; what we can learn from them. 158p il $3.50 (15s) Putnam
383.2 Postage stamps 30-21730

Mr Rothschild, who has been collecting and studying stamps for thirty years, classifies a great variety of them into fifty different groups, each illustrative of a special subject—astronomy, architecture, bird life, industry, etc., with a few pages of description and a page of illustrations for each.

Booklist 27:94 N '30
Bookm 72:xxvi S '30 100w
Boston Transcript p5 O 4 '30 320w
Cleveland Open Shelf p151 D '30

"Mr. Rothschild is doing an excellent and fruitful work in showing the philatelists, young and old, how they can make their collections a source of intellectual interest and a potent inspiration to intellectual curiosity."
+ — N Y Times p19 Ag 17 '30 280w
St Louis 28:262 N '30

"The style is as if Mr. Rothschild were personally conducting us through his collection and explaining each stamp, at times highly interesting and in places a little boring. The idea is good, but it is to be regretted that the rewriter did not use his blue pencil more strenuously. It is also unfortunate that so high a price for the volume was considered necessary (due no doubt to the forty-eight large half-tone illustrations), for the book is likely to be out of reach of the audience for which it is written."
+ — Sat R of Lit 7:166 S 27 '30 180w
Times [London] Lit Sup p814 O 9 '30 200w

ROTHSTEIN, THEODORE. From Chartism to labourism; historical sketches of the English working class movement. 365p $2.50 Int. pub. [7s 6d Lawrence]
335 Labor and laboring classes—Great Britain. Socialism in Great Britain
30-16122

The author, as a supporter of Marx and Communism, discusses the history of British labor for the past hundred years.

Reviewed by C. F. Brand
Am Hist R 35:914 Jl '30 420w

"Mr. Rothstein's book is confessed propaganda for left-wing socialism. His readers must not be surprised to find that the book is well-organized, well-planned, makes very good reading, and is usefully informative." E. P. Chase

ROTHSTEIN, THEODORE—Continued
+ Am Pol Sci R 24:760 Ag '30 180w

"Mr. Rothstein, who before his return to Russia after the Revolution was a well-known figure in the British Socialist movement, here collects a series of essays dealing with that movement's history. Those which treat of the modern period are of very little value. They contain nothing that is new to English readers, embodying merely the familiar Communist criticisms of the Labour Party and the Trade Unions. The earlier essays, however, despite some inaccuracies, are a real addition to our knowledge of certain dark places in Labour history, especially of the declining years of the Chartist movement and of the bodies which can fairly be described as the fore-runners of the First International of 1864."
— + New Statesman 35:164 My 10 '30 200w

"Mr. Rothstein's 'From Chartism to Labourism,' while frankly didactic, is nonetheless an interesting and valuable study of a movement which, upon the whole, has been neglected by historical research." Louis Rich
+ N Y Times p14 Je 22 '30 750w
Times [London] Lit Sup p152 F 27 '30 120w
World Tomorrow 13:277 Je '30 50w

ROUGES, JEAN DES VIGNES, pseud. See Taboureau, J.

ROUND, JOHN HORACE. Family origins, and other studies; ed. with a memoir and bibliography by William Page. 303p $8.50 Smith, R.R. [25s Constable]
929 Great Britain—Genealogy. History

This volume of papers by a learned English genealogist classes in two groups: studies of special value and general interest to historians and studies of the origins of the Cavendishes, Churchills, Walpoles, Nevilles, Granvilles, and other eminent English families. The papers are prefaced by a memoir of Dr Round.

"Tribute must be paid to the work of the editor, Mr. Page, whose bibliography of Mr. Round is most useful and whose memoir is worthy of subject and writer alike—the story of a scholar written by a scholar."
+ Sat R 150:794 D 13 '30 620w

"The late Dr. Round's genealogical learning has probably never been equalled and this last volume of his papers, enriched with a valuable memoir and an invaluable bibliography, will be prized by all mediaevalists and genealogists, and there is much that is of absorbing interest to the non-expert who is willing to make some effort of attention."
+ Spec 145:135 Jl 26 '30 750w

"Again and again in these pages the thread of the argument is broken as some word occurs to engender a train of controversial thoughts. And throughout we have the exasperated feeling that he is wasting time in bringing up his battering rams to demolish structures that would easily fall to a much less strenuous assault. For Round's unique talents were too precious to be expended in this fashion."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p621 Jl 31 '30 2150w

ROUQUETTE, LOUIS FREDERIC. Great white silence; tr. from the French by O. W. Allen and A. Le Rebeller. 236p il $2.50 Macmillan
30-8601

A young Frenchman, who calls himself Freddy, narrates these episodes from his life in Alaska. He tells of many adventures and adventurers in the frozen North: a French scholar who wears a top hat because it is Sunday, an Italian pianist who dies of tuberculosis, a miner who unearths the skeleton of a mammoth, a girl whose husband, a sergeant of the Mounted police, is killed, and many others. The book ends with a tribute to the Frenchman's staunch comrade—his husky, Tempest.

"M. Rouquette writes usually in the historical present, which gives an air of drama even to passages where actual drama is not latent. And in such a story as this one, which somehow manages to recall some of the general features of the writing of Jack London—all Alaskan stories face that doom—the method is very effective."
+ N Y Times p6 Jl 13 '30 300w

"He gathers some amusing tales of the big empire lying this side of the Bering Sea, but somehow he doesn't get under the skin of Alaska as Jack London did, or even as Robert Service managed to do. But the book is readable. It is even thrilling in spots. It doesn't have to be true to be interesting."
+ — Sat R of Lit 6:1095 My 31 '30 200w

ROWE, ANNE. Turn of a wheel. 320p $2 Macaulay
30-5178

"The aristocracy of Paris and Venice mingle with a band of international jewel thieves. A double romance, suave crooks, hidden dungeons, abduction and murder are all blended."—Bookm

"An impenetrable plot that will keep the reader in suspense and furnish unlimited diversion."
+ Bookm 71:xxix Ap '30 50w
Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p14 Ap 6 '30 100w

ROWLANDSON, MRS MARY (WHITE). Narrative of the captivity and restoration of Mrs Mary Rowlandson; [pref. by Frederick Lewis Weis]. Lancaster ed 86p il $1.25 Houghton
970.6 Indians of North America—Captivities. Lancaster, Massachusetts—History 30-12589

A reprint of a book first printed in 1682, which gives a contemporary account of Indian warfare as seen by the author, a minister's wife, who was taken captive by the Indians in February, 1676 and ransomed in May of the same year.

Bookm 72:xiv D '30 100w
Christian Science Monitor p13 Jl 26 '30 180w
N Y Evening Post p7m My 31 '30 100w
Pratt p36 autumn '30
St Louis 28:246 O '30
Reviewed by Mary Austin
Sat R of Lit 6:1150 Je 21 '30 550w

"The interest of Mrs Rowlandson's story rests not only upon the experiences recorded but upon the personal revelation, the portrayal of Indian life and the vivid, forthright style."
+ Springf'd Republican p10 My 3 '30 1500w

ROYDE-SMITH, NAOMI GWLADYS (MRS ERNEST MILTON). The Island. 278p $2.50 Harper [7s 6d Constable]
30-24050

The story of an emotionally inhibited Welsh girl, her almost devastating affection for a girl from town, and the effects of this friendship on all her after-life.

"It is the sort of story that should get well under the skin, should prod complacence and kindle pity. Yet somehow one reads with very little emotion of any kind. In the first place, the inversion theme is so muffled and muted that one suspects Miss Royde-Smith was visited by phantoms of the official intellects which banned 'The Well of Loneliness.' Delicacy has its charm, but if a novelist chooses such a heart of darkness for her work she cannot smother it in evasion without choking the life out of her story."
— Books p16 S 28 '30 600w

Boston Transcript p4 N 1 '30 300w
New Repub 64:331 N 5 '30 180w

"These two finely-described intimates [Myfanwy and Almond] are alone in a party of strangers. For the rest the characters are introduced as arbitrarily as if suggestions had been borrowed from the pages of a directory; and the episodes—the town-planning, the preaching of the missionary, the work in two millinery businesses—though they are major features of the latter part of the book, have an extraordinarily sundry quality."
+ — New Statesman 35:413 Jl 5 '30 500w

Reviewed by Vincent McHugh
N Y Evening Post p4d O 25 '30 150w
N Y Times p19 D 21 '30 420w

"With quiet pity Miss Royde-Smith describes Goosey's disintegration and decay into an eccentric and solitary hag. It is the author's particular triumph that she makes this tragic creature seem an inevitable development from the sentimental farm girl Goosey."
+ Sat R 150:21 Jl 5 '30 200w

"Once one has gone beyond the inadequate explanation with which this book, like 'The Well of Loneliness,' is saddled, one finds an absorbing story. There is no emphasis upon the abnormality in the situation; as in 'Regiment of Women,' it is simply a cause of complicated unhappiness, and can never by any possibility have a happy outcome. The characters are brilliantly drawn; Flossie is a true sister of the heroine of 'All Kneeling,' and her character has a dramatic value, from the depth of the catastrophe, which Miss Parrish's satiric portrait does not possess. It is a book that makes one feel that the worst of poverty is not the privations of the poor, but their pitiful enjoyments."
+ Sat R of Lit 7:294 N 1 '30 450w

"The last chapters strike home, but it is hard to respond to the story as a whole. Poor Goosey, one says (rather perfunctorily): how true it all is: how sad. Yet all the time one's mind is playing with the kitten Miss Royde-Smith so exactly describes; admiring her insight into the soul of Mr. Midgley, the draper; delighting in her sure, mocking touch; doing anything, in fact, rather than concern itself properly with the sufferings of Goosey. . . The Island is full of good things; but it ought to have been first-class." L. A. G. Strong
+ — Spec 145:60 Jl 12 '30 300w

"A book like this, which has been written with apparent ease and pleasure, communicates engaging qualities to the reader, and Miss Royde-Smith's talent as an anthologist is divertingly displayed in the poems and hymns that intoxicated Goosey and which cannot fail to give the reader a different sort of acute joy."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p572 Jl 10 '30 450w

RUARK, ARTHUR EDWARD, and UREY, HAROLD CLAYTON. Atoms, molecules and quanta. (Int. ser. in physics) 790p il $7 (35s) McGraw

530.1 Atoms. Molecules. Quantum theory 30-5709

"Intended to serve beginners in this field and also, 'to furnish workers in the field with an up-to-date account of the laws of quantum theory and with a general account of the important experimental researches in the field.' Pre-supposes a fair knowledge of chemistry and mathematics."—Pittsburgh Mo Bul

"Regarded as a textbook the work possesses a number of advantages over its predecessors. In the first place, it is, of course, more up-to-date than the previous works. Aside from this, the authors are to be commended for having written in a style readily comprehensible to the reader who has not been trained in advanced physics. Regarded as a reference, the volume cannot be expected to be as valuable as it may be as a textbook. This is due to the fact that the large number of topics considered has necessitated a brevity of treatment which seems inconsistent with the function of a work of reference. On the whole, however, the authors are to be congratulated on having made a distinctive addition to the literature of the new physics; an addition which, it may confidently be hoped, will be a source of inspiration to all those who approach this latest field of conquest." H. M. Smallwood
+ Am Chem Soc J 52:2588 Je '30 650w
Nature 126:561 O 11 '30 280w
N Y New Tech Bks 15:24 Ap '30
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:53 Je '30

RUBINSTEIN, HELENA. Art of feminine beauty. 286p il $2 Liveright [10s 6d Gollancz]

646.7 Beauty, Personal 30-25048

The famous beauty expert gives in this volume her formulas for the care and preservation of the complexion, the hair, the eyes and the hands, and suggestions as to diet and exercise.

Booklist 27:193 Ja '31
Bookm 72:xiv N '30 80w
Boston Transcript p4 O 18 '30 230w
N Y Times p28 S 21 '30 260w
St Louis 28:293 D '30

Reviewed by Rose Macaulay
Spec 145:793 N 22 '30 380w

RUCK, BERTA (MRS GEORGE OLIVER). Today's daughter. 332p $2 Dodd [7s 6d Hodder] 30-2366

The romance of Pet Elliot, wayward daughter of an indulgent father, and Lark Hill-Chance, a young aviator.

"On the whole, a superficial story is most likely to be engaging when it moves along without ballast. To a superficial plot Berta Ruck has added the complications of a superficial philosophy, which is analogous to sticking feathers in a cork in order to add to its buoyancy."
— Books p14 My 4 '30 130w

"When Miss Ruck abandons the Elliot household she loses touch with reality, but Pet remains a human being throughout the most unlikely happenings."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p62 Ja 23 '30 200w

RUDY, ABRAHAM. Practical handbook for diabetic patients; with 180 international recipes; introd. by Frederick M. Allen. 180p il $2 Barrows

616.63 Diabetes. Diet in disease. Cookery for the sick 29-16865

The first third of the book gives a simple statement of the facts concerning diabetes and diet, and directions for the use of insulin. The remainder of the book is devoted to suggestive menus for diabetic patients, with 180 recipes.

"This book is an important addition to the large number of handbooks for laymen on diabetes. Dr. Rudy gives an excellent number of menus for various races, particularly Jews. The system of substitution diets is very ingenious and should be widely used. The format of the book dispels the layman's fear of technicalities. The type is large and clear and easily comprehensible. The book should be recommended to every diabetic." Reuben Finkelstein
+ Am J Pub Health 20:455 Ap '30 200w
J Home Econ 21:857 N '29 180w

RUEFF, JACQUES. From the physical to the social sciences; introd. to a study of economic and ethical theory; tr. by Herman Green; with an introd. by Herman Oliphant and Abram Hewitt. 159p $2 Johns Hopkins

301 Social sciences. Economics. Ethics. Science—Methodology 29-13172

For descriptive note see Annual for 1929.

Am J Soc 35:682 Ja '30 180w

RUEFF, JACQUES—Continued
Reviewed by S. A. Rice
Am Pol Sci R 24:470 My '30 530w

"Here is a book of such first rate quality that it deserves a wider reading than it is likely to receive. It is of first importance because it represents a splendid attack upon the problem of the method of social science. If the views presented in the book are sound, they throw some light upon the probable direction of the method of the various disciplines constituting this branch of science." F. V. Harper
+ Columbia Law R 30:276 F '30 1400w

"This book is one which all political scientists and students of political theory would do well to read, mark, learn and inwardly digest. Indubitably a most important and significant book which shows the way thought is tending." G. E. G. Catlin
+ Pol Sci Q 45:299 Je '30 1150w

"M. Rueff's work is important out of all proportion to its slender bulk; but in the particular instance of political economy, while one must admit his plea that it is an instance of a peculiarly difficult kind, one does not find his arguments wholly convincing."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p798 O 10 '29 320w

Reviewed by James Hart
Yale Law J 39:597 F '30 1200w

RUGG, HAROLD ORDWAY. Changing civilizations in the modern world; a textbook in world geography with historical backgrounds. (Rugg textbooks in the social studies; the reading bks.) 633p il $1.96 Ginn

380 Geography, Economic. Geography, Historical 30-2221

This, the second volume in the Social studies series, is a text book in world geography. The book considers especially the great industrial nations, the changing agricultural countries, and the interrelation of the two. Professor Rugg is connected with the Lincoln school of Teacher's College, Columbia University.

Booklist 26:317 My '30
Cleveland Open Shelf p39 Mr '30

"To a geographer the most tragically dangerous element in the book is the glib way in which inaccurate generalizations are made, apparently for the sake of simplicity. . . If an author, in telling of the progress of industrialism, were to use the scientific geographical knowledge which is needed for the purpose and which is readily available, he might give the American public a much less dangerous textbook in history than has the author of Changing Civilizations in the Modern World with its numerous unscientific statements." E. P. Parker
— School R 38:790 D '30 1850w

RUGG, HAROLD ORDWAY. History of American civilization, economic and social. (Rugg social-science course; the reading course) 636p il $1.96 Ginn

973 United States—History. United States—Social conditions. United States—Economic conditions 30-27071

Adapted to the needs of junior high school pupils, this short history of American civilization is devised on the principle of "learning by doing," with a project work-book accompanying the reading text. The volume is third in a series of Social studies.

Booklist 27:167 D '30

"While there may be some lack of geographical and other helps and some inaccuracies in statistical information, the author's selection and organization of the content in the volume, together with the pupil's workbook and the teacher's guide, may well be characterized as a unique and timely departure from the traditional method of making history, geography, and civics textbooks and curriculums. The book is superior in this respect to any that has come to the attention of the reviewer." C. F. Allen
+ — School R 38:793 D '30 850w

RUGG, HAROLD ORDWAY. Introduction to American civilization; a study of economic life in the United States. 610p il $1.92; pupil's workbook 36c Ginn

380 United States—Economic conditions. United States—Social conditions. United States—Industries 29-18680

A text book intended for a unified course in history, geography and civics, best adapted to pupils of junior high or high school ages. The various units, in which the author employs the method of showing previous states of affairs in contrast with the situation today, are provided with many illustrations. Thruout the author has dramatized the past and present story of American civilization and its relations to the modern world.

Booklist 26:317 My '30
Cleveland Open Shelf p127 S '30

"The style is exclamatory and occasionally anecdotal. Sometimes it is far too difficult for the junior high school pupil. Transitions from topic to topic are attempted by italicized statements preceding the main discussions, but even with this device unity of thought is not always apparent. Frequently a subject is introduced by a question followed by a direct answer. The reader is thus made conscious of an ever-present didactic purpose." B. L. Pierce
El School J 30:711 My '30 800w
St Louis 28:38 F '30

Reviewed by L. M. Mohr
School R 38:230 Mr '30 880w

RUGG, WINNIFRED KING. Unafraid; a life of Anne Hutchinson. 263p $3.50 Houghton

B or 92 Hutchinson, Mrs Anne (Marbury) 30-4549

After a childhood in London, and twenty-two years of marriage crowned by the birth of fourteen children, Anne Hutchinson settled, in 1634, in Boston where John Cotton was preaching. Here she became a social and religious leader, holding meetings at her home. Suspicion fell upon her, and when brought to trial before Winthrop, Dudley and Endicott, she insisted on describing God's revelations to her. Banished and finally excommunicated from the Church, Mrs Hutchinson went with her children to Providence, Rhode Island, later removing to Pelham Bay, where she and nearly her entire family were massacred by the Indians.

Booklist 26:278 Ap '30

Reviewed by John Chamberlain
Bookm 71:224 Ap '30 200w

Reviewed by H. F. Whicher
Books p18 Ap 27 '30 450w

"Here is a book with a grasp of the essential great facts of this woman's life, an understanding not only of what she did, but of what she stood for, and these facts are reinforced by a keen relish of the figures of the times, both in the old England and the new. It is a model piece of Colonial history and of intuitive dramatic visualization." S. L. Cook
+ Boston Transcript p3 Ja 25 '30 1900w

"Marvel of marvels, here is an author who dares to be sane and simple and unbiased. She herself asserts that in her task 'recorded history has been the guide, imagination only a lantern;' and the truth of that is evidenced throughout her scholarly study of a superbly erect figure, limned against the muddy lanes and timbered houses of Boston 300 years ago. Admirably has the author kept her personal predilections subordinate to the facts of the case." M. W
+ Christian Science Monitor p7 F 15 '30 1050w

Cleveland Open Shelf p60 Ap '30

"As a philosopher, detached, amused, and yet sympathetic and pitiful, Winnifred King Rugg, through a perspective of three centuries, sketches with delicate, clear pencil strokes the tragedy of the Antimonian, 'the Jezebel,' 'the Unafraid Anne Hutchinson.' . . The book shows a clever mastery of much research material, for, after the first two chapters, one is not conscious of the artist's efforts to draw the historic background. It is all sketched with such light, clever strokes that the grim realities of pioneering, of child-bearing, of religious persecution, of exile, and even of Indian massacre serve but to ennoble the pioneer Anne, who did so much to help make clear a broad, free road for the mannikin-trim woman of today." S. A. Wallace

+ Hist Outlook 21:297 O '30 550w

Nation 130:552 My 7 '30 30w

"Miss Rugg has made an exhaustive inquiry into Ann Hutchinson's life in England. Miss Augur has written a more comprehensive account of the American years of this stormy and spirited woman, who used the energies bred from a divided self to serve the cause of tolerance and justice. . . Miss Augur and Miss Rugg have not attempted a psychological interpretation. They have set her in her time and given her sympathy and admiration, but, happily, nothing more." Louise Bogan

New Repub 62:223 Ap 9 '30 500w

"In the absence of any similar work, Winnifred King Rugg's readable and comprehensive biography performs a great service to popular history. It is a painstaking and scholarly piece of research, and the material, which was difficult in itself—scanty in places where one might have hoped for profusion, biased and polemic where one might have hoped for impartiality—has been ably and judiciously handled." Margaret Wallace

+ N Y Evening Post p10m F 1 '30 650w

Reviewed by Herbert Gorman

N Y Times p5 F 9 '30 1300w

Reviewed by Harry Hansen

N Y World p11 Ja 30 '30 700w

"Bradford's methods have been studied with profit by Winnifred King Rugg. But she has not mastered the machinery of his fine, fluent style. Her analysis of the motives of this Puritan woman is extremely careful and convincing. Her recreations of scene and dialogue are juvenile and forced. Unafraid is an interesting, readable book, but not a book of any particular importance." F. L. Robbins

+ — Outlook 154:266 F 12 '30 300w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:38 My '30

Pratt p45 spring '30

Pratt p36 summer '30

St Louis 28:148 My '30

Reviewed by S. T. Williams

Sat R of Lit 7:157 S 27 '30 280w

"Although not altogether to be commended as an example of biographical writing, Mrs Rugg's volume is breezy and intelligent and will give readers a better idea of early Massachusetts than most of the speechmakers will. . . The author lapses into diffuseness in attempting a popular or dramatic presentation; but the book will help readers to absorb something of the reality of early Massachusetts."

+ — Springf'd Republican p7e F 2 '30 650w

Wis Lib Bul 26:105 Mr '30

RUSKIN, JOHN. Solitary warrior; new letters; ed. by J. Howard Whitehouse. 192p il $3.50 Houghton [7s 6d Allen, G.]

B or 92 [30-15320]

"This book is so astonishing an example of the ultra-pious in editing and the ultra-spacious in printing that it can best be described numerically. It contains 192 pages, of which eight are devoted to preliminaries, twelve to a chronological summary and index, sixteen to editorial preface, twenty-nine are blank, and eighteen (approximately blank) contain a sort of Ruskin calendar. The remaining 109 pages contain about eighty unpublished letters of Ruskin, which total less than 15,000 words."—Nation and Ath

Reviewed by Thomas Craven

Books p17 Mr 30 '30 1100w

Boston Transcript p4 F 19 '30 480w

"Ruskin was one of the most strenuously public of Victoria's public men, and these letters, although they add a few comparatively humble figures to his circle of earnest married couples and flattered girl friends, add nothing new to our extensive knowledge of him. They do, however, shed some scattered light on his strange emotional history." Barrington Gates

— + Nation and Ath 46:487 Ja 4 '30 800w

Reviewed by Edwin Seaver

N Y Evening Post p11m F 8 '30 250w

Reviewed by S. A. Coblentz

N Y Times p10 Mr 2 '30 550w

"A proportion of [these letters] are of genuine interest. Some might have been omitted, in particular those which contain little beyond an invitation to tea or an acceptance of such an invitation."

— + Sat R 149:19 Ja 4 '30 700w

"The letters, though none of them up to Ruskin's best style, contain plenty of happy phrases, and about half of them are worth printing. Two or three of them throw a little new light on his feelings or opinions. It seems, however, on the whole a pity that Mr. Whitehouse should have published this particular batch, and that he should have published them in this particular way. They would have afforded him material for an article in a monthly magazine, but these letters alone do not make a book." Amabel Williams-Ellis

— Spec 144:131 Ja 25 '30 750w

Times [London] Lit Sup p97 F 6 '30 1100w

RUSSELL, BERTRAND ARTHUR WILLIAM. Conquest of happiness. 249p $3 Liveright [7s 6d Allen, G.]

171.4 Happiness 30-25729

Mr Russell takes up first what he considers the causes of unhappiness, such as competition, boredom and excitement, fatigue, envy, the sense of sin, the persecution mania, and the fear of public opinion. In part two, under the causes of happiness, he lists zest, affection, family life, work, impersonal interests, and effort and resignation. His definition of the secret of happiness is: let your interests be as wide as possible, and let your reactions to the things and persons that interest you be as far as possible friendly rather than hostile.

Booklist 27:138 D '30

"This book is one of the least formal and yet happily one of the best that has come from the prolific pen of Bertrand Russell. Despite the lack of organization and of sufficient generalization to give good working hypotheses, The Conquest of Happiness has in it the sort of advice which a confused and blundering world needs." A. B. Clarke

+ Bookm 72:439 D '30 450w

"The philosophy of Bertrand Russell is a wise philosophy, circumspect, anti-individualistic and one that recalls that of Voltaire: 'We must cultivate our garden.' " Andre Maurois

+ Books p1 N 16 '30 1650w

Boston Transcript p2 O 11 '30 600w

"It is totally devoid of traditional and sentimental gush, as well as of empty platitudes; it combines deep thought with clear expression; it comes out of the ripe experience of an eminently successful and influential man; it is positively helpful." E. T. Buehrer

+ Christian Century 47:1486 D 3 '30 40w

"Mr. Bertrand Russell's rare sincerity and candor protect us against any display of false rhetoric; it would be too much to expect that he could write a book on happiness that would not contain a number of platitudes. The present volume, indeed, does contain a generous number, but I think it is greatly to Mr. Russell's credit that he is not afraid of a platitude. When he finds it necessary to write one, he sets it down simply, without apology and without any effort to make it seem more profound than it is. . . The final impression the book leaves, therefore, is of something unusually fresh and penetrating." Henry Hazlitt

RUSSELL, B. A. W.—Continued
+ Nation 131:379 O 8 '30 950w

"There is at times a triteness about Mr. Russell's recommendations. The biting epigrams of the past are replaced with aphorisms such as 'the habit of thinking of things at the right time' is important 'because it makes it possible to get through the day's work with less expenditure of time.' This is undeniably true, but it is surprising that we should have to go to Mr. Russell to be told that it is true; and much of the wisdom of the book is at this level." C. E. M. Joad
+ Nation and Ath 48:196 N 8 '30 1050w

Reviewed by W. B. Curry
New Repub 65:80 D 3 '30 1000w
New Statesman 36:244 N 29 '30 1150w

"Many will accept Mr. Russell's analysis and synthesis of this question of happiness with gratitude and enthusiasm. For its writing alone the book is pleasurable. . . If one is young or comparatively so, one will wonder whether happiness doesn't include other things that Mr. Russell neglects to mention, glamour, ecstacy, delight and the memories they pile up in one's mind. . . Ironically enough, many who have often read this author with a great deal of happiness will be a little sad after closing this book." R. C. Feld
+ — N Y Times p4 O 19 '30 1450w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:87 D '30
St Louis 28:287 D '30

"The engaging frankness, the absence of cant, flashes of humor, a humane commonsense, and a reflective insight disarm the critic who approaches the subject of this volume in a sceptical or despondent mood. . . The 'Conquest of Happiness' will find a large and appreciative audience; it is a talking not a silent filming of the world's discontent; its causes and cure." Joseph Jastrow
+ Sat R of Lit 7:204 O 11 '30 1150w

"Mr. Bertrand Russell's new book is beautifully planned and written: it is neither more nor less than a guide to the fuller enjoyment of life. The author knows just what he wants to say, and says it brilliantly: the rest—the cloudland of mysticism and the dubious terrain of physical health—remains unseen. The worth of a guide is in its omissions as much as in its contents."
+ Spec 145:603 O 25 '30 700w

Reviewed by Henry Neumann
Survey 65:284 D 1 '30 550w
Times [London] Lit Sup p903 N 6 '30 700w

"Mr. Russell's common sense advice will save many people from those acute forms of unhappiness which root in social and personal maladjustments. It will also tend to destroy the kind of radiance which does not derive from common sense at all but from devotions, aspirations, hopes and commitments which violate the canons of common sense." R. N.
+ World Tomorrow 13:473 N '30 450w

RUSSELL, BERTRAND ARTHUR WILLIAM. Marriage and morals. 320p $3 Liveright
176 Sexual ethics. Marriage 29-21696
For descriptive note see Annual for 1929.

"In Marriage and Morals he maintains his high tradition. This, like his other writings, is both thought-provoking in content and captivating in its form." E. R. Groves
+ Ann Am Acad 149:209 My '30 300w
Booklist 26:145 Ja '30

Reviewed by V. F. Calverton
Chicago Daily Tribune p10 Mr 22 '30 360w

"Undoubtedly his book will be influential and it deserves to be so because it disturbs the complacency of the traditional ethical textbooks; but Mr. Russell's contribution to the moral problems of marriage can hardly be called constructive." C. D. Burns
+ — Int J Ethics 40:435 Ap '30 700w

"The argument is developed with fine lucidity. It is the work of one who has studied much and reflected deeply. It is pointed with that social irony which only the demands of pure mathematics ever banish from Mr. Russell's style. But behind the irony lie a strong conviction and a clear vision. There are some eminently debatable contentions in Mr. Russell's exposition, but it is hard to see how any intelligent reader can dispute its intellectual courage and its essential sanity. Mr. Russell has done what he set out to do—he has made 'a contribution to sexual morality.'" R. M. MacIver
+ New Repub 61:256 Ja 22 '30 900w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:5 Ja '30
St Louis 28:3 Ja '30

"Mr. Bertrand Russell possesses what is admitted to be in many ways one of the finest minds among us; and, had he been able to approach this subject in the unprejudiced and dispassionate way characteristic of his best work, he might have given us a book which would at least have defined the real issues, and set in due proportion the various interests involved. He has given us a good book, but not that book."
+ — Sat R 149:68 Ja 18 '30 1000w

"He brings clarity, calmness, and an orderly flow of thought to a discussion where these qualities are all too often lacking." F. W. Binkley
+ Sat R of Lit 6:671 Ja 25 '30 400w

RUSSELL, BERTRAND ARTHUR WILLIAM, and others. Divorce (Eng title: Divorce as I see it). 92p $1.50 Day [3s 6d; pa 2s Douglas]
347.6 Divorce

A symposium of the opinions on the question of divorce and divorce laws to which Bertrand Russell, Fannie Hurst, H. G. Wells, Theodore Dreiser, Warwick Deeping, Rebecca West, André Maurois and Lion Feuchtwanger are contributors.

Reviewed by Lorine Pruette
Books p16 N 23 '30 400w

"So small a volume, which nevertheless aims to offer the opinions of eight persons upon such a controversial question as divorce, must of necessity be a trifle thin in spots. This is somewhat the case here. In general it may be said that the points of view presented are much the same. All are concerned with the sociological implications of the contemporary legislation concerning marriage and divorce. In every essay, it is clear, each contributor realizes the inadequacies of contemporary codes. For the solution of the difficulties various means are suggested. . . Roughly all agree on two points. (1) Divorce ought to be possible. (2) The presence of children offers serious complications." M. H. Moore
Int J Ethics 41:274 Ja '31 320w
N Y Times p27 N 23 '30 180w

RUSSELL, CHARLES EDWARD. Charlemagne, first of the moderns. 306p il $4 Houghton
B or 92 Charlemagne 30-13880

The character and achievements of Charles the Great, viewed in the light of modern times, receive emphasis in this laudatory biography. The author bases his estimate of Charlemagne's personality and intelligence upon a study of his letters, or Capitularies, as well as upon his abilities in political, military and social lines. How he conducted his wars, built up trade, organized his empire, established a democratic form of government and encouraged the pursuit of learning are clearly treated.

Booklist 27:63 O '30

"Charlemagne's portrait is drawn mostly from his own capitularies. Direct in purpose, swift and mighty in execution, simple and strong of heart and mind, the figure that looms out of these pages is ruggedly human, massively lovable. From gross errors this readable narrative is remarkably free. A professional scholar might carp at the statement that the saga of Theodoric, King of the Ostrogoths, was written by Dietrich of Berne. But such lapses are few: on the whole, the book is almost as safe as though it were dull." Albert Guerard

+ Books p5 Jl 6 '30 550w

"Mr. Russell's style is of the narrative type, illuminated by a sly humor, or what might more accurately be described as a humorous manner of expression. He has frequent resort to footnote references and quotations which relieve his text of burdensome detail, and afford an excellent guide to collateral reading or original sources on Charlemagne's life." Ralph Sadler

+ Boston Transcript p4 Je 21 '30 1150w

Cath World 132:247 N '30 400w

"The book has much interest, but does little to give more than a shadowy portrait, a silhouette of Charlemagne."

+ — Current Hist 32:1032 Ag '30 180w

"A lively, spirited biography written with gusto and warm enthusiasm for the subject. Succinctly done, moreover, and conveying a colorful picture of the times, an eloquent portrait of the man. Valuable in that it will surely rekindle curiosity in a neglected though turbulent and gaudy period of the world's history and one of its most magnificent characters . . . The qualities that Russell brought to muckraking he now is devoting to serious history. He is painstaking in research, sure of his facts, though subconsciously selecting those that appeal to him most, and, above all, swift and passionate in style." Louis Sherwin

+ N Y Evening Post p9m My 31 '30 920w

"Mr. Russell gathers the threads of his intricate story together with the greatest skill. The bewildering array of events that set the stage for Charles is summarized clearly and simply. He has always clearly in mind that history is a continuous flow, that the great events of the eighth century left an impress upon humanity traceable to this day. We are linked indissolubly to our past, and in taking every opportunity to demonstrate it the author gives a meaning to his story it would otherwise lack." H. L. Matthews

+ N Y Times p13 Je 8 '30 1450w

"Whatever else Charles Edward Russell may be—and he has always been an industrious writer and here shows himself a careful scholar—he is certainly no stylist. His writing is as humdrum as his subject is unusual. If the reader will accept the second part of the book's title as simply an attempt to lend timeliness to a subject which actually has little, he will find in the book a careful account of Charlemagne's reign, developed from a sceptical study of the Charlemagne hagiology and from a sympathetic study of the more reliable sources and recent criticism of them." F. L. Robbins

+ — Outlook 155:145 My 28 '30 230w

Pratt p34 autumn '30

Reviewed by W. B. Shaw

R of Rs 82:10 S '30 120w

Springf'd Republican p6 Jl 7 '30 500w

RUSSELL, CHARLES EDWARD. Haym Salomon and the revolution. 317p il $3.50 Cosmopolitan bk.

B or 92 Salomon, Haym. United States—History—Revolution—Finance 30-28933

As official broker to the Office of finance under Robert Morris that was instrumental in raising the much-needed funds for the War of independence, Haym Salomon, a young Polish Jew, rendered valuable service. The biographer gives an account of the brilliant financial feats performed by Salomon, which greatly contributed to the success of the Amercan Revolution.

"Mr. Russell has done a fine job of communicating his knowledge of the period of the War of Independence and Salomon's contributions to it. . . The book should serve the useful purpose of revealing to Americans yet another real patriot who was an alien."

+ Bookm 72:xil D '30 180w

"Though fired by a laudable zeal for his hero Charles Edward Russell has done Salomon a grave injustice by his indiscriminate enthusiasm and by his equally indiscriminate abominations. A large part of the volume is devoted to a chronicle of the causes and progress of the American Revolution that cannot be pronounced other than grotesque." H. S. Commager

— Books p10 N 30 '30 600w

"To give body to so scanty a story, the author has made more than liberal use of the background. . . The net result is a story largely of certain aspects of the period rather than of a particular man. Discounting a certain intemperate and clumsy manner of expression more marked toward the beginning, the story such as it is is nevertheless is told with spirit and reads well." William Schack

+ — N Y Evening Post p5d N 29 '30 700w

Reviewed by E. F. Brown

N Y Times p4 D 21 '30 1150w

RUSSELL, GEORGE STANLEY. Monastery by
2 the river. 107p $1.25 Smith, R.R.
30-31016

Stories of the daily lives of the monks in an old English monastery in the days of Henry VIII. The monastery is not named, but the description of the beautiful ruin "not far from Leeds" points to Kirkstall abbey.

Boston Transcript p1 D 20 '30 550w

"Beautifully told story of the daily life in an old English monastery." W. R. McNutt

+ Crozer Q 8:136 Ja '31 20w

RUSSELL, JOHN. Cops 'n robbers. 282p $2 Norton [7s 6d Butterworth, T.]

The robbers and policemen who figure in these short stories are treated first of all as human beings and so are given a reality usually lacking in stories of crime. Contents: Brandy 1812; The badge; Peg Post; Boston limited; Plivit's inspiration; The wise men; Violets; Variations on a theme: a—The patrolman, b—The civilian; The heart line; The answer; The burglar; The man who was dead.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Books p12 Jl 27 '30 120w

"We do not say that the stories are as unmistakably distinguished as the tales in 'Limehouse Nights.' But we do feel that they are outstanding in their more narrow field. Stories that can produce what the movies call a 'thrill' and still maintain literary integrity do not happen every day." Percy Hutchison

+ N Y Times p7 Jl 27 '30 1200w

"In these thirteen short stories Mr. Russell has packed a vast amount of melodrama, for the most part incredible but nevertheless somehow pleasant and readable. . . Three of the crime stories are good, 'The Burglar,' 'The Civilian,' and 'Brandy 1812.' These combine ingenuity of construction with direct, effective telling. In the last story, 'The Man Who Was Dead,' Mr. Russell goes delightfully gruesome; it is the best of the lot, though dealing with neither cops nor robbers. We wish that he had done more in the same vein. Some of the rest are passable; only three, 'Boston Limited,' 'Plivit's Inspiration,' and 'Violets,' are definitely bad."

+ — Sat R of Lit 7:12 Jl 26 '30 250w

RUSSELL, PHILLIPS. Emerson, the wisest American. 320p il $5 Brentano's

B or 92 Emerson, Ralph Waldo 29-21614

For descriptive note see Annual for 1929.

Booklist 26:158 Ja '30

Christian Science Monitor p13 Jl 26 '30 500w

RUSSELL, PHILLIPS—Continued

"Mr. Russell has drawn on Emerson's copious record of his experience in the journal and essays—it will seem to some that he has unduly neglected the poems—and woven this matter skilfully into the pattern of his narrative. Those who have read Emerson will find the book full of reminiscential pleasure; those who have not will find it a stimulating introduction." R. M. Lovett

+ Current Hist 31:849 F '30 1400w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:2 Ja '30

St Louis 28:18 Ja '30

"A clear and informing, if somewhat sedate, biography of a wise, if not the wisest American."

+ World Tomorrow 13:139 Mr '30 40w

Reviewed by S. T. Williams
Yale R n s 19:859 summer '30 420w

RUSSIA (U. S. S. R.) STATE PLANNING COMMISSION. See Union of soviet socialist republics.

RUSTICUS, pseud. See Jenkins, M.

RUTLEDGE, ARCHIBALD HAMILTON. Peace in the heart. 316p $2.50 Doubleday, Doran

504 Natural history—Outdoor books 30-13338

Essays on the out-of-doors, its life and manifestations, and the contentment which the author has found in his lifelong explorations of nature.

Books p10 Ag 24 '30 150w

Reviewed by Charles Johnston
N Y Times p7 D 7 '30 600w

"In spite of an overcharge of sentiment and an incorrigible desire to moralize, Mr. Rutledge succeeds in distilling both the peace and the subdued excitement of nature into his prose. . . The deer and the wild turkeys owe him thanks, for no one has written of them so well as he."

+ Sat R of Lit 6:1113 Je 7 '30 100w

RUTTER, OWEN. Song of Tiadatha. 144p $1 Duffield

821

Saga, in verse, of a British officer in the World war, from the day when he ceased to be an ornament to St James Street, thru his days of training, service in France and Macedonia, until he returned to London and his green-eyed Phyllis. It is written in the meter of Hiawatha. Parts of this story of Tired Arthur were published in the columns of the Orient Weekly during the war.

Reviewed by F. L. Robbins
Outlook 155:427 Jl 16 '30 100w

"An amusing trifle, and some of it was written at the Front." W. R. Benét
Sat R of Lit 7:9 Jl 26 '30 50w

RYALL, WILLIAM B. See Bolitho, W., pseud.

RYAN, DON. Roman holiday. 319p $2.50 Macaulay

30-3356

Hollywood furnishes the background for this novel by a newspaper man who is now engaged in writing for the talkies. The story opens with scenes that flash alternately from Diana Hunter, Hollywood dancer and comedienne who has a sophisticated taste for highbrow literature, to her soldier lover at the front. Diana loses movie reputation after Egan comes home, marries her, and commits suicide in a bath tub. But Diana will not give up her career. She makes her way to New York via the aid of a travelling salesman, and under an assumed name starts directing pictures. Inspired by Spengler's "Decline of the West," she produces a powerful screen masterpiece, "Undertow," and dies.

"In A Roman Holiday Don Ryan has essayed an almost impossible task and handled it with a richness of sensitivity, a natural comprehension of the dramatic and a vivid realization of characterization. To say that he has been completely successful would be untrue, for to have been completely successful he would have been compelled to write a novel as long as Tolstoy's War and Peace; but within his limitations he has created an astonishing approximation of the philosophical thesis he set himself." Herbert Gorman

+ — Bookm 71:104 Mr '30 300w

"One suspects that if Mr. Ryan threw away his five-foot shelf of literature he could write a first-rate yarn of the movie world. He might also discard his Freud and Krafft-Ebbing without undue loss to the making of his novel. His style is crisp and vivid. He visualizes well and the first part of the book moves very swiftly." Lorine Pruette

— + Books p7 F 2 '30 850w

"There is much in this audacious book that seems to this reviewer quite absurd; and there are some things about the extraordinary and fascinating heroine that seem to him incredible. But this is the most interesting novel ever to have come out of Hollywood. It could never have come from anywhere else. That is its curse as well as its significance." F. T. Marsh

— + Nation 130:222 F 19 '30 550w

"Parochialism is the besetting sin of American letters, and in this instance the author has made the mistake of identifying the seamy side of the American amusement industry with the whole fabric of American civilization in the name of Oswald Spengler. The result is a lurid, arty scenario."

— N Y Times p9 Ja 26 '30 600w

"Don Ryan's new novel reveals a fecund talent, rich in expression and episode, but touched with a desire to record the bizarre, the exotic and the dregs of life." Harry Hansen

+ N Y World p13 Ja 17 '30 550w

Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 23 '30 350w

RYDH, HANNA ALBERTINA. Land of the sun-god; description of ancient and modern Egypt; tr. from the Swedish by A. Barwell. 202p il $4 Little [12s 6d Allen, G.]

916.2 Egypt—Description and travel [30-8835]

"Not only the bazaars in Cairo, the pyramids and the royal tombs are pictured; Bedouin camps, Fellah villages and Arabian caravans are described, by word and photograph. From Cairo to Luxor, from Luxor to Assuan and then to Deir El Bahri, the resting place of the Pharaohs, Dr. Rydh takes her reader. After returning to Cairo, she sponsors his attendance at the feast of Ramadan, at a native wedding, in a local school; she takes him to the Egyptian Museum and through the smelly streets of the Oriental quarter."—Bookm

"Although an archæologist of note and a Doctor of Philosophy, the author of this travel book writes with a fetching simplicity. Her account of a journey through Egypt features those things which all visitors in that land want so much to see, and see so seldom because they do not know where to look."

+ Bookm 71:xxx Ap '30 140w

Boston Transcript p5 N 30 '29 700w

Cleveland Open Shelf p76 My '30

"The author has the interests of an archæologist, but has tried to write that 'something more than a guide-book,' which is more often considerably less. Her accounts of Cairo, expeditions to the desert and the show places of the Nile, are the conventional thing. She is at her best in her accounts of her experiences among the women's schools of Egypt.

This part of her book is alive and exceptionally interesting."
— + New Statesman 34:542 F 1 '30 350w
N Y Times p11 D 28 '30 600w
St Louis 28:78 Mr '30

"Somewhere between the trip-book and the travel-book proper comes the volume didactic by the Swedish archaeologist, Dr. Hanna Rydh. One would not be understood as using the word didactic in any invidious sense. On the contrary, the author brings knowledge, sympathy and imagination to her task of re-creating certain phases of Egypt's age-long past and of illustrating other features of her life to-day. Clearly, however, Dr. Rydh is instructive."
Spec 143:sup865 D 7 '29 140w

"In Dr. Rydh's book Egyptology mingles happily with the study of modern conditions, and both are treated agreeably. The reader is secure in the presence of companionable scholarship."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p887 N 7 '29 400w

RYERSON, FLORENCE (MRS C. C. CLEMENTS), and CLEMENTS, COLIN CAMPBELL. Seven suspects. 308p $2 Appleton [7s 6d Skeffington]
30-7682

At Dead Man's Gulch, high in the California mountains, Carmena Lopez, famous singer, is murdered. Among the seven suspects are her lovely ward, Diana de Silva, Hell Fire Lyman, a demented preacher, Pedro Carcia, a Portuguese, and Rosa Morito, Carmena's maid. Jimmy Lane, owner of a mountain lodge, works on the case; and the heavenly deep-dish apple pie and smothered quail created by his housekeeper, Ma Bascum, aid in the solution.

Bookm 71:xxx Ap '30 100w
N Y Times p24 Je 1 '30 250w

"The hero and the heroine are of less importance than the admirable Ma Bascum, a delightful character who provides sound common sense, humour, and food of an attractive nature even in print to all the characters who support the burden of the plot, and, incidentally, produce two more corpses."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p893 O 30 '30 200w

RYERSON, FLORENCE (MRS C. C. CLEMENTS), and CLEMENTS, COLIN CAMPBELL. This awful age. 267p $2 (7s 6d) Appleton
30-21866

Jane Jones, feminine counterpart of an adolescent Penrod, is a normal fourteen-year-old girl with a lively imagination. Mrs Jones understands her daughter's ambitions, play-acting, and poses; so does Chump, the level-headed boy friend who lives next door. Nevertheless, Jane's imagination leads her into more than one stirring escapade—all of them the result of that tragic, sometimes humorous, but always inescapable process of growing up.

Booklist 27:209 Ja '31

"This story of two perfectly normal and utterly delightful young people inspires confidence that the entire younger generation is not doomed to perdition. . . Every woman will recognize herself in Jane and in reminiscence enjoy many laughs."
+ Bookm 72:viii S '30 130w
Books p10 O 26 '30 100w

"The humor is displayed so seriously, and the seriousness so lightly, that the mingling of laughter and that slight ache in the throat become a quite lovable thing. For pure everyday enjoyment 'This Awful Age' is a welcome book."
+ N Y Times p18 O 19 '30 470w

"An entertaining and human piece of work."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p1102 D 25 '30 250w

S

SABATINI, RAFAEL. King's minion; being the rise and fall of Robert Carr of Fernlehurst, earl of Somerset, viscount Rochester, etc. (Eng title: The minion). 445p $2.50 Houghton [7s 6d Hutchinson]
Somerset, Robert Carr, earl of—Fiction
30-24774

An historical romance based on the career of Robert Carr, the favorite of King James I and lover of Frances Howard, countess of Essex, with whom Carr became implicated in the murder of Sir Thomas Overbury.

Booklist 27:209 Ja '31

"Few pages in English history offer the romancer such made-to-order opportunities as does the Overbury case, which, indeed, could hardly be improved upon for a finished tale unless the victim had been the lady's husband instead of the sworn friend of her lord. And few novelists, one ventures, could have made a neater job of it between novel covers than Rafael Sabatini, who has here lavished his fluent prose and his gift for intrigue upon a most congenial subject."
+ Books p10 O 5 '30 300w
Boston Transcript p4 N 1 '30 250w

"The book is a vivid picture of the time, dramatic, well constructed, and exceptionally interesting."
+ N Y Times p18 O 19 '30 450w

"A well written but rather pedestrian tale, with none of the sparkle and excitement that characterize earlier Sabatinis." W. R. Brooks
+ — Outlook 156:350 O 29 '30 80w

"It is interesting that up to a certain point, and no farther, Sabatini writes what can truly be called a rattling good story. For almost two hundred pages one is carried along by the excellent plot, with good characters and situations, all very well handled—when suddenly, pouf! the story 'goes movie.' Our characters desert us, as characters, and becomes figures that we see only with the visual part of our imagination, turning and gyrating, as it were, before the lens of a camera."
+ — Sat R of Lit 7:292 N 1 '30 280w

"Mr. Sabatini shows himself here more thoughtful and less melodramatic than in some of his previous romances. Nor is his subject less absorbing and successful in consequence."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p812 O 9 '30 250w

SABUROV, PETR ALEKSANDROVICH. Saburov memoirs; or, Bismarck and Russia; being fresh light on the League of the three emperors, 1881, by J. Y. Simpson. 304p $5.50 Macmillan [15s Cambridge univ. press]
327.47 Russia—Foreign relations—Germany. Germany—Foreign relations—Russia 30-6648
For descriptive note see Annual for 1929.

Boston Transcript p2 F 5 '30 200w
Reviewed by S. B. Fay
Books p12 Je 1 '30 400w

"Dry as Saburov's Memoirs may be, they afford some interesting, although not very new, glimpses of Bismarck's typical, dogged and brutish power and of his grip on affairs." Alexander Nazaroff
+ — N Y Times p23 F 23 '30 800w
Times [London] Lit Sup p854 O 31 '29 850w

SACHAR, ABRAM LEON. History of the Jews. 408p $5 (21s) Knopf
933 Jews—History 30-9417

"'A History of the Jews' gives the complete story from the emergence of the Jews into history down to the present day. Dr.

SACHAR, A. L.—Continued
Sachar retells the Old Testament story in the light of modern historical research, and separates with the skill of a scientist truth from fable. By this method it is possible to get a vital conception of the emergence of the Jewish nation out of the tribal movements, the development of its laws and the manner of its life, and its final absorption by its powerful neighbours."—Nation and Ath

Reviewed by H. G. Enelow
Books p4 Ap 6 '30 1350w

Reviewed by C. S. Brown
Christian Century 47:1218 O 8 '30 550w

Reviewed by Isidor Schneider
Nation 131:228 Ag 27 '30 250w

"It is a thrilling narrative and no element of the drama is lost in Dr. Sachar's telling of it. On every phase of it he has something fresh to say. Important, too, is Dr. Sachar's sketch of the position of the Jew among the early Christians." H. L. Nathan
+ Nation and Ath 47:654 Ag 23 '30 350w

"To pack within the pages of one volume the story of thirty centuries of a people who have wandered in scattered groups literally all over the face of the earth is no small task. Dr. Sachar has done a fine piece of work, one that every student of history will be grateful for." R. C. Feld
+ N Y Times p9 Ag 10 '30 1300w

St Louis 28:219 S '30

"Of the liberality of Dr. Sachar's thought and the soundness of his scholarship there cannot be two opinions; indeed, the only part of his learned and arresting story of Jewry through the Ages that one would be inclined to call in question is his somewhat summary treatment of the probable historicity of the two main legends of Israel: the wanderings of the patriarchs and the sojourning in and exodus from Egypt. A little while ago this mild scepticism would have been accounted to him, at any rate by historians, as entirely reasonable. Today, when we are beginning to understand how much true history lies embalmed in the amber of a people's folk-lore, such an attitude seems a little old-fashioned." F. A. Clement
+ — Sat R 150:381 S 27 '30 850w

SACHS, MRS EMANIE LOUISE (NAHM). The octangle. 127p $1.50 Cape
30-31037

A sophisticated murder mystery built about the members of an unconventionally-minded group of New Yorkers. Linda Carter is the victim, and the author, thru a psychological presentation of each of Linda's intimate friends, provides the reader with enough material and motive-knowledge to discover the murderer for himself.

"The most agreeable murder mystery in a month of Sundays." Will Cuppy
+ Books p16 N 30 '30 380w

Boston Transcript p2 D 31 '30 180w

"The best things about 'The Octangle' are the quality of the author's prose, which is hard and clear, and the quality of her approach to her people, which is sympathetic and satirical." Edwin Seaver
+ — N Y Evening Post p4d D 6 '30 180w

N Y Times p8 N 30 '30 700w

"These elements are very skilfully arranged to maintain sufficient suspense, and to give you the full value of the characters' reactions. It's an interesting story, and there is some malice in the character drawing. . . There are only 127 pages in the book—exactly the right length for the story. Mrs. Sachs has cut her coat according to her cloth—something many authors seem unable to do." W. R. Brooks
+ Outlook 156:509 N 26 '30 200w

SACKVILLE-WEST, VICTORIA MARY (MRS HAROLD GEORGE NICOLSON). The Edwardians. 314p $2.50 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Hogarth]
30-26888

The setting of this story of Edwardian England is the beautiful old manor-house of Chevron. The characters are grouped around Sebastian, the young heir to the dukedom, and his mother, a famous hostess of the day. Individuals count for less in the novel than the beautiful old house and all that it represents—a decadent but decorative society. The close of the story, marked by King George's coronation, finds the young duke breaking with the traditions that have bound him, not unwillingly, and starting a new era for himself.

Booklist 27:66 O '30

"The Edwardians is the most distinguished novel that has come out of England this year. And it is distinguished precisely because Sebastian, like the heroes of many a period novel, is less important than his circumstances. For it is in the re-creation of the society from which Sebastian wishes to escape that Miss Sackville-West succeeds so admirably. Her conversation, again with the most sparing use of contemporary idiom, is an essential part of her structure. As for her characters, none of them, we are told, is wholly fictitious. This is true, but it has nothing to do with the truth of the story. For that some part of them was once alive is quite immaterial: the point is that they are alive."
+ Bookm 72:70 S '30 700w

"Because we all love to believe in Prince Charming, the Sleeping Beauty and the other innocently childlike figures of ease and delight 'The Edwardians' will be read as a fairy tale by outland cousins who have never seen the oaks of England. . . Its detail is as sure and intricate as a cathedral's carvings; its colors as glowing as old stained glass. The book is rich and satisfying, and amusing as well." Mary Ross
+ Books p3 S 7 '30 900w

"The prose of this book is delightful. One reads it slowly; but one does not stop until it has all been read. There are glimpses of English aristocracy as seen from the servants' quarter, there are broad vistas of it, as seen from the rooms occupied by Sebastian and his family. In short, this is a novel which deserves the praise it will get; it is as good a story of England as we have had since before Soames Forsyte died." Karl Schriftgiesser
+ Boston Transcript p1 O 11 '30 1450w

"Occasionally a novel appears which is, of its type, a perfect thing. It is a rare thing to find such a novel and the world should give itself over to huzzahs whenever one appears. There should be much of that voicing of appreciation over 'The Edwardians.' It is a perfect novel of manners, plus a certain keen and brilliant satire." Fanny Butcher
+ Chicago Daily Tribune p9 S 13 '30 400w

Cleveland Open Shelf p147 D '30

"'The Edwardians' is a gentle, well-bred, and highly sentimentalized picture of the declining days of the English aristocracy. To judge from the elaborate literary apparatus Miss Sackville-West employs, one supposes that she intended a scandalously bitter satire. It is apparent that the author is in general aware of the three qualities which distinguish her characters: vulgarity, stupidity, and brutality. But she lacks either the skill or the courage to do more than poke a little fun at them, accompanied by a poetic sigh that all this lovely, if empty, pageantry must pass away. One feels that she cannot escape her own tradition; her satire is half admiration." C. P. Fadiman
+ — Nation 131:413 O 15 '30 900w

"'The Edwardians' is an intelligent novel. There is so much to be said for it; it has judgment, feeling, beauty; it wants nothing but a little life. . . The treatment wavers between fantasy and realism which refuse to join. The style is, with a few lapses, cultured and firm—up to a point distinguished; but it is a mechanical distinction, and the machine creaks, where indeed all 'intelligent' novels are defeated, in the dialogue."

— + Nation and Ath 47:383 Je 21 '30 370w

"The younger writers, with three or four American exceptions and perhaps one or two British, are playing safe. They do not lack talent, but they do lack courage. As a result of their malingering, the situation of the novel is only slightly more hopeful than it was fifteen years ago. Recognizing this one can neither greet 'The Edwardians' with enthusiasm nor dismiss it as utterly unimportant; one can only regard its sleek success as a misfortune, almost an affront. It is not sure how much Miss Sackville-West's talents, real as they are, would accomplish if she were to undertake an ambitious experiment, but even failure, of a certain sort, would entitle her to more profound admiration than can be bestowed on the present work." Granville Hicks

New Repub 64:158 S 24 '30 1050w

New Statesman 35:308 Je 14 '30 400w

"As a picture, as a study in manners, as a record of social history, 'The Edwardians' could hardly be bettered. Miss Sackville-West knows her people intimately; she understands them perfectly; she reproduces them as a group against a background brilliantly. Her book is a personally conducted tour into a world from which all but a few would have been rigorously excluded. . . And the style, patrician but unmannered, fits the book like a glove. It comes close to being distinguished and even closer to being witty; it will bear comparison, though it cannot quite sustain it, with the very finest novels of manners. The book, indeed, is very hard to put down." Louis Kronenberger

+ N Y Times p7 S 7 '30 1050w

"The Edwardians is satire, but satire of the most measured and delicate sort. One can laugh over its wit, and clap one's hands over the dazzling reality of its scenes. One can lose one's self in passionate anxiety over the fate of its characters. And one can sigh with delight over the clean beauty of its style. To be sure there are tricks in the book. It is no haphazard product of inspired genius, but the work of a careful and intelligent craftswoman." F. L. Robbins

+ Outlook 156:188 O 1 '30 450w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:70 O '30

Pratt p39 autumn '30

"'The Edwardians' is a minute survey of high society during the period indicated by the title. It is, however, a good deal more than that. There is, for example, a distinction about the writing which prevents the minuteness from ever becoming tedious. And then, above all, with a sustained irony which is the more merciless for being slightly disguised, the book forms a variation on the familiar theme of the hollowness of pomp and rank."

+ Sat R 150:84 Jl 19 '30 400w

Reviewed by H. W. Boynton

Sat R of Lit 7:122 S 13 '30 1050w

"Besides a ready flow of direct and acute observations about the manners, morals, traditions, loyalties and fads of the Edwardians, she manages to suggest the atmosphere and spirit of the times as a whole, by a series of pictures and conversations very cleverly woven into the fabric of her plot. . . Miss West's picture of the 'Smart Set,' though based on a superficial examination of a few of their activities and necessarily restricted to a handful of characters, remains somehow a remarkably comprehensive and convincing study of those seemingly far-off days. . . The book is emphatically one to be read." I. M. Parsons

+ Spec 144:913 My 31 '30 400w

"'The Edwardians' is of undoubted excellence from two points of view. First, it is a magnificent portrait of a class and an era. Secondly, it is remarkable for its excellent prose style. . . It is keen, clear, and vigorous—a style suggesting sinewy strength. Its sparkle is maintained, and does not merely flash in occasional antithetical sentences." H. K.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e S 7 '30 1600w

Reviewed by J. P. Darnall

Survey 65:167 N 1 '30 750w

"Miss Sackville-West manages the difficult art of bringing real, or very nearly real, episodes into a novel without awkwardness of any kind. . . In Miss Sackville-West's skilful hands the characters, though each is dominated by the same ideas, emerge as individuals, and the whole elaborate and dead society begins to live again."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p454 My 29 '30 570w

"We have had the novelized biography. The Edwardians gives the impression of dramatized family memoirs. Both, it seems to me, play a losing game. There are many animated and engaging sketches in The Edwardians. I wish that the author had let them go as a gallery of portraits." Helen MacAfee

— + Yale R n s 20:viii autumn '30 230w

SACKVILLE-WEST, VICTORIA MARY (MRS HAROLD GEORGE NICOLSON). King's daughter. (Hogarth living poets ser.) 35p $1 Doubleday, Doran [3s 6d Hogarth]

821 30-28607

A sequence of love lyrics written to a lady, by the distinguished contemporary English poet and novelist.

"Somewhat slight and arcadian, a successor, but not at all a sequel, of 'The Land.'"

Nation and Ath 46:294 N 23 '29 30w

"Miss Sackville-West whittles and polishes conventional themes until her material shines anew. She is precise in observation, designs with a Japanese scantiness of detail and constructs her poems very tightly." M. U. Schappes

+ N Y Evening Post p4d D 20 '30 200w

"Love poems from one lady to another constitute a somewhat exotic nosegay. There is charm, however, albeit a rather artificial charm, in the slim book. But the gold assays a bit thin. The poet has not put forth her full powers. She has become semi-precious, though with an unusual dexterity always apparent." W. R. Benét

— + Sat R of Lit 7:270 O 25 '30 320w

Reviewed by Austin Clarke

Spec 143:984 D 28 '29 60w

"Miss Sackville-West is known as the poet of good husbandry in these times; one who seems, like Keats's Autumn, to be present at many beautiful, curious and intimate occasions of country life, and who with uncommon union of strength and grace matures her rhythmic expression of things deep in human history. In her new collection, which is of no great length, her characteristic images and tones are varied into a lyrical sequence of love-poetry. She succeeds in producing a richness of impression out of terms in themselves plain."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p892 N 7 '29 250w

SADDHARMAPUNDARIKA. Lotus of the wonderful law; or, The Lotus gospel; Saddharma Pundarīka Sūtra, Miao-Fa Lien Hua Ching; by W. E. Soothill. 275p il $6 (15s) Oxford

294.3 Buddhism 30-31901

A study of Mahayana Buddhism based on a translation of the Saddharma Pundarika Sutra, or The Sermon of the Lotus of the True Law. Dr Soothill is professor of Chinese in the University of Oxford.

"No other book is so influential throughout Mahayana lands as is the Lotus Gospel, and none gives better the average non-intellectual attitude toward the religion. Professor Soothill has conveniently abridged here a full translation, which he expects to publish elsewhere,

SADDHARMAPUNDARIKA—Continued
and with an illuminating introduction, all done in an excellent English style, has presented a short and lucid version for the non-specialist in Chinese or Sanscrit. The message of the Lotus Gospel comes to us from it more effectively than it would from the lengthy and repetitious original." W. N. Brown

+ Books p26 S 28 '30 850w

"The 'Saddharma Pundarīka Sūtra,' besides having a long name, is a very long book, and Professor Soothill has performed a useful task in giving us this popular summary of it, based on the Chinese translation. He seems, however, to regard the book as an isolated phenomenon, and does not appear to have studied it in relation to the general history of Mahāyāna. Professor Soothill's English is not above criticism."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p594 Jl 17 '30 250w

SADLEIR, MICHAEL. Evolution of publishers' binding styles, 1770-1900. (Bibliographia; studies in book history and book structure, 1750-1900) ltd ed 95p il $6 Smith, R.R. [12s 6d Constable]

686 Bookbinding [30-20448]

"Publishers' binding styles have, since the beginning of publishing, undergone a continual evolution of technique and treatments, in materials as well as in processes. To the tracing of these evolutions [during the years 1770-1900], from paper wrappers to full casing in cloth, Mr. Sadleir has devoted a considerable study." —Books

"Mr. Sadleir's book is a work in a neglected field of bibliography. He treads, carefully, upon new ground. But his care is to avoid phases of the problem upon which he is unable to speak with the utmost authority, and these phases avoided are very few. The matters covered in the book are handled with an understanding that comes from study and research."

+ Books p31 N 16 '30 320w

"Mr. Sadleir writes with that careful, intelligent affection that marks the expert in small things; here the ignorant may learn of presentation bindings, of special bindings, of coverings in silk. . . . His book is a most fascinating volume, keeping strictly and severely to the facts." R. E. R.

+ New Statesman 35:384 Je 28 '30 700w

"Nothing could be more illuminating and more perfectly handled than his discussions of gold and ink-blocking on cloth, or his notes on the secondary bindings commonly employed by the Victorian publishers; his entire book, in fact, is so invaluable a help that in the future it cannot possibly be ignored. Without pretending to knowledge he does not possess, and without making ostentatious display of his particular talent, he presents with astonishing simplicity the results of what must have been an enormous amount of research in a field that has not—certainly in the past—attracted anyone. His 'Trollope: a Bibliography' was a superb piece of work; his 'Evolution of Publishers' Binding Styles' is equally fine, and equally as important." G. M. T.

+ Sat R of Lit 7:95 Ag 30 '30 850w

SAFLEY, JAMES CLIFFORD. Country newspaper and its operation. 390p il $3 (10s 6d) Appleton

070 Newspapers. Journalism 30-11295

A textbook designed for a journalism course in country newspaper work. The author, who has had more than twenty years' practical experience as a journalist, emphasizes the modern ideals and responsibilities for public service connected with the publishing and editing of the country newspaper. He covers in general all the problems of newspaper production and management. Each chapter is followed by a list of suggestions for class work.

Booklist 27:8 S '30

Cleveland Open Shelf p106 Jl '30

SAGE, LEE. Last rustler; autobiography [ed. by Harvey Fergusson]. 303p il $2 Little [10s 6d Alan, P.]

B or 92 Cowboys. Frontier and pioneer life 30-13822

A lively biography of a cow-puncher, written in the vernacular of the western plains. Lee Sage was born in Robber's Roost, Utah. His father was a specialist in horse stealing and later settled in the Ute country to further his trade. Sage describes his own adventures in youth, which included an encounter with bandits in Mexico and a trip to Chicago, an unhappy marriage, and a venture with moonshine. Mr Sage is now a stunt man for the movies.

Booklist 27:25 S '30

Boston Transcript p2 My 28 '30 1120w

"There has long been a place for the revelation of the character of a horse thief. Perhaps 'The Last Rustler' is as good a record of its kind as will be offered, though a good deal of the geography is, either intentionally or blunderingly, so confused that certain 'rustling' experiences fail to convince. But the self-questioning of the man, his relation to his father, and his code of ethics reveal psychology in a way that very few unsophisticated writers achieve. The style is nervous and there is something epic about the sweep of hostile land and the hostile men that the rider, generally alone, rides athwart." J. F. Dobie

+ Nation 131:182 Ag 13 '30 100w

Reviewed by P. H. Boynton

New Repub 63:213 Jl 19 '30 200w

"The language which Mr. Sage uses in describing his adventure is admirably suited to his material, and he did well to avoid becoming 'literary.' Especially is it suitable to the recounting of his wild rides in subduing untamed horses. There are many stories of bucking and raging mounts, but despite the repetition, each breaking in of a new horse holds fresh interest for the reader." R. F. Harrel

+ N Y Evening Post p8m My 31 '30 550w

"It would be hard to say when a more entrancing tale of adventure has come out of the West. The author has lived among the Ute Indians, has punched cows from Mexico to Canada and back again, has stolen horses, rustled cattle, shot up towns and carried on with a high hand generally; and he tells his life story with a fresh and expressive diction that comes straight from the wide open spaces and owes little to Lindley Murray. It is a tale full of exciting incident, with many bits of happy characterization and vivid description." W. J. Ghent

+ N Y Times p10 My 25 '30 1700w

Times [London] Lit Sup p824 O 16 '30 1150w

SAIDLA, LEO ERVAL, and GIBBS, WARREN
2 EDGAR, eds. Science and the scientific mind. 506p $3 (15s); textbk ed $2.50 McGraw

501 Science—Addresses, essays, lectures. Science—Methodology 30-25389

A symposium of twenty four essays by men prominent in the world of science. The essays are arranged in six groups: science; the scientific mind; the scientific motive; science and culture; science and civilization; science and the future. Among the contributors are E. E. Slosson, R. A. Millikan, Bertrand Russell, J. W. Mackail, J. S. Haldane, Thomas H. Huxley, John Tyndall, J. W. N. Sullivan, Michael Pupin, and Thorstein Veblen.

"These teachers of English have assembled between the two covers of this book the outpourings, at once provocative and stimulating, of a score of 'scientific minds.' Planned primarily as a textbook in advanced composition for students of science and technology, the work merits wider consideration. . . In a time like ours, when the popular mind, belabored by much pseudo-scientific buncombe, inducts the word 'science' into its glib vocabulary and bids fair to make a fetish of it, those possessed of even a modicum of intellectual pride will welcome an effort to define more exactly the implications of the term. 'Science and the Scientific Mind' is such an effort, and a commendable one." J. R. Van Arsdale

+ Chem & Met Eng 37:763 D '30 350w

"Any one who will carefully study this book and bring to it reasonable intelligence will understand how science has developed, what its victories have been and what its limitations are." E. B. Chaffee
+ Outlook 156:709 D 31 '30 220w

ST JOHN, CHARLES WEBSTER. Educational 2 achievement in relation to intelligence as as shown by teachers' marks, promotions, and scores in standard tests in certain elementary grades. (Harvard studies in educ.) 219p $3.50 Harvard univ. press [16s Oxford]

371.26 Mental tests. Grading and marking (students) 30-25799

"Having stated his theory that the aim of education is to provide for the individual experiences from which he will emerge as 'a free personality, well socialized and well integrated about a developing, constructive social purpose,' the author proceeds to a concise description and evaluation of psychological and educational tests and a survey of previous studies in this general field; reports the methods and results of a statistical study of the relation of intelligence quotient to achievement; outlines a few case studies as illustrating certain points; and considers the inferences to be drawn regarding educational organization and methods. A bibliography is appended."—J Home Econ

"The book should prove to be valuable, particularly to the student who wishes to familiarize himself with the problems, techniques, and results of studies in the field concerned. The investigation is very comprehensive, and it confirms the results of those which had already been made. The study itself, therefore, together with the summary of related works and an excellent bibliography which is provided, should make the book interesting for the uninitiated reader." E. F. Potthoff
+ El School J 31:314 D '30 580w
J Home Econ 22:1017 D '30 120w

SAKI, pseud. See Munro, H. H.

SALMON, ANDRE. Black Venus (La négresse de Sacre-Cœur); tr. from the French by Slater Brown. (Transatlantic lib.) 293p $2.50 Macaulay
29-25599

"La Négresse de Sacre-Coeur" is a novel whose setting is pre-war Montmartre, and whose characters are modernistic artists and writers, an artist's model, a gigolo, and a planter, Médéric Bouthor, who has installed in his spacious house a negress as his mistress.

"In reading a translation of a work like 'La Négresse de Sacre Coeur" one is always afraid that too much has been left out, but in this case Slater Brown's version is unbelievably complete and faithful. In his three-page preface Mr. Robert M. Coates says practically nothing. If these valuable new translations are to have introductions, let them be more than a formality." A. Flores
Books p21 F 2 '30 700w

"It is unfortunate that more cannot be said about the story as a story. Some situation created to motivate the plot, or some central figure upon which to base one's interpretation of the whole, might easily provide a degree of justification for the rest of the novel as it stands. As it is, we have a series of disconnected word pictures. If no coordination is provided between sections of the story by which one can at least follow it to an understandable conclusion, those sections must stand, and be judged, alone. Under such a test, The Black Venus would nauseate the most hopeful and the most forbearing critic who could—or should—exist." P. E. R.
— Boston Transcript p2 D 14 '29 480w

"The book has a hard luster which, however, is not entirely impervious to thrusts of sadness and pity. It is unfortunate that the many snatches of song and verse have lost their charm in the translation."
Nation 130:103 Ja 22 '30 250w

"Reading this book is like looking at a painting by the newer school; in endeavoring to find a scheme you stumble into details, well drawn, but the plot remains forever elusive; it cannot be said to be a novel, and unfortunately those characters that would make it interesting as a biography are scantily drawn. So call the book a page from the life of a group of prominent people, and, while you are not being disgusted, be entertained."
N Y Times p7 Ag 17 '30 230w

"Fantastic doings are related in a beautifully polished, glamourous prose, embellished by much brilliant dialogue and interspersed with incidents of a tenderer, more wistful tone. But the deeper importance of the book lies in the penetrating light it casts upon the character, work and genius of men who in later years were to assume leadership in new schools of French art and literature." E. C. Beckwith
+ N Y World p11m D 8 '29 250w

"André Salmon's kaleidoscopic post-war novel is said to be roman à clef, in which painters such as Picasso and Derain are to be found under the names of Sorgue and Paroli, the writers Mac Orlan and Wedekind as O'Brien and Darneting, the unclassifiable Max Jacob as Septime Febur, and finally the author himself as Florimond Daubelle. . . The whole is highly colored, violent, a little cruel, and somewhat unpleasant to read, but . . . M. Salmon's book is more than a good novel; it is also in its rather disorderly way a part of modern history, and a not unimportant one."
+ — Sat R of Lit 6:603 D 28 '29 200w

SALOMON, GERHARD. Shadow-King; the life of Louis XVII of France and the fortunes of the Naundorff-Bourbon family. 316p il $5 Houghton [16s Allen, G.]

B or 92 Louis XVII, king of France

An examination of the evidence in the case of the watchmaker, Naundorff, who came into France from a provincial Prussian town in 1830 claiming that he was in reality the dauphin of France, son of Louis XVI and Marie Antoinette, supposed to have died in the Temple in 1795.

"The book is impressive, but not convincing. Herr Madol is an able advocate but he is too evidently a Naundorffist to be a real historian. He yields to the temptation of connecting, in the most shadowy fashion, all the mysteries of that troubled period with the fate of the alleged Louis XVII. And there are occasional lapses in his information which, if they are not due to the translator, further weaken our confidence." Albert Guerard
+ — Books p5 Jl 27 '30 1200w
Boston Transcript p3 Je 28 '30 750w

"Herr Madol unquestionably knows the subject well. He writes clearly and logically, but at times dryly, quoting at length numbers of documents, analyzing them and, apparently, making no effort to 'novelize' his narrative. Yet . . . Herr Madol's interesting arguments are hardly convincing. After having read his stimulating book one feels—such, at least, is the reviewer's experience—that, mocking historians, the mystery of the little Shadow King of the Temple still remains unsolved." Alexander Nazaroff
— + N Y Times p9 Je 29 '30 1350w

"Singularly interesting life of Louis XVI's supposed son." E. C. Beckwith
+ N Y World p5m Jl 27 '30 250w

"Mr. Madol's book begins well, and his preface contains an inspiring declaration of impartiality. Unfortunately, however, he more and more becomes an advocate of Naundorff's claims and forfeits the reader's sympathy as an impartial investigator. . . Altogether, the book is worth the attention of a historical student, but it is a pity that we have not even yet an impartial and detached investigation of the whole story."

SALOMON, GERHARD—Continued
— + Spec 144:sup825 My 17 '30 630w

SALT, SARA, pseud. See Hobson, C.

SALTEN, FELIX. Fifteen rabbits; tr. from the German by Whittaker Chambers. 211p pa $1 Simon & Schuster
30-31598

"Felix Salten here tells the story of two little rabbits, Hops and Plana, from their childhood through their touching love affair; he shapes them in our imaginations to the least quiver of Hops' 'charming whiskers,' the least anxious pucker of Plana's guileless forehead, and makes their small affairs—their lettuces and chases and cold winters—really moving and really important. There is the fragrance of the forest in the book." Books

"It is the great achievement of the book that it makes us see animals as men without spoiling them as animals. . . There is a fine dignity among the creatures, and pride and tolerance and a high, silent courage." R. B. Sanborn
+ Books p5 Ag 10 '30 400w

"Perhaps it is not quite so captivating a book as 'Bambi,' but it contains the same quiet, delicate charm. Salten remains unperturbed by his transitions between what is wild and what is human. This borderline between beast and man seems to be one which fascinates him."
+ Nation 131:330 S 24 '30 280w

"It is extraordinary what flavor the author gives to his story, the exquisite flavor of nature at such moments when one feels that so it might have been in the first morning of the world. The story is sentimental, of necessity, yet throughout the sentimentality is informed with a fine sensitivity and balance of keenest observation." Edwin Seaver
+ N Y Evening Post p5s S 6 '30 150w

Reviewed by Harry Hansen
N Y World p9 Ag 16 '30 950w

"Herr Salten's sensitivity crowds out your rebellious fear of whimsy and the pathetic fallacy. He writes of the rabbits and their real tragedies in the scurrying rhythm of their light feet. He makes you feel the supremacy of the forest behind and about them, as you might feel the immutable laws of life and death which surround the heavier beat of our own wayward steps." V. P. R.
+ Outlook 155:628 Ag 20 '30 320w

Reviewed by Gladys Graham
Sat R of Lit 7:85 Ag 30 '30 950w

SALTEN, FELIX. Hound of Florence; a novel; tr. by Huntley Paterson. 236p il $2.50 Simon & Schuster
30-15343

A fantasy of renaissance Florence. Lucas Grassi, the orphaned son of an Italian sculptor, looks out from his Vienna attic and sees the cortège of the Archduke, starting for an Italian journey. If only he could be a dog, trotting along in the procession, bound for his beloved homeland! And suddenly Lucas Grassi became Cambyses, the Archduke's hound. From that time until a day months later when the spell is finally broken, Lucas Grassi, the youth, and Cambyses, the dog, alternate in form and adventures.

Booklist 27:30 S '30

"Whether or not the author of 'Bambi could hope to repeat the success of that widely popular tale which bids fair to become a classic, in 'The Hound of Florence' he has succeeded in duplicating the charm and the fascination of the earlier idyll—no small feat even for an author of Salten's stature. Once more Felix Salten has given us a novel of rare beauty written with an artist's delicate and intuitive sense of form and scene." Elizabeth Abbott
+ Books p5 Je 8 '30 750w

Boston Transcript p2 Je 11 '30 900w

"Lucas Grassi is far more interesting as a dog than as a man. The strength of the work depends on a few poignant scenes like the closing one, and some passages of meditative insight. There are few indications of the translator's hand, the style is clear and unmannered. The illustrations, done like etchings, are fine and light, in keeping with the fantastic story."
± — Cath World 132:252 N '30 150w

Cleveland Open Shelf p144 N '30

Nation 131:48 Jl 9 '30 150w

"Unfortunately, Felix Salten has observed and comprehended animals better than he has men: his Cambyses is an achievement, but his Lucas a failure. 'The Hound of Florence' is just an agreeable and colorful tale raised one notch higher by its thrilling note of fantasy." Louis Kronenberger
+ — N Y Times p12 Je 8 '30 780w

Reviewed by Harry Hansen
N Y World p13 Je 5 '30 720w

"Salten is acute as well as imaginative, and he knows both men and dogs—perhaps loves dogs most. But it seems to this reviewer a pity to insist upon reading 'subtle psychological insight, profound philosophic content' into a tale of unusual delicacy which is quite able to rest upon its poetic and dramatic values." F. L. Robbins
+ — Outlook 155:226 Je 11 '30 230w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:80 N '30

Reviewed by H. W. Boynton
Sat R of Lit 6:1142 Je 21 '30 420w

"A fantasy of much charm, though hardly of the same fascination as 'Bambi.' "
+ — Springf'd Republican p7e Je 8 '30 220w

SAMSON, LEON. New humanism. 320p $3 Washburn [12s 6d Williams & Norgate]
301 Humanism. Sociology. Social psychology
30-10680

"Mr. Samson's humanism has nothing whatsoever to do with the humanism of Irving Babbitt. . . His book [which] might more accurately have been called 'Proletarian Humanism,' or even 'Communistic Humanism, . . . is based on three . . . assumptions: (1) that man is by nature good, but has been corrupted by social institutions; (2) that the original social arrangement was Communistic and beatifically humane, and (3) that under the aegis of revolutionary Marxianism, mankind will return to its original nature and recover its beatifically Communistic society."—N Y World

Booklist 27:52 O '30

"Mr. Samson's brand of humanism is a highly explosive article. By ingenious and persuasive logic, which seems to embrace a proper regard for everything save certain stubborn traits of human nature, he arrives at a sweeping condemnation of the present type of civilization and offers a breath-taking substitute."
— Books p10 Jl 27 '30 300w

Boston Transcript p2 My 24 '30 250w

Cath World 132:377 D '30 380w

"It is as an iconoclast that Mr. Samson excels. It takes him but a single chapter to clear away what he calls 'Christianity—that dumb colossus of clay, heaping its grandiose insults on the head of man.' He describes the Christian cult as 'the philosophy of Transitory Torture in the hope of a Happy Beyond.' But what of his own alternatives? If the dialectic that fills these pages is not a 'transitory torture' of the human intellect, we do not know the meaning of the word pain. Yet a 'happy beyond' is expressly denied." P. W. Wilson
— N Y Times p12 My 18 '30 850w

"Mr. Samson is a somewhat sentimental and oratorical Marxian. I am sorry to report that his very violence defeats his purpose. Like Mr. Babbitt, he wants all of his ideas labeled before he can accept them. Mr. Babbitt wants them labeled 'humanism,' while Mr. Samson wants them labeled 'Marxian.' Nor am I much impressed with a man who persists in calling his opponents 'peasants.' And it has long been apparent that dirty words do not an agreement make, nor derogatory rhetoric a fact." C. H. Grattan

— N Y World p11m My 11 '30 1200w

Reviewed by Leon Whipple

Survey 64:404 Ag 1 '30 350w

SAND, GEORGE, pseud. of MME DUDEVANT. Intimate journal; ed. and tr. by Marie Jenney Howe. 198p $3.50 Day

B or 92 29-12464

For descriptive note see Annual for 1929.

"Though these documents reveal nothing that cannot be dug out of the works of George Sand, they do present, in as small a compass as is possible, the many facets of her character and the central problem of her life, for those who are interested in the woman as a phenomenon, but who find her writings unreadable. They might well have been presented more critically and intelligently."

+ — New Statesman 34:128 N 2 '29 1200w

Spec 143:sup675 N 9 '29 1200w

"In her novels and in her autobiography, George Sand has left few curtains undrawn across the inner workings of her mind. The publication therefore of this journal of unbridled passionate effusions to Musset is not only uncalled for but is a considerable error in taste and judgment. . . The 'Journal to Dr. Piffoël' and the notes and letters collected under the heading of 'Hints and Sketches' are a different matter altogether. Here we have the true George, humorous, sarcastic, whimsical, desperately in earnest in fitting the particular into its place in the general for the ultimate amelioration of both."

— + Times [London] Lit Sup p954 N 21 '29 700w

SAND, GEORGE, pseud. of MME DUDEVANT. Letters; sel. and tr. by Veronica Lucas; with an introd. by Elizabeth Drew. (Park st. lib. of diaries, memoirs & letters) 426p $4 Houghton [15s Routledge]

B or 92 30-15192

These letters selected from George Sand's formal and intimate correspondence not only reflect the color and vigor of the writer's personality, but in themselves show a remarkable range of tastes and interests. Among the recipients of these letters are Chopin, de Musset, Prince Jerome Napoleon, Flaubert, Empress Eugénie, Lamartine, Dumas, Maurice (her son), Solange (her daughter), and little Aurore (her granddaughter).

Booklist 27:157 D '30

Cleveland Open Shelf p125 S '30

"This is not a book to read through for pleasure, although there are delightful patches of humorous description and occasionally a letter to which anger has given force. George Sand wrote her letters in haste, and usually with an immediate purpose; she wrote about ideas and expressed them none too clearly, and, inevitably with so many correspondents, she repeated herself. Praise of her son, of his wife and children, of life at Nohant, and invitations to stay there become wearisome. On the other hand, the editors do not give enough information to cement the letters into a coherent account of George Sand's life. Certainly it is not their purpose; but a more detailed introduction, fuller notes on the recipients of the letters or even a chronological list of events would have made the book more interesting to the ordinary reader."

+ — Nation and Ath 46:737 Mr 1 '30 800w

"There gradually emerges from these letters the impression of a personality that has a touch of greatness. . . Her love affairs and the personality of her lovers supply surprisingly little of interest to these pages; but the candid affections and warm sympathies of her later years are beautiful and impressive."

New Statesman 34:646 F 22 '30 600w

Reviewed by Margaret Wallace

N Y Evening Post p11m Mr 29 '30 900w

St Louis 28:245 O '30

"Reading these marvellously living and varied letters one is struck by her chief quality—that of energy. She managed her estates diligently, superintended the education of children and grandchildren ably, hurled herself into politics when she felt she must, and for fifty years turned out two books a year. She sat up half the night, scribbling away furiously, for money somebody else always needed. This in itself, if apology for George Sand were needed, should sufficiently dispel that ill fame which settled on her, for moral laxness and industriousness do not go together."

Spec 144:393 Mr 8 '30 750w

"The letters, admirably translated, have here been so selected as to form a sort of autobiography of the writer which, in spite of its incompleteness, has the great advantage of recording every experience in its original freshness."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p428 My 22 '30 1120w

SAND, GEORGE, pseud. of MME DUDEVANT. Tales of a grandmother; tr. by Margaret Bloom. 304p il $2.50 (10s 6d) Lippincott

30-27932

Five tales written by George Sand for her grandchildren, Aurore and Gabrielle. They are stories full of the cliffs and waves and castles of Normandy, mingled with enchanted frogs, swans, giants, and talking statues. Altho the author declares her intention is to instruct as well as amuse, neither the moral nor the information spoils the stories.

Bookm 72:xxii O '30 100w

"Five fairy tales, told in the leisured manner of an earlier period and stressing particularly the beauties of natural phenomena and the rewards of those who appreciate them, comprise this volume. The fidelity to detail and the essentially French feeling of the book make it an important addition to this class of literature."

+ Nation 131:558 N 19 '30 80w

"Children will still find interest and entertainment in these tales and a certain quaint charm which comes from an earlier and more deliberate day. While the translation is good, the make-up of the book is unfortunate. This large, heavy volume with small type is likely to prove the reverse of inviting to any but the most inveterate fairy tale readers, while the very modern color plates are out of key with the text." A. T. Eaton

+ — N Y Times p12 O 12 '30 220w

"These Tales are a translation exquisitely and sympathetically done of stories written out of the genius of George Sand for her grandchildren. The first story of the boy Clopinet is in matter and treatment pure delight. It is so real that after you have read it you will never see a sea-bird again without thinking of Clopinet; and you will search biographical dictionaries to find his name, for you will be sure he was one of France's great men. The book is a fresh new world of meaning and imagery to the minds of our American children and ought to make its appeal from ten-years-old up to fourteen with sensitive-minded children above and below those ages revelling in its beauty and its essential truth. The illus-

SAND, GEORGE, pseud.—Continued
trations by Mr. Hess are many, and colorful in the extreme, and have a rare originality and beauty." E. C. Miller

+ Sat R of Lit 7:438 D 6 '30 850w

Times [London] Lit Sup p982 N 20 '30 200w

SANDBURG, CARL. Early moon; il. by James Daugherty. 136p $2.50 Harcourt
811 30-28479

This latest book of Sandburg's poems for children contains an introductory short talk on poetry, a number of new lyrics, and reprints of poems selected from previously published volumes.

Reviewed by A. C. Moore
Atlantic Bookshelf p50 D '30 80w

Booklist 27:167 D '30

"A good book for the children's poetry shelf, beautifully designed, with decorations by James Daugherty. It should supplement the conventional volumes. The ideas are simple, the language and situations contemporary, the images bold."

+ Bookm 72:xxviii O '30 80w

"Children with widening imaginations will find abiding experience in Early Moon. Values will remain for them to enjoy as they grow older, for that is a quality of poetry." K. G. Landon

+ Bookm 72:249 N '30 220w

"When Carl Sandburg gathered together the poems in 'Early Moon' he must have felt a great satisfaction knowing that the boys and girls for whom the book was being published would understand him. Because Sandburg's own inner vision comes when he observes the familiar American world of smoke-stacks, farm tractors, lumber yards, , and spring grass one feels that 'Early Moon' will be a revealing experience for the boys and girls who read it They will discover that true poetry is not always a matter of iambics and pentameters; perhaps 'Early Moon' will cause some of them to discover their own poetic insight." Nancy Evans

+ Books p8 N 2 '30 350w

"It is hard to decide whether the choice of the poems in this anthology for young readers or the decorations by Mr. Daugherty give the most pleasure. Certainly they are so near on a par that they seem to be absolutely each a part of the other."

+ Boston Transcript p4 N 12 '30 350w

Reviewed by A. L. Shea
Chicago Daily Tribune p14 O 18 '30 100w

"There's nobody quite like him, nor ever will be. His imitators are as different from the original as though they had tried to imitate somebody else. It is easier to imitate form than anything else, and Sandburg's formlessness baffles them. To copy his formlessness without his insight and his imagination, is to miss the whole thing. It is not necessary to like every poem of his; not even every one in a book made up of selections from earlier books—selected presumably because they are good."

+ Christian Century 47:1388 N 12 '30 280w

Cleveland Open Shelf p160 D '30

"It is, given a pinch of technical ability, relatively easy to make 'imaginative' drawings out of obviously imaginative material. To deal with things close to everyday life in imaginative fashion requires something approaching genius. There is, to my mind, no book man in this country who is Daugherty's peer in taking the simple rough units of crude and homely America and making lasting beauty of them. It is in this that Sandburg and Daugherty have a great deal in common." Lynd Ward

+ N Y Evening Post p7d N 15 '30 120w

"From his much poetry Sandburg has made a charming and haunting selection in this volume for young people, and he has written a sage introduction in 'Short Talk on Poetry.' Moreover the decorations of James Daugherty which embellish this volume fit the text like a glove. Daugherty is suddenly recognizable as Sandburg's ideal illustrator, the illustrator he should have had all along. For these reasons we call the book a success and hope that it will go into many American homes. It is one of the books worth buying." W. R. Benét

+ Sat R of Lit 7:206 O 11 '30 100w

Reviewed by Beulah Amidon
Survey 65:341 D 15 '30 80w

SANDBURG, CARL. Potato Face. 96p $1.50 Harcourt
30-9738

Another book of stories from the Rootabaga country, all told by the Potato Face Blind Man. Contents: Yonder the yinder; Moonlight, spiders, rats, elephants; The spink bug and the huck; Quish and Quee; Pigeon foot; Ezekiel; Fog wisp; Choo Choo and Chin Chin; Trading dreams; Napoleon and Methuselah; The honeymoon tree; Flinyons.

Booklist 26:358 Je '30

Reviewed by Llewelyn Jones
Books p3 Ap 6 '30 850w

"Nonsense is of two varieties—that 'relished by the wisest men' and that which is so obvious that it is known by eye and ear before it ever reaches the mind. 'Potato Face' is nonsense for the wise." F. B.

Chicago Daily Tribune p13 Ap 5 '30 500w

"Perhaps you will say this is all nonsense, even though you may concede it delicious, original and sometimes beautiful. Possibly you are right. Again, there may be something to these jolly tales of Potato Face that you can see better while you listen and listen to better while you look, even though you may not have the yodo of Yonder the Yinder the Yoo. But of course that depends entirely upon whether or not you are just that sort of person." M. J. T.

+ Christian Science Monitor p13 Je 21 '30 900w

Cleveland Open Shelf p134 N '30

"These fancies and fooleries seem, for the most part, intended to be quite meaningless, unmarred by ulterior motives. For certain imaginative children, and also for those adults who have been able to retain a childlike love for preposterous make-believe and funny-sounding cacophony, Potato Face's conversation should prove a delight. And if you have enjoyed the other Rootabaga books you will like this one."

Nation 130:658 Je 4 '30 140w

"Carl Sandburg has written some of his loveliest prose and clumsiest nonsense in his new Rootabaga stories. Mr. Sandburg's nonsense is not always clumsy; at its best it is genuinely playful and, in a ponderous sort of way, even spritely. At its worst, it is worse than clumsy; it is downright embarrassing, and we turn from it as a nicely behaved child might turn from his parent who is trying dreadfully hard to amuse him by standing on his head—and doing it badly." Edwin Seaver

+ — N Y Evening Post p10m Ap 5 '30 200w

"Carl Sandburg's last collection of Rootabaga stories was written, he tells us, for adults. One is inclined to believe it was written more for himself. It has certain qualities of the dreamy adolescent imagination always Sandburg's own, and which, when functioning well, is the source of his poetry. When this adolescent imagination functions badly, however, it takes the shape of such inchoate allegory, either so obvious as to be dull or so inobvious as to be meaningless, as we find in 'Potato Face.' "

— N Y Times p8 My 25 '30 420w

" 'The Honeymoon Tree' is set apart from the other stories; it is an exquisite bit, a fitting sequel to 'The Rag Doll and the Broom Handle.' At other times there is an uncomfortable feeling that the august Carl is saying words to himself just for the fun of hearing them. There is only one thing to do in that case, and that is to read them as such, for the fun of reading them, and try to make neither sense nor nonsense from them." O. M. Fuller

+ — N Y World p11m Ap 27 '30 250w

Reviewed by W. R. Brooks

Outlook 154:628 Ap 16 '30 80w

SANDBURG, CARL. Steichen, the photographer. ltd autog ed 280p il $25 Harcourt

B or 92 Steichen, Edward 29-29407

"Carl Sandburg tells the story of [his wife's brother], Edward Steichen, photographer. A lithographic draftsman, poster artist, photographer, painter for the Paris Salon, army officer in charge of aerial photography at the front, Steichen at last renounced the salon variety of art and gave his whole affection to art's first principle, light itself. Alone in a cottage at Voulangis, France, he spent a year photographing a white cup and saucer against a black background, one thousand exposures, experimenting in the control of light on the object and on the negative. With his medium in control, Steichen returned to New York to make photographs for those who could pay. Forty-eight examples of his work conclude the volume. No small part of the significance of the book lies in the quality of these printed reproductions."—Sat R of Lit

"In his foreword Mr. Sandburg informs us that Mr. Steichen is his wife's brother, and asks 'that he be allowed prejudices in writing about one of the family.' The prejudices we cheerfully grant: they are, for the most part, only natural enthusiasms and are responsible for a narrative that is colloquial, intimate and entertaining; but we wish that he had kept them within the bounds of narrative." Thomas Craven

+ — Books p18 Mr 16 '30 300w

"If the poet has failed of his job in 'Steichen the Photographer,' the printer has not. The reproductions that go to make up the body of the volume are excellent copy-work." Paul Rosenfeld

— + New Repub 61:251 Ja 22 '30 1850w

"The striking portraits of J. Pierpont Morgan and H. L. Mencken appear in the selection, while popular entertainers—Gloria Swanson, Lillian Gish, Gertrude Lawrence, Ruth Draper, Greta Garbo, Charlie Chaplin, Paul Robeson and others—are represented with penetrating insight. Charming and unusual flower and fruit studies are interspersed with effective advertising subjects and 'theme' pictures; also some clever modernist riddles. The text has been written by Carl Sandburg, who throws together an interesting narrative, which is, however, inclined to be noisy, and does not hesitate, on occasion, to play blind man's buff with the English language." E. A. Jewell

+ — N Y Times p16 Ja 19 '30 200w

Reviewed by Harry Hansen

N Y World p5 N 26 '29 950w

St Louis 28:302 D '30

Reviewed by M. B. Smith

Sat R of Lit 6:714 F 8 '30 400w

SANDERS, GERALD DE WITT. Elizabeth Gaskell; with a bibl. by Clark S. Northup. (Cornell studies in English) 267p $3.50 Yale univ. press [16s Oxford]

B or 92 Gaskell, Mrs Elizabeth Cleghorn (Stevenson) 30-134

"The volume contains a chronology of Mrs. Gaskell's life and writings, a study of her work and a bibliography covering collective editions, single works, undated editions and biography and criticism, arranged chronologically by years under each section. Includes also a ten-page 'note on Mrs. Gaskell's use of dialect.' "—Cleveland Open Shelf

Cleveland Open Shelf p61 Ap '30

"This book is an excellent example of the depths to which professional American scholarship can fall. It fills all the requirements of method without exhibiting any intellectual distinction except perseverance. Footnotes, bibliographies, and indexes are in perfect order; chronology and punctuation are faultless. With the tireless patience of a typical degree-getter Mr. Sanders has arranged a mass of biographical and explanatory facts under convenient headings and called it a day, or, to be exact, a study of Mrs. Gaskell's works. Yet 'The Life of Charlotte Brontë' is dismissed with some gossipy anecdotes. There is no attempt made to discuss its merits or to relate it to the history of English biography."

— Nation 130:401 Ap 2 '30 150w

Reviewed by Sylva Norman

Nation and Ath 47:250 My 24 '30 80w

"For giving the best account of available biographical details, Professor Sanders deserves praise, as does Professor Northup for an exhaustive bibliography. Professor Sanders, acknowledging the handicap imposed on him by Mrs. Gaskell's injunction against a 'Life,' submits his work not as a biography, but as a study of the works, and as such its shortcomings are patent. By the cautious pedestrianism of his approach, he minimizes the historical value of the novels, particularly of a comparative social analysis like 'North and South.' Except for a few brief essays like May Sinclair's and Marjorie Bald's, and M. Cazamian's, Professor Sanders gives the best account thus far of a neglected novelist. But at best it must be a stop-gap until a study worthy of Mrs. Gaskell's importance as artist and humanitarian eventually appears." M. D. Zabel

— + New Repub 61:333 F 12 '30 420w

Pratt p35 autumn '30

St Louis 28:148 My '30

SANDERS, THOMAS HENRY. Industrial accounting; control of industry through costs. 371p $4 McGraw

657 Cost accounting 29-18043

"Professor Sanders has analyzed very ably the present-day cost accounting devices and objectives. The uses and the problems of cost accounting, rather than the practices and the procedures involved in the accumulation of cost data, are stressed. It is not to be inferred that the latter are ignored—they are merely subordinated. This is in decided contrast to many textbooks on cost accounting which emphasize the mechanical aspect of the subject to the neglect of other important phases."—Ann Am Acad

"Professor Sanders shows a keen appreciation of the uses and the problems of cost accounting, and has presented his subject in a thought-provoking manner. Cost accounting is not emphasized as a system of accounting, but as an analytical study made for the purpose of eliminating inefficiencies and variations, that thereby business might be better controlled by more precise and more profitable procedures of purchasing, of operating, and of marketing the output." J. Lockwood

+ Ann Am Acad 150:311 Jl '30 450w

Booklist 26:148 Ja '30

Cleveland Open Shelf p68 My '30

Pratt p21 spring '30

St Louis 28:10 Ja '30

SANDERSON, CLARENCE HERBERT, ed. Electric system handbook. 1167p il $5 McGraw

621.3 Electric engineering 30-1246

"Describes generating stations, transmission, substations, distribution, protection of apparatus, inspection and maintenance of equipment, and other components of an electrical system. Higher mathematics are omitted and technical terms explained. For engineering students, operators, inspectors, maintenance men, and others."—Cleveland Open Shelf

Booklist 26:302 My '30

SANDERSON, C. H., ed—Continued
Cleveland Open Shelf p35 Mr '30
N Y New Tech Bks 15:18 Ap '30
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:39 My '30
Pratt p17 summer '30
St Louis 28:100 Ap '30

SANDS, WILLIAM FRANKLIN. Undiplomatic memories. 238p il $3 Whittlesey house

915.19 Korea—Foreign relations. Korea—Social life and customs 30-30008

An American diplomat, who has also served as personal advisor to the emperor of Korea, describes the situation in Korea immediately preceding the Russo-Japanese war, and tells how he tried, almost single-handed, to avert the disaster he foresaw for Korea.

"Here, under a sugar coating, is the best textbook on the practical diplomacy of imperialism that has appeared in years, which throws a good many incidental sidelights on other kinds of diplomacy as well. . . There are passages of exquisitely sensitive appreciation of scenery, of atmosphere, of the spirit of remote and strange civilizations; but back of it all is a cool, clear-headed account of the practices that have caused more than one disastrous war already and may cause still more unless circumstances or common sense put an end to them." Elmer Davis
+ Books p2 N 30 '30 1600w

"His book is somewhat prolix; at times the author seems not to see himself in quite the right perspective, in relation to his co-workers, his opponents and the great nations into whose web of intrigue he was drawn. Nevertheless, the bulk of his book is full of interest, and the nature of the post which he held in Korea was so extraordinary and everything he did so unconventional that the reader loses sight of minor blemishes." T. R. Ybarra
+ — N Y Times p11 D 7 '30 900w

Reviewed by W. B. Shaw
R of Rs 82:12 D '30 180w

SANFORD, ANNE P., comp. and ed. Plays for graduation days; with a pref. by Percival Wilde. 322p $2.50 Dodd

812.08 Children's plays 30-8626

Thirteen short plays suitable for grammar schools and junior high schools. Contents: Mister Punch, by Colin Clements; At the milestone, by Josephine Thorpe; Graduation gifts, by Margaret Parsons; Light triumphant, by Georgia Stenger; May madness, by Bonnie Gilbert; A better mouse trap, by Marion Holbrook; The perfect pattern, by Ethel Van der Veer; The last voyage of Odysseus, by P. B. Corneau; Beloved, it is morn, by A. C. Rowell; The willow plate, by Florence Ryerson; The sanctuary knocker, by A. J. Walker; Shakespeare, the playmaker, written in collaboration by twenty students of the University of North Dakota; The inn of discontent, by Percival Wilde.

Booklist 26:306 My '30

"This is the best collection thus far made by Miss Sanford. One really noteworthy selection, 'Shakespeare, the Playmaker,' presents a vivid picture of the Elizabethan days, with a very human Shakespeare gathering the material for his plays from the touch-and-go of the life about him. Although more of a pageant than a play, it has sufficient form and style to render it interesting, even from the reader's standpoint." Jane Dransfield
+ Sat R of Lit 6:1019 My 3 '30 200w

SANFORD, ANNE P., and SCHAUFFLER, ROBERT HAVEN, comps. and eds. Little plays for little people; with an introd. by Edward Sheldon. 361p $2.50 Dodd

793 Children's plays. Holidays 29-20547

A book of plays for younger children. There are five for Lincoln's birthday; one each for St Valentine's day, St Patrick's day, Flag day, Music week, Halloween, and Armistice day; two for May day; three each for Safety week, Child health week, and Children's book week; and five for Christmas.

Booklist 26:167 Ja '30

"Schools and groups desiring to give a play on such occasions will find this collection helpful. It should be stated, however, that very few of these little plays have any intrinsic or permanent value. They provide opportunity for children to act along propagandist or commemorative lines, but little more." Jane Dransfield
+ — Sat R of Lit 6:574 D 14 '29 350w
Wis Lib Bul 25:374 N '29

SANFORD, ANNE P., and SCHAUFFLER, ROBERT HAVEN, eds. Magic of books; an anthology for Book week. (Our Am. holidays) 424p $2 Dodd

808.8 Books and reading 29-20685

"An anthology for use in connection with Book week, consisting of the best prose and verse on the fun of books, how to read, the story of paper and printing, the use and enjoyment of libraries, and what books can do for us. With fiction, drama, pageantry, projects and programs for Book week observance."—Subtitle

Booklist 26:112 D '29
Reviewed by B. R. Redman
Books p12 My 25 '30 80w
Christian Century 46:1580 D 18 '29 20w
Cleveland Open Shelf p4 Ja '30
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 34:88 D '29
Pratt p30 spring '30
St Louis 28:3 Ja '30
Sat R of Lit 6:540 D 7 '29 200w
Wis Lib Bul 26:368 N '29

SANTAYANA, GEORGE. Realm of matter. (Realms of being) 209p $3.50 Scribner [12s Constable]

191 Philosophy. Matter 30-27103

"This is the second volume in the series, The Realms of Being. The first volume was entitled 'The Realm of Essence' (Book Review Digest, 1928). In the second volume, 'The Realm of Matter,' Santayana comes to grip with the actual, cause-and-effect world—the realm of matter—an encounter that has wrecked many an æsthetic philosophy. Santayana's philosophy is not submerged, and, in his famous poetical prose, he reveals the terms upon which our imaginative life can flourish by the side of the inevitable material compulsions."—Publisher's note

Booklist 27:187 Ja '31

"I am not sure how far this profoundest and most original of living philosophers is himself freed from the illusions that he rejects. These illusions I have called elsewhere compensating ideals. . . Like other compensatory labels they are designated by what they deny, not by what they affirm. They express the aversions of Mr. Santayana's spirit, not its desires. But whether they do or not, they are endowed by the deliverances of this spirit with such a glamorous beauty as never was on sea or land, so that if they are nothing, nothing is made to seem the loveliest and most desirable thing that is." H. M. Kallen
+ — Books p2 O 5 '30 1350w
+ Boston Transcript p3 O 22 '30 650w

"In the present (and concluding) volume, 'The Realm of Matter,' Mr. Santayana comes back to more tangible concerns, and I find him far more convincing and delightful. Not, to be sure, that I read the book without moments of irritation. There is about it that same odd medieval atmosphere, the results, in part, of what sometimes seems an intentionally archaic diction, and in part of a delight in dialectic for its own sake, resembling the joy that a Persian rugmaker might derive from weaving his intricate design. . . Mr. Santayana is so richly gifted that all such vagaries, in the end, are almost forgotten beside the fundamental honesty of his thinking, his penetration, ironic wit, brilliant imagery, and a rhythmic prose that makes even the subtlest argument also a melody. He seems to me more delightful when he is attacking someone else's ideas than when he is directly expounding his own, and my favorite chapters in the present volume are those in which he undermines the pretensions of teleology and uncovers the latent materialism of idealists." Henry Hazlitt

+ — Nation 131:407 O 15 '30 1300w

Reviewed by James Thornton

Nation and Ath 48:300 N 29 '30 650w

Reviewed by J. C. Ransom

New Repub 64:262 O 22 '30 1650w

New Statesman 35:416 Jl 5 '30 380w

"In 'The Realm of Matter' Santayana shows to advantage as a subtle critic of philosophic thought. He is expert, for example, in detecting the materialism latent in idealism. But how much more than a subtle critic is he? A very respectable synthetic philosopher, this is indubitable, but certainly not a genius. Indeed, robbed of the language with which he embellishes his conclusions, he often seems commonplace, and not profoundly commonplace either." G. B. Munson

+ — N Y Evening Post p4d O 4 '30 550w

"Throughout the volume imposes itself on the reader as the product of one of the most sensitive and imaginative, the most civilized minds of the present age, occupied with the profoundest problems and secrets of reality Whatever the doctrinal discrepancies involved, the living tissue of great thinking is worth all the fragmentary, skeletally pedantic accuracies in the world. The pages of 'The Realm of Matter' are filled with rugged life, woven consummately into language." Axton Clarke

+ N Y Times p2 O 5 '30 1850w

St Louis 28:287 D '30

"The public should pay attention to what Mr. Santayana has to say, for although, philosophically, he is a naturalist, he finds a place for art and religion as well as for science; for thought and contemplation as well as for action." J. G. Hardwick

Sat R 150:291 S 6 '30 500w

Reviewed by John Pilley

Spec 145:sup459 O 4 '30 1100w

"Inevitably, in a scheme so rounded, so deliberately unrolled, the reader's attention turns more and more to the style and handling of the thought; and his reward is unfailing. Mr. Santayana is a master of exposition, and not that only. He so completely possesses his thought that the expression of it provokes its appropriate decorations; he draws the decisive lines with architectural precision and then allows a sculptor's fancy to play spontaneously about them. The result is a kind of writing which charms those whom it least convinces, and convinces many by its mere charm."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p588 Jl 17 '30 1800w

SANZARA, RAHEL. Lost child; tr. from the German by Winifred Katzin. 359p $2.50 Longmans [7s 6d Gollancz] [29-22338]

For descriptive note see Annual for 1929.

"A distinctly unpleasant, neurotic novel done in the modern German manner."

— Cath World 130:507 Ja '30

Cleveland Open Shelf p14 Ja '30

"The story is well told and is full of genuine feeling, but the burden of exaggerated romance and mysticism palls."

+ — Nation 130:132 Ja 29 '30 160w

Reviewed by L. L. Irvine

Nation and Ath 46:580 Ja 25 '30 550w

"The book consists of a simple, rather dreadful situation overloaded almost to extinction by undisciplined development. Imagine what Maupassant would have made of this in a dozen pages or so! Rahel Sanzara drags it out into a relatively long novel and shockingly deadens its poignancy." E. S.

— New Statesman 34:573 F 8 '30 170w

Reviewed by L. P. Hartley

Sat R 149:84 Ja 18 '30 750w

"The piecing together of motive and event is done in a masterly and subtle manner that is entirely satisfying, and there are passages of power and great beauty. But the Lost Child is fundamentally a second-rate piece of work. It is something much better than melodrama, for there is nothing harsh or crude about it, but every word throbs with what is frequently an undue emotional significance." V. S. Pritchett

— + Spec 144:172 F 1 '30 550w

"In the light of psychiatry and modern therapy this book has significance. . . Such a book, apart from poetic truth, stimulates thought." Halle Schaffner

+ Survey 63:597 F 15 '30 300w

"This is a puzzling novel, as remarkable for its imaginative freedom as it is embarrassing for its naive and irrational characterization. The extraordinary thing, however, is that the entire book bears the impress of an alert, intuitive mind and an unusually vivid sensibility. The pseudonymous author, in spite of the extravagant vagaries of her creatures, knows a good deal about them in their more normal moods; she enters into their everyday feelings with ease and with marked feminine perception. She writes, moreover, very well indeed."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p72 Ja 30 '30 400w

SAPPER, pseud. See McNeile, H. C.

SASSOON, SIEGFRIED LORRAINE. Memoirs of an infantry officer. 322p $2.50 Coward-McCann [7s 6d Faber]

European war, 1914-1918—Personal narratives 30-25630

Siegfried Sassoon, English gentleman and poet, writes the story of his war experiences in the nervously sensitive and wholly charming prose that distinguished his Memoirs of a Fox-hunting Man. The two volumes form a continuous narrative.

"I am frank to say that my respectful but tepid interest in Memoirs of a Fox-Hunting Man has given place to a warm liking for the second. It is so easy to identify one's self with Second Lieutenant Sherston, and the phases through which he passed. Either in reality or in mind every veteran touched on these experiences and will know them for the truth." Edward Weeks

+ Atlantic Bookshelf p52 D '30 280w

Booklist 27:151 D '30

Reviewed by R. P. Bond

Bookm 72:311 N '30 300w

"Speaking in the first person for George Sherston (and we are assured that the name of the author might properly be substituted for that of his hero), Sassoon speaks for a class that has remained largely inarticulate on the subject of the war. And it is this that sets his book apart from almost all the others already in the field. He writes neither as a poet nor as a man of letters, neither as a romantic apologist of war nor as a disillusioned idealist, but simply as one whose fox-hunting, racing, cricketing life has been momentarily interrupted by a command that he assist in keeping the world safe for those cherished activities." B. R. Redman

+ Books p3 S 28 '30 1050w

Cleveland Open Shelf p157 D '30

"A country gentleman takes time between bomb-throwing to note the changes in the seasons, to identify the birds and flowers, to watch the sky for portents about the weather, to read, to think a great deal about Kent and Sussex, even to hunt when the occasion arose. The result is a book about the war depending for its quality on none of the essentials which most of the recent war books emphasize. . . . Sassoon's detachment, together with his acuteness as a poet, gives his book an unusual, composite unity." Florence Codman

SASSOON, S. L.—Continued
+ Nation 131:412 O 15 '30 450w

"The genius of Mr. Sassoon lies in his mastery of simple statement whether it concerns fact or emotion. He can write fine prose as few poets have been able to do, and whatever may be thought of the subject matter of his new book there can be no question that it will command respect as a personal record expressed in classic purity of style. . . There have been other war books which will live for their revelation of the subaltern's mind, but because this reveals the workings of a singularly sensitive consciousness it must rank amongst the best of them." J. B. S. Bennett
+ Nation and Ath 47:766 S 20 '30 800w

Reviewed by T. S. Matthews
New Repub 64:263 O 22 '30 1050w

"In this book we have a document of intense and sensitive humanity. It is introspective, sometimes almost self-conscious, but always pertinent to the time and place of every recorded incident."
+ New Statesman 35:737 S 20 '30 1400w
N Y Times p5 O 12 '30 900w

"The highly melodramatic note is missing in this book; no one will ever describe it as 'stark.' There is a saneness about it that convinces; the author has his material well in hand. Built up, no doubt, out of Sassoon's personal memories, it puts before us the dilemma of the intellectual, but the intellectual who understands his fellow men, who does not consider himself above them. Memoirs of an Infantry Officer has the additional advantage of being well written." Harry Hansen
+ N Y World p9 O 4 '30 650w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:80 N '30

"As the lovely chapters unfold, as the quiet scenes out of England's enviable and highly parochial life are laid before us, a death-bell is ringing, and in the final pages when, with equal sobriety but with a heavy accent of despair, we are led to the training camp and finally into the stark confusion of the trenches, that knell is sounding the fall of doom. The chief value of these beautiful and rather sombre Memoirs is that they convey, with extreme poignancy and almost too unrelieved candor, a sense of the tragic frustration which certain forces are constantly devising for the humiliation and defeat of youth." M. D. Z.
+ Poetry 34:288 Ag '29 550w

Reviewed by W. B. Shaw
R of Rs 82:14 N '30 80w

"It will not disappoint, even though it may not entirely fulfil, the high expectations of it aroused by the author's poems and by his previous 'Memoirs of a Fox-Hunting Man.' As in the earlier volume, Mr. Sassoon maintains the fiction of fiction, that is, his hero is very transparently himself, but by the device of calling his story a novel and the narrator second lieutenant Sherston, he gives himself a certain latitude both in the narration of events and in the psychological reaction to them of a particular type of character which everybody knows is the poet Siegfried Sassoon, though it may at times be a Sassoon raised to the nth degree." Stanley Went
+ Sat R of Lit 7:154 S 27 '30 900w

"Mr. Sassoon, being at once hero, pacifist and poet, has written a very good book; indeed, it is a great one in its self-revelation, sincerity and common sense." F. Y.-B.
+ Spec 145:sup461 O 4 '30 380w
Springf'd Republican p7e O 10 '30 1050w

Reviewed by Leon Whipple
Survey 65:283 D 1 '30 200w

"The total effect, like that of Mr. Sassoon's previous 'Memoirs,' is one of music and colour; the news of the past comes to us from the book like the sound of bells on a light breeze over autumn orchards, often surprisingly clear, then interrupted with a dimness not less natural."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p731 S 18 '30 1000w

SAUNDERS, CATHARINE. Vergil's primitive ^{2} Italy. 226p $3 Oxford
873.1 Virgil (Publius Virgilius Maro). Rome—Description. Italy—Antiquities 30-32406

"This monograph, by the Professor of Latin in Vassar College, was begun in 1925 at the American Academy in Rome; its object is to test the accuracy of Virgil's picture of primitive Italy by the results of archaeological exploration and by the testimony of ancient literature. It falls into several sections, topographical and other, a large part being devoted to the realien of the Aeneid (warriors' equipment and the like), while a chapter has been incorporated from another source on the composition of Book III, and the relation of that book to the whole poem."—Times [London] Lit Sup

"Professor Saunders has done a very useful piece of work in pointing out what is actually known of that very ancient Italy and in showing what the poet did by way of visualizing it. The work has long been needed, but it is only recently that excavations have progressed to the point of making the attempt possible. She knows Vergil thoroughly and has studied the sites and objects with equal thoroughness. Her conclusions are soundly based and stated with scholarly reserve." Tenney Frank
+ Nation 131:626 D 3 '30 1100w
Times [London] Lit Sup p1016 N 27 '30 320w

SAUNDERS, CHARLES FRANCIS, and O'SULLIVAN, FATHER ST JOHN. Capistrano nights; tales of a California mission town. 202p il $2.50 McBride
917.94 San Juan Capistrano mission. California—Missions. Legends—California 30-11374

"The tales, anecdotes, incidents, sayings, folk-stories, and legends were collected by Father O'Sullivan, told by him to Mr Saunders, on numerous Capistrano nights at the mission, and reproduced by the latter from the padre's telling and notebooks."—Springf'd Republican

Booklist 27:100 N '30
Bookm 72:xv N '30 50w

"These stories form a collection as valuable as Americana as they are interesting." F. B.
+ Boston Transcript p1 Je 21 '30 500w
Cleveland Open Shelf p102 Jl '30

"Mr. Saunders and Father O'Sullivan have completed a gracious task in their patient winnowing of the numerous adventures of the folk of the old Franciscan Mission. The results are an example of 'multum in parvo,' representing as they do half a century of the beliefs of a village whose salient charm is its naïveté."
+ N Y Times p8 My 25 '30 380w

"It is a slight book, but not without interest as narrative, and, we should suppose, of real value as history. Many of the anecdotes are brief and some are lacking in the point and climax which make for exciting reading, but gradually they unfold a picture of a charming, simple people and of old ways of life that were rooted in that age of faith which had its perfect flowering in Spain and wherever the Spaniard went. This is a good book for all lovers of California, for all who intend to visit the old missions, and for all collectors of American folklore."
+ N Y World p11m My 11 '30 280w

"This is one of those books that just misses being noteworthy; it misses, perhaps, by the margin of sentiment verging too close on sentimentality which cloys every reference to the California Missions. The book is not without value, since the Spanish versions of local Indian tales are almost all that are preserved to us of the aboriginal culture that the Missions so ruthlessly destroyed. It is precisely the sort of book that people who like to moon about the Missions will love to read aloud to one another."

— + Sat R of Lit 6:1131 Je 14 '30 250w

"They have the freshness, naivete, and ingenuous human quality one would expect in tales of an old Spanish mission and its simple Indian folk. The book is attractively illustrated."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Je 1 '30 100w

SAUNDERS, HILARY AIDAN ST GEORGE. See Beeding, F., pseud.

SAUNDERS, LAWRENCE. Smoke screen. 279p
^{2} $2 Sears

30-14885

"A society girl in Texas, tired of teas and dances, turns reporter and stumbles on a double murder in an old house that is fired to cover up the trail of a gang leader. Being sister to the District Attorney, she is able to beat the other papers with her information. But aside from that, the girl is clever and intuitively uncovers clues that are overlooked by the police."—Bookm

"A corking good mystery told in a thoroughly logical manner, with an intimate picture of newspaper reporters and their methods of collecting news for their precious front pages."

+ Bookm 71:xvi Jl '30 120w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Books p12 Ja 29 '30 80w

A swift, dramatic story of newspaper sleuthing."

+ N Y Times p17 Je 15 '30 200w

SAUNDERSON, HENRY HALLAM. Puritan
^{2} principles and American ideals. 255p $2 Pilgrim press

974.4 Puritans. United States—Civilization

30-12287

"This book is one among the rather long list of recent volumes which have come out of the celebration of the Massachusetts tercentenary, and the deliberate aim of the author is to defend the Puritans against those in our time who misrepresent and deliberately or ignorantly malign them. . . The persecution of Quakers and Baptists, the banishment of Roger Williams and Anne Hutchinson, and the hanging of the witches are made to appear not only justifiable, but indeed the only reasonable things to do under the circumstances."—Christian Century

"The interpretation is sympathetic, well thought out, and very suggestive. It takes a large sense of the term Puritan, goes behind the surface incidents and gets back to this real impulse and purpose. The book has a permanent value as a real interpretation and it is also a timely contribution to Massachusetts Tercentenary celebration." T. C. Richards

+ Boston Transcript p2 My 10 '30 1500w

"To the mind of this reviewer the author would have served his end to far better purpose if he could have found a few slight flaws in the founders of the Massachusetts Bay colony. To quote the words of a reviewer of another book, 'this book would have been much stronger if it had not been quite so strong.' And yet the book is interestingly written, in an easy, flowing style and contains much valuable material, attractively presented." W. W. Sweet

— + Christian Century 47:1089 S 10 '30 750w

"A New England author, proud of his New England heritage, writing on New England origins for popular consumption and therefore in many of his statements and conclusions wholly unreliable. . . The book, it must be admitted, is well written but there is just sufficient truth in it to make it dangerous reading from the historical standpoint." R. E. E. Harkness

— Crozer Q 7:401 Jl '30 520w

"The background of the Puritans in the life of Europe, the motives which led them to seek out a home in the New World, and the ideals which actuated them in their new life, are carefully described. Every one who thinks of the Puritan as an intolerant bigot, eschewing all pleasure except the delight of torturing witches and dissenters, would do well to reorient his thinking by reading this book." E. B. Chaffee

+ Outlook 156:190 O 1 '30 150w

SAURAT, DENIS. Literature and occult tradi-
^{2} tion; studies in philosophical poetry; tr. from the French by D. Bolton. 246p $4 Dial press [12s 6d Bell, G.]

801 Poetry. Occult sciences

"In his previous book on Milton, Professor Saurat pointed out the influence of Hermes Trismegistus and of the Cabbala on 'Paradise Lost,' and in his study of Blake, showed how the poetry of the Swedenborgian stemmed from the same sources. In his present book, Professor Saurat discusses the theory of philosophical poetry in general, its basic ideas, its psychological basis, its function, and specifically, the chief sources of the great body of philosophical poetry of the Western World since the Renaissance. A final chapter is devoted to a study of the philosophical ideas of Spenser's poetry."—N Y Evening Post

Boston Transcript p3 D 31 '30 700w

Reviewed by James Thornton

Nation and Ath 48:197 N 8 '30 550w

"As so often happens, the generalisations of the author are less valuable than the detailed study of a particular work in the light of his theories. The first part of his book enunciates some very doubtful propositions. . . There is much to reprobate in generalisations in criticism, though it is a method dear to all professors. Professor Saurat has a great deal of interest to say regarding the influence of the Cabala and the Hermes Trismegistus on Milton and other modern poets, and he reinforces his argument with many interesting quotations from the Zohar."

+ — New Statesman 36:339 D 20 '30 850w

"Professor Saurat's book, if it does nothing more, gives us a common background of tradition for the works of such diverse poets as Spenser, Milton, Blake, Shelley, Emerson and Whitman; Goethe, Heine, Wagner and Nietzsche; Hugo, Vigny, Lamartine and Leconte de Lisle." Edwin Seaver

+ N Y Evening Post p4d D 20 '30 250w

"The initial disappointment which is awakened in us at the threshold of Professor Saurat's book is not removed by the subsequent chapters. The author's approach to philosophical poetry appears to be purely external; and his conception of a poet sadly in need of enrichment by more imaginative understanding."

— Times [London] Lit Sup p1012 N 27 '30 1000w

SAVAGE, JUANITA. City of desire. 310p $2 Dial press

30-4240

Nora Warwick, a beautiful English girl, went to Central America to find her father, an archeologist who had been reported lost on an expedition. She discovers by accident the entrance to a wonderful underground Mayan city, ruled over by a young white man who calls himself El Rey. Her romance with El Rey, the rivalry of Dennis O'Mara, who is in love with her, and the discovery of her father in the guise of a high priest, occupy the rest of the story.

Books p14 My 18 '30 100w

N Y Times p19 Ap 13 '30 130w

"Action alone excuses the glaring lack of literary merit."

— + Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 27 '30 100w

SAVERY, CONSTANCE. Tenthragon (Eng title: Forbidden doors). 314p $1.50 King, A.H. [7s 6d Harrap]
30-19830

"Patric Tenthragon, at the age of seven, returns from living with a clergyman's family to his uncle Brendon at Thragoness, a forbidding house divided into two parts connected by massive doors through which the child is forbidden ever to pass. In that Other Thragoness lives Brendon's brother Hugh, deformed in both body and mind, who by chance gets the boy into his power to frighten and torment him. It is from this first point of contact with Hugh that the familiar diminishing process begins. Hugh turns out a very successful ogre; if he lacks a little the true heart of gold it is not that there is natural evil in him, but only a tortured brain in a distorted body."—Times [London] Lit Sup

Reviewed by Guy Holt
Bookm 71:238 Ap '30 380w

Boston Transcript p3 Ap 12 '30 200w

Reviewed by Edwin Seaver
N Y Evening Post p11m F 15 '30 70w

"Though it is a pleasure to read a book so unusual in its content, Constance Savery's first novel does not wholly satisfy the interest the opening of her book arouses. While reading it there is a feeling of disappointment; the horrors, through constant repetition, lose their significance, and the style, lacking the vitality which such a book demands, is often strained and heavy."
— + N Y Times p25 F 23 '30 500w

"The treatment and actual writing are scarcely adequate, the attempt to achieve an effect of slightly eerie fantasy resulting simply in that of a doubtful reality. Even fantasy calls for more than imaginative charm; not less than the most realistic fiction, it demands a regard for absolute psychological probability."
— Times [London] Lit Sup p561 Jl 11 '29 180w

SAXON, LYLE. Lafitte the pirate. 307p il $5 Century

B or 92 Lafitte, Jean 30-30335

The biography of Jean Lafitte, blacksmith of New Orleans and gentleman pirate. With his brother Pierre he was the leader of a gang of outlaws and smugglers, who gave able assistance to the government in the War of 1812, and as a reward both the Lafittes and their followers earned political forgiveness. The book is based on contemporary letters, documents and newspapers.

Booklist 27:205 Ja '31

Bookm 72:v D '30 100w

"It is a happy piece of business that Mr. Saxon has chosen to write of LaFitte, for that French blacksmith turned pirate could not long have escaped the attention of biographers, and the job might have been attempted by a less skilled hand. Mr. Saxon knows the Gulf country both as a specialized student and as a dweller there. Then, too, his writings have an air of being done without strain or effort, the result of a good and profound delight in his work. . . Those who are not interested in history or in the literature of rascality will have their money's worth if they get the book because of the delicate illustrations by Mr. Suydam. There is personality in them. They show a fine, free touch and admirable powers of selection." C. J. Finger
+ Books p3 N 9 '30 800w

Cleveland Open Shelf p157 D '30

"In going through the legends and staying close to an understandable reality Lyle Saxon has created a character; a pirate who is neither a monster nor a polished gentleman but rather a clever and unscrupulous man engaged with great thoroughness in an illicit occupation. . . The real charm of the book, however, is neither in its characters nor its form but rather in the amusing accounts of New Orleans society of that period." Robert Cantwell
+ N Y Evening Post p5d D 20 '30 680w

"A biography that will bring a vast amount of satisfaction to all who are familiar with this romantic brigand of the last century and a pleasurable thrill to those who will meet him for the first time in these pages. Rarely does an author do so well by the character he has chosen to re-create. Not only does Mr. Saxon show a thorough familiarity with the facts of Lafitte's remarkable career, but what is equally important he recaptures the feel and the atmosphere of the era in which Lafitte moves." R. C. Feld
+ N Y Times p7 N 30 '30 1350w

"'Lafitte the Pirate' commends itself because the piracy in it is not overdone. Saxon, who has been making the romantic past of the Louisiana delta his theme, has become the objective biographer in this book. Saxon is content to let the documents paint his portrait. This is exciting enough without dragging in all the legends built up around this corsair." Harry Hansen
+ N Y World p11 O 31 '30 250w

"The book is written in a spirited and readable fashion and is illustrated with the delightful drawings of E. H. Suydam."
+ Outlook 156:549 D 3 '30 150w

SAYERS, DOROTHY LEIGH (MRS ATHERTON FLEMING). Strong poison. 344p $2 Brewer [7s 6d Gollancz]
30-25805

Because Harriet Vane's lover died of arsenic poisoning, and because Harriet was writing a book on the subject of poisons, everybody—except Lord Peter Wimsey—was convinced of her guilt. Lord Peter, with the aid of the inimitable Miss Climpson, gets to work on the business of clearing Harriet, and, in his usual charming and witty fashion, actually succeeds.

Booklist 27:210 Ja '31

Bookm 72:xxii N '30 100w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p20 O 26 '30 420w

Boston Transcript p2 D 13 '30 100w

"The detective stories of Miss Sayers never fail to be both ingenious and amusing. Her great merit, for this reviewer, is that she knows How Everything is Done. None of the men and women in her books ever have to think twice about picking locks, opening envelopes while keeping the seals intact, or stealing wills from under the noses of their owners."
+ Sat R 150:453 O 11 '30 200w

"Here is unquestionably a shining star in the mystery story firmament and the best of all the Lord Peter Wimsey stories—until the next comes along." W. C. Weber
+ Sat R of Lit 7:478 D 20 '30 80w

Spec 145:741 N 15 '30 180w

"The end of the story is as ingenious as any solution could be."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p841 O 16 '30 230w

SAYLER, OLIVER MARTIN. Revolt in the
[2] arts; a survey of the creation, distribution and appreciation of art in America; with contributions by thirty-six representative authorities in the several arts. 351p $3.50 Brentano's

709.73 Art—United States. Theater—United States. Music—United States. American literature—History and criticism 30-29442

"What the book tackles is a general stocktaking of the state of all that goes by the name of art in America. The stocktaking involves two processes. First, Mr. Sayler in person surveys all the contents of the storehouse from the talkies to the latest skyscraper. Second, specialists more or less eminent in each of the arts, survey, assay, or comment, each dealing with his own specialty. These specialists range from Gamaliel Bradford, speaking for biography, to Jesse Lasky, representing 'art on a manufacturing basis'. . . The nub of matter with which Sayler's book deals—is that the machines of the twentieth century have created new arts of which the vulgar are the patrons on such a compelling scale that the new arts themselves must be vulgar to live. . . What Mr. Sayler calls 'revolt' is that movement in the older arts which is, in essence, acceptance of this situation—practical recognition of the facts of a changed economic system and a dislocated social order."—N Y Times

Bookm 72:433 D '30 1200w

"Mr. Sayler's 'Revolt' deals fully with the democratization of art in the later twenties. Its patent weakness lies in the author's evident conviction that you can make up in breadth for what you lack in precision and depth. . . The second half of 'Revolt in the Arts' is provided by an aggregation of hard working artists and motion picture actors and producers who appear to have been given the same general assignment. Their little essays range from nuggets of utter la-de-da nonsense and breathless esthetics to sagacious observations upon their own particular art in these times. There is a peppery piece by John Sloan, an extraordinarily competent discussion of contemporary music by Gershwin, a quaint bit by Belasco." F. H. Britten

+ — Books p5 D 28 '30 900w

"Mr. Sayler's newest volume is an undertaking so ambitious that ideal achievement is not to be expected even of this studious and indefatigable writer. . . Something must be said about the second part of the stocktaking—the reports of the specialists. Though many of the names are names which carry prodigious dead weight of authority or glitter with prestige, the total execution of the massed battery of heavy artillery and lighter guns is disappointing. The entire barrage accomplishes nothing like so much toward clearing the field of view as does Mr. Sayler's own broadside." H. I. Brock

+ — N Y Times p2 D 14 '30 1800w

"Mr. Sayler is full of interesting matter, but he ought to find out what art and revolt really mean." Leon Whipple

+ — Survey 65:395 Ja 1 '31 320w

SCAPINI, J. GEORGES. Challenge to darkness; [his] life story; tr. with an introd. by Helen Keller, and a foreword by Henri Gouraud. 173p $2 Doubleday, Doran

B or 92 European war, 1914-1918—Personal narratives. Blind 29-25760

The blind hero of France, who lost his sight in the war, tells the story of his experience, of how he overcame his handicap, studied law, was admitted to the bar, and elected to the Chamber of deputies.

Books p13 Mr 9 '30 100w

"Here is a simple story of boyish pranks and manly heroism well translated. . . Read this dramatic story by all means, and don't omit the introduction written by Helen Keller."

+ Boston Transcript p8 Ja 4 '30 280w

Cleveland Open Shelf p60 Ap '30

"It is a heroic tale, told with honesty and in a gay and gallant spirit. Helen Keller says of him in her introduction that he carries the burden of blindness 'as a soldier carries his knapsack—jauntily, with music and colors flying.' "

+ N Y Times p13 N 17 '29 320w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:30 Ap '30

SCARBOROUGH, KATHERINE. Homes of the ^{2} cavaliers. 392p il $5 Macmillan

917.52 Maryland—Historic houses, etc. Architecture, Domestic—United States. Architecture, Colonial 30-29654

"The houses built on the banks of Chesapeake Bay and its inflowing rivers by the aristocrats from overseas and their immediate descendants who settled that region and the lives they lived in these homes are the theme of this well-planned and capably carried-out book. While Miss Scarborough's account is comprehensive and detailed with regard to architectural plans and features and decorative matters, she gives to all this enlivening historical significance and human interest by weaving in the stories of the people who built the houses, descriptions of their manner of living, anecdotes about them and their descendants, the traditions and superstitions that have been handed down from generation to generation. Some fifty or more of these ancient homes are thus dealt with by Miss Scarborough."—N Y Times

"From an architectural point of view her work is interesting, minutely descriptive and excellently illustrated. But even more interesting are the histories of some of the houses. Miss Scarborough has done a careful and informative piece of work in a field which has been, from the point of view of the general reader, decidedly neglected." Margaret Wallace

+ Bookm 72:443 D '30 350w

Boston Transcript p6 D 10 '30 750w

"The book will have especial value for all who are interested in Colonial architecture, because it collects so many interesting examples of a type characteristic of a distinctive place, period and social purpose and treats them with careful detail. It will be almost equally interesting to students of the social history of early America, because the phase of life which it portrays was unique for that particular region. The narrative is written with regard always for the human interest that fills these ancient halls and the illustrations, of which there are a hundred or more, are beautifully reproduced from photographs. But the volume has a very serious defect in that it lacks an index."

+ — N Y Times p16 D 21 '30 380w

"It is an unpretentious piece of work, but not the less admirable therefore, and a very considerable amount of research (at least broad if not profound) has gone into its making. The architect will find presented within its pages not only the familiar houses of the Maryland shore, but also a very considerable number of houses, as, for example, 'Sotterley' and 'Havre de Ventures,' of whose existence he was only vaguely aware, together with sufficient data as to the date of construction and the principal pieces of architectural design still remaining to enable him to make up his mind whether it is worth while to go and see the house, and in many cases the photographs give him information not previously accessible."

+ Sat R of Lit 7:475 D 20 '30 450w

SCARLETT, ROGER, pseud. of EVELYN PAGE and DOROTHY BLAIR. Back Bay murders. 295p $1 Doubleday, Doran

30-23090

The murder of Prendergast, a neurotic young man, occurs in Mrs Quincy's refined boarding-house on Beacon Street. A white feather found on the body of the victim, and the behavior of Sheba, a blind man's cat, are the chief clues upon which Inspector Kane works. A second murder occurs before the mystery is solved.

Bookm 72:xxiv S '30 100w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Books p10 Ag 31 '30 100w

"Has a cleverly tangled plot, but neither the methods of the police detectives employed nor the explanation at which they arrive is very satisfactory." Dashiell Hammett

— + N Y Evening Post p5s S 6 '30 50w

Reviewed by W. C. Weber

Sat R of Lit 7:232 O 11 '30 100w

"Readers who like to be drawn off on false scents, made to suspect a number of entirely innocent people and finally receive a great shock upon learning the identity of the criminal, will be well satisfied with 'The Back Bay Murders.' The author does his work well in the main, but the manner in which he makes suspects start in violent surprise when certain information is given them—information which could scarcely have that effect if they were innocent—seems to be taking advantage of the reader in sending him off on a wild goose chase after the wrong man or woman."

SCARLETT, ROGER, pseud.—Continued
+ — Springf'd Republican p7e S 21 '30 180w

SCARLETT, ROGER, pseud. of EVELYN PAGE and DOROTHY BLAIR. Beacon Hill murders. 279p $2 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Heinemann]
30-7561

After a dinner party, where a nouveau riche dweller on Beacon Hill entertained a rather heterogeneous crowd, the host was murdered in the presence of the one society woman present. Circumstantial evidence pointed to the woman as the murderess. While the police guarded the room in which she was confined, she also was murdered. The solution of the mystery turns on a psychoanalytical principle.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p18 F 16 '30 100w
Boston Transcript p4 My 24 '30 260w

"It is a workmanlike, cleverly contrived story, devoid of frills and gaudy irrelevancies, straightforwardly told and logically evolved from the psychology of its characters." E. C. Beckwith
+ N Y World p11m F 9 '30 150w
Times [London] Lit Sup p841 O 16 '30 220w

SCHAFER, JOSEPH. Carl Schurz, militant liberal. (Wisconsin biography ser.) 270p il $2.25 State hist. soc. of Wis.
B or 92 Schurz, Carl 30-14059

This biography of Carl Schurz, by an old friend and admirer, traces chiefly his political career and his battle as a newspaper editor for reform measures. The author is superintendent of the State historical society of Wisconsin.

"The author aims only to tell his narrative in straight, intelligible, impartial style, without embellishment, and because he had admired Carl Schurz from boyhood as a family hero he has taken particular pains to make his biography objective and judicial. He achieves his purpose, although at the cost, perhaps, of dulling a little the brilliant and knightly figure he portrays."
+ N Y Times p18 Ag 10 '30 350w
Reviewed by W. B. Shaw
R of Rs 82:14 S '30 120w
St Louis 28:245 O '30

SCHAFFNER, JAKOB. Wisdom of love; tr. from the German. 379p $2.50 Coward-McCann [7s 6d Douglas]
30-4652

The story of the illicit love affair of Emil Felgentreu, a handsome man of forty, and his wife's attractive young niece, Alma. The jealousy of Alma's fiancé brings about a tragedy. The scene of the story is modern Berlin.

"The characters are drawn with remarkable clearness and understanding. The prevailing unpleasantness is relieved by the decency and uprightness of Meta, Emil's wife; and the book ends with a refreshing page or two that is like a breath of air in an unbearably stuffy room."
Bookm 71:xxvii Mr '30 90w

"A thoroughly uncomfortable novel whose implications only morticians, or such like, may be able to endure. But it really will not enlighten the candid reader about the thing called love. It will rather make him hurry to the nearest speakeasy and get drunk. And that's, of course, a performance not many novels succeed in inspiring."
— Books p10 Mr 23 '30 200w

"The characterization is excellent. The name of the translator does not appear, which seems unfair, for the English is remarkably clear and lucid, sometimes there are passages of great beauty. The story is realistic, but though there are times when it is sordid and dreary, there are also times when it is full of joy and light." G. B.
+ — Boston Transcript p4 Mr 29 '30 500w

"It is a story of seduction, but the least sophisticated reader need not fear, on Herr Schaffner's account, to lose a blush of his ingenuous bloom; as a moral disinfectant there is nothing to compare with the sterilising properties of bad art."
— New Statesman 34:637 F 22 '30 80w

"A satisfactory balance between light and shade, a careful, selective appreciation of exterior values and a slowly overpowering delineation of the inevitable conflict between love and life all contribute in making this novel an outstanding and worthy representative of an older school." Harmon Tupper
+ — N Y Evening Post p8s F 22 '30 700w

"The book, which is really a study of the abnormal psychology of a man with a sense of inferiority, is Lippke's, in spite of the predominance of the other characters. All are affected by him and owe their unhappiness to him. The author has succeeded admirably in portraying a most unadmirable character. There is sureness and strength in his brush strokes, and if the subject is an unpleasant one, that does not lessen the workmanship. The translator, who is not named, has done a poor job."
+ — N Y Times p6 F 16 '30 520w
Sat R of Lit 6:879 Mr 29 '30 170w

"A sentimental and rather nasty book. The book is better, but not much better, than the average story which is at once calculated to be 'a warning to young girls' and a 'best seller.' " V. S. Pritchett
— Spec 144:445 Mr 15 '30 120w

"It is painstaking and industrious, but it is also unnecessarily lengthy, rather absurdly ingenuous though this is due in part merely to the passage of time, and heavier in its sentimental emphasis than is at all comfortable. The novel is so burdened with long-winded explanations of things that are already quite plain and with domestic trivialities of every conceivable kind that the reading of it is apt to degenerate into a trial of patience."
— Times [London] Lit Sup p216 Mr 13 '30 200w

SCHAUFFLER, ROBERT HAVEN. Beethoven, the man who freed music. 2v 693p il $10 Doubleday, Doran
B or 92 Beethoven, Ludwig van 29-21494

For descriptive note see Annual for 1929.

Booklist 26:158 Ja '30

"Mr. Schauffler writes brightly, perhaps at times a little too brightly. He has something to say to both layman and professional musician and is carried along by genuine enthusiasm for his subject." H. R. Hays
+ — Bookm 70:677 F '30 270w
Reviewed by Peter Bowdoin
Books p17 F 2 '30 950w
Cleveland Open Shelf p52 Ap '30

"Despite controversial points Mr. Schauffler's book is valuable for precisely the reason that impelled him to write it: it gives a three-dimensional treatment of the man and his labors, and establishes between them a vital interrelation." Isaac Goldberg
+ — N Y World p10m Je 12 '30 800w
St Louis 28:18 Ja '30

SCHAUWECKER, FRANZ. Fiery way; tr. by Thonald Holland; with an introd. by John Brophy. 252p $2.50 Dutton [6s Dent]
940.48 European war, 1914-1918—Personal narratives 30-14891

A German war book giving the impressions and reactions of a sensitive, studious youth who attempts to live thru the war by reconciling its ghastliness with everyday life.

" 'The Fiery Way' will not be a popular book. It was not intended as such. The philosophical exposition of moods hampers the rush of the action. And only the careful reader will see how much is explained by what is left unsaid. More than that, it is a careful exposition of the peculiarly German mind and outlook during and after the war. From this viewpoint alone it is more than interesting reading." Eugene Lohrke

+ Books p4 Ap 20 '30 600w

"It is a little difficult to grasp the attitude of mind which dictated this somewhat dithyrambic exploration of experience. There is hatred in this book, hatred of the French, and a curious fury against the inhumanity of enemy guns, but no sense that German gunnery was necessarily as inhuman. Herr Schauwecker's book has emotion, but it is not quite of the healthy kind." Bonamy Dobrée

— Nation and Ath 46:462 D 28 '29 200w

Reviewed by L. C. Woodman

N Y Times p14 Je 15 '30 650w

Reviewed by L. P. Hartley

Sat R 149:24 Ja 4 '30 750w

"I found 'The Fiery Way' extremely interesting for the vivid impressionistic picture it gives both of the German war machine and of the whole machinery of war. In no war book that I recall is the thunder of artillery and the terror of shellfire more vividly portrayed. The first section, on the training of the German recruit, is also exceedingly well done." Stanley Went

+ Sat R of Lit 6:1105 Je 7 '30 200w

"His sketches of warfare are disconnected, but each is fairly complete in itself. He is a philosopher of a strongly nationalist mould, but intelligent and provocative of thought."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p7 Ja 2 '30 350w

SCHEIDEMANN, PHILIPP. Making of new Germany (Eng title: Memoirs of a social democrat); tr. by J. E. Michell. 2v 368;373p il $10 Appleton [42s Hodder]

B or 92 Germany—Politics and Government. Social democratic party (Germany) 29-22415

For descriptive note see Annual for 1929.

"As an account of the making of new Germany, they are disappointing; but as the lively memoirs of a man who was in the midst of the struggle, they are both illuminating and significant."

+ — Am Pol Sci R 24:219 F '30 250w

"The book is disappointingly dull until we reach, luckily before the middle of the first volume, the outbreak of the war. From that time on the memoirist, as the leading parliamentary figure of his party, is so immersed in great events that we breathlessly relive with him all the agitated years from 1914 to 1921, at which point he cuts off the epic tale. The contribution he is able to make to our knowledge of what happened behind the scenes in a number of grave German crises is invaluable." Ferdinand Schevill

+ — Ann Am Acad 148:294 Mr '30 520w

Booklist 26:202 F '30

Reviewed by H. E. Barnes

New Repub 61:305 F 5 '30 650w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:10 F '30

St Louis 28:52 F '30

"Scheidemann's two volumes contain much that is of importance, but it has comparatively little relation to 'the making of the new Germany.' It has the good qualities of autobiography, but it also has many of its bad qualities. It is a history of Scheidemann the individual rather than of his country or his times." H. K. Norton

+ — Sat R of Lit 6:736 F 15 '30 600w

Spec 144:59 Ja 11 '30 280w

Survey 64:323 Jl 1 '30 300w

Wis Lib Bul 25:412 D '29

Reviewed by Johannes Mattern

Yale R n s 20:205 autumn '30 220w

SCHELLING, FELIX EMMANUEL. Pedagogically speaking; essays and addresses on topics more or less educational. 169p $2 Press of the Univ. of Pa. [8s 6d Oxford]

370.4 Education—Addresses, essays, lectures 29-27925

Ten essays and addresses on educational and academic subjects, by the John Welch centennial professor of English of the University of Pennsylvania. Contents: Humanities, gone and to come; Ideals and the American university; Some values educational and other; The graduate school; Academic "rights and privileges"; At the crossroads; The American professor; The teacher of English; A batch of queries; The unity of the arts.

Boston Transcript p3 Ja 4 '30 480w

"Whether he is treating of the idea of a university, of the teacher of English, or of the need of a more thorough preparation for college, he is always the man with a cause, thoroughly alive, vitally exciting. . . 'Pedagogically Speaking' is a book that every instructor, in college or school, should be required to own and to read at least once a year." Dudley Fitts

+ Sat R of Lit 6:732 F 15 '30 330w

"As scholar and teacher Prof Schelling will be universally conceded a right to express his opinions with the candor with which they form themselves in his mind, even if most of his generalizations only reaffirm what we already know. His volume is a protest against the judging of educational values by material standards. In the conflict between utilitarianism and the humanities he allies himself defiantly with those who stand for liberal aims."

Springf'd Republican p8 Ja 25 '30 1650w

SCHERMERHORN, ELIZABETH W. Malta of the knights. 316p il $7.50 Houghton [25s Heinemann]

929.711 Malta, Knights of 30-12405

An historical reconstruction of the environment, daily life, ambition and ideals of the Knights hospitallers, of the order of St John of Jerusalem in Malta, where they checked the advance of Moslem in 1565. The study includes interesting sketches of the great Grand masters; La Valette, victor in the siege of Malta. L'Isle-Adam, hero of the siege of Rhodes, La Cassière, Verdalle, Carafa, and others.

Reviewed by W. I. Brandt

Am Hist R 36:191 O '30 450w

"With genuine but unobtrusive scholarship, Miss Schermerhorn has writen a most satisfying book on the Knights Hospitallers who at Malta nursed wounded Crusaders and fought the infidels for three centuries. The author has a talent for romantic writing and makes the most of it."

+ Bookm 71:vi Je '30 70w

Books p14 Ag 17 '30 150w

Boston Transcript p2 Je 4 '30 660w

"A solid contribution in popular style to the literature on the Knights Hospitalers. The author of Benjamin Constant and The Seven Strings of the Lyre brings to this new work not only sound scholarship and conscientious research, but a command of style, a valid historic sense, and, not the least, a sympathy and a discreet humor which make her book delightful reading as well as good history." R. M. P.

+ Cath World 132:243 N '30 420w

"Miss Schermerhorn's story of the Knights of St. John of Jerusalem during their reign in Malta from 1530 to 1798 is an essay in the historical picturesque. Real research has gone to the making of the book, and most of its facts are documented; but if, in the main, it is the truth and nothing but the truth we are told, it is not all the truth. The Knights and their institution, their professions and their practices, were, one feels, much less admirable than their present historian makes them out to be, not by falsifying the given facts, but by sudden and not unamusing reticences."

SCHERMERHORN, E. W.—Continued
+ — New Statesman 34:448 Ja 11 '30 500w

"Every lover of romance, every student of history will be grateful for this magnificently colored story, which illumines a whole period, a central region of the world, as a tall window of heraldic stained glass, suddenly flooded with sunshine, might light up what had seemed a dead wall." Charles Johnston
+ N Y Times p4 Ag 24 '30 1300w
Pratt p32 autumn '30

"Within its limitations the book is excellently written. The reader goes with the Knights through all the scenes of their domestic and military life—their food, dress, ceremonies, conversation, quarrels and duels, hopes and fears, pastimes and life in the galleys. The intimate, human side of the great Grand Masters is deftly sketched."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p1090 D 26 '29 1000w

SCHILLER, FERDINAND CANNING SCOTT. Logic for use; an introd. to the voluntarist theory of knowledge. 469p $4.75 Harcourt [16s Bell]

160 Logic [30-8919]

"The doctrine of Pragmatism was first publicly formulated by Charles Saunders Peirce over fifty years ago. Professor F. C. S. Schiller, formerly of Oxford, is the English representative of the Pragmatic school. Unlike most Pragmatists now, he will have none of Peirce. He defends what he takes to be the true Jamesian position. While Peirce believed in an attainable objective truth and had a keen appreciation of formal logic and mathematics, Schiller is in violent reaction to all intellectualists and formalists. He emphasizes the personal and subjective aspects of knowledge and understanding. He is anxious to strip away every pretension that formal logic has to objectivity, usefulness and truth, and to put in its place a voluntaristic logic."—New Repub

Reviewed by E. F. Mettrick
Int J Ethics 40:560 Jl '30 300w

Reviewed by Eleanor Bisbee
J Philos 27:439 Jl 31 '30 2300w

"Dr. Schiller has amplified his original views; he has expanded them with a wealth of illustration and to the accompaniment of much discomfiture of hostile critics, but he has not to any appreciable extent altered or even modified them. To the criticisms to which they have always been exposed, they are still exposed, and those who have regarded those criticisms as disabling in the past, will see little reason, after reading this latest book, to change their opinion." C. E. M. Joad
— Nation and Ath 46:645 F 8 '30 850w

"Schiller's claims, though ambitious, remain questionable and unfulfilled. His criticisms are a mixture of abuse, ad hominem arguments and an application of the formal logic to which he so violently objects. He thoroughly confounds theory with application, logic with psychology, activity with result and what ought to be with what is. Wit he has, and some originality, deftness and industry, but they hardly suffice to make one feel that the acceptance of Pragmatism is imperative" Paul Weiss
— New Repub 62:161 Mr 26 '30 700w

"Dr. Schiller, at any rate, continues without dismay on his path. If his keen combativeness is held a little more in hand, if the Puckish quality that used to tempt him sometimes into a vein of jesting a little below the dignity of his own thought is less apparent in this latest work, that is all to the good. Meanwhile, the lucidity and conciseness with which he expounds the toughest dialectical propositions are even more marked than in his earlier treatises."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p1016 D 5 '29 2200w

SCHLARMAN, JOSEPH H. From Quebec to
2 New Orleans; the story of the French in America: Fort de Chartres. 569p il $5 Buechler pub. co., 332 W. Main st, Belleville, Ill.

973.2 New France—Discovery and exploration. Canada—History—To 1763. Louisiana—History. Mississippi Valley—History. French in North America 30-6039

"The author takes a preliminary view of the earlier discoverers and explorers. But his real work begins with Champlain at Quebec and ends with the decisive capture of Vincennes by George Rogers Clark."—Canadian Hist R

Booklist 27:60 O '30

"This interesting work has the rather rare merit of being almost exactly what its title would lead an enquiring reader to expect. . . This very readable book may be strongly recommended as filling a real gap, of its own peculiar kind, and filling it very well indeed." William Wood
+ Canadian Hist R 11:154 Je '30 800w
St Louis 28:149 My '30

SCHMIDT, GEORGE PAUL. Old time college president. (Columbia univ. studies in hist., economics and public law) 251p $4 Columbia univ. press

378.73 Colleges and universities—United States. College presidents 30-9011

The subject of this study is the office and influence of the American college president during the hundred years from 1760 to 1860. Beginning with a survey of the development of the American college during this period the author considers the nature of the office of the president, his force as educator, administrator and scholar, and his influence in religion and politics.

"Although erudite enough, and excellently supplied with references, the book is very easy reading and will make a fascinating story for persons at all interested in origins in general, or in the growth of American colleges in particular, and even for many general readers." B. M. F.
+ Boston Transcript p3 My 3 '30 500w

"The author has evidently done a vast amount of research in the collection of his basic facts, for his book is copiously documented with footnote references and a fourteen-page list of the sources consulted. Evidently his delvings yielded rich results, for weaving them into the fabric of his study he has made it colorful and vital by constant citation of personalities, events, methods, customs, aims, results. From all this he generalizes, draws conclusions, makes comparisons with the present day."
+ N Y Times p30 Mr 23 '30 380w
Times [London] Lit Sup p878 O 30 '30 900w
World Tomorrow 13:476 N '30 80w

SCHMITT, BERNADOTTE EVERLY. Coming of the war, 1914. 2v 539;515p $10 (30s) Scribner

940.311 European war, 1914-1918—Causes. Europe—Politics 30-24836

This two-volume work, based on ten years of documentary study and interviews with specialists on the subject of the World war, takes up the immediate origins of the war, the background of the conflict, the crisis of July, 1914. an analysis of the military situation and its bearing on diplomatic negotiations, and the events following the Russian mobilization. It is Professor Schmitt's contention that the blame for the war rests upon the central powers.

"Not only is the book vitiated by the powerful and rigid biases of the author; it is also defective even in the details of technical scholarship." H. E. Barnes
— Ann Am Acad 152:411 N '30 480w

"Professor Schmitt's book is very complete and there is very little about the crisis of 1914 that cannot be found in these two volumes. His account of the entry of the lesser countries into the war is excellent and he has brought out in striking fashion some of the connections and relations of events that have never before been adequately stressed." W. L. Langer

+ Books p4 D 28 '30 2150w

Reviewed by Fred Merrifield
Christian Century 47:1452 N 26 '30 800w

Reviewed by W. J. Abbot
Christian Science Monitor p4 D 6 '30 350w

Reviewed by L. V. Updegraff
Current Hist 33:vi N '30 800w

Foreign Affairs 9:355 Ja '31 80w

"In the present reviewer's opinion, Professor Schmitt's prejudices are so strong as to render him unable to write impartial history. If space permitted, criticism would also be made of some of the sources to which he refers frequently. Yet in spite of the author's conspicuous departures from the usually accepted canons of historical criticism, there are many excellent points to his book: a great mass of material has been assembled, and the analysis of situations is sometimes very acute. It is a book which every specialist on war-origins must read with care." J. W. Swain

+ — Hist Outlook 21:390 D '30 2200w

"The author has performed his task with a degree of skill, subtlety, comprehensiveness, and erudition which must command the highest respect of all who have done scientific work in the field. The tragedy of June 23-August 5, 1914, is analyzed day by day and hour by hour on the basis of a familiarity with source materials which is unequaled by any other authority. Schmitt comes closer than any of his predecessors to a realization of the futility of the guilt-and-innocence dichotomy and of the importance of a full and fair treatment of the sequence of events. The surge of public opinion and the motives and logic of the militarists are treated almost as fully as the course of diplomatic action." F. L. Schuman

+ Nation 131:737 D 31 '30 480w

"Back in Cleveland in January, 1914, a youthful pedagogue valiantly joined cause with Lord Northcliffe in warning the world that Germany was about to spring like a tiger in the jungle upon a pacific and unsuspecting world. . . The present formidable work of a thousand pages in two volumes is the attempted vindication of this 1914 prediction of the prophet-historian. The volumes are not the result of an unbiased effort to find where the mountain of newly revealed facts lead us. It is the last frantic effort of the American leader of the Salvagers so to select, present and interpret these facts as to confirm his prophetic intuitions of pre-war vintage. . . Not a single major contention in this last and final effort of the 'Salvagers' to rehabilitate the Entente legend possesses the slightest validity." H. E. Barnes

— New Repub 64:270 O 22 '30 1650w

"Professor Schmitt's historical scholarship would have been less subject to the stress of partisanship, and his conclusions would possibly have had more practical value, as well as more scientific validity, if he had been less concerned with the question, 'Who caused the war?' and more eager to discover what caused the war." P. T. Moon

— + N Y Times p6 N 16 '30 1930w

"It is thorough. It is also clear and readable. And it is sane and essentially sound." C. J. H. Hayes

+ Sat R of Lit 7:263 O 25 '30 1250w

"Prof Schmitt is careful with his deductions, but his book is more valuable to the student for his avoidance of any general conclusions regarding war guilt. He has supplied a clear and immensely detailed study of the diplomatic moves and has given the most reasonable interpretation of what the moves meant and what they accomplished or, in most cases, failed to accomplish."

+ Springf'd Republican p10 O 10 '30 900w

"Professor Schmitt has undertaken a very difficult task in trying to interpret the motives of the various actors when the situation was shifting from day to day, and even hour to hour. He is obviously aware of this and moves cautiously in terms like 'this seems to indicate', 'it is probable', 'it is reasonable to believe.' Now and then he is more positive and at such times some will hesitate to follow. . . Interpreting motives is no easy matter, as the controversial literature on the subject shows. On larger issues it would seem that these volumes will provoke much further discussion of the rôle of Grey and Poincaré, the Russian mobilization measures since July 25, Russian intransigence in regard to Serbia, and the belated German peace efforts in Vienna." H. C. Engelbrecht

World Tomorrow 13:425 O '30 850w

SCHMITZ, ETTORE, (ITALO SVEVO, pseud.). Confessions of Zeno; tr. from the Italian by Beryl de Zoete. 406p $3 Knopf [10s 6d Putnam]

30-20081

"This novel is the work of a Trieste banker who died a few years ago leaving two or three novels of which Confessions of Zeno enjoys an international reputation. The writer is said to have been encouraged in his literary work by James Joyce. Confessions of Zeno is disguised as the story of his life as prepared by a psychoanalyst's patient for his doctor, and it is a masterpiece of sleepy wit and biting irony. Zeno is a foolish fellow. He is lazy, inquisitive, a master of indecision, always planning to give up his pet vices, always trying new careers, always expecting to do great things at something else, salving his conscience after each relapse and failure in the most mischievous, comic and natural ways. There is no describable plot to Zeno's confessions."—Outlook

---

For biographical sketch of the author see Bookm 72:566 F '31

"All of Zeno's tortuousities, related by himself in a scrupulous and delightful ironical prose, are placed on a comic level, even when such seemingly tragic matters as death and sexual betrayal are involved. The humor is frequently of that macabre Italian type to which Pirandello has accustomed us; but more usually it is less theatrical and resides rather in the amazing, twisted, eager, ingratiating character of Zeno himself. The book is rich also in minor characters who, though apprehended only through the highly charged mentality of the hero, are nevertheless full-blooded and recognizable types."

+ Bookm 72:68 S '30 1050w

Reviewed by Arthur Livingston
Books p7 Ag 3 '30 600w

"Looking back for many years I can recall no work of such ironic intelligence and bubbling humor as this novel of an Italian philosopher's conscience. . . The life that fills these puppet-like figures and makes them dance so grotesquely before us is the wisdom and richness of Svevo's mind. His mind approaches his material at a continually surprising tangent." Matthew Josephson

+ Nation 131:183 Ag 13 '30 1250w

" 'Confessions of Zeno' is by a very long way the most interesting novel that has been published this year, and also by a long way more interesting than any published last year. . . Italo Svevo possessed a profoundly ironic and perceptive mind. It was not in his nature to see any occurrence solely from one point of view, but his penetration has neither coldness nor arrogance, and the power to expose the complexity and contradictions of human nature gave him a delight entirely without malice." L. L. Irvine

+ Nation and Ath 46:866 Mr 22 '30 800w

Reviewed by Horace Gregory
New Repub 64:52 Ag 27 '30 800w

SCHMITZ, ETTORE—Continued

"Here is a genuine ironist; and if The Confessions of Zeno has a legitimate success with the British public, it will be a very hopeful sign of an advance in self-criticism and in aesthetic judgment. For Svevo pricks all the bubbles that the English have so delicately attempted to preserve."

+ New Statesman 34:782 Mr 22 '30 570w

"Svevo's ironical method gives nothing to art at the expense of humanity; for 'Confessions of Zeno' is a highly human story and its material is fundamentally as sound as its method. . . . The work of a man who wrote to please himself, it has an individuality and originality you cannot escape noticing, and it has, too, a fine and comprehensive knowledge of its character." Louis Kronenberger

+ N Y Times p7 Ag 3 '30 850w

Reviewed by Harry Hansen

N Y World p9 Jl 30 '30 520w

Reviewed by F. L. Robbins

Outlook 155:466 Jl 23 '30 350w

Reviewed by Angel Flores

Sat R of Lit 7:19 Ag 2 '30 830w

"The author often shows a pretty wit and a shrewd knowledge of life. And yet the mechanism of the autobiography seems to us a somewhat clumsy one for the purpose of this volume. . . Altogether an odd book, but not an uninteresting one."

+ — Spec 144:750 My 3 '30 400w

Reviewed by V. Sackville-West

Spec 144:1056 Je 28 '30 200w

"What redeems the novel is not its psychological penetration, for that is really quite small, but the portrait it builds up of a man who, in spite of an almost incredibly gelatinous moral fibre, was, and is, sympathetic in his benevolence and his humorous capacity for revealing his ridiculous processes of mind in retrospect."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p320 Ap 10 '30 820w

Reviewed by Helen MacAfee

Yale R n s 20:x autumn '30 320w

SCHMITZ, ETTORE (ITALO SVEVO, pseud.). The hoax; tr. from the Italian, with an introd. by Beryl de Zoete. 166p $2 Harcourt [6s Hogarth]

30-6147

This novel by an Austro-Italian author is about an aged novelist, Mario Samigli, who is a business man with a passion for writing, and who when young had had published one novel, entitled Youth. A practical joker tells him that a Vienna publisher will pay a large sum for the foreign rights on the book—and Mario sees in imagination wealth and fame at last. When no money arrives Mario realizes it is all a hoax, and the author has made the reader feel the tragedy of the situation.

Booklist 26:358 Je '30

"The book's scene is small, its action simple. But its artistry and its finesse are undeniable." A. B. Clarke

+ Bookm 71:110 Mr '30 350w

"Svevo thus far has been known in English only through some passages from 'Zeno' which Sommerville Story published in 'transition' for February, 1929. 'The Hoax,' ably translated by Beryl de Zoete, is a felicitous introduction into this country of one of Italy's major figures. For 'The Hoax' contains all those virtues which made of 'Zeno' a chef d'oeuvre—a careful character delineation, and a psychological integration that swings in a counterpoint of humor and irony. One is constantly reminded, while reading 'The Hoax,' of the bitter story of its author. There is something tormentingly autobiographical underlying this pleasant narrative." Angel Flores

+ Books p12 Mr 30 '30 900w

Cleveland Open Shelf p78 My '30

"It is a pleasant but not particularly important tale. One looks forward to the translation of one of Svevo's major works."

Nation 130:524 Ap 30 '30 220w

"There is an impulse to adopt the work of genius, to make it a part of the living honeycomb of one's thoughts and emotions. . . 'The Hoax' is one of these rare books, and because it is a very slight and very small slice of genius, the adoption of it is a very much simpler and quicker process than the adoption of 'Paradise Lost' or Boswell's Johnson—and also, in the end, less satisfying. But the important thing is that 'The Hoax' belongs to the same kingdom as such works." L. L. Irvine

+ Nation and Ath 46:142 O 26 '29 550w

" 'The Hoax' is the first of his books to be offered in an American edition, and it leaves the impression that his reputation must have been made by his other writings. The short story is overloaded with a series of fables about sparrows. These have been put into the mouth of the hero with the intention of being whimsical and ironical. If they had been good fables, it would have been a different matter. As it is, the effect is precious, breathless, subnormal. The book has the negative virtue of being well translated." C. A. C.

— + New Repub 62:227 Ap 9 '30 170w

"Never have we read a description, fuller or more poignant, of one of those moods of exceptional credulity into which persons, normally hard-headed, are sometimes precipitated when the nature of the hoax happens to coincide with the fulfilment of a private and long-cherished daydream. . . Svevo's method is exquisitely humane; the quietness and smoothness of his method becomes its chief beauty. We look forward to Zeno with feelings of the keenest interest."

+ New Statesman 34:232 N 23 '29 850w

"It would be the gravest of critical mistakes to suppose that this book is profound, or that it reaches to the depths of our emotions. It belongs to that body of minor literature which provides a different sort of pleasure and significance. It has the mellow wisdom of the heart and head working unitedly."

+ N Y Times p6 Mr 16 '30 550w

Outlook 154:348 F 26 '30 100w

Pratt p42 summer '30

"With a notable economy of means and sobriety of style this little incident in a little life is endowed with quiet and sure vitality. Within its clear limits 'The Hoax' is an excellent thing indeed." Theodore Purdy, Jr.

+ Sat R of Lit 6:1064 My 24 '30 380w

Times [London] Lit Sup p1078 D 19 '29 550w

SCHNEIDER, HERBERT WALLACE. Puritan mind. (Studies in religion and culture; Am. religion ser.) 301p $3 Holt

285.9 Puritans. New England—Church history

30-31233

A philosophical presentation of a once living religion and of the soil in which it grew. The author, who is professor of religion in Columbia University, follows the rise and fall of puritanism as it affected the theory and practice of government and morality and the course of theological and philosophical thought.

"Professor Schneider has filled the need for a well-documented and critical study of the undermining of Calvinistic determinism by eighteenth-century beliefs in divine benevolence, natural rights and democratic humanitarianism. Most significant, however, is his reappraisal of Puritan philosophy, and his demonstration of the thesis that its principles rest on the abiding truth of human existence. . . Professor Schneider has not made a comprehensive study of the Puritan mind. Economic and social motives are too much neglected, especially in his sketchy treatment of Puritanism before 1700. . . But in his investigation of the philosophy behind Puritanism, Professor Schneider has made a valuable contribution toward a reinterpretation of its heritage to American culture." J. K. Snyder

+ — Bookm 72:438 D '30 480w

"'The Puritan Mind' is, in many ways, a masterly piece of work. His own penetrating and creative thought is sustained by extended quotations from original material of an unusual and highly illuminating character. Like Mr. Sweet's history, it contains a carefully prepared bibliography and a useful index. Students of religious life and thought in America stand immeasurably indebted to these two scholars." J. H. Holmes

+ Books p41 D 7 '30 600w

"The author has written what one is seriously tempted to call the best book on puritanism. . . He has three admirable qualifications: training and industry in the use of source materials; skill in interpreting and coordinating details to make a clear unified picture of the stream of tendencies; and a style that combines clarity with charm. . . This volume will send the studious reader back to other histories of the events and thought of the puritan period to check his estimates by reference to data which he does not include. But, in the main, I think the author's judgment will stand, both as to the essential nature of puritanism and as to the completeness of its disappearance from the American scene." W. E. Garrison

+ Christian Century 47:1346 N 5 '30 420w

"Though much shorter than many previous expositions it is to my thinking the most just and illuminating that I have found. . . The main purpose of the book is finely carried through —not to praise or to blame but to understand.' J. H. Tufts

+ Int J Ethics 41:256 Ja '31 650w

Reviewed by S. E. Morison
Nation 131:738 D 31 '30 900w

Reviewed by H. A. Larrabee
N Y Times p3 N 2 '30 1850w

SCHOONMAKER, FRANK. Come with me through Germany. (Traveler's ser.) 193p il $2 McBride

914.3 Germany—Description and travel
30-10801

"Designed as a companion for the person who wants more than a superficial view of Germany, two-thirds of the book is devoted to descriptions of Berlin, the towns of north and central Germany, and the Rhine country, with chapters on the Black Forest, Bavaria, and the cities of Saxony. Part 2 is concerned with such practical details as itineraries and transportation, German money, where to sleep and to eat, and 'where to find out what you want to know.' Illustrated, and a map on the end papers."—Cleveland Open Shelf

Booklist 26:392 Jl '30

Reviewed by A. B. Maurice
Bookm 71:xiii Ag '30 100w

Cleveland Open Shelf p104 Jl '30

"Mr. Schoonmaker is a thoroughly informed and a very interesting guide who not only leads the tourist with discrimination in matters characteristic of the Germany of before-the-war days but who also sees its recent developments and changes, and discusses their significance."

+ N Y Times p23 My 4 '30 180w

Pratt p30 autumn '30

St Louis 28:271 N '30

SCHOPFER, JEAN (CLAUDE ANET, pseud.). Idyll's end. 222p $2.50 Dodd
30-25909

Historical novel based upon a notorious episode in the annals of the Hapsburgs of Austria, the tragic love of Crown Prince Rudolph, son of the emperor Franz Joseph, and the beautiful seventeen-year-old Marie Vetsera.

Booklist 27:162 D '30

"From the harsh outline of facts, culled in careful research, M. Anet has built up a psychological novel. Whether or not the royal family in Vienna underwent the emotions he ascribes to them, they did at least undergo the crises, and his development of their characters seem wholly plausible." V. P. Ross

+ Books p3 Jl 27 '30 630w

Boston Transcript p2 Ag 20 '30 480w

"A front page story of the middle of the last century. It has every quirk of melodrama that fills the tabloids, including the spectacular dénouement. It is not, it seems to me, M. Anet's literary masterpiece. It sounds like the work of an amateur instead of the intricately delicate work of the author of 'Ariane,' but it presents intriguing facts and is an interesting story. M. Anet has not made the tale half so colorful as it might have been made—life did a better job of romance than its recorder." Fanny Butcher

+ — Chicago Daily Tribune p8 Jl 26 '30 150w

"Written with the fine simplicity and economy we are accustomed to expect of French novelists, this story of fated and fatal love avoids the cheap and the sensational, cleaving to the line of true tragedy throughout." Edwin Seaver

+ N Y Evening Post p5s Jl 26 '30 80w

"He has told the story well and has avoided the temptation to overwrite. 'Idyll's End' is an unusual book." John Carter

+ N Y Times p9 D 21 '30 500w

Reviewed by E. C. Beckwith
N Y World p5m Ag 3 '30 250w

"All kinds of sources have been consulted and the story is said to follow the facts closely. But the illusion of life is absent, and the tragic figures of the Empress and her son and his young beloved are less touching in the novel, with all its hot color and detail, than in the history books with their few cold lines." F. L. Robbins

— Outlook 155:467 Jl 23 '30 100w

Sat R of Lit 7:165 S 27 '30 300w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 24 '30 380w

SCHROEDER, HENRY ALFRED, and PETERS, LAURANCE ARMISTEAD. Shirt-tail and pigtail; nonchalant adventures in Central Asia. 316p il $5 Minton

915 Asia, Central—Description and travel
30-7975

The adventures of two Yale undergraduates in Asia. The youthful Americans, with little money but a great deal of nerve, passed themselves off as the "Schroeder-Peters Expedition" when in a tight corner, and journeyed, in a variety of ways, from Constantinople to Bokhara and other ancient cities now under the Soviet jurisdiction, and on thru the Celestial Mountains toward Kashgar in Chinese Turkestan. But they did not reach their destination, for they were captured and given a taste of oriental prison life. Following their escape, they returned to America via Siberia and Japan.

Booklist 27:23 S '30

Bookm 71:xvii Je '30 300w

"Aside from the sedate foreword by Kermit Roosevelt, this account of adventures in central Asia is as lacking in dignity as its title suggests, but in all the other elements which go to make up an engaging and lively narrative, it is well supplied."

+ Books p19 Mr 16 '30 180w

Boston Transcript p2 Mr 12 '30 700w

Cleveland Open Shelf p75 My '30

Reviewed by H. L. Matthews
N Y Times p5 Ap 6 '30 850w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:83 N '30

SCHUBERT, PAUL. Come on, Texas. 244p $3 Cape

359 Texas (battleship) 30-19875

The biography of the battleship Texas, now the flagship of the U. S. fleet. The author takes up the life of the Texas from the time she was commissioned in 1914, thru her part in the war, her dangerous North Sea experiences, and her aging years up to the time of her modernization.

Booklist 27:189 Ja '31

"One versed in naval affairs might at times question the unusual intellect of the petty officer, through whom Mr. Schubert speaks, but let us be charitable in this small detail when his petty officer gives us the very essence of the true red-blooded sailor. And as we turn the last page of the book we leave the 'Texas' with the same catch in the throat as our friend the petty officer." M. M. De Wolf
+ Books p7 Jl 27 '30 330w

"There are delightful descriptive passages in Come on, Texas.' Written in the unpretentious style of a common sailor, several of them are worthy of more than passing notice. Mr. Schubert's book is not propaganda for the Navy, nor is it an impassioned plea for a better understanding. It is a straightforward presentation of the part one great ship plays in the formation of the characters of the young men that come under its sway. For its essential honesty, for its outspoken strength and power, for its brilliant and gripping portrayal of an honorable vocation, let us admire 'Come On, Texas.'" Edward Hall
+ Boston Transcript p2 Ag 16 '30 1250w

"A full length and living portrait of [the] subject." Edwin Seaver
+ N Y Evening Post p5s Jl 19 '30 100w

"The author set out to make the dreadnought flagship live and be loved, like a clipper square-rigged ship of the old days, and he has worked the miracle. . . The story is worth the telling, and done with the spirit that inspired the slogan, 'Come on, Texas!'" H. E. Armstrong
+ N Y Times p11 Ag 10 '30 1000w

"There is rattling good sea stuff in Come On, Texas, the biography of a battleship. It is written in plain, vigorous prose and is as full of 'language' as a sailor's speech. Many of the scenes are exciting, many are funny, a few are touching, and all are full of life and gusto for living." F. L. Robbins
+ Outlook 155:468 Jl 23 '30 130w

St Louis 28:290 D '30

SCHULTZ, JAMES WILLARD, and DONALDSON, JESSIE LOUISE. Sun god's children. 255p il $3 Houghton

970.3 Siksika Indians 30-11182

"The object of the book is to give correct information to travelers and tourists who flock to Glacier National Park, Montana, and Waterton Lakes Park, Alberta, every summer to recapture the boyish thrill which comes from 'Injuns.' Historical data are sketched in briefly. Two legends of the origin of the name Blackfeet (Siksika) are given. There is a description of the sun dance today as it has been modified by governmental and missionary influences. And there are autobiographical tales by very old warriors, who remember the days when they were young and valiant and their people were many and strong."—Books

Booklist 27:60 O '30

Reviewed by C. L. Skinner
Books p7 My 18 '30 400w

Boston Transcript p3 My 24 '30 250w

Reviewed by Joe Gould
New Repub 64:25 Ag 20 '30 300w

"James Willard Schultz is an adopted member of the Blackfeet tribe of Montana and for years has shared their fortunes in peace and war. 'The Sun God's Children,' will probably be the authoritative account of the people of his adoption for some time to come." Joe Gould
+ N Y Evening Post p11m My 3 '30 350w

Reviewed by Nicholas Roosevelt
N Y Times p13 Je 1 '30 1000w

SCHUTZ, HEINRICH. When mammoths roamed the frozen earth; tr. from the German by Frank Barnes. 197p il $2.50 (7s 6d) Cape

29-22141

"Nature red in tooth and claw is the theme of Herr Schutz's imaginative story of Europe —one presumes it is Europe—as the last ice-age passed away and the glaciers receded. Mammoths play but a small part in this story, which opens with the destruction of the last herd left in the South, and continues with the solitary survivor's adventures in a new world ill suited to his habits."—New Statesman

"Neither author nor translator is completely above criticism. It is difficult to say which is responsible for the ambiguity which sometimes mars the otherwise beautiful expression. And the continuity is confusing, the narration of Longtooth's encounter with a bison, his misadventure with an avalanche, being interrupted thrice to a chapter for the interposition of an interesting, but usually irrelevant life story of a lynx, a reindeer, an otter. The effect is frequently that of double exposure." M. L. S.
— + Boston Transcript p7 N 30 '29 350w

"This old mammoth is used as a sort of chorus to the tragedies of the field, in which beast and bird prey upon one another, and even the vegetation is militant. These tragedies are well told, but in the main they could be told equally well of any jungle to-day. Herr Schutz in fact never satisfies us that he has got his period right; indeed when at the end of the book men come upon the scene the period becomes a nightmare of anachronisms. Palæolithic, neolithic and bronze ages are seen as matters of a few generations."
— New Statesman 34:614 F 15 '30 180w

N Y Times p12 N 17 '29 80w

Reviewed by W. R. Brooks
Outlook 153:313 O 23 '29 50w

"Well illustrated and thrillingly written, this rousing book will at once educate the young reader and exert an irresistible appeal. A really fine piece of work."
+ World Tomorrow 13:232 My '30 80w

SCHUYLER, ROBERT LIVINGSTON. Parliament and the British Empire; some constitutional controversies concerning imperial legislative jurisdiction. 279p $3.75 Columbia univ. press

342.42 Great Britain—Colonies, Great Britain—Parliament. Great Britain—Constitutional history 29-11683

For descriptive note see Annual for 1929.

"The bones of that ancient controversy which was settled by force of arms in America, some 150 years ago, were recently disinterred by Professor McIlwain in his book, The American Revolution, which, at this late date, would probably have created but little public stir, had not the work been distinguished by the bestowal of the Pulitzer Prize. This circumstance will, no doubt, exert some influence upon the future currency of McIlwain's views, and the scholars or specialists who may become acquainted with Professor Schuyler's effective demolition of the very core of McIlwain's work will be unable to prevent the perpetuation of one more myth of popular historiography. Schuyler's work is no mere coup de fleuret, it is as stunning a scholarly blow as one could imagine." Julius Goebel, Jr.
+ Columbia Law R 30:273 F '30 2000w

Reviewed by Sir M. S. Amos
Harvard Law R 43:1173 My '30 220w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:24 Mr '30

"Mr. Schuyler has given us an interesting, clear and highly authoritative study of the antecedents of constitutional relations within the British Empire."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p987 N 28 '29 1700w

"Mr. Schuyler has built up a most convincing case concerning the imperial legislative power of Parliament. . . Its careful scholarship and clear masterful style make it one of the outstanding historical publications of the years." V. F. Barnes

+ Yale Law J 40:156 N '30 900w

SCHWAB, SIDNEY ISAAC, and VEEDER, BORDEN SMITH. The adolescent, his conflicts and escapes. 365p $3 Appleton

136.7 Adolescence 29-16879

For descriptive note see Annual for 1929.

"In spite of the total lack of illustrative case material, which is a decided weakness in a study of this kind, the book is well worth reading." L. S. Cottrell, Jr.

+ — Am J Soc 35:862 Mr '30 150w

Booklist 26:261 Ap '30

Cleveland Open Shelf p6 Ja '30

"The book gives a well-balanced treatment of adolescence, considering its physiology, psychology, and sociology. The treatment of the major physical changes is authentic and sensible. The discussions of the relation of adolescence to education, work, and religion are good. . . The book will furnish a very useful supplementary reference for classes on the psychology of adolescence."

+ El School J 30:474 F '30 150w

"Both authors share in the viewpoint of the whole, which emphasizes the social importance of the subject, and both are animated by the same quality of spirit, a quality that sets the book somewhat apart from most treatises on this theme and gives it a certain unusual distinctiveness."

+ N Y Times p13 N 24 '29 400w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:48 Je '30

Times [London] Lit Sup p1039 D 5 '29 200w

Wis Lib Bul 25:368 N '29

SCHWEICKHARD, DEAN MERRILL. Industrial arts in education. 367p $3 Manual arts press

371.426 Industrial arts—Study and teaching. Manual training 29-15296

The author's purpose being to establish a relationship between general education, vocational education, and education in the practical arts, he begins his book by discussing the importance of industrial arts in the general education of pupils. He then deals with the problem of teaching industrial arts in elementary, intermediate and advanced grades. His last chapter discusses the preparation of industrial arts teachers.

N Y New Tech Bks 14:40 Jl '29

Pratt p14 spring '30

"It is difficult at times to distinguish what the author advocates from that which is presented as current opinion and practice. In spite of this difficulty, the book directs attention to the aspects of industrial arts instruction that need emphasis in our schools. The author believes that the book serves three groups: school administrators, teachers in service, and teachers-in-training." Robert Woellner

+ — School R 38:73 Ja '30 500w

SCOGGINS, CHARLES ELBERT. Walking stick. 2 208p $1 Bobbs

30-24343

"A tale of a young man in a small city who inherited his father's grocery business and place in the Rotary Club, and then refused to conform. How he was laughed at and looked down upon, how he went to New York and played the piano in a Greenwich Village restaurant, and how in the end he reestablished himself in the eyes of his fellow townsmen, is simply and pleasantly told."—Outlook

"Within the boundaries of this brief novel Mr. Scoggins has written an eloquent and moving plea for the young man in revolt against the Rotarian code of conformity and conventionality which rules the business and social world of the small American city. . . The story is told with admirable economy; it presents a phase of American life with color and insight."

+ Books p12 D 14 '30 150w

"'The Walking Stick' is more an essay than a novel. It is a compact, sympathetic, admirably written study of a sensitive person's reaction to the average town which the Lynds called 'Middletown.'"

+ N Y Times p19 D 21 '30 470w

"Mr. Scoggins is not one of the savage Rotarian baiters, and he lets both sides have their say, so that the story, though not important, is sane and entertaining to read." W. R. Brooks

+ Outlook 156:109 S 17 '30 130w

"Mr. Scoggins's subject matter is trite; he is several years behindhand. Why flog a dead horse? Rotarianism, small town standardization, and intolerance—why rush around making a great show of beating these poor literary corpses, when there are so many nimbler and worthier enemies at large? Mr. Scoggins, perhaps, likes to take plenty of time to think things over. At any rate, he is evangelical, heroically in earnest, but thoroughly insipid."

— Sat R of Lit 7:165 S 27 '30 120w

SCOLLARD, CLINTON, and RITTENHOUSE, JESSIE BELLE, comps. Bird-lovers' anthology. 299p $2 Houghton

821.08 Birds—Poetry 30-10165

A small volume containing almost all the well-known bird poems written by English and American authors, with many lesser known ones. There are indexes of first lines, titles, authors and birds.

Booklist 26:388 Jl '30

Cleveland Open Shelf p153 D '30

"With her sure instinct for the popular and salable anthology, Miss Rittenhouse has again, in 'The Bird-Lovers' Anthology,' hit upon an interesting method of selection. Most anthologies on special topics are full of amazingly bad verse. Evidently Mr. Scollard and Miss Rittenhouse knew this and avoided making such an anthology by choosing a topic which would allow for the inclusion of much excellent poetry. We had not realized before how many famous poets had written good poems on birds, on their songs, their flights." E. L. Walton

+ N Y Times p17 D 21 '30 200w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:72 O '30

Pratt p28 autumn '30

St Louis 28:268 N '30

SCOTT, ELEANOR. Forgotten image. 337p $1 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Benn]

[30-16005]

The women workers in a London settlement organization are the characters in Miss Scott's new novel about the intrigues, jealousies, rivalries and petty irritabilities always present in a group of associated women. As the author's former novel, War Among Ladies, delineated such life among women teachers, The Forgotten Image likewise satirizes her sex when it organizes for philanthropic purposes.

Bookm 72:x D '30 30w

Boston Transcript p3 D 27 '30 600w

"The women are drawn with subtlety, for Miss Scott has the gift, not only of analyzing the emotions that sweep her people along, but also the complex motives, often mean and self-interested though cloaked in righteousness, which impel these women to segregate together for the good of their poorer neighbours. The character drawing alone is sufficient to make this an unusual and interesting book." K. C. Tomlinson

SCOTT, ELEANOR—Continued
+ Nation and Ath 47:626 Ag 16 '30 80w

"The author has not felt, nor made, any opportunity for beauty in these nervous tortures—how should she?—and the characters she has not made pitiable or commonplace she has made hard. But in many words she piles up a mountain of women's exactly-observed perversities, and one haunting misery."
New Statesman 35:119 My 3 '30 180w

Reviewed by Edwin Seaver
N Y Evening Post p4d D 13 '30 80w
N Y Times p9 D 14 '30 380w
Sat R 149:525 Ap 26 '30 250w

"From the stately and enigmatic Principal to the egotistical, self-deceiving heroine and the tragic Beryl Chambers, with her limpet-like possessiveness, the characters are displayed with masterly precision and truth. Miss Scott does not flatter her own sex. But a sense of proportion and humour saves her from caricature, and makes her story as agreeable as it is incisive." Gilbert Thomas
+ Spec 144:838 My 17 '30 150w

"Miss Eleanor Scott has followed up 'War Among Ladies' with what seems at first to be a satire of the same kind, with an East End settlement instead of a high school for its subject. Miss Scott's purpose here is a more interesting one, but she is much less successful in it than she was in her first novel. The inhabitants of Frobisher House are described with sufficient vividness but with a good deal of exaggeration and inaccuracy, and they are only incidental to the purpose of the story."
— + Times [London] Lit Sup p350 Ap 24 '30 350w

SCOTT, ERNEST, ed. Australian discovery by land; [with an introd.]. 422p il $4 Dutton [10s 6d Dent]

994 Australia—Discovery and exploration [30-8617]

This volume, a sequel to Australian Discovery by Sea (Book Review Digest, 1929), brings together some of the most interesting narratives of later explorers who opened up the continent and prepared the way for the miner and the farmer.

Current Hist 31:440 D '29 350w

"For various reasons the narratives of the second volume are on the whole much more engaging than those of the first, and for anyone interested in the drama of exploration of a strangely disposed country they prove to be a fascinating history. Professor Scott has performed a notable service to students of history and his heroes can win for themselves the wider audience."
+ Hist Outlook 21:136 Mr '30 240w

"There are several instances where a few more editorial notes would seem to have been urgently needed for the benefit of the general reader. But the volume, like its predecessor, makes excellent reading, and should do much to encourage a wider study of this neglected subject."
+ — New Statesman 34:308 D 7 '29 80w
Sat R 149:85 Ja 18 '30 150w
Times [London] Lit Sup p911 N 14 '29 1350w

SCOTT, ERNEST FINDLAY. Gospel and its tributaries. (Kerr lectures, 1927-28) 295p $2.75 Scribner [10s Clark, T.]

270.1 Christianity. Church history—Primitive and early church 29-16611

A book which throws fresh light on the development of Christianity thru the hundred years or more covered by the New Testament writings. It shows how Christianity drew into itself many tributary elements and transformed them so that the result was a new and in some ways more adequate expression of the message of Jesus. Contents: Old and new in the Gospel; The Jewish inheritance; The message of Jesus; The nature of the church; The Hellenistic influence; The contribution of Paul; The Alexandrian influence; The conflict with heresy; The rise of the Catholic church; The Gospel as borrowed and creative.

Boston Transcript p2 My 14 '30 650w

Reviewed by S. V. McCasland
Christian Century 47:594 My 7 '30 1000w

"Scott excels in the clear, terse statement of problems at issue; in the trenchant, yet controlled criticism of extreme positions; in the logical succession of ideas in argumentation; in the systematic, enumerative arrangement of materials." H. R. Willoughby
+ J Religion 10:271 Ap '30 1350w

"Dr. Scott writes as a fervent Christian. It is essential, he holds, to give Jesus a place eternally unique as the revelation of God. Christianity may survive in all kinds of odd combinations, so long as this is done, but if you put any other being into the same category as Jesus Christianity is gone. It may be said that to assert in this absolute way the unique place of Jesus in the scheme of things and at the same time to treat the beliefs regarding his Person, which the Christian Church has held, even in Dr. Scott's view, from St. Paul onwards, as pure mythology is a position of difficult theological balance which may be maintained for a time as an acrobatic achievement, but must end in a fall to one side or to the other."
— + Times [London] Lit Sup p524 Jl 4 '29 1950w

SCOTT, EVELYN, pseud. (MRS JOHN METCALF). Winter alone. 127p $2.50 Cape

811 30-7879

"Evelyn Scott's first book of poems in ten years. In the first section of the volume, called 'Bright World,' we have a series of imagistic poems, most of them descriptive of nature. In the remainder of the book there is a group concerned with animals which is illuminated by a strong feeling for the kinship of all life, a feeling that reminds one of D. H. Lawrence' attitude toward similar themes. And the poems [about people] have a cumulative effect in their revelation of the poet and her Orientation toward life. Here are poems that make one forget technique because it is so perfectly employed in disclosing the vision of the artist." N Y World

"Mrs. Scott has the seeing eye and the sensitive nerves that dumb models require of their painters, and it is in the portrayal of them that she does her best work. In the poem called 'Splendid Sky,' there is a lack of selection in the heaped images. One knows what the poet saw, one knows what she feels seeing it, yet one stands outside of the event, not sharing it, because her vision is not single. Technically, too, there is much to be desired. Not seldom rhymes interfere with the cadence, or the verbal melody is spoiled by a jerky rhythm. The book is disappointing, mainly because Mrs. Scott does not sustain her own highest standards of excellence." Babette Deutsch
— + Books p20 Ap 27 '30 500w
Boston Transcript p2 My 24 '30 250w

"There is no poverty of subject matter: the book is filled with individualistic observations upon life, with startling characters given in a sentence, with intricate emotional situations, with vivid backgrounds. The poet's outlook is at one and the same time mystic and intellectual. And yet, although the intention of many of the poems is lyric, there is a kind of looseness in rhythm and diffuseness in imagery which gives the reader the impression that many of these poems are notes for longer poems rather than the fused immediate statements of lyrics. And the lyric intention is only now and then focused clearly enough to arouse the called-for emotion on the part of the reader." E. L. Walton

+ — Nation 131:100 Jl 23 '30 350w

"When everything has been said, Evelyn Scott is not a poet and 'The Winter Alone' is less a book of poems than a series of expositions of the way this woman lives. No one page is sufficient unto itself, though always there are beauty and representative pain. If the volume gives a fluid and unco-ordinated index to the alive and imaginative author it is at least a tribute to the authenticity of her search for an ultimate and impregnably honest self." Emanuel Eisenberg
— + N Y Evening Post p11m Mr 29 '30 500w

" 'The Winter Alone' seems to the reviewer to be a distinct lapse into all that is inimical to poetic progress. And this not merely because the pieces are in vers libre. Very fine poetry can be achieved in 'free verse,' but the pitfalls are many. Mrs. Scott, we fear, has been misled by the apparent ease of writing such verse to spend insufficient care on her rhythms."
— N Y Times p16 Mr 30 '30 170w

Reviewed by Granville Hicks
N Y World p10m Mr 30 '30 320w

"It is serious, self-respecting verse, pitched half way between poetry and bathos; its technical deficiencies and its sententiousness prevent its ever rising to the one, while its earnestness and preoccupation with the 'new' technic are usually enough to keep it from falling into the other. . . The faults of this book are in part the faults of most of our poetry. There is a great deal of contemporary verse that is technically more expert than The Winter Alone; but the false brilliance, the simile that is no simile, the mixed metaphors, and the sententiousness—these are almost universal." Dudley Fitts
— + Poetry 36:338 S '30 1100w

SCOTT, SIR WALTER, bart. Private letter-books; sel. from the Abbotsford manuscripts, with a letter to the reader from Hugh Walpole; ed. by Wilfred Partington. 397p il $6 Stokes [30s Hodder]
B or 92 30-21439

"Some nine years ago Mr. Walpole read a public announcement that the Letter-Books of Sir Walter Scott were about to be put upon the market; and, having been in pursuit of 'Scottiana' all his life, he decided to become if he could, their possessor. Fortune favoured him, and they fell to his bidding—twenty-three bulky volumes, containing about six thousand documents in all, which it is his intention eventually to leave intact to the National Library of Scotland. In the meantime he would have them overhauled and edited; and the present selection represents six years' editorial labour on the part of Mr. Wilfred Partington, undertaken at Mr. Walpole's invitation."—Times [London] Lit Sup

---

Booklist 27:198 Ja '31

Reviewed by G. F. Whicher
Books p7 N 9 '30 650w

"It is a book, once read, to be kept handy for browsing in. Open it where you will, you are sure to find something to arouse interest or amusement. Many famous men contribute to it, some of them among the greatest masters of the epistolary art. . . But not all Scott's correspondents were professional men of letters, and few of them wrote to him exclusively on literary affairs. The great novelist's interests were wide, and people liked to chat with him, on paper as well as by word of mouth, on all things and sundry. It is just that which makes this miscellany of letters so fascinating to wander through."
+ Christian Science Monitor p5 S 6 '30 430w

"The obvious and great disadvantage of these letters—from the point of view of making a connected book of them—is that so many have nothing in common except that they all begin with 'Dear Scott' or 'Dear Sir Walter.' No doubt Mr. Partington has put a great deal of hard work into this book, but it is hard to imagine who will be pleased by it. Mr. Partington's headings, his introductions, his notes, his entire manner as an editor cannot fail to irritate those who have any interest in scholarship or any appreciation of style. He spreads himself and his comments all through the text, so that it is impossible to read a single letter without being reminded of the personality of Mr. Partington." L. L. Irvine
— Nation and Ath 47:222 My 17 '30 1100w

"The collection is, quite apart from Scott, a mine of stories and pictures, and full of interesting sidelights on well-known figures. . . The result is an amazingly varied panorama of life at the time—a sort of Frith's 'Derby Day' displaying by sample the notables, the gossip and the queer forgotten humours of the last three Georgian decades. . . Praise is due to Mr. Partington for his handling of the material. He has given six years to the job, and done it well. His arrangement seems uniformly good; his notes, not always equally so. Several are loose, and at least one (on page 259) verbally inaccurate. He is perhaps rather too prone to 'tick off' the Georgian writers with mild depreciation, forgetting that an editor's personal views of, say, Campbell's or Southey's or Rogers' poetry scarcely concern the reader of Scott's Letter-Books." R. C. K. E.
+ — New Statesman 35:153 My 10 '30 1300w

"The book as a whole makes literary history and reminds us that all is not yet, by any means, done or exhausted concerning the great epochs of English letters." H. J. Forman
+ N Y Times p2 O 26 '30 1300w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:68 O '30
St Louis 28:273 N '30
Spec 144:907 My 31 '30 700w
Times [London] Lit Sup p411 My 15 '30 1400w

SCOTT, MRS WINIFRED MARY (WATSON) (PAMELA WYNNE, pseud.). End of the avenue. 346p $2 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Allan. P.]
30-3536

At the end of the avenue was Gaunt House where Dr Weston took his young bride Mavis. She had married him to relieve her impoverished family but a few weeks revealed that she had entered a state worse than poverty, with a besotted husband and one, moreover, engaged in a sinister and illegal practice. Before long a deliverer arrived in the person of a rich and masterful lover, while Weston was conveniently killed in a motor accident.

" 'The End of the Avenue' is one of those novels which you accept for the length of time it takes to read it. Its absurdities only become manifest in retrospect, and since retrospection is an exercise which only the minority of readers indulges the results are fairly satisfactory."
— + Books p10 Mr 16 '30 170w

"It has rather too many evidences of haste—inconsistency in characterization and slovenly plot—to make it more than a sedative, when one does not wish to think."
— Boston Transcript p2 F 26 '30 170w

"The book is written in a slipshod manner which fails to create the atmosphere of horror necessary for the action, and makes no attempt to get below the surface of either events or people. Mrs. Wynne passes all bounds of fictional license to achieve her happy ending."
— N Y Times p16 F 2 '30 200w

"In spite of its distasteful subject-matter the book is written with delicacy and sympathy."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p900 N 7 '29 200w

SCOTT, MRS WINIFRED MARY (WATSON) (PAMELA WYNNE, pseud.). Little flat in the Temple. 317p $1 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Allan, P.]

30-17707

A clever young English girl, just out of school and bored with her parent's home in Switzerland, falls in love with a friend of her father's, follows him to London, and in disguise takes a position in his flat in the Temple. Many complications result, but at the end of the book happiness is in sight.

Books p19 Ag 24 '30 100w

"There are many ways of writing love stories, but few can be worse than the type of utterly improbable romance depicted in this story of an English school girl and her desire for a husband. From beginning to end there is not a convincing situation in the sequence of events."

— Boston Transcript p2 Ag 6 '30 250w

Reviewed by Edwin Seaver

N Y Evening Post p8m Je 28 '30 80w

"The situation could be made more of than Miss Wynne here makes of it."

— N Y Times p16 Jl 20 '30 150w

Times [London] Lit Sup p416 My 15 '30 100w

SCOVILLE, SAMUEL. Wild honey. 203p $3 Little

590 Natural history—Outdoor books 29-24194

Twelve nature sketches in which the author records his studies of wild life in Connecticut, Pennsylvania and other eastern states. With reproductions of etchings by Emerson Tuttle. Contents: Wild honey; Trembling earth; The quest of the Wilson warbler; Desert Island; Friends of the barrens; Lost Island; The rattlesnake den; Okeefinokee; The gnatcatcher's nest; Lost road; Collections and recollections; The peregrine falcon.

Booklist 26:192 F '30

"Mr. Scoville writes with affection and knowledge and acute observation of his neighbors. . . Neighbors to him are an inclusive group—the pink pyxie moss of the Jersey pine woods, a pileated woodpecker in Florida, rattlesnakes everywhere, mocking birds and alligators, pine snakes and box tortoises, skunk cabbage and crane's-fly orchids, light-struck deer and hosts of woodwarblers. He enjoys telling of these neighbors and of his adventures in finding them, and he communicates to the reader the poignant joy of many sudden discoveries. Emerson Tuttle's etchings add a strong, authentic note."

+ Books p10 N 24 '29 130w

"Style, in any affected sense, is something hard to find in 'Wild Honey,' and yet the combination of intimate observation and scientific information which the author is able to set down so well, certainly constitutes an individual and beautiful kind of writing which one comes to recognize and look forward to as Mr. Scoville's own."

+ Boston Transcript p3 Ja 18 '30 250w

Cleveland Open Shelf p152 D '29

Reviewed by H. E. Dounce

Sat R of Lit 6:756 F 22 '30 800w

"The experiences that he recounts seem real, and no doubt are, save, perhaps, for some literary garnishing. They are not striking or startling, but are such as might befall any person who spends his leisure wandering about outdoors with an eye for birds and other living creatures."

Springf'd Republican p8 D 23 '29 200w

Wis Lib Bul 26:39 Ja '30

SEAGER, HENRY ROGERS, and GULICK, CHARLES ADAMS. Trust and corporation problems. 719p $3.50 Harper

338.8 Trusts, Industrial. Corporation law

29-22966

"An up-to-date study of the public regulation of big business. The variable policies pursued by the United States in its handling of the trust problem are compared with those adopted in other countries."—Cleveland Open Shelf

"Seager and Gulick give an outline of the 'combination-for-monopoly' movement and of the anti-trust policy of the United States up to date. This part of the book deserves praise for its clear, though compact, treatment of this complicated legal and historical background. It is recommended to readers who desire a brief treatment of this phase of the monopoly problem in the United States. The description of foreign developments and policies is competent and as complete as a short survey can be made. . . The reviewers were disappointed to find the legal and historical aspects extensively and carefully treated at the expense of the economic problems, many of which have merely been stated. . . The book is, however, up to date and is the best treatise written for instructional use in the conventional manner." R. M. Weidenhammer

+ — Am Econ R 20:514 S '30 1300w

Reviewed by R. W. Foery

Ann Am Acad 147:205 Ja '30 1150w

Booklist 26:265 Ap '30

Cleveland Open Shelf p39 Mr '30

Reviewed by George Soule

N Y Times p12 Jl 27 '30 220w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:49 Je '30

St Louis 28:95 Ap '30

"Although the reviewer is inclined to disagree with some of the conclusions reached by Professors Seager and Gulick, there can be no doubt that their investigation of the activities of trusts and corporations in American industry is one of the most searching ever attempted. Their survey may be academically concise, but at the same time it is vigorously alive. It challenges the reader from beginning to end. To describe the growth of business consolidations requires patience, to draw conclusions from such a mass of factual information is an intellectual accomplishment of the highest order." Felix Flugel

+ Survey 63:357 D 15 '30 250w

Wis Lib Bul 26:38 Ja '30

SEAMARK, pseud. See Small, A. J.

SEAVER, EDWIN. The company. 209p $2 Macmillan

30-7962

The average New York corporation, with its offices and its boss and its employees, furnishes the material for Mr Seaver's novel. How the Company dominates the lives of these average American business men and women, how it takes the soul from each, leaving little but the shell of daily routine, is demonstrated by the author in his sketches of types such as Miss Grimm, Mr Mold, the Vice President, the Jew, and Mr Reynolds.

"Mr. Seaver has written a book about white-collar wage-slaves without once losing his temper. Not that this is the only way such a subject ought to be treated; some very effective diatribes against offices have been written—but Mr. Seaver's way is certainly effective. It is the strength of Mr. Seaver's method in this book that it shows us people we have to admit meeting every day of our lives; it is the weakness of his method that we can see nothing but their outlines." T. S. Matthews

+ — Bookm 71:214 Ap '30 230w

"Within the last few years several of the dozen sketches of which 'The Company' is made appeared separately in various magazines. As single pieces they disclosed evidence of a distinct and sensitive prose, but they seemed to lack direction and a sense of conclusive form. By bringing them together in a single volume Mr. Seaver has converted them into integral parts of a powerful unit. Quite in his own fashion Edwin Seaver has written the 'Winesburg, Ohio' of the American business office." Horace Gregory

+ Books p7 Mr 23 '30 750w

Boston Transcript p2 My 3 '30 180w

"This book is one of the most significant volumes of fiction by an American writer to appear in recent years. Other writers will perhaps work out some of the implications of 'The Company' more fully than Seaver has done; but whether they do or not the book will stand as an original contribution to recent writing. I am impressed with the forms of these stories and with the lasting freshness and vitality of the writing. Seaver uses common words—almost a mono-syllabic style—yet with them obtains a lyrical expression that is remarkably varied and effective." Clinton Simpson

+ Nation 130:573 My 14 '30 350w

New Repub 62:279 Ap 23 '30 350w

"It has the distinction of giving an accurate picture of the commonplace, of the people we see on the street and jostle in the subway, with effective strokes that have eliminated all details save those that are essential to the story. And above all, Edwin Seaver has brought to his novel a gentle and kindly detachment that keeps his shrewd commentary from becoming a bitter homily."

+ N Y Times p8 Mr 30 '30 500w

"The novel is remarkable because it seems free of that very overstatement which makes the average book of fiction glamorous, or vicious, or confusing. It is a normal picture of normal living and working conditions." Harry Hansen

+ N Y World p13 Mr 18 '30 550w

Reviewed by W. R. Brooks

Outlook 154:547 Ap 2 '30 100w

"Mr. Seaver has written with sincerity where others have had recourse to flippancy, of one of the most powerful American machines and one not made of steel or iron,—The Company." Gladys Graham

+ Sat R of Lit 6:944 Ap 19 '30 800w

Reviewed by Coley Taylor

World Tomorrow 13:376 S '30 400w

SEDGWICK, ANNE DOUGLAS (MRS BASIL DE SELINCOURT). Philippa. 546p $2.50 Houghton [7s 6d Constable]

30-29905

The scene of the novel is England. Philippa and her father admired each other tremendously. Clever, humorous, penetrating Philippa accepted his homage and proceeded to wind him around her finger. When a fascinatingly beautiful widow fell in love with her father, and there was a divorce, it was a harrowing time for all, but most particularly for Philippa. Amid the resulting clash of wills and temperaments the girl passed the most impressionable years of her life, and it was not until a young American of charm and insight fell in love with her that the clouds of doubt disappeared and she could look forward to a happy marriage.

For biographical sketch of the author see Wilson Bulletin 5:32 S '30

"Miss Sedgwick tells the story with the subtle discrimination and nicety which her readers will anticipate, but not, I think, with the same warmth of sympathy that she put into the conflicts of the more realistically-minded Madame Vervier and Alix." Mary Ross

+ — Atlantic Bookshelf p42 D '30 150w

Booklist 27:209 Ja '31

"Those of Miss Sedgwick's readers who have found it necessary to qualify a real appreciation of her earlier work by saying that she seems at times, a trifle saccharine, will not, it is to be feared, respond to Philippa. . . The conversation in Philippa (this is a very 'talky' book) is so studded with conscious epigram and literary allusion that one longs for an Admirable Crichton among the characters to do a little timely ducking. A certain studied brightness was understandable in The Little French Girl, speaking and acting, as she must, in a medium wholly foreign to her; but the same effect in young Philippa, utterly at home in her environment, is not so pleasing." R. F. Moore

— Bookm 72:421 D '30 450w

" 'Philippa' is especially interesting as an implication of the attitude toward Anglo-American conventions of an author who so often has identified herself with the French way of life. She presents this English family carefully, conscientiously. She is too well bred and too good an artist to express an opinion of their agonies. This is how they were and in novels, as in friendships, that has to be the starting point. But this book lacks a little, I think, the joy in contrast, the verve of 'The Little French Girl.' There is something sprawling, at once pathetic and endearing and a little ridiculous, about these romantic English, it might seem to say in spite of itself." Mary Ross

+ — Books p7 O 26 '30 950w

"In itself, this is not an ingenious or entrancing story, neither is it one that would be foredoomed to perish of anæmia. It is a tale that must stand or fall, not upon its scenario, if one may use, not at all technically, a familiar term, but upon the author's charm in writing and the author's adequacy and attractiveness in characterization. From the standpoint of Mrs. de Selincourt's skill in handling her matter, one is sure here as one always is, that the writing will be pure and flowing and that much of it will be devoted to the interpretation of the mental progress of her characters. But the writer does not make the reader avid in his pursuit of her narrative nor of her expression, and at the last page of all it leaves him entirely cold." S. L. Cook

— + Boston Transcript p2 N 1 '30 1450w

"To this reader, it was a distinct disappointment, but its popular appeal is evident. . . The author has done remarkably well that hard insight of youth, its cruelty toward any but its own standards and its sensitiveness, but she has not, as she certainly intended, made her heroine worth all of the pain that her ruthlessness caused. . . While there is deep understanding of the inner intricacies of the heroine's emotions, Philippa is rather a specimen than the palpitant unforgettable being that Alix was in 'The Little French Girl.' " Fanny Butcher

— + Chicago Daily Tribune p11 O 25 '30 450w

"The book does not show Anne Douglas Sedgwick at her best, a best that is always gratifyingly fine and high. It is not simply that she has chosen to deal with unlovely elements of character; it is rather that in this book the sense of actuality in the backgrounds is a little dimmed, and the characters do not really convince us enough to make us care vehemently about their fate."

— Christian Science Monitor p13 N 22 '30 320w

Cleveland Open Shelf p148 D '30

"Very nearly a masterpiece in miniature, the most unfaltering and economical piece of work that she has done."

+ New Statesman 36:sup xxii D 6 '30 700w

" 'Philippa' is in Miss Sedgwick's best vein. It is a compact and neatly patterned story dealing principally with the domestic emotions. Philippa, the vivacious and attractive heroine, is actually implausible to the last degree, but she is sufficiently unconventional in outline to seem an unusual and significant characterization." Margaret Wallace

+ N Y Evening Post p4d N 8 '30 400w

"Miss Sedgwick has analyzed very sympathetically the emotional cross-currents and the conflicting temperaments of the story; and she has drawn of Philippa herself an extremely vivid and colorful portrait. To be sure, there is nothing especially new or profound in her characterizations. They are all drawn to a formula which has already proved effective. With no pretensions whatever to enduring qualities, 'Philippa' is a soundly constructed, smoothly written and rather moving story which will undoubtedly attain the popularity it deserves."

SEDGWICK, A. D.—Continued

+ — N Y Times p7 N 9 '30 500w

"This is really a good story, one that holds the attention and commands interest. But the intensity of the author's earlier books is lacking, and Philippa has none of the lovableness of that French child, Alix." O. M. Fuller

+ — N Y World p3e D 7 '30 280w

"The author presents Philippa as her conception of the modern girl, superficially hard, inwardly tender, clear-eyed, passionate, humorous, loyal. This has become the accepted conception. One wonders if it is correct. The characters of the father and mother and the father's second wife as well as the secondary characters required by the plot are admirably drawn. The novel is highly readable, written by a hand whose experience shows in every line, and in a style which is always tutored, elegant and vivid." F. L. Robbins

+ Outlook 156:388 N 5 '30 230w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:88 D '30

"No one would think of calling this book 'The Little English Girl,' although the heroine is a little girl and is English. But she is Phillipa first, and any other classification must come after. She stamps her personality upon the first few pages of the book; for all her lack of years she makes an adult world shake unpleasantly. Direct when directness best suits her ends, and devious when the longest way round seems the shortest way goalwards, Miss Sedgwick's latest heroine is no study in the simplicity of youth. Once more Miss Sedgwick has imposed an arbitrary pattern on life for the purpose of a novel and has mercilessly constricted her character to its rigid outlines. It is the merit of her craftsmanship rather than of her judgment that they manage, in spite of this, to seem flexible and lifelike as they pursue their all too destined ways."

Sat R of Lit 7:285 N 1 '30 550w

Spec 145:952 D 13 '30 230w

Times [London] Lit Sup p938 N 13 '30 550w

SEDGWICK, HENRY DWIGHT. Henry of Navarre. 324p il $5 Bobbs

B or 92 Henry IV, king of France. France—History—Henry IV, 1589-1610 30-24616

A popularly written biography of Henry the Fourth of France. The book, by means of many quotations from contemporary letters and conversations, pictures the king as the reckless and energetic ruler, and the great lover, but does not stress the historical background of the time.

Booklist 27:157 D '30

"While uninspired, the writing is clear. Often an anecdote or a letter animates the recital of facts; and the spirit of the King at play is allowed to quicken the grave history of a leader at work." Armand Burke

+ — Bookm 72:322 N '30 280w

"Well prepared, well written chronicle. His work is eminently moderate and sane: there is no attempt at 'debunking,' and no uncritical hero-worship. As a chronicle, it is informative without dryness and, while entertaining, never becomes merely chatty. There is plenty of room for other books on Henry IV, but this one should appeal to a large and discriminating public." Albert Guerard

+ Books p10 N 30 '30 800w

Boston Transcript p2 N 15 '30 1050w

Reviewed by Cuthbert Wright

New Repub 64:356 N 12 '30 1100w

"Mr. Sedgwick's study of Henri Quatre is typical of all his works—sincere, able, dignified and impartial. The muse of history is treated like a lady, and not a wanton. There are few modern historians who have wandered over so wide a field—cautiously, and without discovering anything new, it must be admitted, but with authority and with due respect to fact." H. L. Matthews

+ N Y Times p10 O 19 '30 950w

"Mr. Sedgwick has a number of very fine books to his credit, among them some excellent short histories, and a biography of Lafayette. One can depend on him for an accurate, clear and direct presentation. He obviously knows where to go for his material; this book is full of fine letters from the hands of Margot and Henry, which very much contribute to the dramatic effectiveness of his otherwise unadorned pages. If one can find any complaint at all, it is that he is too conscientious a historian to allow himself the free reins of a biographer." Helen Berlin

+ N Y World p3e Ja 4 '31 580w

St Louis 28:302 D '30

SEDGWICK, SHAN. Wind without rain. 396p $2 Scribner

30-24769

Big Wall street captains of finance, their pretty stenographer-playmates, their debutante daughters who are expected to make successful marriages, and their noisy but futile efforts to have a good time behind the shelter of their costly and fashionable park residences, are satirized in this story of upper-class American life.

Reviewed by Guy Holt

Bookm 72:207 O '30 20w

"Mr. Sedgwick, undoubtedly familiar with the discrepancies under the respectable mask worn by his group of characters, has allowed himself to expand a youthful intolerance into a tone so bitter that it poisons his satire. He has a cleverly barbed tongue, an observing acumen and an easy conversational style. But before he can really place a whole society in satiric light, he must grow a crop of gentle cynicisms to protect his own sensibilities."

— + Books p20 S 28 '30 550w

"Mr. Sedgwick's chief present defect is a lack of meditation. His chief virtue is a cool, detached perception which enables him to say no to the values of these nice worthless people, to whom Philip Barry and Scott Fitzgerald say a more or less worshipful yes." J. R.

+ — New Repub 64:108 S 10 '30 250w

"Mr. Sedgwick is too amazed by the vagaries of his people to study them clinically; but if he had applied the microscope we might have had just one more imitation of Sinclair Lewis on our hands instead of a book that has a very unique flavor. Mr. Sedgwick gives us a personality: his own. . . No doubt Mr. Sedgwick has slandered all the prototypes of the characters that appear in his book. He has certainly not written a 'true' novel. But sweetness and light have never succeeded, so why not try malice—with a new twist—just once more?"

+ — N Y Times p7 S 14 '30 650w

"It is difficult to be sure exactly what was the author's aim. His book has none of the frivolity of Mr. Van Vechten, whose earlier books on the same theme might be taken for pure entertainment. He does not give the impression of the stern realist, bent only on presenting an impression of truth; for one thing, he supplies a sort of chorus in two wise-cracking stenographers, who supply a commentary, a thing quite foreign to realism. One must conclude, from the title and some other indications, that the book is meant for a satire; but it has none of the exaggeration or the invective tone of satire. The book shows a power of observation, but not much more."

— Sat R of Lit 7:292 N 1 '30 300w

"Mr. Sedgwick may have had better opportunities for observation than most young authors who write about 'smart' life, but his story is immaturely written and the characters lack reality."

— Springf'd Republican p7e S 14 '30 100w

SEE, HENRI EUGENE. Economic interpretation of history; tr. and introd. by Melvin M. Knight. 154p $3 Adelphi co.

901 History—Philosophy. Economics. Marx, Karl 30-10492

"The author of this book, now Professor Emeritus of History at the University of Rennes and one of the foremost of French scholars in the field of economic history, contributes only eighty pages of text to the volume, the rest of the book being taken up with an introduction and an extended series of bibliographical and critical notes. The introduction is devoted to explaining the differences between the American and European ways of looking at the economic interpretation of history, pointing out the extent to which statistical methods have been applied in this country to forecasting economic trends, and summarizing the scholarly achievements of Professor Sée's long career. Professor Sée's part of the book is a rapid but critical examination of the Marxian materialistic conception of history."—N Y Times

N Y Times p4 Ap 6 '30 600w

St Louis 28:205 S '30

Times [London] Lit Sup p152 F 27 '30 340w

SEECKT, HANS VON. Future of the German empire; criticisms and postulates; with foreword specially written for the English edition, by [the author]; auth. tr. by Oakley Williams. 188p $2.50 Dutton [8s 6d Butterworth, T.]

943.085 Germany—Politics and government 30-15834

General von Seeckt, who succeeded Hindenburg in command of the German army, outlines in this book his political and economic doctrines. He treats of the social and ethical problems in present day Germany, and states his views on foreign policy and on the form, functions, limitations and duties of the head of the state.

"There is nothing especially novel about the views advanced, but the book is written with strength and sound appreciation of the realities of German political and economic life. As an antidote to loose idealism, the volume should prove stimulating." W. L. L.

+ Am Pol Sci R 24:1050 N '30 250w

Reviewed by R. T. House

Books p16 S 21 '30 600w

Boston Transcript p2 Jl 9 '30 500w

"The setting is unreal and more than a little pathetic. But, as the work of an honest-thinking patriot, who by his force of character has won for himself a position in public esteem second only to that of Hindenburg, his analysis commands respect." W. H. Carter

+ — Christian Science Monitor p7 O 4 '30 700w

Reviewed by J. F. Scott

Current Hist 33:xii Ja '31 300w

Reviewed by William MacDonald

Nation 131:328 S 24 '30 400w

"General von Seeckt is out of tune with the Germany of the republican banner because he will not march with a parliamentary régime. His appeals to history to support his opposition to that form of government for the Reich are less convincing than the record of the republic under the parliamentary régime since the war. That record too is history, and it surely justifies the hope that Germany can continue to go forward as a democratic State." L. V. Updegraff

N Y Times p3 Jl 6 '30 880w

"Within certain obvious reservations, there is much sound thought in the book, but it is confused by the author's habitual 'we should do thus and so about it' attitude in his attempt to rationalize the immense problems still to be solved by the heads of the Republican Government. . . His remedies for the national ills seem most persuasive when least affected by protests and recriminations, but elsewhere his arguments are weakened by absence of grasp on practical affairs already accomplished, or now in that process, by his country's leaders. Thus, in his chapter on Germany's Foreign Policy, he seems to have written with the deliberate intention of completely ignoring the late Gustav Stresemann's tremendously important labors in that field, an omission which is likely to exclude the book from serious consideration by those observant of present-day Germany in the making." E. C. Beckwith

— + N Y World p5m Jl 6 '30 250w

Reviewed by John Carter

Outlook 155:471 Jl 23 '30 80w

St Louis 28:246 O '30

"General von Seeckt's book is difficult, as the translator, Mr. Williams, has evidently found. His gnomic sentences require a good deal of thinking over. But no serious student of the modern State, whether Germany or England or America, can afford to neglect the work. Germany may or may not take the General's advice, but she is fortunate in having at her service so able and dispassionate a political philosopher whose military and civil experiences are summed up in this remarkable little book."

+ — Spec 145:22 Jl 5 '30 250w

"This book is packed with solid and valuable thought; but its author, who has contributed a special preface to the English edition, will not take it amiss if he is told that the doctrine which it conveys, systematic and well-balanced though it is, is less instructive to English readers than the method of thinking which it pursues."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p283 Ap 3 '30 1050w

SEELY, JOHN EDWARD BERNARD. Adventure; introd. by the Earl of Birkenhead. 326p il $3.50 Stokes [21s Heinemann]

B or 92 30-10950

General Seely's story of his adventurous life indicates that he has always lived dangerously, and taken danger with the attitude of the Happy warrior. His activities have been chiefly centered in politics and war, and much of his book is devoted to the Great war and his service in it.

Bookm 71:viii Ag '30 50w

Reviewed by William MacDonald

Books p6 My 4 '30 750w

"General Seely's memories of his adventurous life will stir the race consciousness of every Anglo-Saxon reader. We share his pride in the letter he quotes from Foch in recognition and praise of 'the heroism of the valiant Brigade of Canadian Cavalry' which General Seely commanded. This letter fittingly closes a story whose reading is a continued delight, and whose memory will be an inspiration." F. B.

+ Boston Transcript p10 Ap 26 '30 950w

Cleveland Open Shelf p100 Jl '30

"This book is a little too cavalier in execution. But anyone from an out-of-work miner to a Cabinet Minister will read it with pleasure, for it is brave, gay, and generous; and very few will have the heart to reflect that it would have been a better book if its author were not so charming an amateur." Barrington Gates

+ — Nation and Ath 47:20 Ap 5 '30 450w

N Y Times p33 D 14 '30 320w

Sat R 149:271 Mr 1 '30 400w

"A narrative that is often a good deal stranger than fiction and that holds the almost breathless attention of the reader from start to finish." Stanley Went

+ Sat R of Lit 7:120 S 13 '30 900w

"General Seely is unique in being fearless, indomitably gallant and in being also completely naïf in illustrating that character, in conversation or writing. He is the single miles gloriosus who is also honest and brave. It is consistent that he is able to tell readers of the greatest sorrows of his life and admit that he has felt utterly heartbroken. . . He may seem to be a

SEELY, J. E. B.—Continued
frank egotist, but yet is never selfish. The charm and naïveté of the man and of his book really disarm criticism. . . We do not want another war in which General Seely may distinguish himself, but we trust that he has many years before him in which to serve his King and country as usefully, as gallantly and as gaily as he has until now."
+ Spec 144:336 Mr 1 '30 1150w

"This book is entertaining, but far from carefully written. Most of the war scenes, for example, are without dates. . . The memoirs, in fact, give the impression of having been hastily written. This is a pity, for the author has seen at close hand many of the most important events of recent times and known the men chiefly concerned in them."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p115 F 13 '30 850w

SEGHERS, FRAU ANNA. Revolt of the fishermen; tr. from the German by Margaret Goldsmith. 172p $2 Longmans [6s Mathews]
30-4855

"From Germany, where it won the Kleist Prize, comes 'The Revolt of the Fishermen.' The fishermen of a remote village, ground into the mud by the distant corporation that employs them, strike for a larger share of their catch. The soldiers arrive to preserve law and order, the strikers, without plans, without hope, without resources are slowly starved into submission. Hull, the agitator; Andreas, the youth whose passion for life has not yet been wholly quenched; Mary, the village prostitute; the stolid, starving fishermen; the sea, the unending rain, the rocky coast, the stench of the hovels —these are the materials with which the author builds."—Books

Booklist 26:282 Ap '30

"This short tale of the unsuccessful strike of some German fishermen has in it many of the elements that make for greatness. Without sentimentality or stark realism, she creates an atmosphere and peoples it. Lust, madness, hunger and despair are woven into the plot calmly and relentlessly. One expects socialistic pleading or unrestrained pathos in a book of this type; but instead there is the inevitability and universality one demands of art."
+ Bookm 71:xxvi Ap '30 100w

"No recent novel that I have read has so ruthlessly illustrated the tendency toward desperate simplicity as 'The Revolt of the Fishermen,' nor so clearly demonstrated its weakness. For, in stripping her characters of individuality, in making them the lowest common denominator of suffering mankind, and in holding her story rigorously down to their own level, the author has made a novel that is always impressive, but that never lifts the spirit." R. N. Linscott
+ — Books p4 F 9 '30 550w
Boston Transcript p2 Mr 1 '30 350w

"The book has many elements of greatness—firm character studies, fine narration and a sentiment of beauty—but it lacks a special time element which would bring it closer to common experience, make it applicable, as the theme warrants, to human experience in general. A sense of remoteness dulls the force of the picture."
+ — Nation 130:373 Mr 26 '30 120w
New Repub 62:200 Ap 2 '30 220w

"There has been a determined attempt in some quarters to represent The Revolt of the Fishermen as a great book. I remain unimpressed. The whole is reminiscent of some of those Expressionist plays by Frau Seghers's countrymen in which unexpected tricks are used to distract attention from a fundamental poverty of imagination. Starvation, the revolt of the oppressed, the martyrdom of their leader—these are themes which have been used before and may be used again, but which are too old in the world to accommodate themselves easily to the advocacy of the latest fashion in tricks." E. S.
— New Statesman 34:334 D 14 '29 180w

"It is a stark tale and powerfully told. The figures move silently across the black curtain of the drama, their pale faces and hollow eyes infinitely more expressive than the words they cannot utter. Pictures rather than dialogue tell the story. The book has been widely hailed in Germany as the finest exponent of post-war literature. Frau Seghers has been extremely fortunate in her translator."
+ N Y Times p8 F 9 '30 650w

"The book is noteworthy because it deals with the most profound problems of human life and because it is truthful. The author does not embellish, does not sentimentalize. She sees in that little town reflections of much larger conflicts and greater personalities." Bernard Smith
+ N Y World p11m Mr 23 '30 300w
Outlook 154:267 F 12 '30 200w

Reviewed by V. S. Pritchett
Spec 143:503 O 12 '29 320w

"The interesting thing about the novel is its prose style, which is curiously direct, bare, and condensed, but which, in spite of the translator's evident labours, does not come out very well in English."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p1054 D 12 '29 450w

SEI SHONAGON. Sketch book; tr. from the Japanese by Nobuko Kobayashi; with introd. by L. Adams Beck. (Wisdom of the East ser.) 139p $1.50 Dutton [3s 6d Murray, J.]

B or 92 Japan—Court and courtiers. Japan —Social life and customs 30-14925

Selections from the diary of Sei Shōnagon, a lady-in-waiting to the empress of Japan, in the Heian period of about the year 1000 A.D. which give glimpses of the daily life and customs of court at that time.

Bookm 72:x N '30 120w

"Even through the medium of the translation this little book shines, and we can understand why it is fixed as one of the masterpieces of Japanese literature. Certainly, if one of the ends of literature is to fix character alive, Shonagon's sketch book does so." Isidore Schneider
+ Books p21 S 14 '30 500w

"The lady Sei Shōnagon [was a] leader of Japan's bright young people nine hundred years ago. In her slightly cynical but wholly exquisite prose she will live again in many hearts and minds."
+ Spec 144:669 Ap 19 '30 230w

SELDEN, ELIZABETH S. Elements of the free dance. 163p il $1.50 Barnes, A.S. & co.

793.3 Dancing 30-21737

A treatise on barefoot dancing, as opposed to the ballet. Part one takes up the language of rhythm; part two a comparison between the free dance and fixed forms; and part three, the functions of various parts of the body in the dance. An appendix on graphic dynamics is added.

Boston Transcript p2 Ag 9 '30 250w

"It is the result of so many years of observation and comparison of European and American experiments, developments and modes in this type of dancing and of such vigorous and deeply interested thinking that the little book is likely to arrest the attention of any one concerned in this form of art."
+ N Y Times p18 Ag 10 '30 270w
St Louis 28:214 S '30

"Brilliant brochure which admirably marks out for laymen as well as students how bodily rhythm of the Isadora Duncan school is distinct in principle from ballet, folk, national, and all other forms of dancing. . . Large practical returns come from reading this work as it is marked by a ripe scholarship in the ritualism of all dancing."
+ Sat R of Lit 6:1163 Je 28 '30 180w

"The author presupposes on the part of the reader a good amount of quick mental work and of sympathy for her subject; she relies rather upon the logic of facts than upon the power of persuasion. Her style is concise and terse, and shows a gift of clear-cut analysis. . . Miss Selden has done a most useful work and gives needed information on the intricacies of the modern barefoot dance. It also reveals the author as herself an artist and master in the medium on which she has so understandingly written." L. B. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p5e Jl 20 '30 970w

Reviewed by H. F. Ingersoll
Survey 65:111 O 15 '30 250w

SELDES, GILBERT VIVIAN. Future of drinking. 173p $2 Little
817 Prohibition 30-22561

A satiric dissertation upon the effects of the Eighteenth amendment, which has given America the religion of the wets and the religion of the drys. Mr Seldes, concluding that the future of drinking lies in the hands of the drinkers—male and female—outlines the history of prohibition, the romance of the speakeasy, the psychology of drinking, and speculates upon the future.

For biographical sketch of the author see Boston Transcript p1 Ag 16 '30

"This book is more serious than it looks; the comic-strip illustrations and the frivolous typography mislead one a bit. It is an essay on American post-Prohibition drinking habits, written with wit enough, and containing a fair number of interesting observations and an equal number of high-class platitudes, but it is neither profound enough nor funny enough to be absorbing." R. S. Josephy

+ — Bookm 71:569 Ag '30 450w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Books p5 Jl 13 '30 700w

"Mr. Seldes has many sound and clever suggestions; he draws some clever parallels and makes some unexpected points; his phraseology is very apt and entertaining. The drawings by Don Herold, which embellish the text, are wholly amusing."

+ Boston Transcript p5 N 15 '30 300w

Reviewed by H. I. Brock
N Y Times p9 Jl 27 '30 1000w

Reviewed by Harry Hansen
N Y World p9 Jl 15 '30 400w

"Under his witty fooling, Mr. Seldes conceals some sound ideas. He is able to clothe sense in nonsense and with the help of Don Herold's drawings, his book may instruct as well as divert. Certainly those of us who find drunkenness as revolting and vulgar as we find prohibition unintelligent and blind ought to be pleased with the book." F. L. Robbins

+ Outlook 155:428 Jl 16 '30 120w

SELLERS, CHARLES COLEMAN. Benedict Arnold, the proud warrior. (Biographies of unusual Americans) 303p il $3.50 Minton
B or 92 Arnold, Benedict 30-7384

An interpretative biography of the brilliant and notorious American leader and traitor, unbiased and based upon historically accurate facts concerning the man and his career. Mr Sellers does not try to whitewash the character of his subject, but maintains that Arnold's treason was due to his honest belief that the cause of American patriotism was too weak, and that Britain could offer him higher rank and good money for his service in the vocation to which he had given his heart and soul—war.

Booklist 26:394 Jl '30

"Mr. Sellers has told the breathless story well, avoiding the temptation to point a moral or adorn a tale, steering his way with commendable skill between the Scylla of whitewashing and the Charybdis of patriotic denunciation. The biography is clearly the product of an age skeptical of conventional standards of good and evil, right and wrong, and sympathetic to a Machiavellian rôle in the game of war and politics. There is little new either in the facts or the interpretation, but the characters are delineated with skillful pen and the background is sketched in with impressionistic suggestiveness." H. S. Commager

+ Books p4 Mr 9 '30 650w

"Mr. Sellers's accuracy of treatment and his historic viewpoint call for nothing but praise. This is honest biography all the way through. . . He does not show Arnold as a perfect being before his ill treatment, nor does he make him an incarnate fiend after his treachery. His balance is admirable. He holds no brief for or against his subject. He has no notion of his own to prove. He has made exhaustive research. He lets history speak for itself and through his pen it speaks in fascinating tones." S. L. Cook

+ Boston Transcript p8 Mr 15 '30 1450w

Cleveland Open Shelf p59 Ap '30

Reviewed by Francis Snow
Current Hist 32:210 My '30 400w

"This latest biography of the 'traitor' seems impartial and without rancor. The somewhat dragging quality of the writing, which seems to pull the story along rather than push it, prevents its being exciting, as a book about Arnold could so easily be. It gets off to a bad start and is guilty of some confusion. But Arnold's character is skillfully analyzed, his quirks mercilessly exposed, even though he never seems quite real as flesh and blood." J. H. Preston

+ — New Repub 63:25 My 21 '30 500w

"If Mr. Sellers does not sustain the dramatic action uniformly throughout his work, it may be said that this is too much to expect. He is not at his best in those passages in which a style approaching direct narrative is used, as in his accounts of Arnold's military campaigns, although those campaigns were as indicative of the fire-eater's personality as some of the detached incidents on which the author splashes color with a liberal hand." A. S. Will

+ N Y Times p5 Mr 16 '30 1950w

Reviewed by W. B. Shaw
R of Rs 81:10 My '30 250w

SELTZER, CHARLES ALDEN. Gone north. 298p $2 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Hodder]
30-12988

The Hudson Bay country is the setting for this story of Jim Fallon's adventures when he sets out to investigate the mystery of the disappearance of wealthy young Jim Underwood.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p13 My 18 '30 100w

N Y Times p35 N 16 '30 150w

Times [London] Lit Sup p718 S 11 '30 100w

SELVER, PAUL. Private life. 294p $2 Harper [7s 6d Jarrolds]
[29-29973]

Edgar Bellamy, a young English poet, is found murdered. One of his friends (who is writing his biography) tells the story of his acquaintanceship with Bellamy, and eventually succeeds in solving the mystery of his death.

Bookm 72:xxvi O '30 80w

Books p15 D 28 '30 200w

"The author has chosen a difficult angle from which to view his story. He has to deal with a genuine mystery and at the same time analyze two minds and show us the psychology of the whole situation. It is not an easy task. Nor is it as thrilling and absorbing as some of the more melodramatic and sensational stories. Nevertheless the story is cleverly conceived and executed." R. K. M.

+ Boston Transcript p4 N 1 '30 300w

SELVER, PAUL—Continued
"Mr. Selver has done very little with his splendid idea, and that little is by no means good. He is selfconsciously literary. His sentences, like his thoughts, ramble along in no particular direction, toward no particular goal." Dashiell Hammett
— N Y Evening Post p12 S 20 '30 180w

"It is a tale for those who wish to be amused by something more than reaching arms, secret chambers, jade gods and precious rubies. . . Mr. Selver has written a really moving story couched in a peacefully rambling prose, filled with that intimate detail which makes us feel the emotions which stir his characters."
+ N Y Times p9 D 21 '30 420w

"Private Life begins like a detective story, but it is delightfully different from most of these. . . Lovers of mystery who are tired of Scotland Yard, clever amateurs and frequent corpses may be assured of liking this book, which is well written and most amusingly padded with indictments against the cant and hypocrisy of a section of the daily Press." B. E. Todd
+ Spec 143:728 N 16 '29 150w
Times [London] Lit Sup p1000 N 28 '29 500w

SENCOURT, ROBERT ESMONDE. Life of George Meredith. 342p $3.50 Scribner
B or 92 Meredith, George 29-21390
For descriptive note see Annual for 1929.

Booklist 26:202 F '30

Reviewed by Jacob Zeitlin
Books p14 Ja 19 '30 700w

"Meredith as novelist and as poet, no less than as a man, offers numerous problems and Mr. Sencourt attacks them bravely. He is industrious, scholarly, and earnest, and brings to his task the two indispensable qualities of a sound biographer and critic—sympathy and insight." J. J. R.
+ Cath World 131:247 My '30 550w

"This work at once takes its place as the authoritative biography of George Meredith. Mr. Sencourt has sought accuracy in the most thoroughgoing fashion, has handled his information with excellent judgment and has finally told his story with marked literary distinction."
+ Current Hist 31:1068 Mr '30 100w

"Though this book supplants its predecessors simply because Mr. Sencourt has used all the information hitherto available together with a certain amount of new material, it leaves room for a more penetrating analysis of Meredith's personality. . . It is a somewhat confused and confusing account, a useful compilation of facts illuminated by flashes of sound criticism, but yielding neither a complete and satisfying portrait of Meredith nor any striking estimate of his place in literature." Granville Hicks
— + Nation 130:101 Ja 22 '30 750w

"Mr. Sencourt has written—in parts overwritten—a very able study of Meredith. This book is a subtle piece of advocacy, carefully planned." Barrington Gates
+ Nation and Ath 46:sup228 N 9 '29 260w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:10 F '30
Pratt p37 spring '30
St Louis 28:52 F '30
Wis Lib Bul 26:105 Mr '30

"Mr. Sencourt has now written not only the biography of Meredith but a work of art in its own right. A happy blending of the old and new styles of biographical writing with the virtues of both and the vices of neither, it is a performance of such interest and distinction that I can imagine its being read with pleasure by persons unacquainted with Meredith's works, although I can hardly imagine its being laid down without a keen desire to read them. The style has fittingly now and again a tinge of Meredith's own with a charming unself-consciousness and never a taint of mere imitation with the added virtue (which Meredith's seldom had) of a lucid simplicity." Lucien Price
+ Yale R n s 19:836 summer '30 750w

SETON, GRAHAM, pseud. See Hutchison, G. S.

SETUBAL, PAULO. Domitila; the romance of an emperor's mistress; tr. and adapted from the Portuguese by Margaret Richardson. 324p $2 Coward-McCann
30-21870

An historical novel, the scene of which is Brazil in the early part of the last century. It recounts the main episodes in the life of Domitila, the beautiful Pompadour of Brazil, whose dream was to become empress, a feat which she never accomplished.

"Just as the boldness of tyrants fizzles out in retrospect, as the hot romances of kings drift to ashes at the passing of their lives, so this authentic story of an Emperor and his paramour turns, as you read it, to dust. The trappings seem somehow tawdry; the gestures, trifling. The author has not breathed life into his puppets."
— Books p17 S 21 '30 400w

"Somewhat overemotional and adjectival, it does, however, offer an animated, colorful chronicle of misspent royal life in Rio de Janeiro during the first decades of the nineteenth century. Margaret Richardson's translation is very readable and there is an excellent appendix of historical explanatory notes." F. H. M.
+ — N Y Evening Post p5s Ag 16 '30 80w

"It is [its] very adherence to the historical truth that makes this book less interesting as a romance but valuable for those interested in Brazilian history. . . With a more glamourous touch, and still no sacrifice of the truth, Dr. Setubal might have achieved a really brilliant historical romance."
+ — N Y Times p14 Ag 24 '30 180w

SEYMOUR, BEATRICE KEAN (STAPLETON) (MRS WILLIAM KEAN SEYMOUR). False spring. 316p $2.50 Knopf [7s 6d Chapman]
30-850

An inhibited young English girl, Virginia Brodie, runs away to Italy with a married man. When he deserts her, Virginia returns to England and takes a position as companion to an elderly woman, with whose grandson she falls deeply and lastingly in love. But her past pursues her and the affair is broken off. Later Virginia marries and leads a quietly happy life.

Booklist 26:282 Ap '30

"The theme of False Spring has already been worn quite threadbare; but Beatrice Kean Seymour writes with so much tact and earnestness that our perception of her fundamental triteness is nearly obscured. She has clothed her thesis in vivid and recognizable characters; she has plotted carefully; and her style—clumsy at times, and without manifest excellence—is nevertheless strong and graphic enough for her purposes."
+ — Bookm 70:671 F '30 320w

"'False Spring' unfolds as an engaging story about characters in whose existence one not only believes but toward whom one's sympathies are deftly drawn. The import of the problem is not confined to mere blackboard demonstration; it permeates the whole structure of the novel. Mrs. Seymour has handled her materials with discernment and with that absence of effort which communicates itself to the reader in the form of a sustained satisfaction."
+ Books p19 Mr 9 '30 250w

"The weakness of the story lies in the rather too neat pattern into which Mrs. Seymour fits her characters. It is seldom if ever that all her characters in any group of people may be disposed of so competently and acceptably. It gives a certain brittle sense of unreality to what is on the whole an interesting study." D. L. M.
+ — Boston Transcript p1 Mr 8 '30 500w

Cleveland Open Shelf p61 Ap '30

"Here is language impeccably written, flowing smoothly to perform its proper functions; here is a story built up with logic and reason, and not thrown together in the ardent but unreasonable hope that isolated episodes may lead to a unifying culmination. The whole book and its people are true to life, with the flow and ebb of interest that life affords. It is a great pity that the final something—that spark which transmutes life into great art—is missing. But even without this, the book is head and shoulders above the average novel." Lillian Rogers
+ N Y Evening Post p6s Ja 4 '30 850w

"In spite of its lack of originality 'False Spring' is an agreeable tale. Mrs. Seymour is a gifted story teller. She contrives her plots neatly, smoothly and effectively. To her characters she imparts a convincing quality of roundness and vitality. She defines them economically, with small, distinctive touches more akin to truth than to fiction. These qualities, together with the flowing movement of her narrative style, prevent her reader from recognizing, or at least from fretting over, the essential triteness of her theme."
+ N Y Times p7 Ja 5 '30 600w

"The book is agreeably written and pleasant in a marsh-mallowy way. It bears about as much relation to life as it is lived as the Elsie Dinsmore books." Marie Luhrs
— N Y World p11m Ja 26 '30 250w

"This is a thoughtful and well-written novel, if not strikingly original or richly imaginative."
+ Outlook 154:71 Ja 8 '30 300w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:32 Ap '30

" 'False Spring' is not quite up to Mrs. Seymour's standard; she squanders and divides her forces, and does not always take trouble: nearly all the quotations and references to literature (there are several) in the book are inaccurate. It is excusable that Virginia, an amateur of letters should misquote Keats, but Charles the professor ought not to have done. Still, it is a full-bodied, bustling book, with many casements opening on vistas of ordinary life." L. P. Hartley
+ — Sat R 148:456 O 19 '29 380w

"This impresses one as that rare thing, a novel that primarily intends to tell a story. The story is an excellent one, dramatic and convincing; one foresees, yet one is anxious. But in the story lies much more than the story itself. The characters stand out, vivid and authentic, at least the women; the men, as is almost inevitable in a novel by a woman are less life-like."
+ Sat R of Lit 6:857 Mr 22 '30 450w

"Though a little artificially constructed and at times desultory in execution, is one of those novels of middle-class life that holds the reader chiefly by the credibility of their characters."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p788 O 10 '29 450w

SEYMOUR, FLORA WARREN (SMITH) (MRS GEORGE STEELE SEYMOUR). Sam Houston, patriot. 232p il $2 Century

B or 92 Houston, Samuel 30-24145

The story of the adventurous life of Sam Houston, written for boys and girls.

Reviewed by S. L. Goldsmith
Books p14 N 16 '30 500w

"A biography which is no mere record of the incidents of an exciting life but is a character study of a brave, vain, flamboyant, splendid figure." E. O'Connor
+ N Y Evening Post p7d N 15 '30 50w

"Her pages show familiarity with the best recent material on the subject, including Marquis James's biography; and they show also a keen sympathy with her hero. . . Mrs. Seymour has given us the one good juvenile life of him in existence, and it deserves a wide circulation."
+ Sat R of Lit 7:353 N 15 '30 250w

SFORZA, CARLO, conte. Makers of modern Europe; portraits and personal impressions and recollections. 420p il $5 Bobbs [21s Mathews]

920 Statesmen. Europe—Biography 30-11465

Franz Joseph, Foch, Lloyd George, Mussolini, Pius XI, Lenin, Mustafa Kemal, Trotzky and many others are portrayed by the former Italian minister of foreign affairs.

"This is an interestingly written, well illustrated volume of political portraits. In Count Sforza's chapters, brief though they are, the reader is undoubtedly given the benefit of a shrewd observer's keen insight into the characters of some of Europe's outstanding statesmen." F. L. Benns
+ Am Hist R 36:200 O '30 550w

"The historian of Europe will find much to assist him in these thirty-seven sketches of outstanding political leaders in Europe. Count Sforza has not given us well-rounded, definitive biographical sketches. He has given us impressions that are interpretations of character. As he confesses, his book is rather disorganized; it is not 'arranged.' Nevertheless, the reader who thumbs these pages will frequently be rewarded by shrewd comments and sometimes even by glimpses into the inner recesses of human souls." R. L. Buell
+ Books p13 My 25 '30 970w

Boston Transcript p2 My 14 '30 300w

"A shrewd observer, a man of wide international acquaintance, a convinced democrat, a student who understands America and its people, Count Sforza has written a book which no observer of international affairs can afford to miss." W. J. Abbot
+ Christian Science Monitor p12 Ap 19 '30 750w

Cleveland Open Shelf p101 Jl '30

"Count Sforza has given us one of the most interesting and valuable books of its kind that has appeared since the close of the World War. These qualities come from his experience and his character. Taken as a whole the book may be safely pronounced sound and reliable. But a word of caution is in order. It is in large measure a book of personal reminiscences and in books of that character personal bias always plays a part. Count Sforza writes with large knowledge, rare candor, an unusual degree of fair-mindedness, and in a singularly persuasive manner. For these reasons his readers are in some danger of forgetting that he has a personal bias and that at times it affects his views."
+ — Current Hist 32:847 Ag '30 1250w

Foreign Affairs 8:672 Jl '30 30w

Reviewed by Leonard Woolf
Nation and Ath 48:197 N 8 '30 550w

Reviewed by T. R. Ybarra
New Statesman 35:798 O 4 '30 1100w

N Y Times p11 My 11 '30 1400w

"This book, by the way, is the best political portrait gallery assembled by any European statesman since the War. It is faintly ironic, well-informed and admirably written." John Carter
+ Outlook 154:669 Ap 23 '30 250w

St Louis 28:217 S '30

Spec 145:507 O 11 '30 200w

"More important for its commentary than for its actual history. The opinions here expressed are those of an individual, a distinguished Italian diplomat, and there is considerable of the 'I' about them, which Sforza recognizes and for which he apologizes. There is, however, no need to apologize; the fact of the recurring 'I' serves to adjust the reader's viewpoint. The discussion of Fascism, consuming five chapters and describing its diplomatic, its literary and its immediate origins, its transformation and its relation to the church, is particularly informative."
+ Springf'd Republican p10 Je 3 '30 520w

"It is because the reader never knows when the partisan in Count Sforza will seize control

SFORZA, CARLO—Continued
of his pen that he hesitates to surrender himself to the charm of the book and to accept its vivid presentations as historic truth. It is a pity that the critical faculty should be thus unduly stimulated, for this is an important and even a remarkable work. . . It is written with exceptional knowledge. The subtlety of a thoroughly Italian mind is brought to bear upon the analysis of character, with the result that, though many of the thirty-seven character studies in the volume are quite short, none of them is trite or superficial."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p829 O 16 '30 1350w

SHAABER, MATTHIAS ADAM. Some forerunners of the newspaper in England, 1476-1622. 368p il $4 Press of the Univ. of Pa. [17s Oxford]

072 English literature—History and criticism. Newspapers—England. Journalism 29-24766

For descriptive note see Annual for 1929.

Reviewed by W. G. Bleyer
Am Hist R 35:591 Ap '30 850w
Booklist 26:339 Je '30 80w
Eng Hist R 45:682 O '30 250w
Reviewed by H. de W. Fuller
Nation 130:372 Mr 26 '30 580w
N Y Evening Post p7m Ja 18 '30 200w

"An excellent piece of research and of bookmaking." D. Foster
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 12 '30 1700w

SHAKESPEARE, WILLIAM. Songs; ed. by Tucker Brooke; with an introd. by Walter De La Mare. 168p $1.50 Morrow

822.33 Shakespeare, William—Songs 29-25496

"A complete collection of the songs written by or attributed to Shakespeare, edited by Tucker Brooke and issued in a charming edition."—Wis Lib Bul

---

"Some of the selections lose in meaning, of course, by being lifted from their context, but the sweet word magic of the singing verses suffers no disturbance." B. R. Redman
+ Books p12 Ja 12 '30 100w

"Fills a niche not precisely occupied by any volume ever previously issued. Many of the lesser poems, although fulfilling the function for which they were written as parts of a greater whole, do not shine when isolated from their natural surroundings. This is not to imply that Professor Brooke's collection does not fulfill its purpose and that it will not prove a joy to the general reader and a treasure to the student. It is only to say that Shakespeare's art transcended the limits of the songbook." S. A. Coblentz
+ N Y Times p5 N 17 '29 470w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:34 Ap '30
St Louis 28:76 Mr '30
Spec 144:sup625 Ap 12 '30 40w
Wis Lib Bul 26:39 Ja '30

SHAND, PHILIP MORTON. Modern picture-houses and theaters (Eng title: Modern theatres and cinemas). 40p il $5 (15s) Lippincott

725.82 Moving picture theaters

Contemporary architecture and modern methods of theater decoration are described and illustrated in this volume. Many of the designs for cinema houses and theaters are by German architects: Friedrich Lipp, Hans Poelzig, Schaffler, Fritz Wilms, etc. The author discusses their various plans for the modern theater, giving a detailed account of the new theatrical architecture, which he terms neo-baroque.

Christian Science Monitor p12 N 29 '30 800w

"The theatres and cinemas favoured—the selection is an international one—are not necessarily the most recent of their kind, but are rather those which, in Mr. Shand's opinion, exhibit the most distinctively 'modernist' features. The photographs include, besides exteriors, general interior views, proscenium-openings, mural decoration, foyers, passages, box-offices, seating, and so on, while some of the most interesting plates illustrate lighting effects and 'night façades.' The letterpress, which is unusually gay and slangy, makes amusing reading, though some people will think that Mr. Shand has carried facetiousness too far."
Times [London] Lit Sup p937 N 13 '30 1050w

SHANKS, LEWIS PIAGET. Baudelaire; flesh and spirit. 265p il $3.50 Little

B or 92 Baudelaire, Charles Pierre 30-10374

Professor Shanks of Johns Hopkins University has given a revealing picture of the French poet whose life was a conflict between the flesh and the spirit and who put his sick soul into the morbid pages of Les Fleurs du Mal.

"Among the numerous studies in French and English which have contributed to the posthumous fame of this long-misunderstood poet, none is more important or more satisfying than that by Mr. Shanks. For unhampered by the vague enthusiasm of Arthur Symons or the scientific thesis of certain French writers, he presents the man and his work in a manner at once sympathetic and critical." Justin O'Brien
+ Bookm 71:332 Je '30 500w

"It is not an ideal biography of Baudelaire, but it is the best we have." Malcolm Cowley
+ — Books p8 Ap 13 '30 1150w
Boston Transcript p2 Je 28 '30 750w

"A straightforward and well-informed account of the poet's unhappy struggles, together with much interpretative and appreciative criticism. Often an illuminating critic, he is seldom a profoundly judicious one, and one feels that he never quite succeeds in defining Baudelaire's peculiar qualities or in explaining his importance. His book, however, is valuable as an introduction to the poet and praiseworthy as a careful, sympathetic, and rightly directed attempt to understand a peculiarly difficult personality."
+ — Nation 130:712 Je 18 '30 160w

"The completed volume gives us the vague figure of a romantic idiot with a genius for evocative language. That is the only impression which Mr. Shanks succeeds in conveying of the passionate intelligence, the disciplined intellect of Baudelaire. The trouble lies in Mr. Shanks's principles of literary biography. He believes that 'a poet's life is his works, far more than the adventures of his body. A poet's life is the moods that enchain him.' What is worse, he forces the poems into the life. Whole poems, in translation, are used as if they formed integral paragraphs in his narrative. It is difficult, in reading an interpretation of this kind, to resist the conviction that, if what the biographer says is true, the poems must be rubbish and the poet an ass." R. P. Blackmur
— New Repub 64:54 Ag 27 '30 750w

"It must be mentioned that Mr. Shanks merits his laurels not only as a critic but as a translator. His translation of the poems is, to the knowledge of this reviewer, the only adequate one accomplished in English." Marjorie Johnson
+ N Y Evening Post p11m Ap 12 '30 850w
Reviewed by Herbert Gorman
N Y Times p4 My 4 '30 1150w

"Prof. Shanks has written his biography with a penetrating knowledge of the poet's mind and a scholarly handling of the available material dealing with the poet's life. He has checked up the poetry by the life, and the life by the poetry." Pierre Loving

+ N Y World p10m Mr 30 '30 1050w

"Excellent and interesting as Mr. Shanks's book is, one is not quite sure what his object was in writing it. There is Baudelaire the man, Baudelaire the poet, Baudelaire the translator and critic, Baudelaire the ancestor of Verlaine and Rimbaud, of Mallarmé and Paul Valéry. With the Baudelaire who was all these and a man of genius, Mr. Shanks, in spite of many glimpses, never comes quite face to face. A work which accomplished this would fulfil a real function." James Orrick
+ — Sat R of Lit 7:121 S 13 '30 1250w

SHANNON, ALEXANDER HARVEY. Negro in Washington; a study in race amalgamation. 332p $3 Neale
325.26 Mulattoes. Negroes—District of Columbia. United States—Race question
30-9962

In this study of the mulatto in Washington the author advocates as a solution of the race problem the complete segregation of the Negro, or better, his repatriation in Africa. He believes that race amalgamation would be a very bad thing for the United States.

"This book is a strange mixture of facts, exhortations, moralizing, and endless repetitions. Reuter's study of the mulatto furnishes most of the facts. The author emphasizes the necessity for immediate action in the present situation by exclamations that sprinkle the pages of the book." E. F. Frazier
— Am J Soc 36:501 N '30 450w
Cath World 132:116 O '30 150w
St Louis 28:205 S '30

SHAPLEY, HARLOW. Flights from chaos; a survey of material systems from atoms to galaxies. 168p il $2.50 Whittlesey house 2
523 Cosmology

Harlow Shapley seeks in this volume to bring order out of universal chaos by setting forth an arrangement and classification of all the known types of material systems, from electrons to galaxies. Dr Shapley is director of the Harvard astronomical observatory.

"Such a survey of the conceptions which constitute the outlook on the universe of a leading astronomer is of immediate and challenging interest to all scientific men. It may, however, be too concise for a popular audience. Astronomical terms are not defined and no space is given to the actual evidence. Furthermore, some words, such as galaxy, for instance, seem to be used in both specific and general meanings. The untrained reader therefore may not share fully in the impulse which gives the title to the book. To the scientist, order has replaced chaos, but to the lay reader the beauty is dimmed by the intervening chaos of technical terms." Gerald Wendt
+ — Books p3 D 21 '30 1250w

"One cannot do better than recommend all who wish to think clearly about the immensities which surround us to betake themselves to Harlow Shapley's lucid and cogent pages." Charles Johnston
+ N Y Times p5 D 28 '30 1200w

Reviewed by W. B. Shaw
R of Rs 83:14 Ja '31 100w

SHAPLEY, HARLOW, and HOWARTH, HELEN ETHEL. Source book in astronomy. (Source bks. in the hist. of the sciences ser.) 412p il $4 McGraw
520.8 Astronomy 29-1109

"Significant excerpts from the writings of sixty-three great astronomers from Copernicus to G. H. Darwin. Includes the papers of Adams and Leverrier on the discovery of Neptune. Heavy technicalities and complicated mathematics have been avoided. Dr. Shapley is the well-known Professor of Astronomy in Harvard University."—N Y New Tech Bks

N Y New Tech Bks 14:19 Ap '29
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 34:37 My '29
Pratt p14 winter '30
St Louis 27:160 My '29

"Will prove delightful and informative—an unbeatable combination. There's romance here, and spaces so open that the so-called great outdoors of fortunate vacationers seems to stretch about as far as a snail's before-breakfast stroll." D. A.
+ World Tomorrow 12:346 Ag '29 80w

SHARP, MARGERY. Rhododendron pie. 359p $2.50 Appleton [7s 6d Chatto & W.]
30-17094

The Laventies were a family of English literary-artistic snobs, living in a state of semi-isolation on their beautiful country estate. Ann, the only Philistine in the group, made a brave pretense of living up to her family's requirements but when it came to a decision between the solid, sturdy bank clerk John as a husband, or the artist Gilbert as a lover, Ann chose John.

Booklist 27:66 O '30

Reviewed by Guy Holt
Bookm 72:207 O '30 100w

"The story is delightfully simple and there is no plot to speak of. It reminds one of good conversationalists in their lighter moments, and if, from the standpoint of artistry, the book is overlong and somewhat loose, it is never boring even when it is temporarily quiescent. The mood is maintained to the end, which is unusual in witty books. It is written in the best of temper; and it is as amusing a story as one is likely to find on a season's list." F. T. Marsh
+ Books p2 Jl 27 '30 620w
Boston Transcript p2 Ag 27 '30 700w
Cleveland Open Shelf p127 S '30

Reviewed by L. L. Irvine
Nation and Ath 46:582 Ja 25 '30 50w

"It requires some skill in invention and characterisation, some delicacy of style to draw the reader on among foregone certainties, but Miss Sharp accomplishes her difficult task with success. She abstains from making her highbrows mere butts, but allows them to have a certain dignity of their own. It would have been easy to make all these persons pretentious and valueless as well as narrow, and Miss Sharp deserves credit for avoiding the easy path which would have taken the sting out of her comedy as well as all the difficulty out of Ann's choice. Her work is very smoothly and pleasantly done, though with adaptation so close to its limited aim that I am bound to say that, in spite of its being a first novel, it shows absolutely no promise of anything better to come. Tact and moderation of this sort in a young novelist are just a little disconcerting." E. S.
+ — New Statesman 34:572 F 8 '30 650w

"One feels that Miss Sharp, in an effort to show the emptiness of the Laventie cleverness, has made it just a little too empty to be clever. She is so much on Ann's side that one is tempted to think she has drawn her intelligentsia with the taste of too green grapes in her mouth. However, the story is much too light to be taken very seriously. It has a certain charm and moves along smoothly, if slowly. It should make pleasant reading."
+ — N Y Times p7 Jl 13 '30 350w
Pratt p39 autumn '30

"A good many authors, trying to present clever disagreeable people, have managed to make them disagreeable without succeeding in making them clever. Miss Sharp does both; with admirable sureness, a lightly playing wit, and a keen perception, she shows you the merit as well as the fault in the Laventies. This is, no doubt, a 'light' novel—the kind of light novel

SHARP, MARGERY—Continued
that critics are always asking for, and to which the public is usually so indifferent when on rare occasions it actually arrives. But it is the keen lightness of a Damascus blade; read it for fun and you will find yourself digesting some uncomfortable doses of truth, whether you be sophisticate of anti-sophisticate." Elmer Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 7:54 Ag 16 '30 400w

" 'Rhododendron Pie' is something more than an amusing and good-natured gibe at literary and artistic snobbery, for all the Laventie family and the various minor characters are far more than argumentative counters in the attack or defence of æstheticism. They have all authentic lives of their own, and Miss Sharp is particularly successful in catching the accent of those inhabitants of the modern world who carry a magnificent undergraduate irresponsibility into the affairs of everyday life."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p76 Ja 30 '30 430w

SHAW, ALBERT. Abraham Lincoln; profusely illustrated with contemporary cartoons, portraits and scenes. 2v set $6 Review of Reviews corp.

B or 92 Lincoln, Abraham. Caricatures and cartoons 30-572

For descriptive note see Annual for 1929.

Reviewed by Charles Johnston
Atlantic Bookshelf p28 My '30 500w

"Dr. Shaw calls the two quartos he has compiled 'a Cartoon History'. The critical will be inclined to consider it also a 'scrap-book' history. Without special literary style he rambles in the first volume from the date of Lincoln's birth, along American political roads, to 1860, with cartoon accompaniments, and other illustration of the sort to please premium subscribers. Much information is picked up by the way and the efforts of the cartoonists get great space, though there are defects in giving credit and the identification of the artists, that leave wide gaps in the knowledge afforded."
— + Bookm 71:xviii Ap '30 150w

"A running narrative of events forms the background for the pictures and offers a satisfactory historical setting. The effort is sometimes commonplace but never poor, and there are parts which have a real value in themselves. Mr. Shaw has read widely and makes use of the best scholarship available. He quotes heavily but does not hesitate to cut away from the beaten paths where his own knowledge enables him to do so." Avery Craven
+ — Books p3 F 9 '30 850w

"Dr. Shaw has taken the old facts and given them new life. He has made available a collection of contemporary cartoons—of the utmost historical importance—which have never before been seen by the reading public. He has used his imagination. Here is scholarship, color, enthusiasm, and vividness." N. G. Goodman
+ Hist Outlook 21:398 D '30 750w

"Unfortunately the value of this remarkable collection is considerably marred by two things —first, the lack of chronological consequences, and, second, the frequent failure to mark the sources of the cartoon, the date and place of publication, and the method of its appearance. Both these things militate much against the value of the work as a historical document, which is all the more regrettable because of the excellent taste displayed in the choice of the pictorial material that has been used." O. G. Villard
— + Nation 130:604 My 21 '30 450w

Reviewed by C. W. Thompson
N Y Times p3 Ja 26 '30 1800w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:47 Je '30
Pratt p35 autumn '30
St Louis 28:113 Ap '30

"We cannot say that the letterpress is remarkable for either style or arrangement; but to anyone with a knowledge of American controversies and crises in the last century, and the bitterness that disfigured them, the author's fairness of mind is a most conspicuous and refreshing trait. . . The reproduction of cartoons of the period furnishes a history in itself, and one of very great interest."
+ — Spec 144:sup379 Mr 8 '30 1100w

"At times these political caricatures fall flat, for the controversial cartoon, like soufflé, should be served hot; but, for the most part, they impart a refreshing vividness to the Lincoln story. Though the cartoonist's craft, then as now, was degraded to journalistic ends, yet from turning these delightful pages one not only acquires a sense of being close to Lincoln's day, but a new conception of the exuberant and powerful journalism of that period." J. G. Randall
+ — Yale R n s 19:834 summer '30 280w

SHAW, CLIFFORD ROBE, and others. Delinquency areas; a study of the geographic distribution of school truants, juvenile delinquents, and adult offenders in Chicago. (Behavior research fund) 214p $4 Univ. of Chicago press [18s Cambridge univ. press]

364 Juvenile delinquency. Crime and criminals—Chicago. School attendance. Chicago —Social conditions 30-2669

"The project, which is defined as a 'situational' (or cultural or sociological) approach to delinquency, concerns itself with the geographic distribution in the city of Chicago of 55,998 delinquents, consisting of 5,515 male school truants, 43,298 juvenile delinquents, and 7,541 adult offenders. The method utilized in the project was to plot the home addresses of the individuals on base maps of the city of Chicago, to compute the ratio of offenders to the total population of similar age and sex in the different areas of the city, and to compare the resultant rates of delinquency by square mile areas for each series of offenders."—Ann Am Acad

"This is one of the very important contributions to the literature of criminology. . . The importance of the study lies in the fact that it locates the areas in which delinquency is concentrated and thus locates the points at which more intensive study and efforts at control should be concentrated." E. H. Sutherland
+ Am J Soc 36:139 Jl '30 900w

"Taken as a whole, this volume represents a significant contribution to the study of delinquency and to sociological procedure. The method is wholly inductive. Facts are presented graphically. Maps are not spared: there are sixty-six in the book. Sociologists can profit by these examples, as well as by the modesty of the authors in their insistence that their study represents 'only the initial step in a sociological study of juvenile delinquency.' " J. H. S. Bossard
+ Ann Am Acad 149:sup209 My '30 400w

"We have had many valuable studies of this problem from the standpoint of the individual characteristics of the offender. The volume under discussion represents the first successful attempt to study the problem from the sociological standpoint, that is, from the standpoint of social and cultural setting in which the delinquent behavior appears. The authors keep their generalizations well within the bounds of their facts and call for the testing of their findings by the study of the distribution of delinquency in other communities." H. E. Jensen
+ Christian Century 47:306 Mr 5 '30 850w
St Louis 28:207 S '30

SHAW, CLIFFORD ROBE, ed. The jack-roller, a delinquent boy's own story. (Behavior research fund) 205p $2.50 Univ. of Chicago press [11s 6d Cambridge univ. press]

364 Juvenile delinquency. Children—Charities, protection, etc. Reformatories. Chicago —Charities 30-16374

"In this volume we have an exhaustive case-study of a single delinquent. It begins with Mr. Shaw's summary and a study of the social and cultural background; the bulk of it is the boy's own story as he himself wrote it; the conclusion is a discussion of the case and of the method by Professor E. W. Burgess. This boy was a delinquent—no doubt about that. Between the ages of six and seventeen he acquired a police record which included 38 separate episodes, beginning with being picked up as a runaway from home and ending with imprisonment for a year for burglary and 'jack-rolling' (robbing drunks). His story is a well written, detailed narrative of the objective events of his experience and a complete disclosure of his own attitude toward his family, his companions, his criminal activities, his victims, the officers of the law, the institutions in which he was confined, and the people who tried to help him."

—Christian Century

"Doubtless many readers of this book will be much impressed by the striking narrative of Stanley's experiences. For some it may afford an evening's entertainment; for others it may arouse resentment at the treatment afforded young delinquents in one of our great commonwealths; for still others it may seem adequate proof of all that is said about 'Gangster' Chicago and its hoodiums. For the student of human behavior, however, the interest lies in the amazingly successful combination of research and analysis with personal therapy. Here we have a case in which analysis of the personal and social factors is made the basis upon which the individual is rehabilitated from a life of social disorganization to one of conventionality." Kimball Young

+ Am J Soc 36:474 N '30 1150w

Reviewed by Read Bain
Ann Am Acad 151:285 S '30 380w

"The marvel of this story, and the thing that makes it not only a human interest story and a vivid presentation of the crime problem but also a contribution to the solution of that problem, is the fact that this unpromising candidate for citizenship has for the past five years been going perfectly straight, is prospering in a good job which he has held for two years, has a good wife and a baby, and is an adjusted member of society and no longer an enemy of it or an irresponsible drifter on its surface." W. E. Garrison

+ Christian Century 47:817 Je 25 '30 950w

Int J Ethics 41:128 O '30 350w

"The monograph is highly important for all social workers and sociological students, but it has much interest also for the layman who wants to keep abreast of progress in social and reformatory work."

+ N Y Times p16 D 21 '30 450w

Reviewed by E. T. Devine
Outlook 155:430 Jl 16 '30 200w

St Louis 28:207 S '30

Reviewed by J. F. Binford
Survey 64:479 S 1 '30 750w

Times [London] Lit Sup p678 Ag 28 '30 1150w

SHAW, FRANK H. Full fathom five; a book of famous shipwrecks (Eng title: Famous shipwrecks). 301p il $3 Macmillan

910.4 Shipwrecks 30-25791

An account of several famous tragedies of the sea, including the sinking of a H.M.S. Victoria, the wreck of the Duncan Dunbar, the Titanic shipwreck, the sinking of the Lusitania, and other tales of disaster and courage at sea.

Booklist 27:154 D '30

Bookm 72:xii N '30 120w

"As a juvenile book I see this for big boys and girls. The sea-story lapses will bother them not at all—they will enjoy them, probably—and they will also enjoy, and for a better reason, the real knowledge of ships and sea adventure which underlie these tales." Henry Beston

Books p8 N 30 '30 650w

Reviewed by E. O'Connor
N Y Evening Post p7d N 15 '30 80w

N Y Times p25 O 12 '30 220w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:91 D '30

"Captain Shaw brings to the work vivid description and a sympathetic background gained of his own experience at sea. Reading such a collection of marine tragedies might be a gruesome business; but by the magic of his language and by his emphasis on the exalted heroism frequently displayed in sea disasters the author has lifted the book above the level of morbidity." A. F. Loomis

+ Sat R of Lit 7:205 O 11 '30 700w

"Thrilling tales of sea-disaster and sea-gallantry retold by Captain Shaw, who brings to his task a very marked power of descriptive narrative and whose own long experience of the sea enables him to give the appropriate setting to each great story."

+ Spec 145:293 Ag 30 '30 200w

SHAW, JOSEPH THOMPSON. Derelict. 264p $2 Knopf

30-20815

The mystery of the derelict liner, Maricopa, almost deserted by passengers and crew, surrounds Whiz-bang Halliday and a pretty girl named Sandy, who are among the few people left on board the boat.

"A gripping tale of mystery with a perfect background."

+ Bookm 72:xxii S '30 80w

"Mr. Shaw's style may be described as excessively wordy, if not polysyllabic." Will Cuppy

— Books p12 Ag 24 '30 80w

"The author's flare for nautical detail slackens the action somewhat in the two or three chapters that follow the first one. But 'Derelict' is nevertheless an exciting tale and as exciting an ocean journey as any reader would wish to take."

+ — N Y Times p16 Ag 24 '30 250w

"It is good sea stuff, carefully documented to stop the tongue of the scoffer, and the characters—although Whizz-bang tends to be a little too super-human at moments—are deftly drawn." W. C. Weber

+ Sat R of Lit 7:478 D 20 '30 100w

SHAW, MARTIN FALLAS. Up to now. 218p il $2.50 (7s 6d) Oxford

B or 92 Musicians—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 29-1793

The autobiography of an English composer, containing interesting anecdotes of some of his famous associates: Gordon Craig, Augustus John, John Masefield, Isadora Duncan, John Ireland and Clifford Bax; and church people like Percy Scholes and Maude Royden.

"These reminiscences and reflections of half a century are good reading. They carry you along intimately into the inner circle and the family and make you at home at once. You are on personal friendly terms with the writer before you know it and you like him whether you are musically inclined or not. Musical folk, however, will be especially interested. Organists and leaders of church music will find help and suggestions in his experiences." T. C. R.

+ Boston Transcript p7 D 14 '29 450w

Cleveland Open Shelf p51 Ap '30

"This is an entertaining little autobiography, ambling and inconsequent, full of revealing anecdotes about other interesting people besides the author and his immediate associates. One of the most valuable chapters tells of the early association of Martin Shaw and Gordon Craig. . . The chapters which deal with Isadora Duncan's European tours, in which Martin Shaw took part as her conductor, are also among the best in the book, but it is irritating to have so many facts and so few dates."

+ — Theatre Arts Mo 14:89 Ja '30 180w

"From his boyhood he has been meeting notable people, and seems soon to have developed a talent for character drawing. His descriptions of people, like his anecdotes, are always friendly. He likes his kind, and appears to have enjoyed life even during times of trial. The affectionate account of childhood days at Hampstead when the garden suburb was a rural scene is all too brief. 'Up to Now' is a commendable book of gossip, and the title promises there is more to follow."

SHAW, M. F.—Continued

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p669 Ag 29 '29 100w

SHAY, FRANK. Charming murder. 255p $2 Macaulay

30-23194

Dr Charming is murdered during a prolonged liquor bout, to which several guests have been invited; the puzzle is to find the murderer behind the many impersonations and disguises.

Bookm 72:xxvii O '30 100w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p14 O 19 '30 100w

Reviewed by Bruce Rae
N Y Times p36 N 16 '30 100w

"There is an awful lot of liquor in this book, but the solution is unexpected and ingenious." W. R. Brooks

Outlook 156:160 S 24 '30 80w

SHAY, FRANK. Here's audacity! American legendary heroes. 256p il $3 Macaulay

398.2 Folklore—United States. Legends—America

30-30422

The legendary heroes of America whose origin and history Mr Shay traces in this volume are: Old Stormalong, the deep-water sailorman; Kwasind, Hercules of the American Indians; The white steed, phantom of the prairies; Casey Jones, the railroad engineer; Kemp Morgan, the Texas oil driller; Strap Buckner, the man who fought the devil; Pecos Bill, the cowboy; Paul Bunyan, mightiest of loggers; Tony Beaver, of Eel river, West Virginia; John Henry, the steel driving man.

Reviewed by Arthur Warner
Books p21 N 23 '30 500w

"It's all good folk-lore, told with humor and a sense of dramatic contrast. The idea is that these legends originated in the rich, genial lying of outdoor he-men around the campfire. Homer may have collected some of his mythological stuff the same way. Perhaps that's where and why Homer nodded. But Frank Shay is a live myth-recorder, and no one will fall asleep over his book." F. H. M.

+ N Y Evening Post p6d N 15 '30 180w

"Exaggeration is the foundation of all primitive story-telling, compensation for absence of idea being attained by limitless increase in bulk. The reader of Frank Shay's book must first divest himself of all literary preconceptions, or the gigantic scale of men and deeds, instead of amusing him, will appear as merely stupid. It is impossible to say how much in the several narratives is Frank Shay's and how much remains the oral account of some earlier teller. It is unfortunate for legend when it falls into literary hands, and one suspects that Mr. Shay has more often than necessary taken charge of the tale. Eben Given has done some excellent illustrating, but it would have been better had his drawing for old Stormalong been less like that of Captain Kidd. Old Stormie was very clearly a merchant skipper, not a pirate."

— + N Y Times p4 O 26 '30 1400w

"The American habit of exaggeration and positive genius for first-class lying is the basis of the sketches. Hilarity is its essence, and the exaggerated heroics of the tales are kin to the very special sort in which Mark Twain so excelled. Not the least virtue of the book is the stout and lusty manner and style in which Mr. Shay has written it. It is a job well done."

+ Sat R of Lit 7:220 O 11 '30 150w

SHEA, THEODORE E. Durawald. 261p $2.50 Stratford

30-3952

Another mythical-kingdom romance with an American hero, accidentally involved in its intrigues, who fights for and wins the princess.

Bookm 71:xxvii Ap '30 60w

"A rather stilted phraseology and a wealth of descriptive detail tend to slow down the tempo and mar an otherwise light and well-told narrative."

+ — N Y Times p24 Mr 30 '30 150w

SHEARD, BENVENUTO. Men in shirt-sleeves; some scenes of vanity. 279p $2.50 Viking press [7s 6d Cape, J.]

30-12527

"Manfred and Zoe meet in Paris on a very hot day and instantly marry. They travel to Spain where it is even hotter and get bored. Manfred leaves Zoe. He goes to stay with a waiter in Avignon, and the rest of the book describes Manfred floating on his back in the sea and thinking about life. One day he dies, but it hardly matters. Mr. Sheard light-heartedly describes the funeral and then leaves off." —New Statesman

Reviewed by Guy Holt
Bookm 71:475 Jl '30 40w

"Mr. Sheard's plot is witty. Mr. Sheard's style, also witty, avoids epigrams like those of the famous Saki, and dangers notoriously dependent on them. There is a steadiness in this work beneath which the diverse elements keep strange company." A. L. Basinger

+ Books p25 Ap 13 '30 420w

Boston Transcript p3 My 14 '30 180w

"It is not funny, it lacks the shiny surface, polish and brittleness of style which made the best of Firbank a little more, if not much more, than merely precious writing. The author has a certain flair for quaintness, but it happens to be quaintness of a particularly noxious kind —a sort of whimsicality manqué, furtive, afraid of itself, that is constantly scuttling off to hide behind elaborate attempts at sophistication or smartness or pretentiousness—and no amount of epigraphs in the French language stuck on as chapter headings can redeem its shallowness." Howard Coxe

— New Repub 63:54 My 28 '30 200w

"We have read other imitations of These Barren Leaves, but none so earnest and painstakingly clever as this."

New Statesman 34:818 Mr 29 '30 140w

" 'Men in Shirt Sleeves,' not very aptly titled, is a clever book which introduces a writer of promise. It is carefully written with a fine feeling for the preciseness of words and images. The cleverness is of necessity, in this novel, imitative."

+ N Y Times p9 Ap 6 '30 480w

"It lacks the punch of a Hemingway or the penetration of an Aldous Huxley, though it does characterize the French and the Spanish with a good deal of cleverness. Might be useful to those who want to know what is being drunk on the Continent just now."

Sat R of Lit 6:1095 My 31 '30 100w

"Men in Shirt Sleeves is, on the whole, a tedious and ineffectual shadow of the early Aldous Huxley. The book is mostly talk and the characters behave like a pack of undergraduates showing off in front of their sisters. By violent metaphor and grotesque situation, Mr. Sheard has sought to make an absurd world, but his humour is too ponderous for the task. . . Pages taken here and there in the book are quite amusing and Mr. Sheard has some descriptive talent, but he is mistaken in trying to imitate in literature the futile and boring cacophonies of a jazz band." V. S. Pritchett

— + Spec 144:399 Mr 8 '30 160w

"When all that should be said in censure has been said, Mr. Sheard is still a writer. He stands out from the ranks of the very young authors of to-day."
— + Times [London] Lit Sup p144 F 20 '30 300w

SHEBBEARE, CHARLES JOHN. Problems of providence. (Anglican lib. of faith and thought) 119p $1.35 (4s; pa 2s 6d) Longmans

231.5 Providence and government of God [29-21163]

In his essay on providence and the the problem of free will, Mr Shebbeare comes to the conclusion that the idea of the "uniformity of nature" is compatible with the theistic doctrine that presupposes divine solicitude for the welfare of the individual soul.

"Its stimulating pages are calculated, like snuff, to make vague piety clear its head with a painful but salutary sneeze, and we can imagine that much liveliness would distinguish the Study Circle which adopted it as the basis of discussion. . . Mr. Shebbeare is a sympathetic student of modern philosophy and science; and here undertakes the duties of liaison officer between sacred and secular thought, with such genial impartiality that some of his orthodox readers may feel slightly perturbed." Evelyn Underhill
+ Spec 143:726 N 16 '29 550w
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p851 O 24 '29 360w

SHEEAN, VINCENT. Gog and Magog. 339p $2 Harcourt 30-24247

At a soirée given by his sister in Paris, John, a young American, meets a famous Russian opera singer who takes him as her lover to Russia. But John is not particularly interested in communism, and Moscow rather bores him until he meets an American girl, Sheila, who has turned communist. Their budding romance ends in tragedy, and John returns to Paris.

"The characters fit neatly into the mosaic intended to make up a picture of Russia in Turmoil, but they do not move as characters in a novel. Their personal emotions never stir the heart, and though their words are frequently illuminating and succeed in presenting some new aspects of a struggling people, they themselves do not come alive. . . A novel may well exist without thesis, but there can be no novel unless life has been breathed into the characters." E. R. Richardson
— Bookm 72:304 N '30 320w

"In the inner story Mr. Sheean loses his grip on his characters and his situation, turns everything into an opportunity for a wisecrack (of the pseudo-elegant kind that we are accustomed to associate with our smart magazines), sees nothing of Moscow and records nothing."
— Books p10 O 5 '30 450w
Boston Transcript p2 N 29 '30 600w

"It's all very international and meaty and colorful, but somehow insubstantial, and a little like our hero who seems to have been everywhere and arrived nowhere." Edwin Seaver
— + N Y Evening Post p12 S 20 '30 80w

"Vincent Sheean brings so much verve to his novel, 'Gog and Magog,' that it seems too bad that the characters he has created do not (with one exception) live as individuals, but serve rather as mouthpieces for groups representative of opposing thought throughout the modern civilized world. . . Despite the fact that the protagonists have only a mass-personality, the backgrounds are so apparently authentic, the picture of Russia so evidently true, and the spirited manner so compelling, that the book is one in which one feels the authority of experience."
+ — N Y Times p6 S 28 '30 350w

"The trenchant brilliancy of the dialogue, the vividness of the many descriptions of Moscow under the Soviet regime, above all the fairness with which the author treats all phases of the great experiment, afford one reading of the most intelligent and enlightening sort." E. C. Beckwith
+ N Y World p3f S 28 '30 300w

SHELBY, MRS GERTRUDE (SINGLETON)
2 MATHEWS, and STONEY, SAMUEL GAILLARD. Po' buckra. 426p $2.50 Macmillan 30-29257

"This is the story of Judith Beaufain, the penniless heiress of an unproductive plantation to which she clings with superhuman tenacity. Marooned in a locality drained of all but poor whites or 'po' buckra,' denied all opportunity of finding the fulfilment of her life in love for one of her kind, she pours out the strong passions of her nature on the saving of her heritage, the Barony plantation; and since the uphill fight to farm it requires man power, she marries as a desperate remedy a po' buckra, who unknown to her is really a 'brass-ankle,' the local term for the poor white with strains of both Negro and Indian. . . Barty is her major failure in a long series of gallant but unsuccessful bouts with circumstances."—Sat R of Lit

"The book is better as a picture of the times than as a novel, for the very simple reason that its people do not come to life with any degree of vividness; one is far more moved by the fate of Beaufain Barony, a great old plantation house of a Huguenot family which becomes the rendezvous of bootleggers shortly before it is burned by its mistress, than by the fate of the mistress herself." Herschel Brickell
— + Books p16 N 23 '30 550w

"Somehow or other, while some of the startling events related in 'Po' Buckra' are possible, the general sequence of incidents is not convincing. Southerners will flare against this novel and Northerners will not be entirely credulous, despite the serious tone to which the authors hold throughout." F. E. W.
— Boston Transcript p6 D 13 '30 450w

"'Po' Buckra' is a long book and could bear with condensation. It builds up slowly through a mass of detail, but achieves power toward the end, a power which even a tendency toward the melodramatic does not discount. The authors are sure of their background and their Negro characters are alive. . . The picture they give of the lowland country of South Carolina is strong in beauty and color." E. M. Lanham
+ — N Y Evening Post p4d D 27 '30 550w
N Y Times p8 D 14 '30 700w

"In character and atmosphere it is admirable, but the action progresses by jerks, some of them painfully melodramatic, to a weak ending which produces so lamentable a fall of interest that it tends to color the reader's opinion of the whole book." F. L. R.
— + Outlook 156:426 N 12 '30 280w

"It is grateful to observe the continuing appearance of writers in the South who are treating dispassionately the various aspects of its life. They write of the Negro, as of the white, realistically, sympathetically, and without mawkish sentiment, conceiving him as a natural source of dramatic material, a sometimes comic, but chiefly tragic, figure of human life. 'Po' Buckra' is an admirable instance of this new ability on the part of writers to detach themselves from three customary fulcra of the emotions,—the plantation girl, the Negro, and the half-caste." Josephine Pinckney
+ Sat R of Lit 7:416 D 6 '30 950w

SHELDON, CHARLES. Wilderness of Denali; explorations of a hunter-naturalist in northern Alaska; with an introd. by C. Hart Merriam [ed. by C. H. Merriam and E. W. Nelson]. 412p il $6 (21s) Scribner

799.2 McKinley, Mount. Hunting—Alaska. Mountain sheep 30-10238

Denali is the Indian name for Mount McKinley, Alaska. The text of the book, following an introductory biography of Charles Sheldon, hunter and naturalist, is made up of Sheldon's notes and diary of experience during his sheep-

SHELDON, CHARLES—Continued
hunting trip in Alaska. The naturalist not only acquired detailed knowledge of the sheep in that region surrounding Mount Denali, but of other animal life as well.

Booklist 27:19 S '30

Books p14 Je 15 '30 130w

Boston Transcript p3 My 7 '30 1000w

"While the sportsman will be thrilled by his descriptions of difficult stalks after bighorn, moose, and reindeer, the naturalist turns, with some relief, from the tales and pictures of slaughter, to his comments upon the lives of these and other wild animals."
Nature 126:237 Ag 16 '30 170w

"A plain and modest account of the Denali wilderness, and of the animal life there—sheep, moose, bear, lynx. Mr. Sheldon's purpose was to study the sheep, and his book is a reprint of the diaries he kept on his journey in 1906 to 1908. It would have been better if the manuscript had been cut a little more, as a great deal here printed is of a very slight and transient interest. There are a great many amazing photographs, especially of snow scenery."
— + New Statesman 35:124 My 3 '30 120w

Outlook 154:545 Ap 2 '30 30w

St Louis 28:215 S '30

Sat R 150:871 D 27 '30 350w

"The editors have done their work well: the book is admirably and fully illustrated with photographs. The journals themselves are of absorbing interest and show once more, as in California and in Mexico, the author's exceptional gift of comradeship with the Indians."
+ Spec 145:19 Jl 5 '30 200w

"A lasting monument to a great hunter's powers, and a contribution to our knowledge of the mammals of Alaska."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Je 15 '30 900w

"No book in the form of a diary recording day by day for months on end the experiences of a hunter working in a comparatively small field, however unusual that field, where the species of game are few, can make continuously absorbing reading. None the less, this is a remarkable book; and no reader for whom tales of sport or natural history have attraction, having once started it, however lightly his eye may pass over many of the shorter entries, will part with it until he has reached the last of the approximately 400 large pages and has lingered over the seventy photographs."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p361 My 1 '30 1000w

SHELDON, GILBERT. From trackway to turnpike; an illustration from East Devon. 178p $3.50 (10s 6d) Oxford

914.235 Roads—England. Devonshire, England. Coaching—England [29-15509]

"The author of this study has taken East Devon and traced—within that geographical area—the whole history of highway evolution. Starting with the primitive trades routes and ridge-roads, he examines the Roman military highways, the medieval network of roads and by-ways linking town with town, and the rise of the turnpike system. The task involved much research, and the work sheds light on certain phases of Great Britain's economic growth as reflected in the shifting development of highways."—Books

Books p20 Ap 7 '29 180w

"He has produced a volume which reads very pleasantly, and the chapters dealing with the eighteenth century, even though they do not offer much information that is new, give a lively picture of roads and travellers in the west. But in the earlier chapters in particular, Mr. Sheldon has allowed himself to be betrayed into too many rash generalizations upon social and economic conditions, while he has ignored many first-rate authorities." G. S. T.
+ — Eng Hist R 45:350 Ap '30 200w

"Some local knowledge is required if the reader is to appreciate this excellent monograph at its full worth. But even those who are not well acquainted with East Devon may profit by reading the book. The author's account of the coaching age is particularly good."
+ Spec 142:239 F 16 '29 140w

SHELLABARGER, SAMUEL (JOHN ESTEVEN, pseud.). Voodoo, a murder mystery. 317p $2 Doubleday, Doran
30-6545

Harlem, Cuba and a gigantic voodoo cult feature in this tale of mystery and crime. A voodoo charm is found beside the murdered body of Judge Frole—a clue that leads the Judge's secretary, Catherine Trayne, and a young detective, Rae Norse, into strange and dangerous adventures.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p14 Mr 2 '30 100w

"It is expecting too much of a mere flesh and blood detective to expect him to cope successfully with the forces evoked by Voodoo priests and priestesses of Cuba and Haiti. Rae Norse attempts it without any success that can be attributed to his own ability, but one lays down the book with the feeling that he has done all that could be reasonably expected of him."
N Y Times p23 Mr 9 '30 150w

Times [London] Lit Sup p629 Jl 31 '30 180w

SHELLEY, PERCY BYSSHE. Shelley's lost letters to Harriet; arr. and ed. by Leslie Hotson. ltd ed 24p $8 Little [7s 6d Faber]

B or 92 29-28545

"Since 1860 Shelley specialists have known that somewhere there existed ten unpublished letters by Shelley, nine to his first wife, Harriet Westbrook, and one to his sister-in-law, Eliza. It was by accident that Mr. Leslie Hotson made his find. While searching the indexes of the Record Office on quite a different hunt . . . his eye fell on the entry of Shelley vs Westbrook, and naturally he immediately made out a ticket for these documents. Mr. Hotson has rearranged these letters as nearly in the chronological order as the internal evidence can show. He has also accompanied them with a running comment so that the reader may understand exactly what place each letter occupied in the sad imbroglio of Shelley and his wife."—N Y Times

Reviewed by Genevieve Taggard
Books p7 Ap 27 '30 850w

Christian Science Monitor p9 Ap 12 '30 320w

Reviewed by Mark Van Doren
Nation 130:454 Ap 16 '30 700w

Reviewed by L. L. Irvine
Nation and Ath 47:18 Ap 5 '30 1750w

New Statesman 35:130 My 3 '30 80w

"Mr. Hotson has again made an important addition to our knowledge of the life of a major poet. Now nothing remains for him to do but to find the lost books of Livy. He is the prime detective of scholarly research." Herbert Gorman
N Y Times p2 Ap 20 '30 1800w

Reviewed by Granville Hicks
N Y World p10m My 4 '30 150w

St Louis 28:218 S '30

Sat R 149:424 Ap 5 '30 1050w

"The new letters were bound to be interesting; and we may perhaps be glad that it was Mr. Hotson who found them, and not someone else; for he does not pretend that they are exciting." H. W. Garrod
+ Sat R of Lit 6:1063 My 24 '30 750w

Reviewed by Richard Church
Spec 144:sup489 Mr 22 '30 1100w

Times [London] Lit Sup p239 Mr 20 '30 1850w

SHENG-CHENG. Son of China; tr. from the French by Marvin McCord Lowes; pref. by Paul Valéry. 286p $3 Norton [10s 6d Allen, G.]

915.1 China—Social life and customs 30-9530

The author, a young Chinaman of ancient family, belongs to the scholarly class in China and was educated in Europe. The first part of his book is written about his mother, a woman of true oriental type and splendid spirit. The second half is devoted largely to the description of revolutionary or transitional types. The whole is a picture of China taken from within, showing the structure of the Chinese family, its organization and its customs.

Am J Soc 36:511 N '30 80w

Booklist 26:390 Jl '30

Reviewed by Isidor Schneider
Books p4 Jl 13 '30 600w

Boston Transcript p3 Jl 5 '30 700w

Cleveland Open Shelf p104 Jl '30

"In Sheng-Cheng's book there is no air of revelation, no whispering of rare secrets. It proceeds with a blessed and unselfconscious certainty. It is one of the few books about the Orient which neither promises to distil the Eastern soul nor apologizes in the preface for the ignorance that the author forgets in his text. A Western reader, curious about Chinese life, will be wise to read Cheng's book, and to reread it when he wishes for still another book." Isidor Schneider
+ New Repub 63:24 My 21 '30 330w

New Statesman 36:308 D 13 '30 200w

"It is Sheng-Cheng's childhood and early youth, the stories of his family and their customs and traditions which form the best part of the book. He writes of these always with sincerity and charm and often with a naïve grace and beauty that are reminiscent of a movement or gesture of the recent Mei. . . A goodly portion of the book is given over to the history of the revolution and the revolutionary figures in China. Sheng-Cheng is not as happy in this field as he is in the one of narrator of tales and legends. For the most part, the names and the dates and the facts he gives leave one confused and lost. He is neither sufficiently old nor sufficiently far away from the events to give them their true place and relative importance. He is still too indignant about many things to be accepted as a historian." R. C. Feld
+ — N Y Times p5 My 4 '30 1150w

"The book is interesting less for events than for background. The simple beauty of the mother's story, the life of the patriarchal family, the dragoon-like figure of the grandmother, the customs, festivals, legends—without any perceptible design a rich and colorful pattern has been woven, faithful to the pattern of Chinese life. For Sheng Cheng is also an artist, with a sure sense of material and form." Nathaniel Peffer
+ N Y World p5m Je 29 '30 200w

"Gives a delightful picture of Chinese life from the inside, and of the struggle, within the Chinese family, between the old and the new." W. R. Brooks
+ Outlook 154:668 Ap 23 '30 80w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:83 N '30

Reviewed by W. B. Shaw
R of Rs 81:12 My '30 130w

"Originally written in French and translated into English by Marvin McCord Lowes, the book suffers from too literal transcription. Overadherence to the original is noticed rather than a reproduction of the meaning in the author's own words. Here and there, moreover, are sentences which careful revision would have amended. From the historical point of view the book is deficient in impartiality. The limited understanding of human nature might be laughed at if one did not feel that to many a book on China by a Chinese smacks of the authoritative."
— Springf'd Republican p12 Ap 17 '30 700w

"As a guide to knowledge, the value of his work is marred by an emotional quality which often verges on the theatrical and, where he deals with recent history, by extraordinary inaccuracy. . . In other respects, however, his work is of interest and value. It throws a great deal of light on the evolution and character of the modern Chinese student, of the class from which, in their thousands, come aspirants for office, foredoomed from the nature of things to unemployment and therefore to unrest. His narrative of his family life and career, up to the time when his mother pawned her jewelry to pay for his education, is typical of the average Chinese family's struggle with economic pressure in a changing environment."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p1096 D 25 '30 550w

SHENTON, EDWARD. Riders of the winds. 205p il $2.50 Macrae Smith co.

629.13 Aeronautics—Flights. Aeronautics—Juvenile literature 29-20779

"Brief accounts of aviators and their flights from the first attempt to cross the Atlantic to the flights of the Graf Zeppelin and the Yellow Bird."—Cleveland Open Shelf

Reviewed by D. G. Lunt
Books p8 F 23 '30 30w

Cleveland Open Shelf p91 Je '30

St Louis 28:150 My '30

Wis Lib Bul 25:416 D '29

SHEPARD, MICHAEL. So I said to Mr Morgan. 253p il $2 Greenberg
30-20084

"In 'So I said to Mr. Morgan,' the author has taken his hero from the umbrella rib business, brought him to sudden riches and many mistresses, and plunged him, in the stock market crash, back to where he was before he became the possessor of a million and a hundred dollars."—N Y Times

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Books p11 Ag 3 '30 350w

"Among the many humorous literary efforts that the financial status of the country has called forth, Mr. Shepard's book is one of the best." M. M. Waterman
+ N Y Times p14 Jl 27 '30 280w

"This is a book of depressing humor. . . It displays a positively pathetic reliance upon the ability of tried situations to carry themselves with no assistance from the author."
— Sat R of Lit 7:92 Ag 30 '30 280w

SHEPARD, ODELL. Lore of the unicorn. 312p il $7.50 Houghton [25s Allen, G.]

398.4 Unicorn 30-14354

Mr Shepard has "ransacked the ages" in pursuit of the unicorn legend, thru mythology and folklore, magic, medicine, literature, art, exploration, commerce, and heraldry. This lore is enormous in range and variety because, from its dim beginnings, it covers so great an expanse of time and enters into so many departments of knowledge. The illustrations, from manuscripts, tapestries, paintings, engravings and wood-cuts, are of great interest.

Reviewed by Austin Warren
Bookm 71:467 Jl '30 950w

"It is a book rich with curious lore, the product, obviously, of careful and intensive research; yet it is written with charm and with affection for the elusive animal which for millenniums has entranced men's imaginations."
+ Books p16 Ap 27 '30 450w

Boston Transcript p2 Ap 30 '30 1300w

Christian Science Monitor p12 Ap 19 '30 400w

SHEPARD, ODELL—Continued

"Delightful book, not only for the curious to browze upon, but for all who under Mr. Shepard's skilled leadership wish to join in the 'holy hunt' for that beautiful and sagacious beast." James Thornton

+ Nation and Ath 47:88 Ap 19 '30 300w

"His book shows scholarly knowledge on every page. But it is written with relish, with urbanity, with the vividness that belongs to an eye which has become accustomed to a very strange and very interesting landscape. It is part of the urbanity of this scholar and man of letters that he does not pursue the unicorn to his ultimate fastness." Padriac Colum

+ New Repub 63:350 Ag 6 '30 800w

"The legend of the unicorn stands in the same relation to the great bulk of common folk-lore as does some brilliant poetic image to a long and often tedious epic poem. It is that aspect of his material on which Mr. Shepard is most admirable; and in its archæological interest he never loses the poetic idea. His book is scholarly, extraordinarily readable, and has very many peculiarly good illustrations."

+ New Statesman 34:670 Mr 1 '30 800w

"It is a gorgeous book and one can have only admiration for the boundless curiosity, the fine scholarship and the real love for the subject that Mr Shepard has given so lavishly to his work." Edwin Seaver

+ N Y Evening Post p10m Ap 12 '30 270w

N Y Times p24 Ap 6 '30 400w

"Odell Shepard seems to have the ideal temperament for writing on myths and superstitions. He is urbane, witty, indefatigable in research. He respects his subject and is hot against our modern tendency to turn aside from truths to facts. He does not, of course believe that unicorns exist or ever did exist. But he loves one of the most beautiful legends the mind of man has evolved and laments its relegation to the discard, due to our worship of fact." D. F. McCord

+ N Y World p5m Ag 3 '30 350w

"It is a delightful book, immensely erudite but not in the least dry, in which the legend of the unicorn is traced back to its origins. A far richer subject than you might imagine, and treated with humor and understanding." W. R. Brooks

+ Outlook 154:590 Ap 9 '30 160w

Pratt p14 autumn '30

"Let the credulous rejoice in Mr. Shepard's scholarship and charm of style, and, playing Sebastian to his Prospero, exclaim, 'Now I will believe that there are Unicorns!'" B. E. Todd

+ Spec 144:sup495 Mr 22 '30 650w

"Mr. Shepard has been too wise to commit himself irrevocably to any theories. For him theories are things to collect and set out in his exhibition, along with narwhal's tusks. He is out collecting lore and a wonderful collection is his reward. He has borrowed from the unicorn something of his immunity from ordinary snares. Professor Wiener and others may throw out their nets, but he escapes them all and wanders fancy free through the rich pastures he has found."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p349 Ap 24 '30 1050w

SHEPHERD, NAN. Weatherhouse. 296p $2.50 Dutton [7s 6d Constable]

30-12693

A story of the Scotch countryside, centering about three generations of women who lived in Weatherhouse.

Books p13 Je 15 '30 160w

Boston Transcript p4 Je 7 '30 480w

"Style, characters, and background are well-matched and well-knit. Miss Shepherd's writing has loveliness and grace as well as strength. It changes without harshness from narrative to action, from dialect to descriptive prose of great beauty. Dialect, too often an obstacle, is here handled with such ease that we cannot fail to be delighted by its charm and wit."

+ New Statesman 34:582 F 8 '30 180w

"Her prose is lucid and beautiful, and she uses the Scotch dialect with an almost lyrical feeling for the terse and appropriate phrase. In her hands, rude and homely speech is never ungainly or out of place; it never distorts the most delicate shade of meaning or the subtlest emotion. Miss Shepherd commands a strange and vivid imagery, sometimes as compact and cadenced as verse, sometimes incisively comic, but always characteristic and unimitative, and equally adapted to the homeliness of the hearthside and the wilderness of the moors."

+ N Y Times p8 My 4 '30 650w

"A Scotch novel in which great skill in the presentation of eccentric characters is combined with a fresh, vigorous use of dialect in a form which enriches rather than burdens the English text. The story is slight, somewhat confused and dwarfed in interest by the characterizations."

+ Outlook 154:666 Ap 23 '30 280w

"Through the very richness of her material Miss Shepherd fails to make 'The Weatherhouse' a first class novel, for one tale overlaps the other, and cordial talk and the singing of ballads is uppermost."

Sat R of Lit 6:1073 My 24 '30 450w

"In the crotchety-picturesque genre, the book has a certain distinction. But there is insufficient development of either character or action, and Miss Shepherd, who has rendered the local atmosphere very well, seems afraid of getting very far under the skins of her people. The dialogue, if you like dialect, is entertaining."

+ — Spec 144:206 F 8 '30 160w

"It is not a book for shallow amusement but a careful study of several types of personality whom one never meets except as painted from life by sympathetic artists. Painted they are, not photographed; and the artist has caught the atmosphere and produced a real book."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Je 15 '30 200w

"Miss Shepherd writes with point and humour, and a sure knowledge that holds plenty of reserves. She is very good at depicting the lie of the land and suggesting the turbulent airs that blow over it assuaging and influencing the passions of her creatures."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p210 Mr 13 '30 400w

SHEPPARD, ERIC WILLIAM. [2] Bedford Forrest: the Confederacy's greatest cavalryman. 311p $5 Dial press [16s Witherby]

B or 92 Forrest, Nathan Bedford

A military biography of the Confederacy's great cavalry leader.

"An excellent piece of military history. Though he resorts at times to the questionable device of imaginary conversations to give reality to his descriptions, his account is characterized on the whole by accuracy and lucidity." H. S. Commager

+ Books p5 N 2 '30 100w

"Forrest rides again, the brilliant tatterdemalion of the Confederacy, in this remarkable biography, of which hardly too much can be said in praise. Captain Sheppard puts Bedford Forrest before us in such a way that he actually seems to live. Here is no laboriously reconstructed account of a dead and nearly forgotten general who fought for the Lost Cause. Rather it is a full-length portrait, done in the sharp colors of reality, of that crafty cavalryman, that fire-eating free-booter—Forrest." C. K. H.

+ Boston Transcript p2 Ja 3 '31 520w

"It is a lucid and reliable contribution to the military history of the Confederacy, and a thoroughly adequate life of Forrest himself." F. H. Martens

+ N Y Evening Post p4d N 29 '30 80w

"Captain Sheppard is an Englishman, like so many who have treated phases of the great American war so ably, and if his book did not happen to coincide with Thomason's [Jeb Stuart], one would say that it was the best military biography of the year. Both books belong to that animated but accurate school which is, thank heaven, superseding the school that has reigned so long, the school of wisecrackers and debunkers and psychoanalysts. Sheppard introduces an innovation which he is proud of and should not be. It is that of interlacing real characters and incidents with fictitious ones so as to bring out better his lights and shades. It is not harmful, for Sheppard lists his fictions in his preface, so that no one need be misled. But for all that, it has its effect even on the forewarned imagination." C. W. Thompson

+ — N Y Times p12 N 16 '30 600w

Reviewed by W. B. Shaw
R of Rs 82:8 D '30 200w

SHERRARD, OWEN AUBREY. Life of John Wilkes. 319p il $4 Dodd [10s 6d Allen, G.]

B or 92 Wilkes, John [30-25508]

A biography of John Wilkes, English politician and political agitator, which shows him as the man about town, the bad husband but excellent father, the refugee, fighter and reformer, the hard enemy but loyal friend—a big man in a corrupt age.

Boston Transcript p5 O 4 '30 500w

"Mr. Sherrard deserves almost unqualified praise. . . For the most part he is concise in summary, straightforward in narrative, just in appreciation, often witty in phrase, and altogether at home in his period. He has written a biography which in an unobtrusive way is of real note." Geoffrey West

+ Nation and Ath 47:175 My 10 '30 800w

New Statesman 35:224 My 24 '30 250w

St Louis 28:273 N '30

Reviewed by F. W. Hilles
Sat R of Lit 7:384 N 29 '30 400w

Spec 144:613 Ap 12 '30 450w

Times [London] Lit Sup p401 My 15 '30 2050w

SHERRIFF, ROBERT CEDRIC, and BARTLETT, VERNON. Journey's end; a novel. 308p $2.50 Stokes [7s 6d Gollancz] 30-8600

A novelized version of the play which begins the story with two of the main characters, young Raleigh and Stanhope, as boys in school before the war. Madge, Raleigh's sister, with whom Stanhope is in love, is also more fully drawn. From the time the chief persons in the story are brought together in the trenches, the action and dialogue in the novel closely follow that of the play.

Booklist 26:358 Je '30

Bookm 71:xv Je '30 80w

Reviewed by Lillian Feldman
Books p22 Ap 13 '30 350w

Cleveland Open Shelf p143 N '30

"In the novel 'Journey's End' is guilty of a failure to achieve the very qualities that would have marred the play but might have made a fictional interpretation of the stage work both supplementary and engrossing and compelling in its own right. Disappointedly enough, an early portion of the book holds this promise. Perhaps the task that Mr. Sherriff and Mr. Bartlett have set themselves is an impossible one. Certain it is that continued understatement is as unsuccessful in this war novel as it was brilliantly successful in 'Journeys' End,' the play."

— + N Y Times p9 Ap 6 '30 600w

N Y World p10m My 4 '30 100w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 34:47 Je '29

Pratt p42 summer '30

"I admit to such a fondness for the play that I picked up the novel with reluctance. My worst fears were not realized, but some of them were. There is a sentimentality about the novel which the play just manages to escape. On the whole, however, Mr. Sherriff and his collaborator, Vernon Bartlett, have done a workmanlike job, and those who have not seen the play will enjoy the novel." Stanley Went

+ — Sat R of Lit 6:1105 Je 7 '30 150w

"The book is so good, so true to life, that irrespective of the war scenes, it would stand on its own merits. Even if the play had not been seen by hundreds of thousands of people all over the world the clever characterization and attention to detail would make this a novel in a thousand."

+ Spec 144:442 Mr 15 '30 140w

"Mr. Sherriff and Mr. Bartlett have done their work well, but the play is greater than the novel."

— + Times [London] Lit Sup p240 Mr 20 '30 480w

SHERWOOD, HERBERT FRANCIS. Story of Stamford. (Sectional hist. ser.) 379p $4 States hist. co.

974.69 Stamford, Connecticut—History 30-14514

"Presents the narrative of a Connecticut town from the earliest Puritan migrations into Connecticut down to today. Stamford has roots in the oldest past of New England, and this book, with its numerous illustrations, enables the reader to trace pleasantly the almost 300 years of the town's history, which often was intertwined with the major history of Connecticut government and people."—Springf'd Republican

"This is the moving, complete story of a great city."

+ Boston Transcript p2 Je 25 '30 150w

"Mr. Sherwood writes at length and with graphic effect of those early years with their social, political and religious developments and their outstanding personalities, carries the story through the Revolution and on down through the years with full account of growth and development to as late as a year ago. He writes interestingly, with an eye for the dramatic and the picturesque in both events and people, while the extensive detail about the city's residents, especially in recent decades, will give the work added interest for Stamford's citizens."

+ N Y Times p26 Je 1 '30 230w

"The material is presented with emphasis on what is readable and of general interest, and the pictures and maps are well selected to show Stamford at various periods."

+ Springf'd Republican p10 My 14 '30 200w

SHERWOOD, ROBERT EMMET. Waterloo bridge; a play in two acts. 173p $2 (7s 6d) Scribner

812 30-6265

A play of wartime London. Roy, an American soldier serving in a Canadian regiment, while on leave meets Myra, an American ex-chorus girl out of a job. Myra in desperation has taken up the oldest profession as hers, but between the two exiles a very real love springs into being. Roy is summoned to the trenches and on the night of his return Myra gallantly summons death as she stands on Waterloo Bridge during an air-raid.

Reviewed by W. P. Eaton
Books p13 My 4 '30 120w

Cleveland Open Shelf p73 My '30

"Some plays are unconvincing because they are obviously untrue to life; others for no other reason than that they have been seen so often that they inevitably remind one of the theater; and the present piece belongs to the latter class. For all I know, events something like those it recounts may have happened frequently and, in so far as I am able to judge again a bit of writing so much like countless others,

SHERWOOD, R. E.—Continued
I am inclined to suspect that the author has done a reasonably competent job. But a tale told so often inevitably lulls the faculties to sleep." J. W. Krutch
— Nation 130:106 Ja 22 '30 850w

"The piece was evidently written in haste, the lines contain no meat of any kind and no dramatic diction, no dialogue with point, no speech that has any reality of any kind or any sort of edge; and yet, by virtue of its resting on a story that is safe stage platitude, and through the staking out of the curtains and main points in the story, a considerable effect of drama arises. And though 'Waterloo Bridge' remains rubbish, it is the well-scrutinized rubbish of an intelligent man, and so, at least, it does not block the actors' steps." Stark Young
— New Repub 61:251 Ja 22 '30 380w

Reviewed by Edwin Seaver
N Y Evening Post p7s Mr 1 '30 70w

Reviewed by F. R. Bellamy
Outlook 154:152 Ja 22 '30 350w

"The reader or playgoer may not quite believe in the story of 'Waterloo Bridge,' but the action is smoothly and tenderly fashioned, and it does convey something of the English spirit in wartime."
+ Springf'd Republican p14 My 28 '30 130w

"The character-drawing is pleasant, easy but shallow; it is a smooth adaptation of a tragic theme to the taste of comfortable playgoers; it is competent 'theatre' but no more."
— + Times [London] Lit Sup p410 My 15 '30 200w

SHETRONE, HENRY CLYDE. Mound-builders; a reconstruction of the life of a prehistoric American race, through exploration and interpretation of their earth mounds, their burials, and their cultural remains. 508p il $7.50 (30s) Appleton
571.91 Mound-builders. United States—Antiquities 30-22078

Distributed over a broad area of mid-America are to be found the small rounded burial-grounds constructed in ancient times by the people archeologists designated as mound-builders. This book is a record of all that has been learned about these people thru an unearthing of the contents of mounds in various parts of the country. There are many illustrations of the mounds, and of the skeletons, pottery, weapons and other objects found in them.

Booklist 27:151 D '30

"Henry Clyde Shetrone has been closely identified with prehistoric excavations in Ohio and has himself done the work which gives us important data for more than one of the types of civilization found in that region. In the present book he has brought together the scattered reports on archeological investigations of the Mound Builder culture and published maps and a wealth of illustrations. . . Unfortunately Mr. Shetrone has chosen to group his descriptions by state boundaries. Nothing could be more unsuited to an adequate and economical description of the Mound Builders. . . The arrangement makes tedious and repetitive reading. The book would have been much more valuable for the addition of a chapter disregarding state lines and considering the cultural interrelationships of the Mound Builders as a whole. The book sorely needs another chapter as well. It seems incredible that a long volume on the Mound Builders could be written without reference to Mexico." Ruth Benedict
+ — Books p18 O 5 '30 900w
Boston Transcript p3 N 22 '30 600w

Reviewed by E. F. Brown
Current Hist 33:xxiii N '30 180w

"A lavishly and beautifully illustrated book by the leading authority on this vanished civilization." W. R. Brooks
+ Outlook 156:109 S 17 '30 50w

St Louis 28:300 D '30

"An excellent introduction to a little-cultivated field of American archaeology."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p852 O 23 '30 1250w

SHIEL, MATTHEW PHIPPS. Purple cloud. 294p $2.50 Vanguard press [7s 6d Gollancz] 30-9244

"On his return from a voyage to the North Pole, the hero discovers that mankind has been obliterated from the earth by a purple, peach-scented cloud of lethal gas. For twenty years he wanders the planet alone, at first unspeakably desolate, then intoxicated by a feeling of god-like power. Finally he meets a young girl who has also been miraculously spared. Remembering the wickedness and abjectness of man, he resists her for a time, but at last consents to become the new Adam of a new race." (New Repub) The Purple Cloud, now in its first American edition, was originally published in England in 1901.

"With the gusto his readers have learned to anticipate eagerly, M. P. Shiel paints one of the most captivating romantic dreams of mankind—a cosmos stricken in which a sole survivor starts again to work out the myth of the first man." Mary Ross
+ Books p14 My 4 '30 850w

"Although it is repetitious, over-long, madly improbable, the book sweeps one along in its vast current. Shiel is more than just another Jules Verne. He has the real poetic imagination, and he writes a rich, heady, intricate prose which, if one can stomach orgies of romanticism, is sheer delight." E. H. W.
+ New Repub 62:281 Ap 23 '30 180w
New Statesman 32:740 Mr 16 '29 70w

"The book is a gorgeous fantasy written in a tumultuous style that in its best moments—and there are many of them—rises to a thunderous prose that crashes, rolls and reverberates. Once caught up in its whirling vortex, no one can read it unmoved or throw it aside unfinished." R. C. B. Brown
+ N Y Evening Post p11m Ap 19 '30 600w

"A remarkable piece of work, interesting, finely imaginative, head and shoulders above the average tale of fantastic adventure."
+ N Y Times p17 Ap 13 '30 650w

"Shiel is without doubt a wild and fearsome, on occasion a great and imaginative artist, but that does not necessarily imply that his books, including this one, have the essentials of endearing themselves to many people, nor that he is not sometimes a hollow and ponderous bore." E. C. Beckwith
— + N Y World p11m Ap 20 '30 260w

"Despite some very fine writing in a style which is eccentric at times to the point of incoherence, and irritatingly buries a really remarkable narrative gift, we did not upon finishing it 'cry aloud to the morning stars' as Mr. Van Vechten reports having done." W. R. Brooks
— + Outlook 154:547 Ap 2 '30 100w
Sat R 147:363 Mr 16 '29 400w
Times [London] Lit Sup p256 Mr 28 '29 500w

SHORE, VIOLA (BROTHERS) (MRS HARRY BRAXTON). Beauty-mask murder. 384p $2 Smith, R.R.
30-28923

"Miss Gwynn Leith, a shrewd woman who makes the most of her intuition, successfully competes with the police in solving the murder of Maxine Ainslee. Blackmail, the usual small town atmosphere and two romances are skilfully moulded into a bewildering maze that deceives at every turn."—Bookm

Bookm 72:xxiv N '30 80w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p14 N 2 '30 100w

"Mrs. Shore's characters are real people, not puppets, the love story she tells is touched with humor and has a bona fide place in this detective story, as it is a necessary and integral part. It is a wonder that the detective ever finds the murderer because the witnesses are the most reticent any story book detective ever had to deal with. Each one shields some one and the result of the lying and withholding of information is a perfect muddle." R. I. Center
+ Sat R of Lit 7:379 N 22 '30 150w

SHORE, WILLIAM TEIGNMOUTH. Touring London; a little book of friendly guidance for those who visit London and those who dwell in London; with an introd. by John Burns. 115p pl $1.75 Scribner [4s Batsford]

914.21 London—Description

"Mr. Teignmouth Shore asks his readers to make Trafalgar Square an imaginary centre from which to start with him on their tours through London. [The tours] are four in number, and an additional chapter entitled 'Roving and Rivering' is devoted in the main to the River Thames."—Times [London] Lit Sup

Reviewed by A. B. Maurice
Bookm 72:xiv S '30 280w
St Louis 28:300 D '30
Times [London] Lit Sup p655 Ag 14 '30 300w

SHORT, ERNEST HENRY. Painter in history. 469p il $7.50 Lippincott [30s Allan, P.]

750 Painting—History. Painters [30-12006]

A survey of the pictorial art of all races and all countries from the prehistoric wall-paintings found in the Altamira caves near Santander, in the Pyrenees, to modern post-impressionism. There are 116 full-page illustrations.

"Mr. Short's method is historical, and the task which he has set himself is so extensive that he has provided rather a work of reference than a book for continuous reading. But its value is undeniable. . . With its adequate and liberal reproductions, his book takes a permanent place on the shelves."
+ New Statesman 34:sup xviii D 7 '29 180w

"This huge canvas is managed with commendable thoroughness, nor does the style become, as so easily it might, tedious and dry. This volume is far more thorough than many works that call themselves histories of painting, for it includes the art of the Orient, in many respects the grandest art produced by man and far too often slighted by historians and critics."
+ N Y Times p25 My 11 '30 350w

"This bulky encyclopædic work is baffling for a reviewer. It is based on much reading and on a generally sound taste, is the work of a person of culture. On the other hand, there is much careless writing, more errors of fact than should be, and the English part is overwritten beyond its importance in a general survey."
+ — Sat R of Lit 6:1049 My 17 '30 250w
Spec 144:26 Ja 4 '30 180w

"Mr. Short's valuation of oil painting for its emotional facility betrays the bent of mind which affects the whole of his book as a work of art concerned with the relations between painting and thought and feeling. . . But, allowing for his bent, Mr. Short is perfectly consistent; and his book is as stimulating to read as it is exhaustive in its treatment of the subject."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p913 N 14 '29 1700w

2 SHORTRIDGE, VIRGINIA, comp. Songs of science; an anthology. 245p il $3.50 Marshall Jones

821.08 English poetry—Collections. American poetry—Collections 30-13763

"The poems, grouped under such general headings as 'Philosophy,' 'Healing,' 'On the Wings of the Wind,' and 'Power in Conflict,' range from Henry Vaughan's meditations on the world and Abraham Cowley's definition of his soul, to Percy MacKaye's stanzas to Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh."—Books

Bookm 72:x O '30 50w

"There is good poetry in the collection, of course, but anthologies as laboriously assembled and as artificially arranged as this one always make me turn back, for a page or two of rereading, to 'A Pamphlet Against Anthologies,' by Riding and Graves." B. R. Redman
— Books p10 S 21 '30 220w

"This anthology of Miss Shortridge is a book to be owned if possible and read and reread—for the sheer beauty as well as the mental and ethical stimulus of its poems, whenever fancy or research will."
+ Boston Transcript p2 Jl 30 '30 420w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:82 N '30
St Louis 28:269 N '30

"The book is rather a strange mixture of things, and when Miss Shortridge says in her introduction, 'So I take it that no true scientist can escape being a poet, for all wisdom flows in waves.' she is somewhat beyond us. We cannot take it that way at all. It is too vague a statement. But, even though the book contains some plainly bad inclusions, we are thankful for such splendidly authentic things as Frank Ernest Hill's flying poems, and for such an excellent poem as the one of Frances Cornford's entitled 'A Fragment of Empedocles.'" W. R. Benét
+ — Sat R of Lit 7:72 Ag 23 '30 150w

"A woman of leisure and cultivation, Miss Shortridge has contributed a novel and valuable compilation to the catalog of verse anthologies." C. S. Leonard
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 4 '31 1250w

"While the real poetry in her volume has seldom any connexion with science as a specialized activity, and indeed often expresses values with which science has had no concern, the verse in it which deals specifically with science is seldom poetry. Her volume, in short, rather emphasizes the gulf between science and poetry than closes it, but if much that it contains is second-rate poetically, the very liberality of her choice ensures a very diverse collection."
— + Times [London] Lit Sup p630 Jl 31 '30 220w

SHOSTAC, PERCY. 14th street, a novel in verse. 363p il $2.50 Simon & Schuster

811 30-17443

"Mr. Shostac's book is, presumably, autobiographical, and tells the simple story of a Jewish boy, a dweller in New York's Bohemia, who loved a married lady and lost her to her husband. Deserted by her, he cannot understand why she has left him and cannot forget her. He tells, first, the history of their love affair, and then analyzes the reasons for its ending in terms of his knowledge of life, especially sex-life, work and his race."—Outlook

Reviewed by Guy Holt
Bookm 72:xvii S '30 220w

"The book has, I think, no permanent literary value whatsoever. It was written, it seems, in 1921, and withheld from publication for 'personal reasons,' since invalid; it was then to be published anonymously and it finally has appeared under the author's own name. It is called an 'auto-psychoanalysis' because in it

SHOSTAC, PERCY—Continued
the author states by telling his own story he is attempting to free himself from the complexes resulting from the unfortunate incidents related. In other words, here is a book which is actually neither verse nor novel, but which has the value of being a case-history and an extremely personal autobiography." E. L. Walton

Books p2 Jl 6 '30 900w

"Mr. Shostac's '14th Street' is, clearly, a book not of the ordinary run of fiction. Whether it is a tour de force, or is concealed autobiography one cannot say; nor is the question important. As poetry the book is not noteworthy. Indeed, the narrative is in broken prose rather than in fluent verse. The volume is over-long; the whole thing could have been done in fewer lines. The illustrations by Kurt Weise are interesting."

N Y Times p2 Jl 6 '30 700w

"There is no getting away from the fact that the form into which Percy Shostac has thrown the story which he calls 'Fourteenth Street' is the first reason for its hold on the reader. 'A novel in verse' he calls it, but by that he means a loose, rhythmical narrative style that looks and reads like free verse. It seems a relief to get a story that breaks with the familiar, closely-knit sentences of the conventional paragraph. I should put form first and content second. The story holds the reader because it probes deep into the elements of a love affair and its effect on the story-teller. Very likely the book has an autobiographical character. It certainly has an underlying quality of deep sincerity which seems to discount its being wholly a work of the imagination." Harry Hansen

+ N Y World p11 Je 19 '30 780w

Reviewed by Harry Hansen

N Y World p11 Je 30 '30 720w

"What he has to say is honestly said, and sincerity illumines his otherwise pretty dull pages. And its sincerity may give 14th Street a value in the eyes of the many readers who always confuse the human document with the work of art. But the value will be a false one. This common current attribution of artistic importance to the out-pourings of self-analysis with which hordes of writers (and many of them are young Jews) deluge us has resulted in a breaking-down of critical standards, here. The human document, per se, is not art. If it becomes so, it is because it is the work of an artist." F. L. Robbins

+ — Outlook 155:386 Jl 9 '30 400w

"'Fourteenth Street' leaves one sated with the personality of the author, and yet there is a narrative which holds interest through its demand for understanding."

+ — Springf'd Republican p5e Je 29 '30 250w

SHULTZ, MRS GLADYS (DENNY), and SCHENK, MRS BEULAH. House that runs itself. 238p il $2.50 Day

640 Home economics 30-26174

Two modern mothers who have put their theories of efficient housekeeping into daily practice have written down the results of their experiences for the use of other housekeepers. Mrs Shultz conducts a department of child care and training in Better homes and gardens, and Mrs Schenk is a consultant and lecturer on dietetics and household science.

Booklist 26:226 Mr '30

Books p10 Mr 30 '30 180w

Boston Transcript p8 Ja 4 '30 350w

"The book should be especially welcome as one of the few attempts to consider household management from the point of view of the interests of the whole family."

+ J Home Econ 22:220 Mr '30 150w

"This book aims to show how the machinery of housekeeping can be so devised and regulated as to insure that both child and adult needs will be properly cared for at the proper time, the housekeeper's burden made as light as possible, and free time for study or play or anything desired given to individuals and the family as a whole."

N Y Times p21 Ja 26 '30 180w

Pratt p19 summer '30

St Louis 28:70 Mr '30

Wis Lib Bul 26:101 Mr '30

SHUMWAY, HARRY IRVING. I go South; an unprejudiced visit to a group of cotton mills. 90p il $2 Houghton

331.7677 Cotton growing and manufacture. Labor and laboring classes—Alabama. Alabama—Social conditions 30-17812

Harry Shumway was chosen by certain cotton-mill owners to make an investigation of conditions in five mills in the Chattahoochee Valley, Alabama. This book is his day-by-day report.

"A New Englander who has never before crossed Mason and Dixon's line was selected to write an impartial account of Southern cotton mill life. Unfortunately his jaunty style, off-hand manner of observation and meagerness of data, betray the fact that what he doesn't know, and doesn't put down about Southern cotton mills, is very much worth knowing."

— Books p9 S 7 '30 230w

"According to Mr. Shumway, working in a southern cotton mill is the nearest approach to paradise that mortal man can reach. Of course, the wages are low, but then so are the living expenses. Everybody is healthy and happy and the bad reports that are being circulated are due entirely to the agitation of those bad, bad Bolsheviks. Mr. Shumway is a writer, however, and he no doubt realizes that to paint a picture with no shadows is to spoil the picture, so he resorts to little devices for purposes of plausibility. He finds, for example, that the graveyards are not properly cared for, and that some of the work in the factory is monotonous."

— Boston Transcript p2 Ag 16 '30 250w

"There is a powerful book hidden in the industrial changes of the South. Mr. Shumway has not written it, and it is fair to say that he did not intend to." R. C. Feld

N Y Times p5 O 12 '30 850w

SHURCLIFF, SIDNEY NICHOLS. Jungle is-
2 lands; the "Illyria" in the South Seas; with a scientific appendix by Karl Patterson Schmidt. 298p il $10 Putnam

591.996 Crane Pacific expedition of Field museum of natural history, 1928-1929. Illyria (yacht). Zoology—South Sea islands. South Sea islands—Description and travel 30-28197

A popular account of the Cornelius Crane Pacific expedition of the Field Museum of Natural History, to the islands of the American tropics and to the South Seas. The trip was taken in the Yacht Illyria, belonging to Mr Crane. Illustrated with photographs, several colored plates of birds and fish captured on the trip, and maps of the voyage.

"The author gives a refreshing, humorous, and at times thrilling account of their voyage." Al Chase

+ Chicago Daily Tribune p23 D 6 '30 550w

"There is an excellent chapter on problems of distribution in the island visited, by Karl P. Schmidt. It applies the methods of Alfred Russell Wallace's 'Island Life' in richer detail and with fuller information. We shall expect a further contribution from Mr. Schmidt, and indeed, we hope, from the whole ship's company." Charles Johnston

+ N Y Times p11 N 16 '30 1350w

SHUSTER, GEORGE NAUMAN. Catholic church and current literature. (Calvert ser.) 104p $1 Macmillan [4s Burns]

809 Roman Catholic literature. Religion in literature 30-2345

A monograph on the position of the Catholic church in regard to literature, briefly discussing the position in regard to current literature, the work of Catholic writers, and the church and literary censorship.

Boston Transcript p2 Mr 12 '30 220w

Cath World 131:245 My '30 500w

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison

Christian Century 47:178 F 5 '30 950w

Reviewed by Byron Darnton

N Y Evening Post p11m Ja 25 '30 450w

"The argument is very subtle; but it is upheld by a very comprehensive scholarship on the one hand and buttressed on the other by a broad tolerance and, indeed, by a passionate demand that the church to-day shall take account of all knowledge, all thought, all progress." Shaemas O'Sheel

+ N Y World p11m Mr 9 '30 280w

Reviewed by E. B. Chaffee

Outlook 155:549 Ag 6 '30 130w

St Louis 28:106 Ap '30

SIBOUR, VIOLETTE (SELFRIDGE) vicomtesse de. Flying gypsies; the chronicle of a 10,000 mile air vagabondage. 306p il $2.50 (10s 6d) Putnam

629.13 Aeronautics—Flights 30-11355

"Gypsies of the air in a little Moth plane, flying across the world from England to Indo China and on the return trip across America from Seattle to New York, the Viscount De Sibour and his wife enjoyed a glorious vagabondage of ten months. The adventures of these dauntless young people are told in a gay, lighthearted way by Violette De Sibour. The photographic illustrations and the maps, the latter drawn by De Sibour himself, add to the reality of the chronicle and the durability of the record."—Boston Transcript

Booklist 27:55 O '30

Boston Transcript p3 Ap 18 '30 750w

"The story of their tiger hunt in Indo-China is a classic in humorous narrative, all the more remarkable because one doesn't associate humor with tiger hunting." J. T. McCutcheon

+ Chicago Daily Tribune p8 My 10 '30 400w

Cleveland Open Shelf p103 Jl '30

"Simplicity, an easy cosmopolitanism and no little charm of humor and of word pictures of the far places as seen from the air mark this account a unique adventure—a flight into the blue which carried the American-born Countess and her husband clear round the world in a little open cockpit plane save, of course, for the two major oceans which the plane crossed as baggage."

+ N Y Times p10 Ap 27 '30 450w

St Louis 28:211 S '30

"Owing to the absence of dates the book loses some of the value which it might have had as the record of an interesting flight, but it is quite readable and is full of minor adventures and entertaining, and sometimes useful, descriptions of experiences and places."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p439 My 22 '30 220w

SIDHANTA, NORMAL KUMAR. Heroic age of India; a comparative study. (Hist. of civilization: pre-hist. and antiquity) 224p $4.50 Knopf [12s 6d Routledge]

915.4 India—Civilization. Sanskrit poetry. Literature, Comparative [29-29955]

"This study of the great Sanskrit epic, the Mahabharata, has a twofold purpose. It aims, in the first place, to give an account of the genuinely 'heroic' portions of the poem, that is, those portions which present material contemporary in ultimate origin with the warlike 'epic' kind of society described in the tale itself, and by the same token to ignore those portions of the swollen work that are later, chiefly priestly, additions. In the second place, Mr. Sidhanta makes a comparison of the state of society and customs portrayed in the Indian epic with those in epics from other parts of the world."—Books

"The more successful part of his work is the study of the Mahabharata from the Indian point of view, possibly because therein he had the previous studies of several excellent scholars to guide him. The 'comparative' feature of his treatment is at best vague and haphazard and rarely makes a significant contribution. Indeed, the final effect of the whole discussion is that his conclusions are less concrete than might not unreasonably have been expected."

— + Books p18 N 16 '30 220w

"It cannot be said that Dr. Sidhanta makes an interesting book of it. That probably was not his purpose. The citation of authorities, the scholarly scruple to establish material facts, the discussion of the reliability of texts and the gentle and prolonged dribble of pros and cons of probable chronology and identity of personæ, reveal the determination to be erudite rather than interesting, to be read by fellow scholars rather than by a lay public, however intelligent. And, in fact, the subject itself, so minute a part of the vast, and to most of us, undiscovered world of Indian history and civilization, could interest only the specialist. This book is a good example of the virtues and defects of the series of which it is the forty-seventh volume." Isidor Schneider

New Repub 62:334 My 7 '30 500w

"Professor Sidhanta's analysis of the famous Indian epics, particularly the Mahabarata, and his comparison of their manner and content with the heroic epics of the West, is of considerable interest to the student of pre-history. No candid reader of Professor Sidhanta's learned investigation will doubt that, within a mass of fable, there does exist enough fact to justify the comparison of Indian life at the dawn of the first millennium B.C. with the heroic ages in Greece, Scandinavia, Germany, Russia, and, indeed, with all 'Aryan' heroic ages."

+ — New Statesman 34:482 Ja 18 '30 280w

St Louis 28:216 S '30

Times [London] Lit Sup p80 Ja 30 '30 220w

SIEGFRIED, ANDRÉ. France; a study in nationality. (Inst. of politics pub., Williams college, Williamstown, Mass.) 122p $2 Yale univ. press [9s Oxford]

914.4 France — Politics and government. France—Nationality. National characteristics, French [30-5604]

The author of "America Comes of age" writes a contrast-study in his book on France. As a nation France, unlike America, refuses to adapt herself to the standardization of a modern machine age. The Frenchman is an individualist, an artist in running his own trade and governing his own life to suit himself. The author sums up the difference between the French and the Anglo-Saxon idea of government by quoting Fournol: "We give people leisure so that they can read books, but they give them leisure so that they can have an automobile."

Am Pol Sci R 24:513 My '30 250w

Reviewed by O. J. Hale

Ann Am Acad 150:298 Jl '30 200w

Booklist 26:353 Je '30

"Mr. Siegfried's little book is as substantial, as penetrating, as witty as his classic 'America Comes of Age.'" Albert Guerard

+ Books p10 Mr 16 '30 750w

"His analysis is purely objective. He does not try to hide the vices of his people and neither does he tend to exaggerate their virtue. He says of Frenchmen that they are without illusions and without hypocrisy and that they are adult in their outlook on life. No better example of the products of these virtues of the French mind could be offered than this, Siegfried's latest book." H. G. K.

+ Boston Transcript p1 Mr 1 '30 1400w

SIEGFRIED, ANDRÉ—Continued

Cath World 132:502 Ja '31 500w

Reviewed by L. R. Gottschalk

Hist Outlook 21:289 O '30 450w

"Professor Siegfried's book is bright and easy to read, but its title is misleading. 'A Study in Nationality' creates the expectation of a painstaking, scientific inquiry into the origin or nature of French national consciousness. It is nothing of the kind. Actually, it is a popular sketch of the political groups in contemporary France, with some attention to their general attitude toward international affairs and with a few incidental ipse dixits of the author on French 'character.' On the political groups, the sketch is notably clear and useful. At the same time, the American reader should be on his guard against some of Professor Siegfried's easy generalizations." C. J. H. Hayes

+ — Nation 130:710 Je 18 '30 600w

Nation and Ath 47:294 My 31 '30 600w

"The author was born a Protestant in a Catholic country. Nobody could be better qualified to compare the different aspects of modern civilization. Between the old and the new, between Europe and America, he hovers, observes and meditates. Very appropriately, and most ably, M. Siegfried links the political with the psychological problem. He cleverly and consistently derives the chief traits of French nationality from the French traditional character." Régis Michaud

+ New Repub 63:239 Jl 16 '30 800w

"A very interesting and stimulating book."

+ New Statesman 35:574 Ag 9 '30 550w

"Short as the book is, it is an unquestionably important book. Speaking in terms of comparison with 'America Comes of Age,' it may justly be called the second part of a study in contrast. There is the same clarity, precision and profundity of analysis, the same engaging wit of presentation that he displayed in that book." Alexander Nazaroff

+ N Y Times p3 Mr 2 '30 1400w

Pratt p30 autumn '30

St Louis 28:130 My '30

Times [London] Lit Sup p343 Ap 24 '30 1120w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Webb

World Tomorrow 13:523 D '30 230w

Reviewed by Sidney Painter

Yale R n s 19:843 summer '30 450w

SIMON, ANDRE LOUIS. Art of good living; a contribution to the better understanding of food and drink, together with a gastronomic vocabulary and a wine dictionary; foreword by Maurice Healy. 201p il $2.50 Knopf [7s 6d Constable]

641.01 Gastronomy. Wine and wine making 30-32193

"For M. Simon the basis of the art of good living is having good wine to drink and knowing how to harmonize it with food, companions, environment and weather. In this little book he endeavors to make clear to novices in that art just what wines they should use with what food and how their choice should be influenced also by season and surroundings."—N Y Times

Reviewed by Lettie Gay

Books p17 S 21 '30 200w

Boston Transcript p6 O 22 '30 600w

"Mr. André Simon has written a book worthy to stand side-by-side on the bookshelf with Professor Saintsbury's Notes on a Cellar Book and Mr. C. W. Berry's Viniana. To the delicate sensibility of the true gastronome Mr. Simon adds the professional virtuosity of a master craftsman and the propagandist enthusiasm of a man who—for a favoured few, at any rate—inculcates the art of good living not only by precept but from time to time by the most delightful of practical demonstrations. . . Mr. Simon leaves us deeply in his debt. We know that he is a great authority and we welcome his sane gospel of good cheer and health, but 'great authorities' very rarely write as well and as charmingly as he does."

+ New Statesman 34:269 N 30 '29 1650w

Reviewed by Louis Sherwin

N Y Evening Post p4d N 29 '30 150w

N Y Times p18 O 5 '30 350w

"There is a wealth of information in the book, information which isn't written in the style of an etiquette book, nor of the nouveau riche's guide book, but given with the zest of a man who knows food and drink and wants to impart the information that civilized living may take the place of frontier life and manners. Not least important in the scheme of the book are the gastronomic vocabulary and the wine dictionary—two extended and detailed lists of foods and drinks which will not only enlighten the ignorant, but comfort and rejoice the cognoscenti."

+ Sat R of Lit 7:149 S 20 '30 650w

"There is not any other modern English book than the present in which food and wine are treated together, by a master of both. There are in this book some sixty pages in which Mr. Simon follows the component parts of a meal, course by course, with a careful, almost prayerful, estimate not only of the proper ingredient of each, but with a suggestion of its proper vinous concomitant; and in so doing he constructs a philosophy of dining which will give not only cause for thought, but practical aid, to the most accomplished gourmet."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p950 N 21 '29 1100w

SIMPSON, BERTRAM LENOX (PUTNAM WEALE, pseud.). Port of fragrance. 314p $2.50 Dodd

30-11716

Leila, a bride of a fortnight, accompanies her husband to Hongkong. Jack's business affairs occupy a great share of his attention, and Leila soon grows bored and restless with the monotony of her life. Then she discovers that another woman, Camilla, has been a mysteriously close friend of her husband's. Leila determines to find out just what Camilla means to Jack, and tho her method is ruthless, she succeeds in reclaiming her husband.

Books p10 S 21 '30 100w

"There is the feeling of a mystery story in this book. Throughout, there is the note of impending disaster; it is suggested in everything that happens: the unrest of the natives, the expected Bolshevist riots, the Asiatics working behind screens, the yellow inscrutable faces, everything induces a tension, a readiness for something unknown to happen. Unfortunately, however, so strongly is this atmosphere insinuated, that what actually occurs seems dull to what was inferred, and the mystery of Camilla is never wholly explained; but Putnam Weale certainly knows how to excite the reader's interest, and his characterization of Leila is excellent."

— + N Y Times p8 Je 8 '30 500w

Times [London] Lit Sup p785 O 2 '30 100w

SIMPSON, HELEN DE GUERRY. Desires & devices (Eng title: Desolate house). 325p $2.50 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Heinemann]

30-8783

The scene of this novel of English country life is laid in the early nineteenth century. Its heroine is a high-spirited girl who as mistress of her father's country home is introduced to rough company. Horatio Forster is not overscrupulous about wine or women and follows too much the "devices and desires of his own heart." His overmastering desire is the crushing of a successful rival in love. The ruthless campaign of revenge which he organizes against his enemy involves his own daughter.

Bookm 71:x Ag '30 120w

"For all the excellence of her writing and the color of her pattern, her story makes no inroad on our emotions and gets only a precarious hold on our memories." M. C. Dawson
— + Books p5 Mr 30 '30 600w

"Here is a tale that might well have been strong and vigorous had it not been so befogged in an aura of false sentimentality and of Georgian priggishness." H. F. M.
— Boston Transcript p3 My 28 '30 800w

"A racy and readable novel, very competently written."
+ N Y Evening Post p11m Mr 22 '30 80w
N Y Times p27 Mr 23 '30 450w

"As fine a novel as we have read in some time. A beautiful irony plays over the well drawn characters, and the speeches of the learned counsel, indeed the whole account of the trial, is delightful. A distinguished piece of work." W. R. Brooks
+ Outlook 154:629 Ap 16 '30 100w

"In many ways an excellent narrative, the story gains little from its pseudo-historical dress remaining somehow curiously modern, so that one expects the trial of the farmers to turn into a scene from one of Mr. Galsworthy's plays at any moment. Hence Miss Simpson's compromise attempt to reconcile realism and romance is conscientious but not wholly a success, for it would seem that the period novel must become truly historical in its characters as well as in its setting to interest today."
+ — Sat R of Lit 6:1015 My 3 '30 420w

"The book begins engagingly, and the rather formal plot is well worked out, but we had hoped for something better than this from the author of Cups, Wands and Swords." B. E. Todd
+ — Spec 143:728 N 16 '29 80w
Times [London] Lit Sup p1098 D 26 '29 220w

SIMPSON, JAMES YOUNG. Nature: cosmic, human and divine. (Terry lectures, 1929) 158p $1.50 Yale univ. press [6s Oxford]

113 Nature. Philosophy of nature 30-6635

"This volume presents The Terry Lectures for 1929. The lecturer believes profoundly that the prodigious advance in knowledge in our time carries with it a concomitant peril, viz., the possible misuse of that knowledge because man's moral development has not kept pace with his growing control of the forces of Nature. He proposes a gigantic task—that of the consideration of the bearings of this knowledge on human life and thought in general."—Crozer Q

Reviewed by S. B. Meeser
Crozer Q 7:253 Ap '30 900w

Reviewed by Vergilius Ferm
Int J Ethics 41:137 O '30 350w

"This is one of the most rewarding books in this highly important field. It is impressive in its argument and charming in its style." E. B. Chaffee
+ Outlook 154:110 Ja 15 '30 200w
St Louis 28:201 S '30
Spec 144:27 Ja 4 '30 250w

"A pleasant, if not very profound, discourse on the scientific and religious ideas of the ordinary educated man."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p236 Mr 20 '30 700w

SIMPSON, LESLEY BYRD. Encomienda in New Spain; forced native labor in the Spanish colonies, 1492-1550. (Univ. of Cal. publications in hist.) 297p $3.50 Univ. of Cal.

325.3 Spain—Colonies. Compulsory labor A29-781

"The Encomienda was simply a feudal estate granted the Spanish adventures who conquered New Spain for the king. It included the right to exact forced labor from the Indians who lived upon the estate. Charles V, believing the encomienda system to be wrong, attempted in vain to abolish it. Dr. Simpson believes that for the period the system was justified and that the abuses under it were not as great as past critics have asserted."—Books

Reviewed by W. S. Robertson
Am Hist R 35:933 Jl '30 430w

"This is a lucid and revealing resumé of the contents of documents so far available affording data on the history of forced labor in the West Indies and Mexico in their first decades." W. C. MacLeod
+ Ann Am Acad 147:227 Ja '30 50w

"While Dr. Simpson has explored much virgin ground, his general conclusion does not seem to be convincing, simply because he brings forward little evidence as to the actual administration of the Encomienda."
— Books p18 Ap 20 '30 300w

"The work is scholarly and painstaking, and constitutes a real contribution to the history of Spanish colonial conditions in the first half of the sixteenth century. Six appendices, an excellent bibliography, and a detailed index add greatly to the value of the volume." A. C. Wilgus
+ Hist Outlook 21:36 Ja '30 100w

SIMPSON, WILLIAM JOHN SPARROW. St
[2] Augustine's conversion; an outline of his development to the time of his ordination. 276p $3.50 Macmillan [12s S.P.C.K.]

B or 92 Augustine, Saint, bp. of Hippo 30-33154

"Dr. Simpson gives a scholarly and painstaking investigation of the intellectual, emotional, and moral processes which marked the transition by which Augustine passed from his previously unsettled spiritual position to the fold of Catholic Christianity. Nor does he confine his attention solely to the psychological features of the situation. Quite a good deal of the early Augustinian theology is outlined with simplicity and precision. The point of view is that of the orthodox churchman, and the author finds room for little other than words of eulogy concerning his hero."—Christian Century

"Where the book falls short of its promise is in its failure to apply to the developing character of Augustine the principles of modern psychology. There is a tense drama in the story of that discordant personality, in that mixture of sensuality and self-esteem, in that combination of appetite and conscience, in that association of emotional helplessness and intellectual assurance, and in all that chaotic mental life which Augustine perforce lived for many years. This drama has never been adequately studied, save by Augustine himself in his 'Confessions.' Perhaps Dr. Sparrow Simpson, out of his profound knowledge of the great African churchman's life and character, may some day give us a modern version of that story." C. F. Ronayne
Books p45 D 7 '30 850w

"The point of view followed throughout the volume is theological rather than psychological, using the latter word in modern scientific meaning. Dr. Simpson knows his source material and knows it well, but there is no attempt made to interpret it in the light of the more recent investigations in the mental field. . . A competent neurologist should find much material ready to his hand in the pages of 'The Confessions.' This side of the question must remain for later investigation. In the meantime, Dr. Simpson's volume will doubtless take its place as one of the most accurate and thorough interpretations of the subject with which it deals from the point of view which its author occupies." F. D. Kershner
+ — Christian Century 47:1349 N 5 '30 500w

Reviewed by Evelyn Underhill
Spec 145:285 Ag 30 '30 250w

SINCLAIR, MAY. Tales told by Simpson. 297p $2 Macmillan [7s 6d Hutchinson] 30-22752

These thirteen short stories, satirical in tone, and pitiless in their probing of character and motive, are held together by the man who narrates them, an artist named Roly Simpson, who is the friend and confidant of the people he talks about. Contents: "Khaki"; Portrait of my uncle; Lena Wrace; The collector; The Frewin affair; Between the lines; The pictures; Fame; Miss Tarrant's temperament; Compensation; The pin-prick; The bambino; The "Wrackham memoirs."

SINCLAIR, MAY—Continued

Booklist 27:162 D '30

"Miss Sinclair is well schooled in the art of story-telling; moreover, she knows what a good story consists of. It is by reason of this latter knowledge, in her ambition not to fail to write what will be 'significant', that she is frequently led to tell stories which contain strong material indeed. How then, handicapped by her lack of feeling and her burden of maintaining the traditional sang-froid demanded by her code of manners, does she handle her strong material? By the equally traditional device of understatement. In this way she hopes to escape her obligation as an artist to feel. In the name of English art, appropriately employing in the studio a patter which comes from the club, she has erected a monument to precisely those national characteristics which are least esthetic." Gerald Sykes
+ — Bookm 72:173 O '30 230w

"The book has a quality of relaxation that seems unusual in the work of Miss Sinclair; by the same token it lacks the intensity on the one hand, the force and finish on the other, of her more sustained and unified pieces of work. These notes have the force inherent in the work of one of the most competent novelists of our time. They could not be banal or fatuous. Yet because they are casual, they will have, I think, less appeal to the general reader than is the wont of May Sinclair's books. They are far more interesting as a process in the work of their creator than as stories in themselves." Mary Ross
+ — Books p4 S 14 '30 450w

"No one could possibly sit down and read these stories all at once, with satisfaction. To assimilate their flavor and appreciate the beauty of Miss Sinclair's style, one must have leisure and a deep respect for the finer shadings of personality. Beyond question, Simpson gathered his reminiscences together before Miss Sinclair began to devote herself to the works of Freud and Jung. It is a fortunate thing indeed for her many admirers and readers." D. F. G.
+ Boston Transcript p2 S 24 '30 1150w

Reviewed by Florence Codman
Nation 131:654 D 10 '30 280w

Reviewed by Kenneth White
New Repub 65:27 N 19 '30 150w

"'Miss Tarrant's Temperament' is, perhaps, the best story in the volume; for here Miss Sinclair has allowed herself space enough to develop her theme with a subtle delicacy that leaves the reader very much in the quandary he would have been in had he really met Miss Tarrant."
+ New Statesman 35:284 Je 7 '30 180w

Reviewed by Horace Gregory
N Y Evening Post p12 S 20 '30 750w

"Miss Sinclair runs a moderate gamut of English life. And every one of the 'tales' (the number is thirteen, to be exact) is as fastidious and well bred as if it had come from the pen of Henry James himself. Indeed, if one were to place this collection within one category or another, one would call it of the school of Henry James."
+ N Y Times p4 S 14 '30 850w

"The first thing that strikes us about May Sinclair's stories is their technical brilliance, their almost acrobatic dexterity, the more evident because, seemingly, the least prized by the author. Being expert, Miss Sinclair can afford to be careless. No one but a master could write so haphazardly, with such self-indulgence or with such obvious disdain for calculated effects." Edwin Seaver
+ N Y World p3e O 19 '30 280w

"An aura of literary perfection wraps her stories around with apt, artful intent. If the atmosphere of a laboratory stimulates you, if you can forget that these bodies, these tissues, and these nerves are being dissected, for your amusement, rather than fused, you should enjoy the author's scientific reckonings." V. P. Ross
Outlook 156:189 O 1 '30 250w

"Miss Sinclair's short stories contain some of her best work. She has a marvellous capacity for probing in a few pages to the very roots of character, and, while often caustic in her exposure of human foibles, she is merciless only when confronted with the poison of jealousy." Gilbert Thomas
+ Spec 144:837 My 17 '30 100w

"Discloses the same deft characterization, apt phrasing and subtle irony which, compounded with some illusive ingredient known only to the author, make her best books a delight not only to read but to reread."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e O 12 '30 550w

"Miss Sinclair has written stories more worthy of her gifts than this collection, which reaches a good magazine standard, but hardly achieves distinction."
— + Times [London] Lit Sup p412 My 15 '30 300w

SINCLAIR, UPTON BEALL. Mental radio; introd. by William McDougall. 239p il $3 Boni [8s 6d Laurie]
134 Thought transference 30-14294

A record of experiments in mental telepathy conducted between Mrs Sinclair and her husband, brother-in-law and friend. The method of reproducing objects drawn in outline by the opposite party was used by Mrs Sinclair with a considerable degree of accuracy. Many of the original drawings, with Mrs Sinclair's versions, are reproduced in the book. In succeeding chapters she tells how one can practice to acquire this mind-reading art.

Bookm 72:xv O '30 100w
Books p15 Jl 6 '30 170w

"The story is told with so much honesty that there can be no thought of chicanery or fraud. Most fascinating of all is perhaps Mrs. Sinclair's own account of her peculiar technique and how it is possible for any one who will practice hard work to acquire it."
+ N Y Times p20 Je 15 '30 380w
St Louis 28:229 O '30
Springf'd Republican p5e Jl 6 '30 800w
Survey 64:448 Ag 15 '30 20w

"This is a sensible and, in its broader conclusions, a convincing book which may be warmly commended to the consideration of those psychologists—a dwindling remnant, we fancy—who still hold that the existence of a telepathic faculty in the human subject is not proven. It is perhaps less a help than a handicap that the evidence should be presented by a prominent social reformer."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p548 Jl 3 '30 1120w

SINCLAIR, UPTON BEALL. Mountain City. 399p $2.50 Boni [7s 6d Laurie]
30-12149

"The story is about the rise of Jed Rusher, poor lad of the cattle country. The theme of the book is money and the evil with which it is surrounded."—N Y Times

Booklist 27:30 S '30

Reviewed by Stirling Bowen
Bookm 71:543 Ag '30 1300w

"This is not a 'pretty' book, nor is it intended as such with its harsh, hard bitten sketches of the ruthless schemes of men; but it serves as a mirror, with some fidelity to the types, the tempo and the temper of our times." Halle Schaffner
Books p15 Ap 6 '30 550w
Christian Century 47:1531 D 10 '30 200w

" 'Mountain City' is exactly the kind of novel Horatio Alger might have written if he had possessed a social conscience. It is a rapid-racing narrative, gaspingly rapid after it achieves its momentum, vivid with episodes one more incredible than another, rising to a climax cinematographic in intensity and thrill. Its characters, however, are no more, or no less, real than those in 'Phil the Fiddler,' and its theme is hardly more convincing than the old familiar one that is to be found in almost any Algeresque fiction. One never comes to know the people in the book in any more intimate sense than one comes to know the people one reads about in the newspapers. . . Its satire fails because it never gets beneath the surface of its material. In other words, it is interesting as a newspaper report but unconvincing as a novel." V. F. Calverton
— Nation 130:680 Je 11 '30 650w

"It is a good story, and, generally, a true one." R. M. L.
+ New Repub 63:54 My 28 '30 220w

"Mountain City is neither poetic nor subtle; it leaves us unbaffled and unfatigued. There is about it an endearing naivety, and it is eminently readable."
+ New Statesman 35:192 My 17 '30 120w

"Because of Sinclair's faults, this is not a great novel; because of his virtues, it is intensely interesting." Bernard Smith
+ — N Y Evening Post p11m Mr 8 '30 850w

"If this work came without the stamp of his name a reviewer might with reason be led to believe it was the first effort of a naive young student oppressed with the weight of the world's injustice, and could with kindness urge the adolescent aspirant to give up literature as his chosen field. It's rather a more difficult matter with a man who has over a score of books to his credit. Such habits are difficult to break."
— N Y Times p9 Mr 9 '30 550w

"Not to read 'Mountain City' will be to miss a shrewd, sharp, honest, doggedly ironic, and altogether rewarding book." L. W. Dodd
+ Sat R of Lit 6:944 Ap 19 '30 1000w

"His new novel is something of a disappointment. It does indeed tell a story which is exciting, and in places dramatic, and it does to some extent paint a picture of one section of American society, though the accuracy of the picture is doubtful. But Mr. Sinclair's character drawing is crude, and his situations are at times unconvincing."
— Spec 144:1019 Je 21 '30 320w
Times [London] Lit Sup p512 Je 19 '30 400w
World Tomorrow 13:475 N '30 400w

SINCLAIR-COWAN, MRS BERTHA (MUZZY). See Bower, B. M., pseud.

SIPE, CHESTER HALE. Indian wars of Pennsylvania; an account of the Indian events, in Pennsylvania, of the French and Indian war, Pontiac's war, Lord Dunmore's war, the Revolutionary war and the Indian uprising from 1789-1795; introd. by George P. Donehoo. 793p il $5 The author, 145 E. Jefferson st., Butler, Pa.

970.4 Indians of North America—Pennsylvania. Indians of North America—Wars. Pennsylvania—History 29-25484

This large volume, based primarily on the Pennsylvania archives and colonial records, covers the period from Braddock's defeat in 1755 to the final overthrow of the Indians and the British by General Wayne in 1795. The first four chapters give the historical background of the Indian wars. Further chapters are devoted to massacres and atrocities, Braddock's campaign, Pontiac's war, and the part played in the Revolutionary war by the Pennsylvania Indians. The last chapter contains an account of the post-Revolutionary uprising.

"The author has confined himself to a compilation of apparently all of the accounts of scalpings, murders, burnings, and massacres for which he could find even the remotest shred of authenticity. With the social, economic, and political implications of his subject outside of the mere tragic events he reveals no familiarity. . . In the introductory chapters the author relies almost solely upon Heckewelder, accepting that missionary's mild propaganda with almost unbelievably naïve credulity. The volume is based chiefly upon the Pennsylvania Archives and Colonial Records, though in using even these the author does not seem to show awareness of the fact that they are all white records and that even the speeches made by Indians were written down by white hands." J. P. Boyd
— Am Hist R 36:208 O '30 600w

"The book is essentially a narrative, with little attempt at analysis, except for occasional moralizing. Little or no attention is paid to trade or social relations between the two races. The volume contains a mine of information, which is made the more accessible by a very good index, but it is marred by the author's lack of a sense of proportion, his provincialism, and his failure to show discrimination in his use of sources." R. O. MacFarlane
+ — Canadian Hist R 11:163 Je '30 400w

"Mr. Sipe has evidently taken great pains to make his history an authoritative record and also to hold a just balance as between Indian and white. For his narrative does no whitewashing of either individual actions or general policies of the settlers when to our later and unprejudiced eyes they seem reprehensible."
+ N Y Times p20 Ja 12 '30 450w

SITWELL, EDITH. Alexander Pope. 368p il $4 Cosmopolitan bk. [15s Faber]

B or 92 Pope, Alexander 30-10497

A defense and vindication of Alexander Pope, the man and the poet, by an English poet and critic. Miss Sitwell has endeavored to show that, behind his bitter tongue and malicious poses, Pope was kindhearted and loyal; and that because of his flawless technique and the richness and variety of his verse, he is one of the greatest of English poets.

Booklist 27:26 S '30
Bookm 71:455 Jl '30 800w

"Almost hysterically enthusiastic book. It is indeed a novelty. People have not talked like this about Pope for almost 200 years. And I must confess that I am delighted. It is delightful, for instance, to find some one writing about Pope as if he were quite as mysterious and wonderful as Keats, which indeed he is. . . As biography, Miss Sitwell's book will hardly do. As eulogy it is nevertheless delicious, and as criticism, even if it is extravagant, it takes its place among the necessary deeds to be done for the honor of Twickenham's angry swan." Mark Van Doren
+ Books p5 Ap 13 '30 1250w

Reviewed by Karl Schriftgiesser
Boston Transcript p8 My 3 '30 950w

"As biography, the book makes no claim to be based on any extensive knowledge or research. Her specialty is to explain the actions and motives of her hero through sympathy and intellectual affinity. Unfortunately, she is too much concerned to make out a case on Pope's behalf, being almost ready to denounce all those who denounced him. The strange thing is that, while she unsparingly flagellates all who have a word to say against him, she herself is occasionally overcome by sudden accesses of frankness which give away her whole case." R. A. Scott-James
Christian Science Monitor p9 Ap 12 '30 800w
Cleveland Open Shelf p125 S '30

"It says in favor of Pope many of the things which have never been said before, but it is also almost ludicrously intemperate, biased, and blind to all the things it would not see." J. W. Krutch
— Nation 130:573 My 14 '30 1000w

SITWELL, EDITH—Continued

"Miss Sitwell's great merit as a biographer and critic of Pope is that she is a poet herself and has real sympathy with and understanding of his art and outlook. Where she allows this sympathy and understanding unaffectedly to carry her along through the narrative of Pope's life or to point out the beauties of his poetry, her book is admirable. . . But when in the end she spoils her book and destroys one's confidence in her as a biographer and one's faith in her criticism, one's disappointment is all the greater. Miss Sitwell's great fault is lack of judgment and balance. She falls into the absurd habit of contemporary biographers of unconsciously assuming that a man must be all white or all black. Pope is all white, and all his enemies, all his critics, even (almost) poets who do not write like Pope are all black. The result is that her complete picture of Pope is just as foolishly distorted and exaggerated in one direction as Sir Leslie Stephen's was in the other."

+ — Nation and Ath 46:864 Mr 22 '30 1300w

"It was to be expected that Miss Sitwell's life of Pope would be lively: and lively enough, in all conscience, this biography is. It is an angry and contentious and animadversive book: its aim is to upset all the prevailing notions about Pope, both as person and as poet: and this vigorous and frankly emotional attitude—or shall we say bias?—could not fail to produce a portrait of which the most striking feature is its energy. Not content with posing Pope as a great and fiery and sensitive poet, Miss Sitwell would also have us believe that he has been much maligned as a man." Conrad Aiken

New Repub 62:358 My 14 '30 1150w

"Miss Sitwell's book is not a critical challenge to the prevailing, if now a little diffident, Romantic taste, but a personal eulogy of Pope's character, and an intensive, not an extensive, eulogy of The Rape of the Lock and of The Dunciad. Apart from an introduction, denouncing Pope's critics, and a final chapter on the 'texture' of his verse in these two poems, the bulk of the book is biographical. . . But the biography is sketched rather than built, and Martha Blount, in particular, becomes too faint for the importance assigned to her in the picture. The figure of Swift is the most alive of all, and the best minor passages are those in which Miss Sitwell, the poet, overflows into imagery."

+ — New Statesman 34:784 Mr 22 '30 750w

"In a book that must take a notable place for brilliant portraiture and brilliant writing, Edith Sitwell's pages dealing with Pope and Dean Swift form a masterpiece in themselves. The irascible if scintillating Pope and the thunderous and near-to-mad Swift become two humorous characters under her skillful manipulation. But she is not making comedy of them, far from it. Edith Sitwell is too filled with divine pity for that, and her tenderness over Pope is only exceeded by her love for Swift." Percy Hutchison

+ N Y Times p2 Ap 13 '30 1500w

"Miss Sitwell makes a most presentable biography out of Pope's life. Through it all runs the Sitwell commentary on poetry and poets, which is a whole show in itself." Harry Hansen

+ N Y World p15 Ap 15 '30 1000w

"Miss Sitwell's pictures of Pope's times, and of such figures as Swift, Wycherly and Lady Mary Wortley Montagu are clever and vivid. Her style is somewhat precious. But in these days of super-production Miss Sitwell's games with words and sentences are as charming as the playful tricks of a child with a beloved and familiar parent." F. L. R.

+ Outlook 154:628 Ap 16 '30 250w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:68 O '30

Pratt p38 summer '30

St Louis 28:218 S '30

"Her championship is wholehearted, she defends the man as vehemently as she lauds his work, and is as wittily unscrupulous when dealing with his detractors as even he could have desired. It is a cheerful and exhilarating experience to find admiration and sympathy expressed so warmly and unguardedly, and even if we cannot go all the way with her in her apology for Pope's tortuousness, she leaves us with the feeling that it is lack of generosity rather than superabundance of morality that keeps us lagging behind."

+ Sat R 149:364 Mr 22 '30 700w

"Edith Sitwell's book on Alexander Pope is one of the most delightfully feminine compositions I have ever read. Miss Sitwell has written not so much a life of Pope, or an extended critical study of the poetry of Pope, as a eulogy of Pope, the man and the writer—a glowing, high hearted, lovingly prejudiced, and perhaps somewhat unscrupulous defense of him against all his enemies, past, present, or to come. And by doing so, she has, I believe, performed a true service to English letters; for Pope has long needed a convinced and passionate advocate." L. W. Dodd

+ Sat R of Lit 6:1007 My 3 '30 1500w

"This book is a delight, not only for what it reveals of Pope, but for what it reveals of Miss Sitwell. It is as much a credit to her heart as to her head. I do not know when any volume of mingled criticism and biography has given me so much pleasure." James Laver

+ Spec 144:sup487 Mr 22 '30 850w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 20 '30 950w

"Miss Sitwell is never dull, and, so far as we can judge, she has sought and told the truth. And certainly what she has told is told not merely with brilliance, but with charm. From her the glitter of the diamond will surprise no one, but not everyone will have expected the softer beauty of the pearl. We get both. . . No one who loves fire and colour and imagination or sheer beauty of words and phrases will read this book without noting many pages to which he will wish to return."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p223 Mr 20 '30 4000w

Reviewed by John Derby

Yale R n s 20:196 autumn '30 600w

SITWELL, EDITH. Collected poems. ltd ed 178p $15 Houghton [8s 6d Duckworth]

821 [30-18476]

A collection of Miss Sitwell's poems which brings together, fifteen years after her first volume of verse appeared, all the poems which she cares to preserve.

"The authentic poet has only one warranty. Whether his work is traditional or modern, scholarly or primitive, intellectually or emotionally expressed it conveys a sense of magic and wonder. . . Miss Sitwell has been writing for nearly 20 years. She has been ridiculed and flattered, welcomed and boycotted; but whatever her critics may have said they have been obliged to recognize that Miss Sitwell never fails to indicate her possession of the aforesaid warranty. . . Those who do not care for her work have probably been left unmoved by the dark, fiery imaginings of Shelley and Keats, and the Shakespeare who wrote 'A Midsummer-Night's Dream.'" Thomas Moult

+ Christian Science Monitor p7 Ag 30 '30 600w

"Miss Sitwell's poetry offers a fair target to the fault-hunter. It is, in the first place, a world apart, certainly beautiful and self-consistent, but resembling common experience, or what we call reality, only here and there. . . Miss Sitwell is careless of lucidity; her poems are often difficult to follow, and over a long course the difficulty is greatly aggravated by their want of outline. . . But even in this strange poetry there are human chords, which remain and echo in the memory when other sounds have ebbed away. . . These moments will outlast the exuberant vegetation and the maze of heat. At their approach, Miss Sitwell's style takes on a negative quality, a crystal blankness, from which the image looks up exquisitely clear; it fills the mind, not merely with delight but wonder, that a word here and there, so simple, should have this power of evocation." K. John

+ — Nation and Ath 47:596 Ag 9 '30 700w

"The things that most displease my ear in her versification are not the liberties she takes with rhyme and metre but the too frequent clumsinesses to which she is reduced in her efforts to obey the rules. . . There are lines crammed with heavy syllables, lines awkwardly too long or too short for the metrical pattern, and many, too many, in which she arrives gasping at the rhyme word as though only by main force had she been able to put it in its proper place. . . Where Miss Sitwell does definitely and strikingly reveal herself as an innovator is in the attempt to produce new images and new epithets." Edward Shanks

— + New Statesman 35:376 Je 28 '30 1400w

"Except in such poems as 'Colonel Fantock' and 'Mademoiselle Richarde' there is no shaping imagination in Miss Sitwell's work, no human penetration, nothing to raise her poems from an aristocratic triviality that toys with the shell of the art of Queen Anne and forgets the terseness, the wit, of its body. But the catholic, reflective critic will treasure her melodious preciosity and insouciant fancy, and will refrain from condemning her for not being what she so evidently is not, a major contemporary poet." M. U. Schappes

— + N Y Evening Post p4d D 6 '30 550w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:90 D '30

"Miss Sitwell is an artist in words. To her, words are living and lively things, to be used lovingly and positively for their own sake and not merely carefully and relatively as parts of the pattern of speech. . . Sometimes she will take, as it were, a whole handful of the strange, beautiful and poignant words, and let them slip through her fingers like gems, in a cascade of colour. . . She can capture us through our five senses as no other can capture us. . . The intellectual content of some of her poems is negligible, but their physical content fills all time and space and cannot be avoided. Nowhere else has poetry reached such heights of witchery." F. A. Clement

+ Sat R 150:21 Jl 5 '30 800w

"We can appreciate the exuberant fancy of Miss Sitwell, the abundance and variety of color of her verse, the wild simile and metaphor that so peculiarly decorate it, but we cannot lose ourselves in the work. We realize that she is doing dextrous things, that she is making ingenious experiments, but so conscious are we of this that the poetry will not be absorbed by our mind, rather it remains before our eyes as a brilliant jugglery, an adroit prestidigitation. . . We prefer her 'Gold Coast Customs' to yards and yards and yards of her satyrs, nymphs, fauns, Admirals, and high cockalorums of all sorts." W. R. Benét

— Sat R of Lit 7:212 O 11 '30 700w

"Few modern poets take themselves more seriously as pure poets than Miss Sitwell, and as a consequence few modern poets seem to have more sense of what real poetry is. But possibly she has by now made enough experiments in all but meaning. The instruments are all tuned and we wait the tune, not in short phrases and tantalizing snatches, but clear, complete and controlled."

Times [London] Lit Sup p696 S 4 '30 1000w

SITWELL, OSBERT. Man who lost himself. 309p $2.50 Coward-McCann [7s 6d Duckworth]

30-5937

A record of the inner drama of the life of Tristram Orlander, poet. Externally, the events that determine Tristram's career are his poverty and disappointing love affair as a young man. In throwing away his individual poetic gift to become a successful, popular novelist and achieve physical security, his spiritual career ends in tragedy, and his death comes on a note of mystical experience quite in keeping with his true character. Mr Sitwell calls this study of a soul-adventure a "novel of reasoned action."

Booklist 26:398 Jl '30

"Never compelling that sustained attention that demands a book be read until it is finished, The Man Who Lost Himself has, nevertheless, a beauty of phraseology and a richness of imagery that far transcend the story itself and that hold the interest until the end is reached."

+ — Bookm 71:329 Je '30 220w

"In the course of the story of Tristram's disintegration, Mr. Sitwell scores some neat satiric hits on contemporary literary fads and successes. Sir Tristram's end has a halo of supernatural horror which would have stirred the imagination of Poe. There are flashes of the Spanish scene both beautiful and haunting. But the balance of all these diverse elements—maintained in the cerebrations of the raconteur—is so laborious and 'reasoned' as to cancel the effect which any of them, separately, could attain. It would not be difficult to say several things the book might have been, but it is hard for me to see what it is except the exhaustive—and to me exhausting—elaboration of a theory." Mary Ross

— + Books p5 Mr 16 '30 620w

"Whether the story creates a pleasant or an unpleasant effect, it is full to the brim with a keen and subtly penetrating interpretation of life." D. L. M.

+ Boston Transcript p2 Ap 2 '30 750w

"What the great romantic poets were wont to do for the Rhine and Greece Mr. Sitwell does for this hill in Spain. On the pages from which this image rises is some of the richest contemporary prose—prose which for its fecundity, resilience, and dignity reverts for comparison to the masters of the eighteenth century. Rhetoric of this kind, with its intricate structural and emotional convolutions, is a lost art among the cinematic writers of the day, but as Mr. Sitwell revives it, it contains inflections of wit and elegance which are not to be ignored." Florence Codman

+ Nation 130:464 Ap 16 '30 500w

" 'The Man Who Lost Himself' is written in such a fashion that it demands all the alertness and tension of the faculties required by a really great work, and then gives us tuppence for our trouble in the shape of an idea or two and a few macabre moments. It promises so frequently to be something more serious than it is. Thought and experience lie vaguely behind the matter of it, but the thought, lacking body, cannot fill the words, and the experience, lacking sharpness, cannot pierce through them." L. L. Irvine

— Nation and Ath 46:143 O 26 '29 130w

New Repub 64:135 S 17 '30 250w

New Statesman 34:193 N 16 '29 300w

"Much of this book is excellent and much falls flat. The variety of interests weakens its force. The book is held together more through the unfailing beauty and sureness of its style than through anything else; it is far better written than told." Louis Kronenberger

— + N Y Times p9 Mr 2 '30 950w

Reviewed by Margery Latimer

N Y World p11m Ap 27 '30 720w

"The rich background adds interest to a distinguished novel."

+ Outlook 154:387 Mr 5 '30 180w

Reviewed by L. P. Hartley

Sat R 148:550 N 9 '29 700w

"His book to be savored must be read. It cannot be distilled, for its essence resides in its finely tempered and pliant style, its delicate apperceptions, its pregnant background and profound if restrained emotion. Mr. Sitwell's is highly civilized writing, subtle, full, and purposive. And his descriptions of Spain are the acme of his art." Amy Loveman

+ Sat R of Lit 6:797 Mr 8 '30 800w

"The whole book is brilliant, intricate in its implications and distinguished. Sometimes it has the tedium of a summer too greatly laden with beauty; but in his descriptions of Granada

SITWELL, OSBERT—Continued
In its sublime, montonous and sombre moods, Mr. Sitwell rises from the delightful and suave to the magnificent. These pages are no mere purple patches; they are true emanations from the city itself, as troubling as the haze of heat which quivers over those ancient roofs." V. S. Pritchett

+ — Spec 143:691 N 9 '29 800w

Springf'd Republican p5e Jl 6 '30 520w

"Mr. Osbert Sitwell by the poetic passages of this book, easily his best, has achieved an assured place. We only wonder why he must be so ceaselessly contemptuous of almost all his fellow-men and their occupations. It betrays an element of inhumanity which is absent from the greatest art."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p842 O 24 '29 700w

SITWELL, SACHEVERELL. Doctor Donne and Gargantua: the first six cantos. ltd autog ed 80p $10 Houghton [7s 6d Duckworth]
821 [30-33699]

"The theme of 'Doctor Donne and Gargantua' is the never-ceasing clash between beauty and the unbeautiful. The first portion of the poem was published nine years ago; and so that readers might refresh their memories, before embarking on the second three of the six cantos now completed, the already published sections have been reprinted."—Christian Science Monitor

---

"Mr. Sitwell's imagery is musical and warm. He uses it to invoke picture after lovely and luxurious picture, of naiads, and clouds, temples and mountains—a hundred riches of fantastic southern landscapes, wherein Gargantua pursued his grotesque mission. Yet we cannot help feeling that Mr. Sitwell's most triumphant moments arrive when he is depicting one of these scenes in a simple phrase." Thomas Moult

Christian Science Monitor p13 S 27 '30 550w

"Whatever Mr. Sitwell may add to these six cantos in the future, it is probably safe to say that his 'world of fantasies, of carved conceits,' is radically trivial in kind and spiritually meaningless. The serpent has not entered the garden: there is not enough death in the world." S. J Kunitz

— Nation 131:585 N 26 '30 780w

"It is often lovely poetry to read, lovely and leisurely and eclectic; in fact, what one would expect. A pleasant book of trance to peruse on the summer river-bank of a noon stream. Also, its air of distinction springs from the possession of genuine distinction. But we cannot sincerely feel that the material is successfully organized." W. R. Benét

+ — Sat R of Lit 7:88 Ag 30 '30 380w

"Mr. Sitwell, in his preface, observes that 'the whole project was undertaken deliberately as a material likely to occupy congenial moments over a long stretch of years.' That is a guarantee that the poem is a procession of beautiful dreams, of delicate and new shapes, of strains of music and echoes of silver voice. As for the 'evil' and Gargantua, that is not in Mr. Sitwell's range; he turns everything to a prettiness which is not only congenial to him but possible to him alone, or almost, in this period."

Times [London] Lit Sup p590 Jl 17 '30 700w

SITWELL, SACHEVERELL. Gothick North; a study of medieval life, art and thought. 454p il $5 Houghton [2v ea 8s 6d Duckworth]
940.1 Middle ages. Art, Gothic [30-16398]
For descriptive note see Annual for 1929.

Booklist 26:154 Ja '30

"Mr. Sitwell's erudition in out-of-the-way subjects combines with his gift of words to open unused casements of the intellect. Readers who have not made acquaintance with the same author's other two volumes of the trilogy of 'The Gothick North,' completed by 'The Fair-Haired Victory,' can rest assured that their pleasure in the last will be little diminished by ignorance of the two earlier volumes. It will probably, however, send them in haste back to these other volumes." R. L. Megroz

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 Mr 29 '30 550w

Nation 130:306 Mr 12 '30 40w

Reviewed by D. M. Stuart

Nation and Ath 46:645 F 8 '30 850w

"The real subject of the book is not the Middle Ages, but Sacheverell Sitwell. His figure occupies most of the foreground; in the middle distance is his audience; between the legs of all these personages we get an occasional glimpse of the Gothic, sitting neglected and forlorn; and endlessly we hear Mr. Sitwell's voice explaining his methods, his ideas about a large variety of subjects, his peculiar talents, his points of superiority to almost every other living prose writer. Even at those moments when the Gothic does manage to creep through this verbal barrage, it receives rather summary treatment. The purely spectacular side of the Gothic is the only one that interests him; here his poetical talents have full scope. The book's best passages are those which deal, in fantastic sensuous imagery, with the physical aspects of the age." Lloyd Goodrich

— + New Repub 62:106 Mr 12 '30 530w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:13 F '30

Pratt p32 summer '30

St Louis 28:53 F '30

"If his eventual findings do not wholly satisfy or even much excite a particular critic, his appreciations of certain works of art and some of his generalizations about groups and periods are brilliant enough to leave every reader his debtor. . . If we cannot be quite sure where he has at length arrived, at least we can relish the adventurousness and the skill which have gone to the making of 'The Fair-Haired Victory.' His book is genuinely amusing, in the best, the Rossettian sense." T. E. Welby

+ — Sat R 149:140 F 1 '30 1350w

"Mr. Sitwell projects his own mind into the Gothick past. He plays with it and interprets it; he examines it with the bewildering artistry of the poet, egoistically perhaps, but with so delicate a fantasy that his interpretation compels our acquiescence. But we are uncomfortable and resentful, for he has forced us to be melancholy."

Spec 144:29 Ja 4 '30 350w

Spec 144:674 Ap 19 '30 480w

Times [London] Lit Sup p118 F 13 '30 750w

Times [London] Lit Sup p10 Mr 4 '30 530w

Wis Lib Bul 26:103 Mr '30

SIWERTZ, SIGFRID. Goldman's; tr. from the Swedish by E. Gee Nash. 304p $2 Cosmopolitan bk. [7s 6d Allen, G.]
30-9240

Goldman's department store in Stockholm is the scene of this series of linked stories. The book opens with the tale of two penniless lovers who wandered into the store, were accidently locked in after closing hour, and who spent their bridal night in Goldman's famous renaissance bed. The main characters in this novel of dramatic human interest are Goldman, the little Jew store owner, Asklöf, the manager, and the Baroness Federle, head of the dress department.

"Mr. Siwertz writes with a warmth which, whether playful or sorrowing, suffuses his book in color. Through the artificial light of the great store there permeates a streak of simple clarity. It fastens first on this face, then on that, and each time it captures a true reflection. The book has grace, poise and a tender turn of fancy."

+ Books p14 Ap 20 '30 380w

Cleveland Open Shelf p78 My '30

"The fantastic rather than the realistic has often claimed too much of the writer's attention.

But the book remains a warm and loving record of real people. . . It is vastly different from any Scandinavian literature that has to date found its way into an English translation."
+ — N Y Times p7 Mr 23 '30 550w

Springf'd Republican p5e Jl 13 '30 250w

"Most Swedish fiction is known to English readers only in American translations full of idiom which, whether it is Swedish or American, is not English. Here is a Swedish novel in excellent English."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p788 O 10 '29 400w

SKELTON, MRS GLADYS (JOHN PRESLAND, pseud.). Charioteer. 303p $2.50 Appleton [7s 6d Douglas]
30-19507

Story of two sisters, both talented musicians, who are rivals in love and in their art. The antagonism reaches its climax after a concert when the sisters discover the violence of their jealousy.

"A shapely, competent novel." Herbert Kahn
+ — Nation and Ath 47:118 Ap 26 '30 70w

"This book has an excellent story which never fails to hold the attention. The account of the two sisters, Shirley and Fredegonde, and their rise to fame is so removed from the general experience of life that one gives to it the same leniency of interpretation that one gives to a fairy tale. But the characters who move in this exotic setting bear the stamp of reality."
+ New Statesman 35:62 Ap 19 '30 100w

N Y Times p6 Ag 31 '30 280w

"The story begins as a five-finger exercise in vulgar, facetious comedy and develops into pure Wurlitzer. One passes by a series of uneasy hops, skips and jumps through the successful musical careers of two sisters of extremely incompatible temperaments." V. S. Pritchett
— Spec 144:581 Ap 5 '30 200w

"Mr. Presland, in spite of the fact that his prose varies from the distinguished and eloquent to the slipshod and over-colloquial keeps the minds and emotions of his characters working at such a consistently high pressure that they sometimes seem out of touch with all reality; but they at any rate have full and vivid lives of their own."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p396 My 8 '30 350w

SKINNER, CONSTANCE LINDSAY. Red man's Luck. 251p il $2 Coward-McCann
30-24629

"The setting of the story is that in which the author spent her childhood, a fur trading post in the Canadian northwest. The hero, Luck, is a white boy, a waif, who divides his time between the Indian camps and the fort. The boy is a strange mixture, with his love and understanding of the Indians and his loyalty and devotion to the white men."—Chicago Daily Tribune

Booklist 27:167 D '30

"The story is well constructed, rising to the climax of a fight in a snowstorm, and the vitality of the characters, the vividness of the scene, the mingling of gravity and humor, make it thoroughly engrossing. Miss Skinner not only knows her Northwest; she conveys it."
+ Bookm 72:xxvii S '30 70w

"Her Indians are real human beings—the kind any of us might have met if fate had permitted us to venture with friendly hearts and open minds into the virginal wilderness of the Northwest frontier a century or so ago. They move gracefully and rhythmically against a vast and beautiful background of sky and pines and ice-bound lakes. Even today one finds an occasional old-time Indian, of heroic simplicity, with wistful memories of the golden buffalo days, who resembles Long Shadow, the Piegan chief in Miss Skinner's story." Elsie Weil
+ Books p8 N 23 '30 650w

Reviewed by A. L. Shea
Chicago Daily Tribune p11 S 20 '30 150w

"Boys who have read 'The Tiger Who Walks Alone' need no introduction to this writer. 'Red Man's Luck' is less exciting, and has a curious stiffness in the conversational passages, but it is especially to be recommended for its sympathetic and intelligent interpretation of Indian character."
+ Christian Science Monitor p6 O 14 '30 400w

"The hero of the story is a white boy of unknown parentage whom the Indians name the Beloved Child and whom the whites name Luck. His is an exciting story of adventure; it has beauty and considerable historic interest, and a power of describing action. 'Red Man's Luck' is more than a rendering of prairie scenes and Indian and pioneer character; it is a fine story, written with earnestness and ability, and with devotion to the places and people of the American North."
+ New Repub 65:22 N 19 '30 230w

"There are plots and counterplots, adventures with bears and buffalo hunts, secret expeditions and a dramatic meeting of two warring tribes in a high pass in the Rockies to hold the interest of boy and girl readers. In addition there is a quality of beauty in style and thought that only an author who is a poet and whose knowledge of the Indian is as complete as it is sympathetic, could supply." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p11 N 9 '30 250w

"The movement of the tale is not too rapid to prevent the proper savoring of the wild background, and yet the element of picturesqueness and native wildness is never overdone. Altogether an excellent story for the pre-adolescent period."
+ Sat R of Lit 7:352 N 15 '30 180w

SKINNER, CONSTANCE LINDSAY. Songs of the coast dwellers. 85p $2 Coward-McCann 811 30-14407

These dramatic lyrics and songs were inspired by the life of the Squamish Indians of old British Columbia. "The succession of lyrics presents, in primitive symbolism, the characters of an imaginary community and the interweaving of their lives. There are the lovers and the women they mate with, or fail to win, the young mothers, the lonely maidens who still wait for love, and the women forsaken: the dying hunter, the village dandy, the aged man, the chief and his braggart little son, the priest, the man who weds money, the bear-killer, the poet whose songs begin to seek the realm of imagination above the actualities of experience and whose name, Kan-il-lak, is that of the divine culturist of a coast tribe; and the Four Seasons and the Earth, which appear as persons of the group." (Pref.)

Reviewed by Horace Gregory
Books p2 My 11 '30 750w

"The poems [are] worth while and exceptional. . . It is a charming book, both in contents and appearance." F. M.
+ Boston Transcript p2 Je 7 '30 880w

"The identification of the poet with the Indian and his world, an identification which in both literature and painting has led to the enrichment of American art, is very nearly perfect. Miss Skinner understands these people and feels them very deeply; she becomes one of them. Therefore her poems, although they are not translations, have usually a definite authenticity of rhythm, mood, and expression."
+ Nation 130:712 Je 18 '30 200w

"Again and again Miss Skinner brings forth exceedingly lovely lines—her work possesses great purity and austerity. It is an astonishing effect of the book that its atmosphere literally transports us to sea and forest—we, sophisticated, city-bred with ready-made emotions. These poems should be chanted in that part of our land which inspired them—the magnificent, gleaming coast of British Columbia." Laura Benét
+ N Y Evening Post p10 Ap 26 '30 400w

SKINNER, C. L.—Continued
"Miss Skinner has become intuitively and naturally and with immediacy the interpreter of the Indian and, at the same time, the interpreter of what she herself as poet feels. The result is very fine. She makes intelligible the Indian dignity, his simple and grand adjustment to his environment, his emotional integrity. She escapes the danger of the would-be interpreters of Indian material who so frequently resort to all kinds of sentimental elaborations upon Indian symbolism, by creating a symbolism for herself which is not necessarily Indian but has an authentic emotion back of it." E. L. Walton
+ N Y Times p9 O 5 '30 700w

"Unusual in their rhythms, simple but fresh in their imagery, they achieve a beauty that is distinctive and appealing. Taken together, the poems constitute a kind of dramatic reconstruction of tribal life, as hunters, lovers, chieftains, children and others file before us. Taken separately, they are delicately woven lyrics of a texture unique in our literature." Granville Hicks
+ N Y World p10m My 4 '30 100w

"Miss Skinner has made a sure and delicate use of imagery, and nowhere does the banal phrase fall on our ears; while the Indian names have the strangeness of totem poles. And through all the poems the music and the feeling cut across the beauty of the West Coast country as, in the introductory description of the pageant, the intricate pattern and song of the Indian dancer cut across the 'illusive substance of the sunset air.'" Gwendolen Haste
+ Poetry 36:278 Ag '30 480w

"The present reviewer cannot pass upon the authenticity of Mrs. Skinner's anthropology nor her orthography. But the inspiration of her verse is manifestly genuine, the rhythms are at once harsh and natural. Such poems as 'Songs of Whip-Plaiting,' 'I Sing of the Desired,' 'Song of the Full Catch' are accomplishments. They are excellent ethnology and, what is even rarer, they are poetry." Louis Untermeyer
+ Sat R of Lit 6:1092 My 31 '30 200w

SKOLSKY, SIDNEY. Times Square tintypes; being typewriter caricatures of those who made their names along the not so straight and very narrow path of Broadway. 291p il $2.50 Washburn

927.9 Actors and actresses. Theater—New York (city) 30-19496

Sketches of Broadway celebrities—actors, producers, song-writers and critics. "Sidney Skolsky's 'Times Square Tintypes' is a unique biographical compendium. In it he recounts the things one does not usually hear of the famous and near famous figures of Broadway." (N Y Times)

"Singly they were amusing, but read consecutively the impression left is that of a jumbled collection of unimportant facts."
— Bookm 71:xix Jl '30 70w

"The very quality which made Sidney Skolsky's keyhole biographies of Broadway's wonder men and women so entertaining in a newspaper makes them rather depressing in a book. . . No one would seriously advance the idea, presumably, that Skolsky's tintypes are portraits, or even recognized photographs. Unless one reads them one at a time, as they were meant to be read, the result is a little boring. As newspaper features they remain as good as ever." Bruce Gould
— Books p7 My 25 '30 600w

"The information is as useless as it is entertaining, as startling on first reading as it is easily forgotten. The book is endlessly amusing and frequently illuminating in its brief snatches of caricature, but it never smacks of the scandal sheet or the treatise. Gard has illustrated the book with caricatures as bitter as Mr. Skolsky is gentle." Howard Barnes
+ N Y Times p19 O 12 '30 380w

SLATER, GILBERT. Poverty and the state; a study of English conditions. 480p $4 Smith, R.R. [12s 6d Constable]

362 Poverty. Charities—Great Britain. Unemployment. Social problems [30-31292]

Dr Slater traces the methods used in England and Wales to relieve and combat poverty either thru voluntary agencies or local and national authority. He takes up such phases of the subject as the care of the child in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries, over-crowding and slums, lunacy and mental deficiency, unemployment—pre-war and post-war, and the future of the race.

"This is an illuminating book, full of information given clearly with just enough historical background to make its significance plain. Dr. Slater's book is based on lectures, and though a book that starts from lectures starts in some respects at a disadvantage, this book has the best quality of the lecture-room in the sense that the reader does not feel that he is being pushed or coaxed into a conclusion, but rather that he is being led through difficult and confused facts by a guide who can throw some light on their bearing." J. L. Hammond
+ Nation and Ath 47:568 Ag 2 '30 800w

New Statesman 36:186 N 15 '30 200w

Reviewed by Nels Anderson
Outlook 156:430 N 12 '30 100w

"As nearly all Dr. Slater's conclusions are those of left-wing Liberalism, strongly influenced by State Socialism, one is bound to be sceptical of much of his historical research. On one page Dr. Slater writes of the need for 'detached scientific enquiry,' but his politics are so obvious that one is led to doubt whether he is sufficiently detached to be a trustworthy historian." Cyril Martin
— Sat R 150:208 Ag 16 '30 750w

"Mr. Slater has not written a purely objective account of the attempts of the State to deal with the problem of unemployment. Nor has he attempted any really constructive thought. He deals rather airily with a good many important aspects of the question, and introduces some rather cheap and journalistic comments on certain topics of somewhat fleeting interest. There is nothing here as good or as scholarly as one might have expected. Nevertheless, the book as a whole is interesting and meritorious. It reflects on every page the genuine enthusiasm and attractive personality of the author. It is easy to read and good reading all through." Harold Macmillan
+ — Spec 145:103 Jl 19 '30 850w

"It lacks a statement of general principles, such as legal and political freedom or the advance of knowledge or humanitarianism, the development of which would furnish a historical explanation of the principal measures discussed. . . It is a curious book. The author has a good knowledge of a great many subjects, but he does not appear to have worked any of them out."
— + Times [London] Lit Sup p619 Jl 31 '30 1650w

SLAUGHTER, CHARLES E. Hahtibee, the elephant. 161p il $2 (5s) Knopf

30-20207

The story of an elephant who was captured as a baby and brought up on a tea plantation in India, where he lived until he was lured back to the jungle by the calls of his wild brothers. For boys and girls.

Booklist 27:168 D '30

"A very readable story."
+ Bookm 72:xxvii S '30 70w

"The author writes of animals with the sympathy of one who knows and enjoys them. Children will delight in the details of Hahtibee's life and education in the tea garden and later experiences in the jungle, especially the visit to the salt lick, where all the animals find sanctuary. The book is well written and extremely readable. The drawings by Ferdinand H. Horvath deserve special mention. Drawn with humor and sympathy, they have not only accuracy but real beauty for boys and girls of 10 to 13." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p15 Ag 17 '30 200w

St Louis 28:276 N '30

Reviewed by B. E. Todd
Spec 145:sup899 D 6 '30 60w

Reviewed by Beulah Amidon
Survey 65:341 D 15 '30 50w

"Animals which converse in good English are a time-honoured property of authors who combine instruction with amusement; but here not only the language but the sentiments and reasonings are so entirely in the human key that the book is best taken for the lively and exciting tale it is, without any arrière-pensée about educational values."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p977 N 20 '30 200w

SLOANE, ROSCOE CHESTER, and MONTZ, JOHN MCGILL. Elements of topographic drawing. 188p pl $2.75 (13s 9d) McGraw

526.98 Topographical drawing 30-7540

"A text for the use of engineering students and a reference for topographic draftsmen. Designed 'to combine under one cover the information necessary for an elementary course in topographic drawing and to include a revised and more elaborate use of symbolic drafting as it has recently been developed by the allied engineering industries.' "—Pratt

Booklist 26:346 Je '30

N Y New Tech Bks 15:18 Ap '30

Pratt p14 autumn '30

St Louis 28:209 S '30

SLOSSON, EDWIN EMERY. Number of things; [2] arr. and with a biographical memoir by Preston W. Slosson. 342p $2 Harcourt

814 30-30912

In this posthumous volume Edwin Slosson's essays upon a variety of subjects have been collected by his son. Contents: A reverie of four drinks; Problems of national life; Educating the educated; Footnotes to literature; The eternal feminine; Fashions, fads, and folkways; Short circuits; Sparks.

Booklist 27:199 Ja '31

"These short articles are sprightly, pungent and pertinent, both in style and substance. The principal value of the book is the short biography of Dr. Slosson by his son. It is the only biography which will be published, for he requested that he be commemorated by a volume of his writings—such as this—and not by any formal biography "
+ Boston Transcript p4 D 13 '30 350w

"Dr. Slosson had a flexible, genial mind, and in most of these articles he let it play with his subjects, sometimes with kindly humor, sometimes with imagination, frequently with a tolerant, good-natured wit, but occasionally with effective satire. The editor has perhaps been ill-advised in the inclusion of a few articles written so long ago and so evidently dated by their themes that, although they were of consequence during or before or just after the war, they have now the very slightest interest."
+ — N Y Times p38 N 16 '30 420w

SLOSSON, EDWIN EMERY. Short talks on science. 281p il $2 Century

504 Science—Addresses, essays, lectures 30-17409

A collection of almost a hundred brief chapters on some of the newest developments in science, similar to the author's Snapshots of Science and, like those sketches, selected in large part from Dr Slosson's contributions to Collier's under the heading "Catching up with the world."

Booklist 27:16 S '30

"Ideal for any boy who has a scientific bent."
+ Bookm 71:vi Ag '30 50w

"The articles are certainly interesting and lead the public to expect the hand of science anywhere and everywhere. Gathered together in a volume they are a bit tedious in their uniform cleverness and their unfailing praise of science." Gerald Wendt
+ — Books p10 Ag 17 '30 800w

"Mr. Slosson had a special gift for making the activities of science readable and showing their importance in the daily life of everyone, and he had also a happy faculty for striking and original statement and quaint turns of language, and these together with his quietly genial and semi-humorous way of looking at things made him an outstanding and very successful expositor of science for the many."
+ N Y Times p26 Je 8 '30 350w

Pratt p14 autumn '30

St Louis 28:209 S '30

SLOSSON, PRESTON WILLIAM. Great crusade and after, 1914-1928; with an editorial foreword by Arthur M. Schlesinger and Dixon Ryan Fox. 486p il $5 Macmillan

973.91 United States—History—20th century. United States—Social conditions. European war, 1914-1918—United States 30-22386

Discussions of certain aspects of the American scene since 1914: the Liberty loan, the aftermath of war, prohibition, progress of the American woman, the changing countryside, the saga of the motor car, the cult of nationalism, journalism and advertisement, etc. The book is illustrated with half-tones, cartoons and charts showing the changes made during the period under study.

Reviewed by Charles Johnston
Atlantic Bookshelf p46 D '30 200w

Booklist 27:151 D '30

"It is written with detachment, it is carefully documented, it is organized in a conventional manner. But it also has the virtue of being written with considerable force and gusto and, in places, with downright humor. Despite its objective character and studied use of the past tense, the treatment shows repeatedly that the author is not altogether detached. Instead, he is watching the parade of certain inanities which amuse him; he lets slip many times those little observations which are seldom to be found in history books."
+ Bookm 72:90 S '30 550w

"Everything from flappers to mail order houses and crime waves is included. Few judgments are offered; now and then the author allows his personal attitudes to crop out, but in the main he has been content to chronicle events as an impartial observer. The varied pageant passes by, now a single man or event, again a group of related or divergent elements. Always interesting, always serio-comic." Avery Craven
+ Books p1 O 19 '30 1350w

Reviewed by E. F. Brown
Current Hist 33:iv O '30 230w

Hist Outlook 21:339 N '30 320w

"After ruminating over this 485-page effort to compact and organize the events and developments which have affected the United States since the first War year, I am impelled to confess that I cannot see what good it is. It is of no account as a chronicle because it operates with painstaking intensiveness in certain areas, and shies away, at the same time, from contact with several notably maverick facts. And it is useless as a source of information because in many an instance it finds room for statements at variance with the facts, where by nature no room exists." Murray Godwin
— New Repub 64:237 O 15 '30 950w

"Both as a collection of selected data industriously culled from newspapers, magazines and other more formal sources, and as a narrative

SLOSSON, P. W.—Continued
whose readable style is occasionally adorned with well-turned phrases, the book has a good deal to commend it. If there is a prevailing point of view, there is also much balancing of pros and cons. . . As a record of many things that have happened the book is useful, and the thoughtful reader may get a good deal out of it by reading between the lines; but as an interpretation of American life in a momentous period it would have been still better if it had been cast in a broader form." William MacDonald

+ — N Y Times p16 N 16 '30 1900w

Reviewed by John Carter
Outlook 156:628 D 17 '30 30w

Reviewed by W. B. Shaw
R of Rs 82:12 O '30 200w

St Louis 28:303 D '30

"The book is well worth reading and study. A generation hence, when a more accurate survey of these crowded times can be written, it will still be of value as a contemporaneous view." Allan Nevins

+ Sat R of Lit 7:472 D 20 '30 1450w

"While interpretative comment varies in its degrees of adequacy and profundity, the whole work is readable and should help the living American to understand the times of which he is a part."

+ Springf'd Republican p12 O 9 '30 450w

SLY, JOHN FAIRFIELD. Town government in Massachusetts (1620-1930). 244p $2.50 Harvard univ. press [11s 6d Oxford]
352.074 Local government—Massachusetts
30-5327

"The town meeting of New England is one of the most remarkable examples of direct democracy known to students of political systems. The first half of this book traces its development from the rudimentary methods of government adopted by the early settlers. An account of how the Massachusetts town came into existence is followed by a study of the beginnings of the town meeting, which originated, it appears, in informal gatherings of groups of 'planters.' From the problem of origins Mr. Sly passes to a study of town government in Massachusetts during the eighteenth century and of the effect produced upon it later by social changes, and especially by the growth of small towns into large cities."—Times [London] Lit Sup

Am Hist R 36:206 O '30 550w

"The author not only has contributed an interesting volume on an interesting subject in political science, but has pointed, in a stimulating manner, the way to further research in local institutional development." O. C. Hormell

+ Am Pol Sci R 24:763 Ag '30 900w

"The book will prove of assistance to all who wish to inform themselves as to social and political life in Massachusetts towns during the last three centuries." R. K. M.

+ Boston Transcript p2 Mr 19 '30 650w

"As a beginning, his book is a valuable and commendable undertaking. . . Mr. Sly's failure to view his subject in a deeper perspective impairs the value of his work. It not only makes him overlook several important points and ignore other interesting problems, but also leads him to assertions which he fails to prove." H. T. Froehlich

+ — Harvard Law R 43:1174 My '30 2000w

Reviewed by J. McGoldrick
Hist Outlook 21:242 My '30 180w

Nation 130:713 Je 18 '30 120w

N Y Times p18 Jl 20 '30 280w

Reviewed by John Carter
Outlook 154:356 F 26 '30 100w

Pratt p11 autumn '30

"While Mr Sly has not attempted a complete and organic history of town government, he has assembled early historical data of considerable interest. The chapters on modern development, though less important, are written intelligently and agreeably."

Springf'd Republican p14 Ag 22 '30 380w

Survey 63:727 Mr 15 '30 40w

"Useful as is the historical survey, the unique feature of this book is its second section. Mr. Sly claims that his is the first attempt to picture the popular assemblies of New England as 'going concerns.' "

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p303 Ap 3 '30 400w

SMALL, AUSTIN J. (SEAMARK, pseud.). Avenging ray. 287p $1 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Hodder]
30-18868

Carlo Damian, a mad scientist who has discovered a strange and terrible force that can annihilate every living thing, encounters timely opposition in the persons of Gerry Windermaine, a dauntless young man, and his friend Standy, of Scotland yard.

Bookm 71:xx Ag '30 100w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p10 Jl 6 '30 100w

Reviewed by W. C. Weber
Sat R of Lit 6:1164 Je 28 '30 40w

SMALL, AUSTIN J. (SEAMARK, pseud.). Mystery maker. 348p $2 Doubleday, Doran [3s 6d Hodder]
29-25033

Colonel Stayne, called the Mystery maker, was number three in a very secret secret service, and, in spite of opposition from Scotland Yard, managed to track down the leaders in a great bank-note forgery operation.

Booklist 27:31 S '30

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p14 Mr 2 '30 130w

"Told in an unusual way and replete with suspense."

+ — Boston Transcript p2 Ap 5 '30 150w

"Although this is an exceptionally substantial and interesting crime tale, Col. Stayne, ace of the British Secret Service, demon artist of disguise, thinking machine extraordinary, is a bit too close to superhuman proportions to go down as a remotely credible creation. We should have liked him better if, now and then, he were not so perfectly infallible."

+ — N Y World p7m Je 8 '30 150w

SMITH, ARCHIBALD WILLIAM. Bandar-log. 312p $2 Little 30-29553

Alie, a Eurasian girl, is sent by her mother to England to learn English ways. On her way back to India she meets Hugh Ranken, a young Englishman, who falls in love with her. But when he arrives in India, and sees Alie against her proper background and in relationship to her parents and her race, his ardor cools. After all, he is an Englishman. And Alie melts back into her old life.

"One of the few really readable Anglo-Indian novels I have encountered in a long while." Guy Holt

+ Bookm 72:339 N '30 50w

"Mr. Smith is to be congratulated upon giving a new set of people to the world of fiction, and consequently a new set of experiences. The plot works a new set out to a pleasant and probable ending."

+ Boston Transcript p6 D 10 '30 300w

N Y Times p19 N 2 '30 230w

"It is a good tale, full of drama, character play and vivid setting. . . Not the usual miscegenation stuff but an excellent, plausible story which holds the reader's interest and commands his sympathies. Furthermore it is the work of a mature, experienced writer." F. L. R.

+ Outlook 156:311 O 22 '30 100w

SMITH, MRS BESSIE WHITE. Boyhoods of the presidents. 301p il $2.50 Lothrop

923.1 Presidents—United States 29-8872

Simply narrated sketches of the childhood and youth of the men who became presidents of the United States, written for older boys and girls.

"Told simply and honestly, as a mother might tell stories to her son, (which seems to be the genesis of this book to judge from the dedication) these tales should serve as an introduction to more detailed and critical biography. One of the book's most worth while features are the illustrations, 61 full page reproductions from photographs, including each of the 30 Presidents."

+ Springf'd Republican p10 D 19 '29 120w

Wis Lib Bul 25:279 Jl '29

SMITH, CHARD POWERS. Hamilton. 154p $2.50 Coward-McCann

812 Hamilton, Alexander—Drama 30-9767

A poetic drama in three acts, based on the life of Alexander Hamilton, the first Secretary of the treasury.

"It is difficult to write with patience about 'Hamilton' because the attempt to represent Hamilton, John Adams, Jefferson, Aaron Burr, the Jumels, in blank verse dialogue (interspersed with prose, to be sure), in this day and generation seems so utterly futile. . . Any audience would not consent to sit through a play which attempts to recreate a period of familiar republican history with the technique of the sixteenth century." W. P. Eaton

— Books p17 Je 29 '30 130w

"The piece is notable for its dignity, and is, in the capable hands of Chard Powers Smith, as distinguished a work as one could reasonably hope for. It is the reviewer's contention that the fire necessary for poetic historical drama simply is not latent in the material."

— + N Y Times p10 Ag 10 '30 400w

"In its structure and method it is purely conventional, and it is neither very exciting as drama nor altogether pleasing as poetry. . . The motivation of the play is weak, the situations are often melodramatic, and the blending of historical and fictitious elements is sometimes crude." Granville Hicks

— N Y World p5m Jl 27 '30 100w

"Mr. Smith has shown a good deal of ingenuity in knitting together the threads of his plot. It was a big job, and Mr. Smith is not big enough for it, or in any way temperamentally fitted to it. It gave him no chance to use his real gift, which is for a somewhat frail and delicate lyricism. Of itself all this blank-verse speechifying would not convince me that the author is a poet at all, although now and then one gets a flash, a gleam." H. M.

— + Poetry 37:53 O '30 600w

SMITH, CICELY FOX. There was a ship; [2] chapters from the history of sail. 201p il $2 Mitchell [6s Methuen]

910.4 Ships

"The present book is an American reissue of a collection already published in England. It includes pleasantly rambling chapters on the Bengal pilot service, on the 'Irish Stars,' on the Rodney and the Hesperus, famous in the Australian trade, on the coolie ships which took indentured laborers from India to Polynesia or the West Indies, and on other kindred subjects."—Books

"The recreations of Cicely Fox Smith are, according to 'Who's Who,' 'dock walloping; anything connected with the sea.' People whose recreations are the same or who would like them to be, do not need book reviews to lead them to the really good tales of the sea—not the romanticized fiction, but the accounts of real ships and sailors, the anecdotes of famous passages, the old gossip about great ships and once well known house-flags, the performances of men and vessels in the sailing age—the kind of thing, in a word, which C. Fox Smith makes it her avocation to collect with an affectionate interest and a technically exact understanding."

+ Books p18 Ap 27 '30 220w

Reviewed by H. W. Baldwin

N Y Times p4 Jl 6 '30 250w

"This is an entertaining selection of 'chapters from the history of sail.' The author has written many excellent books on maritime subjects, and now drops a permissible tear on the passing of the old 'wind-jammer.' The author gives a very readable account of some of the most famous of the old clippers, the White Star, the Irish Stars, the coolie ships, the Rodney and the Hesperus."

+ Sat R 148:520 N 2 '29 220w

"It is accurately described in its subtitle as composed of 'Chapters From the History of Sail,' and they are very charming chapters indeed, written with ease and grace and an occasional whimsical fancy, as witness the chapter dealing with the old-fashioned nautical maps and the habit of decorating vacant spaces on them with schools of dolphins and sea monsters."

+ Springf'd Republican p10 Ag 7 '30 600w

SMITH, MRS DAMA MARGARET. I married [2] a ranger. 179p il $2.50 Stanford univ. press [11s 6d Oxford]

917.91 Grand canyon 30-31892

"Visitors to the Grand Canyon will find entertainment, and also an insight into National park life as the ranger sees it, in this account by a woman in the government service who married a Grand Canyon ranger and lived like a pioneer at the El Tovar headquarters."—Booklist

Booklist 27:202 Ja '31

Cleveland Open Shelf p156 D '30

"Mrs. Smith's small volume deserves to be called 'The Book of a Good Sport.' It is the intimate, vivaciously told account of a unique experience, and its humor, its casual, first-hand descriptions of life on the rim of the Grand Canyon, its vivid glimpses of Indians, tourists, rangers, horses, storms and all the rest of the passing show, its evidence of the author's pluck, spirit and readiness to meet whatever happened, all make it a book not to be missed by those who enjoy reading either about the West or about realities anywhere."

+ N Y Times p34 S 28 '30 500w

Times [London] Lit Sup p1071 D 11 '30 250w

SMITH, EDITH FREELOVE. See Smith, Freelove

SMITH, LADY ELEANOR FURNEAUX. Red wagon. 375p $2.50 Bobbs [7s 6d Gollancz] 30-16615

"Red Wagon describes in great detail the life and death of Joe Prince, a travelling showman, tracing his story from his childhood of violent adventures on the road in America, to his youth and rise to circus fame in England. Here are the tents, the caravans, the menagerie, the motley assembly of clowns, riders, tamers, midgets and entertainers accurately arranged, and there is no denying that the author controls with skill her vast crowd, the panorama of England and America from north to south, and the passing years."—Spec

Booklist 27:66 O '30

"It doesn't matter whether or not Lady Eleanor has accurately transcribed circus life. What does matter is the sense of truth one derives from this picture of an alien world, the active sharing in its events, the hearty enjoyment of the company of its people. Before a story as good as this my critical sense retires." Guy Holt

+ Bookm 72:xvii S '30 180w

SMITH, E. F.—Continued

"'Red Wagon' is a first-rate story, human, entertaining and readable. It is sincere, too. There is not an overpolished phrase in it, nor one purple patch to make the estheticians go into ecstasies. On the whole it seems to me the best novel on the circus I have ever read." Herschel Brickell

+ Books p5 Je 22 '30 680w

Boston Transcript p3 Jl 12 '30 600w

Cleveland Open Shelf p126 S '30

"Lady Eleanor Smith is a young writer, but she abuses the English language in the easy, practised manner of one who has been forty years a Fleet Street hack. This is not a case of interesting story badly written; style and theme are perfectly matched." L. L. Irvine

— Nation and Ath 46:806 Mr 15 '30 100w

"Lady Eleanor Smith gives her reader an impression of considerable knowledge of the show world, enlivened by a fine, imaginative sympathy. No inconsistency of plot or detail mars the smooth and vigorous effect of her portrait of Joe Prince. Without containing any of those elements which startle one to superlative praise, 'Red Wagon' is still as honest and competent a novel as could be demanded."

+ N Y Times p6 Je 29 '30 550w

Reviewed by F. L. Robbins

Outlook 155:348 Jl 2 '30 280w

"The book, taken as a whole, is disappointing after the flattering press it has had in England, but taken page by page for its atmosphere of that strange life which rolls along on colored wheels, it does have something of the charm of far off days when the circus used to come to town."

+ — Sat R of Lit 7:12 Jl 26 '30 350w

"One could pick out certain episodes and certain sharp pieces of characterization which are very good indeed. And yet there remains a general impression of monotony. There is a fine difference between describing the passing of a lifetime and the growth and development of a life. Lady Eleanor Smith's knowledge of circus life is immense." V. S. Pritchett

— + Spec 144:400 Mr 8 '30 200w

Springf'd Republican p7e O 5 '30 420w

"If the author is at times a trifle overlavish with the details of professional life—a glossary is an unwelcome companion to a novel reader—she brings before us with great zest the life of the open road and its fascination. But perhaps the most distinguished pages of her book are the gypsy episodes."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p162 F 27 '30 600w

SMITH, ERNEST BRAMAH (ERNEST BRAMAH, pseud.). Mirror of Kong Ho; foreword by J. C. Squire. 252p $2 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Cayme press]

30-25912

A young Chinaman visiting London is profoundly stirred by the incongruities of occidental life, and writes home his experiences, mostly humorous, to his "venerated sire."

Booklist 27:162 D '30

"The pages of Bramah have the bouquet of the rarest tea, of a kind not imported, and drunk only by mandarins of high button, and in this amber atmosphere live his amiable personages, displaying, even under the most excruciating trials, that affable demeanor which is the conscious art of the countrymen of the polite Confucius." Olga Katzin

+ Bookm 72:204 O '30 450w

"All done with disarming Oriental circumlocution and shining grace; but somehow descending below the tide and summit of Mr. Bramah's topmost sail."

+ — Books p16 O 5 '30 250w

Boston Transcript p5 N 19 '30 180w

"The charm of the book lies, of course, in its perfect gravity, as well as in its avoidance of obvious comedy, and in its adroit meanderings in the suave circumlocutions of Oriental diction. It is not simply a parody on western civilization, but is delicately compounded with a view of existence held by one who can recite from memory the classics of his native country."

+ Christian Science Monitor p6 D 13 '30 380w

Cleveland Open Shelf p138 N '30

"This is one of the few books which no intelligent man ought to neglect, as it is one of the few which every intelligent man will enjoy rereading." John Carter

+ N Y Times p10 D 14 '30 580w

Reviewed by W. R. Brooks

Outlook 156:269 O 15 '30 150w

"Kong Ho is less amusing than Kai Lung; but more amusing than most professed humorists." L. P. Hartley

+ — Sat R 148:786 D 28 '29 280w

Spec 143:955 D 21 '29 180w

SMITH, ERNEST THOMAS. New approach to modern European history [students' guide sheets]. 120p pa 80c Univ. of Chicago press [3s 9d Cambridge univ. press]

940 Europe—History—Outlines, syllabi, etc. 30-28051

"This outline, or set of 'students' guide sheets,' treats of the development of Western civilization from the medieval period to the present time in seven sections. Each section consists of an interestingly written introductory sketch or summary, a simple but adequate outline of events, a number of problems in the form of questions, with suggestions as to the method of solution, a list of special studies suitable for small essays or papers, and a collection of sources of information or bibliographical materials."—Hist Outlook

---

"The idea is a brilliant one and one quite in keeping with 'new history.' Nevertheless, one can scarcely refrain from criticizing the author's failure to be more specific and exact." S. B. C.

+ — Hist Outlook 21:42 Ja '30 150w

"The booklet would appear to be excellent as a guide for any general course on Western culture."

+ Hist Outlook 21:342 N '30 150w

"Considering the limitation of his task to 122 pages, Mr. Smith has done well to give us a clear idea of the main course of the ancient and medieval worlds. His problems are suggestive, and should be of help to the quicker student who forges ahead of class work."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p797 O 10 '29 300w

SMITH, FRED B. Must we have war? with a foreword by Owen D. Young; [ed. by Charles Stelzle]. 318p il $2.50 Harper

172.4 Peace. War. War and religion 29-25927

A presentation of the problems, progress and recent developments in the crusade for the elimination of military force as a solution for international misunderstandings; the cultivation of public opinion regarding such measures; the opportunities and influence of American leadership with regard to peace; and a résumé of the work of the World alliance for international friendship thru the churches and other religious bodies.

"This might not unfairly be described as materials for a book, rather than a book. Which is the same thing as saying that the author's industry and flair for facts greatly exceed his power to assimilate, organize, and express his facts. It is well worth careful reading, for the value of the contained facts. It is unnecessarily difficult reading, for the author's lack of literary skill." H. C. Vedder

+ — Crozer Q 7:259 Ap '30 400w

"The author disclaims all authority as a technical student of international affairs. He does not claim to deal exhaustively with the various movements toward peace. Rather than the detailed analysis and careful evaluation of the scholar, we have the forthrightness and rhetorical style of the public speaker. Altogether the book does what it sets out to do, and ought to serve a very useful purpose by providing information and stimulation for all who are interested in the vitally important problems connected with international peace." C. T. Holman

+ J Religion 10:631 O '30 750w

Reviewed by E. B. Chaffee

Outlook 154:110 Ja 15 '30 80w

St Louis 28:66 Mr '30

Wis Lib Bul 26:37 Ja '30

"As a contribution to the field of war-peace literature, nothing new is presented in this book. It contains a pleasing foreword by Owen D. Young, and well-selected, well-arranged, informing matter. It is valuable chiefly because it is readable. It is clear and concise, containing just the sort of material which church-members need and will use." T. L. Wilson

+ World Tomorrow 13:185 Ap '30 400w

SMITH, FREELOVE. Trading east. 284p il $2 Little

30-25737

A tale of two English youths of the 1550's who take part in an early voyage to Russia by way of the Arctic and the White sea. The story is based on Hakluyt's voyages to Russia, Turkeman, and Persia.

"A rattling good tale which, I venture to predict, has stood the soundest test for a book of the kind, the test of reading aloud before a mixed company. There is all the glamour of Tartar barbaric splendor of attacking thieves, of soldiers who stand with raised battle axes moving not as much as an eyelash. In short, Mr. Smith has told a rollicking tale. His characters stand well and move well, are bold without being swashbuckling. It is a book thoroughly interesting and well written." C. J. Finger

+ Books p9 N 16 '30 200w

"There are fine descriptions of the countries visited and the author has done a good job in bringing to young people this very usable material in such an attractive form." A. L. S.

+ Chicago Daily Tribune p13 N 15 '30 80w

"A rich and ever fascinating story." E. O'Connor

+ N Y Evening Post p7d N 15 '30 50w

"It is a tribute to those ancient chronicles that the books based upon them are all readable. In this aspect 'Trading East' is no exception. True, the yarn of the lusty lad who rescues his sweetheart's brother from slavery among the Turks is as thin as any cinema plot. Yet there is the zest of pushing on into far countries and the lure of what lies beyond the next hill, this holds a boy's interest with a sure grip, be the explorer Sir Martin Frobisher or be he Admiral Byrd." D. C. Lunt

+ Sat R of Lit 7:403 N 29 '30 100w

SMITH, GRAFTON ELLIOT. Human history. 472p $5 Norton [21s Cape, J.]

930 Man, Prehistoric. Civilization, Ancient. History, Ancient 29-29383

For descriptive note see Annual for 1929.

Reviewed by Margaret Mead

Ann Am Acad 152:422 N '30 50w

Booklist 26:232 Mr '30

Boston Transcript p2 F 5 '30 580w

Cleveland Open Shelf p57 Ap '30

Hist Outlook 21:189 Ap '30 100w

Int J Ethics 40:456 Ap '30 150w

"His book is a study, popular in style but learned in substance, of the physical beginnings of the race and of the early civilizations which were attained in Egypt and Greece. As an attempt to unify biological and cultural history the book is certainly notable." William MacDonald

+ Nation 130:656 Je 4 '30 300w

Nation and Ath 47:117 Ap 26 '30 500w

"The underlying principle of the whole outlook strikes us as unsound. Why is it a law of anthropology that connections must be found at all costs between all cultures, however widely differing in nature or geographical position? The frequency of such connections are disputed by nobody, but that similiarities can develop without connection of any sort seems horrible to some anthropologists. The section of this book which can be warmly commended is the account of the invention of agriculture in Egypt (usually supposed to have come in from abroad), and the probable course of events is well thought out."

— + New Statesman 34:714 Mr 8 '30 750w

Reviewed by E. T. Devine

Outlook 155:70 My 14 '30 40w

Pratt p32 autumn '30

"The book is interesting and readable; but it is overloaded with guesses. . . If Professor Elliot Smith had laid down for himself a self-denying ordinance and steadily refused to be drawn upon unfamiliar ground like philology and sociology, it is probable that this book would not have been one whit less interesting—and the interest of it is great—and it would certainly have been far more valuable as a contribution to knowledge and as a study in method."

— + Sat R 149:269 Mr 1 '30 1000w

"This is an interesting book both because of the mass of information that is packed into its pages and also because of the highly controversial nature of many of its premises, such as that of a single cradle of the human race, of an original golden age of humanity, and especially of Egypt as the sole mother of civilization. . . Disregarding the theory of a single source of civilization in the valley of the Nile, the author's generalizations are significant." Woodbridge Riley

+ — Sat R of Lit 6:667 Ja 25 '30 1350w

Springf'd Republican p7e F 2 '30 750w

"The book is [not] without scholarly merit. It is packed with information, but selected information. Its chief merit is its entertaining style. It reads like fiction. Such a story of human evolution has not come from the press in a long time, if at all. Smith has strained himself to bring together all the links of the chain of evolution. . . Taken as a whole the book is about as refreshing a development of racial and cultural history as we have; indeed, it is so far above Wells' Outline of History that there is no comparison." Nels Anderson

+ Survey 63:598 F 15 '30 380w

"All serious students of man's wider history must treat the book with respect, not of course as a final statement, since fresh facts are coming in every day, but as a very able hypothetical construction that stimulates if only by the boldness with which it challenges received views, and never without trying to put something positive in their place. The student cannot afford, like the public, to swallow any man's work whole; but he is bound to welcome so masterly a synthesis, even if his immediate reaction to it is to try to pull it to pieces."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p287 Ap 3 '30 1500w

SMITH, HELEN ZENNA. Stepdaughters of war (Eng title: Not so quiet). 250p $2.50 Dutton [5s Marriott]

30-10084

The story of a twenty-year-old English girl who was an ambulance driver in France, written in bitter, hard-boiled terms. The girls in her unit of the V.A.D. were of the wealthy, educated classes, consequently the horrors and hardships they underwent, and the fact that they were forced to take orders from an inferior in the person of the inhuman commandant, made their life doubly hard. The relations of the girl drivers—Tosh, the Bug, Etta Potato, Skinny and the B. F.—are described, and the vulgar brutality of their existence sharply contrasted with that of the smug, patriotic parents at home, who were so proud to have their darling daughters at the front doing their bit.

SMITH, H. Z.—Continued

Bookm 72:xxv S '30 80w

"She seems unaware of the fact that in order to make these truths convincing to people who have not undergone her experiences it is necessary to present them in some sort of emotional perspective. Her story is continuously sentimentalized." Lambert Davis
— Books p26 Ap 13 '30 200w

"This is an unforgettable book, pitilessly honest and profoundly understanding."
+ Boston Transcript p8 My 10 '30 410w

"This book was obviously written as a deterrent to future eager young women, and one can only hope that it will have its effect. It is a tract, and a good one."
+ Nation 131:329 S 24 '30 220w

" 'Stepdaughters of War' is not pleasant reading and it is not intended to be pleasant reading; it is graphic, sincere, and in style shows a discipline that makes one feel the author has not exaggerated her facts." G. T. Hellman
+ New Repub 62:356 My 14 '30 600w

"There is no hope given; every illusion goes; patriotism is presented as ridiculous, and the book ends on a moment of hysteria."
N Y Times p8 Ap 13 '30 280w

Reviewed by Harry Hansen
N Y World p15 Ap 3 '30 700w

Reviewed by F. L. Robbins
Outlook 154:544 Ap 2 '30 550w

"The author makes use of the artist's legitimate privilege of selection, and she selects exclusively the horrible, the sordid, and the futile. The result, to me at any rate, is a picture of the war, both at the front and at home in England, that is wholly unauthentic." Stanley Went
— + Sat R of Lit 6:1105 Je 7 '30 700w

"The sort of book one picks up just to see what it is like, and puts down when the last word is read. Vivid to brutality at times, yet tender and lovely, it is a perfect example of the use of words to paint a convincing picture."
+ Spec 144:612 Ap 12 '30 380w

"Through her narrative runs a thin, but delicious thread of humor, that lightens the story considerably. 'Step-Daughters of War' is quickly and easily read and stands out from many recent war stories by virtue of Miss Smith's handling, from a different point of view, of material that has been done to death."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e My 4 '30 400w
World Tomorrow 13:428 O '30 600w

SMITH, HERBERT MAYNARD. Inspector Frost in the city. 281p $1 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Benn]

30-18560

The body of a murdered man, presumably an American, was found in a London alley. On the body the police found the visiting cards of an eccentric American millionaire, but it was proved that the millionaire was at home and very much alive. There were two mysteries to be solved: who was the murdered man; and who murdered him? Inspector Frost answered both questions.

Bookm 72:xxii S '30 100w

"Inspector Frost is a likeable sleuth who writes up his own triumphs most engagingly—and they're the kind you can believe." Will Cuppy
+ Books p12 Ag 24 '30 100w

SMITH, JAMES ALLEN. Growth and decadence of constitutional government; introd. by Vernon Louis Parrington. 300p $3 Holt [12s 6d Williams & Norgate]

342.73 United States—Constitutional history. United States—Politics and government. Democracy 30-9721

In this interpretation of the changing views of constitutional government from Revolutionary times to the present day, Professor Smith is chiefly concerned with the struggle between democracy and governmental encroachment and with the growth of centralized control, especially since the Civil war. The subversive effect of capitalism and of imperialism, as its natural and inevitable consequence, is discussed, also the development of patriotism as the mainstay of centralized governmental power.

Reviewed by E. J. Benton
Am Hist R 35:930 Jl '30 500w
Am Pol Sci R 24:524 My '30 300w

Reviewed by B. A. Arneson
Ann Am Acad 151:300 S '30 650w

"A fluent style, coupled with a broad knowledge of the subject in hand will tend to make this exposition of constitutional government a library volume as well as a class-room text book." W. H. M.
+ Boston Transcript p3 Mr 5 '30 350w

"To say that the book is one of the most brilliant studies of American politics that have been offered in many a day may create some initial misapprehension, for Professor Smith is more successful in exposing what he regards as evils than in suggesting remedies, and some of his conclusions would probably be rejected by conservative minds as dangerously radical; but his temper is so fine, his courage so unflinching, and his learning so obvious though carefully concealed, that what he says may not safely be neglected even if one disagrees." William MacDonald
+ Current Hist 31:1061 Mr '30 1350w

"In 1907, when the progressive movement was young and, at least relatively, vigorous, the late Professor Smith published his Spirit of American Government. It was an able argument for greater political and economic democracy, most of it addressed to the task of showing how undemocratic is our Constitution. . . In point of view the book of 1930 hardly goes beyond that of 1907. The earlier work was a significant contribution to the literature of the liberal movement of its own time; the present volume has but a remote connection with the central problems of the contemporary scene. . . Both the analysis of the problem and the historical discussion are unconvincing, and the program which is apparently offered as a remedy, or set of remedies, is a vague and, in many respects, contradictory medley of socialism, philosophical anarchism, and constitutional antiquarianism." B. F. Wright, Jr.
— Harvard Law R 43:1183 My '30 700w

"There is much excellent writing in the book, and its general contentions, if not always convincing, are thoughtfully and ably argued."
+ Nation 131:132 Jl 30 '30 250w

"It was Smith's tragic fate—at least for formal appreciation—to be too early with his first book [Spirit of the American government] and too late with the second. But it is the exceptional scholar who has the rare fortune to see his pioneer effort outdone by the students who come after him." W. H. Hamilton
Yale Law J 40:152 N '30 1050w

SMITH, JOHN WARREN. Effects of moisture on chemical and physical changes. (Textbooks of physical chemistry) 235p il $5 Longmans

541.3 Moisture. Chemistry, Physical and theoretical. Chemical reactions 29-25653

A collection of available data concerning the effects of the removal of water vapour from chemical systems, including a discussion of typical reactions retarded by desiccation, and the influence of intensive drying on physical properties.

Reviewed by W. D. Bancroft
J Phys Chem 34:1353 Je '30 2300w

"This is a book which has long been needed. It is a laborious compilation of all the work, until 1928, which has been done on intensive, or as it has been called by Longinescu, ultra drying. A really satisfactory book it is not. All the researches described are put on a level; there is no attempt made to deal critically with the different pieces of work." H. B. Baker — + Nature 125:229 F 15 '30 1050w
N Y New Tech Bks 14:55 O '29

SMITH, PRESERVED. History of modern culture; v 1, The great renewal, 1543-1687. 672p $5 Holt [12s 6d Routledge]

901 Civilization—History 30-10025

Volume I of Professor Smith's history of modern culture covers the period from 1543 to 1687, which he calls the Great renewal. Part I in the volume takes up the sciences: astronomy, physics, mathematics, geography, biology, anatomy, and the scientific revolution. Part II discusses the humanities: philosophy, political theory, historiography, and biblical and classical scholarship. In Part III, under social control, the author furnishes a survey of education, religion, free-thought, superstition, persecution and tolerance, and laws. Part IV, entitled the Spirit of the times, contains chapters on morals and manners, literature, and art.

"The volume in hand contains the first fruits of a bold and exacting historical enterprise which when completed in four volumes will form far the best account of the origins and progress of our present culture ever published. The author is peculiarly well fitted and circumstanced for his heroic task. Professor Smith's task will grow harder as he advances into the ever more refined researches of specialists, but he has laid a solid foundation for later developments and will, one may be confident, discriminate between the wearisome fumblings of investigators and the cardinal discoveries which have modified the conduct and thought of men." J. H. Robinson
+ Am Hist R 35:840 Jl '30 1000w
Booklist 27:99 N '30

"Mr. Smith has written simply, without the professional clap-trap that makes the majority of text books such irritating nonsense. He has breadth, tolerance, wisdom, often humor, and not infrequently a genuine nobility of thought. He has kept his book intelligent by the simple though rare expedient of respecting the intelligence of his reader. Passages of his work recall what one had almost forgotten, that in the final analysis history must be literature." Stringfellow Barr
+ — Books p13 Je 8 '30 1100w

"One marvels how Dr. Smith has covered so vast a field, how he has condensed, concentrated and all the time illuminated a century of world's civilization into one volume. He has done this not only in a scholarly fashion which shows careful and enormous research, but also with imagination, human interest and real vitality." T. C. Richards
+ Boston Transcript p3 Ap 26 '30 1750w
Christian Century 47:690 My 28 '30 180w

"The author of this book, who is well known for his previous work in the field of historical interpretation, particularly for his study of the period of the Reformation, has retained here the same liberal outlook that dominated his earlier volumes. In fact, this book goes further than any of his other works in that it aims to provide a synthesis of an entire culture rather than an analysis of any one specific aspect. The chapters on science are without doubt the best in the book." V. F. Calverton
+ Current Hist 33:xv N '30 650w
Hist Outlook 21:335 N '30 800w

"On the whole, the book is to be adjudged a work of solid information and summary rather than one of notable insight or arresting interpretation." William MacDonald
+ Nation 131:71 Jl 16 '30 330w
Nation and Ath 48:172 N 1 '30 180w

"While Professor Smith has achieved a great part of his aim, to 'exhibit as a unified whole the state and progress of modern culture,' and while he has admirably avoided the vices of a national parochialism and exhibited the common tradition of our civilization, he has left certain valuable aspects out of the picture. I would not willingly forfeit a single chapter Professor Smith has written; but I would have him add to it material from sources she has not chosen to draw upon; for culture has to do with the creation of forms and symbols and significances; and wherever these processes are going on, culture has its habitat." Lewis Mumford
+ — New Repub 63:210 Jl 9 '30 1600w
New Statesman 35:765 S 27 '30 1550w
N Y Evening Post p10m My 17 '30 80w

"Professor Smith is not as careful as any one writing so ambitious a work should be. But the idea, at any rate, is a fine one, the research and labor have been vast, the style is easy and fluent, and the probability is that Professor Smith has really struck nearer to the keynote of history than the political and economic historians." C. W. Thompson
+ — N Y Times p1 Ag 10 '30 2000w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:71 O '30

"If the succeeding volumes of Professor Smith's work maintain the high standard set in the first, they will go far toward fulfilling the demand of Francis Bacon for 'a just and universal history of learning' in the modern age." D. S. Muzzey
+ Pol Sci Q 45:633 D '30 750w
Pratt p32 autumn '30
St Louis 28:219 S '30

"The portions of the book devoted to science are excellent—that is, excellent on the whole, considering that the writer is not a scientist by vocation and seems occasionally unaware of pitfalls lying beneath striking and popularly intelligible assertions. As might be expected, he shows least aptitude in belles lettres and art. The book is pleasantly and clearly written, and its attractiveness will be raised rather than lowered by many profitable reflections not above the grasp of readers who like to think that they too are thinking." H. O. Taylor
+ Sat R of Lit 6:952 Ap 19 '30 300w
Spec 145:392 S 20 '30 220w

Reviewed by Bruno Lasker
Survey 65:289 D 1 '30 600w
Times [London] Lit Sup p824 O 16 '30 1000w

SMITH, RALPH CLIFTON. Biographical index of American artists. 102p $4 Williams & Wilkins [18s Bailliere]

927 Artists, American 30-7664

A convenient means of locating biographical material on 4,700 American artists,—painters, etchers, engravers, sculptors and illustrators. The book does not itself furnish data beyond date of birth and death and the medium in which the artist worked, but it shows where that data may be found, being an index to all the works recording biographical material about artists.

Booklist 26:394 Jl '30
Pratt p35 summer '30

SMITH, REMBERT GILMAN. Politics in a protestant church; an account of some happenings in the Methodist Episcopal church, South, during the Hoover-Smith race of 1928, and of some events in 1929; containing a defense of the equal political rights of Roman Catholic citizens and discussions of other burning issues of the day in church and state. 320p il $3.50 The author, Washington, Ga.

322 Church and state in the United States. Methodist Episcopal church, South. Presidents—United States—Election 30-9984

A survey of certain alliances, in 1928, between some of the protestant churches of the United States and the Republican party in the supposed interest of preserving the national prohibition laws— and therefore opposing Governor Smith, candidate of the Democratic party. Rev Rembert Gilman Smith, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, is strongly opposed to such a union of church and state, and in this book sets forth practical reasons, with the 1928 campaign as an outstanding example, why the church and a political party should never enter into alliance.

Reviewed by J. F. Scott
Current Hist 32:842 Ag '30 370w

"A book which, though frankly controversial, will be of interest to historians of the 1928 presidential campaign and to persons desirous of studying the emergence of the religious issue in that campaign."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Je 15 '30 150w

SMITH, STANLEY. Cellulose lacquers; a practical handbook on their manufacture. 145p il $2.25 (7s 6d) Pitman

667.7 Lacquer and lacquering. Cellulose 29-8468

"This volume is based on a series of lectures on lacquers given by the author at the Borough Polytechnic Institute of London. In concise form he gives an outline of cellulose nitrates and the solvents, plasticizers, resins, and pigments used therewith to form the modern pyroxylin lacquers in accordance, we presume, with English practice. A brief outline of plant and equipment required, a sketch of the industrial applications, a somewhat fuller study of formulation and an excellent and detailed chapter on hygrometry are included."—Chem & Met Eng

"There are some surprising omissions. Synthetic amyl alcohol and its derivatives and synthetic ethyl lactate are not mentioned, although their derivation via fermentation processes are taken up in some detail. In the chapter on resins, although the Albertol type is discussed favorably, no mention of the Glyptal and Rezyl products is made. . . The author writes in a lucid and witty style and the book is interesting to read. However, to one engaged in lacquer production in this country it gives the impression that we are considerably more advanced in both the theory and practice of lacquer formulation than our British friends." S. P. Wilson
Chem & Met Eng 37:375 Je '30 270w

"This little book, written in a popular vein, will be found quite valuable to those who wish to get a general picture of the materials that comprise lacquers based on cellulose nitrate and the methods of combining them to produce the finished product. . . The data and methods presented are thoroughly practical and in general in line with modern practice. . . The chapters on cellulose nitrate, resins, and solvents will be found extremely interesting and valuable. The chapter on pigments is rather weak and lacking in detail regarding present lacquer pigments and methods of handling them." M. J. Callahan
+ — Ind & Eng Chem 22:686 Je '30 350w

SMITH, MRS SUSAN COWLES (GRANT). Made in Mexico. 81p $2 Knopf

740 Art, Mexican. Handicraft 30-26994

A book primarily for boys and girls on the arts and handicrafts of modern Mexico. There are stories about the life and legends of the people as well as descriptions of their market wares, pottery, paintings, toys and masks, etc. Illustrated with black and white drawings by a young Mexican, Julio Castellanos.

Reviewed by A. C. Moore
Atlantic Bookshelf p48 D '30 30w
Booklist 27:110 N '30

"She makes a pageant of a whole people snake dancing through a life where all the common utensils are a delight to eye and hand. Good enough. She is beguiled by color. The things are indeed as beautiful as she says; and they are vanishing; all the same I wish I felt she knew—she needn't mention it—that a good white enamel (or yellow or red) double boiler is also beautiful, and would eternally delight the Indian eye. 'Made in Mexico' is recommended for readers of all ages." Ernestine Evans
+ Books p7 N 16 '30 320w
Library J 55:924 N 15 '30 50w
Nation 131:560 N 19 '30 120w

"Primarily, Miss Smith has aimed to make a book on decoration and handicraft at the present time in Mexico, where she spent last Winter gathering her materials at first hand and seeing with her own eyes the scenes she describes. The information about decoration and handicraft is all there, but along with it is so much colorful picturing of the people and their customs of dressing, work and living, and it is all so vividly done that reading the book is like making an observant and delighted excursion into the heart of Mexico."
+ N Y Times p4 S 28 '30 380w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
N Y Times p26 O 26 '30 100w

Reviewed by O. M. Fuller
N Y World p3e N 16 '30 80w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Outlook 156:586 D 10 '30 40w

"One must devote an hour or so to reading the book to appreciate its full worth. It will be time well spent, for it will give many a new impression of what Mexico holds in store for the prospective visitor." F. E. Hodge
+ Sat R of Lit 7:436 D 6 '30 550w

"It might be better if there were more photographs or drawings of the different articles referred to; for the most part the illustrator's conceits are his own. There is, however, a collection of photographs at the rear of the book, showing examples of mural decoration, including frescoes by Diego Rivera, and of some handicrafts. This collection is not very comprehensive, nor are the pictures reproduced with sufficient clearness."
+ — Springf'd Republican p10 S 23 '30 180w

Reviewed by Beulah Amidon
Survey 65:341 D 15 '30 50w

SMITH, MRS SUSAN COWLES (GRANT). Tranquilina's paradise; drawings by Thomas Handforth. 34p $2.50 Minton

Tranquilina was a carved angel which Don Pancho had bought to sell at the fair, along with a collection of toy animals. One night Tranquilina led the animals to paradise, which they all agreed was as nice as possible, and as soon as a little cherub had gone down to give Don Pancho a silver star, so that he could buy tortillas, they were all very happy.

Reviewed by A. C. Moore
Atlantic Bookshelf p48 D '30 30w

" 'Tranquilina's Paradise,' illustrated by Thomas Handforth, one of America's leading etchers, affects me little. None of my own harsh, but thrilling, Mexico is here. It is an ethereal tale, made or invented on a base of Catholic legend, lacy and fern-like both in text and illustration, full of rich words. I recommend the book as a Christmas present, but not as a ticket to the land of Delfina Flores." Ernestine Evans

— Books p7 N 16 '30 100w

"Unlike 'The Painted Pig' with its vivid simplicity, this book is delicate in feeling, and it demands a rather sophisticated appreciation. It is a little gem, full of grace." Nancy Evans

+ N Y Evening Post p7d N 15 '30 100w

"'Tranquilina's Paradise' is less successful than 'The Painted Pig,' by Elizabeth Morrow. It is not quite completely in the key of the child mind, nor does the vocabulary always keep strictly within the native range. It is, however, in its final effect, entirely true to the aspects of life in Mexico as they present themselves to a child. Something of the same thing could be said of Thomas Handforth's drawings. They are, perhaps, a trifle too intricate, either for children or for Mexican artists."

— + Sat R of Lit 7:353 N 15 '30 320w

SMITH, THOMAS VERNOR. Philosophic way of life. 234p $2.50 Univ. of Chicago press [11s 6d Cambridge univ. press]

110 Life. Philosophy 29-22405

"This book, written in a clear and attractive style, provides a good popular account of the effect of various systems of thought on the general spirit in which a man practically faces life. It is in a sense an attempt at a synthesis of the ruling ideas of four philosophers prominent in America. The philosophy of Royce is taken as typical of the religious way of life, that of William James as typical of the scientific way, that of Dewey as typical of the social way, and that of Santayana as typical of the aesthetic way. After a very general account of these the author, with a spirited plea for the importance and value of every one developing his own outlook on life and not taking his opinions ready-made from others, attempts to follow the 'philosophic way,' which will appraise all the other approaches duly, but admits that to him the scientific way is of the four comparatively one-sided ways much the most valuable."—Times [London] Lit Sup

Booklist 26:145 Ja '30

Reviewed by H. S. Commager
Books p12 S 7 '30 1050w

"One will search far before finding more scintillant exposition or more incisive criticism of the attitudes of the philosophers whom he selects as the guides to these several ways of life. For some of them, especially Dewey and James, he has profound respect; for Santayana, admiration for the beauty of his thought and utterance; for Royce, the half wistful, half condescending shake of the head which the man who prides himself (not without right) upon being a clear thinker bestows upon the man of faith. To this reviewer the presentation of Royce's position seems the least satisfying part of the author's brilliant expository and critical achievement." W. E. Garrison

+ — Christian Century 47:273 F 26 '30 800w

Cleveland Open Shelf p70 My '30

"This book, based on a series of lectures, is addressed primarily to the growing number of cultivated people who want to know what philosophy is all about. It is at once lucid, witty, and stimulating. With 'genial and gentle irony' Professor Smith seeks to persuade his readers to think for themselves, to discard second-hand and ready-made ideas and to develop each his own philosophic way of life." U. B. Sait

+ J Philos 27:391 Jl 3 '30 620w

Reviewed by B. H. Bode
J Religion 10:150 Ja '30 1200w

Reviewed by Lewis Mumford
New Repub 61:118 D 18 '29 280w

St Louis 28:3 Ja '30

"The author makes a gallant attempt at a task which many will feel to be of the greatest importance—namely, the effort to work out an attitude to the evil of life which will give practical help and comfort without the assumptions made by religion about the nature of reality that so many now view as doubtful. While the book is not intended as a detailed account of philosophical doctrines, it should be of much general philosophical interest."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p146 F 20 '30 380w

SMITH, THOMAS VERNOR, and WHITE, LEONARD DUPEE, eds. Chicago; an experiment in social science research. (Univ. of Chicago. Studies in social science) 283p il $3 Univ. of Chicago press [13s 6d Cambridge univ. press]

309.1 Chicago university. Chicago—Social conditions. Social surveys. Research 30-3864

"The University of Chicago in 1923 formed and set to work its Local Community Research Committee to study intensively aspects of urban life in Chicago and its environs and it has published many books, monographs and articles. The purpose of the volume is to offer a review and summation of the research committee's investigations and findings, with special reference to its own instruction and guidance in future work and to that of social researchers elsewhere."—N Y Times

Booklist 26:300 My '30

"In spite of its defects the volume is a tempting outline of far richer and more varied setting, seen through an imagination as vivid and a method even more thoroughgoing than that which resulted in 'Middletown.'" Elsie Gluck

+ Books p31 Ap 13 '30 280w

Boston Transcript p2 Ja 15 '30 330w

"This book does not profess to give the answer to all the problems of the city, but it gives a fairly complete map of the field in which those problems lie and an outline of the scientific methods by which the solutions are being sought."

+ Christian Century 47:562 Ap 30 '30 180w

Reviewed by C. M. Perry
Int J Ethics 40:450 Ap '30 950w

"It is evident that the activities of this unique committee have been carried on with intensive and varied attention and the pages of this book reveal with what rich consequence, for all who realize the importance of the aid social science can give in the direction and control of man's life and development. . . The layman who possesses intelligent interest in the developments of social science and in the problems and methods of community progress will find it peculiarly rewarding."

+ N Y Times p14 Ja 12 '30 500w

St Louis 28:65 Mr '30

Times [London] Lit Sup p375 My 1 '30 120w

SMITH, THORNE. Did she fall? 286p $1.50 Cosmopolitan bk.

30-21179

No one was sorry when Emily-Jane Seabrook was pushed off a cliff to her death. She had been the wilful cause of too much unhappiness in the lives of many good people. But Scott Munson was duty-bound to discover the murderer—even if it proved undoubtedly to be his best friend.

"His book deserves more than a casual reading."

+ Bookm 72:xxi S '30 120w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p12 Ag 24 '30 100w

SMITH, THORNE—Continued

"At times the book approaches something akin to literature but over-writing, rickety construction, triteness of invention and a flabby sort of whimsicality make it in the end only an indifferent detective story." Dashiell Hammett

— + N Y Evening Post p5s S 6 '30 80w

"Thorne Smith's contribution is undoubtedly a first-rate novelty in the way of a mystery tale." E. C. B.

+ N Y World p5m Ag 17 '30 140w

"The mystery won't baffle you much, but the story is interesting, there are some entertaining characters, and Mr. Smith has a pleasantly wild humor." W. R. Brooks

+ Outlook 155:630 Ag 20 '30 120w

SMITH, WALTON HALL. Forgive us our happiness. 272p $2.50 Liveright

29-29527

"The story of a very modern young man, who found that cocktails and light loves were only a substitute for happiness."—Publishers' Weekly

"Mr. Smith has not produced a particularly good novel, but he has written a vastly entertaining one. There are inimitable episodes and scenes. Characters are natural and brimming with life. The talk is colorful, clever, racy, although occasionally too sleek; the sort of dialogue which glitters as long as the sun shines." Francis Thayer

+ Books p4 Ja 19 '30 1000w

"His novel is not smart, and it is vulgar without being funny. Everybody in his novel is on the loose, men, women and the expected children."

— Boston Transcript p2 F 12 '30 350w

"A clever book. The author has a sense of humor and a feeling for the dramatic. The dialogue sparkles, while the philosophical musings of the ultra-sophisticated people who move through the pages are trenchant and clear-cut. There is over all a deep knowledge of the ingredients of life and of real people. And yet the book falls woefully short of what one feels the man might do if he were not so bent on being clever."

— + N Y Times p21 My 11 '30 230w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 20 '30 180w

SMITH, WINIFRED. Italian actors of the renaissance. 204p il $3.50 Coward-McCann ²

792 Theater—Italy. Actors and actresses

30-25185

"This book is in the nature of a supplement to the same author's earlier and more elaborate study, 'The Commedia dell' Arte' [Book Review Digest, 1913], without a knowledge of which it will appear somewhat scattered and fragmentary. On the basis of her wide researches into Italian theatrical archives, Professor Smith pictures for us the lives of the men and women who formed the troupes that existed, and generally existed very miserably, under the patronage of the ruling families of Mantua, Ferrara and the other cities of Northern Italy."—Books

Bookm 72:xv D '30 120w

Books p24 N 2 '30 380w

SMUTS, JAN CHRISTIAAN. Africa and some world problems; including the Rhodes memorial lectures delivered in Michaelmas term, 1929. 180p $2.50 (7s 6d) Oxford

960 International law and relations. Africa—Native races. Livingstone, David. Peace

30-13996

Six addresses on world political problems. Contents: Livingstone and after; African settlement; Native policy in Africa; World-peace; Future tasks of the empire; Democracy.

Booklist 26:390 Jl '30

Reviewed by R. L. Buell

Books p17 Mr 30 '30 260w

Boston Transcript p3 Ap 12 '30 450w

"General Smuts is that rare thing, a genuine idealist and a practical politican. He can see visions, but he also knows the practical secrets of the military commander and of the political manager. What he has to say may not always command agreement. But it is always freshly and vividly presented, is full of stimulus and imagination, and may in the end prove to be truer than his critics expect." P. K.

+ Christian Science Monitor p15 My 10 '30 280w

Reviewed by C. V. Van der Merwe

Current Hist 32:197 Ap '30 850w

Foreign Affairs 8:681 Jl '30 30w

Reviewed by G. E. G. Catlin

Nation 130:522 Ap 30 '30 550w

"This is a dangerous book, because for those who have not the requisite knowledge it must be very misleading. General Smuts speaks with the prestige attaching to a leading Empire statesman, and his statements will be received as authoritative by most of his hearers and readers. He is here urging upon the people and Government of Great Britain a particular policy for their African dependencies, yet his arguments are based upon statements and assumptions for which there are no foundations." L. W.

— Nation and Ath 47:254 My 24 '30 280w

Reviewed by E. R. Pineda

New Repub 63:107 Je 11 '30 500w

"General Smuts is on the side of the angels. He stands for international peace and justice between races; and his lectures for the Rhodes Trust, as well as for other institutions in Great Britain, offer a valuable contribution towards solving two of the greatest contemporary problems of politics, the adjustment of international differences and the government of African peoples. . . His discourses on the League and on Democracy, where he repeats the current view of the 'expert' as a sort of scientist, do not deal with the fundamentals, but are valuable statements of generally accepted ideas. His treatment of the government of Africans must necessarily be taken as that of an 'expert.' But here the avoidance of fundamental issues is less excusable. In the first place, his 'facts' are not reliable."

+ — New Statesman 34:708 Mr 8 '30 350w

"Jan C. Smuts is a superman who has still to be superseded. When he speaks, the world listens, and when he writes, the world reads." P. W. Wilson

+ N Y Times p6 Mr 2 '30 2200w

Reviewed by John Carter

Outlook 154:670 Ap 23 '30 400w

Pratt p33 autumn '30

Reviewed by W. B. Shaw

R of Rs 81:16 Mr '30 120w

St Louis 28:149 My '30

Spec 144:167 F 1 '30 550w

Times [London] Lit Sup p51 Ja 23 '30 850w

SNAITH, JOHN COLLIS. Unforeseen. 387p $2.50 (7s 6d) Appleton

30-20070

David Oxley, on his return to his London apartment at a late hour, found there the body of a dead man. The man had been the husband of the woman whom David loved, and, suspecting her, David assumed the burden of guilt. After fifteen years of prison David was released, and during a private investigation the true story came out.

"It is the eternal triangle and by no means an uncommon problem, but the author displays remarkable skill in shaping the lives of his characters, and showing their courage and idealism."

+ Bookm 72:xxiii S '30 100w

"Two small objections can reasonably be raised to the style in which this absorbing tale is told. With several hundred thousand words already in the English language it would seem unnecessary to scatter French terms lavishly through straight-away narrative; and why, if they must try to use it, will not English writers take the trouble to learn American slang accurately?"

+ — Books p26 S 28 '30 480w

Boston Transcript p2 O 8 '30 380w

"The story is absorbing and full of action. Mr. Snaith has succeeded in making the latter part more interesting than the part leading to the conviction, which he failed to make entirely credible. The interest centres in the plot as the love interest is slight and David's personality almost colorless."

+ — N Y Times p14 Ag 24 '30 300w

Reviewed by Clinton Simpson

N Y World p3e N 16 '30 150w

Reviewed by W. R. Brooks

Outlook 156:69 S '30 80w

"An unusual and absorbing mystery, written with the fine craftsmanship that marks all Mr. Snaith's work."

+ Sat R of Lit 7:511 Ja 3 '31 120w

Times [London] Lit Sup p1102 D 25 '30 220w

SNEDEKER, MRS CAROLINE DALE (PARKE) (CAROLINE DALE OWEN, pseud.). Beckoning road. 326p il $2 Doubleday, Doran

New Harmony, Indiana—Fiction 29-11251

"This is the story of the Coffyn family of Nantucket who migrate to Indiana in the fifties to join the Utopian colony at New Harmony. They travel to Pittsburgh by covered wagon and down the Ohio on a flat boat. Dencey Coffyn's experiences on the journey and her life at New Harmony, where vistas of unsuspected freedom and beauty are opened to her New England eyes, are taken from the author's family records and give a background of truth to a delightful romance." (Outlook) The book is a sequel to Downright Dencey (Book Review Digest, 1927).

Booklist 25:400 Jl '29

"Jetsam, the grown-up waif, enters the story with romance and mystery in his comings and goings, and adds spice and color to a story admirably adapted to the interest of the older girl and most harmoniously executed in relation to its material."

+ Boston Transcript p7 Je 15 '29 180w

Cleveland Open Shelf p126 S '29

"A fascinating story of pioneer days in the Middle West with a love story which will please the girls and adventures enough for the boys." F. L. Robbins

+ Outlook 152:390 Jl 3 '29 110w

St Louis 27:291 O '29

"We are grateful for a girl's book written with character and style and, if the plot seems not as spontaneous as we could have wished for the sequel to 'Downright Dencey,' we believe, nevertheless, that girls will like it because of Dencey and for the quaint period it depicts so faithfully and enthusiastically." P. S. Aird

+ — Sat R of Lit 5:1118 Je 15 '29 450w

SNEDEKER, MRS CAROLINE DALE (PARKE) (CAROLINE DALE OWEN, pseud.). Black arrowhead; legends of Long Island. 279p il $2 Doubleday, Doran

29-22138

Sally and Dickey-Bull lived on Long Island. One day they found a magic arrowhead, which was really the Mohawk arrow of courage. When the arrow was shot at an old tree, out stepped an Indian warrior who led them back over the life of early Long Island. For children of twelve or younger.

Booklist 26:167 Ja '30

Cleveland Open Shelf p160 D '29

St Louis 28:54 F '30

"A 'Puck of Pook's Hill' for Long Island. It uses the Kipling device of historical reincarnations beginning, of course, with the Indians. Their rôle in America's founding is most concretely pictured without falsification, but with sympathy and real imagination. The episodes follow the march of history in one particular region. The conviction of the living reality of history is increased by actually carrying the children back into time with the narrative."

+ Sat R of Lit 6:906 Ap 5 '30 450w

SNELL, EDMUND. White owl. 304p $2 (3s 6d) Lippincott

30-14659

Dick Coombes and his friend, Juan Mitzakis, stumbled upon the entrance to a pit in Toltec, Mexico. A huge white owl, accompanied by foul stench, flew out of it and carried Juan away. Several months later Juan, with some of his evil companions from this nether world, turns up in London and Paris—to be pursued from one devilish murder to another by Dick and a former fiancée, Renée de Salis. Always the white owl accompanies Juan, and only Dick's ingenuity and the crucifix save him from horrible death.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Books p12 Ag 24 '30 100w

Boston Transcript p3 Jl 12 '30 370w

"'The White Owl' is a fast-paced thriller full of action and color, written by a competent pen with a sure feeling for melodrama and suspense."

+ N Y Times p9 Je 22 '30 230w

Times [London] Lit Sup p481 Je 5 '30 180w

SNIDER, JOSEPH LYONS, ed. Business statistics; a book of cases and materials. 524p $5 McGraw

650 Industrial statistics. Business statistics. Statistics. United States—Economic conditions 29-20765

"Dr. Snider indicates briefly the chief sources of business data, and then deals consecutively with the statistics of automobile manufacture, the metals, agriculture, cement, building construction and the railroads. Following the casebook method, he uses material provided by such competent collaborators as W. Floyd Maxwell of the Harvard Economic Society, Roger M. Eastman of the New York Telephone Company and Dr. W. Randolph Burgess of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York."—Outlook

"This book brings together in convenient form a large number of published articles relating to the use of statistics in business. Interested persons will welcome a collection of such material in a single volume. No appraisal of the material is presented and questions inserted after the various articles indicate that the book is intended for class-room use. The articles are very variable in quality, but this, as well as the lack of organization of the book, should be charged to the chaotic state of the subject rather than to the author." O. W. Blackett

+ Am Econ R 20:358 Je '30 100w

"Books on statistics are proverbially dull, but once in a blue moon some writer comes along who succeeds in giving the dry bones an adequate covering of flesh. This has been achieved by Dr. Joseph Lyons Snider." F. A. Fall

+ Outlook 154:389 Mr 5 '30 100w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:30 Ap '30

St Louis 28:37 F '30

SNOWDEN, JAMES HENRY. What do present day Christians believe? 357p $2.50 Macmillan

230 Theology. Christianity 30-28326

A popular exposition of the main facts and doctrines of Christianity by means of one hundred questions asked and answered.

Boston Transcript p2 D 24 '30 250w

SNOWDEN, J. H.—Continued

"The author tells us that the book is not intended for the scholar, but for popular consumption by young people in Christian study classes. The book is well planned to meet this aim. The topics considered cover a wide range. They deal with practically all the questions of a religious nature which are likely to come up in classes of the type the author has in mind. If there is any conspicuous lack in the topics considered, it is on the side of Christian ethics. It is exceedingly likely that any group of young folks that come together today for serious study of Christian belief would want more guidance than this volume affords in the matter of what Christians believe to be right and wrong in a host of practical situations." A. S. Woodburne

+ — Crozer Q 8:125 Ja '31 400w

SNYDER, ALICE DOROTHEA. Coleridge on logic and learning; with sel. from the unpublished manuscripts. 169p il $3 Yale univ. press

192 Coleridge, Samuel Taylor. Logic

29-23816

A study of Coleridge's system of philosophical thought and his theory of education, with illustrative selections from his hitherto unpublished manuscripts.

"Its chief interest lies in its display of the range of his mind and its refusal to function except in the most myriad-like manner. . . Over one-half of Professor Snyder's book is taken up with Coleridge's logic, which for many years has been the primary interest in her researches. . . Coleridge as an 'Encyclopedist' and an 'Educator' is treated tersely and compactly. The originality of his idea to incorporate into one monumental work all knowledge interpreted philosophically is made exceptionally important in the light of the history of encyclopedias." W. E. Gibbs

+ J Philos 27:134 F 27 '30 1750w

Reviewed by Edmund Blunden

Nation and Ath 46:766 Mr 8 '30 1400w

Reviewed by Edwin Seaver

N Y Evening Post p14m N 23 '29 250w

Times [London] Lit Sup p90 F 6 '30 1350w

SNYDER, HARRY. Bread; a coll. of popular papers on wheat, flour and bread; with biographical sketch by Andrew L. Winton. 293p il $2.50 (10s 6d) Macmillan

641.13 Bread. Wheat. Flour. Flour-mills

30-9854

Professor Snyder was for eighteen years connected with the University of Minnesota as professor of agricultural chemistry and soils. He was a foremost authority on cereal chemistry and the latter part of his life was devoted to the subject of wheat, flour and bread. This book is largely made up of Professor Snyder's popular articles and lectures on the chemistry of wheat and flour and the food value of bread.

Booklist 27:17 S '30

"Both for students of agriculture and for those interested in wheat, flour and cereals from a domestic point of view, this book reads easily and interestingly and still is sufficiently technical."

+ Boston Transcript p2 Ag 9 '30 120w

"The editors' choice of collected papers includes a diversity of subjects, with obvious repetition of statement, but on the whole some success has been achieved in showing how scientific investigations may be presented in fairly non-technical language for conventions and group meetings of those engaged in practical production. Cereal chemists here will find several well-known papers of considerable historical interest, which only could have been written by one whose keen mind had pioneered in what is now becoming an intensely specialized field of study. The more recent knowledge of flour chemistry, fermentation, and nutrition is not to be found in 'Bread.' and 'some of its statements should be considered in the light of the time in which they were written and the public for which they were intended." C. B. Morison

+ Ind & Eng Chem 22:685 Je '30 400w

J Home Econ 22:689 Ag '30 80w

"Although all the papers are popular in the sense that they can be read with interest and profit by any one of usual intelligence and information, each of them presents with scientific accuracy the story of his investigations and conclusions upon its special theme. And they reveal also a rich background in their author of intellectual life and interests."

N Y Times p27 Ap 27 '30 400w

Pratt p19 autumn '30

St Louis 28:212 S '30

"The book is quite readable, and contains a biographical sketch of the author, together with a full list of his many publications, most of which are concerned with wheat cultivation, flour milling, and the nutritive values of wheat and its products." J. D. M.

+ Soc Chem Ind J (Chem & Ind) 49:922 O 31 '30 320w

SOCIAL work of the churches; a handbook of information; ed. by F. E. Johnson. 244p $1.25 pa $1 Federal council

261 Church work. Social service (30-5049)

"The Department of Research and Education of the Federal Council of Churches has been for years engaged in investigating socio-religious phenomena of all sorts. Here is the summary of the known facts about the social ideals and work of the churches. If your pet denomination has caught the faintest glimmer of light on the social aspects of religion, you will find it all recorded in detail in this book. The preacher who is waking up to the deep intimacy that exists between human souls and human bodies, between human temperaments and human labor, between human health and human salvation, and who is beginning to feel that perhaps it may be a holy duty to do something about slums and low wages and insecure employment and overcrowding and child labor and disease and such things, will find this a good handbook."—Survey

Booklist 26:298 My '30

"The book makes clear beyond shadow of doubt that organized religion is really geared into the machinery of social organization, that the church at work realistically faces social facts and lifts social burdens. Of course Mr. Johnson is a friendly editor, but making all allowances for that, no open-minded critic of the church could read this book and continue to condemn the church as altogether otherworldly. The book is notable for the ground it covers, for its gift of fair and pithy generalization, for its wealth of facts and for its moderation." A. L. Swift, Jr.

+ Pol Sci Q 45:472 S '30 500w

Reviewed by C. S. Brown

Survey 64:439 Ag 15 '30 320w

SODERBERG, HJALMAR EMIL FREDRIK. Martin Birck's youth; tr. from the Swedish by Charles Wharton Stork. 211p il $2.50 (7s 6d) Harper

30-8264

The novel which is, in part at least, autobiographical, is concerned with the life of a shy, sensitive, sex-obsessed youth in Stockholm of the eighties and nineties. The story carries Martin into his early manhood and his first absorbing love affair.

"It is of Söderberg's own youth that we read in this fastidious, delicately shadowed narrative. The book is steeped in that golden nostalgic glow often found in autobiographical novels. But in spite of any homesickness for lost youth it is a truthful unromantic story."

+ Bookm 71:325 Je '30 180w

"With effortless felicity of expression and a sure, restrained touch, Söderberg ranges in this volume from childhood scenes of limpid beauty to poignant emotional crises of arresting power. Backing an extraordinary grasp of life as men live it, is the concentrated, distilled technique of a skilled craftsman. . . 'Martin Birck's Youth' benefits additionally by a flawless translation, drawings of great charm and a strikingly attractive format." J. W. Glover

+ Books p5 Ap 6 '30 650w

Reviewed by Jerome Mellquist

New Repub 63:240 Jl 16 '30 150w

"An altogether charming book. Actually the autobiography of the author's childhood and youth, it gives us Stockholm, and Stockholm seen through the eyes of a subtle, sensitive, skeptical and ardent Bohemian. 'Martin Birck's Youth' was published originally in 1907. Twenty-three years have not dimmed its light nor made it less delectable reading." Edwin Seaver

+ N Y Evening Post p10m Ap 5 '30 150w

"Under a more masterful pen such a theme might not be without interest and emotional strength. Many of the world's finest books have been written about poets whose songs are sung only within the borders of their own hearts. This book, however, falls to come off as one of these."

— N Y Times p16 Ap 6 '30 650w

"There is a clear vision here, a collecting and listing for the reader of all the eye can encompass. But there is more than a mere eyeful; for Soderberg is not merely photographic. He goes below the surface. He penetrates. He sees all that the eye can catch and a lot more besides. His prose is full of emotional and psychological implications and imaginings. And the whole is overlaid with poetry. I have the feeling as I read that the writer is using the wrong medium. That he should be expressing himself in verse. Martin wants to be a poet. No doubt of that. For the yearning is apparent on every page written by Hjalmar Soderberg." Bellamy Partridge

N Y World p11m Ap 27 '30 350w

"The childhood part of the hero's life is much like the fictionized reminiscences of any other writer in the early years of this century, before psychology first and then the war and finally Proust distracted and complicated them. The touches of Stockholm local color are often charming but not important. The later portion of the book is more unusual. . . Today Söderberg's novel is pale and a little uncertain in its disillusion after our deluge of war and whiskey, but it remains a good piece of work for its time."

— + Sat R of Lit 6:995 Ap 26 '30 400w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 27 '30 200w

SOKOLOV, BORIS FEDOROVICH. Bio-dynamics; the battle for youth. 230p $3 Covici

577 Life (biology). Endocrinology. Old age 30-8454

"To this Russian biologist now resident in this country, senility is 'a complex of diseases, pertaining to the most sensitive organs of the organism, the endocrine glands.' A pupil of Metchnikoff, he agrees with his great master that the so-called normal attributes of senility are theoretically preventable; he departs, however, from Metchnikoff's theory that this prevention can be brought about by the removal of auto-intoxication, particularly intestinal auto-intoxication. Sokoloff believes that 'every prolonged infraction of the harmony of nutrition may lead to considerable changes in the organism. And the very glands to be affected are just those on which the energy of life depends—those whose normal activity preserves our youth—the sexual and suprarenal glands.' "—New Repub

"The book is interestingly written and fairly well documented, but we can recommend it only to those who already have knowledge of the subjects treated." E. W. Stearn

— + Am J Pub Health 20:906 Ag '30 280w

"Dr. Sokoloff's volume is refreshing because of its thoroughly workmanlike treatment of the rôle played by the endocrine glands in the determination of individual energy and healthfulness."

+ Bookm 71:vi Ag '30 120w

Books p19 Ag 17 '30 130w

Boston Transcript p2 Ap 30 '30 450w

Reviewed by Maynard Shipley

New Repub 63:132 Je 18 '30 200w

"If this book has a main thesis, it is that the endocrine gland system acts as the regulator and organizer of an otherwise chaotic group of cells, the human body; senescence, a disease to be combatted like other diseases, is a result of disturbances in this system. It is unfortunate that so striking a thesis should rest here on so slight a foundation. Dr. Sokoloff is persuasive in the moderation with which he speaks of experiments in rejuvenation and most authoritative and interesting in his discussion of cancer." Ida Craven

+ — N Y Evening Post p8m Je 14 '30 160w

St Louis 28:210 S '30

SOMERVELL, DAVID CHURCHILL. English thought in the nineteenth century. 241p $2.50 Longmans [6s Methuen]

914.2 England—Intellectual life. Nineteenth century. English literature [29-15506]

A survey of the currents of thought and opinion that stirred English society during the course of the Victorian era. The author divides the period into three phases: the period of Tory ascendancy lasting up to the passage of the Reform bill of 1832; a middle period characterized by evangelicalism and Benthamite liberalism, lasting until 1874; and the last period dominated by the ideas of imperialism and socialism.

"The author introduces in turn the leading figures and proceeds to make a few explanatory remarks about each. This is gracefully and lightly done, but the thought of the period has not been grasped in its entirety, cogitated deeply, and then interpreted to the reader. Rather has the author remained content to act as chairman to a meeting of Victorians. Each in turn is presented, with some slight attempt at valuation."

— + Am Pol Sci R 24:229 F '30 250w

Boston Transcript p3 Mr 8 '30 300w

"This book is a brief and somewhat superficial sketch of English thought from the French Revolution to the death of Victoria. The author is concerned very largely with popular figures, rather than with abstract thought, and frankly admits that influence more than originality has dictated his choice of individuals. Consequently, littérateurs and mere popularizers occupy many pages in his book, and the index is crammed with politicians, while the physicists and chemists get scarcely a single mention. It is only fair to add, however, that the economists, sociologists, and biologists do get considerable attention." C. F. Mullett

— + Hist Outlook 21:182 Ap '30 280w

SOMERVILLE, EDITH ANNA OENONE. The States through Irish eyes. 200p il $2.50 Houghton

917.3 United States—Description and travel. United States—Social life and customs. Hunting—United States 30-30511

A witty account of the first visit to America in 1929 of the Irish authoress and artist who is also the first lady M. F. H. in Ireland. Her trip was made in the main to see the hunting districts of South Carolina, Virginia, New York, and New England.

Reviewed by Norah Meade

Books p6 D 21 '30 550w

"Miss Somerville tells the story of her American visit charmingly, with wit and humor and engaging grace. Being a famous horsewoman and huntress, she hunted while here in various places and adorns her narrative with many a cleverly told story of horses and dogs both here and in Ireland. She tells, too, with Irish facility, many good anecdotes she picked up during her visit. In her book she aims only to skim the surface, and this she does with so light a touch and so amusing a manner that she gives her readers a delightful hour."

SOMERVILLE, E. A. O.—Continued
+ N Y Times p25 N 23 '30 350w

"If her hands are as light on a horse's mouth as they are with a pen, she is as good a horsewoman as she is a writer of short stories."
+ Outlook 156:508 N 26 '30 80w
Sat R of Lit 7:478 D 20 '30 30w

SOMMERFELD, ARNOLD JOHANNES WILHELM. 2 Wave-mechanics; tr. from the German ed. by Henry L. Brose. 304p il $6.25 Dutton [21s Methuen]

531.3 Wave mechanics 30-28837

A supplementary volume to the author's standard work, Atomic Structure and Spectral Lines. Dr Sommerfeld is professor of theoretical physics in the University of Munich.

Reviewed by H. S. Allen
Nature 126:sup517 O 4 '30 600w
N Y New Tech Bks 15:31 Jl '30

SOMMERFIELD, JOHN. Death of Christopher 2 (Eng title: They die young). 348p $2.50 Cape [7s 6d Heinemann]

30-27684

Christopher, a disillusioned young man, dies in a motor accident, in the first chapter. The rest of the story flashes back to record all the loves on land and adventures at sea that Christopher has had for the past two or three years. Life has proved too much for him; it is quite fitting and proper that he should die young, rather than spend the rest of his days like a ghost in a hollow shell. The author, a young Englishman, has written his first novel in the modernistic manner.

"Mr. Sommerfield's work shows sensitive artistry at many points, while again it exhibits an inclination to dwell unduly on the tendencies of adolescence, a fault which is to be observed in recent novels written by young authors."
+ — Boston Transcript p3 D 27 '30 200w

"The first part of the book is disappointing; but it improves with the progress of the hero, who is more interesting as a seaman than as a Sitwellian poet."
— + Nation and Ath 48:sup352 D 6 '30 150w
New Statesman 36:179 N 15 '30 160w

"A first novel by a young Englishman: age, twenty-one; complaint, disillusion. It is a little hard to know just what young Christopher is so disillusioned about. Not about love, certainly. He is a fast worker; it appears that the ladies have only to lay eyes upon him to be fascinated beyond redemption. . . What we do like about 'The Death of Christopher' are the passages descriptive of New York and the log of his voyages as a deck hand to the West Indies and South America. These are strong, vivid and sensitive and show that Mr. Sommerfield can write when he forgets his obligation to be a sensationalist and a philosopher as well." Edwin Seaver
— + N Y Evening Post p4d Ja 3 '31 250w

"There are indications of a real gift for straightforward narrative, sometimes submerged when the hero has moments of alcoholic trance or when the transports of love are blotted out with a row of asterisks, showing that super-realism, whatever its claims for the truly dissociated sort of writer, is not Mr. Sommerfield's strong point."
— + Sat R 150:560 N 1 '30 150w

"The book has much that is feeble, pretentious and unconsciously funny in it: but happily the incredible young man goes to sea and carries his gay, disgraceful career with him round the world. In the chapters of adventure Mr. Sommerfield rises to the occasion with a distinction that is entirely astonishing after the undergraduate ennui and feebleness of the earlier chapters. These later episodes have vividness and vigour. They testify to a clear sensibility which ought to survive the author's false sophistication and literary mannerisms. He has a talent for swift narrative and for the handling of words which is worthy of something less callow than incredible young men." V. S. Pritchett
— + Spec 145:644 N 1 '30 150w

"The book offers a series of episodes, acutely set down but not essentially connected, and suffering, too, perhaps in consequence, from an excess of detail which, however admirable in itself, is irrelevant because emotionally valueless. . . The book has literary distinction, and if it shows little sense of life as feeling—the characters' emotions are all superficial—a considerable perception of life as spectacle."
— + Times [London] Lit Sup p886 O 30 '30 400w

SOUTHCOTE, GEORGE, pseud. See Aston, G. G.

SOUZA, ERNEST, pseud. Blue rum. 483p $2.50 (7s 6d) Cape

30-9492

A young American mining engineer, without funds, found himself practically stranded in Lisbon. There followed a double murder, a sudden flight from the country, a shipwreck and a series of lively experiences, in which the hero helped the Portuguese authorities in the exposure of a powerful drug ring. Not the least of his adventures was the recovery of the Fontinha diamond, the largest diamond ever found in Brazil.

Booklist 27:30 S '30

"Particularly notable for its unusual settings in Lisbon and in various parts of Brazil. 'Blue Rum' runs to 483 pages—twice the length of most thrillers—and so skillful is the author's heightening of interest that the right-minded fan couldn't spare a single one." Will Cuppy
+ Books p14 Ap 6 '30 320w
Boston Transcript p2 Jl 30 '30 200w
Cleveland Open Shelf p79 My '30

"The book is well written and has some admirably vivid descriptions both of Lisbon slums and Brazilian ravines; but there is no fine writing to spoil the yarn."
+ New Statesman 35:386 Je 28 '30 100w

"It goes on and on for 483 pages, too many of them filled with descriptions of places and bits of local color that seem authentic enough, but do not help the story along at all; too many of them deprive the story of every least trace of the mystery that might have given it glamour; too many of them filled with expositions of the obvious." Dashiell Hammett
— N Y Evening Post p11m Ap 12 '30 280w

"That large class of readers who prefer adventure stories will find 'Blue Rum' a fair representative of the type. Absence of any feminine interest is according to Hoyle. But it is a pity the author did so little with his hero in the way of characterization."
— + N Y Times p8 Ap 27 '30 480w

"The story moves slowly, and its final chapters are given up to statements by the principal criminals to explain a sequence that must have been apparent long before to any moderately astute reader."
— N Y World p10m Ap 20 '30 150w

SPAHR, WALTER EARL, and SWENSON, RINEHART JOHN. Methods and status of scientific research; with particular application to the social sciences. 533p $4 Harper

307 Research. Methodology. Social sciences
30-16489

This work provides the student with the three tools necessary to successful research work: the principles of critical scholarship; the proper technique to be used in applying those principles; and a general knowledge of the status of research in the social sciences today.

"Their book will be useful, because sophomores, not to speak, alas, of seniors and graduate students, do not in most cases possess the equipment they ought to have. As a manual of scholarly usages, as an introduction to the utilization of library materials, as a treatise for beginners on the writing of reports, as an 'authors' book' on the handling of manuscripts, it leaves little to be desired. But one is not prepared to find a compendium of such matters in a treatise on scientific method or scientific research. The author's concepts of these terms are not clearly stated." S. A. Rice

+ — Am Pol Sci R 24:1055 N '30 1050w

"The miscellaneous nature of its content makes it inevitable that the book should be without unity; but it is not without value. It contains many items that will be new and useful to college seniors." E. B. Reuter

— + Ann Am Acad 151:299 S '30 270w

"The authors have seen to it that this material bears the impress of authority; it is admirably thorough, almost a source-book, and at the same time perfectly wieldy."

+ Boston Transcript p3 Ag 2 '30 280w

St Louis 28:260 N '30

SPAIGHT, JAMES MOLONY. Air power and the cities. 244p $6 (15s) Longmans

341.3 Aeronautics, Military. Bombardment. War (international law) 30-9725

In this book on the question of air bombardment in future wars, the author asserts that, while the menace of air power and the menace of sea power are not essentially different, air power should be "envisaged as a disarming, a preventive, a war-breaking rather than a war-making force."

"A coolly argued and very able survey of the situation."

+ New Statesman 35:570 Ag 9 '30 650w

N Y New Tech Bks 15:31 Jl '30

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:66 O '30

St Louis 28:206 S '30

Sat R 149:564 My 3 '30 220w

"We do not consider that Mr. Spaight has fully recognized the bases on which the spirit of the age is engaged in constructing its organization for peace, but his argument is important and ably presented. There is, moreover, much valuable material in his book in the shape of statistics of both naval and aerial bombardments, and the opinions of leading aeronautical experts on the results of such operations. It is, indeed, a book which no student of modern peace movements can afford to neglect."

+ — Spec 144:749 My 3 '30 500w

"Those who cannot agree with all Mr Spaight's conclusions ought in fairness to admit that the results of this preliminary investigation of the main subject seem unshakeable. . . Mr. Spaight practically admits that, if bombing from the air is more accurate than it was during the War, this will probably be the result, but produces some very unconvincing evidence to show that aerial bombing is now so precise that airmen can adhere to his draft code of warfare if they are determined to do so. This is undoubtedly the weak point of the book."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p422 My 22 '30 1120w

SPARKES, BOYDEN, and MOORE, SAMUEL TAYLOR. Hetty Green; a woman who loved money. 338p il $5 Doubleday, Doran [10s 6d Heinemann]

B or 92 Green, Mrs Hetty Howland (Robinson) 30-11153

From money that came originally from a fleet of whalers Hetty Green built up her fortune. She became the greatest of women financiers and her sagacity and miserliness made her a legendary figure in Wall Street. A genius at making money she never learned how to spend it, but gave all her thought to guarding her possessions. Her biographers tell her story by episodes and anecdotes, with little attempt at character analysis.

Booklist 26:355 Je '30

"The book has been rendered completely interesting, despite its flinty 'heroine', by reason of its sense of proportion and the fine winds of humor which sweep through it."

+ Bookm 71:451 Jl '30 330w

"The biography of Hetty Green is based, in an American fashion, upon superlatives. The fundamental assumption is that any one reputed to be the 'richest woman in America' deserves a biography. The reader sometimes wonders what value or even amusement can be found in sorting out this mélange of quarrels, litigations, deals in Wall Street and tales of incredible miserliness." H. F. Whicher

— Books p5 Ap 20 '30 1000w

Reviewed by W. M. Emery

Boston Transcript p3 Ap 12 '30 2250w

"An excellent biography." G. T. Hellman

+ New Repub 63:133 Je 18 '30 650w

"A straightforward and thorough piece of work." C. W. Thompson

+ N Y Times p4 Ap 27 '30 1650w

Reviewed by Bellamy Partridge

N Y World p10m Ap 20 '30 480w

"They have run down and checked up the stories that were current in Hetty Green's lifetime and the result of their efforts probably brings us as near to the facts in that unusual career as we are likely to get." W. B. Shaw

+ R of Rs 81:14 Je '30 100w

Reviewed by David Ockham

Sat R 150:152 Ag 2 '30 500w

"As a 'human interest story' the book has merit. But it is to be wished that the thoroughness of the authors had been expended upon some leader of railroading or manufacturing or banking who was really worth while."

+ — Sat R of Lit 7:91 Ag 30 '30 500w

Spec 145:104 Jl 19 '30 800w

"It is seldom that a book appeals equally to the financier, the psychologist, the moralist and the general reader; but this fourfold attraction will certainly be exercised by the biography of Hetty Green."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p635 Ag 7 '30 850w

SPARLING, EARL. Mystery men of Wall street; the powers behind the market. 254p $3.50 Greenberg

332.6 Wall street. Capitalists and financiers. Speculation 30-8158

"Every one who has taken even a casual interest in Wall Street's doings in recent months has at times been curious to know more about the semi-legendary figures who 'make the market' for stocks, who run billion-dollar 'pools,' and any one of whose names bracketed with that of a given stock on a given market will start commission house wires buzzing. The material consists of a series of sketches of twelve financial geniuses—or, rather, of eleven and the seven Fisher brothers, of Detroit. The subjects of the sketches which originally appeared in 'The New York Telegram,' include William C. Durant, Jesse L. Livermore, Arthur W. Cutten, Frank E. Bliss, Benjamin Block, Michael J. Meehan, Joseph E. Higgins, the Fisher brothers, Louis W. Zimmerman, John J. Raskob, George Breen and Harry Content."—Books

"Fortunately, the author of 'Mystery Men of Wall Street' runs pretty well out of superlatives in his heroic picture of Mr. Durant; his subsequent sketches are less cloying and more informative. All in all, he has perhaps assembled as much real information on his subject as any one person could assemble, thereby fulfilling as thoroughly as it could be fulfilled a peculiarly difficult journalistic assignment." E. H. Collins

+ — Books p14 Je 15 '30 450w

SPARLING, EARL—Continued

Cleveland Open Shelf p70 My '30

"Mr. Sparling tells their stories in a tense, staccato style that concentrates their drama and turns vivid lighting on every spectacular incident. His facts seem to be authoritative and his book is informing and illuminating as to the personages now important in the country's financial affairs and their methods and as to the genesis of the panic of last year."

+ N Y Times p4 My 11 '30 380w

SPEARMAN, FRANK HAMILTON. Spanish lover. 438p $2 Scribner

30-24352

An historical romance of the sixteenth century, following the adventures in love and in war of Don John of Austria, half-brother of Philip II of Spain and hero of the battle of Lepanto.

Booklist 27:209 Ja '31

"Although, or perhaps because, it stresses the amorous at the expense of more characteristic aspects of the sorrowful prince's spirit, 'Spanish Lover' leaves Don Juan in rather harder case than it found him."

— Books p12 O 5 '30 180w

Boston Transcript p2 N 5 '30 250w

"His story of the great Hapsburg hero of Lepanto moves off at an easy start; but that easy start, sufficiently dramatic, acquaints the reader with the fact that the author knows his man and his period to the minutest detail, besides knowing the impulses of the human heart, the play of human passion, which is, of course, the material proper of the novelist." C. P.

+ Cath World 132:373 D '30 250w

Cleveland Open Shelf p149 D '30

"Mr. Spearman, in 'Spanish Lover,' has proved himself unusually competent in the handling of a piece of swift-moving action. There is also some good characterization which is achieved in a few words of nice choosing and much of sensitive dialogue. Although working with the variation of an old theme, the writer has truly caught the spirit of Spain's romantic Middle Ages, and, in elevating his work above the purely personal, has given us a highly commendable story of the days when that gay young Hapsburg, 'Don John of Austria was going to war.' "

+ N Y Times p7 Ja 4 '31 550w

"The novel is a swiftly moving panorama of dramatic events, wars, plague, intrigues, all leading to the happy ending of Don John's involved romance with Miriam, daughter of Ali Pasha. . . As a historical study brightened with a bit of romance, the book has much to recommend it."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e O 19 '30 200w

SPECHT, RICHARD. Johannes Brahms; tr. by Eric Blom. 371p il $6 Dutton [21s Dent]

B or 92 Brahms, Johannes [30-27072]

A biography of the German composer which is a study of Brahms the man rather than Brahms the musician. The author, who knew Brahms well, gives a sympathetic interpretation of his character, and writes with feeling of the circle of famous people who influenced his life: Robert and Clara Schumann, Joachim, Wagner, Liszt, Nietzsche and others. He discusses in detail the more important work of Brahms and shows the relation of these to his life.

Booklist 27:158 D '30

"Thomas Mann's opinion of Professor Specht's book—that it is 'the standard work on Brahms, and likely to remain so'—is probably a just one, and the appearance of an English version is a welcome event. It comes near to being the ideal biography of a musician, by a man who not only had the advantage of acquaintance with the master during his last years, but who knows well from a ripe experience how to temper enthusiasm with sound critical judgment. The most remarkable thing about the book is the frequent identification of matter and manner, giving a reader a feeling of closeness of touch with the subject which is rare and thrilling." John Piper

+ Nation and Ath 47:506 Jl 19 '30 400w

"Specht's account of the man is sympathetic and full of understanding. It is somewhat more sympathetic to the man than to his music. Mr. Specht is far from being a blind worshiper, as some other Brahms biographers have felt impelled to be. . . An account of these things so intelligent, so penetrating, so well coordinated, and above all so readable as Specht's, gives a true and convincing portrait of Brahms the man. No one has done one better, or, perhaps, so well. The criticism of Brahms the musician leaves room for a wider difference of opinion, and there will be, no doubt, a considerable divergence among the well-informed, candid and intelligent students of Brahms's works. But Specht's book will probably take its place as the best and most informing of Brahms's biographies." Richard Aldrich

+ N Y Times p9 Jl 27 '30 1350w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:86 D '30

"Thomas Mann has described this book as the standard work on Brahms and likely to remain so. Standard works are, however, the raw material out of which books are made, but this really is a book. It may be that the excellence of Mr. Eric Blom's translation helps to give us that impression, but the material must have been there to start with. The very human Brahms, the man walks before us, and his little eccentricities and foibles in no wise detract from the striking portrait of Brahms, the musician." John Filmer

+ Sat R 150:24 Jl 5 '30 450w

"It is clear that the traditional musical biography with its emphasis on chronology and factual fulness, could not have come close to the secret of so enigmatic a figure. For outwardly Brahms's life is without drama. But within all is stress, gnawing, renunciation. It is this innerness which is Richard Specht's concern, not the enumeration of concert tours; he examines the experience of a soul. His work combines intuitiveness with learning; it is imaginative yet based on actual intimacy with the master; it has the movement of a novel. Brahms lives in it." Leonard Ehrlich

+ Sat R of Lit 7:174 O 4 '30 1350w

"Herr Specht has a vivid and attractive pen, and his pages are always thoroughly interesting. Even to fellow-enthusiasts for Brahms's music his judgments about individual works may not always, thoughtful though they are, carry complete conviction; but we feel that, anyhow, he is never writing at second hand. Yet it may be questioned whether Herr Specht has not allowed his psychological predilections to run away with him. He is always looking for correlations between art and life."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p426 My 22 '30 1100w

SPEER, ROBERT ELLIOTT. Some living issues. 280p $2.50 Revell [6s Marshall, Morgan & Scott]

230 Jesus Christ. Christianity 30-13739

The articles and addresses in the first part of the book are concerned with the person, life and work of Jesus Christ. Those in the second half have a more general bearing on practical issues in the life and work of the church.

"Whatever one may think of Dr. Speer's theological positions, there is a wealth of Christian experience, a depth of human sympathy, and an insight into human needs which color and permeate his writings, and make them full of interest and suggestion."

+ Boston Transcript p4 Je 28 '30 200w

"In this book Dr. Speer has given his most mature reflections upon some problems that will not let the human mind alone. The most unusual trait of the book is the spirit in which it is written. Men have found it difficult to write about the virgin birth and deity of Christ in the bond of love. But the author never permits the controversial nature of some of the issues raised to betray him into an unchristian utterance." J. D. Martin

+ — Christian Century 47:966 Ag 6 '30 330w

"Another book which states the case for a supernatural Christianity. . . When so many voices are uncertain it is welcome to have this clear note from one of the great religious leaders of this century who has proved by his life his right to speak. Whether or not one agrees with his doctrine one cannot but admire the sublime faith and the tireless energy which have made his own life so inspiring to thousands of his fellows." E. B. Chaffee
+ Outlook 155:191 Je 4 '30 150w

"Dr. Speer offers the results of his unusual knowledge of Christianity in different parts of the world in these impressive chapters. Some of the chapters were delivered first as addresses and have been allowed to retain their colloquial touch, but the whole book bears the mark of wide experience and the confidence produced by an entire conviction of the truth of the great facts of Christian faith."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p631 Jl 31 '30 150w

SPENCE, LEWIS. Mysteries of Egypt; or, The secret rites and traditions of the Nile. 285p il $6 McKay [15s Rider]

299.31 Mysteries, Religious. Occult sciences. Egypt—Religion 30-15817

"In this book the author attempts to reconstruct and interpret Egyptian mystical ideas and ceremonies of initiation and to correlate them with the mysteries of other lands."—Times [London] Lit Sup

Boston Transcript p2 Je 14 '30 570w
Books p10 Je 1 '30 130w
Reviewed by L. M. Field
N Y Times p13 My 18 '30 1000w
Times [London] Lit Sup p1086 D 19 '29 30w

SPENCER, CLAIRE (MRS HARRISON SMITH). Gallows' orchard. 285p $2.50 (7s 6d) Cape
30-9491

The story of a gallant, wayward girl in a little Scotch village, of the several men who loved her, and the hatred of the villagers who, resenting her progress toward happiness, arose in wrath and slew her.

Booklist 26:359 Je '30
Reviewed by Guy Holt
Bookm 71:349 Je '30 580w

"The atmosphere is very fine, true poetry, unforced, poignant. The two men who love the woman are also beautifully suggested—alluded to rather than drawn. The woman herself is oddly, for myself at least, not so vivid. She is intended to be strong and able to bear all that is thrust upon her, but I never quite see her. She is hidden behind a mist. But everything in the book is authentic and everything is poet's work." Hugh Walpole
+ Books p1 Mr 30 '30 700w
Boston Transcript p2 Je 11 '30 250w
Cleveland Open Shelf p95 Je '30

"From the first sentence of 'Gallows' Orchard' Miss Spencer has the respect of the reader. Here, one feels, is, at the very least, a craftsman. And when the novel is finished one looks back with admiration on the spare, strong lines of its structure. Wise in her selection of incident, sparing but effective in her description, Miss Spencer conducts her story with an assurance that can only be born of complete imaginative comprehension. So sharp is the impression of maturity which the novel makes that one wishes to give the author the benefit of every doubt, even when she employs a device seemingly so cumbersome as the alternation of the historical present with the past tense. One knows she has her reasons though they may seem inadequate." Granville Hicks
+ Nation 130:454 Ap 16 '30 550w

"Effie is a heroine to stir the heart. That Miss Spencer has continued to make her own enthusiasm infectious is a fine achievement." K. C. Tomlinson
+ Nation and Ath 47:477 Jl 12 '30 100w

"Here is the first concrete bit of evidence that something is being done about the increasing dissatisfaction with naturalism in fiction. . . 'Gallows' Orchard' is indeed a glamorous book, and that is something both naturalists and humanists seem, for the most part, incapable of achieving." Howard Coxe
+ New Repub 63:27 My 21 '30 530w

"The vague nobility of the a-moralists needs further definition than it gets here. Effie Gallows, John Gallantly, the Fiddler and the rest are mostly violent but vague; and a less conscious effort after forcible writing would have strengthened the book."
— New Statesman 35:119 My 3 '30 100w

"The author rigidly excludes herself from her story, so much so that it is impossible to deduce her point of view. The lack of a point of view behind the book, anterior to its conception and telling, testifies to the skill of Miss Spencer's artistry. She has succeeded phenomenally well in putting herself thoroughly into the skin of a male character. . . The prose of 'Gallows' Orchard' is distinctive. It is un-Latin, and, since the Saxon elements of the language are the fresher, it is a fresh prose in comparison to many more learned styles of the day." John Chamberlain
+ N Y Times p9 Mr 30 '30 700w

"A simply told tale of life in a small town which affects the reader in two ways: it moves him emotionally by its portrayal of the cruelty practiced on a helpless woman, and it stirs his aesthetic sense by the manner of its telling. It belongs to a small company of books in which the writing is apart from the main stream books which appear every now and then and have no relation to the tendencies of the time." Harry Hansen
N Y World p9 Ap 2 '30 500w

"A fresh poetic style and the courage to write romantically distinguish Gallows' Orchard. The unreality of the story is enhanced by the author's curious way with words which gives them the effect of forcing themselves past unaccustomed and reluctant lips. The book seems to this reader promise rather than fulfilment."
Outlook 154:545 Ap 2 '30 120w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:51 Je '30
Pratt p42 summer '30

"Her book has that appearance of unpremeditation which is the triumph of art. It has an urgency and immediacy of emotion that are the very accent of life, a sequence of happening as seemingly inevitable as the inescapable encounters of actual existence. Her narrative is electric with feeling—quick with a passionate responsiveness to the beauty of nature, the pathos of dumb beasts, the calamities and complexities of the human heart. It flows on, now robust and harsh, now delicate and almost lyrical in expression, but always simple, always straightforward, always sincere." Amy Loveman
+ Sat R of Lit 6:891 Ap 5 '30 750w

"There are few calm moments in the book, but they are always good. We should, I think, have been shown the beginning of Effie's love affair if we are to be moved by her disillusion and unmanned by her recklessness. The story would have gained in magnificence what it lost in intensity by a general easing of the structure. These criticisms apart, Gallows' Orchard is a flashing and tragic piece of romantic fiction with undeniable moments of greatness." V. S. Pritchett
+ — Spec 144:713 Ap 26 '30 380w

"Miss Spencer has succeeded in creating a brilliantly lit picture of various people in a moving story that will remain in the reader's mind when the ordinary novel has been forgotten. The publishers, according to the accepted custom associated with praise of tragedy in fiction, liken her writing to that of Hardy. It might with equal aptness be likened to that of Sir James Barrie. But it has, in our opinion, much of the deep feeling, the power of vivid portraiture and the tense descriptive power of 'The House with the Green Shutters.' It is certainly a book that holds the attention and remains in the mind as the story of something seen and experienced."

SPENCER, CLAIRE—Continued
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p316 Ap 10 '30 500w

SPENCER, ERLE. Piccadilly ghost. 298p $2 Macmillan [7s 6d Hodder]

A cub reporter on the Daily Cry scents news in the supposed suicide of an unidentified man. That the dead man is a released criminal, that a five-pound counterfeit note turns up, and that a mysterious ghost is seen in an old art gallery off Piccadilly form the headlines in the reporter's news stories, and lead to the capture of the murderer.

Bookm 71:xix Ag '30 70w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p10 Jl 6 '30 100w

Boston Transcript p2 Jl 30 '30 150w

N Y Times p12 Jl 27 '30 150w

"Without examining too closely some rather incredible motivation, we'll give this tale mild commendation." Bernice Whittemore
— + Outlook 155:350 Jl 2 '30 100w

"The telling of the story never becomes ponderous, even at the rather long 'confession' at the end. It is always a difficult feat to hold the reader's interest during a recital of facts, most of which the reader already knows, but Mr. Spencer acquits himself admirably on this score. This is a very readable story with plenty of excitement to hold your interest throughout." R. I. Center
+ Sat R of Lit 7:63 Ag 16 '30 220w

Springf'd Republican p7e S 21 '30 250w

Times [London] Lit Sup p457 Je 6 '29 200w

SPITZER, MARIAN. Hungry young lady. 315p $2.50 Liveright
30-3535

"Describes the ambitions of Juliet Dexter, who patronized her husband dreadfully because he was a broker and who felt that her superior talents ought to be displayed on Broadway. After various disillusioning experiences, all of them convincing because they are free from melodrama, she decides that her husband, who has been conveniently absent in Kansas City during this experience, is worth clinging to."—N Y World

---

"The background of theatrical life is presented in an easy, amused vein, and the routine of rehearsals, tryouts and job hunting is woven smoothly into the story. The talk of show girls and stage managers is accurately transcribed and not tricked out with the made-to-order wisecracks in which J. P. McEvoy and other chroniclers indulge so tirelessly. 'A Hungry Young Lady' is light, but diverting."
+ Books p19 Mr 9 '30 130w

"The character is well conceived but the author's handling is not completely successful. There is a monotony of style and a false glitter about the background and there are too many episodes and too many words for artistry or subtlety."
+ — N Y Times p22 F 9 '30 270w

"Miss Spitzer's heroine leaves something to be desired; so does the willing self-effacing husband. Nevertheless, it is likely that Miss Spitzer gets closer to the average situation of this kind, and therefore to truth, than most books about theatrical experiences." Harry Hansen
+ — N Y World p10m Ja 26 '30 480w

SPIVAK, JOHN L. Devil's brigade. 325p il $3.50 Brewer

Hatfield-McCoy feud—Fiction 30-30242

The story of a long and bitter mountaineer family-feud, the Hatfield-McCoy scrap, which involved two powerful families in West Virginia and Kentucky for fourteen years.

"Mr. Spivak is a gorgeous story teller. Even to a reviewer born and brought up in Kentucky, and fed on feud tales, he has made the Hatfields and the McCoys more real and thrilling than they ever were before." Jacquelin Embry
+ Books p10 Ja 4 '31 650w

"Mr. Spivak's aversion to the romantically ornate, and his keen journalistic perception, have guided him over the pitfalls which his subject matter opened before him. Consequently we find 'The Devil's Brigade' a comprehensive psychological research without sentimentality into the sentiments of a people which caused them to break away from the customary bonds of modern civilization into one of the most extensive vendettas of history." J. P. C.
+ Boston Transcript p5 N 26 '30 480w

Reviewed by Edwin Seaver
N Y Evening Post p4d N 8 '30 180w

"Just how far Mr. Spivak has misplaced the incidents of the feud, bent them to his purpose and introduced new ones in order to make the story develop dramatically and according to artistic canons only expert knowledge of the history of the vendetta and of its chief characters could determine. But in its general outline, its outstanding events and its account of the leading killers it seems to tally fairly well with the accounts familiar to newspaper readers."
N Y Times p28 N 9 '30 350w

Springf'd Republican p8 D 31 '30 350w

SPRING RICE, SIR CECIL ARTHUR. Letters and friendships; a record; ed. by Stephen Gwynn. 2v 504;462p $10 Houghton [42s Constable]

B or 92 [30-6208]

For descriptive note see Annual for 1929.

"The volumes contain much that charms and considerable that enlightens. The work would have been more useful had it been better done. Mr. Gwynn's hope that his 'very ignorance of diplomatic history may be of some assistance', misses fulfillment, and his obvious unfamiliarity with American affairs makes one suspect that he may unwittingly have overlooked among Spring Rice's papers documents of greater importance than some that he prints." F. L. Paxson
+ — Am Hist R 35:615 Ap '30 1250w

Booklist 26:202 F '30

"As an observer of the political scene, its underlying causes as well as its outward character, Spring-Rice seldom if ever fails to communicate a sense of unusual reliability. He brings to his work a conscientiousness, a knowledge and insight, which tend to lift personal opinion to the level of scientific history." Armand Burke
+ Bookm 72:83 S '30 600w

Reviewed by R. J. Davis
Nation 130:220 F 19 '30 1400w

Pratt p36 autumn '30

St Louis 28:52 F '30

"The first-rate interest and importance of these ably edited papers has been generally recognized from the moment of their publication. To the student of recent history they are indispensable, while those who appreciate a great letter-writer will devour them eagerly. They might be described as a contribution to history and to literature."
+ Sat R 149:141 F 1 '30 750w

Reviewed by Charles Seymour
Yale R n s 19:625 spring '30 950w

SPRINGER, MRS FLETA CAMPBELL. According to the flesh; a biography of Mary Baker Eddy. 497p il $3 Coward-McCann

B or 92 Eddy, Mrs Mary (Baker). Christian science 30-25914

Written about the same time as E. F. Dakin's biography of Mary Baker Eddy, but withheld in publication, Mrs Springer's account of the founder of Christian Science is, like Mr Dakin's, an intelligent and coherent study of an interesting personality. Mrs Springer deals frankly with certain crucial points in the behavior of Mrs Eddy and in the literature of Christian Science itself, but her chief interest is the character of her subject.

"Mrs. Springer seems conscientiously to have tried to be impartial, while reserving the right to her own opinion on certain aspects of Mrs. Eddy's life. It cannot be said, however, that she has exhibited any remarkable degree of insight. She has shown little appreciation of Mrs. Eddy as one with a religious mission." Gerald Sykes

+ — Bookm 72:423 D '30 150w

"The study as a whole is not sensational, and to those who have any acquaintance with the critical literature of Christian Science it is more remarkable for its balance and for a subtlety about Mrs. Eddy which can justifiably be called feminine on the ground that no man who has written about her has made the same interpretations." Gilbert Seldes

+ Books p3 O 12 '30 1000w

"Mrs. Springer's book is sane and admirable. She softens the picture that Mr. Dakin painted. Her chapters on Mrs. Eddy's childhood and especially those on the Quimby episode and controversy seem to me to be the best that have thus far been contributed." F. T. Marsh

+ Nation 131:683 D 17 '30 180w

Reviewed by P. W. Wilson

N Y Times p5 N 9 '30 850w

"Mrs. Springer has told us nothing about the founder of Christian Science which had not already been told, either by Edwin Franken Dakin or those who went before him. This is, of course, a failure of which Mrs. Springer is probably more acutely conscious than anyone else could ever be. The undisclosed material, of which much reputedly exists locked away in the vaults of the church, which is necessary to a complete biography, was not available for Mrs. Springer. . . In this book, however, there is one thing for which one can be grateful. Mrs. Springer's chapter on Phineas Parkhurst Quimby, who undoubtedly planted in the mind of Mrs. Eddy the seed which grew into that curious flower of the American quest for certainty—Christian Science—is certainly the best explanation of Quimby available." Craig Thompson

N Y World p3e N 2 '30 250w

St Louis 28:302 D '30

SPRINGS, ELLIOTT WHITE. Contact; a romance of the air. 308p $2.50 Sears [7s 6d Hamilton]

30-10083

"Just out of college when we enter the war, Winnie decides to become an aviator and, after an intensive training here, goes to England for the finishing touches before being sent to the front. . . Winnie is just one of the thousands who stood the gaff until the Armistice, then became mental and physical wrecks. The ideal of his fiancée, which he holds throughout, more than any other one factor contributes to his morale and makes of him a successful flyer." —Bookm

"An American Ace writes of a flying man's experiences during the great war. His reactions to the everyday casualties among his friends, his fear of death and, sometimes, the utter futility of it all, are drawn with a fine understanding by this man who went through the mill."

+ Bookm 71:x Ag '30 120w

"'Contact' is well worth reading for itself alone, the story is interesting and the character of the hero, the only one drawn in detail at all, is real and compelling. But the novel is much more than a story; it is a book on war flying and on war itself. The heroics do not endure much beyond the first few pages and the plain, unvarnished presentation of facts as the war unfolds are more effective than would be any more formal treatise of the same material."

+ Boston Transcript p2 My 21 '30 300w

Reviewed by G. T. Hellman

New Repub 62:358 My 14 '30 100w

"Mr. Springs has done something better than be true to life. He has shaped a confused experience into outlines as hard and brilliant as a metal propeller blade."

+ N Y Times p24 My 4 '30 380w

STACEY, MAY HUMPHREYS. Uncle Sam's camels; the journal of May Humphreys Stacey; supplemented by the report of Edward Fitzgerald Beale (1857-1858); ed. by Lewis Burt Lesley. 298p pl $4 Harvard univ. press [18s Oxford]

917.8 Southwest—Description and travel. United States—Exploring expeditions. Camels. Roads—United States. Beale, Edward Fitzgerald 29-28350

"One of the first acts of the Buchanan Administration was to order Lieutenant Edward F. Beale to survey, with a camel corps, a wagon route from Fort Defiance in New Mexico to the Colorado River. Beale took with him several high-spirited young men from Chester, Penn., among them an earnest lad named May Humphreys Stacey. Beale in time made an official report, and Stacey kept a diary; and Mr. Lesley's book consists mainly of their records, carefully compared and annotated."—Books

"The editor has done his work well. It may be fairly assumed that this volume should be the final word on the camels of the Southwest, and that it is of value in bringing new light to bear on an obscure subject." R. K. Wyllys

+ Am Hist R 36:678 Ap '30 420w

Booklist 26:275 Ap '30

Reviewed by Lewis Gannett

Books p3 D 29 '29 850w

"The book deals with one of the most fascinating periods in the history of our country, and there is distinct personality behind the journal of May Stacey—written impulsively, carelessly, unrhetorically, with occasional flashes of consciousness of the beauty of sky and scenery, with a great youthful self-consciousness—the lad was only nineteen—and also behind the journal of Lieutenant Beale, so full of careful description of scenery, written in beautiful and polished English, with an almost complete forgetfullness of self in the concerns of the expedition in his charge. The contrast is striking and indeed one of the fascinating parts of a very interesting book."

+ Boston Transcript p2 Ja 29 '30 380w

Geog R 21:176 Ja '31 320w

"These two papers, together with his own account of the inception and development of the camel scheme and of the fate of the camels later on, enable Mr. Lesley to present what is perhaps the most nearly complete story of this romantic and picturesque but not very successful experiment. He has done it in a scholarly way, with footnotes and bibliography and with sufficient outline of the story of Lieutenant Beale to give him his due as commander of the first and only camel corps of the United States Army."

+ N Y Times p10 Ja 5 '30 400w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:51 Je '30

St Louis 28:111 Ap '30

Springf'd Republican p6 Mr 3 '30 500w

Times [London] Lit Sup p154 F 27 '30 900w

Wis Lib Bul 26:103 Mr '30

Reviewed by M. M. Quaife

Yale R n s 20:400 winter '31 150w

STACPOOLE, HENRY DE VERE STACPOOLE. Island of Lost Women. 287p $2 Sears
30-16611

"A typical Stacpoole yarn of treasure trove, desperate ventures in exotic seas, sudden death, wily orientals, and mild romance. Men will enjoy."—Cleveland Open Shelf

Books p17 S 7 '30 200w
Boston Transcript p2 S 17 '30 250w
Cleveland Open Shelf p126 S '30

"While 'The Blue Lagoon' in the distinction, poetic charm and tragic completeness of its story has never been excelled by the author, this last novel of South Sea, Chinese and Indian waters takes rank with other of his exotic tales as an adventure story of quality. Its characters seem drawn from life and its strange treasure-hunt is told with that apt interweaving of realism and romance that always gives Stacpoole's novels of far blue seas a special glamour and appeal. It is a good yarn in whose strand silk is mingled with the hemp." F. H. M.
+ N Y Evening Post p5s Jl 12 '30 100w

"In 'The Island of Lost Women' Mr. Stacpoole has revealed his usual facility in creating atmosphere of mystery and adventure. He is more concerned with astounding events than with pleasing prose. A fairly entertaining story is marred by hackneyed phraseology and many exasperating sentences."
+ — N Y Times p7 Jl 13 '30 300w

STADELMANN, H. Messalina; a picture of life 2 in imperial Rome; [tr. by H. F. Angold]. 320p $5 Dutton [15s Routledge]
B or 92 Messalina, Valeria

A biography of the debauched wife of the aging Roman Emperor Claudius painted in lurid colors against "a background of bacchanallan orgies, mysterious gardens and political intrigue."

"Carefully Mr. Stadelmann creates the mosaic of his background; from Ovid, from Suetonius, from Petronius Arbiter, from Tacitus and from Dion Cassius, he selects the bits and fits them together to form his picture. Then when the background is complete, he leads forth Messalina. But somehow he cannot make her fit; her vices are those of the age; her excesses are those of her contemporaries, but she is superimposed, not an integral part of the creation. It is not a savory story, or one that will be reread, if indeed it can be perused to the end." G. R. B. R.
— Boston Transcript p2 D 17 '30 700w
New Statesman 36:340 D 20 '30 270w

STAFFORD, MRS MARIE AHNIGHITO (PEARY). Little Tooktoo; the story of Santa Claus' youngest reindeer; il. by Kurt Wiese. 62p $2 Morrow
30-25121

The story of a young reindeer who went with his uncle, Prancer, to the workshop of Santa Claus and became one of the famous reindeer team. The author is the daughter of Rear Admiral Peary.

Bookm 72:xxviii O '30 50w

"Here is a book for any small child's delight." Ishbel Gordon
+ Books p8 D 21 '30 550w
Boston Transcript p5 N 12 '30 320w

"This book should go to every child that believes in Santa Claus." Nancy Evans
+ N Y Evening Post p7d N 15 '30 40w

Reviewed by C. L. Skinner
Sat R of Lit 7:336 N 15 '30 480w

STAHL, JOHN MELOY. Growing with the West; the story of a busy, quiet life. 515p il $5 Longmans
B or 92 West. Authors, American 30-10795

Born in an Illinois log cabin seventy years ago, the author of this autobiography traces, thru the story of his boyhood, his years of teaching, and his later journalistic and literary career, the story of middle-western American life from the 60's to the present. The sections on American authors and critics, and on the formation of the Society of Midland Authors, are of special interest.

Booklist 26:394 Jl '30
Boston Transcript p1 Je 14 '30 400w
Cleveland Open Shelf p94 Je '30

"In this story of his life Dr. Stahl has given us an interesting portrayal of the development of a virile and versatile personality against a changing background. Of his boyhood life, its tasks, its amusements, its contacts, he has painted a vivid and entertaining picture." E. L. Pennington
+ Living Church 83:541 Ag 16 '30 1250w

"The account of all these activities that have absorbed him for half a century makes, of course, a very personal narrative, a narrative that the reader is likely to find too detailed and too long to be read all through with interest. A considerable reduction of its bulk would have greatly increased its value as a contribution to the story of the social development of the Mississippi Valley. But Mr. Stahl has evidently very much enjoyed writing this retrospect of his long life and has told his story with almost as much zest as he lived it." F. F. Kelly
+ — N Y Times p11 Jl 6 '30 1300w

"Mr. Stahl modestly calls his book 'the story of a busy, quiet life,' but he has left a record of service that is memorable and an imprint upon his particular part of the West—Chicago and its environs—that speaks for itself."
+ N Y World p3e O 5 '30 100w

Reviewed by W. B. Shaw
R of Rs 81:10 Je '30 130w

"Mr. Stahl has made an entertaining and, for the student of American social history, a useful book . . . Most of the people he mentions are not even names on this side of the Atlantic, but these friendly pages make one sure they were worth knowing."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p439 My 22 '30 170w

STAIR, MRS GRACE (CROOKSON). Lady of France. 361p $2.50 Stokes
Lamballe, Marie Thérèse Louise de Savoie-Carignan, princesse de 30-8607

An historical romance founded on the life of Louise de Lamballe, intimate friend and attendant of Marie Antoinette, who was rewarded for her faithfulness to the royal family by an ignominious death at the hands of a Parisian mob.

"The story is furnished con amore and in a mood of high romance, with all things fitting to a tale of adventure, intrigue, sentiment and deadly passions in perilous days."
+ Books p19 My 11 '30 150w
Boston Transcript p2 Je 25 '30 230w

"The scenes are colorful, static, representative, rather than photographs of life in action. Louise de Lamballe, Queen Marie Antoinette, Louis XVI., Phillippe de Chartres are woven into the tapestry. They do not carry you breathless through their days. They are part of a pattern of a memorable time, not palpitant living creatures of today." F. B.
+ — Chicago Daily Tribune p8 My 10 '30 250w
N Y Times p22 My 25 '30 250w

STALEY, EUGENE. History of the Illinois state federation of labor. (Social science studies) 579p $4 Univ. of Chicago press [18s Cambridge univ. press]
331.87 Illinois state federation of labor. Labor and laboring classes—Illinois 30-5331

"Aims to reveal the purposes, the problems, the methods, and something of the accomplishments of the state federation of labor as we find it in the American labor movement of to-day. It does so by tracing in detail the development of the Illinois State Federation of Labor, admittedly a leader in its field."—Am Pol Sci R

"The volume is an outstanding example of what may be accomplished by diligent research and a readiness to employ every possible source of information. The judicious use of interviews with numerous leaders of other days enables the author to inject into his study the personality of the leaders and the atmosphere of the struggles between them, upon which labor history so often turns. . . Mr. Staley's vivid portrayal is secured without the sacrifice of a critical approach. His volume is at the same time interesting, thorough, and objective." Edward Berman

+ Am Econ R 20:745 D '30 1050w

"Mr. Staley has presented a thorough and careful study of an important social and political agency. His book makes for a much clearer understanding of the process of labor legislation."

+ Am Pol Sci R 24:526 My '30 220w

"A study which reflects credit not only upon Mr. Staley, but also upon Professor H. A. Millis, whose direction of this and many other local studies is giving us a more complete knowledge of the American labor movement as it affects localities." P. H. Douglas

+ New Repub 62:199 Ap 2 '30 580w

STAMP, LAURENCE DUDLEY. Asia; an economic and regional geography. 616p $8 Dutton [27s 6d Methuen]

915 Asia—Economic conditions. Geography, Economic [30-13004]

Geography by the modern method is exemplified in this textbook survey of Asia. An account of the continent as a whole is followed by regional studies of the political entities: Siberia, India and China, with emphasis upon the spirit and characteristics of the people.

"This book is to be commended to anyone who wishes to get a regional picture of Asia as accurate as our present knowledge permits."

+ Am J Soc 36:167 Jl '30 200w

"It is the most important textbook in Asiatic geography in print. Every student of Asiatic affairs should consult its pages. It is a timely publication because Asia as a continent has been neglected by geographers." H. F. James

+ Ann Am Acad 152:407 N '30 550w

Books p17 Ag 17 '30 170w

"Dr. Stamp has travelled widely, in Burma, Malaya, China and Japan, Turkey, Syria and Palestine, and parts of Asiatic Russia. These journeys make possible many vivid touches of description, and a realism of outlook which permits easy handling of a very large mass of information. Occasionally colloquial and lecture-room phrases seem to waste space; but they certainly make the book readable in a way not common among text-books. Where an earlier writer has done justice to a topic, Dr. Stamp, very sensibly, does not hesitate to quote him. The references to literature are carefully selected, and the index is ample."

+ Nature 126:680 N 1 '30 380w

"A first-rate text-book, an astonishingly complete book of reference, and also a book that can be read with keen interest, because the author has lived in the East and travelled widely. Dr. Stamp is a firm believer in the graphic method, and gives over three hundred diagrams to illustrate not merely the lie of the land but also the economic conditions. His chapters on China, India and Turkey are especially excellent; economic geography can explain much of the political problems of those countries."

+ Spec 144:208 F 8 '30 100w

STANDING, HERBERT F. Spirit in evolution: from amoeba to saint. 312p $5 Dial press [10s 6d Allen, G.]

213 Evolution 30-29174

"The author of this book is biologist and psychologist. He undertakes to show that the whole evolutionary process is fundamentally a manifestation of divine purpose and activity. His method is to apply this point of view to characteristic life processes such as the response of the organism to the environment, nutrition, unification, race preservation. He does this with a wealth of illustration from the fields of his special research. Here is vividly presented the movement of life from the simplest forms to the most complex, but always with 'a clear line of distinction between physiological events occurring in the physical organism, and psychical events which belong to a different order of reality.' "—Int J Ethics

Boston Transcript p5 N 1 '30 620w

"If one can read the book with attention centered upon the established biological facts, he will gain an impressive survey of developing life, including the human scene. He will find discriminating recognition of the phenomena of retrogression and degeneracy within the process which on the whole, in the main stream, is an advance in complexity and organization of structure and function. The final section on evolution of values is a rewarding discussion of moral aesthetic and religious values." E. S. Ames

+ Int J Ethics 41:117 O '30 650w

"The whole argument is founded on analogy; it is less a matter of proof than of suggestions, and it is doubtful whether it will impress those who are not already converts. Apart from the general vagueness of this method, however, Mr. Standing in his biological descriptions speaks with clearness to the non-technical reader. But his fondness for capitalizing abstract nouns gives his mystical explanations an air of superficiality which is the more unfortunate since they are also overshadowed by the passages of Browning and others which he inserts from time to time."

— + Sat R 150:211 Ag 16 '30 250w

"This book is avowedly written for the layman, and it will unquestionably be pleasant reading for that large group of persons—the vast majority of humanity—who are wholly oblivious to logic and who do not discriminate in their thinking between religious and other emotions, and ascertained facts. The chief weakness of this book is its lack of methodology and its muddied mixture of facts, sentiments, poetical, and biblical quotations." E. W. Berry

— Sat R of Lit 7:98 S 6 '30 650w

"The description of the organism, as such, and its relation to the environment is written with real insight; the account of the reflexes and the instincts has also many good points; but as soon as we leave the sure ground of observable fact and venture into the realm of thought and emotion we begin to lose our bearings. Dr. Standing's lay sermon is well written and abundantly documented, but the sequence of ideas is none too clear."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p1019 N 27 '30 280w

STANFORD, ALFRED BOLLER. Flag in the wind. 247p $2.50 Morrow

30-14005

Andrew exchanged his work in a New York office for a windy cove on Cape Cod. In a little coast town he found Francelle, who came to live with him in the hut he built. Then one stormy night a schooner grounded off the cove, and after official attempts to salvage her failed, Andy put into action a scheme he himself had devised. In a terrific struggle against wind and waves, Andrew, aided by Francelle, fought to save the ship, and won.

Bookm 71:xi Ag '30 80w

STANFORD, A. B.—Continued

"Mr. Stanford has managed the simple theme of his book with real skill, for there is a fine crescendo of emotion in the long, slow preparation for the great event in Andrew's life. . . There are times when Andrew talks a little too much like a poet, and I am not sure that Francelie ever quite comes alive. But the reader's interest is held up to the last paragraph." Herschel Brickell

+ — Books p7 My 11 '30 750w

"With 'Navigator,' the story of old Nathaniel Bowditch and the days of the wooden ships, Alfred Stanford won the plaudits of such literary seafarers as William McFee and Eugene O'Neill. In 'Flag in the Wind' he brings his story of that ancient form—a man and his ship—down to a modern setting, and thereby loses something of the glamour that marked the earlier book."

N Y Times p9 My 18 '30 200w

STANLEY, MARIE. Gulf stream. 304p $1.50 Coward-McCann

30-23440

Adele Childers, an Alabama mulatto, has a child by Archie Fenleigh, a white man. Adele, sent away before she has seen her child, becomes successful in operating a roadhouse. Later she seeks out the child she has abandoned and brings her to live with her. Adele tries to bring up the blonde, fair-skinned girl as a white child, but the Negro blood in the girl revolts, and she reverts to her own kind.

Reviewed by Guy Holt

Bookm 72:207 O '30 100w

"Miss Stanley writes an agreeable prose; her story has flow and reads easily. She is at her best with the odd members of this 'Creole' colony, and there are delightful touches in this section of the novel. One suspects that she might write charmingly of these out-of-the-way people, with humor and insight; the depths of the race situation are rather too much for her untried powers." Herschel Brickell

— + Books p2 Ag 17 '30 650w

Reviewed by Edwin Seaver

N Y Evening Post p5s Ag 30 '30 100w

"Miss Stanley's study is clear and interesting, and the Mille Fleur colony provides for the story a more than usually exotic background. 'Gulf Stream' deserves to be ranked as a first novel of decided merit."

+ N Y Times p7 Ag 24 '30 550w

"The pattern of this tale of chequered black and white is spun out of dramatic effects. The contrasts are striking, decorated, scarcely real. The emotions are poured from the mind of the stage director, shouted by the overtrained actors. Yet until the curtain goes down, your eyes are held, your senses satisfied, by the gleaming artifice of the play." V. P. Ross

— + Outlook 155:667 Ag 27 '30 320w

"Miss Stanley writes with power, economy, and delicacy. The closing chapter is as rich in drama as her novel is in color. 'Gulf Stream' is a first novel of some distinction." C. McD. Puckette

+ Sat R of Lit 7:84 Ag 30 '30 700w

STAPLETON, ALAN. London lanes. 252p il $5 Dodd [15s Lane]

914.21 London—Description. London—Streets

[31-2385]

A history of London lanes, old and new, of which the author of this book discovered considerably over nine hundred names, many of them still in existence. The earliest lanes were "the paths between, and land approaches to, the inns, town-houses, palaces, and monasteries; also the lanes which led to the villages in the country beyond the walls of the city." The illustrations are reproductions of Mr Stapleton's pencil drawings.

"If we accuse Mr. Stapleton of making a catalogue, it is certainly a very amusing one, and his pencil drawings of existing lanes are delicate and satisfying."

+ Nation and Ath 48:416 D 20 '30 200w

"Mr. Stapleton has discovered over nine hundred 'lanes' in London. There are Londoners who would be hard put to it to name more than half-dozen, though everyone presumably knows 'The Lane' of Drury, Chancery Lane, Park Lane, Marylebone Lane, Love Lane and Maiden Lane. Mr. Stapleton writes amusingly and learnedly, and his book will be a great delight to all who can still loiter about London."

+ New Statesman 36:28 O 11 '30 130w

"Mr. Stapleton is a very pleasant companion for a ramble through the town, and his drawings are charming. Many of the lanes he pictures are familiar enough to Londoners, many of them are squalid and uninteresting enough seen with the layman's casual eye; nevertheless, though Mr. Stapleton's pictures seem but literal transcriptions, there is not a lane in all the forty he has drawn for us that has not some beauty, such is the magic of his pencil." F. A. Clement

+ Sat R 150:492 O 18 '30 230w

"The arrangement of the material seems arbitrary: the author flies from one side of London to another when he comes on two or more lanes with the same name. But there is a full index."

— + Spec 145:606 O 25 '30 120w

Times [London] Lit Sup p1097 D 25 '30 320w

2 STARBUCK, EDWIN DILLER, and SHUTTLEWORTH, FRANK KAYLEY, comps. Wonder road; fairy tales. 3v ea $2.50; text ed $1.80 Macmillan

Fairy tales

"The selections, made under the direction of the Institute for Character Research of the State University of Iowa, represent a wide range. Book 1, 'Familiar Haunts,' consists of 22 old favorites such as 'Cinderella' and 'Beauty and the Beast.' Book 2, 'Enchanted Paths,' contains 20 less familiar tales. Both these volumes are illustrated in colors and black and white by Harold Sichel. The last of the series, 'Far Horizons,' contains 19 little heard-of tales, and has pictures by Henry Pitz."—Springf'd Republican

"Here, in three illustrated volumes, Familiar Haunts, Enchanted Paths and Far Horizons, is the most satisfactory collection of fairy tales that has been published for a long time. There is not one story which will fail to delight the child and, also, the adult reader of fairy tales. No juvenile library should be without these books."

+ Bookm 72:xxvii S '30 70w

"It includes tales of varied type and origin, each one specially chosen for some outstanding quality of beauty or imagination, and all sifted tales in that they have survived the most exacting test of all, that of their reaction upon the children themselves."

+ Sat R of Lit 7:110 S 6 '30 500w

Springf'd Republican p5e Jl 13 '30 130w

STARR, FREDERICK. Confucianism; ethics, philosophy, religion. 250p il $3 Covici

181.1 Confucius and Confucianism 30-9423

"Confucianism is not a simple set of ideas, directly uttered by Confucius and unvaryingly repeated through twenty-five centuries of Chinese existence. It is a system, ethical, philosophical, and religious, that has evolved through the brains of different thinkers sharing various fortunes of historic change. To show this is the purpose of the author, long a student of Far Eastern culture. By drawing materials from the labors of Legge, Giles, and Soothill on the Chinese classics and putting them together with the recent findings of Dubs, Bruce Henke, and Père Wieger in later literature he constructs a straightforward account of the high points in the story."—Int J Ethics

Booklist 27:138 D '30
Books p19 N 2 '30 150w

"Professor Starr's treatment does not take into account the results of recent Chinese critical studies in the classical literature which are not yet available in Western languages. But he has put in popular, readable form the large outlines of a difficult and immense subject. His book will enable the general reader to have some share in the memories of the Chinese cultural tradition." C. H. Hamilton
+ Int J Ethics 41:122 O '30 500w

"In a modest preface the author disclaims any originality and declares that the book is, in the main, the opinions of other scholars pieced together and filled out with biographical and historical comment. It would have been well if Dr. Starr had been more ambitious. The book is too small in bulk and in essential insight to be useful. The quotations appear without sufficient supporting context; the biographical and historical comment is too sketchy to contribute the sense of contemporaneousness and personality which might have helped our understanding."
— Nation 131:132 Jl 30 '30 150w

"Professor Starr of the University of Chicago has made here a lucid, simple and just presentation of the character and life of Confucius and the system of ethics founded by him and of its development into a philosophy and a religion."
+ N Y Times p21 Ap 20 '30 400w

"Dr. Starr's interpretation is refreshingly simple, lucid and terse." W. B. Shaw
+ R of Rs 81:14 Ap '30 100w

STARR, JONATHAN. Grapevine. 169p $2 Liveright
30-15104

The story of a crook and his pals, told in the vernacular of the New York underworld. The Kid's best friend is Harry the Dope, a white guy. They both work for the Boss. The Boss double crosses Harry. But the "grapevine", or chain of crooks, gunmen and police, operates to save the Kid when he wreaks vengeance on the Boss.

Bookm 71:ix Ag '30 170w
Books p14 Je 29 '30 220w
Boston Transcript p2 Je 11 '30 320w

"'Grapevine' is a book essentially cheap in conception and execution. But it has its merits. It contains some convincing demonstrations of the inner lining of our much maligned judicial system. . . The book was obviously written as a stunt. In spite of its glib vulgarity and lack of substance it gives a deft thumbnail sketch here and there of political protection, law fixing and the machinations of a municipal underworld in which the publishing world now seems so interested."
— + N Y Times p16 Je 15 '30 270w
Reviewed by C. H. Grattan
N Y World p5m Je 29 '30 150w
Reviewed by F. L. Robbins
Outlook 155:188 Je 4 '30 150w
Springf'd Republican p7e S 21 '30 100w

STARRETT, VINCENT. Blue door; murder—mystery—detection, in ten thrill-packed novelettes. 345p $1 Doubleday, Doran
30-23189

Ten short stories of crime, mystery and adventure by the author of Murder on B Deck. Contents: The blue door; Too many sleuths; The fingernail clue; The woman in black; The wrong stairway; The street of idols; A volume of Poe; The skylark; The Ace of clubs; Out there in the dark.

Booklist 27:165 D '30
Bookm 72:xxiii S '30 40w

"Ten longish short stories displaying the better than average mystery mind in most of its ups, downs and ramifications. . . The author of 'The Blue Door' offers varied fare in the way of crime, detection and authentic human interest—a balanced ration served with skill and discretion." Will Cuppy
+ Books p16 S 14 '30 150w

"Divertissements to be forgotten the next moment." Dashiell Hammett
N Y Evening Post p12 S 20 '30 50w

Reviewed by W. C. Weber
Sat R of Lit 7:478 D 20 '30 50w

STAUFFER, DONALD. This man and this woman. 321p $2.50 Liveright
30-4722

"Francis Carden, a gentleman of leisure, marries Judy Keith. He takes her abroad and, after a few weeks, settles down to write in Paris. Judy, whose whole life is in her marriage, soon begins to hate his writing. When at last she drags him back to America she surrounds him with a constant din of drinks and parties. She uses everything to decoy him from his work. Conscious of being wrong, but helpless to master herself, she finally lashes her jealousy into hatred. And Francis, who is wholly baffled, wholly miserable and wholly unable to cope with his two loves, crumbles to despair. In the heat of a great anguish they part."—Books

"He has aimed to write of a wife's jealousy of her husband's work, but he succeeds only in presenting a series of discordant scenes, which, although earnest, are nevertheless inept. There is something singularly wearisome about unhappy marriage as a theme when it is unsupported by a profound grasp of character." Guy Holt
— Bookm 71:239 Ap '30 140w

"The two themes of Mr. Stauffer's novel, although interwoven, muddle the book. The stark tragedy of the marriage and the grotesque tragedy of the murder do not mingle." V. P. Ross
— Books p13 Mr 9 '30 570w

"The treatment of the plot would seem to be rather superficial, psychologically unsound, and perhaps artistically valueless. However, its quality of vivid intensity, dramatic, at times melodramatic in its quick-moving action, and its simplicity of portraiture, make the book an interesting, if not too stimulating evening's entertainment."
— + Boston Transcript p7 Mr 8 '30 180w

"'This Man and This Woman' presents a curious contrast between cheap and easy thinking and writing and an amazingly clear and merciless talent for portraiture. By every tenet of critical judgment, Mr. Stauffer's style is deficient; but strangely enough, his book is lifted almost to distinction by the brilliant delineation of one of the most disagreeable women in all fiction. It is a pity that Mr. Stauffer has not written a better book for this remarkable characterization." Marjorie Johnson
— + N Y Evening Post p10m Mr 8 '30 500w

"Mr. Stauffer's book is well written, with a clear cut motif never lost in reverie. . . The denouement is tragic and unexpected, and the whole effect of the book is powerful. The author does more than scratch the surface. He knows his people and his background." O. M. Fuller
+ N Y World p11m F 16 '30 380w

STAUFFER, DONALD ALFRED. English biography before 1700. 392p $4 Harvard univ.
2 press [18s Oxford]

920 Biography (as a literary form). Autobiography. English literature—History and criticism
30-22944

"It is probable that no major literary form has been more neglected by scholars than biography, especially in its origins and early career.

STAUFFER, D. A.—Continued
Here we have the whole course of English biography set before us, from its Latin and Anglo-Saxon beginnings to its seventeenth century achievements and prophecies of what is still to be."—Sat R of Lit

Booklist 27:205 Ja '31

"Mr. Stauffer is a good guide. He has a large sympathy with the men whose biographical efforts he interprets, and a quick eye for all their charm and their merit. He has dived into all manner of curious corners and byways in pursuit of his quarry, and he has come up with a goodly collection of interesting figures. If, on occasion, he grows too lyrical about a hagiographer or a Caroline divine, he is only venting some of the enthusiasm that was necessary to carry him through a task of such extensive proportions. His industry cannot be too highly commended; the bibliography with which he concludes his book is a splendid example of what such a bibliography ought to be." C. D. Abbott

+ Sat R of Lit 7:390 N 29 '30 580w

"The story which Dr. Stauffer tells with faithful weaving of a great many threads, thick and thin (and the whole guaranteed and much increased in value by some eighty pages of bibliography), is the growth of biography into recognition and practice as a literary art."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p1061 D 11 '30 1200w

STAWELL, FLORENCE MELIAN. Growth of international thought. (Home univ. lib. of modern knowledge) 248p $1.25 Holt [2s 6d Butterworth, T.]

320.9 Political science—History. International cooperation 30-26192

The author considers, in the perspective of history, a succession of the best thinkers in Europe on the subject of international relations.

"The aspects of their thought or actions bearing upon his topic the author has written up into a synthesis that places this book among the better volumes of the very satisfactory series to which it belongs." E. P. H.

+ Am Pol Sci R 24:525 My '30 270w

Books p10 Ap 27 '30 200w

"Though it is a well written and admirable little book it leaves one rather hungry and disappointed. . . Miss Stawell's title is either a misnomer or she has taken too narrow a view of it. International thought implies thinking internationally instead of nationally or nationalistically. The growth of international thought in this sense is something much wider than the growth of pacificism or international organization for the prevention of war. But Miss Stawell is so obsessed with the problem of war and peace that she rarely considers the international attitude other than in its relation to that problem. This accounts for some very curious omissions in her book and for occasional misundersandings of particular problems." Leonard Woolf

+ — Nation and Ath 45:737 S 7 '29 1200w

N Y Times p17 Ag 31 '30 400w

St Louis 28:204 S '30

"As a brief historical exposition of the principles underlying the League of Nations, nothing could be better than this attractive and scholarly little book."

+ Spec 143:280 Ag 31 '29 180w

STAWELL, FLORENCE MELIAN, and DICKINSON, GOLDSWORTHY LOWES. Goethe & Faust; an interpretation, with passages newly tr. into English verse. 291p il $4 Dial press [15s Bell, G.]

832 Goethe, Johann Wolfgang von 30-7741

A critical interpretation of Goethe's great drama, with liberal translations from the text. The study also shows the development of the poet's mind and character as revealed by his masterpiece.

"The combination of these two representatives of the culture of Cambridge is fortunate in every respect. . . There is no attempt at a radical revaluation of the play, nor even at a critical revision. But there is, at any rate, an originality of focus and emphasis. What the maturer Goethe thought and felt about nature, religion and love is here unfolded with all the acumen and devotion that accompany genuine insight." W. K. Stewart

+ Books p4 My 4 '30 1650w

Boston Transcript p3 F 21 '30 570w

Reviewed by T. S. Eliot

Nation and Ath 44:527 Ja 12 '29 550w

"What 'Goethe and Faust' offers is a commentary on the great work, preceded by two introductory chapters which lead the way to 'Faust' through an analysis of Goethe's attitude toward the two master passions of his life, nature and woman. The first shows the broad optimism of the poet's view, with its intuitive conception of nature as a whole and his longing for a development of faith hand in hand with science. The 'labyrinth of life,' with its vacillation between what a recent German author calls 'Eros and Sexus,' is not so successful. One finds here nothing more than the customary lining up of the love episodes in Goethe's life with figures and motives in Faust and no deeper look into the tortured soul that is reflected in the tragic passages of the Gretchen story." R. H. Fife

+ — N Y Evening Post p8s F 22 '30 1200w

Reviewed by A. W. Porterfield

Outlook 154:107 Ja 15 '30 550w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:30 Ap '30

"The literary charm of this collaboration will be appreciated both by Goethe scholars and by the uninitiated."

+ Spec 141:993 D 29 '28 200w

"There cannot be much doubt that this is the best commentary on Goethe's 'Faust' that we have, or are likely to have, in English. Whether it is the most adequate criticism is a rather different question."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p985 D 13 '28 1600w

STEEGMULLER, FRANCIS (BYRON STEEL, pseud.). Musicale. 218p $2 Cape

30-23556

To Lucia Hibbett's musicale comes a group of Middle Western intelligentsia. The thoughts that pass thru the minds of these fourteen selected people as the musicale is in progress make up the pattern of the novel.

"His style and treatment are well suited to his purpose. Above the tonal concert admirably described, there is a symphony in mutes, skilfully orchestrated and eloquent beyond mere words, to which Mr. Steegmüller makes us listen and of which fact we are constantly aware. But can an author hide himself behind the cranial wall of his characters and not thereby limit his freedom of attack?" Louis Rich

+ — Bookm 72:305 N '30 280w

"A composition as mannered, precise and accentuated as an exacting movement in music. The book follows a very definite pattern, skillfully revealing the introspection of a group assembled at a faculty musicale in a Middle-Western university town, interweaving their reactions to Beethoven, Chopin and Bach with the progress of the music itself. . . There is a static quality about it all, and one feels that this group is pictured not merely in momentarily arrested movement but that there has been little activity among them, and that there never will be much."

Books p18 S 28 '30 350w

Boston Transcript p2 O 22 '30 300w

"A satire of caustic excellence and vivid truthfulness. . . The action flows forward first in one mind and then in the next, until this human knot is elaborated from varying subjective angles to a warm and vivid whole."
+ N Y Times p7 S 28 '30 500w

STEEGMULLER, FRANCIS (BYRON STEEL, pseud.). Sir Francis Bacon, the first modern mind. 208p $3 Doubleday, Doran
B or 92 Bacon, Francis, viscount St Albans
30-4880

A biographical study of the life and mind of the brilliant but treacherous Elizabethan scholar, statesman and opportunist. Those aspects of Bacon's career which Mr Steel has emphasized are his political advancement, his constant rivalry with Edward Coke for favor and position, and his literary achievements. The biographer sees Bacon as a man of great mental brilliance combined with strange moral weakness.

Booklist 26:311 My '30

"Nothing new is added to our knowledge of Francis Bacon by Mr. Steel nor does he attempt to frame a novel estimate of Lord Verulam's character. He does give us an able summary of what is known about Bacon, and he writes it in a very agreeable prose. As far as it goes, his book is 'just right'; it makes Bacon fascinating and it leaves him inexplicable."
+ Bookm 71:vi Mr '30 130w

"Mr. Steel is alert, well informed and competent, building his books with an architect's sense of proper proportion and disdain of adventitious ornament. Both in his earlier biography of Ben Jonson and in this his second study of an Elizabethan-Jacobean personality he has shown himself capable of attaining immediacy and vividness without resort to cheap devices. Their success is a triumph of sincere interest and sound craftmanship." G. F. Whicher
+ Books p25 Mr 16 '30 500w

"Those who enjoyed Byron Steel's 'O Rare Ben Jonson' will find the present volume an entertaining review of the highlights in the life of a great thinker and statesman who was unable to maintain the heights to which both his thought and his statesmanship seemingly called him. The book is brief, sometimes cursory, but always interesting. It makes no claim to scholarly completeness. Its main purpose is to make Bacon real to the average modern reader by giving a sketch of the most significant and entertaining events of his life." R. K. M.
Boston Transcript p4 F 19 '30 600w

"In a popular and somewhat undistinguished style—so simplified that he defines, explains, and discards as worthless the whole system of the Schoolmen in one short paragraph—Mr. Steel narrates the undisputed facts of Bacon's life. By an effective use of excerpts from Bacon's letters, and a clear portrayal of each step in the long and devious road he trod to his short-lived eminence, the author shows Bacon in all his moral and spiritual nakedness. . . What was needed, and is still needed despite Mr. Steel's effort, is a dispassionate scholarly study of the discrepancy between Bacon's utterance and his character, and of the actual nature of his scientific and legal attainments." D. A. Roberts
+ — Nation 130:222 F 19 '30 400w

"The book is unpretentious but pleasant to read." P. W. Wilson
+ N Y Times p11 Ja 19 '30 950w

"Byron Steel's book can add nothing to the world's knowledge of Bacon. But what it can do is to offer a more detailed if not a more revealing portrait of Bacon to such readers as met him for the first time face to face in Strachey's Elizabeth and Essex."
+ — Outlook 154:108 Ja 15 '30 180w

St Louis 28:113 Ap '30

"Mr. Steel's is a well balanced portrait."
+ Sat R of Lit 6:877 Mr 29 '30 300w

STEEL, BYRON, pseud. See Steegmüller, F.

STEEN, MARGUERITE. Reluctant madonna. 314p $2.50 Stokes [7s 6d Cassell]
30-5175

Miranda Beauminster has been placed on a pedestal and worshipped as something sacred by her husband, the Earl of Beauminster, and later by her son Malstrom. The life of this frustrated woman, and her love for her son, who inherits his father's asceticism and makes the same mistakes in his relations with women, is the theme of the story.

"This book contains neither the genius that creates nor the technique of the craftsman."
— Bookm 71:xix Mr '30 120w

"'The Reluctant Madonna' is a psychological study, but worked out in terms of action so fascinating and so vividly realized that even its intricate inner conflicts are powerfully presented. Miss Steen injects more dramatic suspense into heredity than many a novelist can muster with murder."
+ Books p12 Ag 3 '30 450w

"In her minor as well as her principal characters, Miss Steen has devoted her attention to those details which suggest real flesh and blood beneath conversation and action. Characters fall into place and remain true to themselves and the story in a manner that combines to make an effective and a moving work."
+ N Y Times p7 F 16 '30 520w

"Miss Steen's notions of aristocracy seem a trifle grandiose and what starts out as a sophisticated novel degenerates into a treacly sort of confection in the end."
— Outlook 154:426 Mr 12 '30 130w

"There is too much unconscionable sentiment in this long book, and, whatever Miss Steen's sympathies, she persuades us to give ours to the rakes."
— Times [London] Lit Sup p768 O 3 '29 280w

STEIN, AARON MARC. Spirals. 298p $2.50 Covici
30-3228

"This is a self-communing novel in which the author verbalizes his thoughts after the manner of the characters in the latest dramatic experiments of Eugene O'Neill. There is hardly a page of legitimate dialogue in the entire book, which is, if I catch the drift of it, a mental image of a college education. It is divided into four parts, emblematical of the four years spent by the hero at Princeton."—N Y World

---

"Though Mr. Stein's matter and manner fairly exasperate an adult with an ear for euphony, it must be confessed that there is a certain quality about this book. Mr. Stein has a real theme in the mental development of Tony Todd. It is not a new theme except in so far as every individual is 'new.' But by failing to mass his material either subjectively or objectively, the author unfortunately leaves his portrait of Tony obscure to a point which threatens to make it imperceptible to all but the most optimistic and determined onlookers." Norah Meade
— + Bookm 71:107 Mr '30 240w

"If the substance with which such a novel deals is not completely realized in the mind of its creator, subjective treatment only serves to make that fact the more manifest, and 'Spirals' fails to live up to the ambitious pattern which it sets for itself."
— Books p17 Mr 23 '30 200w

N Y Times p16 Je 15 '30 270w

Reviewed by Bellamy Partridge
N Y World p11m F 2 '30 180w

STEINER, WILLIAM HOWARD. Investment
[2] trusts; American experience. 325p $3 Adelphi co.

332 Investment trusts 29-20709

"A comprehensive treatment of investment trusts. . . After presenting the fundamental characteristics of investment trusts it goes on with a historical sketch of their growth in England and Scotland, and follows with the American development. It then takes up in several chapters the various types of investment trusts and the management problems in each, and closes with a chapter on possible external regulation, governmental and otherwise."—Pol Sci Q

Reviewed by G. K. McCabe
Am Econ R 19:298 Je '29 550w

"Although of comparatively small proportions, this book deserves a prominent place in investment trust literature." G. W. Hoffman
+ Ann Am Acad 147:221 Ja '30 230w
Boston Transcript p10 Ap 6 '29 300w

"A comprehensive treatment of investment trusts, well planned and thoughtfully carried out. The book is based not only on a careful examination of the sources available in print, but also on much personal conference with investment trust managers. It abounds with information on practice which could not be easily obtained elsewhere. Professor Steiner wrote with such caution and perspicacity that, though the book appeared well before the market break last fall, it contains nothing to make him wish he had delayed publication." Hastings Lyon
+ Pol Sci Q 45:477 S '30 600w

STENI, L. Afternoon and twilight of Vanda Pinelli. 285p $2.50 (7s 6d) Cape
29-29425

"This author's second prelude—the first was 'Prelude to a Rope for Myer'—hurries through the mind and talk of Vanda Pinelli, who falling to attain the splendours sinks deeper into the miseries of the courtesan, until she is sentenced to three years' imprisonment for larceny. Leaving her poet on the Riviera and coming to London, she is forced by poverty to the streets. She is befriended by an Oriental musician and a collection of sententious artistic young men, but drifts into thieving and prostitution."—Spec

"The conception of character is original enough to make this novel unusual. There is that in its execution, however, which implies an effort by Mr. Steni to make every part of it unusual, and originality must be the final effect, and not the worry, of an author."
+ — Books p10 F 23 '30 380w

"This novel is in a halfway position between success and failure; we are irritated by the lack of movement and by the preciousness of the method, but nevertheless we realize that L. Steni is acute and wise and really worth listening to. In short, L. Steni has written here a 'highbrow' novel, an intellectual novel, that does not wholly succeed in justifying its own toploftiness." R. B. M.
— + Boston Transcript p4 F 1 '30 420w

"The last chapters of the book are by far the best; the remainder is diffuse, tinted, episodic: we are in the hands of an author unsure of direction, unvigorous in motivation, who takes refuge too many times in mere pretty pictures, soft moods and surface sophistication. The writing has a peculiar foreign sense of distance about it; it is formal rather than personal and lacks both passion and energy."
— N Y Times p8 Ja 12 '30 500w

"What a nasty nature! but a fascinating one, the record of whose post-meridianal decline is extraordinarily absorbing." L. P. Hartley
+ Sat R 148:24 Jl 6 '29 200w

"There are individual good things in this puzzling book. The great thing lacking is order and a convincing arrangement of the events in the story, which is too apt to advance by jerks and jumps, leaving out the most important bits, and emphasizing some trivial conversation of the heroine not only inessential but more often than not boring to read. . . There is, moreover, a good deal of sheer bad phrasing and awkward writing which does not help matters."
— Sat R of Lit 6:762 F 22 '30 250w

"The 'waxing and wanings' of Vanda Pinelli are neither 'profound' nor interesting." V. S. P.
— Spec 143:27 Jl 6 '29 230w

"Mr. Steni manages his effects with an admirable virtuosity, from which praise cannot be withheld, but he does not convince us that Vanda Pinelli is anything but a much made-up actress on an artificially lighted stage."
— + Times [London] Lit Sup p636 Ag 15 '29 470w

STEPHENS, GEORGE WASHINGTON. St. Lawrence waterway project; the story of the St. Lawrence river as an international highway for water-borne commerce. 460p il $7.50 Carrier

386 St Lawrence river. Canals—Canada. Canals—United States. Waterways. Canada —Foreign relations 30-14486

A presentation of the problems involved in the project and arguments for and against the development of the St Lawrence river as a deep waterway to the Atlantic. There are maps and a bibliography.

Booklist 27:13 S '30

"Mr. Stephens's book is not only a thoroughgoing presentation of the matter under consideration, but a notable contribution to the subject of international trade relations generally." B. M. F.
+ Boston Transcript p2 Jl 19 '30 450w

"This reviewer is forced to admit that it is one of the most unsatisfactory books that he has read in a long time. The chapters follow no logical order; why, for example, does the historical chapter on canals follow the description of the present scheme and the negotiations regarding it? The book abounds with irrelevant material, and material whose relevance the author does not make clear. . . The historical treatment is very inadequate in many places, and is all the worse because so many irrelevant facts are included: there is certainly little warrant for the subtitle as scarcely any attempt is made to trace the history of commerce on the waterway." G. W. Brown
— Canadian Hist R 11:359 D '30 750w

Reviewed by E. F. Brown
Current Hist 33:xxiv N '30 150w

"Here is, for the people of the United States, a new viewpoint on the project of a waterway from the Great Lakes to the Atlantic—the Canadian. Americans . . . could hardly find the Canadian conviction and attitude presented more candidly, with a keener sense of justice and with a more sincere desire to be wholly unbiased than in this book."
+ N Y Times p10 Ap 13 '30 650w

Reviewed by John Carter
Outlook 155:471 Jl 23 '30 230w

STEPHENSON, MARJORY. Bacterial metabolism. (Monographs on bio-chemistry) 320p il $7 (18s) Longmans

612.0153 Metabolism. Bacteriology [30-2503]

"The aim of this book has been to choose from the mass of data on the chemical activities of bacteria facts which may help us to gain an insight into the essential chemical processes accompanying the life of the organisms concerned." (Pref.) Contents: Energy relations and fermentation; Respiration; Growth and nutrition; Carbohydrate breakdown; The synthesis of polysaccharides, etc; Protein breakdown; Nitrogen fixation; The autotrophic bacteria; Appendix; Bibliography; Index.

"The present work is one for which biochemists have long been waiting and it will be received with gratitude. The successive chapters, which cover the whole field of bacterial metabolism, all show evidence of diligent search and wise selection." Arthur Harden
+ Nature 126:465 S 27 '30 550w
N Y New Tech Bks 15:4 Ja '30

STEPHENSON, NATHANIEL WRIGHT. Nelson W. Aldrich; a leader in American politics. 496p il $5 Scribner
B or 92 Aldrich, Nelson Wilmarth 30-25709

A biographical study of the late Senator from Rhode Island who for a quarter of a century exercised so much influence in the history of the Republican party, and was considered a most effective representative of the interests of big business. Professor Stephenson has written as a friend and partisan of his subject. He approvingly emphasizes Aldrich's ambition to bring politics and business together, and his "conception of society as an economic hierarchy, which is the heart of Hamilton's vision."

Booklist 27:158 D '30

"Mr. Stephenson has been supremely successful in conveying atmospheric significance without anywhere sacrificing factual matter or critical comment. He has succeeded in recreating one of the most masterful and least known leaders of post Civil War America, in projecting him against his background, and suggesting his significance. To do more would not have become an historian." H. S. Commager
+ Books p19 N 2 '30 900w

"Professor Stephenson's Aldrich is a biography of sure touch and deep understanding. It is a study of a complex period and of a man not always frankly visible to those who would have studied him as a political influence. The power behind is seldom self-revealing. But the biographer here finds in his subject a fascinating study Professor Stephenson is one of the most illuminating of present-day biographers. Among the lives of Lincoln which come and go, his single-volume portrait stands on secure and solid ground. To hint that his Aldrich is as great a book as his Lincoln would be to intimate that the two men were nearly equal. Aldrich cannot be made to stand on that high level. . . Yet he draws Aldrich as he would wish to be drawn, a man who had a secret pride in being aloof from the herd." S. L. Cook
+ Boston Transcript p3 O 11 '30 1750w

"Senator Aldrich is happy in finding a biographer so completely in sympathy with his principles, policies, and rather exotic conception of government. Professor Stephenson has written in a charming style in zealous defense of some rather shocking theories, and if his partisanship is intense his portrait of his subject is none the less vivid on that account. Sometimes in his partisanship, his advocacy, the author is not entirely frank with his readers, and occasionally we find a significant omission and a misrepresentation, due no doubt to inadequate research on that particular phase of his story." C. G. Bowers
+ — Nation 131:447 O 22 '30 1150w

Reviewed by C. W. Thompson
N Y Times p3 O 12 '30 1600w

Reviewed by W. B. Shaw
R of Rs 82:10 N '30 700w
St Louis 28:302 D '30

"The biography . . . is admirable as an achievement in faithful portraiture and significant as a contribution to American political history. It is so good that the critical reader must wish that it had been longer, confident that if it had been longer it would also have been better and that if Prof Stephenson had permitted himself a more extensive treatment of certain phases of political and social development his analysis of them would have been if not in all cases more sympathetic, at least in certain respects more fair."
+ — Springf'd Republican p7e O 5 '30 1450w

"Professor Stephenson has spared no pains to provide a biography worthy of its subject. He prepared himself for the work by engaging the services of a secretary who spent five years in research among half a million pieces of manuscript. As a result of the exploration of so much unpublished material, we have here for the first time an authentic account of several significant incidents in recent American history."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p998 N 27 '30 1050w

Reviewed by Richard Hooker
Yale R n s 20:388 winter '31 150w

STERN, GLADYS BRONWYN (MRS GEOFFREY LISLE HOLDSWORTH). Mosaic. 397p $2.50 Knopf [7s 6d Chapman]
30-26995

"Mosaic" is the interwoven story of the Paris branch of that prolific Jewish family about which Miss Stern's former novels have centered. It traces the colorful, the trivial, the pseudo-significant events in the lives of two sisters, Berthe and Letti Czelovar. The former—beautiful, self-centered, domineering—tries to rule the offspring of the family branch, until her two favorite nephews can bear it no more, and desert her. Then Letti, the self-effacing younger sister, comes to the rescue of the bitter and disappointed elder.

Booklist 27:105 N '30

" 'Mosaic' is charmingly, delicately written—for the most part in a mannered prose admirably adapted to the pleasant conveyance of the notion that this is the chronicle not of the London, nor of the San Remo, but of the Paris branch of the family. And besides the French flavor of it there is, as always in Miss Stern's stories of Jewry, here and there the unmistakable tang of the Jewish—not Yiddish—phrase and word order. It is an abundant sort of writing. Details that most writers, unhappily, dismiss as beside the point, or unsuitable, flow into Miss Stern's generous hopper and emerge to color an ample and spacious scene. . . And it is mosaic also—lovely mosaic—in its painstaking inlaying of small fragments into a rich and significant design." F. H. Britten
+ Books p4 O 12 '30 650w
Boston Transcript p2 D 13 '30 950w

" 'Mosaic' is a rich, full, luscious book, as nearly like 'The Matriarch' as any two books ever could be, no better, I should say, without rereading 'The Matriarch,' yet no worse, except that the novelty of the family is not so keen after one has known so intimately one branch of it as one did in 'The Matriarch.' " Fanny Butcher
+ Chicago Daily Tribune p11 O 11 '30 420w
Nation and Ath 48:sup354 D 6 '30 150w

"Miss Stern's gusto and vigour of style give an almost fierce life to the countless characters, male and female, who flit across the highly coloured map; and even without a full first-hand knowledge of the earlier stages of the saga, the reader will find it hard to avoid being drawn into the full-blooded bustle and blare of the lives of these Czelovers, Michels, Bettelheims, and the rest."
+ New Statesman 36:207 N 22 '30 320w

"Technically, 'Mosaic' is a remarkable achievement. The mere picturesqueness of the Czelovars, their special quality of exoticism, destroys the universality of the saga. It has no appropriate or general application, and must stand rather as portraiture than as analysis of life. But in its kind it has scarcely been surpassed in our generation. 'Mosaic' is not inferior to 'The Matriarch' in technique, in characterization or in pure narrative interest. And it adds tremendously to the effect of the former volume." Margaret Wallace
+ N Y Times p2 O 19 '30 900w

Reviewed by Harry Hansen
N Y World p9 O 11 '30 100w

STERN, G. B.—Continued

"A little of it goes a long way; but the wit and skill of Miss Stern's writing holds the reader's admiration even while his interest in her people and their affairs flags." F. L. R.
+ Outlook 156:266 O 15 '30 220w
Sat R 150:560 N 1 '30 250w

"Miss Stern's is partially the craft of the painter. She has a canny eye for the multifaceted life she surveys; she gets down the color and the precise line, mass and the nicest movements, and the result is an intricate, wonderfully proportioned design of splendor. Then she is a social historian of no mean significance. The very temper of London's time among the cosmopolites of the later nineteenth century, and that of the Continental capitals, is in these pages, and never in terms of mere chronicling, always in those of character and narrative flow. There is an irony as deft as the humor is delicious, and a deep feeling for life's poignancies showing through beneath the brilliant surface." Leonard Ehrlich
+ Sat R of Lit 7:500 Ja 3 '31 550w

"Mosaic is not an addition to knowledge: it is an encyclopaedia." L. A. G. Strong
Spec 145:605 O 25 '30 200w
Times [London] Lit Sup p912 N 6 '30 450w

STERN, SIEGFRIED. Fourteen years of European investments, 1914-1928. 279p $5 Bankers pub.

332.6 Investments. Securities 30-582

"Under the form of an inquiry into the probable fortunes of a hypothetical American who in January, 1914, had invested $25,000 in selected stocks and bonds of thirteen important European countries and an equal total amount in Canadian and United States securities, and who had left the investment untouched irrespective of events until April, 1928, the vice-president of the former Equitable Trust Company of New York has here brought together a vast amount of statistical and other data regarding American foreign trade and the part which American capital plays or may play in the development of foreign countries and in international finance generally."—Nation

"The detailed results of the inquiry will, of course, appeal chiefly to the specialist, but what Mr. Stern has to say about the relation of American foreign loans to foreign debt payments to the United States, the desirability of a reserve in the form of American investments abroad to facilitate the settlement of our own foreign accounts and protect the gold reserve, and the necessity of foreign borrowing to pay debts if merchandise exports cannot be increased has value for the layman as well as for the financier."
Nation 131:208 Ag 20 '30 220w

Reviewed by J. W. Angell
Pol Sci Q 45:150 Mr '30 320w
St Louis 28:131 My '30

STERNBECK, ALFRED. Filibusters and buccaneers; tr. by Elizabeth Hill and Doris Mudie. 272p il $4 McBride [12s 6d Methuen]

910.4 Filibusters. Buccaneers 30-16389

"The romance of piracy and the struggle between Spain and England for religious and maritime control is told from authentic sources."—Publishers' Weekly

"Mr. Sternbeck uses his sources discreetly, salting with original dialogue at judicious intervals."
+ Books p10 Je 1 '30 120w
Boston Transcript p2 My 7 '30 600w

"So far as it goes, it is carefully done and always makes excellent reading. As an introduction to a fascinating subject it could hardly be improved upon, and if it sends English readers back to the original sources that alone will be its justification."
+ New Statesman 34:676 Mr 1 '30 150w
N Y Times p3 Ap 13 '30 280w
St Louis 28:216 S '30

"Herr Sternbeck has used great discrimination both in the manner of his narrative and in the matter. He has given the essential facts, and he has written his book with an enthusiasm and a vivacity that match his subject well so that his book is readable throughout; it is a valuable epitome of and index to a phase of sea history that is not much known about even in the country that is so largely responsible for that history. And the illustrations taken from contemporary prints are a great addition."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p242 Mr 20 '30 850w

STERNE, EMMA GELDERS. Loud sing cuckoo. 203p il $2.50 Duffield

30-25851

England in the days of Chaucer is the background for this story of Alison, the daughter of Robin the Whistler, and Hugh, son of Sir Walter de Maury. Among the historical characters figuring in the book are Richard II, Chaucer, Wat Tyler, and the priest, John Ball.

"It is a beautifully written historical romance that holds the attention and interest from beginning to end."
+ Boston Transcript p2 D 6 '30 380w

Reviewed by C. L. Skinner
N Y Evening Post p7d N 15 '30 250w

"Few historical books for boys and girls are as successful as this one in presenting all sides of life within a certain period as a background for the story. 'Loud Sing Cuckoo' is like a tapestry woven in clear, unfaded colors to show us one scene after another in fourteenth century England. . . The illustrations by Dorothy Owen have exactly the right atmosphere. Text and pictures, the paper, the fine printing, the end-papers, and cover are so in harmony that the result is one of the most attractive books of the year." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p5 N 16 '30 250w

STERRETT, FRANCES ROBERTA. Sophie. 308p $2 Penn

30-21335

" 'Sophie,' with the Scandinavian Northwest for its setting, deals straight from the shoulder with the theme of race antagonism. Sophie is a little Swedish Cinderella with an inferiority complex. She tries hard to be like the Americans she admires and looks up to—at school, in college, on an ocean steamship, during her few brief glimpses into society—but all the time she is obsessed by the conviction that the Americans look down on her. Her first lover, Jimmie Fox, son of an American millionaire, is quite unworthy of such a nice girl, yet Sophie thinks his insincerity is due to her being an immigrant. It comes out all right in the end. Things do not change, but Sophie alters her point of view."—N Y Times

Books p27 N 23 '30 180w

"Lacking subtlety or variety in its writing, 'Sophie,' by the very honesty of its purpose and humanness of its characters, makes a pleasant and readable little story."
+ — Boston Transcript p2 S 17 '30 380w

"Unhappily, the story's treatment is not worthy of its theme. Miss Sterrett's skill is not equal to her courage. . . The book's weakness lies largely in its characterization."
— N Y Times p7 S 21 '30 350w

STETSON, HARLAN TRUE. Man and the
2 stars. 221p il $2.50 Whittlesey house

523 Astronomy 30-32555

Following the brief history of astronomy outlined in his early chapters, the author takes up modern astrophysical theories. In the last three chapters he discusses the following three questions: Is there life on other planets? Has life any cosmic significance? Has science displaced religion? Dr Stetson is director of the Perkins Observatory at Ohio Wesleyan University.

Reviewed by Charles Johnston
N Y Times p5 D 28 '30 280w

"A readable account of the outstanding events in man's discovery of a universe and the effect of those events upon man's reaction to his environment." W. R. Brooks
+ Outlook 156:668 D 24 '30 80w

Reviewed by W. B. Shaw
R of Rs 83:14 Ja '31 130w

"A brief and lucid account of astronomical theory as it stands today with concluding chapters on the philosophical implications of the new physical knowledge."
+ Sat R of Lit 7:478 D 20 '30 30w

STEUART, JOHN ALEXANDER. Immortal lover; a Burns romance. 336p $2.50 Lippincott [7s 6d Harrap]

Burns, Robert—Fiction 29-23487

For descriptive note see Annual for 1929.

Bookm 70:v F '30 120w
Cleveland Open Shelf p14 Ja '30

"His book is an extremely readable account of the life of a very human, yet divinely inspired, creature, whose faults, if great, were at least commensurate with his genius."
New Statesman 34:746 Mr 15 '30 750w

"All who like a biography in novel form will be delighted with Mr. Steuart's achievement for it is remarkably well done."
+ Spec 144:792 My 10 '30 130w
Times [London] Lit Sup p334 Ap 17 '30 400w

STEVENS, LOUIS. Here comes Pancho Villa; the anecdotal history of a genial killer. 309p $2.50 Stokes

B or 92 Villa, Francisco 30-27936

The tales, romantic legends and anecdotes that grew up around Villa during his spectacular career form the material for this sketch of the Mexican leader's life. The author includes accounts of most of Villa's famous (or infamous) killings, his battles, and his love affairs.

"Dashingly written, spiced with local and journalistic anecdotes, is this portrait of Villa and the men who surrounded him. The social and political significance of their actions are briefly hinted at here; and in spite of some brilliant and thoughtful pieces of writing, one leaves the book with the superficial, popular idea of Mexico. The movie idea. Life is cheap and no woman's son is a man until he has accomplished his first killing." Jenny Ballou
— + Books p4 O 26 '30 600w
Boston Transcript p1 D 13 '30 580w

"The picture of Villa's character is accurately drawn and vividly presented. A more thorough study would at least try to solve the problem as to whether the Columbus raid actually was promoted by American owners of valuable properties in Mexico."
+ — Christian Century 47:1454 N 26 '30 350w

"So poorly arranged that it is impossible to get any clear idea of Villa's actual place in the history of Mexico. . . Nowhere does Mr. Stevens manage to make Villa come alive as successfully as Martin Luis Guzmán has recently done in 'The Eagle and the Serpent,' or as John Reed did a number of years ago in 'Insurgent Mexico.' The main value of the present book is that it probably contains more of the stories about Villa—authentic and hearsay—than ever appeared before. . . Mr. Stevens's book must also be credited with covering the full period of his life, from beginning to end."
— + N Y Times p30 N 16 '30 500w
St Louis 28:302 D '30

STEVENSON, FREDERICK JAMES. Traveller of the sixties; sel., arr. and ed. with a memoir by Douglas Timins. 308p $3.50 Smith, R.R. [12s 6d Constable]

918 South America—Description and travel [30-2919]

Selections from the travel diary of an English engineer born in London in 1835, who travelled extensively in Brazil, Peru, Argentina, Patagonia, Chile and Bolivia, during 1867 to 1869.

"His records are direct and emphatic. When he describes, he enlarges the experience of his reader, as in that famous passage in which he tells of the earthquake and tidal wave in 1868. He refuses to indulge in postures as stoutly as did John Burroughs, or as Cunninghame Graham, or as Wilfred Blunt. You see a man never at the mercy of moods, always observant, always proud because of his self-respect, you see him earnest without bawling or lambasting. But, alas! his book is not one to appeal to the ordinary reader, so his patient toil and unwearied industry may not earn their due reward." C. J. Finger
+ Books p17 Je 8 '30 250w
N Y Evening Post p11m My 10 '30 50w
N Y Times p3 Je 15 '30 350w

STEWART, ALFRED WALTER (J. J. CONNINGTON, pseud.). Eye in the museum. 285p $2 Little [7s 6d Gollancz] 30-1259

The cause of Mrs Fenton's death became rather important when the superintendent discovered, in his post-mortem investigations, that several people were likely to profit by it: her husband, who wanted a divorce; her niece, whose money was in her control; and Dr Hyndford, who held an insurance policy to cover her I. O. U. gambling debts. But it was an old museum keeper's innocent evidence, gathered from his position in the museum tower on the night of the death of Mrs Fenton, that gave the final necessary clue.

Bookm 71:xxx Mr '30 70w

"A skillful enigma with welcome touches of humor." Will Cuppy
+ Books p18 Ja 26 '30 150w

"It is a carefully written but not a gripping story. With the homicide rate in English thrillers mounting month by month 100 per cent over the corresponding months of last year, what can one expect?" W. H. M.
+ — Boston Transcript p1 Ja 11 '30 550w

" 'The Eye in the Museum' is an ingenious story, but it is not so good as some others that have come from the pen of J. J. Connington."
+ — N Y Times p24 Ja 26 '30 150w

"The plot is elaborately and skilfully developed, while character psychology, a factor commonly slighted in detective fiction, forms the basis of the consistently sustained action." E. C. Beckwith
+ N Y World p11m Ja 12 '30 100w

Reviewed by W. R. Brooks
Outlook 154:150 Ja 22 '30 80w

"Great are the possibilities of the camera obscura, and Mr. Connington makes admirable use of them, withholding his information until the last possible moment, yet giving the reader enough information to enable him to solve the mystery just a little before the revelation. A little before his dénouement, [the author] suddenly jumps from the steady didactic to a more hair-raising style, and gives us a gallant and exciting chase in the style of an older day. It supplies the needed corrective to the rather ponderous reasoning of the body of the book."
+ Spec 143:986 D 28 '29 200w

STEWART, ALFRED WALTER (J. J. CONNINGTON, pseud.). Two ticket puzzle. 279p $2 Little [7s 6d Gollancz] 30-20810

"Superintendent Ross determines who shot Oswald F. Preston with bullets of two calibers

STEWART, A. W.—Continued
in a first-class carriage between Horston and Hammersleight and what connection that had with the shooting of Mr. Chepstow's valuable ram."—N Y Evening Post

---

Bookm 72:xxiv S '30 80w

"Here's quite an event, as events go in this business—a detective tale for the intelligent grown-up, by an author who can write. . . The merit of the thing consists not in the strangeness of events, but in the way they're done to a turn." Will Cuppy
+ Books p13 Ag 17 '30 250w

"An excellent straight detective story, empty of love interest or other matters extraneous to the plot." Dashiell Hammett
+ N Y Evening Post p5s Ag 23 '30 80w

"The book is excellently written, in Mr. Connington's best manner, but it lacks flavor and suspense." Bruce Rae
— + N Y Times p18 Ag 24 '30 100w

"Very satisfactory." W. R. Brooks
+ Outlook 155:678 Ag 27 '30 120w

"Mr. Connington's 'puzzle' will baffle the keenest readers, although all the clues are laid on the table. There have been few detective stories that read more like a page from real life than this one." W. C. Weber
+ Sat R of Lit 7:478 D 20 '30 120w

"Superintendent Ross is to be congratulated on his discrimination between suspicions, and Mr. Connington on the competence with which the story is told."
+ Spec 149:290 Ag 30 '30 120w

"Mr. Connington may be trusted to leave no loose ends or unstopped holes."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p517 Je 19 '30 150w

STEWART, DONALD. Sanatorium. 306p $2.50 Harper [7s 6d Chatto]
30-33264

Clive, a young man of twenty-three, enters a tuberculosis sanatorium for a course of treatment. The story follows, in clinical fashion, the progress of his disease and takes up the psychological relationships of the patients, nurses and doctors. The sanatorium experience is presented with uncompromising realism, and Clive and his friends there are studied in direct relationship to their temporary environment.

"A singularly fine performance which stands almost alone in contemporary literature. For Sanatorium is one of the few books which deal with illness, not as a subject on which sentimental vulgarity may ease itself, but more legitimately as a vital determinant in the lives of a group of people." Guy Holt
+ Bookm 72:206 O '30 180w

"Mr. Stewart has no theories to spin, no ax to grind, no special plea to make. He is interested solely in his picture and in his study. The book is depressing and terrible; for it is nowhere touched up with the sentimentality that might enable the tenderminded to find consolation in tears; nor does it, like the great novels of the despised and rejected of men, afford the catharsis of true creative literature." F. T. Marsh
Books p4 Ag 17 '30 650w
Boston Transcript p2 N 22 '30 420w

"'Sanatorium' is an unsatisfying book with a pathological rather than a psychological interest. The story is well-written and without mawkishness, honest and quite remarkable for the direct dramatic quality of the dialogue." K. C. Tomlinson
— + Nation and Ath 47:19 Ap 5 '30 150w

"I know of no war-book so terrible and painful as this chronicle of a youth struggling with death; nevertheless such a book is, regardless of our pain and shrinking, and must be. The lack of courage is too obviously our own: it cannot, in this case, be the writer's, for his is certainly unquestionable."
New Statesman 34:776 Mr 22 '30 570w

"We are glad to report that, though we do not as a rule find powerful novels very interesting, this one is both. It is a story which makes a remarkably strong appeal to the emotions. At the same time it is well written. Its form is original, its characters real, it has a certain intellectual interest and offers some fresh experience." Clinton Simpson
+ N Y Evening Post p5s Ag 30 '30 650w

"'Sanatorium' gives reality to a specialized field of human experience which has seldom before been articulate. Its tone is not restrained; it is simply natural."
N Y Times p6 Ag 24 '30 600w

"Tuberculosis has been the subject of other books, some of them—like Schnitzler's 'Sterben' —by writers of great power. But no one, so far as we know, has told the whole story in all its bitternesses and renunciations with such tragic simplicity as the author of 'Sanatorium.' Much of the tragic effectiveness of this book is due to its simplicity, to the utter absence of any effort for fineness of style or shock effects. There is nothing theatrical, heroic, or technically literary. It deals with suffering, disappointment, loneliness, tragedy, and death with the naturalness of actual experience, and there is nothing to stir the reader except his own sensitiveness and understanding." Hans Zinsser, M.D.
+ Sat R of Lit 7:101 S 6 '30 1200w

"Mr. Stewart's book is a document without a plot, beginning and ending with a haemorrhage. To enjoy the book one must have so hardened a literary taste that one is impervious to revulsion from the coldly exposed horrors of disease. . . It is a document like a war book, unrelated to the rest of normal life." V. S. Pritchett
Spec 144:713 Ap 26 '30 200w

"No humour quickens the grim narrative; no religious comfort or sustaining philosophy softens the despair of its ending. Yet, despite these rejections and the defect of formlessness, the book has the strength that attends a representation of truth."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p416 My 15 '30 250w

STEWART, FRANK MANN. National civil service reform league; history, activities, and problems. 304p $2.75 Univ. of Tex.
351.6 National civil service reform league
29-17742

"This volume tells the story of the long struggle between spoils and merit in the civil service of the United States. It traces the origin of the spoils system in the states, especially in New York and Pennsylvania, shows how the system was transferred to the national arena under Jackson, and how the practice became fixed and its machinery perfected especially in the period when a new type of party leader dominated Congress: Blaine, Conkling, Cameron, and Platt. By 1870 the system reigned 'unchecked and unashamed.' The author describes with accuracy and in detail the great change brought about largely through the zeal and influence of the National Civil Service League, founded by George William Curtis, Carl Schurz, Charles J. Bonaparte, William Dudley Foulke, Lucius B. Swift, and a few others. Brief biographical sketches of some of these early leaders are given."—Am Hist R

"Professor Stewart has chosen a subject of first-rate importance in American history. The student and the lay reader, too, will find interest and satisfaction in his study, while the surviving veterans of the League and its present active members will greet the volume with especial pleasure and approval. The volume is provided with a full bibliography and a useful index." J. A. Woodburn
+ Am Hist R 35:384 Ja '30 600w

"Dr. Stewart has written the history of this oldest of voluntary reform bodies with fairness and discrimination, and has presented in considerable detail, not only the activities and technique of the organization, but the sundry issues (and their discussion) that have arisen from time to time. . . Dr. Stewart's book affords the most satisfactory discussion of this ancient and honorable organization and constitutes a very substantial contribution to the literature on the subject." C. R. Woodruff

+ Am Pol Sci R 23:1046 N '29 500w

"Professor Stewart's volume is a worthy achievement of this political point of view—at once a fine promise of further work from him and of increasing prosperity for the point of view itself." T. V. Smith

Int J Ethics 40:137 O '29 1950w

STEWART, HERBERT LESLIE. Century of Anglo-Catholicism. 404p $4.75 Oxford [10s 6d Dent]

283 Church of England—Anglo-Catholic movement 29-20052

A Scotch Presbyterian, professor of philosophy in Dalhousie university, Nova Scotia, has made this study of the Anglo-Catholic movement in the Church of England from its first manifestation in Tracts for the Times nearly a century ago. He shows the strength of the movement and explains the place in the English church of these worshippers who are not to be classed as either Protestant or Catholic.

"A distinguished example of modern critical history at once scholarly and delightful, gravely felt and witty." G. R. Elliott

+ Bookm 71:465 Jl '30 1100w

"This is one of the ablest and best written studies of a religious movement that our time has produced. For a reader who has any interest at all in the subject matter it is a fascinating performance. Sinewy and alert in style, extraordinarily rich in shrewd allusion, clever reference and sparkling quotation, and solidly based upon extensive knowledge, its every chapter shows the masterworkman's hand. And this excellence is not only rare; it is surprising. For Dr. Stewart is not an Anglo-Catholic; he is a Presbyterian. Yet most Anglo-Catholics would probably admit that his work is one of the best historical accounts of their party that exists." W. L. Sullivan

+ Books p4 My 18 '30 550w

"His book is an important contribution to the understanding of one of the most interesting religious and political situations of our day." Ralston Hayden

+ Current Hist 32:1044 S '30 700w

Reviewed by P. V. Norwood

J Religion 10:610 O '30 900w

"What appears to be the author's strongest motive for tolerating Anglo-Catholics is stated near the close of the book, namely, that the national Church of England should not drive out Anglo-Catholics to form a schism as 'the Methodists were driven to form a sect.' While this section of the book is the least valuable part of the volume it does reveal the presuppositions of the author and it forms the background against which the exceedingly helpful historical account of Anglo-Catholicism, which is given by the author, must be read. That part of the book renders it invaluable as a text book of Church history and as a handbook for those seeking to know more of the history of Anglo-Catholicism from its beginning to the present." H. N. R.

+ — Living Church 83:878 O 25 '30 600w

STEWART, MRS LILLIAN (KIMBALL). Pioneer of old Superior. 322p $2.25 Christopher

B or 92 Kimball, Charles Dean. Frontier and pioneer life—Wisconsin. Superior, Wisconsin 30-21281

The pioneer was the author's father, Charles Dean Kimball, who in 1853 migrated from New England to Superior, Wisconsin, then a frontier town. Mrs Stewart tells much of the pioneer life on the far western shore of Lake Superior.

Boston Transcript p2 O 29 '30 200w

"She has skillfully woven together the threads of the man's and the town's stories."

+ N Y Times p24 S 7 '30 450w

St Louis 28:302 D '30

STIDGER, WILLIAM LE ROY, ed. If I had only one sermon to preach on immortality; with an introd. 340p $2.50 Harper [7s 6d Allen, G.]

237.2 Immortality. Sermons 29-24202

"An interesting collection of sermons on immortality representing a considerable variety of schools of thought. The leading American preachers—Modernist and Fundamentalist—are well represented, a layman, a woman—Maude Royden—a rabbi, and a Roman Catholic cardinal are included, and several of the leading British preachers."—Churchman

Booklist 26:188 F '30

"I find nothing new in this book. What new thing is there to say on the subject? But all that has been said in the past is presented here in admirable form. What especially commends the book to me is the inclusive spirit of its editor and the consequent richness and variety of its material." J. H. Holmes

+ Books p25 Ja 26 '30 100w

"As a symposium this collection of sermons is impressive and illuminating, as a guide to faith it is helpful and suggestive, as literature it is worthy of its theme." T. C. R.

+ Boston Transcript p3 Ja 11 '30 480w

"There is just the variety of points of view and of merit that one should expect from the names of the preachers." W. L. C.

Churchman 140:20 N 23 '29 70w

Cleveland Open Shelf p20 F '30

"With an almost incredible diversity of approach and treatment these writers affirm their faith and seek to add confirmation to the faith of others. Although these contributions are in reply to the implied question of the title of the book one feels that few of the replies are representative of the best the writers could do, or really possess as the basis of their conviction. The limits of such a form of presentation necessarily impose, at least counsel restraint, a restraint that is no aid to genius or the richest expression of one's convictions." S. B. Meeser

+ — Crozer Q 7:123 Ja '30 270w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:54 Je '30

STIDGER, WILLIAM LE ROY, ed. The pew preaches. 251p $2.50 Cokesbury press

204 Church. Religion 30-7911

Views of certain laymen on religion and the church. Those contributing essays or interviews on the subject are Owen D. Young, Henry Ford, Edwin Markham, Roger Babson, Edgar T. Welch, William E. Sweet, Curtis D. Wilbur, R. A. Doan, Thomas Masson, Robert A. Long, William Allen White, James Cash Penney, Charles W. Wood, James Schermerhorn.

"It would be unjust to laugh at this book, for, whatever else is not in these sermons preached by laymen from the pew, there is at least 'a note of sincerity,' to quote the enthusiastic editor, and sincerity in all cases demands respect. . . The less said about the majority of these effusions the better. With a few exceptions they are empty echoings of a faith which has long since died and left nothing but words and phrases behind. But the exceptions are worth noting. Thus, Owen Young presents a sound, almost profound, discussion of the ethical aspects of modern business. Tom Masson has a certain passionate mysticism which is his own. William Allen White reveals again that notable sentiment for the sane and wholesome ways of life which has long since made him beloved of all good men." J. H. Holmes

— + Books p10 My 11 '30 350w

STIDGER, W. Le R., ed.—Continued

"There is bound to be a great deal of sincerity and pointed wisdom in the words of such a company, and so there is; also a certain percentage of complacency and stereotyped exhortation. The pulpit has no monopoly on platitude, but the pew has the advantage of not having to preach every Sunday. With only one sermon to preach, these laymen can give their best, and in most cases it is well worth hearing."

+ — Christian Century 47:786 Je 18 '30 200w

St Louis 28:202 S '30

"As a collection of sermons, this volume is mediocre. Mr. Stidger's rather lavish use of superlatives in his introductions does not improve it. But as a revelation of the religious opinions of modern business, as a commentary upon the reaction of the pew to the church, this volume is valuable and interesting." C. S. Brown

+ — Survey 64:441 Ag 15 '30 280w

STILES, PAULINE. Mote and the beam; a romance of two egotists. 313p $1 Doubleday, Doran

30-17706

John Sias, violinist, and Penelope Wren, artist, marry. Because they are both highly ambitious, and artistic in temperament trouble follows. One of their quarrels results in an accident to John's hand, and he can play no more. Tragedy threatens, until Penelope gets her husband a place as director of a symphony orchestra. The birth of their child draws the two together again.

Books p15 Ag 31 '30 120w

"Miss Stiles's humor has minimized the sentimentality that inheres in her theme. Her characters, unfortunately, are too lovingly drawn."

+ — N Y Times p24 S 14 '30 280w

STILL, JOHN. Jungle tide. 245p $3 Houghton [7s 6d Blackwood]

915.48 Ceylon—Description and travel

[30-28383]

Having lived in Ceylon for many years, Mr Still writes convincingly of the jungle life there: of cobras and leopards, strange plants, and men. An archaeologist as well as a naturalist, he describes with particular interest ancient Sinhalese cities buried in the heart of the forests. Mr Still's flexible and poetic diction is reminiscent of W. H. Hudson.

"The impression created by the reading of these memoirs is that the material was gathered and kept until it grew a little stale, for it has little of the spontaneity of his former work. 'The Jungle Tide' contains a mass of interesting material. John Still can write admirably and entertainingly. This time he has written admirably but rather stolidly. He has packed his good material into long, long paragraphs which seem to be struggling for release from a more facile pen. Most of the time it is a laborious performance, and even the poems which precede each chapter have not the clarion call of 'Poems in Captivity.'" Rosalind Ivan

— + N Y Times p30 O 19 '30 650w

"We wish to announce as our discovery for the year, John Still's The Jungle Tide. We suppose it's 'nature stuff,' but it's so much more than one of those hush-of-the-forest, dawn-from-the-hilltop books—pleasant as those sometimes are—that there's no comparison. Nor is it the adventures of a traveling photographer." W. R. Brooks

+ Outlook 156:30 S 3 '30 200w

"At long intervals—not once in every publishing season, but perhaps twice in every three years—there appears among the rather untidy crowd of vociferous, exciting, travel books, one quiet and stately figure, just one in which the cheerful mood of after-dinner reminiscence is subordinated to literary form, mere narrative becomes eloquence, and a few descriptive passages, well enough in their way, are replaced by a whole living and unforgettable picture, in which every page and every word are made to tell. Such a book is Mr. Still's."

+ Sat R 149:270 Mr 1 '30 700w

"A book such as few men could write. Mr. Still is obviously something of a specialist in more than one subject, yet there is no specialist bias about his writing. The jungles of Ceylon and their inhabitants are his subject, and he wanders through and among them with an eye which transmutes everything he sees into its simplest terms, yet loses nothing of its subtlety."

+ Spec 144:391 Mr 8 '30 150w

"Both for the expert knowledge which it contains and the care and workmanship put into it, it is a book to be read and returned to. But it is unfortunate that a volume so full of miscellaneous information should be published without an index."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p205 Mr 13 '30 500w

STOCKLEY, CYNTHIA (MRS H. E. PELHAM BROWNE). Tagati. 338p $2 Putnam [7s 6d Constable]

30-8794

A farm in Rhodesia, South Africa, is the setting for this story of romance and intrigue. Felicia Lissell, on a visit to the English colony there, finds that Dick Cardoss's beautiful wife, Stella, is unfaithful to him. She is interested in both Paget Vyner and Patrick Fenn, partners in the rich Tagati mining venture; but when Fenn falls in love with Felicia, Stella's rage and jealousy lead her to desperate measures. The romantic drama turns to tragedy before a more serene ending is assured.

Books p22 S 28 '30 80w

N Y Evening Post p11m Ap 12 '30 50w

"For the first 120 pages the book is leisurely and atmospheric, but, after setting and characters are well established, the drama, which well-placed finger-posts have foretold all along, crackles, glows, and finally bursts forth with murder, love and suicide, revealing a very good yarn."

+ N Y Times p22 Ap 6 '30 230w

Times [London] Lit Sup p460 My 29 '30 250w

STODDARD, MRS ANNE. Young heroes of the Bible; with an introd. by S. Parkes Cadman. 219p il $2.50 Century

221.95 Bible. Whole—Stories 30-9980

A retelling, for boys and girls, of the stories of Isaac and Rebekah, Joseph, Moses, and David, with a concluding brief history of the Jews.

"It will be helpful to teachers and story-tellers, because it supplies material descriptive of biblical times and countries. This material seems to have been carefully and accurately selected, and the result is a rather vivid picture of life in the days of the Hebrew patriarchs. The line drawings are pleasing and in keeping with the text."

+ N Y Times p20 Ap 27 '30 150w

Outlook 155:346 Jl 2 '30 30w

"The narrative runs smoothly; it holds interest and supplies those backgrounds and settings which undoubtedly children like to have added to the sparsely worded accounts in the Bible." Lucy Bartlett

+ Sat R of Lit 7:111 S 6 '30 200w

STOKES, FRANCIS WILLIAM (FRANCIS EVERTON, pseud.). Murder through the window (Eng title: Murder at Plenders). 304p $2 Morrow [7s 6d Collins]

30-19275

Marion Corrie, found murdered in the courtyard beneath her brother's room; Bernard Corrie, an eccentric scientist with strange fits of insanity; and George Annersley, secretly connected with Scotland Yard, in love with Corrie's charming daughter Elizabeth, are the main actors in this story concerning stolen papers for mysterious inventions.

Bookm 71:xxi Ag '30 80w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p12 Jl 27 '30 130w

Boston Transcript p2 Ag 30 '30 380w

" 'Murder Through the Window' has one finely done mad character, but little else. Its murder does not happen until somewhere near the middle of the book, and that is a long while to wait. The motives, the highly stealable invention, the rest of the trimmings are all pretty inane."

— + N Y Evening Post p5s Ag 2 '30 50w

N Y World p5m Ag 10 '30 150w

"One of those leisurely, long-drawn-out tales of which the English seem to be so fond. The murder does not take place until after one hundred pages have been read. There are a few moments of excitement but, unfortunately, these do not last very long." R. I. Center

— Sat R of Lit 7:63 Ag 16 '30 50w

Times [London] Lit Sup p397 My 8 '30 130w

STOLL, ELMER EDGAR. Poets and playwrights: Shakespeare, Jonson, Spenser, Milton. 304p $3 Univ. of Minn.

820.4 Literature—Addresses, essays, lectures. English drama—History and criticism. Shakespeare, William—Criticism and interpretation 30-8126

"Collects some essays (which had already appeared in print) on Cleopatra, Henry V, 'Certain Fallacies and Irrelevancies in the Literary Scholarship of the Day', and other subjects. About three-fifths of the volume is new, including 'Shakespeare and the Moderns' of over eighty pages, and papers on Spenser and Milton. The longest piece is a kind of modern Essay of Dramatic Poesy, in which Mr. Stoll, using Corneille, Racine, and Ibsen as his chief touchstones, gathers into one broad survey his ripe conclusions on Elizabethan dramatic art in general and Shakespeare's in particular." —Bookm

"A book of disinterested literary criticism which sends one back to some great poets with quickened insight and sympathy."

+ Bookm 71:230 Ap '30 500w

"There is a great deal of good criticism and good sense in this book. As a writer, Mr. Stoll always is clear but too infrequently compact. At times his best papers become dull from saying too much." W. P. Eaton

+ — Books p16 Ap 27 '30 200w

Reviewed by Mark Segal
Nation and Ath 47:325 Je 7 '30 30w

"Professor Stoll is able amply to justify his entrance upon often-trodden territory. He writes not only with critical insight and understanding but with a faculty for provocative inquiry that lends distinctiveness to his work." S. A. Coblentz

+ N Y Times p12 Ag 31 '30 600w

St Louis 28:142 My '30

STONE, MRS GRACE (ZARING). Bitter tea of General Yen. 322p il $2 Bobbs [7s 6d Cobden-Sanderson]

30-24845

"A cultivated New England girl who has come to Shanghai to marry a medical missionary suddenly finds herself, through stress of civil war and circumstance, an uninvited guest in the yamen of General Yen, provincial Governor and leader of the Republican forces against the Communists. For three days she finds herself in intimate contact with a superior and civilized mind; she attempts, at the most critical phase of his career, to interfere with the financial administration of the province, to save his concubine from the inevitable penalty for treacherous conduct and to save his soul by making of him a sentimentalist. She achieves nothing but the enlightenment of her own spirit; leaving Yen in the hands of the Communists, who will certainly shoot him, she escapes back to Shanghai, less sure of herself, less sure of the efficacy of the Christian ethic as a cure-all for mankind."—New Repub

Booklist 27:163 D '30

"A book too important to be neglected yet irritatingly inadequate is this story of the internal struggle in China, as seen by a very objectively-minded Occidental; important because it touches upon vital points in the understanding of a people; irritating because its observer is a colorless person, seeing all things, hearing all things, experiencing all things colorlessly." M. M. Waterman

— + Bookm 72:308 N '30 300w

"It is a nice problem to find adjectives for a new talent so restrained and refined as Mrs. Stone reveals in this swift glimpse of the violent clash of Oriental and Occidental ideas in China. Undiscriminating praise would be an injustice, ignoring the special quality of the book, for the keynote is an exquisite selectiveness. Out of an enormous confusion of action, an incalculable mass of material, she has chosen certain episodes which are subtly significant, typical, charged with implications that continue to engage the imagination after the book is closed. The utmost value is extracted from a personal experience, although Mrs. Stone avoids the error of drawing summary conclusions from a particular instance." Isabel Paterson

+ Books p7 S 28 '30 1300w

"A remarkable picture of white people in China, and wherever Miss Stone deals with them she is extraordinarily effective. The central situation, however, the encounter of an intelligent American girl with General Yen, model Tupan of a province, reveals little more than a sincere and humble desire to understand the nature of the Chinese mind and the civilization it has erected. The cultured, brilliant, cynical General Yen is neither the essence of Chinese manhood nor is his situation the essence of current Chinese politics. So far as it will lead to respect for Chinese personality and methods, which are so fatally easy for even sympathetic Westerners to misunderstand, this somewhat romanticized situation will be of service. Its greatest achievement, however, both as fiction and as revelation, is its studies of the whites." Isidor Schneider

+ — Nation 132:21 Ja 7 '31 220w

Nation and Ath 48:386 D 13 '30 100w

"Mrs. Stone's direct, unpretentious method of writing is admirably adapted to the hard lucidity and compactness of her thought. She knows contemporary China, she knows Americans in China and has a knack for drawing pen pictures of them with an economy and subtlety of means. . . It is a good novel, and worth the time spent in reading."

+ New Repub 64:304 O 29 '30 320w

New Statesman 36:240 N 29 '30 150w

N Y Times p16 O 19 '30 650w

"Conscious of those hidden forces that often influence people more than the spoken word, the author plays on her material as an artist does on the violin. It is more than likely that there never was a general with the mind of Yen. Equally there may never have been a self-possessed, poised woman from the West who set her ethics against his. All that is beside the point. Both characters come to life in this book." Harry Hansen

+ N Y World p13 O 16 '30 380w

"The story is told with great delicacy and restraint—a series of pictures, episodes and conversations, presented with economy and grace, and giving you more clearly than would many heavy tomes on China, the difference between the Oriental and the Occidental points of view." W. R. Brooks

+ Outlook 156:312 O 22 '30 180w

STONE, GRACE—Continued

"It is the old trite and superficial tale of an impossible China, albeit camouflaged with a few realities." A. T. Hobart

— + Sat R of Lit 7:418 D 6 '30 230w

Times [London] Lit Sup p1062 D 11 '30 350w

STONE, HERBERT LAWRENCE. America's cup races. new rev ed 356p il $3.50 (15s) Macmillan

797.14 Yacht racing 30-11359

A new and revised edition of Mr Stone's book on yacht racing. The author gives an account of previous contests for the America's cup, including the successive attempts of Sir Thomas Lipton to carry the prize back to England.

"As editor of Yachting, his complete and detailed account of all the races for the America's Cup since the first one in 1851, carries the note of authority, as does also his preliminary chapter on the history of American yachting and the events that led to the beginning of these famous races. New chapters in this edition recount the full story of the Resolute-Shamrock IV match of 1920 and tell what is being done in preparation for next Summer's race."

+ N Y Times p27 My 11 '30 130w

St Louis 28:215 S '30

"It is a light sketch more than a deeply analytical account of the evolution of yachting, but no pretense is made at anything else. Its frank purpose is admirably accomplished, for it provides a pleasant evening's reading and leaves one pleased with the feeling that understanding has been acquired as well as entertainment provided. . . As a guide for an intelligent following of the coming races this little book is to be recommended."

Springf'd Republican p12 Jl 2 '30 450w

STONEY, SAMUEL GAILLARD, and SHELBY, MRS GERTRUDE (SINGLETON) MATHEWS. Black Genesis; a chronicle. 192p il $3.50 (15s) Macmillan

398 Folklore—Negroes. Folklore—South Carolina. Animals—Legends and Stories 30-11360

Folk tales told in Gullah dialect—a kind of Negro-English jargon—of the Carolina low country. As in Roark Bradford's stories, the subject matter of these tales is the Bible, preferably the book of Genesis with its account of creation. That the Negro imagination furnishes some ideas of its own on this subject is most evident in such matters as how the animals got their mouths, how Adam and Eve lost their tails, and how come de hump on Br' Frog's back.

"The tales have great charm, and, in spite of the literary presentation, are well worth reading, and are well and amusingly illustrated by Mrs. Bruere. Some of the spirit of their feeling has been preserved, although the headings of the chapters are forced." M. J. Herskovits

+ — Ann Am Acad 150:313 Jl '30 480w

Booklist 27:13 S '30

"These are good stories; stories to be read aloud. One need not be put off by the fact that their dialect is strange, for so well set down in the rhythm of spoken words are they that pronunciation is easily mastered." Ernestine Evans

+ Books p7 My 4 '30 950w

"Anyone who reads for amusement will follow this chronicle from the beginning and be delighted throughout. The serious-minded student of North American languages will begin the book with the Introduction called 'The Family Tree of Gullah Folk Speech and Folk Tales.' He will be delighted and instructed, and will turn to the chronicle with some understanding of the people who so garbled and embroidered the Book of Genesis." B. B.

+ Boston Transcript p3 Jl 2 '30 480w

Cleveland Open Shelf p139 N '30

"The Negroes of the Stoney-Shelby collaboration differ rather widely, one gathers, from those of Mr. Bradford's books. The latter are the blacks of the inland South; these of 'Black Genesis' are the coast Negroes of South Carolina. Whereas Mr. Bradford's Negroes incline toward piety, and the emphasis is on interpretation and adaptation of biblical narrative, those of Mr. Stoney's and Mrs. Shelby's pages revert more directly to African antecedents and show a stronger inclination toward superstition. In other words, they are more original and aboriginal than Bradford's blacks, who appear to have been more strongly influenced by white civilization." Percy Hutchison

N Y Times p2 Ap 27 '29 1200w

"Black Genesis should be reviewed by some one familiar with Negro dialects, for the only real talking point about it is whether it is accurate Gullah folklore and language or not. To this uninformed reviewer, it is charming and very Negro."

Outlook 254:667 Ap 23 '30 120w

St Louis 28:209 S '30

"Both of the authors know their subject thoroughly and most of the items recorded have the ring of authenticity even though there is a certain amount of the purely imaginative woven in. In spite of [some] objections the book is thoroughly alive with vigorous humor and quaint, penetrating observations and should serve to draw attention more definitely to these fascinating Low Country people. The gamey, almost unintelligible Gullah dialect, as recorded by the late A. E. Gonzales, is modified into a type less trying to the average reader but still retaining most of its distinctive flavor. In fact 'Black Genesis' derives no small part of its charm from the effective rendition of this gradually disappearing dialect." N. N. Puckett

+ — Sat R of Lit 7:87 Ag 30 '30 700w

"This collection of tales has freshness and rarity, wit and humor."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Je 8 '30 1100w

"This is poetry in the raw; the ore, so to say, of which folk-song and folk-tale are compounded. The stories might have been— and probably were—told on Sunday mornings by colored preachers in the Carolina Low Country. They are as naive, as imaginative, and as appealing, as childhood. They remind one of Uncle Remus; but Uncle wasn't as reverent as the preacher who told these tales. The illustrations by Martha Bensley Bruère are black and white music too." C. S. Brown

+ Survey 64:483 S 1 '30 250w

"Taken as a serious study or as a lucky-dip of myth and story, this is a volume to give pleasure. Any child would enjoy the story of Cain and Abel as related in negro dialect, or the story of Adam and Eve, or the purely invented fables of rabbits and wild creatures, but they will probably have to be read aloud. Dialect reading tires even the experienced eye."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p979 N 20 '30 100w

STORM, LESLEY, pseud. See Clark, M. M.

STORY, MARGARET (MCELROY-FROST) (MRS CHESTER B. STORY). Individuality and clothes; the blue book of personal attire. 454p il $3.50 (15s 6d) Funk

646 Clothing and dress 30-12012

How to express good taste and individuality in clothes thru their style-quality is the thesis of this book on personal attire. The author discusses the psychology of clothes, dress suitable to each of the "seven ages" of woman, and to the seven ages of man, and the art of milady's toilette. Under the fundamental principles of the technique of dress, she indicates colors to choose and avoid, what one should know of design and fabric, and what to choose in laces and furs. The etiquette of dress and clothes economy are discussed in further chapters.

Booklist 27:37 S '30

"Much excellent advice is included, especially for current styles and city women whose clothing budgets, while not unlimited, run higher than the average."

+ J Home Econ 22:596 Jl '30 80w
N Y Times p27 My 18 '30 180w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:69 O '30
St Louis 28:212 S '30
Springf'd Republican p7e S 14 '30 280w

STOUT, REX. Seed on the wind. 310p $2 Vanguard press
30-22905

"Lora Winter is an honest woman, given neither to coquetry nor promiscuity, and one who is neither hard nor sentimental. Up to the point where the novel ends she has had five lovers and as many children—one by each. She is a good mother but hardly a doting one. Lora takes life as it comes. She has long since become entirely freed from the conventional moral code in which she was brought up. . . Mr. Stout starts the story with Lora's last affair and works backward to the true dramatic crisis—her first."—Nation

"The problem must have been a difficult one and Mr. Stout has worked it out with skill and distinction. He also tells a good story. Better still, he approaches the study of the woman and her lovers and children with intelligence and without the slightest apparent striving for either sensationalism or smartness. Nevertheless the volume is unimportant. . . Mr. Stout remains singularly placid and unpenetrating. He is content to tell his story along the outlines of his logically prearranged pattern, ignoring the insoluble complexities, even the indication of them. He remains on the surface of the extraordinary situation which he has conceived while moving his pieces about in his looking-glass-world chess game." F. T. Marsh

— + Bookm 72:305 N '30 250w

"Mr. Stout's portrayal of Lora seems to me clear, vivid and well-founded, and his book, therefore, exceptionally interesting as a novel—a creative work of art—aside from its real claim to attention on the score of technique and point of view." Mary Ross

+ Books p6 Ag 24 '30 600w

"Mr. Stout has drawn a portrait which is a little hazy and he has stacked the cards a little too obviously before dealing them out in the games between Lora and her five successive lovers. But Mr. Stout has handled with skill, even distinction, his technical problem."

— + Nation 131:353 O 1 '30 250w

"Here is a daring and somewhat novel conception of a story, and yet it succeeds in being little more than a clever Greenwich Village dream, partly because the author has not displayed a depth of sympathetic understanding to match the outlines of his plot invention. The present reviewer has the uneasy feeling that here is a cloak of seeming profundity and sophistication masking what in essence is only a shilling shocker."

— N Y Times p24 S 28 '30 400w

"No efficient technique or novelty of form, both of which Mr. Stout can claim, would atone for his twisted, unnatural effects and tortured efforts at psychoanalysis. He asks you to believe in Lora and what happened to her, to nod your head sagely at his intuitions, to appreciate his grasp of the sex battles in modern life. It is an extravagant demand. Open the door to your skepticism and pull up a chair for it beside you. Mr. Stout stretches your credulity upon a rack from which it snaps away in pieces."

— Outlook 156:107 S 17 '30 350w

" 'How Like a God' was a striking flashlight picture of a negative character: 'Seed on the Wind' is the full, finished portrait of a positive one. . . You may read 'Seed on the Wind' with no desire ever to reread it, you may give the book away when you have finished it; but you will not forget Lora." Gladys Graham

Sat R of Lit 7:199 O 11 '30 550w

STOWELL, GORDON. History of Button Hill. 318p $2.50 Smith, R.R. [10s 6d Gollancz]
30-26996

The story of the young people in Button Hill, a small suburban town near a Yorkshire manufacturing center, from 1894 until after the war. Eric Ellersby grew up in this community, went to high school, attended Bible class, sometimes doubted the existence of God, knew certain girls, was worried a little by the problem of sex, and grew old enough to go to war. The services of Button Hill youth in the war, and its effects upon them, occupy the latter part of the novel.

Booklist 27:105 N '30

" 'The History of Button Hill' has actuality. It has poignant moments. It has a certain sweep of inevitability which sets you to wondering at the inconstancies of life. For these traits the book has value. But stretched out between the peaks of the story and blanketing its meaning are long passages of internal English politics and becalmed periods of description where no movement is perceptible." V. P. Ross

+ — Books p10 Je 8 '30 830w
Boston Transcript p4 Ag 30 '30 650w

"The man who wrote this substantial, leisurely and satisfying novel is an Englishman in his early thirties, a student and teacher of art, and an ex-soldier. His writing bears evidence that he has gone below the surface, both in thought and experience, but that he has kept his sense of humor and his sense of proportion."

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 Je 7 '30 600w
New Statesman 34:56 O 19 '29 1250w

Reviewed by Lillian Rogers

N Y Evening Post p9m My 24 '30 350w

" 'Button Hill' is written in a smooth, easy style, with a quiet sense of humour directed at the Good Old Days."

+ N Y Times p9 My 25 '30 430w

"The novel is not without power. It has sincerity and a feeling of actuality, but its hold on the reader would have been much stronger if the story had not been spun out to such length. There are places where the movement is absolutely imperceptible, and the reader is bogged down by irrelevant political talk and descriptive passages which make a drudgery of what should be, and is, in the main, a labor of love. If only Mr. Stowell had not caught his second breath the book might have been a little gem." Bellamy Partridge

+ — N Y World p7m Je 22 '30 320w

"This is a novel which one must respect because or in spite of its unevenness. Its scope is too ambitious. 'Button Hill' sets out to trace the birth, growth, and death of an English suburb through the vicissitudes of certain of its inhabitants. The result is something like a census of board-of-health report. This wholesale literary treatment of groups (en masse) is usually still born." C. L. Aiken

+ — Sat R of Lit 6:1091 My 31 '30 570w

"A chronicle in which the processes of fashion are more important than the processes of souls. There are moments which reveal Mr. Stowell as something deeper than a clever but superficial satirist. One cannot however discuss his characters individually, because he is interested primarily in the surface of their collective life." V. S. Pritchett

Spec 143:783 N 23 '29 300w

"Mr. Stowell has drawn, with considerable faithfulness, a certain quiet humour and a talent for descriptive detail, a combined picture of a locality and its human inhabitants of two generations. The defect of this novel is that the material rise and fall of a suburb, its gradual building over, its shops, its trams and its civic annals, belong to the history of human beings only and not to that of a locality."

STOWELL, GORDON—Continued
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p816 O 17 '29 500w

STOWELL, WILLIAM AVERILL. Marston murder case. 289p $2 (7s 6d) Appleton
30-19506

The private life of Marston, Wall street banker, had a great deal to do with his murder. A pretty secretary and her brother are highly involved in the case. So also is a handwriting expert, who is of great assistance to Inspector Burke in solving the mystery.

"A good bit of work by the police in running down clues and an original touch lend deep human interest to this tale of romance and mystery."
+ Bookm 72:xxiii S '30 80w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p10 Ag 31 '30 120w

Boston Transcript p2 S 24 '30 350w

"It is the formula to which we are accustomed, but more palatably done than most." Dashiell Hammett
+ N Y Evening Post p5s Ag 23 '30 120w

"This skillfully concocted mystery deserves commendation because of its well-sustained suspense." Bruce Rae
+ N Y Times p18 Ag 24 '30 180w

"A good average thriller." W. R. Brooks
+ Outlook 155:678 Ag 27 '30 100w

Reviewed by R. I. Center
Sat R of Lit 7:379 N 22 '30 20w

Times [London] Lit Sup p785 O 2 '30 220w

STRAHAN, MRS KAY (CLEAVER). Death traps. 310p $2 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Gollancz]
30-15340

An attempted murder of Gerald Dexter is followed the night after by the deaths, cause indeterminate, of Justin and Sallyann Veerneg. Thruout the story two nice but garrulous old gentlemen, Mr Lucky and his neighbor Mr Fisbie, argue about these death-trap murder mysteries and offer theories of solution. But it is Mr Lucky's sweet invalid wife who, under the pretense of needing a new nurse, hires Lynn MacDonald, crime analyst, to bring matters to a head.

"Although Miss Strahan shows remarkable finesse in her story-telling, in Death Traps she has permitted the absurd ranting of two leading characters to keep the reader from guessing the solution."
Bookm 71:xxi Je '30 80w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p20 Ap 20 '30 300w

Boston Transcript p2 Jl 5 '30 250w

"A double murder puzzle of more than usual ingenuity."
+ New Statesman 35:62 Ap 19 '30 80w

"'Death Traps' would have been a pretty good short story. It attains book length by dint of a tedious opening, many irrelevancies and the rambling volubility of the retired Yakima grocer through whom it is told." Dashiell Hammett
— N Y Evening Post p11m Ap 26 '30 160w

N Y Times p11 Jl 13 '30 200w

"Her latest product is unfortunately one of the most tedious, redundant and garrulous tales of the sort we have ever read." E. C. Beckwith
— N Y World p11m Ap 27 '30 100w

Spec 144:754 My 3 '30 100w

Reviewed by Margaret Cole
Spec 144:1058 Je 28 '30 50w

"The people of the book are both in speech and behavior too abnormal to be thought of as alive."
— Times [London] Lit Sup p397 My 8 '30 170w

STRAIN, MADELEINE D. Prisoner in Babylon. 324p $2 Macaulay
30-15341

The story of the adventures, friends, sorrows and loves of Sam DeMonfière Blanchard and Molly Lou, adopted children who grew up together.

"In presenting this somber story Miss Strain writes with an earnestness which in some degree compensates for a lack of style. Her narrative takes on the drab colors of its theme and ends on a note of honest uncertainty."
— + Books p11 Je 8 '30 230w

"Notwithstanding the trite and factitious character of the plot, the confused portraiture and the jerky, undistinguished style, 'A Prisoner in Babylon' has a genuine and appealing emotional quality. Sam Blanchard stands out, in the midst of improbable events, as a recognizable and sympathetic figure."
— + N Y Times p7 Je 15 '30 400w

STRANG, DAVID. Printing of etchings and engravings; with an introd. by Martin Hardie. 218p il $4 Dodd [10s 6d Benn]
767 Engraving. Etching [30-26903]

A technical and detailed description of all the steps in the process of printing etchings, by a well known English artist and etcher.

Booklist 27:97 N '30
St Louis 28:266 N '30

"The whole process is described in elaborate detail. No step in it, from the setting up of the outfit to the flattening of the finished prints, is missed, and as Mr. Martin Hardie says in his introduction the profound knowledge gained by the author by long years of experience, and here set forth for the first time, makes the book a standard work for future generations of etchers."
+ Spec 145:107 Jl 19 '30 120w

STRANG, RUTH MAY. Introduction to child study. 550p $2.75 (12s) Macmillan
136.7 Child study. Children—Management. Children—Care and hygiene 30-5031

"The life of the child from birth to maturity is treated in six major periods: (1) the prenatal period; (2) the first two years of life; (3) the late preschool period, or the next three years of life; (4) the primary-school period, covering chiefly the first three grades of the elementary school; (5) the preadolescent years; and (6) the period from adolescence to maturity. . . The book treats many specific problems of child welfare. . . Some of the most valuable parts of the book are those which summarize the present knowledge relating to the behavior of normal children. . . A unique feature of the book is the inclusion of a series of objective tests to be used in study groups. A teacher's manual is supplied giving the answers to the questions in a form not easily available to students."—El School J

"The book represents one of the most successful attempts to supply a body of accurate information relating to child growth and welfare for parents and teachers. It will be particularly useful in extension courses for parents." G. T. Buswell
+ El School J 30:795 Je '30 750w

"'An Introduction to Child Study' is the work of a genuine student and has added immensely to the text material in the fields of child development and parent education. The book brings to hand much material that would otherwise take a great deal of time to search out. For the home economist it is indeed a find and it will quickly take its place in personal libraries and in those of institutions concerned with teacher-training and parent education. It will also find its way into the homes of men and women who see child development as a science of the highest order." F. E. Winchell

+ J Home Econ 22:594 Jl '30 450w
St Louis 28:257 N '30

STRANGE, JOHN STEPHEN. Strangler fig. 295p $1 Doubleday, Doran
30-23439

On an island off the Florida coast grew the "strangler fig"—a jungle plant that strangled its victims in its tendrils. But when Stephen Huntington disappeared, and when a skeleton was found in the embrace of the strangler fig seven years later, Bolivar Brown (lawyer, and guest of Mrs Huntington) knew that some human agency had been the cause of Huntington's death. Two other cases of strangling—both of them murder—occur before Brown solves the mystery.

Booklist 27:165 D '30
Bookm 72:xxiv S '30 50w

"The most ingeniously built jigsaw in many moons. In fact, it is a surprising and almost awesome feat in high-pressure mystery." Will Cuppy

+ Books p16 S 14 '30 350w

"The plot is neither very convincing nor very interesting. It runs the course of all ordinary detective story plots, and is saved from complete mediocrity by the skilful way in which the author handles the poor, overworked house party."

— + Boston Transcript p2 S 17 '30 180w

"This is an intelligently handled job." Dashiell Hammett

+ N Y Evening Post p5s S 6 '30 120w

"A mystery far out of the ordinary, a treat for the jaded student of plots that repeat themselves with minor variations."

+ N Y Times p18 N 2 '30 230w

"Mr. Strange has effected the difficult feat of concocting a mystery story that is novel in setting, fresh in incident, and capable of springing surprises up to the very last chapter. . . The tale is well written, its exotic background lending it a brooding atmosphere, its situations are well contrived, and its events neatly articulated. Even the jaded reader of detective stories will find in this book a yarn to whet his interest."

+ Sat R of Lit 7:145 S 20 '30 150w

STRASSER, ROLAND. Mongolian horde; tr.
2 from the German by R. T. G.; with a foreword by Sir Michael Sadler. 348p il $3.50 (12s 6d) Cape

915.17 Mongolia—Description and travel. Mongolia—Social life and customs

"Mr. Roland Strasser is an Austrian artist with a passion for adventurous travel, which has taken him at different times to the South Seas, to India, Siam, China, Mongolia and to Tibet. Much of the charm of the present book lies in the powerful drawings of the Tibetan and Mongolian scenes with which it is adorned. Mr. Strasser visited Mongolia at a time of unrest and of unprecedented change, and this turmoil is reflected in every chapter of the book."—Sat R

"In addition to its immediate interest, the book has beyond all doubt great historical value, in that an exceptionally well trained observer records the incoming tide of Westernism which is undermining the dark mountain-cliffs of the terrible, demon-worshipping Lamaism. Better than a camera is an artist's eye and the grim and grave character of the book serves to illustrate exactly the condition of unfortunate Mongolia."

+ Boston Transcript p4 D 27 '30 280w

"Herr Strasser is a painter by profession and a born traveller whose imagination has been torn between profound fascinated sympathy with and appalled revulsion from the countries of his choice. . . When at last, after nerve-shattering experiences, he arrived in China, it was to be in the midst of the Chinese fighting and to see his cases of pictures looted and ruined by the soldiers. A very natural bitterness has perhaps stultified him and forced him out of the ranks of the great travellers—the Hudsons and the Doughtys—but his descriptions of the scene in all its filth, brutality and magnificence is the work of a first-rate artist, who knows what he writes from long knowledge. The book, well illustrated by his own drawings, is an exciting and absorbing contribution to the literature of travel."

+ New Statesman 36:sup xvi O 11 '30 520w

"Strasser has caught certain human types that may within a few years have passed out of existence." W. B. Shaw

+ R of Rs 83:14 Ja '31 80w

"Sir Michael Sadler, in the introduction he contributes, acclaims the book as the best on Mongolia he has known; and truly for vigour and pictorial power it would be difficult to rival. But there is in the text, as Sir Michael notes, a grim pessimism that, powerfully as it impresses one, is not in harmony with the lively sketches. Not even in Tibet can life be as hard and cruel as Mr. Strasser describes it. The facts are, we feel, unquestionably as he states them; but they are interpreted to us through a sombre and critical temperament, that without actual distortion has 'sicklied them o'er with the pale cast of thought.'"

+ — Sat R 150:456 O 11 '30 250w

"The nervous, vigorous drawings are magnificent, but the unmitigated horrors, the morbidness, the torturing weight of sadness and depression which the letter-press conveys, surely these are the author's and no true picture of the descendants of Jenghis Khan. The author fled from the cramping limits of civilization: he had no motive but a personal quest, and he found the reflection of his own depression."

+ — Spec 145:674 N 8 '30 150w

"Mr. Strasser's book will convince the reader that he was not the best man to see the Mongol as he really is; or perhaps it would be truer to say that he cannot express in words what he can see clearly enough to draw with his pencil, for the letterpress of his book goes ill with the illustrations which punctuate it."

— Times [London] Lit Sup p871 O 23 '30 300w

STRATTON, GEORGE MALCOLM. Social psychology of international conduct. 387p $3 (10s 6d) Appleton

301 International law and relations. Social psychology. International cooperation
29-28516

A study of racial and national similarities and differences as they affect the behavior of various nationalities, made as a basis for a discussion of the possibilities of a workable plan for international peace. Dr Stratton, an eminent American psychologist, examines the causes of racial prejudice, the growth of national desires, and the possibility of educating the international mind.

"The book is a valuable addition to our national literature and is presented in a form which would make it perhaps all the more acceptable to the general reader. It is not too much to say that if every voter in America could be led to read this book carefully the present forces for international understanding would be set forward in their progress a decade or more. Teachers of social psychology will undoubtedly find the work of value when treating this subject of collective behavior." Ellsworth Faris

+ Am J Soc 35:833 Mr '30 800w
Am Pol Sci R 24:1064 N '30 150w

"Professor Stratton's book reveals an element of insight and a degree of fairness in the judgment of international relations which is hard to match. The sections dealing with the meaning, origin, and life of the nation possess a charm

STRATTON, G. M.—Continued
and wisdom unsurpassed by anything that has come to the reviewer's notice in his long and diligent searches in the subject." Johannes Mattern

+ Ann Am Acad 148:290 Mr '30 1000w

"This is a stimulating, well written and thoughtful study of the psychological factors of international life."

+ Books p18 Ap 6 '30 130w

Boston Transcript p2 Ja 15 '30 430w

"By far the most significant contribution to the literature of peace since the world war." J. A. Jacobs

+ Christian Century 47:1489 D 3 '30 1050w

N Y Evening Post p11m F 15 '30 100w

"Dr. Stratton's engaging and eminently objective discussion of racial and national likenesses and differences, of the delusions and the behavior of various people, of the existing society of nations, of the interaction of science, education, and politics in civilizing the nations, is a real contribution to the cause of peace and rational international conduct." E. T. Devine

+ Outlook 154:151 Ja 22 '30 50w

St Louis 28:93 Ap '30

Wis Lib Bul 26:38 Ja '30

STREET, CECIL JOHN CHARLES (JOHN RHODE, pseud.). Peril at Cranbury hall. 296p $2 Dodd [7s 6d Bles]
30-6732

"After serving a jail sentence for embezzlement, Oliver Gilroy finds himself in constant peril. Three attempts are made on his life at Cranbury Hall, and despite his flight to Ostend he dies there suddenly from no apparent unnatural cause. Through the instrumentality of Dr. Priestley, an ardent amateur criminologist, Gilroy's past connections are brought to light and the machinations of several unscrupulous men are uncovered."—Bookm

"A well-constructed plot with a plausible solution."

+ Bookm 71:xxix Ap '30 100w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p13 Mr 23 '30 100w

N Y Times p28 Mr 23 '30 170w

"A pretty good thriller." W. R. Brooks

+ Outlook 154:468 Mr 19 '30 100w

STREET, CECIL JOHN CHARLES (JOHN RHODE, pseud.). Thomas Masaryk of Czechoslovakia (Eng title: President Masaryk). 281p il $3 Dodd [7s 6d Bles]
B or 92 Masaryk, Thomáš Garrique 30-19726

A biography of the president of Czechoslovakia published on the occasion of his eightieth birthday. The biographer traces the steps by which the son of a coachman in a Moravian village has become the leader of his people, and presents some idea of his philosophy and character.

Booklist 27:63 O '30

Reviewed by W. L. Langer
Books p13 Ag 24 '30 1000w

"Mr. Street has done his work ably, with entire appreciation of Masaryk and of the most salient episodes of his career. It is an interesting and inspiring book and it reveals a man of entirely great qualities. This would be a more valuable book for a library if one having read it once could, for any point one wished to use in further reading or writing, go to a well made index to guide his search. When will publishers learn that an index almost doubles the value of a book of permanent worth?" S. L. Cook

+ Boston Transcript p2 Jl 19 '30 1900w

Reviewed by Ernest Barker
Nation and Ath 47:144 My 3 '30 310w

Reviewed by William MacDonald
N Y Times p1 Jl 20 '30 2350w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:67 O '30

St Louis 28:273 N '30

Reviewed by Harold Stannard
Sat R 149:592 My 10 '30 400w

Spec 144:356 Mr 8 '30 900w

Times [London] Lit Sup p232 Mr 20 '30 800w

STRIBLING, THOMAS SIGISMUND. Backwater. 308p $2.50 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Heinemann]
30-6730

Young Jim Murdock, son of the local bootlegger in a small Arkansas town, was in love with Mary Sue Meredith, daughter of an aristocratic family in the same small town. Altho they lived on adjoining plantations and graduated from the same college, when it came to a question of marriage it was discovered that they were miles apart, at least according to Mrs Meredith. Following in the wake of a broken levee there came some startling revelations and the young people took things in their own hands.

Booklist 26:314 My '30

"Though Mr. Stribling's characters seem to be pawns moved hither and thither to prove their maker's theses, they play in a swift and gripping drama, real despite its cinematic qualities." E. R. Richardson

+ Bookm 71:105 Mr '30 520w

Books p10 F 23 '30 420w

"While you are reading it, it seems to be a story light enough, amusing enough, and characters vitally local enough to pull you along with it. But at the same time, after you have stripped away a weak beginning, technique that is not worthy of 'Teeftallow' or 'Bright Metal,' and the one pulsing character in the book, you have left—a flood. But after all, a flood that would more easily and artistically act as a fine caryatid to a short story, or a shorter novel." M. E. M.

— + Boston Transcript p1 Ap 26 '30 500w

"It is young Jim Murdock's relation to his father, old Bill Jack Murdock, that gives more than a touch of beauty to Mr. Stribling's latest novel. The love-making is conventional, the plot is merely slick, the writing is competent but undistinguished: only in the beautifully indicated love of Jim for old Bill Jack and of old Bill Jack for Jim—and in the sympathetically drawn old nigger, Pontus Pilt—does the book stand out from other 'Yank' adventure stories."

— + New Statesman 35:596 Ag 16 '30 220w

"One wonders where the talent has gone that went into the composition of that biting satire called 'Teeftallow,' which first brought Mr. T. S. Stribling into favorable critical attention. 'Backwater,' this most recent novel by the same author, is decidedly a great disappointment. Unusual pains seemed to have been gone to in order to get his effects. He has used the most violent and melodramatic methods, with an apparent carelessness of writing that is sometimes astounding, when one considers that the work of an experienced craftsman is under consideration." Ben Wasson

— N Y Evening Post p11m F 15 '30 700w

"Not by any stretch of the imagination could the novel be called significant; Mr. Stribling has shown before that he can do much better, but the pattern is clear cut and the story moves along at a good gait."

— + N Y Times p17 Mr 2 '30 320w

"As a story this is one of the most graphic and eventful that the author has ever written; but as a novel it is one of the least significant." B. P.

— + N Y World p11m F 16 '30 350w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:32 Ap '30

"It is all clear, cool and toneless. And one feels when the book is well advanced, as one feels in the morning after a mysterious and exciting night of desultory volleys in a foreign town: disappointed that there has been no battle after all." V. S. P.

Spec 145:172 Ag 2 '30 170w

Times [London] Lit Sup p626 Jl 31 '30 320w

STRIBLING, THOMAS SIGISMUND. Clues of the Caribbees; being certain criminal investigations of Henry Poggioli. 319p $2.50 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Heinemann]
29-24376

For descriptive note see Annual for 1929.

Booklist 26:164 Ja '30

Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Ja '30

"We are fascinated by the clues in Mr. Stribling's book of detective stories, for they are complicated, varied and wild, but we are even more fascinated by the Caribbees. He makes us share his sympathy with other countries and types of mind than the Anglo-Saxon as successfully as he did in Fombombo and Teeftallow."
+ New Statesman 34:852 Ap 5 '30 200w

"By the uncommon slovenliness of his prose, by his willingness to play tricks with his story, and his transparent devices to disguise the thinness of his plots, by the grotesque caricatures which he seeks to palm off for characterization, he seems to be saying anxiously to his readers on almost every page: 'See, these are only pot-boilers. I don't take them seriously, myself.' In only one story, 'The Governor of Cap Haitien,' does Mr. Stribling allow his real interest in the culture of the Black Republic to lead him to do his best."
— Sat R of Lit 6:742 F 15 '30 220w

"All the stories are very readable, though Mr. Stribling shows no great ingenuity in the art of mixing mysteries. In the Haiti story, for instance, he complicates and recomplicates the problem by mere multiplication. It is as if he had been playing cat's cradle, and when he had exhausted all the permutations and combinations of pattern, he had abruptly withdrawn his fingers and let the strings collapse, instead of unravelling them stage by stage." V. S. Pritchett
+ — Spec 144:399 Mr 8 '30 220w

Reviewed by Margaret Cole
Spec 144:1058 Je 28 '30 50w

Times [London] Lit Sup p162 F 27 '30 400w

STRINGER, ARTHUR JOHN ARBUTHNOTT. Out of Erin; songs in exile. 155p $2 Bobbs
811 30-28088

A book of verse in which many themes find expression. "The young girl longs for love, and the old regret their youth; the boy is driven to wander, but in America or the South Seas he is sick for home; when we were poor we were merry; and the man who makes shift with what he has is just plain queer. Eleven of these poems have been set to music; all of them carry on the traditional rhythms of jig and love-song." (Bookm)

Bookm 72:viii O '30 100w

Reviewed by Charles Divine
Books p20 D 14 '30 100w

"In 'Out of Erin' will be found true lyrics, lines that lilt and stanzas that sing. Mr. Stringer's Celtic blood runs full and sweet. His poems have the dreamy humor of the Irish that is three parts wisdom and more than three parts poetry. They have the color, and the wistfulness and the swift change of mood that is all Celt. The wizardry of the old ballads is in many of these entrancing poems."
+ N Y Times p16 N 2 '30 250w

STROBEL, MARION (MRS J. H. MITCHELL). Saturday afternoon. 279p $2.50 Farrar
30-11379

Susannah Pease was a lovely lady who gave tea and spice cake to Chicago's young literati and hoped one of them would write a great novel or a great poem for her to publish. Susannah was in love with Stephen, a poet who looked like Rupert Brooke, and one Saturday afternoon in April she took him for a picnic by the lakeside. Then Susannah stepped from one of the high rocks beside the lake. Stephen saw her disappear and ran away, thinking she had committed suicide. A pretty girl named Carolla St John jumped in to rescue her. The newspapers got hold of the suicide story, and thereafter Chicago literature had a great renaissance. Even Stephen promised to write a poem about the suicide. So there was really only one thing left for Susannah to do.

"The novel has a limited appeal, though there is no doubt that it will be enjoyed within the circle of readers for which it was obviously written. Nor is that circle by any means limited to Chicago. It extends to the sophisticated metropolitan types in any large American city."
+ Boston Transcript p2 Je 4 '30 280w

Chicago Daily Tribune p11 Ap 19 '30 480w

"A charming trifle, a tour de force rather cleverly conceived." Edwin Seaver
+ N Y Evening Post p10m My 10 '30 100w

"The episode is a superb short story, lost in the welter of pretty-pretty writing that fills most of the book. For Miss Strobel is still an excellent short-story writer, and her attempt here to place a number of short stories together in the pattern of a novel is more engaging than successful."
+ — N Y Times p22 My 4 '30 420w

Sat R of Lit 6:1211 Jl 19 '30 220w

STRONG, ANNA LOUISE (ANISE, pseud.). Red star in Samarkand. 329p il $3.50 Coward-McCann [15s Williams & Norgate]
915.8 Samarkand. Asia, Central. Bolshevism
29-22809

For descriptive note see Annual for 1929.

Booklist 26:156 Ja '30

Boston Transcript p2 Mr 5 '30 270w

"The picture of soviet achievement, even with the qualifications which are introduced, may be too rosy. The author is pro-Russian in her sympathies, but she is a competent and conscientious observer. Anyway, it is impossible to check up on her account, for few outsiders have been permitted to travel through this region as freely as she." W. E. G.
+ — Christian Century 47:82 Ja 15 '30 450w

Cleveland Open Shelf p12 Ja '30

Reviewed by R. G. Randall
Nation and Ath 47:534 Jl 26 '30 170w

"The somewhat lyrical opening of this story of modern Samarkand should not deter serious students from reading on, for once the author gets into her stride the born chronicler is revealed."
+ New Statesman 34:850 Ap 5 '30 200w

Reviewed by Alexander Nazaroff
N Y Times p11 Ja 12 '30 800w

St Louis 28:145 My '30

"Miss Strong's book gives us the results of much, if by no means impartial, observation. It is no small praise of the book that it compels its readers to think seriously and take a large view of one of the most pregnant events in modern history."
+ — Sat R 149:595 My 10 '30 500w

Sat R of Lit 6:767 F 22 '30 350w

"The marriage of the West and the East in this remote part of Asia, where a service of camels connects with the air service from Kabul, is an amazing story, and Miss Strong tells it very well."
+ Spec 144:441 Mr 15 '30 700w

"Mrs. Strong sees the new faith spreading among the natives of the Central Asian Soviet Republics, and believes the Soviet Government sincere in its profession of a desire to raise them to the standards of Western civilization. Her belief may be considered naive by some. But whatever criticism may be made on that score, it has enabled her to write a lively account of one of the most lively movements of the modern world."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p674 Ag 28 '30 650w

STRONG, CHARLES F. Modern political constitutions; an introd. to the comparative study of their history and existing form. 385p $3.50 Putnam [12s 6d Sidgwick]

342 Constitutional history. State, The. Political science 30-10399

A text book for students of politics and government which traces the growth of the constitutional state from its origins to its present state.

Reviewed by C. G. Haines
Am Pol Sci R 24:1057 N '30 280w

"In the matter of detail he maintains a high standard of accuracy as far as fact is concerned, but constantly utters generalizations so sweeping that he makes himself responsible for many half and three-quarter truths. All else that needs to be said about the book is favorable. It is readable, and should serve its intended purpose as both textbook and book for the 'private student' and the general reader. It is well written, and though packed with matter, is a little less dull than most similar books. Being the most up-to-date book in a rapidly changing field, it deserves wide use." E. P. Chase
+ — Ann Am Acad 150:304 Jl '30 230w
Boston Transcript p2 Jl 16 '30 400w

"While very interesting in its historical treatment of the theme, Mr. Strong's book is especially valuable for its comparison and study of post-war constitutional developments and its estimate of the present status of constitutionalism."
+ N Y Times p26 My 18 '30 380w

"A highly competent and matter-of-fact survey, together with useful diagrams and tables—of how contemporary governments actually work. If there is any criticism to offer it is that it is altogether too matter of fact, and that students, with their congenial avidity for tidy dogmatisms which make things simple, will find the book far too much to their taste." G. E. G. Catlin
+ — N Y World p8m My 18 '30 360w

"This book is neither carefully nor intelligently written. The author makes no attempt to be impartial, while his style is tedious in the extreme."
— Sat R 149:632 My 17 '30 100w

"A competent and well-arranged survey of the constitutions of the modern world by way of introduction to the study of constitutional politics."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p519 Je 19 '30 180w
World Tomorrow 13:476 N '30 80w

STRONG, LEONARD ALFRED GEORGE. Dewer rides. 351p pa 50c Boni [29-15870]

For descriptive note see Annual for 1929.

"There is a very tangible beauty about the book that will assure it a longer life than many novels published in a more durable binding."
+ Bookm 70:xxiv F '30 50w

"L. A. G. Strong sets an impressive stage in the Dartmoor of lusty villages and ancient legend. One sees and feels the life of the moors, the farms, the lovable, passionate and queer people rooted in a life at once isolated and intense. . . The author builds up a really vivid and lovely background, a credible and likable set of characters, and then, somehow, undoes much of the power of the book by pulling the strings to justify a fixed idea." Mary Ross
+ — Books p5 F 2 '30 400w
Boston Transcript p2 Ja 8 '30 800w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:24 Mr '30

"The author, after beginning his book on the grand scale, seems to have been forced to end it abruptly and unsatisfactorily. What should have been a fine, full-length picture has been cut down to a partial portrait. The effect is disappointing. But because he is able to write well, and knows what he is writing about, Mr. Strong's book is preferable to many more effective and better planned novels."
+ — Sat R of Lit 6:695 F 1 '30 420w

STRONG, SYDNEY DIX, ed. We believe in prayer; affirmations by one hundred men and women of many lands. 210p $1.50 Coward-McCann

248 Prayer 30-9620

A symposium on prayer made up of the testimonies of one hundred prominent educators, writers, and ministers. Among the contributors are Margaret Deland, Sherwood Eddy, Harry Emerson Fosdick, Zona Gale, Mahatma Gandhi, John Haynes Holmes, Helen Keller, Vachel Lindsay, Bishop McConnell, and Rabbi Stephen S. Wise.

Reviewed by J. H. Holmes
Books p10 My 11 '30 220w

"These testimonies are brief and crisp, and go directly to the heart of the matter. One is at once impressed with the directness, the sincerity, and the depth of the testimony. No writer attempts to argue about prayer—nor does he try to exhort us to it. He simply gives out of a full heart his own personal experience. The general trend seems to be that these leaders hold to prayer because of their training and their continuing use of it. They do not come to it by virtue of their reason or what someone has told them—they pray without analyzing it or without examining the reasons why they should pray."
+ Boston Transcript p2 O 22 '30 250w

Reviewed by E. B. Chaffee
Outlook 155:28 My 7 '30 180w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 34:69 O '29
St Louis 28:203 S '30

STUDENSKY, PAUL. Public borrowing; with a foreword by Edwin R. A. Seligman. (Monograph ser.) 137p $2 Nat. municipal league

336.3 Debts, Public. Municipal finance 30-11588

"This is a discussion of public borrowing with special reference to borrowing by local governments. Not only is the present situation with regard to public indebtedness clearly described, but the author has much of value to say about the legal restrictions upon borrowing, the preparation of improvement programs, the term of loans, and long-term budgeting. A distinctive feature of the study is the author's proposal of a new plan for combining taxation and borrowing in a rational manner for meeting current needs and predictable capital outlays."—Ann Am Acad

"There isn't a wasted word in this little book. Moreover, the words included are used well." M. S. Kendrick
+ Am Econ R 20:537 S '30 500w

"The study is well documented. It should be found of great value to every teacher of local administration." L. W. Lancaster
+ Ann Am Acad 150:306 Jl '30 150w
St Louis 28:205 S '30

STUDLEY, BARRETT. How to fly; the pilot and his problems. 291p il $3 (12s 6d) Macmillan

629.13 Aeronautics 29-28492

"Describes in an untechnical way the problems met in learning to fly, with accounts of actual occurrences which have come within the author's observation. The first two chapters deal with the pioneers of the air and with the development of modern aviation. Lieutenant Studley's former book, Practical flight training, 1928 is of a more technical nature."—N Y New Tech Bks

Booklist 26:302 My '30

Cleveland Open Shelf p36 Mr '30

N Y New Tech Bks 15:3 Ja '30

"The chapters on flying are masterpieces of simplicity. Every movement of the control surfaces is carefully explained, as well as the consequences from the right uses and the wrong uses of them. . . It is an excellent book and can be thoroughly recommended to the class of reader for whom it is written. It serves also as excellent lecture material for elementary ground courses, provided the instructor is able to fill in the technicalities himself." T. J. C. Martyn

+ N Y Times p27 Ja 12 '30 250w

"It covers pretty well everything that the beginning pilot will want to know." W. R. Brooks

+ Outlook 153:588 D 11 '29 70w

Pratt p20 spring '30

St Louis 28:42 F '30

Springf'd Republican p6e D 15 '29 130w

"There is a very clear description of how to land, the most disturbing operation of all to the novice, some hints on precision landings and much advice to pilots who can fly but still lack experience."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p195 Mr 6 '30 100w

Wis Lib Bul 26:65 F '30

STURGES, PRESTON. Strictly dishonorable; a comedy in three acts. 187p $2 Liveright

812 30-26180

"Here is the innocent little girl from the South who yearns for adventure and just doesn't get it; the quarrelsome fiancé, the handsome foreigner, the kindly if somewhat rough and ready judge, all generously mixed up with waiters, policemen and romance."—Sat R of Lit

Booklist 26:273 Ap '30

Reviewed by W. P. Eaton

Books p10 Ja 19 '30 250w

St Louis 28:240 O '30

"Altogether a pleasant and innocuous fantasy, just sufficiently touched up with bedroom antics to make it ingratiating and to provide on the stage a thrill which the text lacks. Mr. Sturges's play, in plot and dialogue, in wisecracks and bachelor apartment setting, is well tried theatre stuff and can be thoroughly enjoyed as such." Rosamond Gilder

+ Sat R of Lit 6:846 Mr 22 '30 240w

"The piece does not lack robust comedy or brightly conceived characters, but the comedy develops deficiency in refinement, and the characters are not allowed to remain 'in character,' but sooner or later are saying anything that will provoke laughter."

— + Springf'd Republican p10 Ja 17 '30 100w

SUCKOW, RUTH (MRS FERNER NUHN). Kramer girls. 273p $2.50 (7s 6d) Knopf

30-9308

"In The Kramer Girls the lives of three sisters are set forth: Miss Georgie, the eldest, who should have gone into business; Miss Annie, the second, who is satisfied no matter what she does; and Rose, the baby, whose life is devoted to being what Georgie wants her to be. There is, among the sisters, a feeling of affection and tenderness that makes their relations at all times beautiful."—Bookm

For biographical sketch of the author see Boston Transcript p1 My 24 '30

Booklist 27:30 S '30

"For depicting sheer homeiness and the comfortable ways of homely folks, there are few better than Ruth Suckow. Her characters, from the first move they make, the first word they speak, become people one has known always. Their expressed emotions and those not expressed are alike known to the reader. But occasionally it is not enough; there is a need for more determinate narrative. Occasionally one wishes that into the everyday lives of her people Miss Suckow would put a little more of that contriving, that struggle to one end, that fiction, if necessary, that makes novels stories as well as character sketches." M. M. Waterman

+ — Bookm 71:216 Ap '30 380w

"'The Bonney Family' was by far a finer piece of literary accomplishment than 'The Kramer Girls.' Yet in this new story Miss Suckow reveals the same ingenious warmth of earnest sentiment that springs from an intense human sympathy for the lives of friends and neighbors. . . She lacks the ability for seeing the amusing side of the situation she describes. There must have been moments when the Kramers and their neighbors had a few hearty laughs at the expense of one another or of some acquaintances. A little comic relief is indispensable." D. F. Gilman

+ — Books p5 Mr 30 '30 850w

Boston Transcript p2 My 21 '30 670w

Cleveland Open Shelf p95 Je '30

"In Miss Suckow's latest novel, along with her usual excellence in pure representation, there is, perhaps, a stronger emotional current than in any of her previous books. She has yielded a little of her aloofness, and she has gained in power and depth."

+ Nation 130:523 Ap 30 '30 130w

"In 'The Kramer Girls' Miss Suckow is at her best in the Louisa Alcott manner. Homely people make supreme sacrifices in a homely way. It is difficult to believe that so many women joined together 'to do good' could work so much harm upon themselves and upon others. Yet there is an air of verity in the characterization." K. C. Tomlinson

— + Nation and Ath 47:626 Ag 16 '30 100w

"Deeply felt and maturely written novel." W. B.

+ New Repub 63:352 Ag 6 '30 230w

"It is carefully and quietly done, and the worst one can say of it is that it is a little dull. Miss Suckow started with the promise of being a good writer; but she seems to have settled down to the occupation of writing bits of her first novels over and over again."

+ — New Statesman 35:474 Jl 19 '30 150w

"The material of this novel is simple and unpretentious, but Miss Suckow has made of it a rich and beautiful and reticent story."

+ N Y Times p8 Ap 6 '30 600w

Reviewed by Harry Salpeter

N Y World p10m D 15 '29 1500w

"You feel a great respect for these characters and for Miss Suckow, who is silent before them." Margery Latimer

+ N Y World p11m Ap 20 '30 600w

"Ruth Suckow conveys the leisurely tempo of the small town, its lazy curiosity about everything, its callow immaturity. Usually she writes with a careful realism, but is occasionally inclined to become over-sentimental about her heroine."

+ — Outlook 154:589 Ap 9 '30 180w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:51 Je '30

"It must be confessed that 'The Kramer Girls' is not up to Miss Suckow's best. The life she describes is kindly and pleasant, but its warmest friends must acknowledge that it is sometimes a little dull; and a professed admirer of Miss Suckow must admit that this book, by its great fidelity to that nook, is sometimes a little dull itself. Nevertheless, it has its author's observation and humanity, and that is high praise."

+ — Sat R of Lit 6:972 Ap 19 '30 550w

"Miss Suckow writes with humour and insight; her characters, however slight, live, both as themselves and as members of the community; nor is this nice adjustment between the individual drama and the general current of small town life the only sign she is an artist in her quiet way."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p642 Ag 7 '30 280w

SUDERMANN, HERMANN. Dance of youth; tr. by Eden and Cedar Paul. 350p $2.50 Liveright
30-23894

Stumpy, the naïve sixteen-year-old daughter of a middle class German tradesman, falls in love with Fritz, of the impoverished nobility. Meanwhile she is seduced by her employer, a dentist, and betrothed by her parents to a fat and bourgeois merchant. For a while Stumpy has an unhappy time, her only pleasure being the dances she enjoys doing with her brother Herbert. The latter, however, comes to her aid, and a happy ending is finally achieved.

"In contrast to Sudermann's earlier novels The Dance of Youth lacks even the elemental qualities and the epic sensationalism which enabled him to capitalize the vogue of Rousseau, Schiller, Hugo and Nietzche. It tends rather toward the callow, the commonplace, and the tawdry. . . The cardinal weakness of the novel is the absence of a 'sound representation' of the nature of social liberty, a weakness common to most 'radical' novels. . . Furthermore, the book is typical of its class not only in its unsound notions of liberty but in its undercurrent of sub-rational fatalism." H. H. Clark

— Bookm 72:167 O '30 750w

"That such an ancient formula should have been put to use by a past-master of literary expression is less to be wondered at than the resulting atmosphere of flatness and of unreality. Even dressed by a master hand, these puppets have very little life of their own, and their reflection on the pages is very thin." Eugene Lohrke

— Books p2 S 7 '30 620w

Reviewed by Granville Hicks

Nation 131:620 D 3 '30 150w

N Y Times p8 S 14 '30 500w

"This dance of youth may tally with the blare of the saxophone and the rattle of the drums. But it does not seem to tally with the rhythm of youth's inner cry." V. P. Ross

— Outlook 156:67 S 10 '30 450w

"'The Dance of Youth' is a sorry performance in every way. One leaves it with regret that such a work has been chosen by a book club for widespread distribution, and the wish that Herman Sudermann had been content to pass the long wane of his life and power in a dignified silence." Leonard Ehrlich

— Sat R of Lit 7:122 S 13 '30 450w

SUDERMANN, HERMANN. Excursion to Tilsit; tr. from the German by Lewis Galantiere. 371p $2.50 Liveright
30-8170

A collection of powerful short stories dealing with the life of Lithuanian peasants. Contents: The excursion to Tilsit; Miks Bumbullis; Jons and Erdma; The hired girl.

"Of these four stories of Lithuanian peasants, only one, 'Miks Bumbullis,' depends for its effect upon purely national traits and circumstances. They are, for the most part, founded solidly upon the fundamental and inescapable human facts of birth and love and death. They are moving and tragic and, above all, intensely and vividly alive." Margaret Wallace

+ Bookm 71:214 Ap '30 380w

"Sudermann may have sinned against art in his other works. He may be reproached with a superabundance of tragedy and a lack of humor in the present work. But, minor defects notwithstanding, he is as superb a realist as his great countrymen Jacob Wassermann and Thomas Mann." Eric Strong

+ Books p18 Mr 30 '30 550w

Boston Transcript p5 My 17 '30 550w

Cleveland Open Shelf p96 Je '30

"The four long stories of Lithuanian peasant life included in this volume belong with the best of Sudermann's work. They are realistic, even to the point of being ethnological studies of a little-known people. At the same time they are much more. The characters are warmed and brought to life by a detached but loving understanding, and the events are selected and woven together into splendid dramatic fragments."

+ Nation 130:523 Ap 30 '30 150w

"These short stories are very good reading. Hermann Sudermann has brought his talent for telling a story dramatically and yet simply to bear on subjects that are really worthy of it." J. R.

+ New Repub 62:361 My 14 '30 200w

"In none of Sudermann's work is his great ability more easily recognized than in 'The Excursion to Tilsit.' Perhaps we owe the pleasure especially to Mr. Galantiere for his splendid translation, but never before have we enjoyed Sudermann so much. These four stories of Lithuanian peasant life are remarkable for their rich simplicity and their heroic portrayal of small lives."

+ N Y Evening Post p11m Mr 22 '30 150w

"Three of the four stories in this volume are among the best work which Hermann Sudermann has left us, and almost as certainly they deserve to be ranked among the finest examples of the short story produced anywhere in the last decade."

+ N Y Times p9 My 11 '30 600w

Reviewed by Pierre Loving

N Y World p11m Ap 13 '30 550w

Outlook 154:546 Ap 2 '30 160w

"The treatment is constantly equal to the task of leavening the slightly heavy mass of the plot, while Sudermann's native comic sense lends a human quality often lacking in the more brutal or over-refined work of his German contemporaries."

+ Sat R of Lit 6:1132 Je 14 '30 350w

SUDERMANN, HERMANN. Wife of Steffen Tromholt; tr. by Eden & Cedar Paul. 2v 356; 426p $4 Liveright
29-20441

"Herr Sudermann portrays the conflict between an artist's need for unlimited freedom and his craving for spiritual companionship and the safe anchorage of a home. The book is, in effect, the study of a wise and understanding wife who for thirty-three years so supports and inspires her husband that at her death he desires only to end his own life."—Cleveland Open Shelf

---

"Sudermann has successfully handled a case of infinite complications. The result is a greater work than his hitherto greatest work, 'Frau Sorge,' of which it is in many ways an expansion and elaboration, with the scene laid among the gifted rather than the humble. The translation is pleasing." A. W. Porterfield

+ Books p6 D 22 '29 900w

Cleveland Open Shelf p157 D '29

SULLIVAN, ALAN (SINCLAIR MURRAY, pseud.). Little way ahead. 316p $2.50 Dutton
30-7683

Felix Marbury, a London stock broker's clerk, suddenly has a vision in which he is able to see next week's market quotations. After a few of these prophetic visions he becomes a very rich man, a financial leader able to crush his enemies. Then, at the peak of his career, his gift to foresee deserts him, and he loses everything. In one final vision he glimpses himself drowned, a suicide.

"This is quite an absurd story but in the course of it the author weaves an interesting picture of market manipulation and big business."

Books p22 Ap 20 '30 200w

Boston Transcript p2 Ap 2 '30 80w

"Excellent stuff for Hollywood, with a love motive, market panic, mystery and all that sort of thing." Edwin Seaver

N Y Evening Post p11m F 15 '30 50w

"It is a frankly incredible tale with scarcely an ounce of conviction. But the story is exciting; it possesses gusto, a flair for action and a measure of suspense which make it very fair entertainment."

+ — N Y Times p25 Mr 23 '30 320w

"Mr. Sullivan knows how to introduce a supernatural element without letting it drag the story off the rails of reality, but his story lacks convincingness for other reasons. No doubt real people are often fluffy, but we expect in fiction the vividness and intelligibility we miss in real life."

— Times [London] Lit Sup p929 N 14 '29 200w

SULLIVAN, EDWARD DEAN. Chicago surrenders. 230p $2 Vanguard press

364 Crime and criminals—Chicago. Chicago —Social conditions 30-29531

"That Chicago has surrendered, root and branch, to organized crime, Mr. Sullivan's new book, on the heels of his previous exposition [Rattling the Cup on Chicago Crime], can leave little doubt in any reader's mind. . . As a newspaper man he has had intimate knowledge of the underworld for a quarter of a century and he knows with especial intimacy and thoroughness the organized thuggery that has taken possession of Chicago. He tells in this book about its gangs and their leaders, their insidious ramifications, their works and their almost unlimited powers, treating separately incidents, personalities and phases of the situation and throughout combining, comparing and weaving together his facts so that they make a pattern of cause and effect going far to explain why Chicago has surrendered and why the network of thuggery is tightening over other cities."—N Y Times

"Mr. Sullivan tells the story of the last years of Chicago's mad, fantastic history in a narrative that sweeps along with fine feeling. Indeed, the book is better written than his 'Rattling the Cup.' He has included a great many fascinating details and quoted from many remarkable conversations. One of the most interesting documents in the volume is the statement of Robert M. Lee, city editor of 'The Chicago Tribune,' in which Mr. Lee explains how it was possible for a crook to be on a paper for eighteen years as a reporter without his immediate employers suspecting him of anything shady." Stanley Walker

+ Books p4 O 19 '30 650w

"Mr. Sullivan's book is a bit nerve-shattering and for that reason it deserves the widest possible reading. It is especially recommended for the careful study of both the militant wets and the militant drys."

+ N Y Times p18 O 26 '30 500w

"In a picturesque and dramatic style he lays before you the facts. The book is a warning that no American should leave unread." W. R. Brooks

+ Outlook 156:348 O 29 '30 220w

Reviewed by W. B. Shaw

R of Rs 83:6 Ja '31 200w

"Mr. Sullivan's book is good journalistic work and may be read either seriously as a contemporary document of importance, or picked up for an hour's entertainment. Much of it, however, is familiar, containing, as it does, stories which have been told a dozen times, by Bennett, by John Bright, and Mr. Sullivan himself." W. R. Burnett

+ — Sat R of Lit 7:360 N 22 '30 620w

SULLIVAN, MARK. Our times; the United States. 1900-1925. 4v v 3. Pre-war America. 586p il $5 Scribner

973.91 United States—History—1898- (26-7896)

Volume three in Mark Sullivan's history depicts the events chiefly of the years 1906 to 1908—the period of the Roosevelt administration in Washington, the insurance scandals in New York, the railroad rate fight, the campaign against the hookworm, Thomas Lawson and frenzied finance. Chapters on pre-war popular songs and the great panic of 1907 are among the most interesting in the volume.

"Mark Sullivan begins well. The narrative enters a different movement with the chapter which the author calls 'An Emancipation,' a profoundly interesting account of the pursuit and ultimate capture of the hookworm. But in the later chapters one is constrained to wonder whether Mark Sullivan did not incur some danger in his detailed treatment of 'the germ of laziness'; perhaps suggestion proved unexpectedly strong. For in these chapters the author contents himself with going over old newspaper files and making notes on the more startling items. The hapless reader is left to do his own digesting and synthesizing." Charles Johnston

+ — Atlantic Bookshelf p46 D '30 280w

Booklist 27:200 Ja '31

"Each succeeding volume of his 'Our Times' makes us admire his industry, his judgment, his power of comparison and his versatility. . . The virtue of the book lies in the relation between trivial things and the main currents of American life. . . Mr. Sullivan's record is the true Americana, and that is its true significance. The fact that two or three dozen people on the last Sunday in December in 1908 put on white dresses and waited for the trump of doom makes a neat item in the Menckenian Americana; in Mr. Sullivan's Americana the important fact is that a hundred million people did not." Gilbert Seldes

+ Books p1 N 2 '30 900w

"Mr. Sullivan has done research work of absolutely inestimable value to any student of the period. 'Our Times' seems like a casual sort of record. It is written with that ease that years of writing for newspapers gives a man—and with the sense of interest and knowledge of a good 'story' that is inherent in the good journalist's pen (or typewriter). But 'Our Times' is something far more important than any mere journalism. Mr. Sullivan has recorded the real spirit of contemporary thought—as well as its letter. The result is not a catalogue, but history."

+ Chicago Daily Tribune p13 N 1 '30

Christian Century 47:1627 D 31 '30 380w

Cleveland Open Shelf p155 D '30

Reviewed by E. F. Brown

Current Hist 33:xxiii Ja '31 700w

"The events of the period are at most but shadowy to the younger generation of Americans whose citizenship has only recently allied them with political, business, and social responsibilities. To this class of readers the volume and its series will afford an entertaining and instructive approach to contemporary history by a writer of skill in well-balanced selection, able to comprehend and articulate in concise fashion a segment of the many-sided American scene which has come under his own intellectual ken." L. E. Robinson

+ Nation 131:740 D 31 '30 620w

"Mr. Sullivan possesses more solid and permanent value when he is laying in backgrounds than when he tells the stories of what happened in front of those backgrounds. He is better at stage design than at acting. If the reader will take the volume for what it is—that is, as a summary and explanation of some thousands of front pages—he will find it vastly entertaining and illuminating." R. L. Duffus

+ — N Y Times p3 N 9 '30 1300w

Reviewed by Harry Hansen

N Y World p11 O 21 '30 650w

Reviewed by John Carter

Outlook 156:628 D 17 '30 80w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:91 D '30

Reviewed by W. B. Shaw

R of Rs 83:6 Ja '31 200w

"Mark Sullivan is making something more than a source book. He is making a sort of exalted, detached, objective Pepys diary of the American Republic, and the volume devoted to the third decade of the new century will be a delight to the heart of many generations." W. A. White

+ Sat R of Lit 7:453 D 13 '30 420w

SUNDERLAND, JABEZ THOMAS. India in bondage; her right to freedom and a place among the great nations. 531p il $4 Copeland

915.4 India—Politics and government. Great Britain—Colonies—India 30-4235

"A passionate arraignment of the British in India by an Englishman born in Yorkshire, who has made America his home and has paid a number of visits to India."—N Y Times

"That his heart is with India is indisputable; that his historic sense is faulty is evident from many minor errors as well as doubtful major conclusions. The greatest recommendation of his book is the fact that it is proscribed in India. It speaks in just the tone and on just the subjects that the government fears." W. N. Brown

— Books p9 Jl 13 '30 450w

"Judged from the standpoint of a plea and a protest, and propaganda, Dr. Sunderland's book is one of the strongest possible documents for the aims and program of the Indian Nationalist Congress. It is a strong presentation of that side of the question. Where it fails is in not giving Great Britain credit for what she has done, and further in failing to see a large measure of the home-rule for which it pleads is possible under the dominion status." T. C. R.

+ — Boston Transcript p1 Ja 18 '30 430w

Christian Century 47:243 F 12 '30 270w

"He writes as the advocate of India's freedom from the foreign yoke of Great Britain, and his words come from the depth of a very warm and noble heart. He cannot write dispassionately, for his whole soul is stirred by the subject he has chosen, and when he remembers all that India's subjection has meant of humiliation and injustice in the past to the Indian people, his emotion is roused and he pours forth a stream of passionate protest. Yet his spirit remains kindly and generous throughout, and he seeks in every way to be fair-minded and true to the evidence which he has laboriously collected." C. F. Andrews

+ Nation 130:398 Ap 2 '30 950w

"After reading it, one who knows the British in India at first hand is inclined to put the book aside, because the portrait is unrecognizable. Mr. Sunderland is hardly conscious of the degree to which his prejudices color his facts." Charles Johnston

— N Y Times p3 Ja 5 '30 350w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:35 Ap '30

"A plea for justice to 320,000,000 people, Dr. Sunderland's book cannot be dismissed as a piece of special pleading. It is the work of a man who has given as much attention and thought to the British case for imperialism in India as to the Indian side of the controversy. Probably no American and few Englishmen are as familiar with the facts as Dr. Sunderland is."

+ R of Rs 81:12 Ja '30 100w

St Louis 28:110 Ap '30

"As the volume is admittedly that of a leading advocate of Indian Nationalism, it is not to be expected that it should be impartial, or that the arguments on the other side should be presented. It is, however, to be regretted that there are so many errors in matters, not of opinion, but of well-known facts. . . The value of the volume is much impaired for the intelligent reader by the unreliability of many of the assertions upon which the whole argument is based, and this inspires a general distrust, even in regard to the errors of policy from which no government can be entirely free." Charles Batchelder

— Sat R of Lit 6:1068 My 24 '30 1350w

"The book will undoubtedly help to dispel the doubts of those who are still pro-Mayo, and those who take pride in knowing a subject fully cannot but be thankful to Mr. Sunderland for his painstaking work. If revised, reducing the unnecessary bulk caused by a repetitious and uncouth style, the book might have a permanent value." J. Vijaya-Tuonga

+ — World Tomorrow 13:135 Mr '30 650w

SURVEY of American foreign relations, 1929 [ed. by Charles P. Howland]. 567p $5 Yale univ. press; Council on foreign relations, 45 E. 65th St., N.Y.

327.73 United States—Foreign relations (28-29330)

For the first annual of this series see Howland, Charles P. (Book Review Digest, 1929).

The first volume of an annual series edited by Charles P. Howland for the Council on foreign relations discussed the underlying factors, traditions and domestic control of American foreign policy; the United States as an economic power; the United States and the League of nations; the financial relations of the United States government after the World war; the limitation of armament. The volume for 1929 is devoted mainly to our relations with the Caribbean and Central American republics with sections on the World court, the Pact of Paris and our immigration system.

"Unfortunately the first page of this admirable book is the worst, containing a muddle of anachronistic statements and quotations. It may serve as a warning that in general its historic introductions have slight value, being highly selective and occasionally inaccurate. They are not, however, used to distort, but to give a general impression, which is reasonably correct. The grasp of the last thirty years is so firm and based upon so comprehensive a knowledge that the vagueness as to the past is not seriously damaging. The tone is decidedly wholesome in view of the sentimentality with which most Americans approach foreign questions." C. R. Fish

+ Am Hist R 35:646 Ap '30 750w

"The Council on Foreign Relations has in this volume for 1929 made another valuable contribution to the understanding of American policies and has maintained the standard of the volume of 1928." G. G. W.

+ Am Pol Sci R 24:519 My '30 200w

Booklist 26:224 Mr '30

Reviewed by F. H. Soward

Canadian Hist R 11:362 D '30 380w

"The examination of all these questions is wholly objective and scientific. The student seeking to equip himself with exact information finds it here, while the citizen desirous of having an intelligent understanding of American foreign relations may feel sure of attaining it if he will keep this volume on his shelves and consult it frequently. No better library of diplomacy and foreign relations could be possible to the average individual than this annual publication, coupled with the Toynbee Survey of International Affairs, published by the British Institute."

+ Christian Science Monitor p14 D 7 '29 550w

"The work throughout is characterized by a scrupulous care for accuracy, balanced treatment and sound writing, and it is an excellent example of what may be achieved by cooperative intellectual effort when scholars, as Mr. Howland tells us is the case here, are willing to merge their identity in a common purpose. For that reason these annual surveys become indispensable to all who are interested in our relations with the rest of the world."

+ Current Hist 31:861 F '30 160w

Reviewed by Percy Winner

N Y Evening Post p10m D 28 '29 950w

Reviewed by J. B. Whitton

N Y Times p34 D 8 '29 1000w

Reviewed by John Carter

Outlook 154:510 Mr 26 '30 200w

"It is a pleasure to come across such a competent, valuable and, indeed, fascinating piece of work."

Spec 144:208 F 8 '30 150w

"The work displays throughout an admirable spirit of scientific impartiality."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p359 My 1 '30 1700w

SUTCLIFFE, WILLIAM GEORGE, and BOND, LINDLEY ALLEN. Savings banks and savings department management. 432p $5 Harper

332.2 Savings-banks 30-18565

"A brief history of savings banks and their types precedes a full discussion of the machinery and the problems of management."—Pittsburgh Mo Bul

Booklist 27:52 O '30

Boston Transcript p2 O 4 '30 550w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:85 D '30

St Louis 28:231 O '30

SUTHERLAND, JOAN (MRS RICHARD KELLY). Secret places. 287p $2 Harper [7s 6d Cassell]

30-13872

A study of two sisters, Greta and Toni, who have opposite conceptions of love. Jealousy, selfishness, and discontent play their parts in this romance which reaches a stirring culmination in a crime passionel.

Boston Transcript p2 Je 11 '30 250w

"The plot is well knit and the characterizations vivid if not subtly done. . . One closes the book with the feeling that it should have been much better. A slight artificiality and a straining after effect mar an otherwise interesting novel."

— + N Y Times p23 My 25 '30 150w

"The story is inclined to be over-written, but the plot moves smoothly enough."

— + Times [London] Lit Sup p338 Ap 17 '30 70w

SUTLEY, ZACHARY TAYLOR. Last frontier. 350p $3 (12s 6d) Macmillan

B or 92 Frontier and pioneer life 30-11175

In 1867 Zack Sutley, a Pennsylvania boy, went to Kansas City for his summer vacation, intending to return to school in the fall. Instead he became a buffalo hunter, a trapper, a stage-coach driver, and finally settled in the Black Hills section of South Dakota. Now a man over eighty he writes his reminiscences of those stirring days when he knew Buffalo Bill, Kit Carson and Jim Bridger.

Reviewed by R. F. Nichols

Ann Am Acad 151:305 S '30 120w

Booklist 26:394 Jl '30

"He tells his story in an unpretentious way, putting in a wealth of homely detail that proves he knows his West and did his work in it. There is none of the romantic vagueness which impairs so many supposedly first hand narratives of the West. Without conscious artistry he slowly builds up a picture, both of himself and of the society in which he lived. The book has a sort of naive and revealing realism." Harvey Fergusson

+ Books p1 My 4 '30 850w

Boston Transcript p2 Je 4 '30 320w

"The book is generally dull." J. F. Dobie

— Nation 131:182 Ag 13 '30 70w

"For all its accuracy and soundness, the book lacks bounce and vigor. It is written in pedestrian style, as if some one had taken the mass of recollections and guided an old man's hand in the composition of a somewhat pallid saga. There is nothing new in the book, but that should not matter; with all that Sutley saw and lived through, it might have had the sweep of an epic. It is as if a very old man were groping back to far-away scenes and trying to re-create them through the mist of years; he remembers, but he doesn't seem to care much." Stanley Walker

+ — N Y Evening Post p11m Ap 26 '30 850w

"The book is a personal saga, interesting and thrilling from beginning to end. Mr. Sutley is one of the few men still living who had a share in the transforming of this great region, and, as his activities were perhaps more varied as to both nature and place than those of most others, his account of them has added interest and value." F. F. Kelly

+ N Y Times p3 Ap 20 '30 1550w

Reviewed by W. J. Ghent

N Y Times p23 My 18 '30 550w

Reviewed by C. J. Finger

N Y World p7m Jl 20 '30 200w

"While there is plenty of excitement in his book, it does not play up too prominently the lawlessness and danger of the frontier, overstressed in so many recent Wild West narratives. Bad men and liquor and Indians fall into their proper places, and you get from it a much better picture of what the West must really have been like." W. R. Brooks

+ Outlook 154:590 Ap 9 '30 100w

Pratt p36 autumn '30

St Louis 28:217 S '30

"Very few books of this kind will compare for authenticity and interest with Mr. Sutley's. The book is full of adventure, of dangerous encounters with Indians, road agents, deputy sheriffs, and bad men, and all presented with a detail and intimacy that are entirely convincing. If there is a criticism to be offered, it is that the author is too modest, and too often retires his personal adventures behind a curtain of regional history."

+ Sat R of Lit 6:995 Ap 26 '30 400w

Springf'd Republican p7e My 25 '30 150w

Springf'd Republican p6 Je 16 '30 450w

Times [London] Lit Sup p637 Ag 7 '30 320w

Reviewed by M. M. Quaife

Yale R n s 20:399 winter '31 100w

SUTTON, MRS BERTHA RADFORD. Catherine de Gardeville. 287p $2 Macmillan [7s 6d Burns]

30-15339

Catherine Lambeth, in reality Catherine de Gardeville, is brought up by a pleasure-loving mother, an English society woman, in complete ignorance of her own father. Catherine feels a strong leaning toward all things Catholic, and when she learns that her father was a Catholic, she insists on joining that church, despite her mother's efforts to circumvent her.

"The only thing in Mrs. Sutton's novel which actually lives and breathes conviction is the Church. Catherine's mother is a paragon of pettiness. Catherine herself is too rare and perfect a creature for the earthly turmoils of the flesh. These human factors in the story are unreal, unanalyzed, unfelt. The Catholic religion stands alone as a background tested, grasped, and unfeelingly embodied. Mrs. Sutton has not told a live tale. She has managed, however, to kindle a flame of life in the expression of her religion."

— + Books p19 S 7 '30 400w

Boston Transcript p1 Jl 26 '30 1400w

"The theme is arresting, the treatment forceful, vivid and convincing, the conclusion, heart-warmingly satisfying. Obviously a novel with a purpose, it sometimes defeats its end and spoils its artistry by lengthy pious reflections better suggested than expressed." V. M. T.

+ — Cath World 131:499 Jl '30 250w

SUTTON, B. R.—Continued

"So obviously a book with a mission that most of any literary quality it might have is overlooked. If the book dealt with convincingly drawn people, the theme would not seem so objectionable. Unfortunately, however, the characters are not flesh and blood, but automatons."

— N Y Times p8 Je 22 '30 400w

Times [London] Lit Sup p1044 D 4 '30 220w

SVEVO, ITALO, pseud. See Schmitz, E.

SVIN'IN, PAVEL PETROVICH. Picturesque United States of America, 1811, 1812, 1813; being a memoir on Paul Svinin; Russian diplomatic officer, artist, and author; containing copious excerpts from his account of his travels in America, by Avrahm Yarmolinsky; introd. by R. T. H. Halsey. 46p,51pl $15 Rudge

917.3 United States—Description and travel 30-7780

"Paul Svinin, gentleman, artist, littérateur, soldier of fortune, diplomat, friend of humanity—was secretary to the Russian Consul-General of the United States in the years 1811-'13. . . 'Picturesque United States of America' consists of two parts—a lengthy memoir on the author and his sojourn in this country, and a portfolio of fifty-two water-color sketches of Eastern United States. The memoir, skillfully edited by Avrahm Yarmolinsky, contains not only a valuable sketch of the author's career, but numerous and lengthy excerpts from his writings on the United States."—Books

"One of the few foreign visitors of the early nineteenth century who found America very much to his liking and did not hesitate to say so publicly was Paul Svinin, a member of the Russian diplomatic service. In written word and in water-colors Svinin made copious comments on his travels in the United States, which upon his return to St. Petersburg appeared in magazine articles and in book form. Constituting an ebullient if not always reliable contribution to Americana, they have happily been brought to light through the research of Avrahm Yarmolinsky."

+ Bookm 71:xxi Ap '30 150w

"A description of early nineteenth century America of unique value." H. S. Commager

+ Books p5 My 18 '30 1000w

Boston Transcript p2 Je 21 '30 420w

Reviewed by H. I. Brock

N Y Times p10 Je 1 '30 1450w

SWABEY, MRS MARIE TAYLOR (COLLINS). Logic and nature. 384p $4 N.Y. univ. press

160 Logic 30-12618

Writing with the main purpose of showing that logical considerations form the basis of metaphysics, the author develops secondarily a critique of naturalism and an argument in support of rationalism.

Boston Transcript p3 Ag 23 '30 600w

"The argument of this book will repay the application required for its mastery." J. S. B.

+ Springf'd Republican p10 Ag 26 '30 450w

SWANSON, WILLIAM WALKER, and ARMSTRONG, P. C. Wheat. 320p il $4 (12s 6d) Macmillan

338.1 Wheat 30-32840

A study of wheat-growing in western Canada, the purpose of which is to show the importance of it to Canadian commercial activities. The authors describe the growing and harvesting of wheat, inspection and grading, the wheat pools, exportation and transportation. They also discuss the relation of the government to the wheat grower, and the future of wheat growing.

"By virtue of Professor Swanson's position in the foremost wheat-producing province, of his wide experience on commissions investigating its problems, of his association as joint author with a technical agriculturist, and of his training and tradition, he has been able to produce a volume which will take an important place in the literature of the subject." H. A. Innis

+ Canadian Hist R 11:270 S '30 550w

"Probably of most interest to Americans are those portions of the volume that explain and discuss the establishment and workings of the grain cooperatives and of what the authors always refer to as 'the pool.' Last year the pool sold over half the wheat crop of the three Provinces. In an admirably judicial spirit the authors discuss the arguments for and against this method of handling the wheat crop and conclude that the pool has been fairly successful in attaining most of its objects."

+ N Y Times p4 Ag 24 '30 600w

Times [London] Lit Sup p759 S 25 '30 180w

SWEDEN, Norway, Denmark, and Iceland in the World war. (Carnegie endowment for int. peace. Division of economics and hist. Economic and social hist. of the World war. Tr. and abr. ser.) 593p $5.75 Yale univ. press

940.349 European war, 1914-1918—Scandinavia 30-9720

An abridgment of the Scandinavian series in the Economic and social history of the World war under the editorship of Professor James T. Shotwell. Contents: Sweden, by Eli F. Heckscher and Kurt Bergendal; Norway, by Wilhelm Keilhau; Denmark, by Einar Cohn; Iceland, by Thorsteinn Thorsteinsson.

Boston Transcript p3 Je 21 '30 650w

Current Hist 33:xxiv D '30 150w

2 SWEDISH SOCIETY FOR ANTHROPOLOGY AND GEOGRAPHY. Andrée's story; the complete record of his polar flight, 1897; tr. from the Swedish by Edward Adams-Ray. 389p il $5 Viking press

919.8 Andrée, Salomon August. Strindberg, Nils. Fraenkel, Knut Hjalmar Ferdinand. Arctic regions. North pole. Aeronautics—Flights

An account of the voyage, achievement and tragically mysterious ending of an attempt to reach the North pole by balloon in 1897. The story is based upon the diaries and journals of S. A. Andrée, Nils Strindberg and Knut Fraenkel, found beside the remains of the explorers on White Island in the summer of 1930. Contents: Part one, biographies of the three men, and preparations for the flight; Part two, story of the flight and the march across ice floes; Part three, (33 years later) discovery of the camp by the Bratvaag expedition, told by members of Dr Horn's party; Part four, signed articles by experts on various aspects of the venture; Part five, the diaries, journals and letters, verbatim, of Andrée and Strindberg. With 31 pages of illustrations from original photographs, in addition to the 12 photographs taken by the Andrée party.

Reviewed by C. L. Skinner

Books p1 D 14 '30 1350w

"Now we have 'Andrée's Story' and never a more gallant tale has come out of the Arctic seas—a tragic tale, but one of courage and fortitude. . . Several editors, working under the direction of the Swedish Anthropological and Geographical Society, compiled the book, and they have accomplished their task—a labor of love—with deep sympathy and extraordinary fidelity." W. B. Hayward

+ N Y Times p1 D 14 '30 1450w

" 'Andrée's Story' makes a fine exhaustive story. It tells everything we need to know about this fated expedition. With it science completes the record of another attempt to solve the mysteries of earth and air—one of a long series in man's growing determination to understand the globe on which he lives." Harry Hansen

+ N Y World D 13 '30 950w

"A complete and fascinating story of the entire expedition from its beginning in 1897 to its conclusion in 1930." B. W.

+ Outlook 156:708 D 31 '30 550w

Reviewed by Vilhjalmur Stefansson

Sat R of Lit 7:497 Ja 3 '31 3250w

SWEET, MRS HELEN FIRMAN, and FAHS, MRS SOPHIA BLANCHE (LYON). Exploring religion with eight year olds. 283p il $2.50 Holt

377 Religious education. Sunday schools 30-7210

Here is a record, mostly in the words of the children themselves, of what a third-grade group in the Union school of religion, New York City, said and did during the sessions of their class for a year. The diary is not blue-pencilled, the frank and eager talk of the children with the teacher on all sorts of topics being recorded each Sunday while it was fresh in the teacher's memory.

St Louis 28:203 S '30

"The book should interest not only teachers in Sunday schools but in any school, and mothers who have problems of religious teaching to solve with their children. It has value also beyond the field of religious education—except as one considers religion as covering the whole of life—for questions of personal behavior, of moral principles, of every side of everyday life came up for discussions."

+ Sat R of Lit 6:974 Ap 19 '30 500w

SWEET, WILLIAM WARREN. Story of religions in America. 571p il $4 Harper 2

277.3 United States—Religion. United States—Church history 30-28469

A comprehensive treatment of American religious history, beginning with an account of the forces that went into its making and closing with a chapter on the churches in the age of big business. Between these limits Professor Sweet traces the development of all the important Christian sects, the social and political issues which have influenced religious growth and the attitude of the churches in critical periods of our history.

Booklist 27:187 Ja '31

"The book has an encyclopedic character, especially in its rediscovery of men notable in their time and of events potent in their influence which have too early been forgotten. But the mass of material does not make the volume unreadable. On the contrary, it is written in an easy style, orders its data in illuminating patterns, lays emphasis on interesting personalities, and thus on the whole presents a text which is as delightful to read as it is valuable to study. . . Let petty criticism be forgotten in due appreciation of the best history of religions in America that has yet been written." J. H. Holmes

+ Books p41 D 7 '30 700w

"Professor Sweet is actively engaged, much of his time, in such collection and organization of source materials as will make it possible, some time in the future, for some man or group of men to write a history based solidly on the primary sources. The author's close contact with such materials has given him the point of view and the method of the scientific historian. He has nothing to prove and no denominational ideas to sell. This volume may be considered as an ad interim report on behalf of this imaginary committee on the writing of a history from the firsthand documentary evidence. It will, and should, supersede all previous efforts." W. E. Garrison

+ Christian Century 47:1627 D 31 '30 550w

"With his comprehensive grasp of general American history, and his trustworthy scholarship, Professor Sweet has produced a work that for many years will serve as a text on this subject within our colleges and seminaries. The religious attitudes toward the great national problems confronting the country in the critical periods of its history, and the mutual effects produced, are accurately treated. Necessarily sketchy in sections, the story of three hundred years is compressed within one volume, yet all the essential facts are set forth." R. E. E. Harkness

+ Crozer Q 8:109 Ja '31 380w

"A competent account, and no less exciting because it is competent. The appeal of the book, apart from the research service it affords students struggling with any phase of American culture, lies in its exceptional news value. It is highly instructive—a virtue that derives chiefly from the sense of historical balance which Professor Sweet maintains throughout. His book is as honest as it is long, and when one finishes it there is the feeling that its author, whatever special predilections he may have had, has pretty well kept them under the tutelage of an engaging narrative." C. W. Ferguson

+ Sat R of Lit 7:488 D 27 '30 1200w

SWEETSER, KATE DICKINSON. Famous girls of the White House. 299p il $2.50 Crowell

920.7 Girls—Biography. Washington, D.C. White House 30-8772

Short accounts of some of the famous women who have lived at one time or another in the White House at Washington. They are: Nelly Custis, stepdaughter of George Washington; Dolly Madison, the charming wife of James Madison; Martha and Mary Jefferson, the daughters of Thomas Jefferson; the daughters of James Monroe; Emily Donelson, niece of Andrew Jackson; Angelica Singleton, daughter-in-law of Martin Van Buren; Julia Gardiner, second wife of John Tyler; "Miss Betty", daughter of Zachary Taylor; Harriet Lane, niece of James Buchanan; "Nellie" Grant, only daughter of Ulysses S. Grant; Frances Folsom, bride of Grover Cleveland; Alice Roosevelt; Helen Taft; and the three daughters of Woodrow Wilson.

"Although, as the author states, no attempt is made to inject political backgrounds, the book offers a decidedly valuable and interesting presentation of White House life." A. L. Shea

+ Chicago Daily Tribune p10 My 3 '30 80w

Cleveland Open Shelf p135 N '30

St Louis 28:217 S '30

Springf'd Republican p5e Je 22 '30 130w

SWIFT, EDGAR JAMES. Psychology of childhood. 431p $3 (10s 6d); educ ed $2.25 Appleton

136.7 Child study. Children—Management. Psychology, Educational 30-7133

To study the child's mind and body in all his relationships, habits, and activities, from infancy thru adolescence, is the purpose of the author. Professor Swift is head of the department of psychology in Washington university, St Louis.

Booklist 26:380 Jl '30

Boston Transcript p3 Je 7 '30 280w

J Home Econ 22:500 Je '30 50w

"It is essentially readable and free of technical terminology." F. G. Seabury

+ Outlook 154:710 Ap 30 '30 170w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:78 N '30

St Louis 28:127 My '30

Reviewed by Florence Mateer

Survey 64:199 My 15 '30 220w

"It has in it the gist of what really has been found out about children and their psychology, and a shrewd report full of common sense on discoveries claimed by enthusiasts to have been made. I feel the more justified in suggesting to a very busy mother that she confine her reading to this book, because, although she may miss some of the details of the information now at the disposal of parents, she will not get any misinformation, she will not encounter any specialist-bulletins whose findings she must not accept without testing them by her own experience." D. C. Fisher

SWIFT, E. J.—Continued

+ Yale R n s 19:828 summer '30 750w

SWIFT, JULIAN, pseud. See Applin, A.

SWINDLER, MARY HAMILTON. Ancient painting, from the earliest times to the period of Christian art. 488p il text ed $5; lib ed $10 Yale univ. press [25s; lib ed 45s Oxford]

709 Painting, Ancient 29-25444

"In about 500 pages of text and over 600 illustrations Miss Swindler presents us with the history of ancient painting from palaeolithic to early Christian times. . . Information which heretofore has been scattered far and wide in countless periodicals, monographs, and books is conveniently summarized with up-to-date bibliographies. The generous number of illustrations helps further to visualize the achievements of each successive age. Including various excellent features—a chronological table of Athenian vase painters, technical discussions, maps, and lively drawings for headbands and tailpieces."—Yale R n s

"The book is a monument of bibliographic reporting and abstraction, and with its 640 illustrations and additional plates provides a handy corpus of ancient art. Students of classical archeology will find in it a long-awaited manual of a difficult subject, hitherto accessible in scattered journals and reports in a half dozen languages. The book lacks, however, the virtue of a work freshly conceived and shaped by independent viewpoints. The author, unencouraged by her great reading, has been content to record the information of others, limiting her own participation to casual marginal comment of a conventional nature." Meyer Schapiro

+ — Books p16 Ap 6 '30 700w

"A vast bibliography, and a set of illustrations, counting up to 656, complete a masterly work for which many of us will ever be grateful."

+ Christian Science Monitor p7 Ja 25 '30 550w

N Y Times p18 Jl 20 '30 230w

"Everywhere Miss Swindler is most careful in her documentation, so that the reader may readily run down the source of any statement. Even the sources of the illustrations are most carefully recorded—a great advantage to the student, which is too often neglected by writers on the history of art. The comprehensiveness of the book is one of its greatest merits." G. H. Chase

+ Sat R of Lit 6:1011 My 3 '30 950w

"Miss Swindler deserves hearty thanks for this comprehensive work, which inevitably has the character of a compilation, though the labour involved in collecting the material and in observing the proportions between different aspects of the subject and the varied opinions of ancient and modern critics can well be imagined."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p695 S 4 '30 1050w

"It is an ambitious undertaking, singularly difficult to achieve in a coherent manner, for the material not only covers several thousand years but is of a rather heterogeneous character—though wall paintings and vase decorations predominate. Miss Swindler has succeeded in giving a well-rounded, consecutive account of the most important products of each epoch, with carefully documented descriptions and discussions, and frequent references to the various current theories on the subject. She has thereby produced not only a very good general history of ancient painting but a most useful reference book." G. M. A. Richter

+ Yale R n s 19:610 spring '30 500w

SWINNERTON, FRANK ARTHUR. Young idea; a comedy of environment. 296p $2.50 Doubleday, Doran

30-6550

The life and love affairs of a group of middle class young people in London before the war. The book was published in England in 1910.

Booklist 26:283 Ap '30

"It is not made of the stuff that lasts. It is a novel for those who want to recapture the feeling of 1910, who are intellectually interested in the development of an author, and whose admiration for Mr. Swinnerton is so great that without danger of disillusion they can smile at him as well as with him." Thayer Hobson

Books p4 Ja 26 '30 850w

Boston Transcript p2 F 12 '30 650w

"There is a peculiar pleasure in comparing the early fumbling attempt of 1910 with the writing of 1917 which produced 'Nocturne.' If it were not for the value of this comparative criticism it would be hard to forgive the American publishers for bringing out of its obscurity such an immature piece of work."

— Christian Science Monitor p7 F 15 '30 250w

Cleveland Open Shelf p62 Ap '30

"In writing 'The Young Idea' Mr. Swinnerton was definitely not writing timeless literature. It has borne the passage of years rather badly, and would have been easy to date, even without the numerous references to suffragists and the stated salaries which rewarded the labors of efficient young women secretaries. If Mr. Swinnerton's findings may be taken at face value, the young idea, since 1910, has grown substantially less visionary." Margaret Wallace

— N Y Evening Post p10m Ja 25 '30 500w

N Y Times p9 Ja 26 '30 500w

"The stifling atmosphere is well conveyed, the detail astonishingly realistic, and the genuine talent of the author continually in evidence. The success of 'Nocturne,' as is sometimes the case, seems to have made it impossible that anything written by Mr. Swinnerton will ever seem thoroughly up to his own standard again; certainly this characteristic, but far from interesting novel from his earlier years cannot be compared with that book."

+ — Sat R of Lit 6:904 Ap 5 '30 300w

SWIRE, JOSEPH. Albania; the rise of a kingdom. 560p il $7 Smith, R.R. [30s Williams & Norgate]

949.6 Albania—History [30-13885]

"Mr. Swire's book is a serious work of very considerable value, more particularly that part of it which is based on MS or other unpublished sources. Some of these sources, most of which deal with the brief and unfortunate adventure of Prince Wilhelm of Wied, are of great interest and importance. For the rest, Mr. Swire seems to have relied largely on the periodical press, but this often questionable source has been wisely and carefully used. . . References are quoted for all important statements of fact; there is a bibliography and a chronology, a few photographs, and some, rather inadequate, maps."—Spec

"Although a number of books have been written on Albania, none of them has shed as much true light on that country as this work by a British author. In gleaning and assimilating his material from every available source, Mr. Swire undertook an enormous task, because of the bewildering mass of sugar-coated propaganda. He has, however, succeeded in extracting the truth and has presented it in an admirably told story. . . All in all, Mr. Swire's book is indispensable as the only exhaustive, impartial and authentic history of Albania." Nelo Drizari

+ Current Hist 32:607 Je '30 700w

"The author speaks very modestly about its literary merits, and certainly in that respect it does fall some way short of perfection. But it is a clear and full history of the 'Albanian question' during the last fifty years; it is written with a commendable degree of impartiality, and it is well documented."

+ — New Statesman 34:396 D 28 '29 1250w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:52 Je '30

"The sum total is a solid and conscientious piece of work, which immediately supplants all other English historical literature on Albania and is unlikely itself to be supplanted for many years to come."

+ Spec 143:914 D 14 '29 650w

Times [London] Lit Sup p263 Mr 27 '30 1450w

SYLVANUS, PADDY. Ten to one in Sweden. 299p $2.50 Appleton

29-27525

Written in the form of the intimate diary of an English girl who spent a winter in Sweden as a family governess, a delightful picture is given of Swedish family life and customs, of holiday menus, special festivals, and the cold beauty of the winter weather.

Booklist 26:121 D '29

"Its drawing quality is due to two things, the attractiveness of the writer's personality, and her sure selection of what is interesting." G. K.

+ Boston Transcript p2 O 9 '29 800w

Cleveland Open Shelf p160 D '30

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:27 Mr '30

Times [London] Lit Sup p579 Jl 18 '29

Wis Lib Bul 25:371 N '29

SYMONS, ARTHUR. From Toulouse-Lautrec to Rodin; with some personal impressions. 242p $4 King, A.H. [15s Lane]

709 Art—History. Artists, French. Toulouse-Lautrec Monfa, Henri Marie Raymond de [30-1289]

"Mr. Symons has already won a name preeminent in criticism as an interpreter to this country of the artistic and literary movements which flourished in Paris at the end of last century. This volume continues the work of many years, of which The Symbolist Movement in Literature and Studies in Seven Arts are outstanding examples. The greater part of it is taken up with a study of the inspired dwarf, Toulouse-Lautrec, who portrayed so vividly the theatres, music-halls, race-courses and lower depths of Paris, and who attained immortality mainly by means of the ephemeral art of the poster. He is tireless in introducing us to figures unknown on this side of the Channel, and though he deals with them in little more than enlarged notes we are grateful for his revelation of Forain and De Groux. And once again he bravely tries to revive Simeon Solomon from undeserved obscurity. The book also includes essays on Guys, Monticelli, Moreau and Odilon Redon, besides the better-known Whistler, Rodin, Manet and Degas."—New Statesman

"When his interpretation is most 'literary', then his prose is stylized—it preserves all the cadences, all the mannerisms, all the vocabulary of false beliefs, of a period when style was literally pursued to death; but in those moments when his enthusiasm is infectious, his judgments sound and generous, and his wide experience and reading properly applied, when, in fact, he ceases to identify himself with a generation long dead and long without the power to influence us—then he achieves a personal style, then he is himself. It is these moments that we have to consider, for they account for Mr. Symons's survival." George Dangerfield

— + Bookm 72:326 N '30 450w

"It is only when Mr. Symons is deliberately the spokesman of a lost generation, as in the case of Aubrey Beardsley, that his book becomes a convincing historical document. Here there is no effort to maintain a critical attitude; Mr. Symons is off guard and quite at his best in erecting a memorial to one of his dearest friends." Horace Gregory

— + Nation 131:588 N 26 '30 550w

"Mr. Symons has very few facts to interest the amateur of nineteenth-century painting. . . With few exceptions, pre-Frey criticism of art is as useless to us as pre-Darwin writings upon biology, and Mr. Symons still lives in a golden age before the invention of diagonal planes and significant form. . . Each paper is principally an excuse for reminiscences of his adventures among the masterpieces of literature. The result has its interest for the historian of taste, but unluckily the papers, some of which must have been written over thirty years ago, are undated." Raymond Mortimer

— Nation and Ath 46:435 D 21 '29 800w

New Repub 65:116 D 10 '30 80w

"With Toulouse-Lautrec, as with many others among the subjects of these essays, the author's personal acquaintance adds a value to his judgments; and if he shows rather too much of a tendency to stress the more lurid side of the scene in which they moved, this sense of actual contact gives a distinct vividness to Mr. Symons's writing."

+ New Statesman 34:374 D 21 '29 200w

"The writing and thinking runs from excellent to quite atrocious. In particular the monograph on Toulouse Lautrec reveals a tedious and repetitious obsession with sex. One scents most disagreeably some sort of senile greensickness in it. Mr. Symons avows himself a devotee of perversity, and justifies it on the good old-fashioned romantic theory that if you sin consciously and courageously you thereby attain purity. Commonsense would say that you merely attain consistency."

— Sat R of Lit 7:460 D 13 '30 230w

"These essays, written at different times over a fairly long period of years, give an illuminating insight into the mind of a typical Englishman of the 'nineties' in a typical, but still rather specialized, Paris of the same epoch. . . An interesting book. It is a pity that the quotations in French were not corrected in the proof." C. G.

+ — Spec 144:537 Mr 29 '30 320w

Times [London] Lit Sup p958 N 21 '29 900w

SYRETT, NETTA. Portrait of a rebel. 326p $2.50 Dodd [7s 6d Bles]

30-12138

The story of an English girl of the Victorian age who was born red-headed and a rebel. Thru all her life of eighty-six years she fought narrowness and succeeded in winning for herself a certain measure of happiness and the admiration of all who knew her.

"Notwithstanding the rather striking frankness of the story and its conventional moralities, the style of its diction is prim and stilted. And the hard father who makes Pamela's home something to flee from has a curiously familiar bearing."

— + Books p11 Ag 24 '30 250w

"She has committed the unforgivable sin of a creator; she has warped her characters to add excitement to her story. Nevertheless, we come away with a feeling of brilliant possibilities and a hope of better luck next time."

+ — Boston Transcript p2 Ag 20 '30 380w

N Y Times p24 S 14 '30 200w

"A good, slightly melodramatic plot which leans heavily on coincidence, carries Pamela's joys and sorrows on to their end. The novel has an amateurish quality. This is balanced by a strong feeling for drama and character. The scene, however, and the dialogue do not give the illusion of the period." F. L. Robbins

— + Outlook 155:467 Jl 23 '30 450w

"On the whole, the novel manages to hang together fairly well, in spite of its lack of compactness, and it is almost always interesting; some of the minor characters are excellent, and many of the incidents have an undeniable vitality. A thoroughly honest novel, written sincerely from the author's heart."

SYRETT, NETTA—Continued
+ — Sat R of Lit 7:129 S 13 '30 300w

"Miss Syrett succeeds in making her characters seem like actual flesh and blood people. The death at the age of 86 of Pamela Thistlewaite completes a full and interesting life story which no doubt helps to throw light on the final emergence of the present-day modern girl from the mid-Victorian miss. 'Portrait of a Rebel' is an emotional story which women in particular will enjoy reading."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 31 '30 230w

"Miss Syrett paints her characters in lifelike colours and makes them most lovable members of the human family."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p26 Ja 9 '30 550w

T

TABOUREAU, JEAN (JEAN DES VIGNES ROUGES, pseud.). Bourru, soldier of France; tr. by Ernest Hunter Wright; new ed., with an introd. by Coley Taylor. 383p $2.50 Dutton
29-29101

"Rouges's 'Bourru, Soldier of France' appeared 10 years ago. We meet Bourru as the French are about to storm Vauquois, in the Verdun region, in 1915. When the book closes they are still there in 1916; the war and its outcome is still a matter of conjecture. . . 'Bourru' was awarded a prize by the French Academy because of its value as a commemorative portrait of the heroic French soldier."—Springf'd Republican

"M. Rouges is writing of poilus in the early years of the war. When he gives his soldiers a zest for the game he is not merely being patriotic; he is painting a true picture, which we must not allow much of the current war literature to blot from our minds." Herschel Brickell
Books p4 N 17 '29 800w

"To compare it with 'All Quiet on the Western Front' is not strictly fair, for it differs too completely in attitude. Whereas Remarque describes the reaction of a sensitive, critical mind to the conflict, Des Vignes Rouges glories in the battle as a temper to the soul of the soldier. 'All Quiet on the Western Front,' containing as it does a full share of restraint and artistic detachment, perhaps makes for greater literature. However, 'Bourru, Soldier of France' as an expression of the 'glory of war' has very definite value as a human document."
+ Boston Transcript p6 N 27 '29 400w
Nation 130:688 Je 11 '30 220w

"M. Rouges shows the reader some of the necessary experiences of war, untinged by romantic patriotism—just the plain unvarnished duties, burial squads, trench life, mines, and harrowing casualties, and a good many things that need to be remembered 10 years after."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 5 '30 300w

TAFT, KENDALL BENARD; MCDERMOTT, JOHN FRANCIS; and JENSEN, DANA O., eds. Contemporary attitudes; essays in many fields of thought. 526p $3 Houghton
814.08 American essays. English essays
A29-883

A collection of fifty-three essays by modern writers, American in the main, grouped under the following topics: prejudices; the American scene; government; business; the college and education; sports; science; religion; ethics; manners; aesthetics; literature. Among the essayists are J. B. Priestley, Agnes Repplier, H. S. Canby, Joseph Collins, Stuart Chase, Walter Lippmann, Ludwig Lewisohn, Stephen Leacock, Stuart P. Sherman, Arnold Bennett, Bertrand Russell, Zona Gale and Max Eastman.

"What, it may in fairness be asked, is such an exhibit worth? Some useful historical purpose may doubtless be served by assembling facts and arranging them in order so that those who care for that kind of thing may see how unlovely the mess is; but if the contemporary attitudes here set out represent accurately the prevailing temper of our intellectuals, one can only conclude that the outlook for the intellectual life in this country is dark." William MacDonald
— Nation 130:48 Ja 8 '30 1100w

Reviewed by E. T. Devine
Outlook 154:150 Ja 22 '30 100w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:31 Ap '30
St Louis 28:76 Mr '30

TAGGARD, GENEVIEVE (MRS ROBERT L. WOLF). Life and mind of Emily Dickinson. 378p il $4 (15s) Knopf
B or 92 Dickinson, Emily Norcross 30-17103

"There is something to be solved in the life of Emily Dickinson—something hidden away in the shaded walks of Amherst—the identity of the man she loved, which will simplify the interpretation of some of her poetry. Miss Taggard, rejecting the confidence of other biographers, identifies him as the Rev. George H. Gould whom Emily could not marry because her stern, practical father had need of her. The identification is based on the sworn statement of an old resident, and other revelations, whispered among the oaks and elms of Amherst, which now become the basis for a thrilling literary controversy. . . Withdrawing into her chamber Emily wrote poems, poems of 'cosmic musing,' not in the least a part of the American poetic movement; thoroughly individual, revealing a philosophy developed in isolation, clinging to neither self-pity nor an air of martyrdom, but appraising the world and life for what it appeared to be. Her father, who affected her life so strongly, never saw the poems."—Harry Hansen in N Y World

Booklist 27:26 S '30

"For the first time full justice has been done to the dominating part played in Emily's life by her father. For the first time Emily is shown against the intellectual background of her age through a series of sketches of such figures as Emerson, Thoreau, Whitman, Hawthorne, and the Brontës, in so far as their lives or writings impinged upon her own. Above all, Miss Taggard, herself a poet, excels in her analysis of Emily's poetry, of her psychology, and of her methods of literary creation." Rockwell Lawrence
+ Bookm 71:445 Jl '30 1400w

"Miss Taggard's critical biography accomplishes what is little less than a miracle of deliverance. Here for once Emily Dickinson has escaped her kin and met her kind. She has been patiently, understandingly, beautifully interpreted by a mind fitted to cope with her own." G. F. Whicher
+ Books p1 Je 22 '30 1100w

"Interesting and occasionally beautiful book which is, undoubtedly, the best book about Emily Dickinson we have yet received." Karl Schriftgiesser
+ Boston Transcript p2 Jl 5 '30 1400w
Cleveland Open Shelf p154 D '30

"Miss Taggard's book is more successful than Miss Pollitt's book, both in its evocation of Emily's life and in its criticism of her poetry. The attempt to define the attitude which lay behind the poetry is suggestive if not wholly satisfying, and Miss Taggard's remarks on specific themes and methods are uncommonly discerning. As a whole the book is by far the best that we have on Emily Dickinson. There is perhaps only one person who could improve on it, and that is Genevieve Taggard herself

if she were given the proper resources, including all available data on Emily's life and the manuscripts of her poems." Granville Hicks
+ Nation 130:735 Je 25 '30 800w

Reviewed by James Thornton
Nation and Ath 47:800 S 27 '30 450w

"The book as a whole has many virtues. It presents Emily about as distinctly as anything could outside of her own poetry, which is quoted too little, partly because of jealous restrictions of copyright. One sees the gay, plain, brilliant girl, dominated by the father who drew the blue-print by which her outer life was erected. One would have liked a bit more of Maggie, the ruling domestic, of Major Hunt, recently described as Emily's lover. One wants much more of George Gould, the true beloved. But one is abidingly grateful that Miss Taggard, in treating Emily, has escaped the idolatry of Mme. Bianchi on the one hand, and the gentle reverence of Mr. Jenkins on the other." Babette Deutsch
+ — New Repub 63:211 Jl 9 '30 680w

Reviewed by Richard Sunne
New Statesman 35:708 S 13 '30 1550w

"The framework is a good one. Even without the affidavits produced here, attesting the identity of George Gould and the circumstances of his connection with Emily—a story which at least two persons swear to have heard from the lips of Emily's sister—Miss Taggard's theory would still fit the facts better than any other that has been advanced. It is chronologically and psychologically defensible, and, in the absence of any other explanation remotely as good, may as well be accepted. Of the emotional background which made possible Emily's extravagant renunciation, we are not quite so sure. . . Whether or not the plot is wholly tenable, the picture constructed from it is undeniably colorful and stimulating, set off as it is by Miss Taggard's vivid and poetic prose." Margaret Wallace
+ — N Y Evening Post p8m Je 21 '30 850w

"If Genevieve Taggard has solved the mystery of the Amherst spinster's phantom lover it will be a relief to readers, although she will have robbed future biographers of their fun. But for one, the present writer is not convinced that the ghost has been forever laid. He is willing to admit that Miss Taggard's identification is more convincing than was Miss Pollitt's; but there are weak spots in the argument. . . 'The Life and Mind of Emily Dickinson' is a book distinguished both for its penetration and its sympathy. . . It is an indispensable completion of the books that have gone before irrespective of whether it solves the identification puzzle." Percy Hutchison
+ — N Y Times p3 Je 22 '30 1450w

Reviewed by Harry Hansen
+ N Y World p12 Je 20 '30 750w

"Genevieve Taggard is soberly drunk on Emily Dickinson. She understands, loves and defends her, without any of that instinct of property in the poet possessed by other Dickinsonians. In a day of fickle and shifting loyalties, this already ten-year-old loyalty must be especially remarked, quite aside from the fruit which that loyalty has produced. . . During the last few years Miss Taggard has been so much under the star of Emily that she has not been able to write any verse of her own. Into this first book of prose went all that type of emotion that usually finds expression in poetry. 'I have written no verse for two years because I wanted to give this book all I had. I could not have done it for any other book of prose.' " Harry Salpeter
+ N Y World p7m Je 22 '30 950w

"Genevieve Taggard's critical study of Emily Dickinson's poetry is extremely interesting. But in its biographical aspects, her book is gushing and somewhat overladen with color. Too much Genevieve Taggard, in this book, makes too little Emily Dickinson. And that is a pity when one considers the amount of love and study which have evidently gone into [its] preparation." F. L. Robbins
+ — Outlook 155:307 Je 25 '30 550w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:67 O '30
St Louis 28:245 O '30

"This is jigsaw biography. However, the point being made, we can glean the outline of a person different from anybody else before or since, which is the main object of all biography . . . Emily Dickinson has triumphed over her biographer as over her photographer. She remains elusive. We refuse to take the mind of Genevieve Taggard instead." Shane Leslie
Sat R 150:346 S 20 '30 900w

"A beautifully written study. . . Keen and sensitive as is Miss Taggard's consideration of the verse, it is still insufficiently critical; for all her dissections her volume bares less of that delicate nervous system than does Conrad Aiken in his eighteen page introduction to the English volume [of the poems]." Louis Untermeyer
+ — Sat R of Lit 6:1170 Jl 5 '30 2600w

"Herself a poet, Genevieve Taggard has brought to her analysis of Emily Dickinson exhaustive study and an appreciation of our Amherst poet which have resulted in a volume of extraordinary value. The incidents of Emily's life, of which there are hardly any, are carefully scrutinized before they are described. But it is the inner, curious working of this unique mind which Miss Taggard, with here and there a touch of genius, brings to a public which reads lightly and is not supposed to understand impalpable things like these. . . It seems almost ungracious to discover errors in a book of such scholarship and literary charm, but several minor inaccuracies should be corrected in later editions." M. L. Todd
+ — Sat R of Lit 7:99 S 6 '30 1400w

"Miss Taggard's critical analysis of the poems is alive and sensitive, and also she is convincing where she explores the complexities of the poet's dual character. She writes with such nervous insight that we would be compelled to respect her conclusions, even if she did not back them up with ample evidence." Richard Church
+ Spec 145:316 S 6 '30 200w
Springf'd Republican p8 Ag 2 '30 1600w

"Miss Taggard's study is in general vital and vivid, though mannered. Miss Taggard would certainly have helped learners more if she had taken her task more easily. She has valuable preceptions and discriminations; but her presentment continually assumes a finer vision than it realizes. She professes to be mistress of the labyrinth, and offers to guide the reader through it forwards and backwards without a thread; and then he finds himself committed to blind alleys, and teased by the needless involutions forced on him, if truth is to be told, by a kind of spiritual sentimentality, by the illusion that the inner life can be described in a hush of allusion and periphrasis."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p775 O 2 '30 550w

TAGGARD, GENEVIEVE (MRS ROBERT L. WOLF), ed. Circumference; varieties of metaphysical verse, 1456-1928. ltd autog ed 236p $6 Covici

821.08 English poetry—Collections. American poetry—Collections 30-3559

"Genevieve Taggard has made a collection of metaphysical verse that has two definite ends in view; first, to build an anthology around the personalities of John Donne and Emily Dickinson, and second, to show how closely the poetry of the seventeenth century resembles that which is being written today. In this fashion the contemporary interest in John Donne and Emily Dickinson is fully justified and the very nature of the collection serves to focus critical attention upon the two protagonists of the volume. The anthology covers the entire range of metaphysical verse in English from William Dunbar to E. E. Cummings and Louise Bogan."—Books

"What Miss Taggard might effectively have done was to represent the seventeenth century group, pass to Miss Dickinson, and then give, with some fulness, the contemporary group who

TAGGARD, GENEVIEVE, ed.—Continued
revive the spirit and the concetti of Donne. This would have made an impressive testimony to the power of Donne and the persistent pungency of his idiom. But not only is the burden of the book somewhat lost in its conveyance across the intervening centuries: the selections from Miss Taggard's contemporaries are not always the poems which really testify to the renascence. The felicity of Miss Taggard's project renders sadly disappointing the comparative want of taste and precision in its execution." Austin Warren
— + Bookm 71:337 Je '30 720w

"Her preface is an excellent and vivid statement of [the] case by which she eliminates Keats from her scheme and gives us a coherent reason for a grouping together of examples from Matthew Prior, William Blake, Robert Browning, Walt Whitman, T. S. Eliot and Robert Frost. The result is a work of high esthetic value and quite aside from her success in achieving a pointed and deliberate critical analysis. . . The entire volume is edited with great precision." Horace Gregory
+ Books p6 F 23 '30 550w

Reviewed by B. R. Redman
Books p12 Je 15 '30 620w

"A most uncommonly fine anthology." C. F.
+ Boston Transcript p2 Ap 2 '30 450w

Int J Ethics 40:570 Jl '30 150w

"In the preface to her bold and far from commonplace anthology Miss Taggard has attempted one of the most difficult of critical tasks—the definition, namely, of that kind of poetry which Dr. Johnson none too wisely called 'metaphysical.' . . Her collection of poems, from William Dunbar to T. S. Eliot and many another modern, is of course a rich one." Mark Van Doren
+ Nation 130:190 F 12 '30 750w

"To the study of metaphysical verse Miss Taggard brings a poet's sympathy and speculative courage. One may liken her book to George Moore's volume of 'pure poetry' as revealing the pitfalls of literary classification, but only after one pays tribute to the magnitude and subtleties of her task, and to the sober understanding with which she has approached it." M. D. Zabel
+ New Repub 62:199 Ap 2 '30 620w

"Genevieve Taggard is, as far as I know, the first to trace the theory of pure form back to its first definite manifestations, as concrete theory, in (English) metaphysical poetry. She has made a move toward a new criticism that may fairly be called creative and has shown a capacity for clear thinking, passionate thinking, as Grierson has put it." Lola Ridge
+ N Y Evening Post p11m Ap 5 '30 1150w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:42 My '30

"In this anthology there is much that is fine, much well-chosen. Yet, disagreeable as it is to quibble with editors, it must be said that Miss Taggard does not really satisfy. One is never certain how surely she has taken hold of her matter. Definitely there are poems which are not metaphysical in any sense, especially among the modern ones. Their only saving virtue here is that they may be good; some are not even that. But it is the preface which displeases most. Excellent in snatches, at times it is so careless that one wishes Miss Taggard had let the poems speak for themselves." Clarence Weinstock
— + Poetry 37:50 O '30 700w

Sat R of Lit 7:44 Ag 9 '30 100w

"This is one of the most interesting collections that any contemporary poet—or publisher—has offered. Its periphery includes circle within circle; its central point is fiery—but Miss Taggard's 'Circumference' is stretched beyond the logic of her theory. . . Miss Taggard is as unsure of her terms as a Humanist. She confuses the metaphysical with the psychological, the fanciful, and the merely unusual, with whatever is not a record of physical sensation. Yet, apart from her failure to document her thesis, this is a rare and rewarding collection." Louis Untermeyer
+ — Sat R of Lit 7:88 Ag 30 '30 630w

TAINE, JOHN, pseud. (Eric Temple Bell). Iron star. 357p $2.50 Dutton
30-4843

Devolution—the process of evolution working in reverse—is the fantastic theme embodied in this novel of strange adventure in the depth of the African jungles. Two American physicists and a doctor, having come across a madman in Chicago, in the person of a former African missionary suffering from the degenerative effects of some unknown drug, follow him to the source of his discovery in Africa. There they battle with an army of grey apes strangely resembling prehistoric man, among whom they find the secret of this power to reverse evolution.

Books p12 My 11 '30 80w

"Nothing can approach certain passages of the book in gruesome but fascinating detail. Though the tale is full of scientific explanations, the reader whose knowledge of chemical formulae is rather vague will not feel himself under any handicap as he reads, nor will his interest lag at any point, whether it be in the passages explaining the scientific phenomena, in those describing the incredible adventures of the scientists, or in the glimpses of the barbarians who inhabit the dense forest of the darkest continent."
+ Boston Transcript p2 F 12 '30 220w

"'The Iron Star' is a scientific phantasy. It is written for those who find a fascination in the merging of the utterly incredible with the realm of logic."
N Y Times p25 F 9 '30 200w

N Y World p7m Je 15 '30 200w

TALBOTT, CARLTON. Droll parade. 122p $2 Liveright
811 30-8624

"That diverting pastime of jazzing up antiquity which Carlton Talbott launched in his 'Ballyhoo for a Mendicant,' he continues and enlarges upon in 'Droll Parade.' The arrangement in this book parodies the course of soberer anthologies by covering a chronological range from the year 900 to 1900."—Books

Reviewed by Ruth Lechlitner
Books p14 Ap 27 '30 320w

Reviewed by E. L. Walton
Nation 130:492 Ap 23 '30 120w

"Superlative nonsense, with just that shred of sense which is necessary for savor."
N Y Times p18 Ap 27 '30 280w

"His wit is unsustained and his vivacity is forced. His rhymes are clever but hardly brilliant, and his conclusions are often lame. The formula is unmistakable; one bizarre character, one safely bawdy situation, a few unusual rhymes, and there you are." Granville Hicks
— N Y World p10m Mr 30 '30 100w

"Droll Parade is history not so much in the little as in the lewd and ludicrous. From 900 A.D. down Talbott presents the lusts and private complaints of royalty, low-life, gargoyles and monks. It is somewhat scholarly, most inconsequential; and it is conceivable that it may make some people laugh very loud." L. T. Nicholl
— Outlook 154:549 Ap 2 '30 100w

"Mr. Talbott's mechanical ingenuity outdistances invention in his second book of droll fables. The dexterous narrative charm of Ballyhoo for a Mendicant is missing in these poems, whose appeal consists almost entirely in feats based on the rhyming dictionary."
— Poetry 36:113 My '30 100w

"Talbott seems to us to have turned his Muse loose in an old rare book and print shop. His gift consists in keeping mustiness from his vignettes. They have a quirky life of their own. They are eccentric but vivid. Yet, though the execution of Talbott's verse is often clever in the extreme, the end of it all seems rather trivial so far as real poetry is concerned." W. R. Benét
+ — Sat R of Lit 6:1144 Je 21 '30 380w

TALIAFERRO, WILLIAM HAY. Immunology of parasitic infections. (Century biological ser.) 414p il $6 Century [25s Bale]

616.96 Infection and infectious diseases. Parasites. Immunity 29-24920

An evaluation of the mass of work that has been done on infections with animal parasites. An introductory chapter deals with parasitic infections. Other chapters describe the various reactions used in studies of immunity, the protective and curative actions of immune serums, and hypersensitiveness and cutaneous tests used for diagnosis.

"This book fills a distinct need in the fields of immunology and parasitology, for hitherto there has been no collection of immunological contributions in parasitology, to say nothing of an interpretation of many of the findings. . . Much misunderstanding has existed regarding the protective and curative action of immune serums because of the conflicting nature of the reports. By collecting them all and criticising them from the point of view of the parasitologist, Dr. Taliaferro has made a contribution of considerable value. The bibliography requires more than passing mention, for it is unusually complete." N. W. Larkum

+ Am J Pub Health 20:797 Jl '30 300w

Nature 125:703 My 10 '30 180w

T'ANG LEANG-LI. Inner history of the Chinese revolution. 391p $5 Dutton [15s Routledge]

951 China—History—Republic, 1912-. China —Politics and government [30-27099]

A narration and explanation of the significant facts of Chinese revolutionary history, giving an insight into the personalities of the men who have exerted greatest influence over contemporary Chinese politics. The author is representative in Great Britain and correspondent in Europe of the Central Executive Committee of the Kuo-Min Tang, and has acted as political private secretary to many of the leaders of revolutionary China.

Reviewed by J. K. Shryock

Ann Am Acad 152:403 N '30 280w

"This careful and detailed study of the Chinese revolution is without question one of the best books on the subject which have appeared in this country. It is written by a Chinese whose position as representative in Great Britain of the Central Executive Committee of the Kuo-Min Tang has brought him in contact with the leaders of the revolution and given him access to documents which no foreign historian could hope to see." F. R. Dulles

+ Bookm 72:92 S '30 500w

Reviewed by Isidor Schneider

Nation 132:20 Ja 7 '31 550w

"Mr. T'ang Leang-li, knows his story from beginning to end, and it is a story deserving of interesting treatment. He is not well equipped, however, to write such a book. He is intensely partisan, an anti-Manchu-dynasty man; he evaluates things in terms of the material; he is without breadth of view . . . and he praises some of the thick-headed military organizers beyond their deserts. He is without the detached, suave mind of the historian, he is without the technique of the literary craftsman. Indeed he does not even understand the placing of emphasis. Unimportant events are treated at length; important events are given at times even less space than rubbishy details. However, his book is an enormous minc of information for those who choose to dig into it and form their own conclusions." Younghill Kang

— + New Repub 65:224 Ja 7 '31 320w

"The author knows what he is writing about. . . Supplementing his own direct knowledge with material collected from contemporary periodical publications, he has succeeded in making the significant facts clear and coherent and in throwing into relief the characters and actions of the principals. And while he writes in a manner as objective and unadorned as Julius Cæsar's, he has also succeeded in producing an exciting narrative which, once taken up, is not to be laid aside easily, and which one may open at any page and find oneself drawn to go on reading."

+ New Statesman 36:306 D 13 '30 1050w

Reviewed by John Carter

Outlook 156:390 N 5 '30 120w

St Louis 28:274 N '30

Times [London] Lit Sup p519 Je 19 '30 250w

TAPLEY, ROBERTS. Harm's way. 353p $2.50 (7s 6d) Knopf

30-7792

"Richard Annesley, the central figure of this novel, is an innocent and sincere young man, who sets out in life believing in most of the accredited social ideals. 'Harm's Way' is the story of his disillusionment."— N Y Times

Reviewed by Guy Holt

Bookm 71:475 Jl '30 40w

"Roberts Tapley is one of our most interesting novelists." Margery Latimer

+ Books p4 Mr 23 '30 1100w

Boston Transcript p4 Ap 23 '30 500w

"The value of the novel lies in the ironic implications surrounding its episodes and in the personality of the author. Roberts Tapley has written a first novel of unusual interest and distinction. It would be an easy matter to compare his method with that of Proust. In fact, a bit too easy. For Tapley's hero is indelibly a product of our New England bourgeoisie, elevated for the past hundred years into all that we can claim for an American aristocracy." Horace Gregory

+ Nation 130:737 Je 25 '30 600w

"Most glaring, in this novel, is the evident lack of self-criticism. Mr. Tapley seems to have been possessed with a vast number of things to say, none of which he was able to isolate or to reject. Some reflection, for instance, might have revealed to him that Babbitt-baiting, since 1920, has been fairly done to death, and that those chapters in which Richard Annesley discovers the American Business Man might well have been pruned, in the interests of originality. Further, he appears to be still experimenting with his style, toying indecisively with such devices as the recurrence of an effective paragraph. The whole seems uncontrolled, loose-strung, tentative, a testing of strength." N. L. R.

— New Repub 63:325 Jl 30 '30 170w

Reviewed by Edwin Seaver

N Y Evening Post p11m Mr 15 '30 320w

"Unlike most novels treating of disillusionment, there is nothing formless or metaphysical in its conception. Mr. Tapley is writing precisely and concretely about a set of social values and a system of conventional thought. He contrasts them sharply with the baseless young idealism of Richard Annesley, the idealism planted by a circumspect society, and fostered by a kind of conspiracy of silence. This sharpness of conception gives weight and direction to the novel. Mr. Tapley's craftsmanship, on the other hand, is less skillful."

+ — N Y Times p24 Mr 16 '30 450w

"With the exception of the hero, the characters throughout are well drawn, but Richard himself moves vaguely through the book like a phantom. It is not until the end that we come to believe he really has a liver, a heart and brain." C. L. Aiken

— + N Y World p11m My 11 '30 350w

"Mr. Tapley has set himself an awkward dilemma: what he adds to the breadth of his satire is taken from the depth of his tragedy, and conversely. Half the book can be recommended to readers who are still amused by the simple humors of lodge conventions; the more serious half simply does not carry conviction."

— + Sat R of Lit 6:929 Ap 12 '30 380w

"The author is too conscious of style and the mechanics of effective writing to organize his material suitably and reject what is irrelevant."

— Springf'd Republican p7e Je 1 '30 370w

TAPLEY, ROBERTS—Continued

"This first novel is written with freshness and sincerity. Its subject, too, though not particularly original, is a good one. The book is too diffuse; there are a number of incidents which would profit considerably by a little pruning. Also, in a story of this kind not a great deal is gained by deliberately making a mystery of certain details."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p670 Ag 21 '30 280w

TARBEAUX, FRANK. Autobiography, as told to Donald Henderson Clarke. 286p $2.50 Vanguard press

B or 92 30-8243

"The story of an adventurer who numbered among his friends Wild Bill Hickok, Jesse James, Oscar Wilde, the King of Hawaii and many other famous people, who gambled and fought and held up stage coaches and raced horses and was up to other nefarious tricks, all of which are related in these pages."—Outlook

---

"Mr. Clarke has well revealed his man by letting him talk, and by refraining from making critical excursions of his own, as so many practitioners of the craft would have done." C. J. Finger

Books p17 Je 8 '30 600w

"The variety of his adventures and the constant change of geographical setting make Tarbeaux's story interesting to the reader—at times even thrilling—and nothing more. It contains little of lasting value."

— + Boston Transcript p3 My 17 '30 350w

Chicago Daily Tribune p9 My 17 '30 80w

"If one may judge by his account of it, Frank Tarbeaux has lived a wild life, wild and tough, a hell-roaring sort of life. And at 77 he looks back upon it all with keen satisfaction. In his opinion, it seems to have been the kind of life for a man to be proud of, and he narrates his story with a zest and a swagger that show what a 'hell-of-a-fellow' he thought, and still thinks, himself to be."

N Y Times p23 Ap 6 '30 450w

Reviewed by W. R. Brooks

Outlook 154:468 Mr 19 '30 120w

TARKINGTON, BOOTH. Mirthful Haven. 319p $2 Doubleday, Doran

30-25307

Mirthful Haven is a little fishing port on the Maine coast which is roused from its stagnation, during the summer, by city invaders. Here Edna Pelter grows up, to suffer from the reputation of a bootlegger father and a sister who has gone wrong. A kind step-grandmother rescues Edna from her shiftless surroundings and gives her the advantage of three years of fashionable schooling. Edna comes back to her father, to find in the Mirthful Haven summer colony the youth who had taken her fancy at the school dances and who had known her under another name. Lacking the courage to tell him who she really is Edna continues to meet Gordon, till his watchful family finds out the truth and drags him away to marry another girl.

"Mr. Tarkington's novel, whatever its fuzzy edges, has nevertheless a peculiarly American quality, a fusion of the inarticulate and the garrulous, of the emotional and the insensitive, of the weak and the gallant, which will give you a feeling of being at home with it. The story does not seem to matter in retrospect. The importance lies in his native sympathy." V. P. Ross

+ — Books p7 S 28 '30 600w

"Mr. Tarkington has never written anything quite like 'Mirthful Haven.' In it he strikes a new, a powerful, a dramatic note. Sometimes we have been impatient with him for his excessive devotion to juvenile characters, fearing that he was so under the spell of their popularity that he would never again turn to anything else, but 'Mirthful Haven' dispels that idea. It shows us Booth Tarkington as perhaps the most versatile of American novelists, at least as one who has command of a wider field of mankind than any of his contemporaries." E. F. Edgett

+ Boston Transcript p3 S 20 '30 1600w

"Booth Tarkington in 'Mirthful Haven' has not done another masterpiece. He has the outlines of another 'Alice Adams,' but his Edna Pelter never will live imperishably in memory as Alice Adams does. Her struggle perhaps was more cruel, but her author has not been able to tear your heart to shreds with it the way he did with the comic-tragic yearnings of Alice Adams. He has done an excellent picture of the silent native of the Maine coast, with, as usual, a good deal of humor. He has made the heroine a touching and romantic figure, but the fire of his greatest work is not in 'Mirthful Haven.'" Fanny Butcher

+ — Chicago Daily Tribune p13 O 4 '30 300w

"Mr. Tarkington, according to the jacket of the latest novel of his, has recently become Dean of American Letters. What he actually seems to have become is the most prolific of our professional novelists and a blooming example of the perils inherent in the profession. He knows every trick of the trade; he has allowed them, in this case at any rate, to get the better of his powers of observation. 'Mirthful Haven' is little more than a hash, a jumble of diverse elements in which good and bad have been hastily scrambled together for lunch-counter consumption."

— New Repub 64:304 O 29 '30 280w

"Mr. Tarkington's new novel is a perfect instance of both his virtues and his faults, a perfect demonstration of the fashion in which he mingles reality with romance and shrewdness with conventionality. . . The altogether story-book captain and the part he plays in concluding the story is a glaring and typical instance of Tarkington's defection from realism. He provides, not the happy ending of the mere romancer, but the compromise ending of the novelist torn between romance and truth. . . 'Mirthful Haven' is extremely good reading; but it is not good literature." Louis Kronenberger

— + N Y Times p7 S 28 '30 950w

"The memory of Penrod and Willie Baxter still brings a cheerful glow; Alice Adams lingers wistfully, and books like 'The Turmoil' and 'The Midlanders' still seem to have had a true value in their comments on life and manners. But thirty years of authorship have brought Mr. Tarkington no nearer to the realities of character than he was at the beginning, and his view of society has not progressed beyond the observant, but not too profound, formula that a good many people have been reiterating for a good many years." M. A. Best

— Sat R of Lit 7:177 O 4 '30 800w

Springf'd Republican p7e O 19 '30 850w

TARLETON, FISWOODE. Some trust in chariots. 308p $2 Dial press

30-24347

A group of earnest school-teachers from the cultured North attempts to educate the illiterate but free-living hill-billies of the southern mountain country—with the result that the missionaries of culture themselves learn a great deal about mountaineers and life in general.

"The great sincerity and the marks of genuine ability evident in this book are admirable. The novel is not first rate: it drags and is frequently clumsy, at times obscure in the relation of events. Yet its theme, once it comes clear, is a high one and its principal characters not lacking in nobility. Some Trust in Chariots is worth reading." Eugene Armfield

+ Bookm 72:176 O '30 280w

"He knows the truth and is careful to cut it clear in strong fiction. His story of the Eastern teachers who have offered, unknowingly, an unpleasant 'cheerity' to mountain men is not a gentle story, nor is it brutal. It is a clear human picture—conflict of codes and emotions, the hurt of one mind against another. It is often as bleak as life in the hills. But the pictures created do not carry with them the disgust of savagery. They are charged with the terror that often accompanies in blood kinship a great eagerness of living. At their best they are true views of living man, and cannot be read dully." Lawrence Lee

+ Books p39 D 7 '30 500w

"Mr. Tarleton knows his folk well, their law and their prophets, their customs and their horrible lingo. His novel is excellent work in the genre school of fiction." Edwin Seaver

+ N Y Evening Post p12 S 27 '30 80w

" 'Some Trust in Chariots' is not all that could be desired, but in spite of the book's rather conspicuous faults it remains an American novel of some import. . . The book savors somewhat of a tract—a tract of instruction for those who would bring a more modern culture to the hills. Still, 'Some Trust in Chariots' is stirring in many of its episodes, and rich throughout in the color of the locality. And there is enough of power and of drama even in this novel to arrest attention and command respect and praise."

+ — N Y Times p6 N 23 '30 550w

TAUT, BRUNO. Modern architecture. 222p il $12 Boni [30s Studio]

724 Architecture [30-705]

" 'Europe has improved on its own historical modes of expression,' this leading German architect declares, 'but America is deliberately delving in the ruins of old Europe. . . In these matters development in America is thirty years behind that of Europe.' He deplores our Doric banks, our Georgian and Spanish country homes. In America he finds architects serving the whims of capitalists, and that mediocre public opinion portrayed in 'Middletown.' Italy and Switzerland are quite as decadent, although less extravagantly so. It is in Holland, Germany, Russia and, to a growing degree, England that he discovers architects constructing buildings expressive of a healthy modern life, especially those dwellings for the middle and lower classes which are an index of the social standards of a community."—Books

"Obviously his picture of American architecture is out of focus. But in spite of his omissions and his somewhat bitter exaggeration, a study of his hundreds of illustrations is sufficient to convince one that in many respects his criticism is sound." W. R. Agard

— + Books p16 F 16 '30 350w

"The printing of the book is excellent and the price reasonable: though one may agree with hardly a word of the letterpress, the point of view is well presented, and the photographs give a wide survey of modern Continental buildings."

+ — New Statesman 34:160 N 9 '29 800w

"Herr Taut wrote his book in England and he is very polite to his hosts—more polite than we deserve. He does, however, make it clear that Holland, Russia and Germany are the places in which to see the new movement at its best, some of the most distinguished German work being his own. His book is a valuable one and will help to give us the new eyes that we shall surely need for a new age." Clough Williams-Ellis

+ Spec 143:955 D 21 '29 100w

"In spite of his difficulties with our language—difficulties which are only apparent in the form of the sentences, and a somewhat staccato style—Herr Taut manages to explode more fallacies in shorter space than any recent writer on architecture that we can remember. His attitude is remarkably detached and independent. . . The numerous illustrations, giving examples of modern architecture of all kinds in all the countries of the world, are an important feature of this very interesting book."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p183 Mr 6 '30 750w

TAYLOR, EMERSON GIFFORD. Paul Revere. ^{2} 237p il $3.50 Mitchell; Dodd

B or 92 Revere, Paul 30-27935

Emerson Taylor draws a portrait of the versatile craftsman and sturdy patriot who as intelligence agent of the Sons of liberty made more than one ride for the revolutionary cause.

Booklist 27:205 Ja '31

"Mr. Taylor makes a most absorbing tale of Paul Revere's many activities, in a book neatly illustrated and delightfully written. The character of the man is portrayed sympathetically, yet with impartial clarity."

+ Books p16 D 14 '30 600w

N Y Times p44 D 7 '30 580w

"Emerson Taylor reëxamines in the light of family papers and other documentary sources the career of the hero who was immortalized by Longfellow on the basis of a rather slender incident in which another man had at least as creditable a part as he." W. B. Shaw

R of Rs 83:18 Ja '31 120w

St Louis 28:302 D '30

TAYLOR, GAY. No goodness in the worm. 267p ^{2} $2.50 Harcourt [7s 6d Gollancz]

30-32845

Valentine, having married Humphrey Spens, discovers that they are temperamentally and physically mismated. She begins a romantic affair with Francis Merryweather, who, with his "dark secretive glances," is patterned after the type of lover in D. H. Lawrence's novels. Valentine soon sees him for what he is, a faithless philanderer, a man whom she can love but never like. The experiences of two other modern girls find place in the novel.

"It is the custom to say of a good first novel that it has promise: of this one it can be said it is a work of art maturely accomplished." K. C. Tomlinson

+ Nation and Ath 47:625 Ag 16 '30 120w

"The three weird women, the silly husband and the ignoble savage, who compose the weedy quincunx of No Goodness in the Worm, are mere lay-figures of the newer naturalism. On the other hand, the rustic background of their sordid complications is dwelt upon with tedious sentimentality, and the book as a whole is as confused as the features of its heroine, of whom we are told that, 'With her fair colouring, she might have been one of Nature's dairymaids, but intelligence had sharpened the contours of her face and disillusion had given her the sulky mouth of a Cimabue angel.' "

— New Statesman 35:686 S 6 '30 160w

Sat R 150:21 Jl 5 '30 180w

"Gay Taylor can create living people, and let them go their own way. She can describe suffering, and shed over an entire book that diffused, even beauty which comes from no purple passages, but from the passionate interest with which the characters are studied." L. A. G. Strong

Spec 145:60 Jl 12 '30 160w

"First novel of exciting quality: one of those uncommon books whose first page is a door through which the reader enters a little world of other people's lives and is lost for the time to his own. Nor does he question the validity of the experience; like it or not, it is intensely real. . . A book that grows in strength as it nears its end makes a second novel by the same hand something to look forward to."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p552 Jl 3 '30 450w

TAYLOR, GEORGE ROBERT STIRLING. English political portraits of the nineteenth century. (Eng title: Seven nineteenth-century statesmen). 327p il $3 Little

923.2 Statesmen, British. Great Britain—Politics and government 29-11453

For descriptive note see Annual for 1929.

TAYLOR, G. R. S.—Continued
Reviewed by Leonard Woolf
Nation and Ath 45:111 Ap 27 '30 200w

"Mr. Stirling Taylor calls these portraits miniatures, no doubt because of their brevity; but for all their economy of detail, they are cartoons of pictures on the grand scale, and, whether one approves the likeness or not, it is obvious that a painstaking craftsman has been at work. Of all of [his subjects] he has something fresh and ingenious to say."
+ New Statesman 33:126 My 4 '29 620w

"Mr. Stirling Taylor has written a book which, though some may find it entertaining, is not otherwise very valuable. He adores Wellington, despises Canning, mistrusts Peel, dislikes Gladstone, fails to understand Disraeli, is negative about Melbourne and reveres Queen Victoria. And he does it all in a very breezy, journalistic, lively way." B. L.
— + Spec 143:658 Ap 27 '30 230w
Times [London] Lit Sup p376 My 9 '30 1200w

TAYLOR, GRAHAM. Pioneering on social frontiers. 457p $4 Univ. of Chicago press [18s Cambridge univ. press]
331.852 Chicago—Social conditions. Chicago commons 30-18133

"This autobiography of the founder of Chicago Commons, a settlement house, and its head resident for more than thirty years, presents an interesting picture of social work in that city."—Publishers' Weekly

Booklist 27:94 N '30
Boston Transcript p2 Jl 2 '30 770w

"Professor Taylor's book deserves to stand with several others which are gradually making clear to the outer world the real nature of that amazing city of Chicago." W. J. Abbot
+ Christian Science Monitor p4 Jl 5 '30 750w
Reviewed by R. L. Duffus
N Y Times p4 Jl 6 '30 750w
Reviewed by W. B. Shaw
R of Rs 82:8 S '30 120w

"Every minister and social worker ought to read this book; teachers of American history and sociology will, I think, find it indispensable. It is not propaganda in any ordinary sense; it is the tale of a man who all his life has been trying to mediate between extremes and to interpret men of widely differing views and interests to each other." J. P. Gavit
+ Sat R of Lit 7:3 Jl 26 '30 1600w
Springf'd Republican p7e O 5 '30 1100w
Times [London] Lit Sup p850 O 23 '30 950w

TAYLOR, HENRY HAMMOND. Knowing, collecting and restoring early American furniture; with a foreword by Homer Eaton Keyes. 156p il $3 (15s) Lippincott
749 Furniture, American. Furniture—Repairing 30-15156

A discussion for the collector of early American furniture giving details about the materials used, construction and finish, brasses and hardware and the evidences of age and wear and other signs of genuine antiquity. Complete directions for restoring and repairing old but damaged pieces are given. There is a chapter on fakes and how to recognize them.

Booklist 27:19 S '30

"No more valuable book than this for the collector of early American furniture could be imagined. The author has collected into one volume a very large amount of useful information."
+ Boston Transcript p2 Jl 2 '30 200w
St Louis 28:213 S '30
Springf'd Republican p10 Ap 29 '30 330w

TAYLOR, MRS RACHEL (ANNAND). [2] Invitation to renaissance Italy; with a pref. by Gilbert Murray. 350p il $4 Harper
945 Renaissance—Italy 30-32178

This volume is a revised and enlarged edition of a book entitled Aspects of the Italian Renaissance (Book Review Digest, 1923). It is a study of Italian renaissance life—political and social conditions, the life of the scholar, the artist, the courtier, the woman of the renaissance, and of Florence, the type-city of the age.

Christian Century 47:1627 D 31 '30 120w

"More people are likely to accept this 'Invitation' than when it was first issued, seven years ago, under the title 'Aspects of the Italian Renaissance,' for since then Mrs. Taylor's book on Leonardo da Vinci has made her more widely known. . . She was a poet before she took to prose; in fact, she is a poet still, and her prose is of the sort that many poets write. One is reminded faintly of Shelley and much more (though, perhaps she will not like our saying so) of Swinburne. In every page we find a radiant riot of adjectives, now clangorous, now flower-soft. In an ecstasy this author lives and it is into an ecstasy that she invites us." S. C. C.
+ — Christian Science Monitor p4 D 6 '30 700w

"The style of this book must be noticed before its subject, for the simple reason that it is a style so obtrusive as to mask its matter. Stripped of its elaborate verbal ornament, the book reveals a paucity of thought so complete that it is impossible to resist the suspicion that it was written primarily as a stylistic exercise. . . As an invitation, designed to communicate enthusiasm, it is doubtful how alluring this rehearsal of names and exfoliation of verbiage will be to the uninformed reader. To one acquainted with the field it will perhaps appeal as a feat that a verbal bubble of this sort could be raised and sustained so patiently with the buoyancy inherent in hollow bodies." Ralph Roeder
— N Y Evening Post p4d N 29 '30 680w
N Y Times p14 N 30 '30 250w

"Mrs. Taylor is literally 'in love' with the Renaissance. Her enthusiasm sweeps one along, enchanted, and is, in an unusual way, combined with profound knowledge. This is a beautiful and complete piece of criticism; it is an amazing storehouse of facts and yet contains a poet's penetration and lyricism. Its rare thought is expressed in exquisite and highly colored prose." M. C. Canfield
+ Sat R of Lit 7:452 D 13 '30 800w

TAYLOR, THOMAS GRIFFITH. Antarctic adventure and research. (Appleton new world of science ser.) 245p il $2 (6s) Appleton
919.9 Antarctic regions 30-7612

Dr Taylor, professor of geography at the University of Chicago, was leader of two parties in Scott's last expedition to the Antarctic in 1913. This book on the South polar regions describes the history of Antarctic exploration, together with several chapters on scenery and topography, climatology, flora and fauna, and commercial and political aspects.

Booklist 27:23 S '30

"Here is a short, readable and certainly most timely book. The author, who is now professor of geography at the University of Chicago, has had experience in the South Polar regions as a member of Scott's expedition." C. L. Skinner
+ Books p26 Ap 13 '30 250w
Cleveland Open Shelf p103 Jl '30

"While nearly all of this matter is presented in very briefly summarized and rather technical form, it is frequently enlivened by graphic and interesting descriptions of the author's own experiences and discoveries. . . In a book intended for lay reading the author might perhaps with advantage to its interest have paid a little more attention to the significance in polar exploration of airplane and radio."

+ — N Y Times p30 Mr 23 '30 400w

Pratt p32 autumn '30

Reviewed by W. B. Shaw

R of Rs 81:8 My '30 150w

"A valuable reference work for teachers, writers, editors, exploration fans, and all others who are interested in real values and in keeping their feet on the ground. It is not adapted to the purpose of those who read only for the thrill of the moment. As a handbook on Antarctic exploration it stands at the top,—on a par with the splendid recent publications of the American Geographical Society." Earl Hanson

+ Sat R of Lit 6:1141 Je 21 '30 480w

TAYLOR SOCIETY, NEW YORK. Scientific management in American industry; H. S. Person, ed. 479p il $6 Harper

658 Efficiency, Industrial. Factory management 29-25168

"This volume, published under the auspices of the Taylor Society, and edited by its managing director, Harlow S. Person, is the joint effort of a group of twenty-six experts to summarize the philosophy, principles, and procedures of scientific management which have been developed in the past decade by its practitioners, and to picture its present-day status and influence. In the opinion of the reviewer, they have attained their objective."—Am Econ R

"In spite of its many authors, this treatise is more than a handbook, a collection of readings, or a symposium. While, as would be expected, there is divergence in style and difference in the treatment from chapter to chapter, it is evident that the chapters have been written to the specification of a carefully planned outline and have been well edited. Thus the book as a whole is given an unusual degree of unity for a work of this kind. . . This contribution of the Taylor Society to the literature of scientific management will undoubtedly become a standard reference book on the subject." F. H. Bird

+ Am Econ R 20:108 Mr '30 850w

"The not infrequent differences of viewpoint between authors prove to be a strong virtue of the book when considered as a teaching medium. These variants serve to free the text from the atmosphere of certainty, common to books on this subject, which stifles the precious curiosity of the student. Any business executive who is willing to arm himself with a pad and a pencil, to turn to that section which nearest approaches his area of concern, and to follow the precepts of Abbe Dimnet and use the book as an 'adjuvant to thought' will find the text highly stimulating and suggestive." E. H. Schell

+ Ann Am Acad 148:298 Mr '30 380w

Booklist 26:226 Mr '30

"The results of the inquiring mind as applied to the day's work in the field of executive direction and control are set forth with unusual distinction. No less than twenty-six experts, including many nationally known industrial engineers, contributed to it, but in spite of multiple authorship an even flow of subject matter and continuity is achieved." R. G. Wagenet

+ Books p18 F 23 '30 350w

Cleveland Open Shelf p66 My '30

Reviewed by W. J. Donald

Survey 64:46 O 1 '30 650w

TEALE, EDWIN WAY. Book of gliders; with [2] an introd. by W. H. Bowlus. 379p il $2.50 Dutton

629.13 Gliders (aeronautics) 30-24024

A complete manual for gliders, containing chapters on the history of gliding, the construction and operation of gliders, how to win a pilot's license and how to organize glider clubs.

Booklist 27:168 D '30

Cleveland Open Shelf p138 N '30

Reviewed by W. R. Brooks

Outlook 156:350 O 29 '30 70w

St Louis 28:293 D '30

TEASDALE, SARA (MRS ERNST B. FILSINGER). Stars to-night; verses new and old for boys and girls; il. by Dorothy P. Lathrop. 49p il $2 Macmillan

811 30-29018

Poems for boys and girls on aspects of the stars, the seasons, birds and the sea, selected from the author's poems old and new. Illustrations by Dorothy Lathrop.

For biographical sketch of the author see Wilson bulletin 5:4 S '30

"For older girls and all lovers of the stars, Sara Teasdale has made a critical selection from her new and old poems to which she has given an expressive title. For this book Dorothy Lathrop has made illustrative accompaniments of rare beauty and imaginative appeal. One feels the artist was set free in space." A. C. Moore

+ Atlantic Bookshelf p50 D '30 50w

Booklist 27:214 Ja '31

Reviewed by K. G. Landon

Bookm 72:249 N '30 80w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Coatsworth

Books p8 D 28 '30 180w

"Great care and thought have gone into this collection and it should find its way to those in the impressionable teen and pre-teen years. As the title suggests, many of the poems are about stars, but there are many others in Miss Teasdale's best strain about flowers, birds and the poet's emotional response to nature. Dorothy P. Lathrop has enhanced the verse with her special gift of rare and imaginative decoration. No other artist can picture stars, snowflakes, ethereal children and tiny wood-creatures as she can, so altogether the combination of these two marks a high point for the juveniles of 1930." Rachel Field

+ N Y Evening Post p7d N 15 '30 180w

"At her best, Miss Teasdale has always proved how finer than all manner of ornamentation simplicity may be." W. R. Benét

+ Sat R of Lit 7:342 N 15 '30 200w

TELLIER, ANDRE. Magnificent sin. 331p $2.50 Claude Kendall, 70 5th av., N.Y.

30-14194

Of English parentage, Jeanne became, on the death of her mother, the adopted daughter of Madame Boucher, who—being an astute Frenchwoman—capitalized shrewdly on the girl's unusual beauty and ability to sing. Jeanne, to whom passion meant life, rose to the fame of an operatic career by changing lovers advantageously. But when she became older, no longer so lovely, and thoroly bored by publicity, Jeanne remembered that somewhere she had a son, and a husband who still loved her.

"This conventionally unconventional tale is written by a young Frenchman who prefers to write in English. He has evidently made a conscious effort to think out his style in his native tongue and then translate it on paper. The book might have been juicier written in the author's own language. But it has a turn of dry humor which, although quite obvious, makes you occasionally laugh."

Books p11 Ag 3 '30 250w

"Out of the series of chance events which had been her life, Jeanne sees the years blocked into a horrible pattern, immutable and firm. Yet out of this wreckage, with all the wisdom and deep feeling of a woman, she is allowed to emerge and face the true realities of life. Convincingly and without too much sentimentality, she is allowed to find love, to feel regret and know the emptiness of fame."

+ N Y Times p29 S 28 '30 280w

TEMPLE, JEAN. Crystal tree. 274p $2.50 Cape
30-11279

Marcia Graves, novelist with two children, two divorced husbands, and a lover, feels that she attains more complete emotional satisfaction with her friend Clara than with anyone else. Her devotion lasts up to Clara's death in childbirth. Marcia falls in love with an editor who is unaware of her love—and under the stimulus of this passion writes a second novel. Always she finds the conflict within her between the crystal tree of art and the living green tree of womanhood.

"As a series of pictures, though artificial and not a little precious, Miss Temple's method is successful; but as a novel it just won't do. Her effects are sometimes beautiful and nearly always interesting, but they never satisfy."
— + Books p14 Ag 17 '30 300w

"Graphically as Jean Temple has propounded the problem of the woman artist, she has come nowhere near a convincing or logical solution. 'The Crystal Tree' is a provocative novel, without being in any sense satisfying. It is written in a delicate, rhythmic style, packed with fantastic imagery—a style, nevertheless, which is somewhat too mannered and brittle to sustain the strength of Miss Temple's purpose."
— + N Y Times p8 My 18 '30 550w

TEMPLE-ELLIS, N. A., pseud. See Holdaway, N. A.

TENNYSON, ALFRED TENNYSON, 1st baron. Devil and the lady; [a three-act play]; ed. by Charles Tennyson, his grandson. ltd ed 67p $5 (10s 6d) Macmillan
822 30-5140

"Here is the earliest extant piece of poetry written by Tennyson; or if there are still with his family fragments as early, they must be insignificant in comparison with this rich comedy in the Elizabethan manner, which, though unfinished, is as long as the average Greek play. . . The Devil and the Lady was written, according to a note by the rector of Somersby, at the age of fourteen."—Times [London] Lit Sup

Reviewed by Edmund Blunden
Nation and Ath 46:705 F 22 '30 1000w

"The play is unfinished; but there is enough of it for us to judge that, in his boyhood as in his maturity, Tennyson had little of the dramatist's gift. Characterisation could not be expected in an author so young, but there might have been some faculty of invention and for liveliness of incident, which is also lacking. The boy was also strongly under the influence of Byron, and the chief characters in the play rival that poet's persons in their verbal incontinence and dramatic impropriety."
— New Statesman 34:538 F 1 '30 280w

"The youthful Tennyson was so preoccupied with making his blank verses that he himself became too confused to make his meaning clear."
N Y Times p5 F 16 '30 800w

Reviewed by Granville Hicks
N Y World p11m Mr 16 '30 200w

"The play shows an almost mature sense of situation, and is built up with such a cunning hand toward accumulative effect that one wonders why this quality in the poet was never developed more successfully. . . The poetic promise of this fragment is even more interesting. It shows in embryo that many-sided and often self-contradictory personality which we recognize in the mature work of the poet." Richard Church
+ Spec 144:202 F 8 '30 850w

"It is little wonder that when the rest of the juvenilia were destroyed, this piece, perhaps through the intervention of the father, was hoarded; though it is easy enough to see why there was never any thought of publishing. . . It would not be surprising if The Devil and the Lady became one of the classics of immaturity."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p75 Ja 30 '30 1000w

TERHUNE, ALBERT PAYSON. Lad of Sunnybank. 322p Harper [7s 6d Chapman]
29-18203

More stories concerning the adventures of Lad, Mr Terhune's collie hero. In these tales the almost human intelligence of the dog is displayed in his relations with other pets and with his human friends.

Booklist 26:205 F '30

"Mr. Terhune, as ever, writes with abundant sentiment. The return of Lad should delight a very wide audience."
+ Books p10 Ja 19 '30 100w

"Sensitively alert, with the carriage of a thoroughbred, Lad strides through the pages of the book aiding fellow creatures and human beings and so placing himself in the niche of heroes. With a sense of the dramatic Mr. Terhune relates at the last Lad's most courageous feat as a fitting climax to his eventful life."
+ Boston Transcript p2 N 30 '29 300w

"The author says that the new volume has been written in response to appeals for more 'Lad' stories from the collie's many friends. So the old collie, long dead, is made to live again in a series of new and exciting adventures. As Lad himself is pictured with the same characteristics, the stories ought to please the old friends, while some new readers will also enjoy them. Mr. Terhune has written other dog stories, but the 'Lad' tales have proved to be the most popular."
Springf'd Republican p7e D 22 '29 130w
Times [London] Lit Sup p737 S 18 '30 200w
Wis Lib Bul 25:373 N '29

TERHUNE, ALBERT PAYSON. Proving nothing. 242p $2 Harper
814 30-29897

Nine essays on varying subjects. The first, "Shot at sunrise?" is a dissertation on the modern ideas of parenthood, beginning with an imaginary view of the probable method of dealing with superannuated parents in 1998.

"Terhune has a knack in telling things which makes you remember what he says. He writes without constraint and with a simplicity which comes from knowing his own mind and what he wants to say. His chapter on his mother has sincerity without sentimentality; it is good writing because it makes no attempt at being fine writing."
+ Books p11 D 28 '30 150w

"Through all the essays are scattered amusing anecdotes and the mood sometimes verges on the fantastic, sometimes on the cynical, while in between these two one finds serious philosophy, realistic facing of facts, humorous discussion, good-humored gayety."
+ N Y Times p27 N 23 '30 220w

Reviewed by Harry Hansen
N Y World p11 D 29 '30 1100w

TERHUNE, ALBERT PAYSON. To the best of my memory. 272p il $4 Harper
B or 92 30-8524

An autobiography of Albert Payson Terhune, the author of the famous dog stories, in which he describes his varied activities. In his Columbia university days he was an expert swordsman and boxer; he had bouts with such famous fighters as Corbett, Fitzsimmons, Jeffries, and Kid McCoy; he was ghost writer for Lillian Russell, Mrs Leslie Carter, Jim Jeffries, David Belasco and others; he served as reporter on the New York World. He has many anecdotes of the famous people with whom he came in contact, such diverse characters as Victor Emmanuel, first king of United Italy, Edwin Booth, Henry Irving, Edward Bok, Joseph Pulitzer, Stanford White, and Admiral Peary.

Booklist 26:395 Jl '30

"Mr. Terhune has written a most illuminating account of his newspaper life during which he met so many celebrities off guard. It is interesting to watch him by 'ghosting', hack-writing, and through his dog stories developing into a celebrity himself. His story is informal and witty; just journalistic enough to make excellent reading."
+ Bookm 71:xviii Ap '30 100w

"That Terhune possesses a large measure of writing skill, this autobiography proves. The chapters describing his boyhood are rich in incident and racily objective. He understands people as he understands dogs."
+ Books p14 Je 8 '30 270w

"There is a charming humor through it all, although he takes a whole paragraph to explain how little he has. But above all there is a novelty in method of approach, a host of fascinating details, and a wealth of comfortable human gossip, which make this an unusual biography." I. W. Lawrence
+ Boston Transcript p3 Ap 18 '30 1550w
Cleveland Open Shelf p95 Je '30

"This is a first-rate autobiography. It is a human document which bears the stamp of truth." C. McD. Puckette
+ N Y Times p5 My 25 '30 770w

Reviewed by Harry Hansen
N Y World p11 Mr 19 '30 900w
St Louis 28:218 S '30

"A lovable and unimportant book. One regrets to find so much cheap, ill-informed writing in the book."
+ — Sat R of Lit 6:1095 My 31 '30 750w
Springf'd Republican p12 Ap 18 '30 800w

TERRETT, COURTENAY. Only saps work; a ballyhoo for racketeering; with a foreword by Morris L. Ernst. 257p $2 Vanguard press
30-18746

"Courtenay Terrett, who is one of the night hawks of newspaperdom, as he expresses it, has written a book about racketeering which has no counterpart for devastating irony. Terrett calls it 'Only Saps Work' and depicts racketeering as the future great industry of America, if not industry itself. . . Terrett blandly pictures a new United States—a Nation of efficient rackets, in which the present disorderly waste will have been eliminated, in which crime and business will become indistinguishable."—N Y World

Reviewed by D. H. Clarke
Books p10 Jl 27 '30 670w
Boston Transcript p2 Jl 23 '30 150w

"Mr. Terrett has told [his] story breezily and well. While the description is chiefly concerned with New York, the author has branched out to include some examples in the hinterland. He does not, however, throw fresh light upon the prodigious legal rackets of special privilege which are far more important to the majority of us than the rackets based upon violence."
+ — Nation 131:331 S 24 '30 150w

"It is not a pretty picture that Mr. Terrett has drawn, but one feels that it is essentially a true one. Proof as to the details of racketeering is, in most cases, lacking. The racketeers are naturally reticent, and their immediate victims dare not tell what they know." Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p3 Jl 20 '30 680w

Reviewed by Harry Hansen
N Y World p11 Jl 3 '30 950w

"If you read this book you will know a good deal more about the large and small scoundrels who ruin and in part rule us here than you do now. The picture is not pleasant. We think, however, that it would have been more forceful if the book could have been better written. Courtenay Terrett has most of the worst faults of the journalistic writer and few of his virtues. But he is a brave man. To write so frankly and in such detail of these dangerous and powerful thugs requires real courage." F. L. Robbins
— + Outlook 155:428 Jl 16 '30 180w

TERRILL, HAROLD MORLOCK, and ULREY, CLAYTON TRIDLE. X-ray technology; the production, measurement and applications of X-rays. 256p il $4.50 Van Nostrand [21s Chapman]
537.54 X-rays 30-6967

"Practical rather than theoretical, emphasizing methods of measurements for voltage and current, ionization, total energy, wave length, and biological effects. Dr. Terrill is associated with the Institute of Cancer Research; Dr. Ulrey is Research Physicist of the Westinghouse Lamp Company."—N Y New Tech Bks

"This book covers a unique field and on this account alone it would be truly welcome, but it is also splendidly done by these two authors who are well qualified by training and experience." G. L. Clark
+ Ind & Eng Chem 22:565 My '30 450w
N Y New Tech Bks 15:38 Jl '30
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:75 O '30
St Louis 28:234 O '30

TERRY, CHARLES SANFORD. John Christian Bach. 373p il $8.50 (25s) Oxford
B or 92 Bach, Johann Christian 30-15822

A biography of the musician John Christian Bach, youngest son of John Sebastian, who was known as the "English" Bach because he spent the greater part of his life in England. The son enjoyed during his life greater fame than the father, and was chiefly known as an operatic composer. The biographer describes the cosmopolitan life of this popular musician, and gives a thematic catalogue of his compositions.

Booklist 27:63 O '30

"Mr. Terry's life is the painstaking work of a scholar. It makes no attempt at brilliancy but is content to set down the facts of John Christian's life and to draw from them their evident conclusions. Of more than ordinary value to the book are the voluminous excerpts from Bach's music given in the appendix. It is a work for scholars and for Bach enthusiasts." Grenville Vernon
+ Bookm 71:449 Jl '30 350w

"A biography of John Christian Bach, which is not only a masterpiece of thorough and exact scholarship, but makes delightful reading as well. . . At length time has taken its revenge upon an indifferent and forgetful world. Professor Terry's admirable and fascinating volume forever removes John Christian Bach and his wife, Cecilia, from the danger of oblivion, and his long neglected music is being heard once more within our concert rooms. The book is handsomely printed, and illustrations, both pictorial and musical, enrich it lavishly. There is also a good index." Peter Bowdoin
+ Books p2 Ap 20 '30 1500w
Cleveland Open Shelf p51 Ap '30

"The work fills a sad gap and fills it completely. Mr. Terry deserves the gratitude of the entire music world." David Ewen
+ Nation 131:74 Jl 16 '30 250w

"Mr. Charles Sanford Terry's biography of John Christian Bach is of quite exceptional merit. It is a work of sound scholarship in a field that is almost unexplored, and unlike many books whose scholarship is their conspicuous merit it is concise, well written and excellent reading."
+ New Statesman 34:744 Mr 15 '30 650w

"The book is entertaining as well as scholarly; and there can be no doubt that it is the definitive treatment of its subject." Richard Aldrich
+ N Y Times p13 My 11 '30 1080w

"Dr. Terry's biography of the prolific and forgotten musician is a heavily documented work, packed with material and shrewd comment. It shows the amazing enthusiasm of the musical historian and annotator or the eighteenth century following the death of Handel." Richard Church
+ Spec 144:393 Mr 8 '30 700w
Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 30 '30 80w

TERRY, C. S.—Continued

"From its nature this work appeals more to the musical historian and annotator or the leisurely student than to the general reader. But it represents an investigation well worth undertaking."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Je 1 '30 470w

Times [London] Lit Sup p313 Ap 10 '30 520w

THACKERAY, WILLIAM MAKEPEACE. Thackeray alphabet. unp il $1 Harper [3s 6d Murray, J.]

30-14538

" 'The Thackeray Alphabet,' we are told, was designed for [Eddy], the little son of friends young Mr. Thackeray chanced to be visiting nearly a hundred years ago. It was probably written and drawn about 1833. 'Eddy,' who was Colonel Edward Frederick Chadwick, counted his Thackeray alphabet among his most cherished possessions, and often quoted the verses from it during the course of his long life."—Books

"The format and hand composition of this charming reproduction of 'The Thackeray Alphabet' in facsimile, designed by A. W. Rushmore, are a delight to the hand as well as to the eye. Children who like funny pictures are sure to enjoy the little book, and their elders will find it a delightful addition to their Thackeray associations." A. C. Moore

+ Books p8 My 4 '30 300w

Reviewed by A. L. Shea

Chicago Daily Tribune p13 My 31 '30 120w

"The typography, paper and the facsimile reproductions are so excellent as to make the book a delight."

+ N Y Times p18 My 11 '30 100w

Sat R 148:690 D 7 '29 130w

Reviewed by Rachel Field

Sat R of Lit 6:1146 Je 21 '30 120w

Spec 143:856 D 7 '29 130w

Springf'd Republican p6 Ap 14 '30 420w

THANE, ELSWYTH, pseud. (ELSWYTH THANE [RICKER] BEEBE) (MRS WILLIAM BEEBE). Bound to happen. 361p $2 (7s 6d) Putnam

30-29552

Charles and Cicely Gordon, having been politely and agreeably married for fourteen years, suddenly find themselves violently in love, respectively, with Nancy and Richard. Since happiness means to them a lot more than Charles's political career (he is an M. P. and protégé of the prime minister) they decide to be divorced, and live for the one thing in life that is really worth while to them.

Booklist 27:210 Ja '31

Books p25 N 23 '30 180w

"She writes with great charm. She talks of prime ministers not as prime ministers, but as people, and members of parliament as mere men. There is a gentleness and whimsy about her characters that is refreshing. And the book has really an exciting plot that pops up in the middle of it, like a jack in a box, and startles you." Edith Weigle

+ Chicago Daily Tribune p16 N 29 '30 50w

Reviewed by Edwin Seaver

N Y Evening Post p4d O 25 '30 150w

"Excitement and subtle ironic humor hold the reader's attention."

+ N Y Times p20 N 23 '30 100w

Sat R 150:829 D 20 '30 120w

"A bright, witty, urbanely written comedy of love and manners, with English gentle folk involved in a quadrangular affair of the heart, this is one of the most entertaining light novels of the current fiction crop."

+ Sat R of Lit 7:314 N 8 '30 200w

THAYER, LEE (MRS EMMA REDINGTON [LEE] THAYER). They tell no tales. 314p $2 Sears [7s 6d Hurst]

30-1703

" 'They Tell No Tales' permits the reader to accompany Peter Clancy, the private detective, and his invaluable valet, Wiggar, in many respects smarter than his master, half way around the world while they solve the mystery of a slain woman and the attempted kidnapping of the heroine. The murder happens on board ship, and the victim, one of the ship's staff, is strangled to death to prevent her exposing the person who has tried to kidnap the heroine."—Springf'd Republican

"Many pleasing shudders come with this lightly and expertly spun tale." Will Cuppy

+ Books p18 Ja 19 '30 100w

Boston Transcript p2 My 3 '30 200w

"The story is swift, dramatic and full of mystery."

+ N Y Times p24 Ja 26 '30 180w

Springf'd Republican p7e F 2 '30 200w

Times [London] Lit Sup p338 Ap 17 '30 200w

THAYER, TIFFANY, pseud. (ELMER ELMSWORTH, Jr.). Thirteen men. 323p il $2.50 Claude Kendall, 70 5th av, N.Y.

30-14195

Frank Miller, young intellectual, manages to murder thirty-eight people before he gives himself up. The main chapters of the story deal with the lives of the twelve men who are selected to serve on the jury at his trial. Frank gives as his motive for murder the desire to rid the world of several stupid persons, and thus (since life bores him) to provide himself with a novel method of committing suicide. The jury, however, brings in a verdict of insanity.

"The idea of using the jury box as a substitute for the principle of unity is not one of startling ingenuity, but it is by far the best the book has to offer; beyond that it will shock the simple and bore the sophisticated."

— + Bookm 71:ix Jl '30 100w

"The stories of the twelve men's lives, told from no philosophical angle whatsoever, are good reading. They are related with speed, humor and verve. They are smart and smutty, and sometimes both the smartness and the smut pall, but not badly. There is something about this flow of stenographically recorded detail that hypnotizes your attention. . . You have a wide range of types to choose from; some one of the men is almost bound to make a good bid for your favor. . . There is just one man in the book who could safely be passed over, the murderer. He is an arch cynic plunged to the hilt in disillusionment and futility complexes by (guess what!) Rabelais, Lewis Carroll and Ben Hecht. What the twelve jurors do with him is just right and a final satisfaction to the reader." M. C. Dawson

+ — Books p7 Je 15 '30 550w

Boston Transcript p2 Jl 30 '30 350w

N Y Times p8 Je 22 '30 200w

"The book shows a certain relentless approach to the problem of man's inconsistencies and protective gestures. The unedifying details of human existence are set down without an attempt to spare the weak. The humanists would call this book a glaring example of the need for humanism. It is just possible, though, that the author's pose of superior knowledge of mankind masks a sensitive and courageous artist." Harry Hansen

+ N Y World p11 My 29 '30 320w

"This curious book is full of a macabre sort of gayety and has somewhat the effect of a rain of machine gun bullets on the reader. At least interest does not languish for lack of good red blood which flows freely and in the most expected places." Bernice Whittemore

Outlook 155:310 Je 25 '30 100w

THEWS, EDMUND RICHARD. Metallurgy of white metal scrap and residues. 383p il $5.50 Van Nostrand [25s Chapman]

669 Metallurgy. Alloys 30-5868

"First American work on the recovery of white metal wastes, including zinc and aluminum materials, with special reference to the requirements of small and medium sized plants. Has chapters on refractories, furnaces, crucibles, chimneys, flue-dust recovery, and sampling."—N Y New Tech Bks

"As the first truly comprehensive book on the recovery and refining of nonferrous metal scrap and residues, its publication is most timely. . . To those engineers who classify all scrap metals as 'junk,' which through the devious processes of junk dealers and 'back alley' refiners become secondary metals, to be viewed with suspicion and distrust, this work should come as an illuminating treatise. The large fund of information it contains will be just as valuable to those closely associated with the secondary metal trade." W. H. Finkeldey

+ Chem & Met Eng 37:638 O '30 550w

Cleveland Open Shelf p109 Jl '30

N Y New Tech Bks 15:22 Ap '30

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:52 Je '30

THIERY, MAURICE. Captain Cook, navigator and discoverer; tr. from the French by C. J. C. Street (Eng title: Life and voyages of Captain Cook). 273p il $3.50 McBride [15s Bles]

B or 92 Cook, James 30-12166

"In 1741 the determination and conviction of knowing what he most wanted to do sent James Cook, at the age of thirteen, down the road to the sea and on to his ultimate fame as one of the foremost navigators and explorers the world has known. Maurice Thiéry has chosen his material well, selecting much of it from Cook's own journal and logs. He depicts the adventures of Cook from his apprenticeship as cabin boy to his final high rank as Captain in the Royal Navy under George III."—Bookm

Reviewed by W. H. Wells

Bookm 71:227 Ap '30 350w

"M. Thiéry evokes the reader's unlimited confidence as he proceeds, holding fast to truth, therefore getting right proportions, dealing in plain statements and plain issues. . . It is one of those books that is likely to open up a vista for many a reader." C. J. Finger

+ Books p13 My 4 '30 380w

Boston Transcript p5 Mr 22 '30 950w

"A foreign biography of Captain James Cook must be an unusually good one to be worth translating into English. M. Thiéry has nothing new to tell us; the 'delightful irony' which we are promised on the dust-cover never materialises; and there are several bad mistakes of fact. Yet the book is very readable, for the author has a trick of lively narrative and a genuine enthusiasm for his subject. M. Thiéry's book has a simplicity and directness that should make it specially attractive to those younger readers who are not already familiar with the inspiring story of Cook's career."

+ — New Statesman 34:168 N 9 '29 180w

"This book does not shed new light on the character and achievements of Captain Cook, but it is nevertheless a clear and sympathetic portrait drawn with understanding by a man whose native land paid generous tribute to the explorer, even when France and Britain were at war." W. B. Hayward

+ N Y Times p11 Jl 20 '30 1500w

Reviewed by Bellamy Partridge

N Y World p10m Mr 23 '30 250w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:67 O '30

St Louis 28:273 N '30

"This book tells the story of Captain Cook's life accurately, dramatically, brilliantly, and is a capital book to read. Yet an Englishman who knows his countrymen and has any claim to a trained historical sense cannot but feel that there is something wrong. The very method of writing, with its extreme economy of effort, seems to have a kind of inner incompatibility with the subject—a man who throughout his life was prodigal of effort. The resulting portrait of Cook is 'external' and artificial. It is all high lights. It outlines his salient characteristics—love of the sea and of England, courage, devotion to duty, endurance, and so forth—but misses the man himself."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p1062 D 12 '29 350w

THOM, BURTON PETER. Dust to life; the scientific story of creation. 409p il $5 Dutton

575 Evolution 30-1425

The story of the evolution of plant and animal life, from the earliest life forms to the great prehistoric monsters and prehistoric man.

Reviewed by H. M. Parshley

Books p10 Je 15 '30 80w

Boston Transcript p2 F 5 '30 550w

"Dr. Thom's book is bigger and better than its title indicates—even if it does not tell how dust became life or how creation was achieved. . . His success is in part due to his arrangement of the factors and stages of the development of matter from atoms to man, but more to his method of treatment and still more to the spirit in which he has envisaged the whole process and endeavored to make his reader see it in the same wholeness and light. For he perceives it with something of the poet's imagination, although scientifically he is accurate and dependable in all his facts and statements. But it must be charged against him that his writing is too often careless and slovenly."

+ — N Y Times p44 D 8 '29 320w

St Louis 28:99 Ap '30

"The best part of the book is the descriptive treatment of evolution, but even here the author shows a sad lack of biological and philosophical background. Not only is his biology weak but in his description he uses mechanistic, purposive and moral terms quite indiscriminately in a most annoying way. The book as a whole gives the impression that the author is usually out of his depth."

— Spec 145:284 Ag 30 '30 220w

THOMAS, ALAN ERNEST WENTWORTH. Daggers drawn. 284p $2 Brewer [7s 6d Benn]

30-24947

Faber, timid and sensitive, grows up with the egotistical and overbearing Rockstro, who has always delighted in tormenting him. During the war Rockstro gets a D. S. O. and Faber a bad case of shell shock. A few years afterward the two meet in a London club, where Faber, mentally unbalanced and goaded beyond endurance, murders Rockstro. The third part of the story is given over to Faber's trial for the murder.

Bookm 72:xx S '30 120w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Books p24 S 28 '30 100w

"The plot is thin and the situations uninteresting in many places; only the picture of pitiable Arthur saves 'Dagger Drawn' from complete mediocrity."

— + Boston Transcript p5 O 11 '30 250w

"At a time when there is no dearth of literature concerning crime, it is good to come upon a book that possesses qualities outstanding in its field. Such a book is 'Daggers Drawn.'"

+ N Y Times p16 D 28 '30 150w

THOMAS, DOROTHY SWAINE, and others. Some new techniques for studying social behavior. (Child development monographs) 203p $1.50 Teachers College

136.7 Social psychology. Child study 29-19073

A monograph on child study, compiled from exact, laboratory observation of the behavior of children under special conditions. Some of the topics discussed are the social activities of children, group formation, and personality differences.

THOMAS, D. S., and others—Continued

Reviewed by Kimball Young
Am J Soc 36:298 S '30 1300w

"The reviewer is impressed by the meticulous care of the author in her experiments, and he believes that the techniques developed will ultimately be useful to science. The reviewer does not, however, share the conclusion of the author that the laboratory method with statistical treatment is the only adequate approach to a scientific study of sociological data or even that it is the most significant one. Students of social behavior will, however, want to read the book carefully. They will, no doubt, be impressed not only by the painstaking care of the experiments but by their possibilities in the development of the science of sociology, particularly in its application to education." E. G. Payne
+ El School J 30:313 D '29 480w

St Louis 28:287 D '30

"Dr. Thomas and her associatės have produced a book significant to education and to sociology." J. R. Mendenhall
+ Survey 63:485 Ja 15 '30 350w

THOMAS, MRS ELISABETH FINLEY. Light lady. 347p $1 Farrar
30-30574

Unscrupulous Natalie Harlowe, married to a wealthy but elderly judge, casts her scheming eye upon an attractive young painter. When her husband discovers what she has done and turns her out, she goes abroad with her lover. But Natalie, without money, is soon bored with her artist and leaves him for a higher bidder.

Books p16 N 2 '30 220w

Reviewed by Edwin Seaver
N Y Evening Post p6d N 15 '30 50w

"In making Nathalie a person with only beauty, which the reader cannot see, and entirely without warmth or grace, the effectiveness of the book is lost. . . She is a thoroughly disagreeable person who fails to be interesting and so will not be remembered as long as many other similarly disagreeable persons who nevertheless have a spark of some human quality she lacks."
— N Y Times p31 N 16 '30 400w

"This plot is far from new, but the author has made it distinctive by her treatment, her knowledge of her characters and their surroundings. She writes crisply and with a kaleidoscopic vividness."
+ N Y World p3e D 21 '30 180w

THOMAS, ELISABETH WILKINS. Ella. 247p $2.50 Viking press
30-26379

Ella's life experience—the little things that happen to her daily, and her own individual thoughts from girlhood to maturity—is the theme of Miss Thomas's first novel. The story, narrated in a distinctive, poetical style, tells of the children she played with, her school days, her years at college, and the beginning of her career as a teacher in a private school.

Booklist 26:314 My '30

"The failure to communicate life or meaning to her principal, almost her only, character is a prime defect in a book which is enlivened with moments of genuine beauty." Guy Holt
— + Bookm 71:238 Ap '30 130w

"An unusually effective first novel, Venetian glass, if you will, in the fragility and minuteness of its detail, in the self-imposed limitation of subject and substance; but within its compass, lucid and unevasive. It is especially interesting as an exploration of some of the by-paths of sex without the sound and fury that such expeditions usually occasion." Mary Ross
+ Books p6 F 16 '30 520w

Boston Transcript p7 Mr 15 '30 250w

"By giving edge to Ella's sense of renunciation, the author might have vitalized her novel; its fragrance would then have become bittersweet instead of slightly sickish. If Miss Thomas will cease prettifying and moralizing, if she will always strip the feeling as she does in the death scene, she may mature her gentle talent, which does not compare in fun and tang and economical writing with Lizette Woodworth Reese's 'A Victorian Village.' "
New Repub 63:242 Jl 16 '30 250w

New Statesman 35:414 Jl 5 '30 100w

"Whether the singleness of mood in 'Ella' is craft or limitation Miss Thomas's later books must show. It is enough to say of this one that it is infused with that poetry out of which the best prose is constructed. It takes for its sole material, in Herbert Read's phrase, that 'intermittent life of feeling which is the only reality.' " Vincent McHugh
+ N Y Evening Post p10m F 15 '30 600w

"It is in the last exquisite chapter that the lovely and unusual quality of the book attains its full perfection. It is as if the author found there all that she had been seeking."
+ N Y Times p8 Mr 9 '30 450w

"In its narrow and rarefied limits the book is done with exquisite perfection of detail. Its flavor is that of a light breeze that has passed over a delicately fragrant, old-fashioned garden. It is a piece of work striking in its quietude amid a fictional age full of sex blatancy and tabloid audacity. It is hardly a universal book or a profound one—but for the more thoughtful, patient and unworldly reader it has its rewarding humors." Marie Luhrs
+ N Y World p11m Ap 6 '30 200w

"A charming first novel. . . There is a childlike freshness about it that will delight you, and it is even an important book, just because it deals with the unimportant things that make up nine-tenths of our lives—the nine-tenths upon which we really base whatever knowledge and wisdom we apply to the problems of the important other tenth." W. R. Brooks
+ Outlook 154:311 F 19 '30 120w

"There is [in the story] an atmosphere of keen emotion, and an indefinable quality that one must call charm. It is impossible to explain, but perhaps it comes from the character of the heroine and her view of life. Ella has one conquering quality, she is always herself. 'Ella' will probably not be widely popular, but will win great admiration from its own predestined public." Basil Davenport
+ Sat R of Lit 6:773 Mr 1 '30 420w

"Miss Thomas has a pleasant talent for presenting an episode clearly and stopping at the right moment, and a sense of character. Her next book, freed of too much soul, should be well worth reading."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p577 Jl 10 '30 300w

Wis Lib Bul 26:107 Mr '30

THOMAS, KATHERINE ELWES. Real personages of Mother Goose. 352p il $3 Lothrop
821.04 Mother Goose. Political ballads and songs, English
30-24533

The author traces from political and literary English history the real origins, in satirical verse, of our present Mother Goose rhymes. She finds, for example, that Humpty Dumpty was really Richard III; Little Boy Blue, Cardinal Wolsey; Jack Spratt, Charles I; the Queen of Hearts, Elizabeth, queen of Bohemia; Curly Locks, Charles II; and Wee Willie Winkie, William IV, prince of Orange.

Reviewed by E. F. Edgett
Boston Transcript p1 N 12 '30 2000w

"A carefully considered, richly documented and earnestly critical study of those masterpieces of childhood verse, the Mother Goose rhymes. Miss Thomas has turned to Mother Goose in the same sedate and conscientious spirit with which one might turn to Vergil, Milton or Shakespeare." S. A. Coblentz
+ N Y Times p2 N 30 '30 550w

THOMAS, LOWELL JACKSON. Hero of Vincennes; the story of George Rogers Clark. 195p il $2.50 Houghton

B or 92 Clark, George Rogers. Vincennes, Indiana 29-23483

The hero of Vincennes is George Rogers Clark, and this biographical story outlines his romantic career. Mr Thomas begins with his boyhood, when Clark listened to tales of scouts and Indian fighters, takes him as a surveyor into the wilderness of Ohio, describes certain of his important Indian negotiations, and the famous capture of Vincennes.

Booklist 26:209 F '30

Cleveland Open Shelf p128 S '30

"Lowell Thomas tells of the exploits of George Rogers Clark with all the vividness and enthusiasm for his hero which made 'The Sea Devil' such a satisfying narrative. 'The Hero of Vincennes' is sound history and a first-rate story." A. H. Bill

+ N Y Evening Post p14m N 16 '29 230w

"A somewhat stodgy biography. The author gives the impression of having conscientiously read up on his subject but never of having any particular enthusiasm for it." A. T. Eaton

— N Y Times p25 Mr 2 '30 130w

Reviewed by O. M. Fuller

N Y World p11m Mr 9 '30 130w

St Louis 28:53 F '30

Wis Lib Bul 26:45 Ja '30

THOMAS, LOWELL JACKSON. India: land of the Black pagoda. 350p il $4 Century

915.4 India—Description and travel 30-30413

An account of a two years' journey thru India from which the author brought back a unique motion picture record of life in every section of the country.

Reviewed by A. R. MacDougall

Books p5 D 28 '30 200w

Boston Transcript p1 N 22 '30 1000w

"At present, we are accustomed to looking in books on India for propaganda of one sort or another, for judgments and for panaceas. Mr. Thomas leaves all this mercifully alone. The most he says by way of prophecy is, writing of Gandhi, 'Nations, like individuals, have periods of sleep and periods of activity. . . When India has yawned herself wide-awake she will clap her 320,000,000 hands and the mosquitoes of Anglo-Saxon western bureaucracy will disappear.' " F. L. R.

Outlook 156:427 N 12 '30 180w

"Both in text and pictures, this book is strikingly different from the usual thing." W. B. Shaw

+ R of Rs 83:12 Ja '31 200w

THOMAS, LOWELL JACKSON. Lauterbach of the China sea; the escapes and adventures of a seagoing Falstaff. 302p il $2.50 Doubleday, Doran

940.48 Lauterbach, Julius. European war, 1914-1918—Naval operations. European war, 1914-1918—Personal narratives. Emden (cruiser) 30-32696

Describes the lively adventures of Captain Lauterbach, a fat, jolly German sea captain, who during the World war was prize officer of the famous Emden. Lowell Thomas narrates the adventurous career of that ship, her last battle, his own escape, and his subsequent experiences in escaping from place to place, and his life as commander of the mystery ships of the Baltic and then of the raider Moewe.

Bookm 72:xil D '30 100w

"The story moves along in a personal, jolly tone and will appeal to all who love marine adventures told by an unpretentious rollicker who has lived a life crammed with them." A. R. MacDougall

+ Books p15 D 28 '30 200w

"One of the best stories of naval war adventure we've read." Al Chase

+ Chicago Daily Tribune p16 N 29 '30 120w

"A rare tale is this of the sea and the war and of those two famous German raiders, the Emden and the Moewe, a Falstaffian tale, for Captain Lauterbach enjoys his little boast now and then. Apparently his story is true, amazing yarn though it is. At least, Lowell Thomas, who has captured in it one of the best and most entertaining tales the World War has yet yielded, seems to believe it is all straight truth."

+ N Y Times p37 N 16 '30 420w

THOMAS, LOWELL JACKSON. Wreck of the Dumaru; a story of cannibalism in an open boat. 271p il $2.50 Doubleday, Doran

910.4 Dumaru (steamship). Shipwrecks 30-24227

Near Guam, the ill-fated Dumaru, struck by lightning, blew up. The crew took to the open sea in two life boats and a raft. This is the story of the survivors in life boat No. 2. told by Fritz Harmon, assistant engineer. The overloaded boat, containing thirty-two men and a far from adequate supply of biscuit and water, drifted under a burning sun, for twenty-four days, toward the Philippines. Eighteen of the men died. Those remaining, having no food or water, were forced to feed on the bodies of two of the dead. After a nightmare of intolerable exposure, thirst and madness, the boat landed on a coral reef, and the men found relief and care at the kindly hands of the islanders.

Booklist 27:202 Ja '31

Bookm 72:xv N '30 150w

"A stark and brutal picture, with a shudder in it even for those whose taste is for the macabre."

+ Books p22 N 23 '30 180w

" 'The Wreck of the Dumaru' is unpleasant reading. It is full of the most ghastly details, and is so terrifyingly vivid in its narrative and description that the reader is confronted with a reality that is appalling. Mr. Thomas writes simply, but completely." E. H.

+ Boston Transcript p1 S 13 '30 1550w

" 'The Wreck of the Dumaru' is only fairly well written; but the horrors of the narrative would compel one to read to the end, however badly done."

— + N Y Times p4 S 21 '30 1000w

St Louis 28:299 D '30

THOMAS, MILTON HALSEY, and SCHNEIDER, HERBERT WALLACE. Bibliography of John Dewey. 151p $3 Columbia univ. press [15s Oxford]

012 Dewey, John—Bibliography 29-29685

A complete list of John Dewey's writings up to July, 1929, and all that has been written about him, annotated and chronologically arranged. With an introductory essay on John Dewey's empiricism by H. W. Schneider.

Am J Soc 36:344 S '30 100w

Booklist 26:259 Ap '30

Int J Ethics 40:456 Ap '30 200w

Reviewed by Henry Hazlitt

Nation 130:100 Ja 22 '30 30w

Pratt p6 summer '30

Times [London] Lit Sup p328 Ap 17 '30 580w

THOMAS, OSWALD. Heaven and earth; a modern astronomy; tr. by Bernard Miall. 231p il $2.75 Norton [7s 6d Allen, G.]

523 Astronomy. Cosmology 30-13150

A popular treatment of present-day astronomical knowledge which answers such questions as: What are the canals on Mars? Why do comets have tails? Why is there a shower of meteors in August? What causes sun spots every eleven years and what effect do they have on our lives? How large is the Milky way? How many stars are in the sky? How large is the universe? The author was formerly chief of the Urania observatory at Vienna.

THOMAS, OSWALD—Continued

Booklist 27:17 S '30

"For those who would renew their acquaintance with the facts which they once met in the seventh grade of their schooling, under the guise of general science, Heaven and Earth is as good as, if not better than, most of the books about the stars. An unusually stimulating final chapter attempts to clarify the nature of the universe and the conception, basic to an understanding of the question, of Einstein's fourth dimension."
+ Bookm 71:iv Ag '30 150w

"One is impressed by the care and accuracy with which he makes his descriptions, and the detail that he expounds in a manner that robs it of its alarming intricacy. The expositions are made with care; they are logical and precise, and betray careful study of recent astronomical developments. The diagrams are excellently drawn and arranged. But the chapters bear the imprint of their original lecture form. Carefully and neatly planned, they never rise to the heights that their theme might be expected to inspire." Cecilia Payne
+ — Books p23 S 14 '30 600w

"This is not only an up-to-date astronomy, but it is a scientific book that reads like a romance. One gets information here by the painless method, without struggle or mental anguish."
+ Boston Transcript p2 Je 7 '30 230w

"It is neither better nor worse than a great many other books on the subject (which is to say that they are all quite good). It lacks the verve of Jeans's 'The Universe Around Us,' but then we cannot always have classics. The author would have done well to include an index." Benjamin Ginzburg
New Repub 64:107 S 10 '30 60w

"The book is most attractive in subject matter and in manner of treatment." Clyde Fisher
+ N Y Evening Post p4s Je 7 '30 230w

"This is one of the best of popular volumes on astronomy available for a Summer's reading and a rapid gleaning of information."
+ N Y Times p19 Je 15 '30 300w

"If you are really looking for enjoyable and profitable reading, pick up 'Heaven and Earth,' and revel in a well-written book about the sun, moon and stars." Harry Hansen
+ N Y World p11 My 26 '30 600w

St Louis 28:209 S '30

Springf'd Republican p14 My 28 '30 180w

Reviewed by Leon Whipple
Survey 64:41 O 1 '30 230w

Times [London] Lit Sup p763 S 25 '30 320w

THOMAS, WENDELL MARSHALL. Hinduism
2 invades America; introd. by Harry Emerson Fosdick. 300p $3 Beacon press, 318 W. 39th st, N.Y.

294.5 Hinduism. Hindus in the United States
30-28588

"A good many people will be surprised that the invasion of America by Hinduism has assumed serious enough proportions to call forth a book on the subject. They will be surprised, if they read Dr. Wendell Thomas' book, to discover the extensiveness of Hindu operations in this country. Doctor Thomas has not written as a propagandist of any sort, nor as an apologist for any theory. . . The main portion of the book is occupied with description of the activities of two Hindu cults doing missionary work in America—the Ramakrishna Mission and the Yogoda Sat-Sangha Society. A final chapter deals in brief with several minor movements. In the case of the two major movements we have historical sketches of the way in which each cult has come to America and the manner of its development. —Crozer Q

"The book is no sense a polemic against Hinduism. The author is no alarmist. He is not trying to stir the American public to resist the invasion. He has made a sympathetic and scholarly attempt to present the facts as to a movement which for good or ill is definitely going on, and which is likely to be greatly accelerated under the steady shrinking of the world due to improved means of travel and communication." C. S. Braden
+ Christian Century 47:1491 D 3 '30 1000w

"His book is a straightforward narrative of facts gathered after a very careful investigation. It is the more welcome because it reminds us, as Doctor Fosdick points out in a foreword, that the influence of Christianity and Hinduism on each other is mutual. It is inescapable when peoples of two high cultures come into contact with one another, as is happening today both in India and in America, that there should be a mutual give and take. America needs to know not only about what is being given, but what is being taken." A. S. Woodburne
+ Crozer Q 8:115 Ja '31 450w

THOMASON, JOHN WILLIAM. Jeb Stuart. 512p il $5 (15s) Scribner

B or 92 Stuart, James Ewell Brown
30-28932

A biography of the picturesque and dashing J. E. B. Stuart, southern cavalry leader, who was a major general at twenty-eight and whose meteoric career ended when he was killed in action in 1864.

"The author is admittedly partisan and his heart is with Jeb Stuart, gayly leading the elegant, sporting young gentlemen of the South. We are not, however, allowed to miss the full tragedy of the situation, for tragedy it undoubtedly was. . . Dashingly, as cavalrymen should, they ride through the pages; Jeb Stuart, huge Von Brocke, with his terrible sabre, expert arranger of parties, and gallant John Pelham of the Horse Artillery, unfortunately killed taking a busman's holiday at Kelly's Ford." A. W. Smith
+ Atlantic Bookshelf p44 D '30 500w

Reviewed by H. M. Robinson
Bookm 72:425 D '30 250w

"Mr. Thomason's volume is a spirited and eloquent one, decidedly one of the best military biographies that has appeared recently. His account of the ride around McClellan is as fine a piece of description as you are likely to meet, and his accounts of Seven Days', Antietam, Chambersburg, Fredricksburg and Chancellorsville are both full and brilliant." H. S. Commager
+ Books p5 N 2 '30 650w

Boston Transcript p3 D 27 '30 700w

"Other hands have attempted to relate the story of Jeb Stuart, bright sun in the galaxy of cavalry stars developed by the war between the states, but no other writer has succeeded half so well as has this captain of United States Marines. . . Captain Thomason neglects none of the little touches that so clearly reveal the human and lovable side of Jeb Stuart. At the same time he retells, in unforgettable language, the story of the Confederate cavalry's part in the fighting done by the Army of Northern Virginia."
+ Christian Science Monitor p4 D 6 '30 400w

"It is with the same spirit of sympathy and affection for a hero so chivalrously lovable, so romantically stirring, that charms in Hergesheimer's Stuart sketch, 'Gold Spurs,' that Captain Thomason approaches Jeb Stuart. . . It is an intimate biography, warm, colorful, convincing. The picture of a happy warrior rejoicing in life, love and the task he was supremely fitted to do. . . Captain Thomason has been finely successful in realizing what he tells us he has attempted—'a portrait of a splendid human soul, expressed through the profession of arms.' " F. H. Martens

+ N Y Evening Post p4d N 29 '30 400w

Reviewed by C. W. Thompson
N Y Times p12 N 16 '30 600w

"We cannot recall any biography of a Civil War leader with half the dash, color and smartness of Jeb Stuart. . . Even if you can't read, his pen-and-inks are worth more than the $5." W. R. Brooks
+ Outlook 156:628 D 17 '30 120w

Reviewed by W. B. Shaw
R of Rs 82:18 D '30 150w

"Given a professional soldier of Confederate lineage and loyalty, wielding a sprightly, romantic pen on the career of the most alert and high-hearted of cavalry commanders, Captain Thomason's 'Jeb Stuart' results. It is here set forth with engaging phrase and infectious gusto which carry the reader without fatigue except where the tale of campaigns is overladen with names of places, officers, and unit, or with excess of statistics." U. B. Phillips
+ Sat R of Lit 7:418 D 6 '30 480w

THOMPSON, CHARLES JOHN SAMUEL. Mystery and romance of astrology. 296p il $4 Stokes [15s Brentano's]
133.5 Astrology 30-33472

An historical survey of the oldest of the occult sciences from its origins in the star-worship of the earliest civilizations thru its development, to the middle ages, and thence to the time of its decadence in the eighteenth century. There are chapters on some of the notable astrologers and on astrology in the works of Dante, Chaucer, Spenser and Shakespeare.

St Louis 28:291 D '30

"Mr. Thompson has collected a great deal of curious material, but he has not succeeded in fusing it into a homogeneous narrative, and his style is slipshod. The best things in his volume are the numerous illustrations, well reproduced from illuminated manuscripts and old wood-cuts."
— + Sat R 148:787 D 28 '29 150w
Times [London] Lit Sup p14 Ja 2 '30 100w

THOMPSON, EDWARD JOHN. In Araby Orion. 93p il $1.50 Farrar [3s 6d Benn]
30-28405

A short, poignant novel recording the happenings on a march east of Jordan during the World war, and the death of Corporal Henry Bateman, who dying, saw "in Araby Orion."

Bookm 72:xv N '30 30w

'It is a moving book and should be read by everybody; it will not easily be forgotten. Yet it is not an integral whole, a monolith granite. . . It is, nevertheless, of the authentic granite of true writing, fragments of rock cemented together into a prime whole." Henry Williamson
+ — Books p5 N 23 '30 900w

"It cannot be denied that Mr. Thompson has written an elegy in prose of great sincerity and strength. The vivid beauty of the Jordan valley is admirably contrasted with the agony of the advancing column. There is no coloured language, no shocking descriptions of wounded men, no blood lust, no barbed wire. It cannot be given to the war babies as a deterrent to future jingoism. The book is objectless, because it is a work of art." R. P. F. Strachey
+ Nation and Ath 47:538 Jl 26 '30 200w
N Y Times p8 N 30 '30 280w

" 'In Araby Orion' is a singularly harmonious story, in which the merits of subject-matter, setting and style are about evenly balanced. . . Mr. Thompson has performed the difficult task of doing full justice to the emotional implications of this theme, without becoming mawkish, melodramatic or otherwise objectionable."
+ Sat R 150:178 Ag 9 '30 220w

"Mr. Thompson is, as he has proved before, a poet whose romanticism is based on reality and who can therefore see the moon rising above a slough of mud. He neither shirks ugliness nor fears beauty, and this very small book should, by reason of its perfect balance and because it shows the worth of the cannon-fodder, be more of a power for peace than many of its revolting contemporaries." B. E. Todd
+ Spec 144:874 My 24 '30 200w
Times [London] Lit Sup p666 Ag 21 '30 550w

THOMPSON, EDWARD JOHN. Reconstructing India (Eng title: Reconstruction of India). 404p il $4 Dial press [10s 6d Faber]
954 India—Politics and government 30-25496

Mr Thompson outlines the history of the British-Indian question in the first part of this volume; part two is a discussion of politics in India; part three contains a final plea for dominion status as solution of the difficulties.

Reviewed by G. T. Garratt
Nation and Ath 47:796 S 27 '30 700w

"There are histories and controversial books in plenty, dealing with the British system and Indian Nationalism. There was room still for an analysis of the record, and a statement of the problem in 1930, by a modern Englishman, writing with knowledge of the intellectual and social ferment in India and out of a personal experience gained through working among young Indians. These qualifications Dr. Thompson possesses in an eminent degree, while the independent position he has made for himself in controversy gives special value to a volume that could hardly have been more advantageously timed."
+ New Statesman 35:682 S 6 '30 1150w

"Mr. Edward Thompson, as one 'above the battle,' has written just such a fair, well-balanced and compelling book as the situation demands. No praise can be too high for his manner of treating the major problem of our time. It is a book which, for the first time, places the British-Indian question in proper perspective."
+ Spec 145:285 Ag 30 '30 1150w
Springf'd Republican p6 O 13 '30 550w

"Mr. Thompson essays, presumably for the uses of America, to state impartially the facts of two hundred years of Indian history, and to show that the political reconstruction of India cannot be the happy inspiration of a moment, but is a process which has continued throughout centuries, and which will continue throughout years to come. He is eminently fair. He does not pretend that the English originally came to India as missioners of peace and godly living. They came as traders; they became one of the many Powers co-existing in the land. Mr. Thompson is fascinatingly suggestive: we have already said that he is eminently fair. Yet an element of clear thinking seems lacking in his judgments."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p676 Ag 28 '30 1050w
World Tomorrow 13:472 N '30 350w

THOMPSON, WARREN SIMPSON. Danger spots in world population. 343p $3.50 Knopf 312 Population. Economic conditions
29-21193

"That international friction is largely due to overpopulation in some countries and underpopulation in others, is the thesis of this book. The economic future of England, the problems presented by the crowding of Japan, China and Italy, white Australia, the relations of German and Slav are some of the topics treated."—Cleveland Open Shelf

"This is a sincere, concise and clearly presented statement of the problem of national pressure of population as a cause of national unrest and ultimately possible war. Coupled with this, the author offers a remedy for relieving population pressure by its redistribution in lands not yet fully occupied. Although the remedy may provoke wide dissent, the survey of actual conditions which prevail in countries burdened by an excessive population justifies the most thoughtful consideration of those interested in international relationships." D. R. D.

THOMPSON, W. S.—Continued
+ Am Econ R 20:349 Je '30 480w

"This is a pioneer book by one of the nation's outstanding students of population. The title of the book is inadequate if, indeed, not a little unfortunate. The book is, in reality, a series of significant comments on national policies with reference to the utilization of the world's resources. . . It is a stimulating book, simply written, indeed almost naïve in places, but the simplicity is, in the reviewer's opinion, the consequence of mature thought rather than of innocence." O. E. Baker
+ Am J Soc 36:300 S '30 900w

Reviewed by H. P. Fairchild
Ann Am Acad 147:207 Ja '30 620w
Booklist 26:224 Mr '30
Bookm 71:vi Ap '30 100w

"We shall, presumably, know more of these things some day and understand better how to adjust population to economic and geographic conditions. Such careful studies as Mr. Thompson's help toward that end. Even if his appeal to France, England, Holland and Australia to give up their surplus lands falls on deaf ears today, as it certainly will, it is a contribution to a problem which our descendants may face more intelligently." Lewis Gannett
+ Books p27 N 17 '29 1000w
Boston Transcript p2 O 2 '29 800w
Cleveland Open Shelf p37 Mr '30

Reviewed by H. P. Fairchild
Current Hist 32:409 My '30 750w

"There is much good in this book. It is not cheap and sensational like Lothrop Stoddard's 'Rising Tide of Color.' It is moderate and conciliatory in tone, marked by an absence of racial vainglory which is highly commendable. The main criticism of it is that the author thinks of international problems in terms of birth rates." W. P. Hall
+ — New Repub 61:150 D 25 '29 500w

"Freedom of production is the answer which American economic thought would suggest to the horrendous questions so brightly posed by the author of this vigorous and stimulating study of the sources of international conflicts." John Carter
+ N Y Times p18 N 10 '29 1450w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:6 Ja '30
St Louis 28:37 F '30
Sat R 150:873 D 27 '30 580w
Spec 145:255 Ag 23 '30 800w

"The outstanding merit of this book is that it represents an emphatic plea for the treatment of a great international problem on the basis of reason, goodwill and foresight rather than the traditional grounds of self-interest, greed, and force. This plea is by no means visionary, but is supported by an abundance of detailed factual material collected from widely scattered sources. Professor Thompson is peculiarly qualified to speak on this subject, for not only has he been a student of population problems for many years, but he has also traveled widely all over the world and has seen with his own eyes that whereof he writes." H. P. Fairchild
+ Survey 63:163 N 1 '29 800w

"A book of most remarkable quality. . . The book has its defects. But the solid merits of the book outweigh its not inconsiderable weaknesses."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p443 My 29 '30 2200w

"A straightforward, dependable study of one cause of war about which there has been too little discussion in recent years."
+ World Tomorrow 13:186 Ap '30 50w

THOMPSON, WARREN SIMPSON. Population ^{2} problems. (McGraw-Hill publications in sociology) 462p $3.75 McGraw
312 Population 30-24230

"Among the outstanding features of the volume are the chapters dealing with urban agglomeration, with differential birth rates and international politics, and with the control of population. All the problems of quantity are very fully and adequately handled. But the problem of quality receives the attention of only one brief chapter. . . Dr. Thompson sees clearly that the era of casual land grabbing for the building of trade empires is about over and that there will have to be some extensive redistributions of areas suitable for European settlement if international tensions are not to grow."—Survey

Booklist 27:189 Ja '31
J Home Econ 23:74 Ja '31 100w

Reviewed by H. P. Fairchild
New Repub 65:52 N 26 '30 230w
St Louis 28:289 D '30

"Dr. Warren S. Thompson, director of the Scripps Foundation for Research in Population Problems, has as fine an opportunity as any living man to drill into the population tendencies of any people on the globe. . . Without depreciating the texts already in this field, it is safe to say that this text is far and away superior. . . In the book there is no ax-grinding. Our author has a very broad outlook and always the positions he takes are philosophical and urbane. . . Probably no other man writing today has so adequately treated existing differential national birth rates as a possible instigator of future wars." E. A. Ross
+ Survey 65:228 N 15 '30 350w

THOMSON, GEORGE PAGET. The atom. (Home univ. lib. of modern knowledge) 252p $1.25 Holt [2s 6d T. Butterworth]
541.2 Atoms 30-17926

A popular account of the modern theory of the atom which devotes a fair amount of its space to the new wave theory of mechanics and atomic structure.

Bookm 71:vi Ag '30 100w

"The needs of the general scientific worker and the scientifically minded layman wishing to acquire a general knowledge of the advances and spirit of contemporary physics are very fittingly met by Prof. G. P. Thomson's admirable little work. The author has, in a short compass, presented an up-to-date survey of physical theory and its bearing on chemistry with an extensiveness which would not be suspected from the title." N. M. Bligh
+ Nature 125:667 My 3 '30 350w

"Professor Thomson has a notable faculty for lucid and interesting exposition of scientific matters and he makes not only understandable but fascinating for the layman the story of how physicists and chemists have studied and probed and tested the atom in their determination to make it give up its ultimate secrets."
+ N Y Times p27 O 19 '30 400w
St Louis 28:209 S '30

"One of the best accounts of atomic theory that have yet appeared. . . The reader will find Professor Thomson an admirable guide through this tangled territory."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p266 Mr 27 '30 1050w

THOMSON, SIR JOHN ARTHUR. Modern science; a general introduction. 370p il $3.50 Putnam
504 Science

Popular in appeal, Professor Thomson's book on "the great order of facts, from astronomy to anthropology," deals with worlds in the making, the origin of the solar system, the foundations of the earth, the formation of the earth's surface, the structure of matter, the chemical elements, the radiant energies, the advance of life thru the ages, the peopling of land and sea, the engines of the body, the dawn of mind and the ascent of man.

Booklist 27:17 S '30

"Professor Thomson has written many books, but none of them excels in attractive style and informative value his latest effort to set forth the important additions which modern science has made to human knowledge." E. N.

+ Boston Transcript p3 Je 7 '30 720w

"I had thought of ethics in association with religion and measured in terms of 'do's' and 'don'ts.' I here found it embedded in the very mood of science and measurable in spiritual terms. I have since found no higher virtues. The pages, many of them, read like sermons. Periodically I turn back to them, even as to a book of devotion, for inspiration. This is not a review; it is a personal testimony in appreciation." Vergilius Ferm

+ Christian Century 47:1063 S 3 '30 360w

Cleveland Open Shelf p56 Ap '30

Reviewed by B. A. Keen

Nature 126:267 Ag 23 '30 150w

N Y New Tech Bks 15:25 Ap '30

"Professor Thomson has a faculty for simplifying and illuminating statement of scientific knowledge that to the ordinary reader seems well-nigh marvelous. For he makes it understandable to the many without in the least detracting from the significance of its high intellectual values and the stimulation of its latent imaginative quality. This new book, being meant for the non-technical and the but slightly informed reader, especially glows with this faculty."

+ N Y Times p21 Ap 13 '30 300w

"Prof. Thomson is well known to the American public for his lucidity. He is one of the best interpreters of science writing to-day. He has the faculty of metaphorical illustration, and he stirs the imagination without departing from known facts." Harry Hansen

+ N Y World p11 My 26 '30 400w

THOMSON, VALENTINE. Briand, man of peace. 340p il $5 Covici

B or 92 Briand, Aristide 30-14402

The first biography of the veteran French statesman to be published in this country is based on the author's conversations with him and shows the man at work and at play, his political habits and personal idiosyncrasies and his opinions on the men and events of his times.

Booklist 27:26 S '30

"Mlle Thomson's life is a very readable book, and one which will be consulted when the true biography of Aristide Briand is written. It is the story of a woman who knew the Breton statesman well, and who liked him, perhaps at times to the exclusion of the man's real nature. She is quite frankly the admirer and what is most valuable in her book are the intimate details of Briand at home and among his friends. Her picture of him as always essentially the peasant is sympathetic and true." Grenville Vernon

+ Bookm 71:557 Ag '30 550w

"This book is intimate and chatty without being mere gossip and informative without turning into a dull political record. Through its pages we get a very clear, if not a very vivid, picture of Briand, the man of the people, with his homely common sense, his lazy good humor, his slouchy gait and his slovenly clothes." Albert Guerard

+ Books p3 Je 15 '30 700w

Reviewed by Edmund Noble

Boston Transcript p4 My 24 '30 1850w

"Miss Thomson's book is by no means a final biography of Briand. She has known him personally over a long period of years, her father having been in the French cabinet at different times and she presents him to us rather as a great friend whom she would like us to know and enjoy." Pearl Mahaffy

Christian Century 47:1219 O 8 '30 420w

"It is no disparagement of Mlle. Thomson's efforts to remark that the familiar and friendly picture she has drawn of the man himself is the more valuable part of her work. Much spade work by historians will be required before a critical appraisal of Briand's accomplishments becomes possible; and research and critical evaluation are not distinguishing characteristics of her book. By taking us behind the scenes, by descriptions of Briand at home on his farm or again at the Foreign Office at the Quai d'Orsay, through anecdotes about Briand at work and at play, through fragments of conversations with him, she has given us a pleasing portrait of the great statesman. It is perhaps unnecessary to add that more than one reader of her book will find the portrait too pleasing for his taste or judgment." Leo Gershoy

+ — Current Hist 32:819 Jl '30 1200w

"The best parts of the book are those in which Madame Thomson recounts Briand's first excursions into politics, his relations with the wage-earners and the Socialists, his connection with the separation laws and the Dreyfus case, and his earlier services as Minister and premier. In the absence as yet of a more formal biography the volume will serve a useful purpose, all the more useful because its tone, while uniformly friendly, is not unduly eulogistic."

+ Nation 131:252 S 3 '30 220w

"In Mlle. Thomson's interesting, familiar and lively biography, there is no attempt to trace the full political significance of Briand's career or finally to appraise his place in history. The background is there, ably sketched, for the author is a daughter of a friend and colleague of Briand, but what matters is the intimate and friendly picture which she has drawn of the man himself." F. R. Dulles

+ N Y Evening Post p9m My 24 '30 780w

"It is of great interest that M. Briand, who hates writing of any sort and who will probably leave little by way of memoirs, should have found in Miss Thomson a kind of Boswell to report some of his conversations and to set him out in the proper relation to the stirring times in which he has lived." L. V. Updegraff

+ N Y Times p1 Je 1 '30 1450w

"The book is sketchy and at times superficial, but the subject-matter is always interesting." W. B. Shaw

+ — R of Rs 81:12 Je '30 100w

St Louis 28:218 S '30

THOMSON, VALENTINE. You don't know [2] Charly! 256p $2 Brewer

30-31595

A novelized version of a play which recently ran on the Parisian stage. It is a light and witty comedy in the French manner built about the conventional situation of stodgy, businessman husband, bored and discontented wife, and romantic lover.

"Miss Thomson's characterizations are excellent and she shows a keen knowledge of feminine psychology. It is a light and amusing story."

+ Bookm 72:viii D '30 80w

"This story of Mme. Thomson's, which was staged in Paris, has the economy of a play rather than the full measure of a novel. It crackles with farcical possibilities and grows to a neatly ironic climax. Spun out as it is, however, it seems threadbare. The sparsely sketched backdrop needs props and lights."

— + Books p10 N 2 '30 320w

"In spite of its present condition, enough of the original play shows through to indicate that as a drama it must have had some merit. But the relentlessness of the clarity in the English novel form has revealed the plot in its very trite essentials."

— N Y Times p7 Ja 4 '31 200w

THORNDIKE, RUSSELL. Vandekkers. 338p $2 Appleton [7s 6d Butterworth, T.]

"Romantic, highly colored seafaring adventure of the eighteenth century in Holland and the Indies, strangely flavored with horrors involving a herd of trained hyenas, the Great Kraken itself and other unrestrained fantasy. Especially how Dan Vandekker, called King Daniel the First of the Island, sailed from Holland on the Marinarello, encountered mutiny, saved a fair lady from pirates and later revenged his father's death at the hands of a witch woman, rescued a lovely heroine from the toils of magic and shared in a happy ending."—Books

THORNDIKE, RUSSELL—Continued

"A most unusual and frequently powerful tale in the right classic tradition." Will Cuppy
+ Books p17 Ap 27 '30 150w

"While 'The Vandekkers' purports to be a tale of the Dutch in New York in the eighteenth century, it is at once too fantastic and too inaccurate to be of any value as a historical romance, just as it is too incoherent and too inconsistent in technique to have any especial literary value."
— Boston Transcript p2 My 28 '30 150w

"A mystery-adventure tale well above the average."
+ N Y Times p20 My 18 '30 130w

"It is difficult to give any coherent account of 'The Vandekkers,' so gorged is it with battle, murder and sudden death, so crammed with unnatural horror, so bloated with villainy. Mr. Thorndike, who, judging from his preface, intended to write a kind of Stevensonian romance, soon found the character of the arch-fiend, Regal, leading him away from his master until even the faintest echo of the style and manner is lost in a welter of melodramatic blood and thunder."
— Times [London] Lit Sup p578 Jl 18 '29 200w

THORNTON-COOK, MRS ELSIE. Royal Marys; Princess Mary and her predecessors. 247p il $3.50 Dutton [9s Murray, J.]

920.7 Queens. Princesses. Great Britain—Princes and princesses [30-26378]

Biographical sketches of princesses in the long line of English royal Marys from the eleventh century to the present Princess Mary.

Books p10 Je 1 '30 150w

"From a great number of authorities—her bibliography fills four pages—Mrs. Cook has collected endless anecdotes, bits of description, quaint stories, amusing incidents, with which she fills in her outlines and makes each tale a lively and graphic picture of its own time."
+ N Y Times p20 F 2 '30 480w

"Many of the chapters are fragmentary. Some of the Marys died too young to become matrimonial pawns in the political game; some retired into cloisters. But there is much color in the use of old documents, and some half-forgotten figures come to life again. These books of Mrs. Cook's are ideal for high-school students."
+ Outlook 154:226 F 5 '30 200w
St Louis 28:217 S '30

THURSTON, ERNEST TEMPLE. Millennium. 470p $2.50 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Cassell] 30-8900

Anne Pendred, an inhibited and neurotic girl, went thru life with an abnormal fear of sex, due to an incident in her childhood when her father had punished her for having gone in bathing naked with her small brother. When she grows up she is shocked further to find that her mother is in love with the curate. And following her mother's death, she is horrified to discover her father making love to the nurse. Anne's sex neurosis changes rapidly to religious mania, and she joins the order of Consecrated Saints.

"Mr. Thurston's story holds the interest in spite of too many words. But the theme, instead of emerging subtly and imperceptibly from the story, is monotonously stressed. And as usually happens in such cases, sentimentality creeps in."
— + Books p10 Je 8 '30 300w

"'Millennium' places Mr. Thurston definitely among the ranks of serious thinkers, one might say, of imaginative realists. He has dropped anchor in deep waters of the harbor. Nor is it any mere novel of an evening of which he boasts. To launch anything so large as this 'Millennium' must have taken courage, but the end has justified the event." I. W. Lawrence
+ Boston Transcript p3 My 17 '30 1750w

"A study of insight and delicacy and real power. . . The writing throughout is lucid and adequate, and sometimes rises to a very beautiful and sensitive prose." Lillian Rogers
N Y Evening Post p9m My 31 '30 550w

"The finest and most competent work of his career. He has written many swifter and more vigorous tales. He has contrived more skillful plots. But it is safe to say that never before has he penetrated so deeply into the springs of human motive as he does in the present volume."
+ N Y Times p8 Ap 13 '30 650w

"Mr. Thurston spares us nothing in this dreadful study of a young girl, very afraid and defiantly fastidious. The account of her miserable adventures is admirably told, but it is difficult to regard her as entirely normal, or to feel that her abnormality is quite justified."
+ — Spec 143:827 N 30 '29 200w

"The novel is long and has the air of being carefully thought out and written. At times Mr. Thurston handles his subject fairly and robustly; but the book is weakened by a faintly unhealthy sentimentality, and, as a 'case' in a psychological text-book, Anne's is rather too plausible to be convincing."
— Times [London] Lit Sup p1054 D 12 '29 600w

THURSTON, HERBERT. No popery; chapters on anti-papal prejudice. 319p $3 Longmans [7s 6d Sheed]

282 Roman Catholic church. Popes [30-32859]

An English Jesuit undertakes to defend the Catholic church against its detractors in a book which he describes in his subtitle, chapters on anti-papal prejudice. Admitting that there have been some bad popes Father Thurston defends the characters of others against the scandals associated with their names and discredits the sources upon which prejudicial judgments have rested.

Cath World 132:505 Ja '31 400w

"The assumption, flung out upon the title page, that all criticism is based on prejudice, is not conciliatory. The author disposes, quite satisfactorily, of some papal scandals that few persons with enough intelligence to read this book or any other ever believed, and of some others that the present reviewer never even heard of until he read their refutation here. . . He has rendered a commendable service in exploding some ancient and trivial scandals, but incidentally and as it were sotto voce, he admits much. Perhaps that is why the book does not bear the official 'Imprimatur—Nihil Obstat.'"
— + Christian Century 47:1063 S 3 '30 280w
Sat R 150:290 S 6 '30 700w
Times [London] Lit Sup p779 O 2 '30 1200w

THURSTON, HOWARD. My life of magic. 273p il $2.50 Dorrance

B or 92 Conjuring 29-21185

"In a prologue, an epilogue and thirty chapters, Howard Thurston [the magician] tells as much of his life as he believes will interest his 'audience of forty million.' He traveled with carnivals and circuses and vaudeville; he showed on street corners and in the barroom halls of the old wild West and in palaces. He tells of his performances in all those lands bordering the Seven Seas, where he played in whatever he could find—a native theater, a palm-covered shelter or a tent."—Books

Booklist 26:233 Mr '30

"A man who has mystified millions is most apt to be wise and witty. Mr. Thurston's book is that and more. His difficult rise to the high position he now holds and his triumphal tours all over the world are told in the ingratiating manner one expects of a showman. Yet the book's sincerity overshadows more pretentious biographies."

+ Bookm 71:vi Mr '30 130w

"The most fascinating part of the book relates his experiences as a trouper. As interesting, perhaps, as his travels were the people he met. He met the great Sun Yat Sen. He performed before the Prince of Wales, who later became King Edward. He became such close friends with Rajah Tagore (the father of Rabindranath) that he was given the use of the royal carriage several hours a day. Not only was he a close friend of that great master, Harry Kellar, but his successor in the world of magic." John Mulholland

+ Books p12 F 9 '30 380w

Cleveland Open Shelf p9 Ja '30

TIETJENS, EUNICE STRONG (HAMMOND) (MRS CLOYD HEAD). Romance of Antar. 219p il $2.50 Coward-McCann

398 Legends—Arabia 29-29842

Antar, the hero of this legendary romance, is an Arabian slave who early exhibited great physical prowess. Then he fell in love with Abla, the beautiful daughter of a noble far above him in station. For love of her Antar performed many dazzling deeds of bravery and service to his people, until he won the reward of the Persian emperor himself, and the hand of Abla. He lived happily thereafter ten years, and died the death of a hero.

Booklist 26:286 Ap '30

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Bookm 70:444 D '29 40w

"This is a tale of a great Arab chief, graphically and poetically written by an author who, as poet, is capable of the task she has undertaken. . . Eunice Tietjens has shaken the dust off the legend and made it shine and glow by preserving the Arabian manner of thought and speech, the exotic images, the swagger and white heat of the hero's speeches and love songs! She has treated the episodes of his adventurous life in a way that makes them doubly resplendent." Laura Benet

+ Books p8 Mr 9 '30 950w

"Partly because this Antar, son of Shaddad, is the hero of a great body of pre-Mohammedan folk tales, partly because the author has given so accurate a portrayal of desert folk with their virility, their poetic mysticism, their prowess in war, one might well call this a historical romance. . . The stately simplicity of style which characterizes the saga is one of the outstanding qualities of this very delightful story of the desert and of the wild yet childlike nomads who roamed its length."

+ Boston Transcript p8 F 1 '30 380w

"The Arab romance of Antar is here told with a fine flavor of the East and of the 'gusty desert' and a real beauty of style. The book will appeal to a wide range in age. Its stirring adventures will delight 11 and 12 year olds, its qualities of poetry and romance will appeal to older boys and girls."

+ N Y Times p20 Ap 27 '30 120w

St Louis 28:220 S '30

"Miss Tietjens has done her best with her material, and will no doubt receive the gratitude of readers peculiarly interested in Arabia for making this folk-tale available to them; but to the general public 'The Romance of Antar' will have little to offer. . . On the whole the story of Antar is too simple, a tale only for children and nomads."

— + Sat R of Lit 6:856 Mr 22 '30 280w

Reviewed by S. L. Goldsmith

Survey 64:38 Ap 1 '30 50w

TIETJENS, EUNICE STRONG (HAMMOND) (MRS CLOYD HEAD), and TIETJENS, JANET. Jaw-breaker's alphabet; il. by Herman Post. unp $3.50 Boni

30-11957

"An original and entertaining alphabet book in which from 'A for Archaeopteryx' to Z for Zeuglodon,' prehistoric creatures prance, fly and cavort across prehistoric woods and meadows in delightful air-brush drawings."—N Y Times

Booklist 27:68 O '30

"The pictures, in spite of a technique of rubbed charcoal or crayon little used these days, have, with their conventionalized and patterned foliage and elimination of any surface textures, a very modern look. Many are interesting in composition; all are stimulating to the imagination." D. P. Lathrop

+ Books p8 Mr 23 '30 950w

"Ten and eleven year olds, who have considerable interest in what was happening on the earth in its early days, are charmed with these pictures and entertained by the rhymes. Children enjoy strange words; moreover the verses contain both humor and information. Nor does the appeal of the book end there, older boys and girls, and adults as well, are delighted with these pictures."

+ N Y Times p8 Mr 16 '30 220w

"The pictures are done in that sort of airbrush technique so affected by 'Us Moderns'—a style usually pretty poor. But in the case of Mr. Post's illustrations, the style has real merit. It is an unusually good piece of illustrating." Dorothy Withington

+ Sat R of Lit 6:962 Ap 19 '30 380w

TIETSORT, FRANCIS JUDSON, ed. Temperance—or prohibition? 397p il $1 The editor, 220 South st., N.Y.

351.761 Prohibition. Temperance 29-23511

A book of evidence printed as a result of the Hearst $25,000 temperance contest held in the spring of 1929, to which were submitted 71000 plans for promoting temperance instead of prohibition. The first prize, won by Justice Hoyt of the New York children's court, is printed as an introduction to the book. The other plans are digested and classified according to their chief suggestions. The appendix contains the history of prohibition legislation in the United States.

Boston Transcript p2 F 15 '30 550w

N Y Times p36 N 24 '29 180w

St Louis 28:64 Mr '30

"This is an interesting book, although it is badly written and confusingly indirect in parts."

+ — Spec 144:61 Ja 11 '30 800w

Reviewed by A. G. Fox

Survey 63:597 F 15 '30 80w

Times [London] Lit Sup p1100 D 26 '29 30w

TILDEN, WILLIAM TATEM. Glory's net. 296p $1 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Methuen]

30-13879

Tennis and love play the star roles in this romance of the courts by William Tilden, 2nd, American tennis champion. It tells the story of David Cooper, a young man from the Middle West who won the world's championship, and of Mary, the girl who loved him.

"A very good sort of novel indeed, if you like the reportorial manner flavored with a dash of irony. Mr. Tunis has done a politely merciless job of portraying a Lady Champion. Her evolution from a pleasant child into a hard mercenary woman is presented with neat effectiveness." Guy Holt

+ Bookm 72:xvii S '30 180w

TILDEN, W. T.—Continued

Books p20 S 14 '30 150w

"Even if this novel had not been written by the world's most glamourous tennis player it would be interesting. Mr. Tilden says in his foreword that 'all the characters are fictional.' He has an easy style and a reliable plot. . . In writing about the various matches Mr. Tilden is always effective."

+ N Y Times p7 Jl 13 '30 330w

Times [London] Lit Sup p436 My 22 '30 200w

TILLYARD, EUSTACE MANDEVILLE WETENHALL. Milton. 396p $5 Dial press [15s Chatto]

821 Milton, John 30-25277

"Apart from the appendices, the book promises a comprehensive study, in which the poetry will be the main subject while the life of Milton shall not be overlooked. The volume falls into three divisions: the early poems; the period of the prose; an interchapter on Milton's beliefs; and the later poems, followed by an epilogue on the present position of Milton. The heart of the book consists of six chapters on 'Paradise Lost,' in which the author expressly treats of its conscious and unconscious meaning."—Sat R

"He has tried rather to explain Milton the thinker and artist through a study of inner motives as revealed by known facts, and by obscure hints given in his writings. The total result is satisfactory: Milton stands out as incomparably the greatest English poet of his century and of succeeding centuries—but that he has always been; he is further felt to be the greatest man and practical thinker of his age. The large conclusions, one feels, are sound; in parts, however, the study is weak." F. A. Patterson

+ — Books p25 O 26 '30 850w

"The chief merit of the book is an insistence on the unity and consistent sincerity of the whole of Milton's outlook. 'Lycidas' is shown to be a consistent whole, instead of a beautiful fancy; 'Paradise Lost,' for all its archaic framework, is found to be a genuine and poignant tragedy for one who believed in the innate goodness of his fellows and their ability to raise themselves to better things. The book contains an interesting and illuminating chapter on Milton's beliefs, and an epilogue on his position in the literary world today."

+ Christian Science Monitor p5 S 6 '30 220w

Reviewed by Edmund Blunden

Nation and Ath 47:113 Ap 26 '30 1450w

"What place does the book occupy in Milton bibliography? It is no biographical study and is, in general, too inconclusive to rival Saurat's excellent work: altogether, most will find it remarkably heavy going with its endless references and occasional pedantries. It must stand primarily as a book for the student who has no time for Masson and too much time for Hanford."

— + New Statesman 35:188 My 17 '30 900w

"We find such a book as 'Milton' with its rich scholarship, its deep understanding, and, above all, its just judgments, something of a trumpet call back to the standard of a mighty and unblemished leader." Percy Hutchison

+ N Y Times p2 Ag 31 '30 1350w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:89 D '30

St Louis 28:245 O '30

"The book is an admirably comprehensive study; the Latin poems and the prose receive their due; but, when we come to the heart of the matter, the utmost that the analyst can do does not modify to any serious extent the impression left by reading Milton. . . If there is a want of balance anywhere in this volume, it is that the biography of the early years predominates, and that the later life of the poet tends to fade in the discussion of his final works." Osbert Burdett

+ — Sat R 149:591 My 10 '30 1200w

"The only part of Mr. Tillyard's book which is at all tedious, for all its ability, is his account of the middle third of Milton's career, when he turned from the serene splendour of Lycidas and the sighing melodies of the Epitaphium Damonis to the composition of political diatribes which, for all their purple patches, it is impossible not to wish that he had not written."

Spec 144:745 My 3 '30 700w

Springf'd Republican p7e Je 15 '30 1500w

Times [London] Lit Sup p431 My 22 '30 2250w

TILNEY, FREDERICK. Master of destiny; a biography of the brain; with a foreword by Austen Fox Riggs. 343p $4 Doubleday, Doran

573 Brain. Evolution. Apes. Man—Origin 30-3424

The cerebral history of animal life from earliest times to the present development of the brain of man, which Dr Tilney calls the "age of the frontal lobe." It is the belief of the author that we are in our racial youth—that the modern brain has scarcely outgrown its childhood, and has yet far to go before it reaches ultimate development. His chapters dealing with the higher apes are among the most interesting in the book.

Reviewed by D. M. Levy

Ann Am Acad 149:sup210 My '30 170w

Booklist 26:302 My '30

"The text is most interesting; it cries aloud, however, for the illustrations usually found in volumes on this and related subjects, which are completely omitted here. But Dr. Tilney has skilfully organized the results of his research and has written a good book."

+ — Bookm 71:xiii Mr '30 100w

Books p10 F 16 '30 220w

Boston Transcript p2 F 26 '30 600w

Cleveland Open Shelf p57 Ap '30

"To present within a single book the fruits of centuries of scholarly effort in these fields, and to avoid conveying in the process any sense of the complexities of the subjects dealt with or the uncertainties, disagreements and despairs of the scholars themselves, is a feat of no inconsiderable magnitude, and the author has performed it admirably. The book is worthy to rank with other recent exploits in the simplification of knowledge." Max Lerner

+ N Y Evening Post p10m F 15 '30 780w

"In its essentials Dr. Tilney's new book is a popular rendering of his earlier two-volume work, 'The Brain From Ape to Man.' " Joseph Collins

+ N Y Times p11 F 23 '30 1000w

"The able and readable manner in which Dr. Tilney has handled this subject in the present volume should be of inestimable value in bringing it to public attention." J. N. Nathanson

+ N Y World p11m F 9 '30 850w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:72 O '30

"It is a readable, creditable, and authoritative summary of organic evolution."

+ Sat R of Lit 6:998 Ap 26 '30 770w

Times [London] Lit Sup p994 N 20 '30 230w

TILNEY, FREDERICK COLIN. Principles of photographic pictorialism. 218p il $5 Am. photographic pub. [25s Chapman]

770 Photography, Artistic 30-7280

A survey of the progress of pictorial photography, from its inception to the present day, written by a trained artist. It covers all the factors in the making of artistic pictures and is illustrated with diagrams and half-tone reproductions selected to bring out the points covered in the text.

Booklist 27:196 Ja '31

"Whilst this, his latest book, is not specially concerned with photography, in that it does not touch upon any photographic manipulations or processes, it is one that will be of the greatest assistance to all who aspire to make their use of the camera something more than an aimless snapshotting of holiday incidents. It is equally addressed to the student of art and to the lover of Nature, and to both it should bring gain in the intelligent appreciation of the pictorial aspect of their subject." J. D. Johnston

+ Nature 126:681 N 1 '30 320w

N Y New Tech Bks 15:24 Ap '30

St Louis 28:214 S '30

Springf'd Republican p12 Je 4 '30 500w

TIMMERMANS, FELIX. Droll Peter; tr. by Maida C. Darnton and Wilhelmina J. Paul. 340p il $2.50 Coward-McCann

Brueghel, Pieter, the elder—Fiction 30-8176

A novelized life of Peter Brueghel the elder, Flemish artist, with a background of sixteenth century Flanders. The author describes the painter's boyhood, his early artistic efforts, his associates, his friendships and lusty love affairs, and his religious struggles.

Booklist 26:398 Jl '30

"All that we know for certain about the life of Peter Brueghel the Elder is briefly told in Van Mander's 'The Book of Painters,' written at the close of the sixteenth century, some thirty years after Brueghel's death. . . In the outline of his story, Timmermans follows the old biographer to the letter, with results that are sometimes quaint, and now and then a little childish. . . But it is not the faithful adherence to original sources that makes the book unpalatable to one who has a great admiration for Brueghel's genius; it is the unbelievable character who pursues his care-free journey through these romantic pages. The story has the unreality of a fairy tale, the pathetic righteousness of folklore." Thomas Craven

— + Books p7 Mr 16 '30 800w

Boston Transcript p2 My 7 '30 350w

Chicago Daily Tribune p13 My 31 '30 80w

"Timmermans writes in that clear, pungent style of Flemish painting. He portrays the Fat, and the Lean, the droll superstitions, the gourmandizing, the earthy existence of these simple peasants. His figures of speech mark his extraordinary talent for caricature. Throughout the book there is drawn the thread of the subject of art, with commentary on contemporary masters, with comparisons and estimates. It is a book well worth reading." D. A.

+ Christian Science Monitor p5 O 18 '30 180w

Cleveland Open Shelf p111 Jl '30

" 'Droll Peter' is a hearty, wholesome, vividly pictorial novel with a note of happiness unusual in modern writing."

+ Nation 131:159 Ag 6 '30 260w

"Timmermans comes nearer than most to weaving in one pattern a painter's life and a painter's painting; and the novel is especially notable for having the hero consider his art as art. There are vividness, humor, close-knit adventure and humanity as broad as a Hals painting. None the less, the novel falls between two easels: art and life. There's the old fallacy (so dear to writers) that an artist goes about being self-conscious of what he's going to paint next; but the canvas is broad and glowing and the figures are in the round." Donald Douglas

+ — New Repub 63:325 Jl 30 '30 230w

"The translators have done a lusty and succinct version which catches the exact difference between Timmermans's work, itself intended as a primitive, and even so slightly stylized a manner as De Coster's legends exemplify. The book carries a group of Timmermans's own woodcuts done harmoniously in the thick naive line of the early Dutch masters." Vincent McHugh

N Y Evening Post p11m Mr 22 '30 500w

Reviewed by H. L. Matthews

N Y Times p20 My 4 '30 950w

"Few lovers of Old Breughel's hearty and drastic art will agree with this reading of his character. But since Timmermans is writing not a biography but a novel, the truthfulness of his interpretation may seem more or less irrelevant, the important issue being the coherence of his novel as a literary creation. In this respect the book is firmly and delicately carried off. It is vivid without sensationalism, rich in incidental, grotesque character drawing, and it treats the inception of many of Droll Peter's famous pictures with genuine imagination. The original Flemish is so well rendered that one has no sense of translation." F. J. Mather

+ — Sat R of Lit 6:918 Ap 12 '30 280w

TIPPETT, JAMES STERLING. I spend the summer. (Nursery ser.) 63p 75c Harper

811 30-11419

Poems on vacationing, written for children. The subjects include planning for the vacation, camping, vacation on the farm, at the mountain lake, and the seashore.

Cleveland Open Shelf p127 S '30

"The charm of Mr. Tippett's verse for children lies in the way he catches a child's quite unconscious enjoyment of what he feels, sees and hears and puts it on paper in such a way as to make it possible for the child to enjoy it all over again."

+ N Y Times p18 My 11 '30 120w

"This is a collection of comfortable and pleasant little jingles."

+ Sat R of Lit 6:1132 Je 14 '30 200w

"James S. Tippett understands the childish heart. He has shown that before in other works, and proves it again in 'I Spend the Summer.' "

+ Springf'd Republican p7e My 25 '30 70w

TIPPETTS, CHARLES SANFORD. State banks [2] and the federal reserve system. 393p $4 Van Nostrand

332.1 Federal reserve banks. Banks and banking—United States 29-9840

"Dr. Tippetts concerns himself with three major questions: membership, par collection and branch banking. The first of these topics is most fully treated and the last rather sketchily."—Pol Sci Q

"Mr. Tippetts presents a careful and complete history of the relationship between state banks and the federal reserve system. . . Students of finance are indebted to Mr. Tippetts for his painstaking and careful exploration of a subject that is both difficult and complex and raises questions of fundamental significance to the American banking system." E. A. Goldenweiser

+ Am Econ R 20:146 Mr '30 450w

"This book is written in an interesting and easy style and holds the attention of the reader in spite of the great amount of statistical, historical, and legal details. The author is logical in developing his points and shows proper balance among the topics handled, with one or two possible exceptions. There is evidence of much research and painstaking labor in the hundreds of references and footnotes scattered throughout the various chapters. A useful bibliography is included at the end of the book. As a work in recent economic history and as a reference book on the subject chosen, this study fully justifies itself." R. V. Leffler

+ J Pol Econ 38:495 Ag '30 850w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:3 Ja '30

"The book presents facts readably and simply and is based evidently upon a careful review of the available documents and in addition consultation with officials of the Reserve System and others in a position to be helpful. While the book is largely a review of developments and statement of facts the author's reactions are at times stated and add to the value of the book." W. R. Burgess

TIPPETTS, C. S.—Continued
+ Pol Sci Q 45:615 D '30 600w

TIPTON, MRS EDNA (SIBLEY). Flowers for every occasion. 172p il $3 Stokes
635.966 Floral decoration 30-9105

How to decorate with appropriate fresh flowers at all times and on all occasions. There are chapters on flower gifts and how to give them; flowers to wear or carry; flowers for the dining-room table; dressing up foods with flowers; flowers for pre-nuptial affairs and weddings; for the bridal table and wedding anniversaries; for church, public hall and large room decorations, and for funerals.

Booklist 26:348 Je '30
Cleveland Open Shelf p58 Ap '30

TITTLE, ERNEST FREMONT. Foolishness of preaching, and other sermons. 314p $2 Holt
252 Sermons 30-9154

A collection of sermons by the pastor of the First Methodist church of Evanston, Ill. In his first sermon Dr Tittle defines the field of the pulpit which to him is the field of life: hence his sermons are concerned with all matters of contemporary public interest; in other words, with religion and society, as well as with religion and the individual.

Booklist 27:10 S '30

"There are remarkable qualities in these sermons. His adaptability to the exigencies of each particular theme is extraordinary; he is by turns the theologian, the poet, the teacher, even the statesman. His knowledge is accurate and ample, but never either obtrusive or pretentious. His style is simple, direct, vivacious, at times colloquial and witty, but without a trace of commonness." J. H. Holmes
+ Books p28 S 28 '30 420w

"About these sermons there is nothing conventional, nothing of the ordinary in language, style or method. A mighty passion, a consuming enthusiasm, warms up a keen analysis and compelling argument. Great illustrations from literature and life incarnate the preacher's ideas and ideals. A virile courage and a daring challenge appeal to one's sense of fair play. By no means everybody will agree with him, but everybody will sit up and take notice." T. C. R.
+ Boston Transcript p8 My 10 '30 650w

"With his first sentence he takes a running jump into the middle of contemporary life. And from that sentence to the end he is never out of touch with the clamorous confusions and moral betrayals which baffle all of us. . . This is preaching, not to the lay figures that seem to be the object of so much homiletic dexterity, but to the bedeviled men and women who find themselves lost in the labyrinth of modern life." Paul Hutchinson
+ Christian Century 47:561 Ap 30 '30 600w

"It is about as well rounded a book of pulpit discourses as can be found in our day. Let the critic of the church who is justly suspicious of the ability of the institution to adjust itself to the realities of modern life and to deal helpfully with the problems of contemporary civilization, read this book. It may not be typical, but neither is it altogether unique. And there is a fine moral sanity in all its pages."
+ N Y Evening Post p11m Ap 19 '30 220w

"Dr. Tittle is splendidly aware of his age. His sermons are chaste and civilized—not fastidious, for they lack the polish one finds in the works of clerics who have grown excessively literary-conscious. But they have the charm of thoughtful approach and decisive utterance. There are ministers who write better but few who exemplify any better the graces of charitable and Christian thinking."
+ Sat R of Lit 7:43 Ag 9 '30 250w

Reviewed by Paul Jones
World Tomorrow 13:377 S '30 450w

TOBEY, JAMES ALNER. Riders of the plagues; the story of the conquest of disease. 348p il $3.50 (12s 6d) Scribner
610.9 Medicine—History. Public health 30-25365

Dr Tobey begins with an account of great plagues of the past, following this with a history of sanitation. He then takes up the story of modern developments in medical science and public health, and tells the story of the life and work of Pasteur, Lister, Florence Nightingale, Gorgas, Trudeau and others who have helped combat disease. There are additional chapters on the new science of nutrition and the art of living sanely.

Booklist 27:194 Ja '31
J Home Econ 22:1017 D '30 30w
N Y Times p35 S 28 '30 450w

"The story is told in an interesting way, but the book is so hastily put together and marred by such atrocious English, that in many places the author's meaning is entirely obscured by his apparent inability to write a simple English sentence."
+ — Sat R of Lit 7:275 O 25 '30 160w
Times [London] Lit Sup p994 N 20 '30 80w

TOLSTAIA, SOF'IA ANDREEVNA (BERS) countess. Countess Tolstoy's later diary; 1891-1897; auth. tr. from the Russian with an introd. by Alexander Werth. 267p $3.50 Brewer [12s 6d Gollancz]
B or 92 Tolstoi, Leo Nikolaievich, count [30-8526]

This continuation of the Countess Tolstoy's diary covers the years from 1891 to 1897. In that last year she was fifty-three and Tolstoy sixty-nine. It is a period of six critical years, marked by continual misunderstandings and quarrels and a growing estrangement between herself and her husband.

Booklist 26:395 Jl '30
Reviewed by Dorothy Brewster
Books p2 F 23 '30 1050w
Boston Transcript p2 Ap 5 '30 450w

"The more I read of the Countess Tolstoy's diaries and autobiographies, the more I sympathize with Tolstoy and the less I sympathize with her. He was, no doubt, a terrible man, but there was at least a quality of greatness in him; she was a terrible woman, with a quality of littleness and littlemindedness in her. Tolstoy's peculiar tang is so strong that it comes out in almost everything written about him." Leonard Woolf
Nation and Ath 46:318 N 30 '29 200w
Reviewed by Louise Bogan
New Repub 63:187 Jl 2 '30 180w
New Statesman 34:96 O 26 '29 260w

"Even the Titanic personality of the husband reflected in the diary cannot overshadow from the reader the personality of the wife. For it is also an intimate record of the dramatic life of an intelligent, cultured, emotional woman which would stir and often fascinate the reader even if her husband had not been Leo Tolstoy. This double interest of the 'Diary' fully justifies one in asserting that it is one of the most notable autobiographic documents bequeathed to us by the nineteenth century." A. I. Nazaroff
+ N Y Evening Post p9s F 22 '30 850w

"The second and last volume of 'The Diary of Tolstoy's Wife' is as vital and revealing as the first. Though the span of time chronicled is a mere seven years from 1891 to 1897, and the diarist persists in her habit of infrequent entries, the checkered existence of the Tolstoy household is conveyed with the same candor and clarity which characterized the preceding book." Manya Gordon
+ Sat R of Lit 6:1155 Je 28 '30 1800w

"There is something distressing, almost shocking, in diaries such as this second one of the Countess Tolstoy, to those who form their general opinion of life from fiction. A work of imagination, however poor, has form and balance, tending to gratify our hope of seeing some purpose in life. . . Human existence as we see it in all its turbulent variety and strife here, in pages torn from reality, has a disordered, often ridiculous and sometimes terrible aspect. If we consider the Tolstoy family as mere members of the human race, they seem to live like so much vegetation, writhing and struggling for ways of living that present little beauty and less justification."

Spec 143:500 O 12 '29 650w

Times [London] Lit Sup p815 O 17 '29 1600w

TOMLINSON, DANIEL WEBB. The sky's the
2 limit. 289p il $3.50 Macrae Smith co.

629.13 Aeronautics 30-28817

Lieutenant "Tommy" Tomlinson's own account of his flying adventures from his early daredevil stunt days to the present. Tomlinson, famed leader of the navy's Three Sea Hawks, is today vice-president and manager of operations of the western division of the Maddux air lines.

"Graduate of Annapolis and leader of the Three Hawks, whose antics are memorable in the annals of stunting, he took keen delight in defying the laws of gravitation and the Navy regulations. He broke them both without fatal consequences. 'The Sky's the Limit' is the exciting story of how he did it—and how much he enjoyed it. There's not a dull line in it."

+ Books p10 N 30 '30 130w

"There is no attempt at literary artistry in this chronicle. It is set down in the crisp idiom of the hangar and the flying field; it is direct, staccato, and moves at a rapid tempo. The vocabulary is picturesque, the resulting impressions vivid in the extreme. . . The zest of incomparable adventure runs through 'The Sky's the Limit.'"

N Y Times p13 D 14 '30 550w

TOMLINSON, HENRY MAJOR. All our yesterdays. 445p $2.50 Harper [8s 6d Heinemann] 30-845

British events in the course of empire are presented in panorama from 1900 to 1918 in this novel of the war and its background. The first division of the book, concerned mainly with the Boer war, contains the remote but rapidly accruing causes of the later disaster; the second part of the book, dated 1908, takes up the adventures of a journalist, Jim Maynard, in the outskirts of modern civilization, where one realizes thru his eyes the greed and corruption foreshadowing an inevitable climax; the third division is concerned with the World war from the English viewpoint. Mr. Tomlinson in this section writes from his experiences as a member of the Intelligence department. His principal emphasis is not upon trench combat and its horrors, but upon gross stupidity and waste on the part of all nations engaged.

For biographical sketches of the author see N Y World F 16 '30; and Wilson bulletin 5:20 S '30

"One would like to give nothing but praise to this magnificently written book. Every paragraph bears the mark of a modern master of language, and over each episode broods a thoughtful and feeling nature. The writing is rich with metaphor, cadence, and lavish variety of phrase. But it suffers as a work of art from two or three serious faults. The repeated shift from fiction to memoir is disturbing. While the episodes are well chosen and perfect in themselves, the wisdom of their arrangement and emphasis as parts of a whole is not always apparent. The allusive style makes severe demands on the reader—even the force of the title is weakened if its context is not remembered; and the entire first part of the book holds few rewards for readers whose adult memories do not go back to London in 1900." Marshall Best

+ — Atlantic Bookshelf p26 Mr '30 400w

Booklist 26:235 Mr '30

"His latest book, too ambitious to be completely successful, is a semi-autobiographic novel, in which the author appears when it is convenient, and, when it suits his fancy, vanishes into the wings. Tomlinson is no inciter to action, no preacher; some (though they would be mistaken) might call him a pessimist. He is an artist, though not primarily an entertainer. He should be read, as I think he must write, with the pipe of meditation in the mouth, or ready to hand."

Bookm 70:669 F '30 450w

"'All Our Yesterdays' is as unmistakably English in flavor as the war play, 'Journey's End.' The book is essentially the reflections of a keen and kindly mind upon the events of our generation; English politics and international policies viewed through the eyes of a gentle radical. Nowhere is the book in a tone of unrestrained bitterness. It has its quietly ironical passages, and there can be no doubt at all of its author's own feelings, but these feelings are expressed with balance and restraint. Its style, for those who are still able to admire amid the clamor of our experimentalists, writing that is in the finest tradition of English prose, is delightful." Herschel Brickell

+ Books p1 Ja 5 '30 1100w

"An inspired tale of the transmuting force of human passions, affecting not a scattered group, but people everywhere. Side by side with this he interprets that other phase of war which is quite as evident to the onlooker—the blindness and the pointlessness of the struggle. Even nature itself seems to play its part in the gigantic upheaval which he outlines so graphically. One feels that at last something of vital importance has been said in such terms that all who read must understand." D. L. Mann

+ Boston Transcript p2 Ja 18 '30 1850w

"As a piece of writing it is marked by all the fine craftsmanship and the eminently civilized feeling which we have come to associate with this author. Perhaps it was unfortunate that he undertook to make a novel of his war experiences, for one cannot resist the conviction that the characters in the book are scarcely able to bear the burden that is laid upon them if they are to sustain their parts in the fact of such cataclysmic events." G. D. M.

+ — Cath World 131:633 Ag '30 180w

"Every one who knew the power and the beauty and, at times, the grandeur of his style, knew that when he wrote about the war the words would be important and memorable. How important and how memorable it is almost impossible to communicate; for each judgment of them will be colored by each person's own feeling for words, for the subject or for the attitude which the author has toward it. None can deny, no matter what his own attitude toward any phase of Mr. Tomlinson's genius or subject, that no finer nor more powerful picture of the war has been written." Fanny Butcher

+ Chicago Daily Tribune p12 Ja 4 '30 1000w

"Two or three years ago some discriminating critic said that when H. M. Tomlinson got around to writing a book about the war it would be the classic in that much cultivated field. He has got around to it, and it is. Many things could be said about it—that it is a novel without a heroine, that it is not a novel at all, that it exhibits a strange mingling of first-person and third-person narrative. But whatever it is or isn't, the one thing that it indisputably is, is the great book about the war in fiction form." W. E. Garrison

+ Christian Century 47:211 F 12 '30 550w

"Mr. Tomlinson's style is much praised and there are some fine passages in this book. Paradoxically, his dogged and apprehensive pessimism is conveyed in English which, at its best, has amazing zest. His vocabulary and the incandescent quality of his metaphors are remarkable. Nevertheless, the opening chapters contain some terrible mannered writing. Over and over again he elaborates his visual impression until it vanishes into the abstract." V. S. P.

TOMLINSON, H. M.—Continued
+ — Christian Science Monitor p11 F 21 '30 750w

Cleveland Open Shelf p62 Ap '30

"As the work of a reflective, beautifully tempered spirit, 'All Our Yesterdays' cannot be too highly praised; but as a novel it leaves much to be desired. I find the structure of this book confusing and disproportionate. The main difficulty lies, I believe, in the wanness of Tomlinson's characterization. He has too acute and original a mind to produce a rubber-stamp character; but he thinks about and around his people so much and he is so careful to relate them to the mood and the ideology of his narrative that they become, in the end, the efficient tools of a brilliantly gifted essayist rather than the urgent, four-dimensional creations of the born novelist. This is true of his men, particularly Jim Maynard and Charley; but even truer of his women." C. P. Fadiman
+ — Nation 130:187 F 12 '30 500w

"Mr. Tomlinson's technique is perfectly sound in theory—it consists in flourishing a sledge hammer three times round the head and then bringing it down with a tremendous bang. But the head of his sledge hammer is unfortunately loose, it disappears into space during a flourish; the shaft alone descends, wooden and ineffective. This occurs not only in the book as a whole, but in most of the scenes arranged to stimulate and surprise the reader and in all the conversations." L. L. Irvine
— Nation and Ath 46:582 Ja 25 '30 200w

"It is very long, but it is the story of a generation rather than of any one episode in its life and the war does not begin until nearly halfway through. It is a book that no other living man could have written: it is signed unmistakably again and again. And yet, with all my admiration for its author, I cannot bring myself to like it. The charge of having written an 'essayist's novel' is one too easy to throw at a successful essayist. There is no conceivable reason why an essayist should not write a good novel, and he very frequently does. But Mr. Tomlinson does not. His book is full of good things. But these and a hundred more admirable things are simply fragments adrift and unconnected with one another. Between fragment and fragment it is hard to maintain any interest in the characters, even to remember who they are and what they were doing last." E. S.
— + New Statesman 34:503 Ja 25 '30 320w

"This must suffice for 'All Our Yesterdays.' There may be those who have not heard of H. M. Tomlinson. They are urged not to remain longer in ignorance. There may be those who do not like H. M. Tomlinson. And they are urged not to let it be known of them. His work is truly rare in its quality. And 'All Our Yesterdays' has that rareness of quality in abundance. Because of its maturity, it is, perhaps, Tomlinson's finest piece of work." Percy Hutchison
+ N Y Times p2 Ja 5 '30 1700w

Reviewed by Harry Hansen
+ N Y World p13 Ja 2 '30 1100w

"It is unfortunately not likely to capture the popular imagination as some war books have; but it should be widely read, and those who do read it will praise and cherish and reread, for it is an enriching book, free from sentiment as from cynicism and bitterness." F. L. Robbins
+ Outlook 154:69 Ja 8 '30 700w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:24 Mr '30
Pratt p41 spring '30

" 'All Our Yesterdays' is a book of which any writer might be proud, even Mr. H. M. Tomlinson. It is planned on a magnificent scale." L. P. Hartley
+ Sat R 149:114 Ja 25 '30 550w

"Its virtues are deep, its faults apparent, but they are not, as some early readers have supposed, of structure and design. It is a book of human landscape in the murk, where a search light is turned spot by spot until the whole is imagined without ever being seen." H. S. Canby
Sat R of Lit 6:613 Ja 4 '30 3000w

"The last half of the book is concerned with the War, and it is, frankly, even more disappointing than the first half. Mr. Tomlinson's story is stifled under its moral. The characters are over-powered by the greatness of the drama in which they act, just as really happened to all of us who took part in the War. The task of literature is to transmute the facts of life. Mr. Tomlinson is a great writer. We believe he has failed in a high and difficult attempt, but that is not to say that All Our Yesterdays is not full of good things. There are pages worthy of the best of Conrad. But Conrad would not have taken an age, but an incident, for his theme. Conrad's characters would have acted like men alive, Mr. Tomlinson's behave like clockwork mice."
. — + Spec 144:130 Ja 25 '30 600w

"Mr. Tomlinson is a master of English prose, and this book is his greatest achievement up to the present. There are sentences which amaze one by their clear and suggestive vividness. 'All Our Yesterdays' is not an easy book in any sense. It makes big demands upon a reader, but it repays tenfold." H. K.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 19 '30 1300w

"Although we are sometimes oppressed by the weight of Mr. Tomlinson's portentousness, we can only stand in admiration before the ample, solid and richly chased structure that he has raised out of his broodings on the War. It is the work of a poet who thinks in the great rhythms of English prose and can match his style, though he fails, as a novelist, to match his characters, to the march of gigantic events."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p58 Ja 23 '30 1050w
Wis Lib Bul 26:69 F '30

"As a story All Our Yesterdays is engrossing from beginning to end. Yet there is more here than a good tale told in vigorous, imaginative, beautiful writing. The reading of this book is an experience which takes hold of one in an unforgettable way; but not once does the rush of emotions and events, which gathers momentum continuously, escape its fine restraint to mar the artistry." Elizabeth Webb
+ World Tomorrow 13:345 Ag '30 350w

TOMLINSON, HENRY MAJOR. Between the lines. 51p $1.25 Harvard univ. press [5s Oxford]

801 Literature—Addresses, essays, lectures 30-11843

Originally delivered as an address at a number of American colleges, this essay discusses literary style, the meaning of literature, and its relation to modern life.

Booklist 27:58 O '30
Boston Transcript p2 My 28 '30 250w

"The address must have charmed the bodies to which it was delivered, for it is dulcetly written, and it adheres to no single set dogmatic theme, but winds gracefully over some of the major problems of literature and life. Yet a man who speaks before a sea of upturned faces is inevitably tempted to be eloquent, and eloquence is sometimes the enemy of precision. Mr. Tomlinson, I fear, has yielded to this temptation in his discussion of literary style. The result is a series of questionable generalizations." Henry Hazlitt
+ — Nation 130:601 My 21 '30 1150w

"This pamphlet by some mysterious virtue has a flavour as real, but as difficult to explain, as the mystery of poetry of which the author speaks. His subject, indeed, is a large one; it is nothing less than literature. . . A charming piece of criticism, which all those who are interested in the fortunes of modern literature should buy and read for themselves. They will find it curiously exciting and full of good things." P. M.

+ Nation and Ath 47:536 Jl 26 '30 350w

"While by no means all that he says is novel, Mr. Tomlinson finds ample justification for his embarkation upon often-tried waters, for he not only expresses himself with insight and incisiveness, but has a particular point of attack that considers style, not so much in its general relations as with reference to the problems of the modern world." S. A. Coblentz

+ N Y Times p2 Ag 17 '30 550w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:81 N '30

Sat R of Lit 7:94 Ag 30 '30 70w

"H. M. Tomlinson is a writer to whom Americans of all ages and tempers gladly pay attention, and his address is worthy of distribution to a larger public than that composed of university audiences which originally heard it. It is a message of questioning and of faith, and it carries the impress of a strong and aspiring personality."

+ Springf'd Republican p10 Ap 26 '30 750w

TOMLINSON, HENRY MAJOR, ed. Great sea stories of all nations; with an introd. [by the editor]. 1108p $5 Doubleday, Doran [8s 6d Harrap]

Sea stories 30-26626

An anthology of the world's great stories of the sea, from Homer's Odyssey to writers of modern times. The stories are grouped according to the nationality of their authors, Great Britain, from Beowulf to John Masefield, being liberally represented. Among the authors included are Giovanni Boccaccio, David Bone, Joseph Conrad, Captain Dingle, Anatole France, Victor Hugo, Jonas Lie, Basil Lubbock, John Masefield, William McFee, Herman Melville, Edgar Allan Poe, Felix Riesenberg, Morley Roberts, Ernest Shackleton and H. G. Wells.

Booklist 26:398 Jl '30

"There have been collections of sea stories before, but never one to stand with this. Miss Elizabeth D'Oyley, to whom Tomlinson passes the palm for the actual making of the collection, is to be particularly congratulated on the high literary quality of the whole volume. So intelligent and so comprehensive are her selections that Great Sea Stories of All Nations will probably remain for years a classic in the realm of sea books." W. H. Wells

+ Bookm 71:549 Ag '30 380w

Reviewed by Edmund Blunden

Nation and Ath 47:473 Jl 12 '30 650w

"We will content ourselves with observing that it makes as good a bedside book as has appeared this year, that it is stoutly bound, and that its twelve hundred pages of type are comfortably decipherable by the aid of an ordinary reading lamp."

New Statesman 36:sup xiv N 8 '30 320w

"To browse in this rich sample room is to experience simultaneously the pleasures of remembrance and the stimulation of curiosity. One's interest is re-awakened in authors read so long ago that they are well-nigh forgotten and one's attention is called to others as yet unknown." R. C. B. Brown

+ N Y Evening Post p8m Je 14 '30 450w

" 'Great Sea Stories of all Nations' is a noble book, for it is based on all that is noblest in man, and answers to all that is noblest. A leviathan of a book, a library in itself, we guess very badly if it is not shortly on the shelves of private and public libraries, both near and far." Percy Hutchison

+ N Y Times p2 My 25 '30 1100w

Times [London] Lit Sup p579 Jl 10 '30 50w

Times [London] Lit Sup p1038 D 4 '30 1000w

TOOGOOD, GRANVILLE. Huntsman in the sky. 447p $2.50 Brewer

30-7573

Traces the steps in the development of Bertram Garrison, a member of an aristocratic Philadelphia family, from a selfish and rather useless member of society to the day of his success as a musical composer of merit.

Booklist 26:398 Jl '30

Reviewed by Guy Holt

Bookm 71:350 Je '30 230w

"This is Mr. Toogood's first book and it shows ability and craftsmanship and power of expression in his writing. He has a sympathy for life which at times achieves a very full understanding and whole passages hold one with their intensity and their maturity of feeling. This is such a first novel as to make one anticipate with pleasure the next book to come from the author of 'Huntsman in the Sky.' " W. B. Meloney, Jr.

+ Books p5 Mr 23 '30 750w

Boston Transcript p2 My 17 '30 200w

Cleveland Open Shelf p79 My '30

"There are some very good things in this first novel. Grandfather Lloyd, gentleman of the old school, Philadelphia Brahman, is an excellent portrait of the thoroughly American aristocrat. The writing is harmonious and polished. But there is something definitely wrong with the book in spite of its fine moments. The story does not advance. The novel, like its hero, seems to have little of the strength and fire of a great talent."

+ — Nation 130:605 My 21 '30 250w

"At present, with his swift confident writing, the author often merely flicks the reader's emotions. In the future, with his humor, his eagerness; above all, with his willingness to charge against complacency, he may, unlike his hero, become a spirited artist."

New Repub 63:242 Jl 16 '30 220w

"If we are to regard 'Huntsman in the Sky' as representative of the new era in American fiction, we can only conclude that the thirties are losing ground. It might, however, be more advisable to do neither the new era nor Mr. Toogood's novel the injustice of attempting to correlate them; to give the new era a little more time, and to take 'Huntsman in the Sky' for what it is: an excellently written romance." Gertrude Diamant

+ — N Y Evening Post p10m Mr 22 '30 600w

" 'Huntsman in the Sky' is a first novel which displays a considerable maturity of style and a fine, unusual emotional energy. . . The situation which surrounds Bertram Garrison is perhaps too prearranged for complete verisimilitude, too aptly stated to be convincing except as an argument. Nevertheless, 'Huntsman in the Sky' has a finely imaginative quality, an interest and sincerity which place it definitely above the average first novel." Margaret Wallace

+ — N Y Times p9 Mr 9 '30 480w

"There is some brilliant writing in this book. A few of the passages have not been exceeded by any first novel since 'Time of Man.' But there are some other parts that are not so good, and if a hundred pages had been expunged or excised or something like that, the integrity of the novel as a whole would not have suffered." Bellamy Partridge

— + N Y World p11m Mr 30 '30 320w

"Mr. Toogood's excursions are indisputably good in themselves. The scenes where his nice young men get attractively drunk, passing from profound platitudes to inspired silliness, are exactly right: the talk is better than real tipsy talk, clever enough to be delightful, but not too clever to be credible. But too many of the alleys turn out to be blind; they mislead a reader accustomed to the tighter writing of modern novels. These false leads pervade the whole scheme of the book. That is, the read-

TOOGOOD, GRANVILLE—Continued
er's expectation is slightly but consistently disappointed; and that is a dangerous game for an author to play. But though the book does not hold together, the pieces into which it falls are unusually well written, and one looks with interest for Mr. Toogood's second novel." Basil Davenport

— + Sat R of Lit 6:798 Mr 8 '30 500w

Springf'd Republican p5e Jl 13 '30 280w

Times [London] Lit Sup p736 S 18 '30 280w

TOPSØE-JENSEN, HELGE GOTTLIEB. Scandinavian literature from Brandes to our day; tr. from the Danish by Isaac Anderson. (Scandinavian classics) 275p il $3.50 American-Scandinavian foundation; Norton

839.5 Scandinavian literature 29-29245

An outline of the history of Danish, Norwegian and Swedish literature from 1870 to the present. The book was originally written for a Dutch popular series. After a short introductory survey the main divisions are: the modern awakening; naturalism; neo-romanticism and symbolism; new currents, 1900-1914. There is a selected list of Scandinavian books, and an index of authors.

Booklist 26:273 Ap '30

"Mr Topsöe-Jensen has fulfilled a need; for whereas until now we have never been able to appreciate fully (unless we were specialists) the background of such well known writers as Hans Andersen, Brandes, Ibsen, Strindberg and Hamsun, Lagerlöf and Undset, it is now possible to get an integrated impression of the literary heredity of these people. The preoccupation with 'the soil', which has interested thousands of readers, can now be seen as an inevitable growth." K. G. David

+ Bookm 71:120 Mr '30 180w

"This is the sole book in the field, and with Scandinavian literature invading America as it is, it is a most timely treatise. . . The translation is good. The list of Scandinavian books that have been brought out in English is informative. The poise and temper of Mr. Topsoe-Jensen could not be better. The make-up is in conformity with the splendid traditions of the American-Scandinavian Foundation." A. W. Porterfield

+ Books p17 Ja 26 '30 500w

"Fairness and impersonality mark Isaac Anderson's translation of a fair and impersonal original whose author is himself related to two eminent Danish literary families."

+ Boston Transcript p2 D 28 '29 400w

Nation 129:782 D 25 '29 40w

Reviewed by Edwin Seaver

N Y Evening Post p9m D 7 '29 180w

"Even in the face of unavoidable limitations, the author has performed his task interestingly and with clarity and an evident command of his field; and the volume, accordingly, is to be recommended as an illuminating guidebook to recent Scandinavian literature." S. A. Coblentz

+ N Y Times p6 Mr 30 '30 620w

Reviewed by W. R. Brooks

Outlook 153:589 D 11 '29 50w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:34 Ap '30

Pratt p27 summer '30

"Should be welcomed here for what it tells us of modern authorship in Denmark, Norway, and Sweden, and especially for its introductory survey of literature in the three countries—the only summary of the kind available to the American reader." W. B. Shaw

+ R of Rs 81:10 F '30 200w

St Louis 28:76 Mr '30

Times [London] Lit Sup p208 Mr 13 '30 550w

Wis Lib Bul 26:66 F '30

World Tomorrow 13:315 Jl '30 50w

TORGERSON, EDWIN DIAL. Murderer returns. 308p $2 Smith, R.R.

30-24241

A Chinese cat plays the stellar role in this murder-mystery, the scene of which is set in the city of Montreal.

Bookm 72:xxv O '30 100w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Books p20 N 23 '30 100w

"There is no reason why the defects should spoil the book for you." Dashiell Hammett

+ — N Y Evening Post p4d O 11 '30 200w

"The solution is ingenious, but the story as a whole fails to be absorbing. It limps along with little finesse." Bruce Rae

— + N Y Times p22 O 19 '30 180w

"The ingenuity of method employed in the Torgerson novel for committing murder undetected is somewhat marred by slovenly writing and the use of too much dubious detail to point suspicion in the wrong direction." E. C. Beckwith

— + N Y World p3e O 19 '30 150w

TORNIUS, VALERIAN HUGO. Salons; pictures of society through five centuries; English version by Agnes Platt and Lilian Wonderley. 318p il $5 Cosmopolitan bk. [21s T. Butterworth]

920.7 Salons 29-28657

For descriptive note see Annual for 1929.

Books p12 F 23 '30 180w

"Vulgar in tone, shoddy in material, slipshod in diction—this is a sorry piece of work."

— Nation and Ath 46:545 Ja 18 '30 500w

N Y World p11m Ap 13 '30 100w

Times [London] Lit Sup p77 Ja 30 '30 580w

TORREY, MARIAN EDWARDS (RICHARDS) (MRS CHARLES CUTLER TORREY). My outrageous cousin. 364p $2 Macmillan

29-24078

"The story has to do with a rather unusual and distinguished young man and with the vicissitudes of his life, mostly troubled and romantic."—N Y Evening Post

"For 130 out of 364 pages Cousin Julian Furness fulfills all the expectations aroused by the first few glimpses of him as a blonde Adonis in the midst of his tippling elders. His satanic charm, his indiscretions, his romantic accident pave the way for his fascinating moroseness and his disloyalty. Then in the middle of the book the charm, the romance and the fascination vanish. Cousin Julian becomes a nasty, vindictive, middle-aged cripple. Yet the beginning of the book is entertaining: it moves rapidly, logically and humorously."

+ — Books p15 Mr 23 '30 180w

"The way the author has of giving us her hero in the third person and yet intimately as seen by a cousin very near to him arouses our sympathy without barring our judgment, and lends a tone of charm to her story that is undeniable." Edwin Seaver

+ N Y Evening Post p14m N 23 '29 100w

"Marian Richards Torrey has written an adroit and carefully articulated story, considerably less sprightly and rather more consequential than its title indicates. While it has no pretensions to special depth or gravity, it can be counted upon to provide almost any reader with an amusing and oblivious hour or two."

+ — N Y Times p9 D 1 '29 500w

TORREY, NORMAN LEWIS. Voltaire and the English deists. (Yale Romanic studies) 224p $2.50 Yale univ. press [11s 6d Oxford]

194 Voltaire, François Marie Arouet de. Deism 30-8631

A study of the influence exerted upon Voltaire by John Toland, Anthony Collins, Thomas

Woolston, Matthew Tindal, Lord Peter Annet and other English deists of the first part of the eighteenth century.

"Professor Torrey, with faultless scholarship, analyzes the contribution of the English Deists to Voltaire's war chest. The most original source of information is the study of Voltaire's private library, now at Leningrad. . . On the whole, an excellent piece of work, thorough and readable." Albert Guerard
+ Books p17 My 4 '30 300w

"Mr. Torrey has written an entertaining, learned, and helpful book, but, considering the subject, it is perhaps a pity that he does not know the difference between the Immaculate Conception and the Virgin Birth." Francis Birrell
+ — Nation and Ath 47:476 Jl 12 '30 830w

"Scholarly piece of documentation."
+ Sat R 150:236 Ag 23 '30 950w

"Students will be grateful to Mr. Torrey for an important and detailed survey of the English Deists, which does full justice to their proper influence and their particular importance in relation to the writings of Voltaire."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p544 Jl 3 '30 1000w

TOULMIN, HARRY AUBREY. Millions in mergers; with introd. by C. M. Chester, jr. 323p $3.50 Forbes

338.8 Trusts, Industrial. Monopolies. Corporation law 29-24747

"The public interest in the question of corporation mergers is clearly defined by Toulmin in Millions in Mergers. He urges the requirement that mergers, to be successful, should reduce costs, strengthen financial resources, provide sales outlets, and render greater service to the public. The courts do not look with favor on independent corporations trying to control prices by agreement, but if the same corporations merge in one they are likely to assume that the purpose of the merger is in the public interest. As Mr. Toulmin explains, the Sherman Law has actually stimulated the formation of mergers. By combining in one organization, two companies may do things that they would not be permitted to do as separate units under an agreement."—R of Rs

Am Econ R 20:521 S '30 280w

Reviewed by A. T. Johnson
Ann Am Acad 147:205 Ja '30 450w

Booklist 27:95 N '30

Reviewed by George Soule
N Y Times p12 Jl 27 '30 220w

Reviewed by W. B. Shaw
R of Rs 80:26 D '29 170w

St Louis 28:66 Mr '30

TOURNIER, EDWARD J. Materials handling equipment. (McGraw-Hill industrial management ser.) 371p il $4 McGraw

621.86 Conveying machinery 29-30682

"It is the purpose of this book to set forth the results, in service, of those mechanical handling devices which are most frequently used, to show how these forms are adapted to different uses, to indicate the methods by which a proper selection may be effected, and to serve as a guide to the most economical methods in purchasing the machinery selected." (Preface) Materials handled include coal, ashes, coke, sand, gravel, packages, pulp-wood, and chips.

Booklist 26:226 Mr '30

"Considered as a whole, this book represents a first-class empirical treatment; although it does not proceed from the rational or engineering standpoint, which the unit processes usually require, it is the best book available today on its subject, and as such will be useful to chemical engineers." G. L. Montgomery
+ Chem & Met Eng 37:258 Ap '30 400w

"Too much space is devoted to history and not enough to information which prospective users of material-handling equipment would like to have, especially prospective users in the chemical field. The book is rather elementary from an engineer's standpoint, and it contains considerable repetition. . . The book is not strictly up to date and is far from being exhaustive." W. F. Schaphorst
— Ind & Eng Chem 22:196 F '30 280w

N Y New Tech Bks 15:7 Ja '30

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:26 Mr '30

St Louis 28:69 Mr '30

TOWNEND, WILLIAM. Once to Tiger Bay. 306p $2 Washburn [7s 6d Jenkins]

29-21205

"A salty yarn, chock full of hard liquor, hard blows, hard swearing. Mr. Townend's hero, Pen Durwen, is a likeable chap, and Mr. Townend's villain, Captain Poolis, is one of the blackest of the species, wrecking ships and men indiscriminately in his climb to power. The locale shifts interestingly from Sailortown to Cardiff, to the Boca of Buenos Aires, with occasional jaunts into Sussex, Pen's home shire, for contrast."—N Y Times

"The picture of life aboard ship is vivid and dramatic, and the trip to Buenos Aires and back to Cardiff provides satisfactory excitement for adventure seekers."
+ Bookm 71:xxxi Mr '30 50w

"Too much repetition of incident and argument mar the construction of this novel and some of the intended climaxes seem to flop by reason of this stress. A good boiling down and some skimming would thicken the stew and intensify its real sea flavor."
— Boston Transcript p10 N 9 '29 200w

"A good yarn of men who go down to the sea in ships, even though Mr. Townend's ships are not the old windjammers of romance. Nevertheless, the elements of his yarn are the same old sure-fire elements of romantic sea stories of the clipper epoch." Edwin Seaver
+ N Y Evening Post p14m N 23 '29 80w

"There are patent absurdities, but you will overlook them if you enjoy the tang of salt water, and the fascination of seaports and ships."
+ — N Y Times p24 Mr 16 '30 150w

"This is an uncommonly good story of the sea, based upon a mystery that is better than the average detective tale."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p476 Je 12 '29 220w

TOWNSEND, MARY EVELYN. Rise and fall of Germany's colonial empire, 1884-1918; with an introd. by Carlton J. H. Hayes. 424p il $5 (21s) Macmillan

325.343 Germany—Colonies 30-6985

A whole oversea empire was won and lost by Germany in a single generation. This book shows how the colonial empire inaugurated by Bismarck was developed and administered and the relationship of these colonies to Germany's own expanding life between 1871 and 1914.

Reviewed by M. S. Wertheimer
Am Hist R 36:148 O '30 550w

"A well-rounded picture of the colonial experience of the German Empire which will be of great convenience for the scholar and the general reader alike. It will be of special utility to those interested in appraising the methods and the results of modern imperialism." H. E. Barnes
+ Ann Am Acad 150:299 Jl '30 250w

Reviewed by F. R. Dulles
Bookm 71:232 Ap '30 420w

"Here is an admirable framework for an historical drama. Only one thing is lacking—romantic glamor. . . The outstanding merits of the book are perspicuity and fair mindedness." W. K. Stewart
+ — Books p17 My 11 '30 620w

TOWNSEND, M. E.—Continued
Reviewed by R. C. Binkley
Current Hist 32:431 Je '30 750w

"An excellent scholarly study of Germany's short-lived empire."
+ Foreign Affairs 8:675 Jl '30

"Its dramatic and spectacular story, its excellent aspects, and its weak points, its bearing upon all the complications of international relations in the years before the War, these and other phases of its history have never been set forth before with the completeness that the volume under review displays on every page. For all interested in nineteenth and twentieth century imperialism, this book will be an invaluable one." Duane Squires
+ Hist Outlook 21:237 My '30 1000w

"Miss Townsend's book is a real contribution. It is based on an exhaustive examination of official documents, including the German Foreign Office archives which were published after the war. An introduction implies that her book is a vindication of Germany as a colonial Power. Neverthless, her chapters on 'Scientific Colonization' and 'Native Policy' are severely objective; indeed, they have that air of unreality which is inevitable in any description based mainly on statistics."
+ Nation and Ath 47:326 Je 7 '30 420w

"Miss Townsend's volume is valuable not only as a history of Germany's sensational colonial expansion in the years before the war. It is also valuable in view of the existence in Germany of a strong propaganda for the return to the fatherland of its lost colonies. There are Germans to whom the agitation for their country's re-entry into the list of the world's colonizing powers has become a life work. In view of this, a book like that here reviewed—sound, painstaking, written with a constant endeavor to be unbiased—becomes of peculiar value to all readers desirous of knowing just what it was that Germany lost across the seas when she signed the Treaty of Versailles and just what it is that she expects to win back by nullifying the clause in that treaty which brought her eclipse as a colonial power."
+ N Y Times p3 Mr 9 '30 1250w

Reviewed by W. B. Shaw
R of Rs 81:12 Mr '30 180w

"The American author of this book states in her preface that 'the study has been prompted by the fact that there exists nothing in English which provides a connected colonial history of one of the most important Great Powers before 1914,' She has supplied the want with a wealth of industry and research. All the more provoking, therefore, it is to be checked at the outset by obvious absence of adequate revision. . . But Dr. Townsend has produced an excellent book which deserves success. It is a lucid account of a subject with many bypaths and complications."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p487 Je 12 '30 950w

TOWNSHEND, FRANK. Heaven. 96p $2 (6s) Knopf

811 30-18766

"This sequel to Mr. Townshend's 'Earth' is similar in texture and in its combination of ironic criticism of modern and particularly American civilization and of vision of a future in which the faculties of creation, understanding and rhythm may unite in man and enable him to realize fully his divine potentialities. It is divided into three sections, entitled 'The Kingdom of Heaven,' 'God,' and 'Eternal Life,' representing stages in a progress from earth-bound to illuminated consciousness."—Times [London] Lit Sup

"There is much that is engaging in this soul-journey undertaken by Mr. Townshend. The reader will find a new (and very simple) sort of heaven, with God dwelling in a little tent."
+ N Y Times p27 S 28 '30 200w

"Satirical descriptions. Intelligence and cleverness. An eccentric philosophical essay rather than poetry." W. R. Benét
Sat R of Lit 7:9 Jl 26 '30 30w

"The pilgrim's inward development is somewhat obscured by the ceaseless succession of false illusions which he is called upon to observe and to expose, while the use of loose free verse, which is in fact no more than irregular prose, encourages discursiveness."
— Times [London] Lit Sup p687 Ag 28 '30 150w

TRACY, HENRY CHESTER. American naturalists. 282p $3.90 Dutton

925.9 Naturalists. Science—History 30-8451

Short sketches of twenty-one American men and women, who studied or wrote of nature. Contents: John Bartram; William Bartram; Alexander Wilson; John James Audubon; Henry David Thoreau; John Burroughs; John Muir; Olive Thorne Miller; Maurice Thompson; William T. Hornaday; Theodore Roosevelt; Carl Akeley; Roy Chapman Andrews; Edward Howe Forbush; William Leon Dawson; Frank M. Chapman; Walter Prichard Eaton; Liberty H. Bailey; William Beebe; Ernest Thompson Seton; Mary Austin.

For biographical sketch of the author see Wilson bulletin 3:560 Mr '29

Booklist 26:311 My '30

"It is the kind of thing that is so often sentimental or inspirational, but Mr. Tracy for the most part avoids such pitfalls and frequently surpasses the writers he praises."
+ Bookm 71:xxx Ap '30 100w

"Not one of these papers is truly illuminating. Not one develops new ideas on the man or woman of which it treats. There is no attempt to present a succinct factual account of any of these people. The treatment is chattily lyrical."
— Books p15 Ap 27 '30 260w

"One lays the book down with the feeling that, interesting as it undoubtedly is, the author might have given it greater unity and depth if he had stuck closer to his text. Perhaps he may be persuaded to tell us more about his earliest group: the two Bartrams, Alexander Wilson and Audubon, in a later book. One would look forward to it with genuine pleasure." Charles Johnston
N Y Times p3 Jl 6 '30 750w

Reviewed by W. R. Brooks
Outlook 154:547 Ap 2 '30 30w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:78 N '30

TRADITION and experiment in present-day literature; addresses delivered at the City literary institute of London. 215p $2.50 (7s 6d) Oxford

804 Literature—History and criticism. English literature. Literary criticism [30-12119]

"The volume consists of ten lectures or essays by ten different authors. Mr. Mottram, Mr. Blunden, Mr. A. I. A. Symons, Mr. Ashley Dukes, and Miss Rebecca West deal with tradition; Mr. Beresford, Miss Sitwell, Mr. Burdett, Mr. C. K. Munro, and Mr. Eliot deal with experiment in contemporary novels, poetry, biography, plays, and criticism respectively."—Nation and Ath

"An excellent idea may have been behind this series of lectures but apparently the various speakers were unaware of what the central idea might be and failed therefore to work toward a common aim. Under the circumstances each made his own interpretation of his assignment, and this fact makes it hard to draw any general conclusions from what might have been a very profitable debate or a parallel exploration in a common spirit of the general theme of Tradition and Experiment." G. B. Munson
— + Bookm 71:119 Mr '30 350w

Reviewed by Stephen Bloore
Books p12 Mr 23 '30 450w

"Very spirited, yet always scholarly, expositions of divergent view-points in the five branches of contemporary literature, the novel, poetry, biography, the theater and criticism." C. F.

+ Boston Transcript p2 Mr 12 '30 600w

"From a volume such as this, the reader expects to emerge with his ideas sharpened and clarified; he is likely, instead, to find himself more in a fog than ever. Here are essays by ten writers, writing by pairs on five branches of literary art, the first of the pair discussing his branch in relation to tradition, the second in relation to experiment. One looks for clean divisions of opinion, for a series of five debates. One finds, in fact, that not a single contributor has been willing to throw in his lot entirely either with tradition or with experiment, nor does he even seem willing to admit that he knows precisely the difference between them." Henry Hazlitt

— Nation 130:219 F 19 '30 950w

"The book is very disappointing to anyone seeking information on such questions. Obviously most of the writers, when they sat down to write their essays, found themselves in a terrible hole. They could not see where tradition ended and experiment began, and one after the other falls back upon the lame conclusion that successful experiment becomes tradition. Most of the authors of these essays write round and round the subject. . . In fact, Mr. C. K. Munro is the only one of these writers who seems to me to have accomplished his task successfully." Leonard Woolf

— + Nation and Ath 46:402 D 14 '29 1250w

"We find the defenders of tradition shyly disclaiming old-fogeyism and loudly protesting that they recognize the value of experiment; and the appointed proponents of experiment are careful to do homage to tradition. Not only do the lion and the lamb lie down together; the lamb praises the lion's mane, and the lion speaks eloquently of the beauty of wool. . . Judged not as arguments in a debate but as discussions of literary problems, all the essays except the first three make points worthy of consideration. Nor is the book as a whole without its usefulness." Granville Hicks

— + New Repub 62:105 Mr 12 '30 700w

"This is a valuable handbook. It not only makes clear how difficult is the question which it poses, but gets a short way toward its solution." C. H. Grattan

+ — N Y Evening Post p11m F 1 '30 950w

"It is T. S. Eliot alone who in the final paper in the book manages to say something. His 'Experiment in Criticism' contains some really valuable definitions and distinctions. This book, on the whole, says very little. It would be hard, in view of its purely arbitrary subject-matter, to say very much; but some part, at least, of the difficulty must be ascribed to the persons involved. Some of them reveal definitely mediocre thinking; others of them seem too prejudiced; one or two appear to have tackled their job, not with a skepticism that might have quickened their minds, but with an indifference which deadened them." Louis Kronenberger

— + N Y Times p21 S 14 '30 550w

"The essays are so highly readable that they cannot be left only to the professionally interested. Any one who likes books and the theatre can enjoy them. And T. S. Eliot's discussions of experiments in criticism should provoke some comment."

+ Outlook 154:226 F 5 '30 120w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:53 Je '30

"Miss Sitwell's analogy of the newer prosody is minute and masterly, and will be read with profit irrespective of one's likings and dislikings. It is at once the most informational and the most brilliant of these ten essays. Though it measurably fails of its aim to balance the old with the new, this book is rich in stimulating suggestions and points of view. A college senior, or for that matter any thoughtful reader in arrears of current discussion, will find in it whereupon to sharpen his critical teeth." F. J. Mather

+ Sat R of Lit 7:71 Ag 23 '30 850w

Reviewed by Odell Shepard

Yale R n s 20:187 autumn '30 220w

TRAILL, MRS CATHARINE PARR (STRICKLAND). Backwoods of Canada; being letters from the wife of an emigrant officer, illustrative of the domestic economy of British America; introd. by Edward S. Caswell. new ed 377p il $3 McClelland & Stewart (Toronto)

917.1 Canada—Description and travel. Frontier and pioneer life—Canada

A hundred years ago Catharine Parr Traill came as a young pioneer wife to Peterboro, a log-cabin frontier settlement in Canada. This book, originally published in 1836 by a London firm, is made up largely of letters written by Mrs Traill to her mother during the first three years of her new life in the backwoods country. She describes the voyage over, the building of their log hut, and the community life in the little colony. Mrs Traill's book is of value also because of her interest in botany and natural history.

"For the Canadian reader the book has both the historical and sentimental interests that have made occasional copies of its long ago appearance a prize for collectors of Canadiana, but the American reader, caring less for these factors, will like to compare its accounts of frontiering hardships with those of our own pioneering mothers. But both Canadians and Americans will find unconsciously portrayed in its pages a very interesting and gallant personality."

+ N Y Times p18 D 29 '29 350w

"This reprint is another instance of the vitality of an honest book. These letters . . . are leisurely, unprejudiced, and photographically reproductive of the times. They are also delightfully various, expatiating with equal interest on the domestic economy of a backwoods' kitchen, or the singing of goldfinches, or the unfounded expectations of the emigrant. Mrs. Traill was sustained by her love of nature, and the accuracy of her observations has done much to embalm her pages."

+ Sat R of Lit 6:808 Mr 8 '30 200w

"Her serenity and good will are apparent in every line. She took things as they came, without complaint, and enjoyed herself very much, in spite of serious hardships. . . Her letters are full of her enthusiasm for the wild flowers and fruits in the woods. She lived to be nearly a hundred, and when she was past ninety she was still actively collecting specimens and capable of intense excitement over a new plant."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p70 Ja 30 '30 650w

TRAIN, ARTHUR CHENEY. Adventures of Ephraim Tutt, attorney and counsellor-at-law. 751p $2.50 Scribner

30-23193

A selection of twenty-nine of the Tutt stories, each of which reveals Mr Train's astute old lawyer in his best form. His originator, in a preface to the volume, tells how Ephraim Tutt's name and character were suggested to him, and gives something of an outline of his many legal adventures in the pages of the Saturday Evening Post and elsewhere.

For biographical sketch of the author see Wilson bulletin 4:426 My '30

Booklist 27:117 N '30

Bookm 72:ix S '30 80w

"Here are 700 pages of the stories of Mr. Tutt, old ones that we know and some that we have never seen before, all built around the wise and genial old lawyer who delighted in nothing so much as entangling a clever rogue in a web of legal technicalities more subtle than those with which he is trying to protect his own rascality. Virtue triumphs as surely as in the most edifying Sunday school story, and much more convincingly."

TRAIN, A. C.—Continued
+ Christian Century 47:1093 S 10 '30 100w
Springf'd Republican p7e S 28 '30 220w

TRAIN, ARTHUR CHENEY. Paper profits; a novel of Wall street. 347p $2.50 Liveright
30-8785

"The effects upon the life of a highly intelligent, young married man, suddenly obsessed by stock plunging, are shown in full, disastrous detail over a period of three frenzied years. At the beginning, living happily and unpretentiously with his wife and two children, he seems safely aloof from the temptation to take the road to easy riches. Then he essays his first modest flyer with suprisingly fat returns, and is embarked upon a sky-rocketing career in finance. The inevitable loss of the whole fortune follows, and bitterly, in weakened character and self-respect and estrangement from his wife, does this victim of reckless cupidity pay for his lesson."—Sat R of Lit

"It has documentary value, chiefly in showing how the stock reports colored the thought of all classes in the days of the Great Bull Market. But as literary or human evidence it means nothing."
— + Atlantic Bookshelf p16 Je '30 200w
Booklist 26:359 Je '30

" 'Paper Profits' presents a brisk, surface study of American society. It will be enjoyed at least by the minority whose financial happiness escaped the eclipse of last October."
Books p11 Ag 24 '30 180w

"Arthur Train is one of those unusual novelists who can write a thoroughly fascinating story in its own right, and still convey a large amount of philosophy to those who care for something behind the transitory tale. And he is clever enough not to require pages of soul probing in which to reveal them—in every motion they reveal themselves. His character delineation makes them vital and memorable, until we feel an understanding sympathy (not condonation) for Larry's misdeeds which no amorous adventures of a Babbitt could ever create." A. M. B.
+ Boston Transcript p3 Je 21 '30 230w

Reviewed by K. C. Tomlinson
Nation and Ath 48:242 N 15 '30 150w

"The style is prolix. The characterization is roughly satirical. And 'Paper Profits' contains a quantity of case notes on the manners, morals, minds and habits of our contemporaries that should delight the social historians of our time. That is the outstanding value of the book."
+ — N Y Times p9 Ap 13 '30 500w

Reviewed by Harry Hansen
N Y World p11 Mr 26 '30 800w

"One need only read Frank Norris' The Pit, a novel on a similar subject to realize how trivial is Mr. Train's handling of a powerful theme. His characters and situations have machine-made edges."
— Outlook 154:589 Ap 9 '30 120w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:51 Je '30

"A book which in spots reads more like an impassioned tract than a work of pure imagination. The sermonizing tone, however, in no degree weakens the steady grip the story holds upon the attention, nor is it over-estimating the merits of the work to regard it as perhaps the stoutest blow dealt at the shady side of Wall Street by a contemporary novelist."
+ Sat R of Lit 6:904 Ap 5 '30 300w

"Mr. Train's novel is fiction, but it has the authority of historical fiction."
Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 13 '30 500w

TRAPROCK, WALTER E., pseud. See Chappell, G. S.

TRATTNER, ERNEST ROBERT. Autobiography of God; an interpretation. 312p il $2.50 Scribner
231 God. Religion—History 30-9350

A history of religion which presents the evolution of man's conception of God. God is represented as being Himself the author of the book and setting forth His own account of the creation, His evolutionary method, and man's changing views of deity though the ages.

Boston Transcript p2 My 17 '30 600w
Christian Century 47:759 Je 11 '30 180

"The book is praiseworthy in every respect except its title. The title is too much of a concession to the generation's preference for catchy titles and what is worse, it introduces a device into the book which detracts from the reader's attention. . . The device has the less justification because the book is not really an imaginative treatment of the history of the divine but a very good historical analysis of the religious thought of the centuries. There are only a few 'autobiographical' touches in it. Mr. Trattner has written a sincere and competent book. It might be recommended to the author of the more recent 'Treatise on the Gods' as a model of realism without vulgarity in the history of religions."
+ — N Y Evening Post p11m Ap 19 '30 300w

"The device of having God tell his own story is an arresting one but one which will offend some. However, the book does give us, in a concise and readable form, the gist of what is now known about the historical development of our religious ideas. It is an easy way to review this field." E. B. Chaffee
+ — Outlook 154:592 Ap 9 '30 100w
Survey 64:521 S 15 '30 50w

TRELL, MAX. Tom and moT. 178p il $1.50 Cosmopolitan bk.
30-23203

"Tom is none other than the little Tommy Lynn of the nursery rhyme who so unfortunately drowned poor Pussy Cat one day. His adventures begin when, on peering down the well after poor pussy, he catches sight of his own reflection. Quite against his will and rather suddenly he and his reflection change places with each other. Mot is, of course, the reflection's name and the story relates the amazing adventures of Tom living Mot's life in a topsy-turvey underworld. He finally reaches home much improved by the experience."—Sat R of Lit

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
N Y Times p45 D 7 '30 180w

"The illustrations are sprightly and, though the story is occasionally strongly reminiscent of 'Alice in Wonderland,' it still has plenty of original moments."
+ Sat R of Lit 7:352 N 15 '30 120w

TREND, JOHN BRANDE. Manuel de Falla and Spanish music. 184p $2.50 Knopf 780 Falla, Manuel de. Music—Spain
29-25903

An interpretative study of the work of one of Spain's foremost living composers. The book contains many musical excerpts and a survey of Spanish music.

Booklist 26:271 Ap '30

"In this monograph Mr. Trend, who is one of the most trustworthy of contemporary writers on Spain, has furnished to music lovers a thorough, scholarly and readable study of the music of Spain's greatest living composer. . . This is a book that was badly needed and one that has been admirably done." Herschel Brickell
+ Books p10 Ja 5 '30 350w
Cleveland Open Shelf p51 Ap '30

Reviewed by Jeffrey Mark
New Repub 63:52 My 28 '30 550w

"Although Mr. Trend devotes a whole book to the contemporary composer Manuel de Falla, he does not succeed in convincing us that this charming Spanish hedge-sparrow is a nightingale or even a skylark. The most interesting part of his book, which is chiefly devoted to an analysis of Manuel de Falla's six principal works, are the well-informed chapters on the Spanish idiom and the development of Spanish music which began with Pedrell."
New Statesman 34:744 Mr 15 '30 180w

St Louis 28:214 S '30

"We welcome a critical study of Falla's work by a close personal friend of the composer. Mr. Trend is not led aside from his argument by the temptation which must have been great in this case, of chronicling anecdotes; indeed, the biographical matter is very short indeed. The author's aim has been to make as clear as possible the personal significance of Falla's work—quite apart from its national significance."
+ Sat R 149:336 Mr 15 '30 220w

"On all that directly concerns Spanish music and Falla's place in it, there is no doubt of Mr. Trend's first-hand knowledge and first-rate use of his knowledge."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p157 F 27 '30 450w

TREVELYAN, GEORGE MACAULAY. Clio, a muse, and other essays. 196p (7s 6d) $2.75 Longmans

824 [30-23073]

Most of these essays have already appeared in book form. They are now re-issued with the omission of three essays contained in the 1913 edition and the addition of three new ones. Contents: Walking; The Middle Marches; John Woolman, the Quaker; John Bunyan; Poor Muggleton and the classics; Poetry and rebellion; History and fiction; Englishmen and Italians; If Napoleon had won the battle of Waterloo; The news of Ramillies; Clio, a muse; The present position of history (inaugural lecture, 1927).

"The leading essay, on the muse of history, [is] a sane and convincing piece of writing, in which argument is served by charm and theory firmly grounded in experience. . . Trevelyan insists that Clio be served by art, and pleads for a return to the great literary tradition." B. R. Redman
+ Books p12 Ap 27 '30 800w

"In addition to the two essays directly concerned with history, which are of permanent value, the book contains several lighter pieces, one or two of which, perhaps, were hardly worth reprinting; but those which deal with the interdependence of literature and history provide ample compensation."
+ New Statesman 35:94 Ap 26 '30 250w

Spec 144:708 Ap 26 '30 230w

Times [London] Lit Sup p521 Je 26 '30 2300w

TREVELYAN, GEORGE MACAULAY. England under Queen Anne; v 1, Blenheim. 477p $7.50 (21s) Longmans

942.069 Great Britain—History—1689-1714. Spanish succession, War of, 1701-1714 (30-23326)

A history of England during the reign of Queen Anne, in which the author narrates the events that led to the battle of Blenheim. Interest centers in Marlborough, the hero of Blenheim.

Booklist 27:151 D '30

"Mr. Trevelyan's pages are fascinating reading to any one historically minded. He is never in haste to get on, and in the same leisurely fashion in which he sketches his background he unfolds the stormy record of party struggles in the first years of Anne's reign, the devious course of English and Continental diplomacy, and the beginning and progress of the Spanish Succession War. As far as military operations go, Marlborough is naturally the central figure, and no detail of his performance is too small to escape notice. The distinguishing feature of the book, however, from the standpoint of balance and art, is the skill with which it weaves together the political, diplomatic and military elements of Marlborough's career." William MacDonald
+ Books p3 S 21 '30 1100w

"Represents the achievements of ripe scholarship, meticulous research, and sound judgment, welded together in a clear and animated narrative. The general reader has the best of it; for the supreme merit of the book—despite its fullness of detail and its use of new or little-worked sources—lies in its conception and the broad lines of its execution. It is, as Professor Trevelyan sees it, a great story that he has to tell, and there is a touch of the epic quality in his telling of it." C. E. Fayle
+ Nation and Ath 48:48 O 11 '30 1050w

"The England of Queen Anne has begun to come alive under Professor Trevelyan's fingers: with the delicate art which he has so often practiced, he has woven together the familiar facts and details and new facts and details which his researches have given him to make pictures of the town and the countryside. Every schoolboy knows that Marlborough beat Tallard at Blenheim in 1704. But let him read Mr. Trevelyan and he will know it as never before."
+ New Statesman 35:764 S 27 '30 800w

"In 'Blenheim' he gives us stirring proof of the vitality and validity of this 'older ideal' [of history] by painting with sure, deft strokes a sequence of historical pictures whose splendid continuity, vivacious descriptive quality, and working up to a smashing dramatic denouement—albeit the style of Lord Macaulay's great-nephew is more terse and incisive than that of his great-uncle—are of happy augury for the succeeding volumes of his ambitious study." F. H. Martens
+ N Y Evening Post p12 S 27 '30 850w

St Louis 28:303 D '30

Reviewed by Charles Petrie
Sat R 150:410 O 4 '30 850w

"In view of Professor Trevelyan's historical learning and literary charm it is no surprise to find that the first instalment of his book on Queen Anne is worthy of the subject and of the family affection that has inspired it."
+ Spec 145:389 S 20 '30 500w

Springf'd Republican p7e S 21 '30 1250w

Times [London] Lit Sup p741 S 25 '30 4400w

TREYNOR, ALBERT M. Flaming sands. 305p $2 Dodd

30-1938

Rainey Caverly, a young scientist, is captured in the Sahara desert and sold as a slave to a powerful chieftain, Ras Tagar. He watches his chance to escape, and after two years succeeds—to return later disguised as the chief's long absent son. Again escape, following discovery—this time with a lovely American girl named Bo.

"Battles, sudden death, bandits, intrigue and true love keep the action of this picturesque tale at what you might call fever heat." Will Cuppy
+ Books p15 F 2 '30 70w

N Y Times p24 Mr 9 '30 230w

TREYNOR, ALBERT M. Hawk of the desert. ² 299p $2 Dodd

30-27757

A thrilling tale of a white man's search for a lost brother who had been sold into slavery among the savage tribes of the Sahara.

Booklist 27:209 Ja '31

TREYNOR, A. M.—Continued

"Mr. Treynor's practiced hand achieves numerous adventure thrills in his newest yarn." Will Cuppy

+ Books p14 N 2 '30 80w

"In some adroit fashion that other writers of desert fiction would do well to imitate, the author of this book has managed to spin an absorbing yarn."

+ N Y Times p20 O 19 '30 130w

TROMP, MARTIN HARPERTZOON. Journal of Maarten Harpertszoon, anno 1639; tr. and ed. by C. R. Boxer. 237p pl $8.40 Macmillan [21s Cambridge univ. press]

949.2 Netherlands—History. Netherlands—History, Naval [30-24456]

"This laconic journal of the great Dutch admiral deals with the coup de grace which his fleet dealt to Spanish sea power, already shaken a half century before by the English. The episode is of interest to the English since it occurred in their own waters, in defiance of their neutrality, and also because it marked the zenith of the Dutch sea power which England was to challenge thirteen years later. The journal itself and the excellent introduction throw light on several features which are not to be found in the best accounts in English. Mr. Boxer, comparing Tromp's version with the stories of eyewitnesses in the other two fleets, De Mello and Peter White, has brought forth material not even included in the Dutch works of De Jonge, Arend and De Boer."—Am Hist R

"The editing has been done in an able and thorough manner, and the journal has been translated into seventeenth century English." R. G. Albion

+ Am Hist R 36:192 O '30 600w

"Mr. Boxer presents the journal with the apparatus of a careful scholarship and with a long introduction which gives not only the political and strategic backgrounds of the campaign, but also contemporary English and Spanish accounts of the actions involved, culminating in the Battle of the Downs, October 21, 1639." Walter Millis

+ Books p20 O 5 '30 600w

"This is one of those rare volumes that warm a reviewer's heart by being satisfactory all through. The matter is of real historical interest; the editing is skilful, enthusiastic, and thorough without pedantry; print, page, and binding are agreeable and dignified, and the illustrations are both well chosen and well reproduced. It would be difficult to overpraise Mr. Boxer's industry and acumen, and one may add that his Introduction, besides throwing new light on the campaign in the Channel, and the previous French campaign on the Spanish coast, is thoroughly good, lively reading. His work both as translator and editor forms a worthy tribute to the memory of a very great seaman." C. E. F.

+ Nation and Ath 47:294 My 31 '30 450w

"Tromp's Journal is a little disappointing in its account of the two earlier engagements, which he dismisses in a few lines; but 'the long-drawn-out agony of the Downs,' which formed the last act of the drama, is described in detail, and it is here that, quite unconsciously, he shows his own high qualities not only as an admiral but also as a diplomatist. Mr. Boxer's translation is admirable."

New Statesman 35:192 My 17 '30 600w

St Louis 28:246 O '30

"The book is admirably arranged, printed, and indexed: it is illustrated by Admiralty charts as well as by reproductions of old prints of the battles."

+ Sat R 149:530 Ap 26 '30 700w

"Mr. C. R. Boxer has produced, in his translation of Admiral Tromp's outspoken and vividly picturesque Journal, a book of very particular interest. It will appeal not alone to professional seamen who will find in it abundant details of naval tactics and economy, but also to the general reader who will study to the increase of his knowledge the sea-diary of a great admiral who was the stoutest and most pertinacious opponent that English sea-power has ever had to encounter. Modern charts and reproductions of contemporary prints add greatly to the value and complete understanding of the book, which has been edited with extraordinary care and attention to detail and which is based mainly on three authorities—each of them extensive, contemporary and fair-minded. The whole, set off with a pleasant humour, makes a splendid story."

+ Spec 144:869 My 24 '30 1150w

Times [London] Lit Sup p407 My 15 '30 1900w

TROTSKY, LEON, pseud. (LEV DAVIDOVICH BRONSHTEIN. My life; an attempt at an autobiography. 599p il $5 Scribner [30s Butterworth, T.]

B or 92 Russia—Politics and government 30-12073

This book is more of a history than it is an autobiography. Trotsky spends but little time in describing his country boyhood and hurries on to speak of his first arrest when he was nineteen years old, his two years in czarist prisons, his escape from Siberia. He wandered thru Switzerland into Paris and London and returned to Russia when the revolution of 1905 broke out. After its failure, he again escaped to Europe and this time also covered America. He lived in New York until the outbreak of the Revolution of 1917 when he again returned to Russia. His life is inextricably bound up with that of the Communist party and it is for that reason that he discusses in detail his expulsion from the party and the present Stalin régime.

Am Pol Sci R 24:785 Ag '30 200w

Booklist 26:395 Jl '30

Reviewed by Norah Meade

Bookm 71:448 Jl '30 800w

"It is much too personal a book; the book of a personality bruised in vanity and bruised in body, but what a vanity and what a person! What temperament, and what a record, what talent! . . . All the kinds of writing that Trotzky has ever done are scrambled together in this book, and he has a wizard's brew of words, poetry, invective and lucid analysis. The book is nearly 600 pages long, well-indexed, and freshly and easily translated." Ernestine Evans

+ — Books p7 Ap 20 '30 1200w

Boston Transcript p2 My 28 '30 800w

Christian Century 47:786 Je 18 '30 220w

"Trotsky writes with a certain grim humor. He is not wholly hopeless, not entirely embittered. The book is an intensely human document. One may not want to rank him as a really great man, but his book is an interesting and very valuable contribution to the recent history of Russia, full of facts and of revealing judgments of men."

+ Foreign Affairs 8:677 Jl '30 180w

Reviewed by Jerome Davis

Nation 130:629 My 28 '30 1080w

"This is one of the best books of reminiscences which has come my way for a long time. It is his capacity for not measuring the historical process by the yardstick of his personal fate which makes his book so much better than the unconvincing apologias of kings and statesmen which have been flooding the book market ever since 1918. Another reason why this book stands high in the class to which it belongs is that its author is obviously a born writer. The character sketches all through the book are equally good." Leonard Woolf

+ Nation and Ath 47:474 Jl 12 '30 1100w

Reviewed by V. M. Dean

New Repub 63:76 Je 4 '30 2050w

"In spite of the eulogies of critics like Mr. Churchill and Herr Emil Ludwig, Trotsky's autobiography is an unsatisfactory book. It is unsatisfactory because in spite of a great pretence of candour the author never tells us more than half-truths. The discarded leader has not abandoned all hope of returning to Moscow, and with that object in view he has sacrificed liberally to the twin gods of suppressio veri and suggestio falsi."

— New Statesman 35:418 Jl 5 '30 900w

"Whatever may be thought of Trotsky as a theorist or a revolutionary, there is no denying his unusual literary powers, and the vivid experiences which have filled his life give him an opportunity to show his literary abilities at their best. From the opening chapters which describe his childhood and youth to the final pages in which he pays his respects to enemies and friends, the narrative does not lag." William MacDonald
+ N Y Times p5 Ap 20 '30 1950w

Reviewed by Harry Hansen
N Y World p13 Ap 18 '30 900w

Reviewed by John Carter
Outlook 155:108 My 21 '30 80w

Reviewed by W. B. Shaw
R of Rs 81:12 Je '30 130w

Sat R 149:762 Je 14 '30 400w

"Wherever this book is narrative unclouded by controversy it makes witty and interesting reading. . . Successful as this book of self-revelation appears to be, it remains a question whether it can make a Bolshevik leader any more credible a being to the American citizen than a racketeer's confession can make a New York gunman credible to an English hunting squire." Bartlet Brebner
+ — Sat R of Lit 6:1023 My 10 '30 1400w

Springf'd Republican p5e Jl 13 '30 1350w

"I must confess several distinct disappointments in this attempt at an autobiography. It is laborious reading; there is much too much of unimportant detail. There is no humor, unless I failed to recognize it. There is no simple and orderly statement of the author's principles. There is over-much bitterness of all sorts, even for a book by a life-long revolutionary. There is, first to last, a staggering amount of self-adulation. And yet the book deserves careful reading and some praise. For it is the record of a man who has known few periods of personal safety and comfort. The agony of the book is all the more acute because the author has tried to conceal it." C. S. Brown
— + Survey 64:405 Ag 1 '30 360w

Times [London] Lit Sup p618 Jl 31 '30 650w

World Tomorrow 13:429 O '30 40w

TROUBETZKOY, AMELIE (RIVES), princess. Firedamp. 344p $2.50 Stokes [7s 6d Hurst]
30-5174

The story of a critical time in the life of an English family, the Glyndons. Old Lord Glyndon, a particularly cruel man, has a charming American wife, and two sons, Robert and Victor. Robert, the elder, dies and Lord Glyndon is faced with the prospect of Victor, whom he hates, as his heir. Fortunately for the rest of the family, Lord Glyndon dies just as he is about to cap a cruel life by broadcasting that his younger son is illegitimate.

Books p18 Ap 13 '30 340w

"The author has moments of rare insight in her writing, and for these we can readily forgive any effects of staginess we may detect. It must be admitted that she has allowed her story to drag."
+ — N Y Times p25 F 16 '30 280w

"The characterization, the dialogue and the descriptions in this novel are so perfect that the plot almost seems secondary. The high level of culture which the more intelligent characters display bespeaks the cultivation and good taste of the author."
+ Outlook 154:268 F 12 '30 370w

Pratt p41 summer '30

Times [London] Lit Sup p192 Mr 6 '30 170w

TROWBRIDGE, LYDIA JONES. Betty of the consulate. 205p il $2 Doubleday, Doran
29-23111

Betty, a little American girl, and her small brother Billy, lived in China, where their father was consul. It was in the days of President Lincoln, so the China which the children knew and loved was a much older China than that of today. They were very happy in their terraced garden, which they called the layer cake garden, and were rather sad when they had to leave it.

Booklist 26:209 F '30

Cleveland Open Shelf p48 Mr '30

Reviewed by O. M. Fuller
N Y World p11m D 29 '29 80w

St Louis 28:220 S '30

"The story grows in interest and gains momentum as it progresses. . . There is a sound psychology of race and country in this book that a child, reading it, would accept without knowing it by so large a name." A. T. Hobart
+ Sat R of Lit 6:394 N 16 '29 320w

TRUSS, SELDON. Number naught (Eng title: Man without pity). 278p $2 Dodd [7s 6d Butterworth, T.]
30-18862

The strange disappearance of Lord St Neots is linked with similar past disappearances and the mysterious fate of certain members of the Nemo club. Inspector Shane conducts a series of investigations, and the dangerous trail leads to the basement of an old museum in London, where he overcomes the wicked subordinates of Number naught—but not the master-mind himself.

Bookm 71:xix Ag '30 80w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p10 Ag 10 '30 120w

"The story on the whole lacks a sufficient element of surprise, and the people involved are never particularly interesting."
— Boston Transcript p2 S 17 '30 200w

N Y Times p12 Jl 27 '30 200w

TSCHUPPIK, KARL. Empress Elizabeth of Austria; tr. by Eric Sutton. 263p $4 Brentano's [12s Constable]

B or 92 Elisabeth, empress consort of Francis Joseph I, emperor of Austria 30-8682

The subject of this biography is that figure of romance and tragedy who at sixteen, thru marriage with Franz Joseph, became empress of Austria and eight years later threw the crown away, fled from her husband, and thereafter, with his sanction, lived alone, first on a yacht, then in one castle or another by the sea.

Bookm 71:vi Jl '30 80w

"The destiny of Elizabeth was so pathetic that it has never ceased to move people to recount the story. Karl Tschuppik has retold it here with grace and distinction, and with a commendable absence of sentimentality." W. K. Stewart
+ Books p2 Je 29 '30 1050w

Boston Transcript p1 Mr 29 '30 1100w

New Statesman 35:96 Ap 26 '30 50w

"An exquisite miniature portrait of the life and sorrows of the tragic Empress. He had not much material to work on, as most of the previous books and essays on Elizabeth are honeycombed with incredible anecdotes, cheap eulogy, gossip and slanderous insinuation. . . Eric Sutton is to be congratulated on a brilliant translation, which is often an improvement even on the otherwise excellent German original." Emil Lengyel
+ N Y Times p23 My 11 '30 1150w

"An excellent psychographical biography of the tragic lady, clever, temperate, sympathetic and well-written."
+ Outlook 155:24 My 7 '30 40w

TSCHUPPIK, KARL—Continued

"The author has been captivated by his subject and we hear only the sympathetic side. Was there nothing more to be said for the Emperor and for his mother than we are allowed to overhear? By refusing to both any sympathy Herr Tschuppik misses the drama of his theme. The result is a good book, but not a fine one. He has blurred his contrasts, and smoothed away his shadows. He has accepted without question Elizabeth's attitude to life. She is made to dwarf the surrounding figures, though we are tempted to ask why so individual a character did not make a greater impression upon them." Osbert Burdett

— + Sat R 149:487 Ap 19 '30 1300w

Spec 144:709 Ap 26 '30 130w

TSCHUPPIK, KARL. Francis Joseph I; the downfall of an empire; tr. from the German by C. J. S. Sprigge (Eng title: Reign of the emperor Francis Joseph, 1846-1916). 509p il $3.75 Harcourt [21s Bell]

B or 92 Francis Joseph I, emperor of Austria 30-14284

This biography of the Austrian emperor contains a history of the Austrian empire during the last period of its existence. Francis Joseph, last of the Hapsburg line, was a reactionary, tho a believer in modern methods of government to a greater extent than was Crown Prince Francis Ferdinand, with whom he was always at cross-purposes. While Francis Joseph was a good statesman and able leader, and while Austria enjoyed material prosperity during his reign, nonetheless the forces of a new order were at work, and the downfall of the Empire was inevitable.

"Karl Tschuppik's book is a biography of Franz Joseph only in so far as the career of the Emperor entered into the history of his country. What the book really is is a history of Austria-Hungary from 1848 down to Franz Joseph's death, and on the whole a very fair and moderate history. But the real value of Tschuppik's book lies in its concise account of the events which occurred in the Austro-Hungarian Empire between 1848 and 1914, though sometimes, as in the account of the war of 1866, these events are recounted too concisely for those not already conversant with the facts."

— + Bookm 71:556 Ag '30 500w

Reviewed by L. W. Eshleman

Current Hist 33:xix N '30 180w

"It is full, written with knowledge, and a due sense of the general international position. But it would have been better if Herr Tschuppik had not burdened his history with the biography of the Emperor, whom his best efforts cannot make a figure of greatness or even of real importance. As a record of the Empire during the reign of the last Hapsburg the book can be thoroughly recommended."

+ — New Statesman 35:96 Ap 26 '30 100w

"It is more than a little difficult to say why he has chosen to write precisely the book he has written. It is neither good, solid historical writing of the plain, straightforward, old-fashioned variety, nor is it biography of the flashy, modern sort. The book is saved by its vivid pictures of the old Emperor's personal life." John Bakeless

— + N Y Evening Post p8m Je 14 '30 680w

"Herr Tschuppik has written a fairly impartial book. He has avoided the pitfalls of partisanship and has produced a biography in which personal affection holds the balance to critical analysis. . . The English translation of the book is often unpleasantly literal and verbose. A more idiomatic rendering of the German text would have made the book more pleasant reading." Emil Lengyel

+ — N Y Times p6 Je 8 '30 1500w

Reviewed by E. C. Beckwith

N Y World p5m Jl 27 '30 360w

St Louis 28:218 S '30

"The author never forgets his underlying assumption, the identification of the Emperor with the empire. His biography, therefore, while it is rich in personal details selected for their value as cumulative evidence, is a biography of the state as much as of the individual."

+ Sat R of Lit 7:129 S 13 '30 400w

Spec 144:709 Ap 26 '30 300w

"This book is the work, not of a historian, but of a journalist; and, since it is entirely undocumented, it is difficult to gauge the measure of authority behind the occasionally somewhat startling statements of the author. It is distinguished, however, by a sanity of judgment that inspires confidence, and it gives a very vivid impression of the Emperor and of his attitude towards the complicated problems with which he was faced during his long reign. The last chapters, which deal with the events leading up to the World War, are of peculiar interest, especially for the light thrown on the character and plans of the Archduke Francis Ferdinand."

Times [London] Lit Sup p417 My 15 '30 230w

T'SERSTEVENS, A. Sentimental vagabond; tr. from the French by Whittaker Chambers. 285p $2 Farrar

30-25306

In this sensuous allegory a young scholar and romantic, Baccio, travels thru Italy delving into libraries for his research, and seeking in every lovely woman the consolation of his dreams. He is accompanied by the happy-go-lucky, practical philosopher, Salvatore Palumbo. Baccio at last meets Erigone, who is most desirable, and they become lovers—but Erigone alas, proves also less than perfect, and the sentimental vagabond, still seeking, is on his way again.

"This light, charming story, full of Latin eroticism delicately played upon and spiced with bits of Gallic wit and humor, affords a pleasant excursion into a world compounded of the literary, the imaginative, and the picaresque. Almost anyone who still has a capacity for illusion should find entertainment in it." F. T. Marsh

+ Bookm 72:172 O '30 180w

" 'The Sentimental Vagabond' is 'literary' in the sense of conscious style and description, romantic in its symbols, lush in its fertile fancies. You read it as you might read some old fable—to give analysis a nap."

Books p12 O 19 '30 350w

"Allegory is delightfully blended in this book with bucolic, and even savage realism. It is exquisitely written, and it would seem that the usually thankless task of the translator had yielded somehow an unexpected treasure in the filtering from French to English, like good, thick wine rendered transparent by good cheese cloth. Here is a fine satire upon romantic love for all whom the delusion, if delusion it is, entertains." Donald Corley

+ N Y Evening Post p5d O 18 '30 600w

"The love scenes are described with a wealth of amorous detail. Not virginibus puerisque surely; but a book to charm the lovers of Fiametta."

N Y Times p6 O 19 '30 680w

"In style it is reminiscent of both W. J. Locke and Rémy de Gourmont, without, one hastens to add, the artistry of either. . . Neither in its amorous episodes nor its roistering comedy scenes does 'The Sentimental Vagabond' do more than come close to being of importance."

— Sat R of Lit 7:274 O 25 '30 320w

TUCKER, BEVERLEY RANDOLPH. Gift of genius. 248p $2.50 Stratford

920 Genius. Biography 30-12773

An attempt to account for the appearance of genius, thru a personality analysis of a number of recognized geniuses: Julius Caesar, Leonardo da Vinci, Shakespeare, Queen Elizabeth, Catherine the Great, Beethoven, Napoleon, Byron, Keats, Poe, George Eliot, and others.

"Mr. Tucker has not been so careful of his English as of his scientific facts, but for interesting and really instructive material his book is well worth while."
+ — Boston Transcript p3 Ag 2 '30 270w
N Y Evening Post p8m My 31 '30 50w

"To Mr. Tucker we must pay the tribute of acknowledging that he endows this subject with a fresh touch that awakens our interest. His style is original; he possesses common sense; he treats the nineteen personalities he describes like human beings, giving high lights on their true character that we wotted not of."
+ N Y Times p16 Jl 13 '30 450w

"Whether differing schools will accept his conclusions as correct, or not, he has brought together interesting material and his brief chapters on genius, heredity, education and conduct provide good summer reading." F. G. Seabury
+ Outlook 155:308 Je 25 '30 350w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:68 O '30

TUCKER, MILTON. Buying an honest house. 151p il $2 Little 690 Building. Dwellings 30-8149

"A practical guide to good house construction for inexperienced buyers of ready built houses. It tells in simple language how to detect flaws, and how to tell substantial from flimsy building in completed houses. It covers the essential features, and devotes a chapter to the garage. Numerous helpful illustrations. Written by a builder."—Cleveland Open Shelf

Booklist 26:303 My '30
Cleveland Open Shelf p55 Ap '30

"A man of long architectual and building experience here puts down with clearness, brevity, and a minimum of technicalities the principal things which indicate good and bad construction in houses already built. The book is a welcome, up-to-date addition to the scanty supply of information on such subjects available to the ordinary householder."
+ J Home Econ 22:410 My '30 100w
N Y New Tech Bks 15:16 Ap '30
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:71 O '30
St Louis 28:139 My '30

"For the unsophisticated buyer, this book will be a productive investment."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 6 '30 120w

TUCKER, SAMUEL MARION, ed. Modern continental plays. (Plays and playwrights ser.) 836p $5 Harper
808.2 Dramas—Collections 29-22702

Contents: He who gets slapped, by Leonid Andreyev; La Malquerida, by Jacinto Benavente; Beyond our power, by Björnstjerne Björnson; Phantasms, by Roberto Bracco; False gods, by Eugene Brieux; R. U. R., by Karel Capek; The tidings brought to Mary, by Paul Claudel; Francesca da Rimini, by Gabriele D'-Annunzio; Electra, by B. P. Galdos; The lower depths, by Maxim Gorki; The rats, by Gerhardt Hauptmann; The coral, by Georg Kaiser; Gas, by Georg Kaiser; Pélléas and Mélisande, by Maurice Maeterlinck: Liliom, by Ferenc Molnar; Cyrano de Bergerac, by Edmond Rostand; Light-o'-love, by Arthur Schnitzler; Comrades, by August Strindberg; The cherry orchard, by Anton Tchekhov; S. S. Tenacity, by Charles Vildrac; Such is life, by Frank Wedekind. Appendices.

Booklist 26:153 Ja '30

"The serious omissions are those of Ibsen and Pirandello. Ibsen, of course, is omitted as Shakespeare always is from collections—because his work is so readily available elsewhere. But Pirandello should be here. Otherwise the collection gives a remarkable picture, in the compass of one volume of the drifts in modern European drama." W. P. Eaton
+ — Books p14 F 2 '30 130w

St Louis 28:108 Ap '30
Wis Lib Bul 25:410 D '29

TUFTS, HENRY. Autobiography of a criminal; ed. with an introd. by Edmund Pearson. 357p il $3 Duffield
B or 92 30-11370

The original autobiography of Henry Tufts was ghost-written, and published in Dover, N. H., in 1807. Tufts begins his narrative by telling how, in his youth, one petty theft led to another, how initial love affairs brought him to more adventurous amours. The youth became an experienced breaker of the law: adultery, swindling, horse-thieving and jail-breaking were counted among his crimes. He managed to escape serious consequences, however, until an affair of six silver spoons brought him into the shadow of the gallows. He died a natural death, in the odour of sanctity, at the fine old age of eighty-three.

Cleveland Open Shelf p108 Jl '30

"There seems to be no question about the authenticity of the autobiography. It was certainly written and published in 1807, and unquestionably there was a swindler named Tufts in New England at that time. There also seems to be no reason why we should question the statement that Tufts dictated his record of his life. Whether or not he told the truth is an entirely different matter. . . What does matter is that he told his story lightly, with a sense of drama, with very little cant and a good deal of humor." Bernard Smith
+ N Y Evening Post p11m Ap 26 '30 300w

"This book, so ably edited by Mr. Pearson, is a picturesque and even important picture of a darker phase of society in one of the most fascinating periods of American life." Hollister Noble
+ N Y Times p4 My 18 '30 1150w

"In spite of the old fashioned idiom of the language, his narrative is fairly Rabelaisian in parts. It is more akin to Fielding or Sterne than to the New England of his day. Parts of it make bouncing good tales, and in their general amorality furnish a sad commentary on the decline of outlawry in these days."
+ N Y World p5m Jl 6 '30 160w

"Recounts in an amusing flowery style the criminal and Casanovan adventures of one of our early bad men." W. R. Brooks
+ Outlook 154:628 Ap 16 '30 100w
St Louis 28:207 S '30

"One must be grateful to Mr. Pearson for resuscitating [Henry Tuft's] book. In addition to everything else he had a grand sense of style, and he gets it all across in the liveliest fashion. His book is charged with zest and bubbling with false sentiment. It is a rich story, and Mr. Pearson of all men was the best one to edit it."
+ Sat R of Lit 7:59 Ag 16 '30 380w

TULLY, JIM. Beggars abroad. 300p $2 Doubleday, Doran
914 Europe—Description and travel 30-25097

Jim Tully reports his impressions of Europe, which he recently toured with his wife. Naïvely, he describes the various sites usually visited by tourists in London and Paris, giving something of their history. The book contains accounts of his interviews with various writers abroad: Bernard Shaw, H. G. Wells, Thomas Burke and James Joyce.

Reviewed by James Rorty
Books p20 O 5 '30 950w
Boston Transcript p3 D 20 '30 220w

"The book doesn't quite come off. The ice is too thin for Mr. Tully's weight. The 'Sentimental Journey' becomes in too many places an 'Innocents Abroad'—except that the humor is wholly unconscious."
— Nation 131:631 D 3 '30 180w

TULLY, JIM—Continued

"His new book is lots of fun. It reads as if the author were in the room with us telling of his trip to England and France, telling things haphazardly as they come to mind, telling us of his meeting with Shaw and Wells and Joyce and many others—including the memory of the Titanic—and giving us ultimately not so much England and France and their peoples as a full-length portrait of himself." Edwin Seaver

+ N Y Evening Post p12 S 27 '30 200w

N Y Times p3 D 7 '30 280w

"In reading Beggars Abroad I find Jim Tully seizing on those elements of the foreign landscape which fit into his picture of the world. He is interested chiefly in being sorry for the toilers. He seizes on suffering, whether of the present or the past, and heaves great basso-profundo sighs over it. One looks in vain for a new attitude or an original observation. There is nothing in all the comment culled from the guide books to indicate that Jim saw something Karl Baedeker did not see, or saw it in a new way. He is at his best in story telling. . . He should throw guide books out of the window and stick to his imagination." Harry Hansen

— + N Y World p14 S 19 '30 1000w

TULLY, JIM. Shadows of men [il. by William Gropper]. 330p $2.50 Doubleday, Doran

30-3652

Hoboes, yeggs, and jailbirds are the shadows of men in Jim Tully's sketches of underworld life. From the point of view of a vagabond imprisoned with a varied assortment of jailmates, he describes the horrors of prison life, and sketches the background, exploits, and peculiar idiosyncrasies of the prisoners. The last sketch, A California holiday, is Tully's report for the American Mercury of an actual hanging at San Quentin. Contents: Sapping day; Jailbirds; A boy from the south; Vagabonds and thieves; Jungle justice; A sprig of white lilac; The giver of life; Waiting to be hung; A sailor leaves port; An old man in Montana; Bull horrors; The graveyard that moved; A lighter of flames; Faithful unto the end; Love finds a way; Brigands of disaster; Twenty dollars; Bright eyes; A California holiday.

"The combination of Tully and Gropper in these stories of murderers, pick-pockets, safe-crackers, dope fiends and general all-round hard guys—all jailbirds—is particularly satisfactory. . . Jim Tully has written of these rough humans as they are. He never avoids using the right word when the right word might prove offensive. He couldn't paint these characters in pastel shades and he could not have them conversing in dots and dashes. And Mr. Tully knows what he is writing about: he has stories to tell; he drives them home with hammer blows." D. H. Clarke

+ Books p7 Ja 12 '30 650w

Boston Transcript p2 F 12 '30 400w

"Mr. Tully has not yet succeeded in conveying to his readers that transcendent sense of universality which is the secret of power in the great literature of the despised and rejected. But if one asks only for vivid yet realistic stories of the lower depths in American life, here is another book to add to Mr. Tully's growing list. It is a moving book; the characters live because their creator knows them, not only by experience, but with an understanding heart."

+ — Nation 130:224 F 19 '30 130w

"The reporting is effective in only four of the nineteen sketches in 'Shadows of Men.' The realism of these is stabbing because the author forgets himself in the misfortunes of others; elsewhere it is weakened by pretentiousness. And the simple lives of yeggs and hoboes merely garnish his philosophy of weary misanthropy. Samuel Elam's hoboes exist for themselves, and the workers of Michael Gold are lighted by a passionate pity. In them, and in the terse illustrations of Gropper for 'Shadows of Men,' are lessons in realism for Jim Tully." J. M.

— + New Repub 62:54 F 26 '30 180w

New Statesman 34:706 Mr 8 '30 100w

"The staccato style of the author and the exactness of his observations give the book a lurid fascination which makes it entertaining reading in small doses. The volume starts and ends on a note of violence and it is this reiterative note of physical and mental torture which best sustains the vitality of the work. . . Mr. Tully is a master of several underworld idioms, and in 'Shadows of Men' recreates with immense effect the varied dialogue of thugs."

+ N Y Times p9 Ja 19 '30 650w

Reviewed by Harry Hansen

N Y World p16 Ja 10 '30 480w

"They're well written and vivid, but one or two at a time is a sufficiently strong dose." W. R. Brooks

+ — Outlook 154:109 Ja 15 '30 70w

"The unfairness of his attitude is manifest, yet it is necessarily that of anyone who has seen a prison as anything more than a casual visitor, and Mr. Tully does make out a strong case on his own grounds for many of his prison companions. While the interest of his book is therefore very considerable, it is probable that he is too easily influenced by his own experiences and surroundings to be capable of any real contribution to the question of reform in the prisons."

— + Sat R of Lit 6:974 Ap 19 '30 350w

"His incidents may be veracious or invented: they are, in any case, slight. It is humanity that matters to him, and he reveals it with rare vigour and sensitiveness. Here again is a poet and a realist, who does not shut his eyes to coarseness and brutality, but sees them redeemed by hidden tenderness and virtue." Gilbert Thomas

+ Spec 144:342 Mr 1 '30 200w

Times [London] Lit Sup p432 My 22 '30 400w

TUNIS, JOHN ROBERTS. American girl. 332p $2 Brewer

30-19276

The story of Florence Farley, American tennis champion. Satirically, the author shows in his novel the means by which a player attains and holds her championship and her popularity. For the sake of the story, Florence Farley has, of course, two interests: her career and the boy she loves. Rather than relinquish her career and position, she gives up her lover.

"John Tunis has written better than he knew, in that he set out to write an exposé and ended by writing a history of a human being." Fillmore Hyde

+ Books p4 Ag 3 '30 430w

"Mr. Tunis describes the inner workings of our tennis tournaments in a series of excellent satiric pictures."

+ Nation 131:208 Ag 20 '30 180w

"As a novel, 'American Girl' is far from first-rate. Mr. Tunis rides his hobby too hard. Every single thing in the book is written in terms of tennis. That would be all right if Mr. Tunis had shown dramatically just how the business of being tennis champion inevitably tended to crowd all other things from Miss Farley's life. But he lets certain scenes pass with more than cinematographic speed."

N Y Times p7 Ag 24 '30 500w

"It is a lovely tale, skilfully done by a sound and satiric writer who knows his tennis and all the chicanery connected with it. The story is not important. But the manner in which Florence Farley rises to the top should be read and digested by everyone interested in learning what goes on behind the scenes in official tennisdom." C. P. Hammond

+ N Y World p5m Ag 24 '30 250w

"It gives an excellent picture of what goes on behind the scenes of commercialized sport, and leaves no doubt in the mind of the reader that the present system is rank with vices that are badly in need of being cleaned up." W. R. Brooks

+ Outlook 155:550 Ag 6 '30 100w

"Mr. Tunis has done well to choose the background of sport. He is most at home in the world of sport, as we know from his various writings. But it is essential, in order to do justice to the book, to bear in mind that the author has used the knowledge of his specialty merely for the purpose of providing authentic and convincing settings. Incidentally, through its setting, the novel contains what seems to me the most exciting description of a contest since 'Bob, Son of Battle' won the Dalesman's Cup." S. L. Thomas

+ Sat R of Lit 7:38 Ag 9 '30 600w

TUPPER, TRISTRAM. Storm at the crossroads, and other stories. 367p $2.50 Lippincott

Six long short stories in each of which the theme is "love will find a way." Contents: A storm at the crossroads; Three episodes in the life of Timothy Osborn; Four brothers; Terwilliger; The language of the angels; The man who knew nothing on earth.

For biographical sketch of the author see Wilson bulletin 3:424 Ja '29

"Even this collection, which does not improve Mr. Tupper, contains some of his simplicity and effectiveness, but with this book I cannot abandon myself to the enthusiasms which escaped me when I read other work by him. I hope that Mr. Tupper will write more—with much less ease." Lawrence Lee

— + Books p19 Ag 24 '30 330w

"Doubtless his stories will never be among the six best-selling books, for they are for the discerning only. But those who read them will appreciate the clarity of his style, the sincerity of his faith, and the neat skill of literary workmanship by which he proves his points." I. W. Lawrence

+ Boston Transcript p4 Je 7 '30 1450w

"These six novelettes are characterized by vigorous activity of plot, a keen sense of dramatic values, effectively drawn portraits of their principals, and pronounced success in avoiding conventional types and situations. Perhaps the first three tales are the best, and of them all the one called 'Four Brothers' stands out as a particularly interesting example of Mr. Tupper's ability to work out a fresh theme to a conclusion as unexpected as it is forceful and original." E. C. Beckwith

+ N Y World p7m Jl 20 '30 200w

"Pleasantly romantic, competently written, they make no demands upon the reader's imagination, set him no tedious problems to solve, tease him with no tricks of style (neither delight him by any of its beauties), and hold his interest steadily through the hour or so that it takes to read them." F. L. R.

+ Outlook 155:105 My 21 '30 100w

TURNER, CLAIR ELSMERE. Physiology and health. (Malden health ser.) 282p il $1 Heath

612 Physiology—Juvenile literature. Hygiene—Juvenile literature 29-27673

A text book for the junior high school on the science of physiology, which "seeks to present in understandable form those fundamental physiological facts which should be a part of the knowledge of every well-informed individual."

"Excellent little book. The arrangement and treatment of the subject matter, though conventional, nevertheless shows an understanding and appreciation of the mental capacity, and the interests of the age groups for which it is intended. The illustrations are exceptionally good and instructive." C. M. Hilliard

+ Am J Pub Health 20:679 Je '30 100w

"The Malden Health Series, which has been seven years in the making, provides a continuous program of health training and education as it has been tried and tested in a typical American community. The present publication is designed for use in the latter period of the junior highschool or in the senior highschool; like its predecessor, it is attractively illustrated, clear, practical and concrete."

+ Survey 63:727 Mr 15 '30 50w

TURNER, CLAIR ELSMERE; MORGAN, NELL JOSEPHINE; and COLLINS, GEORGIE BRISTOW. Home nursing and child care. (Malden health ser.) 282p il $1.20 Heath

649 Nurses and nursing. Infants—Care and hygiene. Children—Care and hygiene 30-2486

A textbook which has grown out of teaching experience, presenting the subjects of home nursing, child care, and first aid, for highschool pupils.

"The authors have included some very fine, practical knowledge, in logical sequence. The book has splendid chapters on infections, antisepsis and control of communicable diseases. Personal hygiene of childhood and youth is treated in a sane, practical manner. The book is filled with excellent, graphic illustrations; in fact, they actually 'speak for themselves.'" Henrietta Landau

+ Am J Pub Health 20:456 Ap '30 250w

Booklist 26:346 Je '30

Reviewed by A. M. Stevenson

School R 38:717 N '30 420w

+ Survey 63:727 Mr 15 '30 60w

TURNER, EDWARD RAYMOND. Cabinet council of England in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, 1622-1784. v 1 482p $7.50 Johns Hopkins [35s Oxford]

354.42 Great Britain—Politics and government. Cabinet system (30-8365)

"Several years ago Professor Turner published two large volumes dealing with the decline of the English privy council in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. He now turns to the rise of the cabinet during the same period. The present volume carries the cabinet through the seventeenth century and up to the reign of George I; while another, a study of the cabinet in the eighteenth century, is promised for 1931. It is to be hoped that the tragic death of the author a few months back will not prevent the publication of the final volume of this important work."—Sat R of Lit

Reviewed by A. L. Cross

Am Hist R 36:124 O '30 700w

"Professor Turner's industry has been prodigious. He has worked through the whole field of unprinted materials for his period in English libraries and private collections, paying special attention to the reports of foreign ambassadors to their home governments, a mine of information too often overlooked. Contradictory evidence (and there is much of it) is fully presented and dealt with in the spirit of an honest seeker after truth. . . The arrangement also makes the book too long. And the mass of details and contradictory evidence frequently leaves the reader in confusion. It is as if the weighing and sifting of historical data usually done in the student's closet were here transferred to the printed page. This, then, is a book which will be absolutely necessary to the future student of the cabinet. But it cannot be called a clear or convincing interpretation." D. H. Wilson

+ — Sat R of Lit 7:22 Ag 2 '30 850w

"The value of the book lies not in any originality of thesis, nor in attractiveness of presentment, but in the great wealth of illustration, all of it based on contemporary sources, many in manuscript. If for this alone students have reason to be grateful, for but few men can have ransacked and analysed the contents of our national archives as did Professor Turner. . . No praise can be too high for the conscientiousness and learning which the late Professor Turner devoted to what was obviously a labour of love."

TURNER, E. R.—Continued
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p723 S 18 '30 500w

TURNER, JOSIE, pseud. See Crawford, P.

TURNER, LIDA LARRIMORE (LIDA LARRIMORE, pseud.). Mulberry square. 290p $2 Macrae Smith co.
30-10464

Janie Ballard, small, brown, not very pretty, loved shabby old Mulberry Square—and Dr Hugh Kennedy. But nice, young Dr Hugh fell in love with Janie's beautiful, golden-haired sister Celia, who didn't like Mulberry Square, and wanted to languish abroad in her proper setting. Janie was brokenhearted—until Hugh discovered that the real Celia beneath the lovely exterior was not so lovely, and that it was Janie, the good little egg, whom he had really loved all the time.

Booklist 27:106 N '30

"'Mulberry Square' is done with a light touch; it is entertaining but non-intoxicating in fact."
Books p12 Jl 13 '30 220w
Boston Transcript p2 Je 18 '30 450w
Cleveland Open Shelf p112 Jl '30

"The story is written in a lucid and colorful style, although occasionally there is too much staccato phrasing. The author shows a keen observance of details which, combined with her skill at characterization, may some day serve to create a greater book than 'Mulberry Square,' adequate though it is in its own field."
+ — N Y Times p24 My 11 '30 230w

"A tenderly sweet and artless concoction in the Temple Bailey manner. . . Not to be commended to readers whose tastes demand subtler fiction than modernized fairy tales."
Sat R of Lit 6:1034 My 10 '30 150w

TURNER, NANCY BYRD. Riband on my rein. 120p $2 Mitchell
811 30-26266

"In the publication from Hartford of the poems by Nancy Byrd Turner there are reprints from a volume previously published in New York, but most of the selections in 'A Riband on My Rein' appear for the first time. Miss Turner's is rather a gay little muse, not over-philosophical, perhaps, but of pleasing personality." —N Y Times

Booklist 26:274 Ap '30

"In her lighter moments Miss Turner is very delightful. Her humor is not elfin enough to be whimsy, and yet is bright and joyous. The section on London and England is very good; there her power of evoking the memory of nostalgic scenes is beautifully shown."
+ Bookm 72:viii O '30 100w

"Nancy Byrd Turner's facile lyrics have a tendency to follow a sentimental tradition that sings of the dreamer and his dream. They are pleasant enough reading for the moment—and melt, like April snow, from memory at the turning of the page." Ruth Lechlitner
— + Books p17 Mr 23 '30 120w

"Most of these poems are light in texture, but none is trivial. This poet's gossamer is never merely sleazy cloth."
+ Christian Century 47:275 F 26 '30 100w

"Miss Turner has a feeling for rain, and trees, and plain dirt roads winding among fields and over hills. And if it be objected that these are nothing more than the stock in trade of the generality of newspaper and magazine poets, the rejoinder is that here is a poet who seems wholly genuine both in her pleasure in these things and in her use of them in her verses." Percy Hutchison
+ N Y Times p22 F 2 '30 400w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:14 F '30

TURNER, NANCY BYRD, and GUNN, SIDNEY. Mother of Washington. 284p il $3.50 Mitchell; Dodd
B or 92 Washington, Mrs Mary (Ball)
31-838

A Virginia matron embodying the ideals of the old South, a dignified courageous, capable, womanly woman—this was Mary Ball Washington, mother of the first president. Pictures of life in old Virginia form a charming background to the biographical material.

"Miss Turner fills in the background with understanding and insight, since she derives from the same people and the same region which produced a Mary Ball. It must be admitted that this is inferential biography, such as Sandburg and Ludwig have used freely in their stories of the early life of Lincoln, and that it is acceptable only if well done. Miss Turner, it is only fair to say, has done it with especial fidelity." A. S. Will
+ N Y Times p4 D 28 '30 1400w

"A readable and somewhat informal study of the life of Washington's mother with a good deal of background material about early Virginia and illustrations of surviving houses."
+ Sat R of Lit 7:478 D 20 '30 30w

TUTTLE, WILBUR C. Red head from Sun Dog. 290p $2 Houghton [7s 6d Collins]
30-4658

A red-headed Montana sheriff, Brick Davidson, exonerates his friend, Silent Slad, from murder, and at the same time uncovers a diamond-smuggling plot.

N Y Times p18 Ag 31 '30 150w

"A good swift, breezy, amusing Western tale." W. R. Brooks
+ Outlook 154:388 Mr 5 '30 100w
Times [London] Lit Sup p785 O 2 '30 80w

TYDINGS, MILLARD EVELYN. Before and after prohibition. 131p il $2 Macmillan
351.761 Prohibition 30-18135

From a statistical study of the results shown by ten years of national prohibition, the Senator from Maryland, known as a wet, argues that this method of controlling the liquor traffic has had the result of making the general situation worse, rather than better, and advocates as a solution the exercise of local option.

Am Pol Sci R 24:1067 N '30 120w
Booklist 27:187 Ja '31
Bookm 72:xxv S '30 180w

"It is well known, of course, that Senator Tydings of Maryland is what is called in the vernacular a wet. The sensitive nose of a bone dry will discover an alcoholic taint in anything Mr. Tydings writes on a subject which is or ought to be closed to debate by a constitutional amendment assumed to be supreme, not only over the laws of the land as previously enacted, but over the laws of nature and the rules of reason. The rules of reason are specifically mentioned in this place, because it is to these rules that Mr. Tydings appeals." H. I. Brock
N Y Times p40 N 16 '30 750w
St Louis 28:257 N '30

TYNAN, KATHARINE. See Hinkson, K.

TYSON, JOHN AUBREY. Rhododendron man. 317p $2 Dutton [7s 6d Mills & Boon]
30-17505

Someone, identity unknown, stood in the rhododendron bushes outside the library window and shot Lloyd Gasperson. Harold Baincroft, a young newspaper man with a flair for detective work, is especially interested in this case for a personal reason: pretty Evelyn Islesworth—who could not pay her bridge debts. It does not take Hal long to solve the mystery of the rhododendron man.

Bookm 71:xvi Jl '30 120w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p12 Je 29 '30 180w

"An unskillfully wrought affair that should not baffle you. The author overlooks one howling clue pointing straight at the guilty person. The story starts with a kidnaping that has not much to do with the rest of the plot and then passes on to the murder of Lloyd Gasperson, which has not anything to do with the kidnaping." Dashiell Hammett
— N Y Evening Post p8m Je 21 '30 50w

"It's a good story—and incidentally the first of a series of Dutton 'Clue Mysteries,' each of which is to have a special page inserted at the point where all clues are in and you ought to be able to pick the guilty party." Bernice Whittemore
+ Outlook 155:350 Jl 2 '30 150w
Springf'd Republican p5e Ag 10 '30 180w

U

ULLMAN, JAMES RAMSEY. Mad Shelley. 121p $1.50 Princeton univ. press [7s Oxford]

B or 92 Shelley, Percy Bysshe 30-31253

"This monograph, which was a prize essay at Princeton last spring, is a judicious but resolute piece of pleading on behalf of Shelley, a warm-hearted protest against the 'ineffectual angel' theory."—N Y World

Reviewed by Genevieve Taggard
Books p7 Ag 27 '30 220w

"The essay would have gained much by being cut free from an excess of self-conscious scholarship. There is the obvious criticism, also, of the writer being too much in love with his subject. There is this to be said for 'Mad Shelley': few college graduates think so soundly and profoundly as has Mr. Ullman. His first effort in the field of literary biography and criticism has been a fine one." S. H.
+ — Boston Transcript p3 My 17 '30 500w

"The whole book is written in the same turgid way, florid and pretentious, with a mixture of slang and condescension, which makes it tedious to read, and merely obscures the expression of whatever is sensible and true. To judge from the description of the material well-being of England in the eighteenth century, and of Scirroco in Italy, Mr. Ullman writes more from imagination than from knowledge or experience."
— Nation and Ath 47:252 My 24 '30 320w

"The book is written with such skill and fervor, such evident depth of background and of general perception, such glitter and scintillation and such novelty of outlook, that one can have only praise for the work as a whole while reserving judgment on its minor parts. Despite the fact that Mr. Ullman finds Shelley to have been a 'unified personality,' a oneness that was 'incredibly perfect,' one doubts whether he has really given us the secret to the burning and unparalleled individuality of the man." S. A. Coblentz
+ — N Y Times p9 Ag 24 '30 750w

"He may in due season see fit to revise some of his judgments, but he has written an able and thoughtful essay, one that ought to be of value in a day when Shelley has need of defenders." Granville Hicks
+ N Y World p10m My 4 '30 100w

"Mr. Ullman must be judged to have set himself too grand a task and to have brought to it too grand a manner. But his book has many attractive qualities; and his main thesis—that the life and poetry of Shelley must be viewed as a continuous and consistent logical process—is a valuable one." H. W. Garrod
— + Sat R of Lit 6:1063 My 24 '30 600w

"In this Princeton prize essay an appreciative excitement is expressed with fluency and force of words of a character uncommon in academic, or indeed general, criticism; and the apathy which involves even the mention of Shelley in the transition of the twentieth century is dispelled as one reads. Shelley has had many worshippers, but none more fascinated and complete than Mr. Ullman; nor would one press too hard upon the weak points of his triumphant appeal, seeing that Shelley does indeed 'stand alone,' or soar alone. It could indeed be wished that Mr. Ullman, in entertaining the angel, had been always aware of things that distract."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p411 My 15 '30 300w

UNDERHILL, EVELYN (MRS STUART MOORE). House of the soul. 119p $1 Dutton [2s Methuen]

248 Spiritual life 30-7516

The house in which the soul resides, as the author pictures it, has a lower floor where the senses operate, guided by Prudence, Temperance and Fortitude; and an upper floor where preside the powers of Faith, Hope and Charity.

"In this exquisitely written little volume Miss Underhill conceives the soul as a house built with a lower floor adapted to the needs of the body and an upper floor devised to meet spiritual needs. But the conception is merely the outward shell used to convey to the reader a new and more vital point of view as to the possibilities of the fuller life of the spirit. As one of the outstanding mystics of the present century, Miss Underhill has unified the teachings of the mediaeval saints with the peculiar needs of an over-materialistic world."
+ Boston Transcript p2 Ap 26 '30 400w

"Though simple and unassuming in plan, it is rich in thought and informed by that lively and graceful style our readers know. . . Much human sympathy and commonsense, much learning, and above all a keen sense of humour were required to hold the balance between the sublime and the ridiculous. Miss Underhill has succeeded, and made a beautiful book which will be a real help to many people of many varying minds."
+ Spec 143:636 N 2 '29 1400w

UNDSET, SIGRID. Son avenger; tr. from the Norwegian by Arthur G. Chater. 340p $3 Knopf

30-23438

"In her latest novel Sigrid Undset completes her monumental tetralogy 'The Master of Hestviken.' The volumes in the order of their appearance are: 'The Axe,' 'The Snake-Pit,' 'In the Wilderness,' and 'The Son Avenger.' . . The last named traces the fortune of the Master of Hestviken through the destinies of his daughter and adopted son to a final tragic close. The theme of the tetralogy—that vengeance is God's alone—is rounded out in Olav's tragic death and repentance."—Nation

"No other novelist, past or present, has bodied forth the medieval world with such richness and fulness of indisputable genius. Now at the tremendous completion of the tetralogy there can be little but praise and reverence as at the final interwoven and unsurpassable pages of 'Götterdämmerung.' " Donald Douglas
+ Books p2 S 14 '30 800w

Reviewed by D. L. Mann
Boston Transcript p1 O 4 '30 1650w

" 'The Son Avenger' brings out her method and temperament very clearly. It is a less graceful story than 'The Axe,' and also far less gracious. In it, the storm of the whole tetralogy rises to a final height of blood and thunder. But it also contains some of the author's finest descriptive writing. And it is a fitting climax to a dramatic whole." Eugene Löhrke

UNDSET, SIGRID—Continued

+ Nation 131:273 S 10 '30 350w

Reviewed by Vincent McHugh
N Y Evening Post p5s S 6 '30 750w

Reviewed by Louis Kronenberger
N Y Times p7 S 21 '30 900w

"In the midst of subtleties and a complex system of symbols, the author keeps a firm hand and writes a narrative of remarkable objective strength. The pageant of nature and the mysteries of the church are in it—the latter often with a brooding intensity. There are many beautiful pages. The writing is luxuriant, detailed, richly sensuous; the mood always serious, and almost always sombre." Clinton Simpson

+ N Y World p3e O 19 '30 230w

"She builds up her historic background by detail of clothing, housing, conveyances, and customs. Yet these symbols of the century in which her people live stay in the background. Her accent is on their natures and on the intimate psychological warfare of their souls. The undercurrent of The Son Avenger runs deep and turgid through the sea of human problems. The book has a strength which cannot be gainsaid. But it is mantled, impenetrably, in the icy cloak of an alien climate, an alien race, an alien, forbidding spirit." V. P. Ross

+ Outlook 156:146 S 24 '30 500w

Reviewed by Helen MacAfee
Yale R n s 20:x autumn '30 450w

UNION OF SOVIET SOCIALIST REPUBLICS. Soviet union and peace; the most important of the documents issued by the government of the U.S.S.R. concerning peace and disarmament from 1917 to 1929; with an introd. by Henri Barbusse. 280p $2.25 Int. pub. [7s 6d Lawrence]

341.6 Russia—Foreign relations. Peace. Disarmament 30-4601

An authoritative collection of official documents, treaties, decrees and appeals comprising the peace and disarmament proposals of the Soviet government to the peoples and governments of Europe, Asia and America, from the time of its assumption of power in November, 1917, to 1929.

"The documents clearly and strikingly reveal the official Soviet attitude towards peace as illustrated by the November Revolution, the various peace conferences held since the World War, disarmament, the Kellogg-Briand Pact, and neutrality and non-aggression. On their face, they constitute an indubitably good, indeed an unparalleled. record in the advocacy of the peace method by Soviet Russia. M. Henri Barbusse, in an introduction of twenty pages, develops from their perusal an enthusiastic commendation of what he believes to be their sincere and epoch-making pronouncements against war and all its paraphernalia, and for peace and all its genuine agencies. . . The documents afford exceedingly interesting food for thought which should be carefully digested by every one interested in international peace and justice." W. I. Hull

+ Am Hist R 35:410 Ja '30 650w

Reviewed by M. W. Graham
Am Pol Sci R 24:504 My '30 650w

Bookm 70:x Ja '30 80w

Reviewed by A. M. Nikolaieff
Current Hist 31:226 N '29 650w

"It is seldom dull, for dullness is not a characteristic of the Bolsheviks—at any rate not when they are addressing themselves to the bourgeois—and it is full of interest for the publicist, the pacifist, the politician and, we must add, the cynic. The book is frankly designed to show how earnest and how consistent have been the Soviets' efforts not merely to avoid, but to abolish, war. If the documents told the whole truth and nothing but the truth, there could be no doubt about the verdict. But, in fact, there will be a great deal of doubt in the mind of any wide-awake jury."

+ — New Statesman 33:558 Ag 10 '29 450w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:74 O '30

Reviewed by M. W. Graham
Pol Sci Q 45:470 S '30 700w

St Louis 28:5 Ja '30

"The greater number of the documents are written by Litvinoff and Tchitcherin, but they all have many qualities in common—vivacious, provocative, argumentative, vociferous—the authors always make their case with great vigour, and even when not convincing, they never fail to be plausible."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p599 Ag 1 '29 540w

UNION OF SOVIET SOCIALIST REPUBLICS. Soviet union looks ahead; the five-year plan for economic construction. 275p $2.50 Liveright

330.947 Russia—Economic conditions. Russia —Industries. Industry and state—Russia 29-19889

For descriptive note see Annual for 1929, under Russia (U.S.S.R.) State Planning Commission.

"The program as set forth in this little volume, which is but a general resumé of the three large volumes, in Russian, containing the five-year plan, deserves the serious consideration of everyone interested in economic planning of industrial activity." Karl Scholz

+ Ann Am Acad 148:294 Mr '30 420w

Booklist 26:276 Ap '30

Cleveland Open Shelf p7 Ja '30

Reviewed by R. G. Randall
Nation and Ath 47:534 Jl 26 '30 550w

New Statesman 35:90 Ap 26 '30 180w

St Louis 28:5 Ja '30

"There are two minor blemishes to be blamed against the English edition of this book. A reference book of its importance should not have lacked an index. And it is misleading to the English reader, when the American sense of 'billion' differs from the English usage, that numbers should appear throughout (without explanation) in American billions in place of more convenient European 'milliards.' The maps with which the book is illustrated could also have ben improved." Maurice Dobb

+ — Spec 144:sup625 Ap 12 '30 1500w

Times [London] p10 Mr 4 '30 750w

Times [London] Lit Sup p215 Mr 13 '30 130w

UNTERMEYER, LOUIS. Blue Rhine, Black Forest; a hand- and day-book. 272p il $2.50 Harcourt [7s 6d Harrap]

914.3 Germany—Description and travel. Rhine river and valley. Black Forest 30-9838

The poet has written a day-by-day guide for travelers in Germany, paying particular attention to the Rhine and Black Forest regions. The book concludes with an anthology of Black Forest poetry.

Booklist 26:392 Jl '30

Reviewed by A. B. Maurice
Bookm 71:xv Jl '30 120w

"Louis Untermeyer has kicked up his Parnassian heels and had a thoroughly good time, and a generous measure of the pleasure which he derived from his walking journey through the Black Forest has been transferred to these pages. He has not only traveled with a poet's perception, but he is enough of a craftsman in prose to communicate his impressions." Lisle Bell

+ Books p17 Ag 17 '30 320w

Cleveland Open Shelf p76 My '30

Nation and Ath 47:742 S 12 '30 100w

Reviewed by Edwin Seaver
N Y Evening Post p5s Je 7 '30 70w

"Mr. Untermeyer is always a stimulating and an entertaining guide, whose alert and active mind has so much to say in the way of comment, criticism, exposition, appreciation, and says it in such distinctive style, pungent, whimsical, poetic, philosophic, according to the occasion, that his book can be read at home, especially if one is familiar with the region, with much enjoyment. The traveler on the Rhine and in the Black Forest will find it a charming and useful companion."

+ N Y Times p12 My 4 '30 420w

Reviewed by W. R. Brooks

Outlook 154:629 Ap 16 '30 40w

Sat R 150:155 Ag 2 '30 180w

Sat R of Lit 6:983 Ap 26 '30 100w

"This brightly written book will be of considerable practical use for visitors to the Black Forest, but the Rhine is treated rather hurriedly, and is the Rhine ever really blue enough to be called blue? There are some interesting observations on Cologne and Coblenz, and Bann has some delightful pages on Beethoven, but Mr. Untermeyer clearly expects his readers to go up the Rhine by boat, turning neither to the right hand nor to the left."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p631 Jl 31 '30 350w

World Tomorrow 13:277 Je '30 80w

UNTERMEYER, LOUIS, ed. Modern American poetry; a critical anthology. 4th rev ed 850p trade ed $3.50; text ed $2.50 Harcourt

811.08 American poetry—Collections 30-19495

The fourth revised edition of Untermeyer's critical anthology of American verse contains 730 poems by 153 poets, from Emily Dickinson to Nathalia Crane. The new edition emphasizes the fifteen or twenty outstanding American poets by giving extended space to each. Among the new names, appearing in the Untermeyer anthology for the first time, are Robinson Jeffers, Archibald MacLeish, Hart Crane, Allan Tate, Malcolm Cowley, Langston Hughes and Robert Penn Warren.

Booklist 27:118 N '30

"If one wishes to quarrel with the editor and cannot quarrel with his industry, one can, at times, with his taste. One can object to the women's club lecture tone of Mr. Untermeyer's preface, a certain gusto almost that of the professional booster, as if the modern American poetry were the big show inside the tent and Mr. Untermeyer the barker outside. We object, too, to certain of Mr. Untermeyer's statements in his brief prefaces to each of the poets included in his anthology." Edwin Seaver

+ — N Y Evening Post p5s Ag 23 '30 380w

Reviewed by Harry Hansen

N Y World p11 Jl 29 '30 1000w

"This is truly 'A Critical Anthology,' as it is subtitled. It is easily the best book of its kind. The versatile Mr. Untermeyer is our best modern anthologist, as well as being a notable poet and a brilliant parodist. . . He again reveals the extent of his study of the whole of American verse. His ear for true poetry, even in the midst of more mediocre work, is acute, his zest for discovery is undiminished. He has freshened his collection by the inclusion of much more than 'classical examples,' even than those which have grown into minor classics within the last decade. Consequently his anthology breathes vitality. It is a growing tree." W. R. Benét

+ Sat R of Lit 7:24 Ag 2 '30 750w

Springf'd Republican p10 O 3 '30 480w

UPDEGRAFF, ALLAN EUGENE. Native soil. 331p $2.50 Day

30-7566

Gerald Enthoven, a cosmopolite returning after many years' absence to his home town, Springfield, Illinois, is the only one of five passengers to escape injury and death when the plane carrying him crashes some few miles from his destination. Back in Springfield, he visits Wilbur and Mary Russell—to renew the love affair with Mary which had had its beginning previously in Biarritz. He meets, however, Marjory Wallace, who falls in love with him, and follows him when he returns to Paris. The last part of the book deals with Marjory's tragic death when she is struck down by a Paris taxi, and her cremation—according to her wish—at Pere la Chaise cemetery.

Boston Transcript p3 Mr 1 '30 750w

"Combining humor, a lazy charm, moments of seriousness and a touch of insanity, 'Native Soil' is the latest book from Mr. Updegraff's never negligible hand. As a character sketch, it is complete and decisive; as a story it is more than a little baffling, not only because little happens but because the things that do happen seem unnecessary and even unrelated. There are times when the leisurely quality of the book becomes tiresome, but on the whole the novel is as compelling as a sunny, warm and bee-filled afternoon under vine-covered porches. Until that chapter concerning Marjory's cremation. Maybe Mr. Updegraff got two novels mixed up."

+ — N Y Times p7 F 23 '30 450w

"Mr. Updegraff has a sardonic and macabre quality that is especially reminiscent of Spoon River. On the whole the book shows a decided and very personal talent; he is fashionably and quite cheerfully pessimistic."

Outlook 154:387 Mr 5 '30 180w

"This effect does not quite come off, not altogether from Mr. Updegraff's defects, but partly from his qualities. He has not the polished elegance necessary, nor the pitiless detachment. He is more deeply moved than he wishes by death and love. His hero is a romantic manqué, philosophic when he should be amorous and bitter when he should be philosophic, who thinks of suicide and thinks better of it, and Mr. Updegraff is much like him, spoiling his romanticism with cynicism and his cynicism with romanticism. He has succeeded admirably in conveying his confusion in the face of the universe, but readers are beginning to demand something more than confusion."

+ — Sat R of Lit 6:852 Mr 22 '30 450w

Wis Lib Bul 26:107 Mr '30

URBAN, JOSEPH. Book of theatres; with an introd. by the artist on the changing form of the theatre and its place in the architecture of the community. pl ltd ed $7.50 Theatre arts; for sale by Day

725.82 Theaters

"Here is something of a picture book, with a foreword, by one of the best known of America's theatre architects and stage designers. The pictures, which are the primary motive for the volume, are reproductions of the architect's drawings for the Ziegfeld Theatre, Jewish Art Theatre, Reinhardt Theatre and Paramount (Palm Beach) Theatre and for a Music Center and a new Metropolitan Opera House. Together with these reproductions are details of interior decoration and construction, besides floor and stage plans. In his foreword Mr. Urban writes briefly of the history of theatre architecture, from the time of the classic Athenian theatre to the present day. He also describes briefly the problems presented by each of the foregoing theatres, with reference both to the exterior surroundings and the technical demands growing out of the various types of entertainment involved."—Bookm

Bookm 70:viii Ja '30 160w

"Joseph Urban has the great advantage over most architects and decorators of knowing intimately the practical needs of a playhouse, and indeed being able to anticipate future needs, and he has a fine feeling for strong masses and eloquent structural surfaces." W. P. Eaton

+ Books p10 Ja 19 '30 280w

St Louis 28:72 Mr '30

"The reproductions, apparently in off-set, have been well placed and are well printed. What a contrast with some of the fine theater designs shown by the pictures is the banal typography of the book in which they are shown! Here was a grand opportunity to make typography and contents mutually harmonious."

URBAN, JOSEPH—Continued
Sat R of Lit 6:702 F 1 '30 380w

URBAN, WILBUR MARSHALL. Fundamentals ^{2} of ethics; an introd. to moral philosophy. 476p $2.75 Holt
170 Ethics . 30-18388

Textbook for an introductory college course in ethics: Part one, Moral theology, takes up with students the results of reflective thinking in morals and acquaints them with fundamental ethical concepts. Part two, Moral practice, emphasizes the moral problems of the modern world. Part three, Moral philosophy, discusses problems concerning the freedom of the will, morality and religion, etc.

Boston Transcript p2 Ag 2 '30 600w
Reviewed by Frederick Tracy
Int J Ethics 41:242 Ja '31 550w
St Louis 28:250 N '30

V

VAHEY, JOHN GEORGE HASLETTE (VERNON LODER, JOHN HASLETTE, ANTHONY LANG, pseuds.). Shop window murders. 302p $2 Morrow
30-14007

On Monday morning while the crowds were viewing the show windows of a huge new London store it was discovered that two of the supposed lay-figures were in reality human. In both cases the person was dead, presumably murdered. Suspects and clues were many and complicated, but Inspector Devenish was equal to the occasion and discovered what had happened on that Sunday night.

Bookm 71:xvi Jl '30 100w
Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p12 Je 29 '30 130w
N Y Times p24 Je 1 '30 160w
Reviewed by W. R. Brooks
Outlook 155:106 My 21 '30 70w
"A decidedly ingenious story."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p629 Jl 31 '30 270w

VAILE, ROLAND SNOW, and SLAGSVOLD, ^{2} PETER L. Market organization; an introductory course; with a foreword by R. A. Stevenson. 498p $4 Ronald
658.8 Marketing 30-14822

"This is an elementary volume on marketing, using the functional and institutional approaches. Several unusual chapters are: Classification of Commodities, Metropolitan Areas and Centers, Concentration in Marketing, and Consumer Coöperation. The chapter arrangement is somewhat different from that of most marketing texts. Several interesting appendices, including one on Sources of Research Information, are appended. A comprehensive list of important books on marketing is given at the end."—Ann Am Acad

"The book is well written and the authors are to be commended upon their success in concentrating on fundamentals and eliminating masses of inconsequential factual and descriptive material. In a number of cases the reader may disagree with the authors' assertions or reasoning, but for the most part they are beyond criticism in this respect. While it is doubtful whether the authors' purpose, as stated on page 15, has been fully realized, the book compares very favorably with other similar texts and can be recommended to those who wish an introduction to the field of marketing." J. L. Palmer
+ — Am Econ R 20:741 D '30 250w
"The text matter contains many examples illustrating the principles laid down. Its simplicity and clarity recommend it for use in a freshman course." R. F. Breyer
+ Ann Am Acad 151:295 S '30 100w

VALLEE, RUDY (HUBERT PRIOR VALLEE). Vagabond dreams come true. 262p il $2.50 Dutton
B or 92 30-8247

Rudy Vallée's autobiography narrates the story of the rise of a self-made young American business man who has learned how to give the public what it wants in the way of entertainment. Rudy began his career as a saxaphonist while attending Yale university, and as a director of a dance orchestra known as the Connecticut Yankees. He emphasizes the part radio has played in making him a public idol; he is proud of the fact that he works hard twenty hours a day; he writes of his efforts in the song and song-writing business, his fan mail, and his ideal of woman.

Bookm 71:viii Jl '30 160w
"Mr. Rudy Vallee appears from his autobiography, which he swears he wrote himself, to be one of the most conscientious and serious-minded young business men in America. His success, he tells us, was no accident of curly hair and caressing voice; it was the product of long hours and hard work, following intensive study of What the Public Wants." Lewis Gannett
Books p6 Mr 16 '30 700w
"The author thoroughly agrees with whatever words have been spoken, sung or printed in praise of him. His photograph on the frontispiece shows a young man completely contented with himself, his progress and his station in life. His book is the most frank and naif revelation of self-satisfaction that has ever issued from a press." Louis Sherwin
N Y Evening Post p10m Mr 8 '30 700w
N Y Times p23 Mr 30 '30 250w
"I confess that when I opened Rudy Vallee's book it was with the hope that I might find some much-needed comic relief. The only things I knew about Rudy were not such as to endear him to a regular reader of Spengler, Whitehead and Weissnichtwo like myself. And so I came to 'Vagabond Dreams Come True,' and in ten pages I had developed such a whole-hearted respect for Rudy Vallee, and had become so interested in what he wrote about band music, and getting just the right dances to the public, that I was willing to admit that he knew his business. Besides he had something to say. He was convinced that what he had to sell was worth selling, that he was giving his customers 100 per cent on the dollar, and that he knew how to sell it." Harry Hansen
+ N Y World p13 Mr 3 '30 900w
Pratt p38 summer '30
St Louis 28:218 S '30
Springf'd Republican p6 Mr 17 '30 450w

VANAMEE, MARY CONGER (MRS PARKER VANAMEE). Vanamee. 307p $3 Harcourt [10s 6d Faber]
B or 92 Vanamee, Parker 30-5273

An appreciative biography of Parker Vanamee, a young American-seaman, journalist, clergyman, and last, a soldier who was killed in the World war. Vanamee was a man of action, a genial personality, and with a taste for adventure dating from early childhood. To him, war was a great adventure; and the latter part of Mrs Vanamee's book is made up of the letters he wrote during his year at the front.

"Mrs. Vanamee has given us not merely the life of a man, but also the story of a great and ennobling passion. For this reason her book is, at least to this reviewer, too beautiful, too sincerely lovely, for extended comment." B. I. Bell

Atlantic Bookshelf p24 Je '30 250w
Booklist 26:395 Jl '30
Bookm 72:vii S '30 50w
Books p20 O 5 '30 80w
Boston Transcript p2 Mr 29 '30 270w

Reviewed by Patricia Minnegerode
N Y Times p10 Jl 6 '30 600w

"This book is not another 'Road to the Temple,' for Mary Conger Vanamee is not another Susan Glaspell. But it is a good book about a promising newspaper man who turned into a parson, and who was no more afraid of dying than he was of living." Bellamy Partridge
+ N Y World p10m F 9 '30 280w

"His wife here sets herself the task of telling the story of his simple, gallant life, partly as a memorial for his friends, and partly for the edification of a wider public. We get a vivid picture of a clergyman's life in American country towns and share heartily in her admiration for her warm-hearted, boyish husband."
+ Sat R 148:732 D 14 '29 260w

"A cool and detached study of a luminous personality and of an extraordinary relationship, —so extraordinary, the cynic would say, that it simply could not last. . . Well-proportioned and written in the best American idiom, the story of Parker Vanamee's life is told with mature objectivity, imagination, force, and courage."
+ Sat R of Lit 6:877 Mr 29 '30 350w
Springf'd Republican p8 Ap 8 '30 330w

VAN BUSKIRK, WILLIAM RILEY. Saviors of mankind. 537p $3 Macmillan
922 Prophets. Religions 29-20808

A social interpretation of religion, given in terms of biographical studies of the life and work of the following great prophets and religious leaders: Lao-Tze, Confucius, Gautama, Zoroaster, Aakhnaton, Moses, Isaiah of Babylon, Socrates, Jesus of Nazareth, Saul of Tarsus, and Mahomet.

Booklist 26:278 Ap '30
Christian Century 47:274 F 26 '30 320w

"The volume will serve as a good introduction to a more detailed study of the world's great religions; indeed, it will stimulate to such study. If it should do this, many pastors will find valuable material for their public instruction." M. G. Evans
+ Crozer Q 7:115 Ja '30 230w

"It is enough to win the gratitude of modern scholars that Mr. Van Buskirk has committed himself to the new approach in the study of religions and has ventured to demonstrate it. The general reader, free from anxiety regarding facts, will find the Saviors of Mankind a stimulating and emancipating book." A. E. Haydon
+ J Religion 10:266 Ap '30 620w

"Dr. Van Buskirk writes with clarity and simplicity. His interpretation of these men whom he has grouped together as the outstanding figures in the spiritual history of the world is very human and understanding. He sheds no new light on their personal lives or teachings, but he brings to his work a freshness of outlook, a maturity of judgment, which make it a distinctly worthwhile contribution to the religious and ethical literature of today." Dino Ferrari
+ N Y Times p5 Ja 26 '30 700w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:54 Je '30
St Louis 27:341 D '29
Springf'd Republican p7e F 16 '30 800w

"The best in the book is the attempt to light up the social backgrounds against which the saviors of mankind did their teaching. Other writers would have less hesitation about dismissing as such the myths and legends. The greatness of a leader is not diminished by the fact that legends grew up about him in a period untrained in the canons of modern historians. On the contrary, the myth-making is itself a tribute to the greatness. Who but the most impressive become heroes of wonder-tales?" Henry Neumann
Survey 63:176 N 1 '29 450w

VANCE, LOUIS JOSEPH. Speaking of women. 305p $2 Lippincott
30-34414

Beautiful Lona Schell, masquerading as a widow, Mrs Lanchester, takes a trip to Europe. The exquisite Comte de Versennes falls in love with her; other gentlemen fall in love with her. It is all most flattering; but there is one obstacle in her path—Zoe, the fiancée of the man Lona has really set her heart upon and determined to capture at all cost.

"Mr. Vance is a good story teller, and his book is packed with ingenious situations and ironic and humorous observations on woman."
+ Books p44 D 7 '30 230w

"A sprightly satire, and true knowledge of human nature in its more worldly moments, gives zest to this somewhat preposterous story."
+ Boston Transcript p6 D 10 '30 350w

"'Speaking of Women' is never dull reading; constant action and intrigue prevent this; and the writing, colorful and alive, and realistic in its presentation, has made interesting a story which so easily might have become exotic and melodramatic."
+ N Y Times p9 D 28 '30 580w

VANCE, LOUIS JOSEPH. Woman in the shadow. 317p $2 Lippincott
30-16944

Grisella, an American born girl, has been adopted by a Hungarian nobleman, and has become mistress of his great estate. She falls in love with a young aviator, Count Stephen Zay, but the two become victims of international intrigue and fall into the hands of the Hungarian Red terror. Finally, thru the aid of an outlaw, the girl and her lover escape.

Boston Transcript p2 Ag 20 '30 280w
N Y Times p14 Ag 17 '30 150w

"Once more Mr. Vance gives us a lurid yarn of Hungarian nobility in the throes of the revolutionary terror which swept that land after the armistice. . . Mr. Vance abhors the Bolshevik and adores their gently born victims—thus the former are all unspeakably vile, brutal, cowardly, the latter invariably brave, patriotic, generous. He is still addicted to expressing himself in strident superlatives." Harry Salpeter
N Y World p5m Ag 3 '30 150w

"Stereotyped plot in which little wooden pieces for characters are moved across a 'checkerboard of nights and days.'" Bernice Whittemore
— Outlook 155:389 Jl 9 '30 200w

VANCE, RUPERT BAYLES. Human factors in cotton culture; a study in the social geography of the American South. (Univ. of N.C. social study ser.) 346p $3 Univ. of N.C. press
338.1 Cotton growing and manufacture. South—Economic conditions. South—Social conditions 29-18385

For descriptive note see Annual for 1929.

"The picture which Dr. Vance draws of the cotton system in the South is not pretty, but it is convincing. One is tempted to say it is convicting, as well. . . Dr. Vance has little to say as to the final solution of the problem. In this regard his book is somewhat disappointing." R. S. Vaile
+ — Am Econ R 20:271 Je '30 1100w
Ann Am Acad 147:225 Ja '30 320w

"The book abounds in rich and interesting material, gathered by observation, by case histories of different types of Southern farmers, from census volumes and technical bulletins of the Department of Agriculture, from surveys

VANCE, R. B.—Continued
conducted by the North Carolina Institute for Research and Social Science; it suffers from its arrangement around a central theme whose validity and importance are both questionable." J. A. Flexner
+ — Books p16 Mr 16 '30 450w
St Louis 28:206 S '30

"Landlord, sharecropper, fatback, hominy, molasses, collards, mules, bull-tongue plows, store credit, mortgages, cotton prices, boll weevil, calcium arsenate—here is a book all about them. It is not original; some of the material, such as the back and forth banter of congressmen at hearings, is unimportant; but its inclusiveness makes it useful, and Dr. Vance's ready style renders it unusually interesting reading." Broadus Mitchell
+ — Survey 63:228 N 15 '29 330w

"This is a careful and exhaustive study, providing a body of reliable and complete information on every phase of the subject."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p903 N 7 '29 200w

"A reliable, scholarly study, a passionate 'human document,' a sensitive, poetry-quoting work."
+ World Tomorrow 13:348 Ag '30 100w

VANDERBILT, CORNELIUS. Park avenue. 382p $2 Macaulay
30-16612

The intimate affairs in the life of certain members of New York's four hundred are disclosed in this romance by Cornelius Vanderbilt.

Bookm 71:x Jl '30 70w

"The worthy people in the book 'laugh mirthfully,' 'flash looks,' turn away eyes filled with 'a suspicious mist,' and fold one another in tender arms. The unworthy kick each other with bedslippers, twist their hands, and turn to an ashen pallor. At the end of so much emotional strain, you sink into a profound exhaustion."
— Books p15 Ag 17 '30 330w

"A little too dime-novelish in construction for the average twentieth century intelligence."
— Boston Transcript p3 Je 28 '30 100w

"Park Avenue as it is not is here set down by one who certainly knows better, for the credulous people of less elegant sections who are willing, nay, eager, to believe anything. Calmly disregarding anything approaching verisimilitude, Mr. Vanderbilt has here told the old, old story of the rich boy who falls in love with a poor girl."
— N Y Times p7 Je 29 '30 300w

"As a novelist, Mr. Vanderbilt may be described in words which he applies to his hero—'a resourceful young business man with a fount of ideas all his own.'" F. L. R.
— Outlook 155:269 Je 18 '30 150w

VANDERCOOK, JOHN WOMACK. Fools' parade; with drawings by Mahlon Blaine. 270p $2.50 (7s 6d) Harper
30-7098

Six short stories with an African setting, by the author of Black Majesty. These stories are concerned with the psychological reactions of white men in this primitive environment. The opening narrative deals with the escape of five convicts, very different in character, from a French prison colony and what happens to them after they have plunged into the jungle.

For biographical sketch of the author see N Y World p10m Ap 27 '30

Booklist 26:398 Jl '30

"The stories are all readable and interesting, but the magic of Mr. Vandercook's previous work is missing." Paul Allen
+ — Bookm 71:330 Je '30 170w

"A taut pictorial phrasing, a beauty that is harsh and cruel but gorgeously alive, holds one buried in John Vandercook's latest in that ecstasy of appreciation ordinarily possible only in childhood. And, as in that long ago when all books were living things, you have a mounting sense of loss as the six stories near their end." Rebecca Hourwich
+ Books p3 Ap 20 '30 1000w

"The author of 'Black Majesty' has made good in the realm of the short story. The stories are eminently masculine, vivid and virile. The strokes which draw the characters or the background are strong and bold. The atmosphere becomes very real. There is no wasting of words or scenery. And the drawings by Mahlon Blaine are as vivid and uncanny as the stories."
+ Boston Transcript p5 Ap 18 '30 320w
Cleveland Open Shelf p79 My '30

Reviewed by K. C. Tomlinson
Nation and Ath 47:182 My 10 '30 50w

"Six tales which have the power to grip the attention as surely as if some adventurer returned from years in the tropics were recounting his experiences to rapt listeners. It is in such a spontaneous, effortless manner that the stories are told; but into their writing has gone a literary art which raises them far above mere adventures."
+ New Repub 63:352 Ag 6 '30 230w

"Written with competent professional artistry, the stories rise a notch above the magazine type, and ought without doubt to be brought to the notice of appropriate gentlemen in Hollywood. The characters are for the most part stereotyped, and one does not heed whether the jungle swallows them or not."
— + New Statesman 34:776 Mr 22 '30 120w

"Africa is the principal protagonist in each story, and although the author's feeling about it approaches at times a vague mysticism, it is at its best a perfect emotional garment with which to invest stories of African life. For such a conception of Africa is animism. . . The author has sensed that such an animism contains excellent dramatic values. It furnishes an air of suspense and weirdness that Mahlon Blaine captures so well in his drawings." Max Lerner
N Y Evening Post p11m Mr 15 '30 750w

"Mr. Vandercook's stories are neither striking nor unusual. But they are better than the average stories that seem to flow in an endless ribbon from these hot localities."
+ — N Y Times p9 Je 1 '30 400w

"'The Fools' Parade' is an excellent book." Harry Salpeter
+ N Y World p10m Ap 27 '30 700w

"Three of these are good stories, but they become obscured and submerged in the atmosphere of sinister steaming jungle and mysterious secret natives, which ends by stifling plot and characters under a pressure of about 1000 lbs. to the cubic inch." W. R. Brooks
— + Outlook 154:510 Mr 26 '30 80w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:51 Je '30

"The prose is rich without being gaudy. There is throughout an impersonality both in technique and style which indicates that the author dreads being identified with his material. He frequently introduces himself as the narrator at secondhand, sometimes at thirdhand, a literary device which holds the reader at a distance."
+ Sat R of Lit 7:11 Jl 26 '30 420w

"Every other publisher should look upon The Fools' Parade and determine in future to emulate its virtues. Matter as well as appearance the book has, in six vivid, sympathetic and well-written stories. Altogether a book to acquire, to read and to handle with pleasure."
+ Spec 144:1071 Je 28 '30 150w

"Insight and understanding are found in a presentation that never becomes sentimental."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 23 '30 600w
Times [London] Lit Sup p321 Ap 10 '30 250w

VAN DE WATER, FREDERIC FRANKLYN. Alibi. 281p $1 Doubleday, Doran
30-23083

Once more the State troopers score in this latest thriller by Mr Van de Water, in which a double murder, a hidden will, a young author and a pretty girl are among the chief ingredients.

Bookm 72:xxi S '30 30w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p16 S 14 '30 120w

"A good story written with a better grasp of literary technique than the average thriller shows. The suspense is well sustained and the climax is a surprise."
+ Boston Transcript p2 S 24 '30 100w

"An excellent tale of murder and associated deviltries." Dashiell Hammett
+ N Y Evening Post p5s S 6 '30 150w

"Exceptionally good yarn." W. C. Weber
+ Sat R of Lit 7:232 O 11 '30 160w

VAN DE WATER, FREDERIC FRANKLYN. Still waters. 298p $2 Doubleday, Doran 30-555

Richard York of Aristides got drunk one night, became involved in a bootlegging war, and was accused of murdering his uncle. But Richard, while dodging the New York state troopers, tracks down the real criminal, and wins lovely Desire.

Bookm 71:xxxi Mr '30 50w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p18 Ja 26 '30 80w
N Y World p11m Ja 12 '30 120w

"Lively, well written and logical." W. R. Brooks
+ Outlook 154:71 Ja 8 '30 60w

"A brightly written and readable tale, containing its fair quota of deaths and excitement, and the author does not neglect to give us a little humor, a fact which we ask other detective novel writers to note. Mr. Van de Water's tale deals with liquor and its smuggling and hardly attains the distinction which would put it in the first rank."
+ — Sat R of Lit 6:761 F 22 '30 120w

VAN DINE, S. S., pseud. Scarab murder case; a Philo Vance story. 328p $2 Scribner
30-26602

A rare blue scarab is found by the murdered body of Benjamin H. Kyle, art patron, in the museum of a famous Egyptologist, Dr Bliss. And the blandly nonchalant Philo Vance, who can read heiroglyphics as well as human nature discovers that too many perfectly planted clews are diabolically mystifyin'. Much archaeological knowledge, legendary superstition and a mysterious Egyptian servant, Hani, combine with the hard common sense of Western civilization to complete the appeal of this subtle Van Dine mystery.

Booklist 26:399 Jl '30

"A thoroughly logical plot woven about the passions of an eminent Egyptian archeologist, in the usual sophisticated Van Dine style."
+ Bookm 71:xvi Jl '30 130w

"In our opinion Mr. Van Dine has never written a better detective tale, and never will until he gets rid of Philo Vance, the famous sleuth, scholar, gentleman, 'g'-dropper and New Humanist." Will Cuppy
+ Books p14 My 25 '30 480w

"The plot has several interesting twists, though its ending is not altogether convincing and its course is slowed up by the irrelevant profundities that Mr. Van Dine's public is supposed to expect of him. Markham and Heath are as incomparably inefficient, as amazingly ignorant, as ever." Dashiell Hammett
+ — N Y Evening Post p8m My 24 '30 140w

"The story is neither so ingenious nor so thrilling as 'The Bishop Murder Case.' But then, even S. S. Van Dine cannot always be at the very top of his form." Isaac Anderson
+ — N Y Times p16 My 25 '30 630w

"The book does not represent this master of detective fiction at the top of his form, but it is still a story which his hosts of former readers should thoroughly enjoy." E. C. Beckwith
N Y World p7m Je 8 '30 250w

"If you like Philo Vance, you will enjoy The Scarab Murder Case; if you dislike him as much as we do (and we think he's awful), we nevertheless urge you to give the story a trial. In spite of him it's a good detective story. Less talk and more action, a reasonable motive, and well maintained suspense make this the best story we have yet read by Mr. Van Dine." W. R. Brooks
+ Outlook 155:190 Je 4 '30 150w

"The new Van Dine mystery. I recommend it to you not only as his best but as very close to the top of all detective stories. . . The story rushes on to a series of exciting climaxes, carefully planned, artistically constructed, and ingeniously baffling. It is a joy to read and ranks number one in the season's mysteries." Eugene Reynal
+ Sat R of Lit 6:1062 My 24 '30 440w

"More Van Dine-ish than ever, which is to say more elaborate as to plot, more intolerable as to style, and more erudite than anybody could imagine. Egyptology is the specialty this time, and the mass of Egyptological information contained in the serried footnotes would set up any non-specialist for life. Some people, obviously, like it." Margaret Cole
— Spec 144:1058 Je 28 '30 70w
Springf'd Republican p7e My 25 '30 330w

"An adroit mystery story."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p557 Jl 3 '30 220w

VAN DORE, WADE. Far Lake. (Songs of today ser.) 47p $1 Coward-McCann
811 30-22350

Lyrics of out-of-door life—forest, mountain and lake—influenced to some extent by the work of Robert Frost.

"It is outdoor verse of the kind that will find its way into anthologies of 'nature' lovers' poetry, a mild and sentimental survey of little beasts, birds, lakes and flowers." Horace Gregory
— Books p14 S 7 '30 50w

"Mr. Van Dore impresses one as genuinely in love with the trees and hills and small animals, and to write about them with frankness and truth and with no small admixture of poetic feeling." Percy Hutchison
+ N Y Times p22 D 14 '30 120w

"These poems obviously spring from actual observation and experience, even if the style of the master of a style sometimes shadows them. This is the poetry of a true naturalist and his own personal intonation will be more apparent in his next book. As it is 'Far Lake' is well worthy of publication." W. R. Benét
+ — Sat R of Lit 7:115 S 6 '30 130w

VAN DOREN, CARL CLINTON. Swift. 279p il $3 Viking press
B or 92 Swift, Jonathan 30-28869

In this biographical study of Swift Mr Van Doren is chiefly concerned with an interpretation of the man's character and temperament. To this end he recounts Swift's varied experiences, his bitter friendships, his curious associations with Stella and Vanessa. Mr Van Doren makes no attempt to analyze Swift's work except in so far as it throws particular light on some aspect of the great satirist's extraordinary personality.

VAN DOREN, C. C.—Continued
Booklist 27:158 D '30

"Swift is a mysterious person. One quality he had which Mr. Van Doren does not pay much attention to, and that was his acute perception of the truth, of the fact, unromantic, unsentimental. Perhaps Swift is the last great man who ever viewed the world completely in that clear light. Until someone with an approach to this clearness of eye and head writes about Swift, the mystery will remain unsolved. Mr. Van Doren is content to make Swift more horrible, more terrible, more shocking, than he has ever appeared before. He succeeds in making him grotesque." Theodore Baird

— + Bookm 72:314 N '30 1250w

"Mr. Van Doren's study of this great but unhappy man is marked by sound information and a great prudence. He arranges his facts in an orderly and seemly manner and makes his narrative interesting from first to last. There is no vain show of learning. The tedious labors that must have gone into more than one passage and the diligent weighing of conflicting testimony that lies behind the whole are carefully concealed. One gets a smooth-running, extremely readable account of the man. It is a fascinating piece of writing, and it is probably the best biography of Swift ever written." H. L. Mencken

+ Books p1 O 19 '30 1050w

"This is the best critical study of Swift which we have had and perhaps it is the best biography. Thackeray's study is not in the same class with Van Doren's and Craik's 'Life' is better, if it really is better, only because it is more documented and more extended. It is not as well written. Mr. Van Doren's study, which is the result of many years' work, stands on the level occupied by Maurois's 'Disraeli' and Strachey's 'Elizabeth and Essex.' No American literary biography can quite compare with it. Charming to read, authoritative to the last detail, firm in the opinions it expresses, it is, in short, the kind of biography that appears easy to write and yet which is, in the final analysis, not an easily written book." Karl Schriftgiesser

+ Boston Transcript p1 N 1 '30 1500w

Reviewed by Ruth Hunt
Christian Century 48:24 Ja 7 '31 550w

"His book is based firmly upon facts; it is in no sense a 'fictional biography.' But he does not permit these arid data to protrude. They are the armature (as the sculptor says) upon which he has molded and fashioned his full-length portrait of Jonathan Swift. . . Mr. Van Doren's is a concise, firm, lean book, without an ounce of superfluous, fatty words upon it." S. C. C.

+ Christian Science Monitor p7 N 1 '30 1000w

Cleveland Open Shelf p153 D '30

"This is an admirable biography; it is, indeed, the best life of Swift that has appeared in a generation. It belongs to the 'new school' of biography, but only in the best sense of the phrase. Mr. Van Doren has not patronized his subject or slyly held him up to ridicule; he has not tried to be clever; he has not written as if he had a novelist's unerring insight into motives; he has not invented any imaginary conversations; he has not even made use of scores of tempting and dramatic anecdotes about Swift when their truth seemed to him unestablished. Mr. Van Doren has been content, in brief, to remain strictly a biographer, and has sometimes leaned backward in his refusal to assert or even to speculate. But he seems to me to have learned what is soundest in the method of Mr. Lytton Strachey." Henry Hazlitt

+ Nation 131:473 O 29 '30 850w

"Swift was of a wit so acid he drove men to fear him; and, dead, he seems to exercise something of the same power. As little as his contemporaries knew how to shield themselves from his shafts, just so little do biographers know how to deal with them. In Carl Van Doren's 'Swift,' despite its fairness and its scholarship, there is still something of this hesitancy. If Mr. Van Doren's stormy Dean seems less awesome than in other accounts, he seems no more clear. And perhaps that is as it should be." Percy Hutchison

+ — N Y Times p4 N 9 '30 1350w

"Van Doren's writing is emphatic, clean cut, well proportioned." Harry Hansen

+ N Y World p9 O 18 '30 700w

Outlook 156:348 O 29 '30 400w

"This life of Swift is a very able achievement, and in some sections—notably section four—a remarkable achievement, and one that takes a couple of readings to appreciate. . . But I should like to state my own conviction that no great writer of English is so un-English and so fundamentally incomprehensible to Englishmen as Swift. For the truth is that Swift showed preëminently, however one may account for it, the Irish mind and the Irish passions. The failure to recognize this is the one failure in Mr. Van Doren's brilliant biography." M. M. Colum

+ — Sat R of Lit 7:357 N 22 '30 3000w

VAN DOREN, MARK, and LAPOLLA, GARIBALDI M., eds. Junior anthology of world poetry. 672p $2.50 Boni

808.8 Poetry—Collections 29-27821

"An anthology of world poetry" (Book Review Digest, 1929) is made available to larger numbers of young people by omitting some of the poems, leaving a rich selection ranging from the Egyptian Book of the Dead, in 3500 B.C., to English and American poems of the present day.

Booklist 26:209 F '30

Nation 131:49 Jl 9 '30 50w

"The omissions have been skillfully made without destroying the universal quality of the book. This anthology should be within the reach of boys and girls, for youth is the season to go adventuring in poetry."

+ N Y Times p19 F 2 '30 100w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:14 F '30

Pratt p27 summer '30

Reviewed by Alfred Kreymborg
Sat R of Lit 6:1140 Je 21 '30 200w

VAN DOREN, MARK, ed. Autobiography of America. 737p $5 Boni

973 United States—History. United States—Biography. United States—Social life and customs 29-28791

"In this compilation by Mr. Van Doren we have a praiseworthy effort to knit together from many original narratives a more or less connected history of American life, at least in some of its most significant phases, from the landing of John Smith to the twentieth century. He has tried to find men and women in important times and places who have described their experiences in such a way that an interesting and continuous history would emerge when their tales were fitted together. Of these selections he has given us seventy-four, beginning with John Smith and William Bradford, and ending with Brand Whitlock and Jack London. Few really outstanding aspects of the American record was slighted, though there is no politics, or almost none, and strangely little of fighting and war."—Sat R of Lit

---

Booklist 26:154 Ja '30

"Mr. Van Doren introduces his witnesses and then lets them alone. There is no attempt to establish a 'psychologic significance' for them, thank God, or to prove that they meant anything in particular. They lived and saw and, except for Brand Whitlock and Hamlin Garland, they are now comfortably oblivious of what the American comedy came to in the end. I admit that they charm me." Thomas Beer

+ Books p3 D 22 '29 1350w

Cleveland Open Shelf p74 My '30

Hist Outlook 21:341 N '30 200w

"Mr. Van Doren's book is nearly always interesting and usually amusing, but it is hardly anything more." M. P. Levy

+ — New Repub 62:307 Ap 30 '30 500w
N Y Times p43 D 1 '29 180w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:15 F '30
Pratt p35 summer '30

Reviewed by W. B. Shaw
R of Rs 81:10 Je '30 100w
St Louis 28:51 F '30

"The volume should not only entertain and instruct a good many people in itself, but should stimulate some of them to find and read entire volumes here indicated. In fact, for many readers that should be its highest utility. . . As Mr. Van Doren says, he has compiled an autobiography of America; other men, using a list of books largely different, might easily compile others. It is useless to debate the value of this or that selection, or to suggest substitutions. A more intelligent, stimulating, and uniformly readable set of excerpts could certainly not be found." Allan Nevins

+ Sat R of Lit 6:772 Mr 1 '30 1600w

"By adroitly choosing material that pictures an environment, Mr Van Doren attains a certain colorful uniformity that could not be extracted from summarized biographies. . . As a collection of 'collateral readings' on American development the volume has some value. As a composite narrative, it is not altogether successful. Yet there is no denying the interest of most of the chapters, brief though they be."

+ — Springf'd Republican p10 Ja 30 '30 230w
Wis Lib Bul 26:103 Mr '30
World Tomorrow 14:28 Ja '31 30w

VANE, DEREK. White Panthers. 272p $2 Macmillan
30-4856

The White Panthers is a secret organization composed of four men—Giles Rochester, Simon Morde, Dudley Shale and young Barry Holford, the purpose of which was to obtain money by nefarious and illegal methods. Barry, who has fallen in love with Rochester's daughter, wishes to resign from the White Panthers; and he is no sooner given that privilege than he falls into the hands of Simon Morde, who is secretly double-crossing his associates in order to secure more money to carry on his inventions. So the organization turns, one by one, against Simon, the traitor and evil genius of them all.

Bookm 71:xxix Ap '30 50w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p14 Mr 2 '30 70w

"All the ingredients of a good thriller can be found in 'The White Panthers,' but the author, alas, has tossed them all in without due preparation and thought concerning the final dish. It is an exciting story, but it is also a disappointing story with the unfulfilled promise of better things."

+ — N Y Times p20 Ap 20 '30 200w

"A few murders would have helped this one, and a little less love. But it is B plus." W. R. Brooks

+ — Outlook 154:350 F 26 '30 40w
Times [London] Lit Sup p217 Mr 13 '30 160w

VANE, SUTTON. Outward bound. 302p $2.50 Minton [7s 6d Chatto]
30-8781

The author of the successful play Outward Bound has turned the play into a novel. It tells the story of that strange collection of passengers aboard a ship, and no one of them seems to remember embarking. Slowly it penetrates to each one that they are the dead, and their ship is outward bound to unknown shores.

Booklist 26:399 Jl '30

Reviewed by Lillian Feldman
Books p22 Ap 13 '30 180w

"It is no easy task to turn a good play into a good novel, but Sutton Vane has done it with 'Outward Bound.' . . The author has handled his subject with the same restraint that marked the play. It is not a pretentious work; it is for the most part subdued; but it is thoroughly worth reading."

+ N Y Times p8 Ap 27 '30 420w

"The successful play of the other world is here skilfully transformed into a novel with the necessary additions and changes of construction. It loses nothing of its pathos and sly humour in the change, and should be welcomed by all who enjoyed the story in its dramatic form."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p901 N 7 '29 50w

VAN EVERY, EDWARD. Sins of New York, as "exposed" by the Police gazette; with an introd. by Franklin P. Adams. 299p il $5 Stokes

364 Crime and criminals—New York (city). National police gazette 30-31370

Sidelights on the manners and customs, crime and wickedness of New York from the 1840's to the 1880's as mirrored in the Police Gazette. There are many extracts from the paper and reproductions of the original woodcut illustrations.

Books p5 O 26 '30 300w

"The whole impact of this book is depressing. If the Police Gazette had been the last of its kind, if it had not spawned the dreary brood we batten on today, we might be able to laugh at its outmoded smirks a little more wholeheartedly. It is only too evident, however, that the more that kind of thing changes, the more it remains the same. If anyone still believes we are progressing from one generation to another, I wish he would look soberly at this book." T. S. Matthews

New Repub 65:108 D 10 '30 850w

"Mr. Van Every has worked the files with great industry and made the lurid details available in very readable form for the present generation. He has also suggested most judiciously a wealth of illustrations, not all of them precisely works of art, but most of them showing good workmanship for their day—or, in fact, for any day in popular journalism prior to the invention of photo-engraving." R. L. Duffus

+ N Y Times p4 N 23 '30 850w

Reviewed by Harry Hansen
N Y World p14 O 24 '30 230w

Reviewed by W. R. Brooks
Outlook 156:389 N 5 '30 150w

"Mr. Van Every's book is amply illustrated, and he has amusingly printed the latter half of his narrative—that devoted to the régime of Richard K. Fox as publisher of the Gazette—on the pink paper long associated with the sheet. And his narrative is as enthralling as a detective story—don't miss it!"

+ Sat R of Lit 7:478 D 20 '30 400w

VAN LOON, HENDRIK WILLEM. R.v.R; being an account of the last years and the death of one Rembrandt Harmenszoon van Rijn. 570p il $5 Liveright

B or 92 Rembrandt Hermanszoon van Rijn
30-25614

A fictionized biography of the great Dutch painter Rembrandt. The book takes the form of an imaginary diary of a contemporary of Rembrandt, which gives a picture of the life and customs of the time. Illustrated with reproductions of Rembrandt's pictures and etchings.

Booklist 27:158 D '30

"Mr. Van Loon's account is the fruit of long investigation. His knowledge is knowledge in the true sense, not a mass of archeological data. He knows his countrymen, their passions, manners, and the thousand and one things which make the Dutch so stubborn and so fascinating; and having experienced these things directly instead of pilfering abstract information from dull books, he transfers them to the past, thus giving events human significance and presenting a realistic version of life. The narrative taken purely as a story is discursive and long-winded; taken in leisurely fashion as history, it is magnificently entertaining and instructive." Thomas Craven

VAN LOON, H. W.—Continued
+ Books p1 O 5 '30 1400w

Reviewed by G. R. B. Richards
Boston Transcript p1 N 26 '30 1550w

"The book is steeped in the essence of the times; the background is ample and colorful; the historical personages drop the trappings of glorified remoteness and walk on and off the scene just as if they were living today. . . Mr. Van Loon has written in 'R. v. R.' an amazing book that fuses the soaring figure of Rembrandt with the dense reality of the age in which he lived, and which did not at all appreciate the greatness that it suckled at its breast." Pierre Loving
+ Chicago Daily Tribune p15 D 13 '30 750w
Cleveland Open Shelf p149 D '30

"Large chunks of this novel are fascinating. It could to advantage have been two hundred pages shorter. But it does paint an absorbing picture of the most brilliant period, a much neglected period, in the history of the Netherlands and of the principal characters who moved in that scene. . . The biggest offense he commits, the worst obstacle he throws in my path when I want to rate him with great predecessors, is his old, inveterate and evidently incurable addiction to neologisms. He persists in making all his characters, no matter what their period, talk in the idiom of 1925 New York." Louis Sherman
+ — N Y Evening Post p4d O 4 '30 850w

"This encyclopedic study of seventeenth century Holland is an extraordinary tour de force, a melting pot of history, customs, manners and even topography. Every street in Amsterdam at that time is as familiar to Mr. Van Loon as the Times Square district to a New Yorker; the clothes people wore, their etiquette at table, how they treated their diseases, is all set down here, and it is, to boot, a veritable 'Who's Who in Amsterdam' for the years 1641 to 1669." H. L. Matthews
+ N Y Times p7 N 16 '30 1100w

"This is easily the best book van Loon has taken out of that well-stocked mental storehouse of his. . . Biography in the tradition of the omnipresent Boswell, but free from pomposity and a claim to omniscience—fiction in the manner in which Thackeray, in telling of the fortunes of one man or woman, drew a world. If truth lives best in fiction—and I am often convinced that it does—then the reader will become better acquainted with Rembrandt through the pages of this book than through countless heavy documents." Harry Hansen
+ N Y World p11 O 2 '30 950w

"His book is very long indeed. But its chapters are pleasantly disconnected and may be read here and there. They are all as meandering, discursive and engaging as the experiences of an experienced, urbane and tolerant old man should be. R. v. R. should delight any reader from fifteen up who will approach it with some of the leisure and the love of the subject which have gone into the writing of it." F. L. R.
+ Outlook 156:229 O 8 '30 420w
St Louis 28:302 D '30

"Taken for what it is, a mirror of a civilization singularly like our own, an irradiation of cold opinion upon the heat and confusion of unreflective living—the book is rich, entertaining, and instructive. One reads it with mingled feelings of pleasure and disappointment. One is dealing with a flexible and charming mind, but one is dealing with it more or less in a literary vacuum. There is no sense of place. . . If it could all have been particularized, centralized, and carried off with a more delicate literary distinction, we should have had a great novel of opinion. As it is, we have a book abounding in wit and tolerant wisdom which without making any pictures constantly 'gives to think.'" F. J. Mather
+ — Sat R of Lit 7:204 O 11 '30 450w

VAN TYNE, CLAUDE HALSTEAD. War of independence; American phase. (Founding of the Am. republic) 518p $5 Houghton
973.3 United States—History—Revolution
29-23482

For descriptive note see Annual for 1929.

"The book is not only good history but good reading. The treatment is dignified without being dull, clear without being colorless, impartial without being unsympathetic. Quiet humor, gentle irony, polished epigram grace many a page. Military operations are described vividly and with such lucidity in respect of geographic detail that the need of a map is scarcely felt. Contemporary opinion as expressed in book or broadside is skillfully dissected. One will search in vain for a more trenchant analysis of 'Common Sense' or of 'Taxation no Tyranny'. Although the text is at times freighted heavily with quotations, these are chosen with excellent discrimination." E. E. Curtis
+ Am Hist R 35:631 Ap '30 950w
Booklist 26:198 F '30

"Professor Van Tyne has a lively style occasionally touched with irony, and enriches his book with an incredible wealth of quotations from contemporary documents of all kinds." F. R. Dulles
+ Bookm 71:126 Mr '30 520w

"By virtue of its high literary quality, its impressive erudition, its aloof impartiality, its discriminating reliance upon the researches of others, its unhurried temper and dignity, Professor Van Tyne's 'War of Independence' must be pronounced a notable contribution to the historical literature of our time." H. S. Commager
+ Books p2 Ja 12 '30 1500w

"The merits of the work are real. There is no touch of national bias, and the range of original and secondary authorities is so great that the many footnotes make an excellent guide to the material for the period." G. M. Wrong
+ Canadian Hist R 11:250 S '30 1250w

"A book that must be read by all serious students of the War of Independence." R. L. Schuyler
+ Hist Outlook 21:82 F '30 1250w

Reviewed by John Carter
Outlook 154:190 Ja 29 '30 150w

"The ripe scholarship, the broad philosophical grasp, the candid detachment and the engaging style of Professor Van Tyne's volume cannot fail to win for it the enthusiastic approval of students of the American Revolution, and to stimulate their anticipation of Professor Van Tyne's further contribution to this important epoch of our history." D. S. Muzzey
+ Pol Sci Q 45:120 Mr '30 1400w
Pratt p34 autumn '30
St Louis 28:115 Ap '30

"Professor Van Tyne wields a fluent and scholarly pen, and he makes use of the latest available sources. His work is in the best class of American historical scholarship, of which it is unnecessary to say that the standard is very high indeed."
+ Sat R 149:395 Mr 29 '30 460w

"Professor Van Tyne writes impartially with his mind on his authorities rather than on his audience. His style is forcible and carries home to the reader, and his characterizations of the prominent actors in his drama are crisp and often picturesque. We believe that this, his latest book in a field which he has mastered, will be accepted as his best." Harold Murdock
+ Sat R of Lit 6:714 F 8 '30 1200w

"Professor Van Tyne writes in an easy and pleasant style and with an impartiality most welcome to an English reader. His chapters on British and American preparedness and moral are illuminating."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p116 F 13 '30 950w
Wis Lib Bul 26:104 Mr '30
World Tomorrow 14:28 Ja '31 80w

VAN VECHTEN, CARL. Parties; scenes from contemporary New York life. 260p $2.50 Knopf
30-21326

Wealthy, bored with life and each other, and perpetually in need of artificial stimulation, New York's younger generation (or certain members of it exploited in this novel) find release only in a constant round of cocktail parties. Among those present at these parties, in and out of Harlem, are David Westlake and his wife Rilda, who are so much in love with each other that they must find consolation in gin and the arms of others; Hamish, a faithful friend; Roy Fern, for whom gin is not enough, and death is better; the Gräfin, a good soul from Central Europe discovered by Roy; and Donald, an efficient bootlegger.

"The atmosphere—which is simply the difference between certain people who are confined to the same limited space—is almost to the end tense and powerful and rather disgusting. 'Almost to the end'—unfortunately. The story itself is excellently constructed, with the catastrophe of an inconvenient death, a shocked sobriety which almost provides the necessary escape, an inevitable return to the old way of life, and the ultimate resolution of 'We're here because we're here, and we should be extremely silly not to make the worst of it'. But the emotion which informed the better part of it cannot sustain itself to the end; there is a sudden loss of energy." George Dangerfield

+ — Bookm 72:71 S '30 600w

"Nobody can deny that Carl Van Vechten has a talent for observing and setting down surfaces, at the same time, alas, robbing them of their significance. Of the brief, pungent characterization that reads like a bit of brilliant vi-vi-section and reveals almost nothing, he is master. . . But the tricks that he used in his earlier books do not here produce the same results. They are almost as good—but they have become routinized, and the ringmaster who cracks his whip over them seems a bit weary." F. H. Britten

— + Books p3 Ag 17 '30 850w

" 'Parties' is, to this reader's mind, the least of the works of Mr. Van Vechten. It lacks the subtle beauty of, say, 'Peter Whiffle' and the sophistication of all of Mr. Van Vechten's other writing. The characters in 'Parties' are supposedly sophisticates, but their knowledge of life is only a knowledge of the ingredients of the most caloric cocktails, not of the essentials of the art of living." Fanny Butcher

— Chicago Daily Tribune p4 Ag 16 '30 450w

"Mr. Van Vechten's book is exceedingly clever, but none of my American friends have succeeded in explaining to me why they must drink so much merely because alcohol is both easily obtainable and forbidden." Raymond Mortimer

Nation and Ath 47:796 S 27 '30 350w

"A book as unsavory and sniggering as it is dull. It is something of a shock that a man so well acquainted with the arts as Mr. Van Vechten should so far have forgotten himself as to spin out this tasteless and specious tale."

— N Y Times p6 Ag 17 '30 700w

"A gay, sparkling novel about our times, and to some extent ourselves. Van Vechten is unapproached when he lets his saucy irony play over the surface of a society which is trying desperately to amuse itself. Parties is in his best manner, free from the seriousness of Nigger Heaven, reminiscent of The Blind Bow Boy and The Tattooed Countess." Harry Hansen

+ N Y World p9 Ag 15 '30 500w

"Mr. Van Vechten spills his glittering, metallic nonsense across the pages. It falls in scattered shards, leaves tiny, broken images upon your mind. Parties reminds you of nothing so much as the many-colored fragments of old bottles cemented along Italian walls which keep you from climbing over to see where the owner really lives." V. P. R.

Outlook 155:628 Ag 20 '30 450w

" 'Parties' is sophisticated but pretentious, smart but cheap, bright but dull."

— Sat R 150:375 S 27 '30 250w

"It is hardly possible to conceive of a novel in which more drinking is described. Every other line some one mixes a drink or drinks it, and in every chapter—logically enough—nine out of ten of the characters are in a daze, if not actually unconscious. . . Van Vechten has talents, of course—real talents. Is it not surprising that he uses them for books such as this one, which is flippant at best and occasionally a little—even more than a little—cheap?" Clinton Simpson

— + Sat R of Lit 7:101 S 6 '30 800w

"This vivacious satire on contemporary New York Life seems to fail through the exceeding triviality of the persons satirized. It is a study of complete futility and abandonment on the part of those who have too much money and too little to do—a clever study, but too complacent to be really striking."

— + Times [London] Lit Sup p714 S 11 '30 550w

VASIL'EV, ALKSI͡EI TIKHONOVICH. Ochrana; the Russian secret police; ed. and with an introd. by René Fülöp-Miller. 305p il $4 Lippincott [15s Harrap]

351.74 Russia—History—Revolution, 1917-. Secret service—Russia. Police—Russia
30-29532

The last czarist chief of police writes these memoirs and accounts of the Russian secret police, the Ochrana, and their activities during the Revolution. He tells of anarchistic attempts on the lives of the royal family and others connected with the monarchy, and the book contains an account of Rasputin and his relation to the czarist régime.

"The memoirs are primarily an elaborate rhetorical apology for the monarchy and an attack on the Revolution. They substantiate the old saying that bourbons forget nothing and learn nothing, and reveal that rigidity of mind and that profound ignorance of society which made the Czarist regime a symbol the world over for all that was barbarous and backward. Trained as an official and finally raised to the rank of a super-spy in an empire which kept the mass of its population in ignorance, Police Chief Vassilyev assumed in writing his memoirs that the world at large knows as little of Russian history as the peasants to whom his beloved Czar denied all schooling. This is the only possible explanation for the cavalier fashion with which the memoirs deny facts long known to and accepted by even the most conservative minds of western Europe and America." Joseph Freeman

— Books p32 S 28 '30 900w

Boston Transcript p2 O 8 '30 850w

"On the whole one likes M. Vassilyev, and trusts him: a just and honourable man, true to his trust, and likely to err on the side of mercy. Something of this must have appealed to his judges when, his power gone, he was himself called to account. 'Did he do so and so?' 'Certainly he did, it was his duty.' So in the end they let him go, to give us one of the best and most convincing accounts of the working of a great secret service that has yet been published."

+ Sat R 150:292 S 6 '30 550w

"Anyone who is still dubious about the causes which led to the fall of the Tsardom should read The Ochrana. Nothing could illustrate more clearly the fatuity, the incompetence, the obstinate clinging to bygone methods which distinguished the Russian bureaucracy. About Mr. Vassilyev, who died after escaping from the Bolsheviks and after earning his livelihood as a railway porter in France, one would not wish to say anything unnecessarily harsh. His blind loyalty to the old system and, his pathetic conviction that it collapsed only through being too lenient even provoke pity. And he certainly left behind him a most enlightening volume."

— Spec 145:392 S 20 '30 220w

Springf'd Republican p10 S 30 '30 400w

"The devotion to the Tsarist régime which he professes must be accounted sincere. Unfortunately, however, sincerity is not matched by equal candour. Instead of telling something of the secret history of the Ochrana, M. Vassilyev describes at length details of routine interesting enough in themselves but not essentially different from those of other secret services, and then addresses himself half-heartedly to the almost impossible task of proving that his department never consciously made use of agents provocateurs."

VASIL'EV, A. T.—Continued
— Times [London] Lit Sup p703 S 4 '30 220w

VASSOS, RUTH (MRS JOHN VASSOS). Contempo; this American tempo. unp il $5 Dutton 741

Twenty-five full-page geometric drawings in black and white illustrating intellectual abstractions such as science, commercialism, radio, electricity, the subway, advertising, skyscrapers, prohibition, and other phenomena of contemporary American life. For each of the drawings Ruth Vassos has written an interpretative description.

"Mr. Vassos has hardly scratched the surface of American life. His purpose is laudable, but his satire is pointless and his experience too limited to enable him to depict with convincing blood and fury even a minor phase of our complex civilization." Thomas Craven
— + Books p12 Mr 16 '30 350w

"Mr. Vassos has succeeded eminently well and is, in fact, at his best in solving his most difficult problem, that of giving the effect of swift motion by means of blocks of lines and circles. To anyone not a professional critic, his manner represents all that is most essential and most attractive in the new geometric art: it achieves beauty through its graceful, distinguished form and harmonious black, white, and gray coloring; it makes a very pleasant appeal to the intelligence as well as to the eye; and it is completely modern, representing even old themes, like religion, from a new angle. To explain each picture there is a short paragraph of highly colored prose, unnecessary and mediocre."
+ — Boston Transcript p8 D 14 '29 320w

"John Vassos is an arresting artist, a man who makes you look twice at his drawings and speculate on what you see there. Imperceptibly he leads you into them and soon you are building your own imagination on the symbols he gives you. . . Here Vassos is trying to catch abstract beauty in the actualities of American life. He tries to project symbols for electricity, the subway, advertising, prohibition, traffic, radio, the department store, and so on. Probably no artist to-day uses gray and black as effectively as he does." Harry Hansen
+ N Y World p16 O 31 '29 350w
Pratt p22 autumn '30

"As a graphic artist, Mr. Vassos discloses a kinship with such unlike personages as Blake, Beardsley and Picasso, adventurers of their respective widely-separated days, but there is more of Vassos than of any of the three in these remarkable drawings. Their originality is marked in the bold and brilliant employment of masses of contrasting black and white and subtle gradations of gray."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e D 8 '29 250w

"A fascinating book and a superb gift for any intelligent, sensitive American whose eye and ear are attuned to the quickening tempo of his age."
+ World Tomorrow 13:91 F '30 200w

VAUCAIRE, MICHEL. Paul Du Chaillu, gorilla hunter; being the extraordinary life and adventures of Paul Du Chaillu; rendered into English by Emily Pepper Watts. 322p $4 Harper
B or 92 Du Chaillu, Paul Belloni 30-30349

A biography of the adventurous life and achievements of a great French explorer, with the chief interest centering upon his experiences while hunting gorillas in Africa in 1855. The latter part of the book contains an account of Du Chaillu's trip to Scandinavia, and the beginnings, in 1901 at the age of 70, of an adventure in Russia.

Bookm 72:v N '30 100w

"'Paul Du Chaillu, Gorilla Hunter,' reads with all the fascination of a novel, but at the conclusion leaves one with the satisfied conviction that after all the story has been taken from real life." H. E. Anthony
+ Books p12 D 28 '30 1100w
Boston Transcript p3 D 27 '30 650w

"Vaucaire's biography seems so carefully and painstakingly compiled and is done in so straightforward a manner that you would know instinctively that it is a tribute from one glowing with youthful admiration of his subject; and Vaucaire realized evidently that he could add nothing by way of dramatization beyond presenting what lies inherent in the facts and in extracts from Du Chaillu's own vivid accounts." Marion Leland
+ N Y Evening Post p5d Ja 3 '31 580w

"This account of Du Chaillu's adventures among the savages of Africa makes vivid reading, although one could hardly call it pleasant. It is written with so much clarity and force that the imagination is stirred to such a pitch that the realism at times becomes almost unbearable. It has been translated by Emily Pepper Watts, who has done her work so admirably that not for an instant is one conscious that it is a translation." Rosalind Ivan
+ N Y Times p5 N 23 '30 500w

VAUCLAIN, SAMUEL MATTHEWS, and MAY, ² EARL CHAPIN. Steaming up! the autobiography of Samuel M. Vauclain. 298p il $5 Brewer
B or 92 30-31146

Mr Vauclain, who began his apprenticeship in the Altoona shops of the Pennsylvania Railroad and worked up thru the ranks to the presidency of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, writes as an enthusiast of the expanding business of the locomotive industry and of his own part in it.

"His book is not so much a personal autobiography as it is the story of the Baldwin Locomotive Works. It is the history of a career of which he is justifiably proud."
Bookm 72:vi D '30 100w

"'Steaming Up' is essentially a 'success' story, with the asset of being based upon fact throughout." F. S.
Christian Science Monitor p5 D 27 '30 360w

"Samuel Vauclain's autobiography is simply bubbling over with human interest. The general reader will not be side-tracked by the technical part, for pains have been taken to make it simple and clear. Altogether, this is an exceedingly cheerful and optimistic narrative, with incidents often dramatic and tense." R. D. T.
+ Outlook 156:467 N 19 '30 280w

VAUGHAN, AGNES CARR. Lucian goes a-voyaging. 139p il $2 Knopf
Lucian 30-10688

An adaptation of a tale of the satirist, Lucian, made for children. The author says "In presenting him for the first time to childish readers, certain omissions and additions have been made. . . The tale has been rounded out, in part, from other writings of Lucian but, to a far greater degree, by the imagination of the present author."

Booklist 27:68 O '30

"Miss Vaughan's style is clear and good, her dialogue excellent, her manner sprightly and humorous. One can have no quarrel with her for these things. But one wishes she had elaborated and embellished certain of the most spectacular incidents. . . We rejoice in this introduction of Lucian to children. It is, in fact, so welcome a meeting that we hate not to have it a more extended one!" M. E. Chase
+ — Books p8 Je 8 '30 660w
Boston Transcript p4 Je 7 '30 170w
Outlook 155:345 Jl 2 '30 50w

"The narrative is told in a matter-of-fact manner with very concrete details which give an amusing illusion of reality. The exploration of the interior of the whale has some of the fascination of Jules Verne without his suspense. The tone is frankly humorous, so that the interest is always in just how they will escape, with very little worry as to whether they will." Catherine Woodbridge

+ Sat R of Lit 6:1146 Je 21 '30 400w

Times [London] Lit Sup p717 S 11 '30 180w

VAUGHAN, HERBERT MILLINGCHAMP. Studies in the Italian renaissance. 264p il $4 Dutton [10s 6d Methuen]

945 Renaissance—Italy. Art, Renaissance
30-27104

Twelve studies in renaissance art and history based on a series of lectures by the author for the Oxford university extension delegacy. Covering the period from 1430-1555, these studies present, in sequence, the story of the Medicis, the house of Borgia, Savonarola, Machiavelli, Catherine Sforza, Benvenuto Cellini, Leonardo da Vinci, Michelangelo, Raphael, and Fra Angelico.

"To a person well read in the history of the Italian Renaissance Mr. Vaughan has little to say, for he confines himself to relating facts and passing on only such judgments as have been generally accepted. To the person to whom the field is new the book should serve as a good introduction: it is not overloaded with dates and intrigues; the repetitions, necessary to the lecture form, are an aid to memory; the style at least has the major virtue of clarity; and twenty-one excellent illustrations complement the text."

+ Bookm 72:xxv S '30 150w

Books p20 O 5 '30 320w

New Statesman 34:786 Mr 22 '30 230w

"Mr. Vaughan's book is a creditable work of vulgarization in the University Extension manner. Clearly he has read fairly widely in his subject and the lectures must have been useful, as is the resulting book. The purpose of these observations is not in any way to belittle this book or its author, but to distinguish journeyman work from that of a great master or a profound scholar. Mr. Vaughan gives useful résumés of his subjects with individual comments of his own which show some independence of judgment. Such work honestly and competently done must always have a genuine value."

+ Sat R 149:143 F 1 '30 450w

Springf'd Republican p10 O 1 '30 380w

"In these studies of the Italian Renaissance Mr. Vaughan strikes for the most part a note of quiet and scholarly exposition, avoiding the Scylla of rhapsody and the Charybdis of frivolity. If the manner is occasionally a trifle pontifical, that is perhaps the inevitable result of their being based on a series of Extension lectures."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p91 F 6 '30 950w

VAUGHAN, HILDA (MRS CHARLES MORGAN). Her father's house. 379p $2.50 Harper [7s 6d Heinemann]

30-13094

The story of the unfolding of character in a staunch daughter of a pleasure-loving Welsh landowner and a strict chapel-going mother. Brought up in the narrow ways of her uncle's entirely utilitarian home, Nell Tretower longed for the beauties of her father's estate, the Hafod, which she discovered by accident and visited surreptitiously. When Mrs Tretower found that Nell had been visiting the husband whom she hated, she disowned her. Too proud to seek her father, Nell went to London and for years lived in poverty, but in time she came into her own.

"In all that has to do with the Welsh countryside, Miss Vaughan's writing is delightful, and when she uses her people as she uses the flowers and mountains, to complete a picture she is successful. But as individuals they stand like waxworks, lifelike at first sight, perhaps, but no warmer to touch and no more provocative of lasting response. To all of this Nell on her homeward pilgrimage is the exception, and it is perhaps because of the grandeur of this passage that the rest of the book seems below par." M. C. Dawson

+ — Books p7 Ag 17 '30 750w

Boston Transcript p2 S 24 '30 500w

"The book is suffused with poetic feeling, with deep imaginative wisdom, and with that reverent respect for the country portrayed that only a devotion to truth gives to an author. . . It is an amazing tale, told with a Chaucerian richness and ease; coloured with the lively colours that are natural to those who can see the pattern in the world."

+ New Statesman 35:218 My 24 '30 350w

"The description of the visiting of the graves, the hunt, the country wedding and the fair make the book a document of Welsh life in those days. When the scene shifts to London the book changes color. Neil is lost in the blackness and ugliness of the city. She is inevitably unhappy there, because she belongs to the light and freshness of the country. This contrast accentuates the rest of the story. Lacking in fire, but never in power, this is a novel in the great tradition."

+ — N Y Times p7 S 7 '30 500w

Sat R of Lit 7:145 S 20 '30 220w

"It is difficult to light upon any one quality of distinction in Her Father's House, yet it is certainly an achievement far in advance of the standard set by the majority of modern novels. . . To describe its essential appeal one is tempted to fall back on that much-abused concept 'atmosphere.' It is something vague and elusive rather than concrete or precise. . . Some people may find Her Father's House too sombre for their taste but it stamps Miss Vaughan as an author with imagination."

+ Spec 144:1068 Je 28 '30 320w

"It is a charmingly written piece of work, graceful and vivid in its delineation of local scenes and manners, delicate and quick-witted in its grasp of character. But the handling of the romantic elements in this latest story of hers is much less firm than is usual with this author. Miss Vaughan does not appear to be on safe ground when she abandons the Welsh countryside for low life in London; her emotional control weakens perceptibly and a rather lavish sentimentality descends on her otherwise charming young pair of lovers, who are, very properly, packed off to Wales just before the end."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p432 My 22 '30 630w

VAUGHAN, RICHARD MINER. Significance of personality. 302p $2.50 (10s 6d) Macmillan

201 Personality. Philosophy and religion
30-11522

An analysis of the soul, or personality, with regard to its historical relationships and inward meaning. The author proceeds "to employ it as a principle of interpretation in the wide range of our intellectual and practical interests."

"At a time when behaviorism in psychology, mechanism in philosophy, naturalism in ethics, and the like, are all clamoring for a place in the sun—and clamoring not without success, since here as elsewhere that which makes most noise attracts most attention—at such a time it is a relief to find a book which calls us back to sanity. Professor Vaughan has written a book of the kind that very many people are looking for, and which they will read with profit and gratitude." Edwin Lewis

+ Christian Century 47:968 Ag 6 '30 750w

"This volume opens a rich field which is richly treated. In a series of eleven chapters the author spreads a feast of good literature. What a storehouse this is of suggestive material for the preacher only careful reading can reveal." S. B. Meeser

Crozer Q 7:405 Jl '30 200w

St Louis 28:202 S '30

Times [London] Lit Sup p539 Je 26 '30 50w

VEGIUS, MAPHAEUS. Maphaeus Vegius and his thirteenth book of the Aeneid; a chapter on Virgil in the renaissance, by Anna Cox Brinton. 184p il $7.50 Stanford univ. press [35s Oxford]

879.1 Virgil (Publius Virgilius Maro) 30-15577

This book written by a fifteenth century Italian scholar had a great vogue in its day and was printed in many Italian editions of Vergil as a supplement to the twelve books of the original. The text is given in Latin, with English translation.

Reviewed by G. M. Whicher
Books p17 Ag 24 '30 850w

"Dr. Brinton has given us a brilliant and scholarly work."
+ Boston Transcript p2 Je 25 '30 950w

"The occasion of this splendid work of scholarship is the 2,000th anniversary of Vergil's birth. Its publication needed no apology, however, for in addition to being an exhaustive study which definitely circumscribes the limits of its subject, it is fascinating in substance and charming in format."
+ N Y Times p14 N 30 '30 230w
Times [London] Lit Sup p654 Ag 14 '30 180w

VENDEL, HENRI JOSEPH (HENRI NADEL, pseud.). Down the red lane; tr. by Blair Taylor; with a pref. by Romain Rolland. 270p $2.50 Bobbs

940.48 European war, 1914-1918—Personal narratives 30-28690

"Henri Nadel entered the human maelstrom at the age of twenty, immediately after his betrothal. 'Down the Red Lane' purports to be his record, not of shellfire, blood and death, but of the cataclysmic changes that overcame a sensitive soldier who saw his mind shifting slowly and inexorably from melancholy to madness, who felt himself succumbing to the savage lust to kill. Inspired and sustained by the powerful duarchy of love and religion, Nadel finally emerged from the conflict, his body wasted by privation and disease, but still cleaving defiantly to sanity and self-respect."—Books

"This book deserves to stand alongside All Quiet on the Western Front. There is in it a compelling dignity, as if the author, aware that hysteria is degrading, even hysteria against war, had schooled himself to write simply, no matter what situation arose to be told. And so the facts, told in language always beautiful for its simplicity, compel attention."
+ Bookm 72:vi O '30 100w

"This diary seems but a thinly caught echo of the ringing clarity of Hans Carossa's recently published 'Rumanian Diary.' . . Into the graphic description of Doctor Carossa's spiritual torments went the consummate artistry of restraint. Unlike Henri Nadel, his simple story was vibrant with the poetry of compassion, filled with a grave and quiet dignity. Placed beside Carossa's slim volume, Henri Nadel's ecstatic phrases appear almost forced and theatrical. As a reflection of a cultured man's attitude toward the mental torture of warfare, this is a book of indisputable merit; but as a representation of Everyman at war, it falls short of perfection." W. J. Fadiman
— + Books p24 O 26 '30 600w

"M. Nadel's book would improve greatly with a little more actuality and a little less abstraction. . . 'Down the Red Lane' seems slightly overwrought and singularly colorless. One feels that the author had a preconceived set of impressions which he experienced methodically and dutifully, rather than a spontaneous reaction to his surroundings. As a result, the carefully polished and beautifully rounded prose of his novel possesses for the reader an interest which is essentially a literary one." E. H.
— + Boston Transcript p2 O 29 '30 800w

"Like 'Little Brother Goes Soldiering' its concern is with the subjective effect of war experience on the single individual. It is a book the final effect of which is compelling." Eugene Lohrke
+ N Y Times p10 N 2 '30 80w

"A straightforward document, clear and admirably free from parti pris, pacifistic or otherwise. Neither the frightfulness nor the glamor, —if the last war can imaginably be invested with glamor,—is overstressed. The book is not comparable to the better non-Gallic novels in range or depth of feeling, nor is it impersonal enough to be considered exclusively as history, nor as a mere account of how the soldier is trained and made fit to fight, yet it shows conclusively that there were some in France who without in the least possessing the military temperament nevertheless managed to make war something more than an animal business of endurance."
+ Sat R of Lit 7:398 N 29 '30 450w

VERGANI, ORIO. Poor nigger; tr. from the Italian by W. W. Hobson. 306p $2.50 Bobbs [7s 6d Hutchinson]

30-13877

"A novel based on the life of Battling Siki, the Senegalese prize-fighter. This poor nigger is neither from the deep South nor from Harlem. He begins his life as a naked little primitive, hanging adoringly around the soldiers in a Foreign Legion outpost in Africa. With one of his heroes, he makes his way to a mean coast village, where in bar room fights he learns to fear the whites, and in the kindness of an old French woman, continues to love them. In Marseilles, where his protectress takes him and where she loses him, chance makes him a cheap touring prize-fighter. . . He becomes famous and eventually challenges the World Champion." —Outlook

"The young Italian writer Orio Vergani has succeeded in a task often attempted, and spoiled, by our most persuasive literary conjurers. In his novel 'Poor Nigger' he has interpreted, in a superb manner, the soul of a Negro. . . Senegal, Marseilles, Paris, New York— they are all magnificently evoked and individualized by Vergani's lens. and deep in the lines throbs the heart of darkness." Angel Flores
+ Books p4 My 18 '30 600w
Boston Transcript p2 Jl 2 '30 160w

"This is not just another book about a Negro. It is a compelling portrait of a black boxer dedicated to defeat. . . The manner of telling the story is curiously uneven. It varies from a kind of soft impressionism that is rather sentimental to hard, rocky realism."
N Y Times p8 Ap 6 '30 550w

"The actual story of Poor Nigger would probably have been more moving if it had been told in five thousand simple words. The end, especially, fails to stir the reader as it should. Nevertheless, the novel is dramatic, and intensely so. Its strong characterizations are set against rich backgrounds, and its melodrama is handled with warm sincerity."
+ — Outlook 155:104 My 21 '30 320w

"The psychology of this African, straight out of the jungle into the book, is of course much simpler than that of the Negroes in American literature. George has instead an utter simplicity that is very appealing, a wistfulness, a vast good nature, that are true to the best of the negro as we know him, and an occasional burst of ferocity more barbaric than the more diluted atavisms of 'The Emperor Jones.' This is enough for an interesting and appealing character, but Signor Vergani has an uncontrollable Latin wit that sometimes leads him to give George more than this, and to give him too much." Basil Davenport
+ — Sat R of Lit 6:1061 My 24 '30 1000w

"Though sincere, the human story is naive and hysterical."
Springf'd Republican p7e S 7 '30 150w
Times [London] Lit Sup p104 F 6 '30 280w

VERMORCKEN, MRS ELIZABETH (MOORHEAD). Answer before dark. 298p $2 Bobbs
30-7426

"When Mary Ann Bareburn determines to study her art in Paris she encounters unexpected and inexplicable opposition in her mother. A painting of hers is selected for the local Exhibition, and she meets Paul Venière, one of the judges, and is strengthened by him in her decision to go abroad. That Paul Venière was a figure in her mother's indiscreet past she does not know. The dénouement is swift and fateful."—Sat R of Lit

"Out of one of those coincidences which happen so opportunely in fiction—however unlikely they may be in reality—Miss Moorhead has composed an interesting study of heredity. . . The story is unfolded expertly, and Miss Moorhead may be allowed her coincidence—since otherwise there would have been no novel."
+ Books p20 Ap 20 '30 180w
Boston Transcript p3 My 24 '30 220w

"Although superficially competent, the book, with its continuous striving for effect, never rises above mediocrity."
— + N Y Times p22 Ap 6 '30 380w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:40 My '30

"The substance of the theme is slight; the story could be compressed into two-thirds its length, and there is an unfortunate tendency towards banality, but it should, on the whole, interest the average reader. If Miss Moorhead would carefully prune her work, trimming its content with the care she does her not infrequently graceful and rounded writing, she could undoubtedly establish herself securely."
+ — Sat R of Lit 6:881 Mr 29 '30 230w

VERNEY, MARGARET MARIA (HAY-WILLIAMS) lady, ed. Verney letters of the eighteenth century; from the mss. at Claydon house. 2v 401;355p il $15 Longmans [42s Benn]
B or 92 Verney family

"The 'Verney Papers,' edited forty years ago by Parthenope, Lady Verney, from the archives at Claydon House, proved to be a mine of diverting information about the fortunes in the seventeenth century of this important family. Margaret, Lady Verney, has now continued the story by arranging and editing the letters of later generations of the family, the Lords of Claydon House and their relatives in the reigns of William the Third, Anne, and George the First."—Nation and Ath

"There is very little in these seven hundred-odd pages that would not be sadly missed were it absent. The chief members of the family at this time were profuse and good letter-writers, and it is lucky for us that the holding of a seat in Parliament and a country estate in Bucks entailed many journeys between the two, with consequent absences from home and correspondence." John Piper
+ Nation and Ath 48:411 D 20 '30 1000w

"In preparing the sequel Margaret, Lady Verney, who assisted her mother-in-law with the earlier series, has not constructed quite so elaborate a mosaic. She gives more letters in full, and appears herself more intermittently. Nevertheless, the result is no mere compilation but an authentic book, and a book which is fully as interesting as its predecessor."
+ New Statesman 36:182 N 15 '30 1400w

"The Verneys were the most lovable of letter writers—they and their whole cousinhood, Palmers, Caves, and Lovetts, excelled in the art. Not very intellectual and not at all political, they wrote intimately of fireside affairs. The men and women write very much alike, the women's letters being more racy and the men's better spelt."
+ Spec 145:732 N 15 '30 1450w
Times [London] Lit Sup p911 N 6 '30 2000w

VERNON, PAUL EGBERT. Coast to coast by motor. 115p il $2.50 Rudge [5s Black, A. & C.]
917.3 United States—Description and travel
[30-8623]

"An Englishman living in New York, motored to the west coast via Chicago, Sioux Falls, the Yellowstone and Portland, and after a sojourn in California, returned by way of Albuquerque, Kansas City, St. Louis and Indianapolis. He speaks of hotel accommodations and prices, and relates incidents of the road. Eight illustrations in color and a map."—Cleveland Open Shelf

Reviewed by A. B. Maurice
Bookm 71:xxii Ap '30 180w

"As a narrative of travel it is like a hundred others which have been written by people who had enjoyed themselves so much that they must tell others about the new worlds they had discovered. But it has a real value to one who is contemplating making the 'Grand Tour' of the States and the descriptive passages, if not in the highest form of literary expression, bear the impress of truth—matter-of-factness—which make it worth reading."
+ — Boston Transcript p2 Ap 5 '30 250w
Cleveland Open Shelf p140 N '30
Reviewed by Edwin Seaver
N Y Evening Post p7m Ja 18 '30 50w
St Louis 28:217 S '30

VERRILL, ALPHEUS HYATT. Lost treasure; true tales of hidden hordes. 279p $3 Appleton
30-14077

True stories of lost, buried and sunken treasure in Central and South America, of the existence of which there is some real proof.

"From the inevitable glamorous tales of fiction and legend that surround hidden treasures Mr. Verrill has painstakingly separated the wheat from the chaff and brings to us a conservative and authentic resumé gleaned from records and personal research that loses none of its lure in factual description."
+ Bookm 71:xxiii Ag '30 150w
N Y Times p20 Je 15 '30 160w

"A very romantic and readable book." W. R. Brooks
+ Outlook 155:190 Je 4 '30 80w
St Louis 28:216 S '30
Times [London] Lit Sup p702 S 4 '30 180w

VERSTEEG, JOHN MARINUS. Perpetuating Pentecost. 207p $2 Willett
231.3 Pentecost. Holy Spirit 30-8388

A believer in the phenomena and spirit of Pentecost, Dr Versteeg proposes that today's evangelists should build upon its inner significance in order to strike a positive note in modern Christianity.

"There is some of the blazing Pentecostal spirit in the author's message. His style burns brilliantly with enthusiasm. He seems to have caught either the spirit or the Spirit. Certainly he has done a good thing in calling attention to the inner meaning and spiritual results, rather than the attendant physical marvels which make one wary." T. C. R.
+ Boston Transcript p2 Jl 2 '30 550w
Reviewed by W. E. Garrison
Christian Century 47:464 Ap 9 '30 480w
Reviewed by C. T. Holman
J Religion 10:632 O '30 350w
Reviewed by E. B. Chaffee
Outlook 155:388 Jl 9 '30 120w

VER WIEBE, WALTER AUGUST. Oil fields in the United States. 629p il $6 (30s) McGraw 553.28 Petroleum. Geology—United States 30-11713

"Comprehensive work describing in a scientific way all the oil fields of the United States, giving the geological details of every important area. Bibliographies. Doctor Ver Wiebe is Professor of Geology in the University of Wichita."—N Y New Tech Bks

Booklist 27:17 S '30
N Y New Tech Bks 15:36 Jl '30
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:73 O '30
St Louis 28:209 S '30

VICKERS, ROY. The hawk. 304p $2 Dial press 30-10977

Douglas Harris, famous aviator, had been sent to prison on the false testimony of a woman, for a crime he never committed. He escaped by the help of a gang of smugglers and was forced to become their tool. When Douglas finally discovered that the gang was kidnapping the girl he loved, he went to her rescue, and cleared himself of the crime for which he was imprisoned.

Bookm 72:xxv N '30 80w
Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p14 My 25 '30 100w
N Y Times p25 Je 1 '30 140w
Reviewed by W. R. Brooks
Outlook 155:26 My 7 '30 200w

VICTORIA, queen of Great Britain. Letters; third ser.; a sel. from her majesty's correspondence and journal between the years 1886-1901; pub. by authority of his majesty the king; ed. by George Earle Buckle. 3v v 1, 1886-1890. 688p il $9 Longmans [25s Murray, J.]
B or 92 [30-33149]

This volume begins a third and final series of Queen Victoria's letters, selected under the authority of the King from the royal archives at Windsor castle and supplemented by extracts from Queen Victoria's journal. The present volume carries her life to the close of 1890. All the great affairs and personages of the world come within the scope of her letters and diaries.

Reviewed by Edmund Noble
Boston Transcript p3 D 13 '30 1600w

"Apart from larger matters, this volume is a treasury of minor Victoriana. All our thanks are due to Mr. Buckle's selective skill (are there, perhaps, a thought too many letters from Mr. W. H. Smith describing Parliamentary debates which are all in Hansard?), to the admirable typography which always marks the series, and to the rare intelligence of yet more exalted personages who have conceded a measure of publication which is seldom obtained in less enlightened countries until after a revolution." Philip Guedalla
+ Nation and Ath 48:166 N 1 '30 850w

"The new volume is very interesting to students of foreign policy for the revelations about our understanding with Italy in 1887. The fact of this secret arrangement was of course well known; it is described, for example, in Dr. Gooch's History of Modern Europe. But here we have in Salisbury's communications to the Queen a full revelation of his own motives for making it." J. L. Hammond
+ New Statesman 36:116 N 1 '30 2050w
Reviewed by P. W. Wilson
N Y Times p5 N 23 '30 1350w

"This is the first of the final series of three volumes, and when the six volumes are published we shall have a history of two decades of the last century and a full-length portrait of Queen Victoria that future generations cannot fail to cherish. This monumental work will be due to the industry and genius of Mr. G. E. Buckle, who, if we recall his six volumes on Disraeli, is surely the greatest biographer in English literature. That the selection of letters is representative and tactfully edited goes without saying, and the index is admirable." A. A. B.
+ Sat R 150:515 O 25 '30 800w
Spec 145:602 O 25 '30 700w

"Mr. Buckle has perfected a method of editing which in spite of its rigid suppression of his own personality, his own views, sympathies and tastes, is a supreme exhibition of literary skill. He has not shrunk from revealing the limitations of the Queen. . . But he has brought out with a clearness that affords no more ground for cavil her shrewd political instinct, her unsleeping devotion to public duty, her wide sympathy with all classes of her subjects. He has, in a way, recreated the Jubilee."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p845 O 23 '30 1350w

VIEBIG, CLARA. See Cohn, C.

VIERECK, GEORGE SYLVESTER. Glimpses of the great. 469p il $5 Macaulay [21s Duckworth]
920 Biography 30-11829

Interviews with thirty-two modern celebrities compose Mr Viereck's Glimpses of the Great. These interviews contain something of their personality, intimate opinions, life work, and prophetic utterances. The sketches are of Bernard Shaw, Sigmund Freud, William II, Clemenceau, Mussolini, Hindenburg, Joffre, Ludendorff, Foch, Crown Prince Wilhelm, Prince Rupprecht, Briand, Wilhelm Marx, Schacht, Ramsay MacDonald, Grand Duke Alexander of Russia, Henri Barbusse, Elizabeth of Belgium, Steinach, Voronoff, Hirschfeld, Dr Albert von Schrenck-Notzing, Albert Moll, Zangwill, Frank Harris, Emil Ludwig, Count Keyserling, Hauptmann, Schnitzler, Henry Ford, Albert Einstein.

Books p19 Ja 22 '30 230w
Boston Transcript p8 My 3 '30 800w

"It is not unjust to say that most of it is ephemeral journalism and not history. But it is brilliant reporting. All in all, it is an entertaining book, in parts very much worth reading." Francis Snow
+ — Current Hist 32:214 My '30 300w
Nation and Ath 47:627 Ag 16 '30 180w
New Statesman 35:196 My 17 '30 200w

"A worthwhile picture of contemporary life. Mr. Viereck has thoroughly mastered the art of 'lion-hunting,' the pride and joy of American journalism. The more interesting interviews are with non-historical persons." Louis Rich
+ N Y Times p24 O 26 '30 850w

"In the succession of recent and forthcoming books which mark Viereck's literary renascence, 'Glimpses of the Great' belongs in the journalistic category. To the present reviewer the most important thing about it is the proof it offers that Viereck's style keeps its unstaled sting and bouquet. But in subject-matter too it is a fascinating book." Shaemas O'Sheel
+ N Y World p11m Ap 13 '30 650w
Outlook 155:24 My 7 '30 20w
Sat R 150:296 S 6 '30 320w

"This is a stimulating book, reflecting the World Spirit in its restlessness, curiosity, audacity, and suffused with an elixir more viable than any to be found in the laboratories of a Voronoff or Steinach."
+ Spec 145:256 Ag 23 '30 850w
Times [London] Lit Sup p718 S 11 '30 180w

VIERECK, GEORGE SYLVESTER. Spreading germs of hate; with a foreword by Colonel Edward M. House. 327p il $3 Liveright
940.488 European war, 1914-1918—Propaganda. Propaganda 30-17303

The part played by propaganda in the United States during and after the war is narrated in this volume, based upon the author's post-war interviews with the directors of allied propaganda organizations. Mr Viereck's book, which he considers as "an attempt to administer an antidote or a serum against the scourge [of propaganda] by inculcating Propaganda Resistance," shows the psychological basis of propaganda, discusses the formation and work of pro-German propaganda in this country, the story of British propaganda in the United States, the insidious use of posters, cartoons, films and other means of stirring popular imagination, and the relationship between politicians and propagandists.

Booklist 27:151 D '30

"The most effective history of war propaganda yet written and one of the most valuable antidotes for war hysteria. . . Boiled down to its essence, Mr. Viereck's book is valuable because it synthesizes in the frame of a good journalistic story all that is at present known about war and post-war propaganda. His firsthand contributions are in the realm of personality sketches, chiefly, with a few revealing facts added. The whole story is most persuasively told and with such excellent good humor that it will insinuate itself into minds otherwise impervious to the truth." C. H. Grattan

+ Books p7 Je 22 '30 1200w

Christian Century 47:969 Ag 6 '30 200w

Reviewed by Shaemas O'Sheel

Current Hist 33:xiii O '30 550w

"It is to Mr. Viereck's lasting credit that he is able to tell the unlovely story in good temper and in straightforward, objective fashion. Close as he himself was to the centre of the pro-German propaganda, and deeply as he must have felt the collapse of the whole German plan, he cherishes no grudges and has no very rankling scores to pay off." William MacDonald

+ N Y Times p5 Jl 13 '30 1350w

Reviewed by E. C. Beckwith

N Y World p5m Jl 6 '30 200w

"Clear, objective and detached. There is no better corrective to loose thinking on public affairs than Mr. Viereck's unique, firsthand analysis of the efforts of the belligerents, including such submerged nationalities as the Czechs and the Irish, to make Uncle Sam jump through the international hoops for them. Spreading Germs of Hate cannot be recommended too highly to all who desire a dash of lemon juice on the oyster of public opinion." John Carter

+ Outlook 155:471 Jl 23 '30 450w

Reviewed by W. B. Shaw

R of Rs 82:8 S '30 260w

St Louis 28:246 O '30

"If Mr. George Sylvester Viereck had taken a little more trouble, his book might take rank as a really useful study of propaganda in general and World War propaganda in the United States in particular. Mr. Viereck is peculiarly qualified to write such a book. One naturally expects something better than hack work of him. Unhappily, by his excessively melodramatic style and his almost total failure to document his statements—both possibly due to the original appearance of his book in the form of popular magazine articles—and also by gross carelessness which results in shocking errors of fact, he greatly reduces his readers' confidence and the value of his work, except as entertainment. No one can deny him the ability to be amusing." John Bakeless

— + Sat R of Lit 7:103 S 6 '30 1000w

"Spirited account in magazine style of the operations of propagandists in America during the World war."

+ Springf'd Republican p10 Jl 3 '30 700w

VIERECK, GEORGE SYLVESTER, and ELDRIDGE, PAUL. Salome, the wandering Jewess; my first two thousand years of love. 495p $2.50 Liveright [10s Duckworth]

30-29014

The authors follow the sex adventures of Salome, the eternal woman, over some two thousand years of her varied life. Salome, besides philosophizing upon the vileness of woman's state, has time for love making with such famous persons as King Herod, Jokanaan, Apollonius, and her own masculine counterpart, Cartaphilus; and she appears and reappears in the lives, among others, of the notorious Pope Joan, Catherine the Great, Queen Elizabeth and Queen Victoria.

Boston Transcript p5 N 26 '30 380w

"'Salome' is not nearly so exciting as Rider Haggard's 'She'; though the inclusiveness of the Wandering Jewess's affections is much greater than that of the ancient but proper She. Unfortunately, the feminist interests of Salome compel her to indulge in lengthy and dull comments on the plight of women. These serve no other purpose than to impede her progress from one male or female lover to another; and to get over the centuries."

— + Nation 131:588 N 26 '30 250w

"The pretense at a sociological study of a woman's serfdom and attempts at escape impresses the reader as mere pretense and nothing else. The appeal of the book is cheap. Salome is always languishing in somebody's arms, always studying the magic of her kind, while she pretends to wish woman might be man with his purposefulness and freedom. In the end she and her eternal lover have a brain child called Homuncula, who, despite all promises, seems incapable of saving the world."

— N Y Times p35 N 16 '30 250w

Times [London] Lit Sup p944 N 13 '30 280w

VILLEY, PIERRE. World of the blind; (a psychological study); tr. by Alys Hallard. 403p $2.25 Macmillan [7s 6d Duckworth]

152 Blind

The idea which inspired this psychological study of the blind, written by a man who has been blind from his earliest childhood, is that the blind man is not a strange being living outside the common life, but a man whose intellect, intelligence and personality are not different from those of the man who has his eyesight. The book is a careful, minute study of the substitution of senses and the images and furniture of the mind, and of the blind man's reactions to nature and travel, art and poetry.

Booklist 27:187 Ja '31

"Professor Villey's book is a vivid and extraordinarily interesting study. M. Villey is Professor of Literature at Caen University, and he has been blind since the age of four-and-a-half. He writes acutely and dispassionately on a subject, as he says, which ten years ago he would not have felt himself capable of touching. It would be worth reading for the quotations alone. The account by a blind man of a long train-journey—the bustle and raised voices of people hurrying by on the platform, the exploration of corridors before the train starts, the rather hushed self-conscious talk of the other people in the carriage—communicate a more real sense of the blind man's world than many pages of psychological analysis."

+ New Statesman 35:88 Ap 26 '30 850w

"Professor Villey has searched far and wide in literature, in several languages, for such records and accounts of the experiences of the blind as will reveal their intellectual and emotional reactions to the world around them. . . With that keenness and clarity or understanding characteristic of the French mind he examines all this rich quantity of material, studying it without prejudice for or against any preconceived idea, probing to find the truth, comparing, discussing, and reaching results that are of much consequence to those interested, for any reason, in the world of the blind."

+ N Y Times p35 N 30 '30 850w

"He has tried in this short and fascinating book at once elegant and profound—to make clear to his fellow-men what sort of a world a blind man really inhabits, what his environment is, and how he deals with it. . . 'The World of the Blind' is a book which psychologists will study with profit; but it is a good deal more than this. Anyone who has ever tried to imagine what life without sight must be like will read it with sympathy and admiration. It is vivid, acute and contains a wealth of original observation. The author's disability has at any rate one compensation: he wastes no words; his writing is succinct and elegant."

VILLEY, PIERRE—Continued
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p382 My 8 '30 1500w

VILLIERS, ALAN J. By way of Cape Horn. 336p il $3.50 Holt

910.4 Voyages and travels. Grace Harwar (ship) 30-21412

A narrative of the voyage of the Grace Harwar, last of the full-rigged Cape Horn sailing ships, made in 138 days from Wallaroo, South Australia, to Queenstown, Ireland, in 1929. It is a story of hardship, tragedy, terrible storms, icy weather, privation of the worst kind, and hardy heroism, withal. The author had taken with him his young friend, Ronald Walker, who was to help him make a motion picture record of the trip. On the way to Cape Horn the boy was killed in an accident when an unexpected gale overtook them. Several of the ship's company also perished during the voyage. The book is illustrated with photographs taken in action during the trip.

Booklist 27:100 N '30

"Comparisons between the first and second books of a writer is a path of least resistance for the reviewer. Yet it is the distinctive diversity between these two volumes, in which one follows precisely the same course, that stamps Mr. Villiers's authorship with an unmistakable hallmark of quality and vitality. It is proof sufficient of a high order of ability to create an authentic rendition of the changing moods of the changeless sea. He has deeply enriched the ancient tradition of deep sea sailors and their sailing." D. S. Lunt
+ Books p8 Ag 3 '30 600w

"This is a book which leaves one with a sensation, at once moving and peculiar, which it is difficult to describe. To open it is to listen to a voice speaking out of an age already so remote as to seem quite impossible; yet its author is a man of only twenty-seven. The mere fact that the terrible Cape Horn road is still traveled by square-rigged sailing ships, fighting the Antarctic gales in 50 South and breaking the hearts of their desperately overworked crews just as their predecessors did in the days before steam had gone to sea or seamen's unions were dreamed of is hard to grasp." Walter Millis
Books p1 Ag 17 '30 1050w

"There is a somber beauty in the telling of this story, just as there is a feeling of reality about it which makes it a book to rank with the few genuine classics of the sea." D. L. M.
+ Boston Transcript p1 Ag 23 '30 1100w

"A book which is better than good. Mr. Villiers loves the sturdy old sail-carriers that battled for so many centuries against desperate odds. He makes us feel those odds and share his affection in a book that is vivid but not garish; that is thrilling because of its sober veracity. It is a better book in content and in writing than the author's previous volume 'Falmouth for Orders.'"
+ Nation 131:450 O 22 '30 220w

"A splendid yarn of the heroic square-rigger and the sailor's epic fight against the Cape." Edwin Seaver
+ N Y Evening Post p5s Ag 16 '30 200w

"Mr. Villiers's book is more than an entertaining and often thrilling narrative of a voyage around Cape Horn, the cape of great winds; it is a useful record of life today in the last fleet of square-rigged vessels. He speaks with authority, for he learned his trade in sail, and he writes with the grace and sincerity of one who knows the ways of ships." W. B. Hayward
+ N Y Times p5 Ag 17 '30 1150w

"It is bewildering to think that people will read sea stuff written by other people whose most exciting salt experience was had while rounding the Battery when they might read a classic like this." A. W. Porterfield
+ Outlook 155:627 Ag 20 '30 300w
Times [London] Lit Sup p828 O 16 '30 650w

VINAL, GEORGE WOOD. Storage batteries; a general treatise on the physics and chemistry of secondary batteries and their engineering applications. 2d ed 427p il $5 Wiley

621.354 Storage batteries 30-8877

A revision of the first edition, which appeared in 1924, with a new section on aircraft batteries. The book is designed as a text for chemical engineering or as a manual for the battery service station.

"In the six years since the first edition, this work has not been superseded and remains by far the best compendium in print of both theoretical and practical knowledge of the industry." H. G. Weir
+ Chem & Met Eng 37:438 Jl '30 120w

"The book is a very satisfactory description of the present status of storage batteries. [It] is highly recommended." C. C. Rose
+ Ind & Eng Chem 22:809 Jl '30 400w
N Y New Tech Bks 15:37 Jl '30

VINAVER, EUGENE. Malory. 216p il $5 (15s) ^{2} Oxford

398.2 Malory, Sir Thomas [30-7226]

"The author assembles the facts and documents bearing on Malory's obscure life, but the main part of his book is concerned with the Morte Darthur. A thorough study of the French sources which Malory translated is a necessary preliminary to an appreciation of his work on the Arthurian legend. Mr. Vinaver is already known for his detailed studies of the French manuscript sources, which he now uses to establish a new and to some extent a revolutionary view of Malory's achievement."—Publisher's note

"Mr. Vinaver, a native of Russia, now lecturer at Oxford, brings to the task the widest knowledge of critical literature on the subject and a minute investigation of the texts, but in literary perception he falls far short of Miss Scudder's work on the same subject, published nine years ago. . . The most serious shortcoming of Mr. Vinaver's book is the defective perception which makes him deny Malory any sense of the marvelous, any religious feeling but the most perfunctory, any psychological imagination." R. S. Loomis
— + Books p10 S 14 '30 900w

"The book is for the scholar rather than for the general reader. Only the scholar indeed can appreciate fully the minute and exact researches contained in the appendix, especially in the chapter on the sources. But the argument throughout is clear and well-sustained, and is valuable as indicating a right approach to Malory. That it is a right approach Mr. Vinaver's book very clearly demonstrates."
+ Nation and Ath 46:464 D 28 '29 550w

"M. Vinaver's Malory is invaluable: it is possible to disagree with almost every one of M. Vinaver's contentions, and yet continue to regard him with the liveliest gratitude, and an animosity that is almost affectionate. For he has succeeded in his intention, though not precisely as he intended: he has brought us face to face with the real Malory, not indeed in his book, but in a reaction to it, equal and opposite. There is long and hard reading behind the writing of this Malory, and one has little quarrel with its scholarship. . . But M. Vinaver's interpretation is too often an arbitrary judgment, based on illustrations which do not, unless divorced from their context, support it, and phrased not always happily." Helen Waddell

+ — New Statesman 34:sup xii Mr 15 '30 2200w

"All who know the Morte D'Arthur will be grateful to Mr. Eugene Vinaver for his scholarly and interesting book. For he not only puts together all that is known about Sir Thomas Malory but also shows, by detailed comparison with the French originals, printed and unprinted, how Malory worked."

+ Spec 143:987 D 28 '29 200w

"Mr. Vinaver's book is a good example of the scientific method in criticism. . . The commentary actually occupies little more than a hundred pages; but it is full of interest and involves a revision of most of the indiscriminate eulogies that have from time to time been lavished on Malory's book."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p115 F 13 '30 1300w

VINES, HOWELL HUBERT. A river goes with heaven. 290p $2 Little

30-29555

An idyllic summer's experience in the Warrior river country of northern Alabama is the theme of this novel by a young Southern writer. The simple love motif of the story is subordinate to the author's interest (thru his hero) in the beauty of the countryside, and his affection for and understanding of every aspect of it.

Reviewed by Guy Holt

Bookm 72:451 D '30 200w

"It is at once a joy and an aggravation to get hold of so real a book. A joy because the treat grows increasingly rare, and an aggravation because the volume refuses to be dismissed in a few well-chosen clichés. It struggles like a live thing and insists upon being talked about on its merits. It is, in short, a distracting book. One keeps throwing it down in impatience because it is grossly real, and coming back to it again because it is gloriously real. At all events it has no parallel and it is safe for once to use the overworked term 'unique.' " Maristan Chapman

+ Books p5 D 7 '30 500w

Boston Transcript p5 N 19 '30 250w

Nation 131:741 D 31 '30 220w

New Repub 65:227 Ja 7 '31 150w

"Somehow you feel that Mr. Vines is terribly smug about it all; as you read on and on, you wish that Mr. Vines would show some sign of human imperfection, or would stub his toe and fall into a north Alabama creek. However, Mr Vines, through his grandfather, displays a rich appreciation of the American idiom as it is spoken South of the Mason-Dixon line. He has a sensitive ear, and, like Mr. Johnson, has converted the speech of his fathers into a prose style of noteworthy distinction." Horace Gregory

— + N Y Evening Post p6d N 15 '30 200w

" 'A River Goes With Heaven,' somewhat self-consciously Wordsworthian in its intention, is couched in an idiom difficult to characterize. This idiom has a distinctly local flavor without being at all a rendition of a separate dialectic speech. In its homeliness, its exaggerated simplicity, even in its flavor of illiteracy, it sometimes attains, when the subject-matter is appropriate, a poetic and colorful effect. But it is a treacherous tool and Mr. Vines sometimes applies it with questionable taste. Occasionally, in its strained and deliberate awkwardness, it achieves an effect which can justly be called ludicrous."

— + N Y Times p7 N 2 '30 500w

"Language, characters and scene make the reading of this simple story of a boy's education in love and wisdom at the hands of an old man, a girl and two rivers a happy and exciting experience." F. L. R.

+ Outlook 156:311 O 22 '30 120w

"My main criticism of 'A River Goes with Heaven' is that the manner of telling the story seems too self-consciously literary to fit the material. I am not able to escape the feeling that the author, while he was revelling in the summer on the Warrior rivers that gave him his book—this is assuming, of course, that the tale is autobiographical—was a little too busy turning phrases to get the fullest enjoyment out of what was going on around him. There seems to be another defect, too, a defect far too common in current fiction. This is a lack of clear, sharp characterization. . . Whatever objections may be raised to its technique, it has genuine originality; it strikes below the surface of things, and it is charged with a pantheism we can ill afford to lose." Herschel Brickell

— + Sat R of Lit 7:385 N 29 '30 600w

VINES, SHERARD. Course of English classicism. (Hogarth lectures on literature ser.) 160p $1.25 Harcourt [3s 6d Hogarth]

820.9 English literature—History and criticism. Classicism 30-13524

Discusses the rise and growth of classical principles in English literature and art, from their beginnings with the Tudor humanists, thru the Latin imitations of the Elizabethans, and on by way of Jonson, Bacon and Hobbes, to the age of Dryden and Pope, and then to the "age of baroque and the grand manner." The next phase he calls the age of "politeness and good sense," typified by the theories of Addison, Shaftesbury, Blackmore and Hogarth. The final chapters on Georgian developments and the later classicism stress the fact of the persistence of classicism after the rise of romanticism.

"Professor Vines speaks throughout of classicism, which he never distinguishes from historic humanism, and although he utilizes Mr. Hulme's distinctions between static and dynamic classicism he does not tell us what they are. Furthermore, to indicate that Bacon and Hobbes had a few classical notions, and so to claim them for your camp, is to forget that it is the effect which an author produces and not the inaudible small voice within that is important. Over-zealousness is a quality that might well be left to the romantics."

— Bookm 71:461 Jl '30 500w

"Mr. Vines is a classicist of, so far as I can make out, the extreme right wing. After setting down some of the innumerable stupid judgments that the classical rules have caused otherwise intelligent men to make—such as Addison's cool dismissal of the Gothic cathedrals as 'mean,' and the Augustan Age's rejection of Shakespeare as barbarous—Mr. Vines is capable of judgments quite as hopeless. The present book, I regret to add, is depressing not only because of its subject but on its own account. Mr. Vines is a British college professor, and his work has all the typical professorial merits and defects. It has scholarship, it has a few skittish attempts at humor, and it has pedantry and dulness. He writes wretchedly, and seldom manages to get down a straightforward sentence; the references of his pronouns are so hazy that half the time one cannot tell whom he is talking about." Henry Hazlitt

— + Nation 131:225 Ag 27 '30 1000w

"The first and last chapters of this book are more attractive than those lying between. Mr. Vines's style has a certain abruptness and asperity; it is untouched by those influences which it is his purpose to define and to record. This, however, is all to the good. Nobody wants to read a monograph on Dr. Johnson written in a pastiche of Johnsonese. The energy, the allusiveness, the sustained animation of Mr. Vines's lectures are worthy of their theme." D. M. Stuart

+ — Nation and Ath 47:24 Ap 5 '30 600w

"The historical approach is valuable, though it is possible that Mr. Vines might have been wiser to condense his subject and ruthlessly cut away some of the less important detail, devoting his space to an analysis, at successive epochs, of the so-called classical spirit. . . Mr. Vines may not have treated his subject with quite that breadth of outline for which we had hoped. We are grateful to him, none the less, for having written a book that contains a wide range of extremely interesting material."

VINES, SHERARD—Continued

+ — New Statesman 35:18 Ap 12 '30 1050w

"This is not the straightforward report of a disinterested scholar. Professor Vines, in the interests of a fastidious style, declines to relate facts. He takes for granted in his reader a huge erudition, and rewards him with what can best be described as a lacquered casket of eccentricity. It is difficult to see what value this book will have for those 'students of literature' to whom these lectures are addressed." Gerard Sykes

— N Y Evening Post p8m My 31 '30 750w

"The student interested in the development of the classical method in English art (Mr. Vines treats principally of literature, but also of architecture, painting and music) will find this book informative. On its critical side, however, it will irritate any one of fairly eclectic tastes, any one who—whatever his preferences in artistic philosophies—is accustomed to put practice above theory." Louis Kronenberger

+ — N Y Times p4 O 5 '30 800w

Outlook 155:189 Je 4 '30 100w

"This pronouncedly clever author rushes from fact to fact, from citation to citation, with the speed of an aeroplane, and the view he gives us of the subject is correspondingly panoramic. Beneath this somewhat self-conscious pride of knowledge—the latest fashion in pedantry—we discover a sensible and even orthodox judgment, happily tuned to the theme of this essay."

Spec 144:676 Ap 19 '30 130w

Times [London] Lit Sup p354 Ap 24 '30 400w

VIRDEN, KATHARINE. Crooked eye. 296p $2 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Chapman]

30-12990

Investigation following the brutal murder of Silas Dixon in a small Southern town leads into a maze of blackmail, bootlegging and vicious kidnapping. Search for the man with the crooked eye, known to have committed the murder, is the main thread in the tale's interwoven plot.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Books p17 Ap 27 '30 100w

Times [London] Lit Sup p169 F 27 '30 220w

VIRDEN, KATHARINE. Thing in the night. 311p $1 Doubleday, Doran

30-25378

How and why beautiful Helene Baird met her death were the problems that Judge Lonsdale set himself to solve. He knew that, while Helene moved in the best social circles, she had been playing dangerously in the underworld sections of the city. Almost too late the judge and his assistants on the case discover the fiendish plot for vengeance behind the girl's death.

Bookm 72:xxvi D '30 80w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Books p24 S 28 '30 80w

Boston Transcript p5 D 3 '30 200w

Reviewed by W. C. Weber

Sat R of Lit 7:230 O 11 '30 120w

VITTORINI, DOMENICO. Modern Italian novel. ^{2} 296p $3 Press of the Univ. of Pa.

853.09 Italian fiction—History and criticism

30-28942

A survey of modern Italian fiction since 1827 which gives most of its space to contemporary writers. Half the book is devoted to the novel of the new generation.

"Despite a few needless repetitions and a great number of plot-analyses, the volume is well composed, and Professor Vittorini writes his adopted language with so slight an accent that only skilled ears could detect it." Justin O'Brien

+ Bookm 72:195 O '30 330w

"There are chapters in the book—notably a masterly one on Pirandello's work—that for sheer penetration and grasp of material will be hard to find equaled within the scope of a similar work. This book has real merit. It is crisply and engagingly written, full of information; a book that, with its ample bibliographical notes and index, will prove indispensable to those readers who are interested in contemporary Italian literature in particular and in culture in general." Dino Ferrari

+ N Y Times p2 Ja 4 '31 900w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:89 D '30

VLADIMIRTSOV, BORIS IAKOVLEVICH. Life of Chingis-Khan; tr. from the Russian by Prince D. S. Mirsky. 172p $2.50 Houghton [6s Routledge]

B or 92 Genghis Khan 30-31732

A study of the great Mongol leader who, in the early thirteenth century, proved himself a statesman of exceptional ability as well as a worthy war-lord. The book is of special value as a sociological presentation of Mongolian society at this period, by an authority on Mongolian history and language.

Bookm 72:180 O '30 350w

Books p12 N 2 '30 150w

Boston Transcript p2 N 29 '30 450w

"The story of the wars and conquests is well told, but it is as a character-study of the conqueror and as a sociological study of the Mongol that the book has exceptional merit."

+ New Statesman 35:420 Jl 5 '30 180w

N Y Evening Post p4d N 22 '30 80w

"Professor Vladimirtsov's competent study restores a personality hitherto lost in the haze of awe-inspiring legend. Chingis-Khan, the savage warrior whose wild horsemen overran two continents, trampled underfoot proud kingdoms and fastened the yoke of vassalage on civilized nations, appears before us divested of the mythical and the unnatural, but with added stature as a human character."

+ N Y Times p47 D 7 '30 650w

St Louis 28:302 D '30

Reviewed by Harold Lamb

Sat R of Lit 7:469 D 20 '30 180w

"Professor Vladimirtsov's Life of Chingis-Khan is no 'romanced biography' of the Mongol war-lord who shook the thrones of all the known earth in the early thirteenth century, but careful history based on the best authorities. . . This is a short book that can be read in two hours; two most profitable hours to those who would know more of one of the great figures of the early Middle Ages."

+ Spec 144:914 My 31 '30 160w

"The concluding chapters on the legacy of Chingis-Khan and the great nomad warrior in his daily life form an admirable summary of the whole work. The general reader will find this book an admirable account of the life and times of one of Asia's great men."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p518 Je 19 '30 300w

VOIGT, FREDERICK A. Combed out. (Travellers' lib.) 280p $2 Dial press

940.48 European war, 1914-1918—Personal narratives [30-4602]

F. A. Voigt, of the Manchester Guardian, was drafted into British service in 1916. This book is a record of his experiences and impressions of war, based upon his diary and letters written from the front. Among the most painful scenes described is the treatment of the wounded in a casualty clearing station.

"Another tale of the mud, the chaos, and the gangrenous agonies of war—relentless panorama of horrors."

— Books p20 F 16 '30 150w

Cleveland Open Shelf p8 Ja '30

Reviewed by L. C. Woodman

N Y Times p22 My 18 '30 50w

Springf'd Republican p12 Mr 26 '30 500w

VORSE, MARY MARVIN (HEATON) (MRS ROBERT MINOR). Strike! 376p $2.50 Liveright

30-27929

The activities of mill-workers in a North Carolina manufacturing town form the material for Mrs Vorse's novel on labor conditions. Strikes, picketing, riots and displays of mob violence move rapidly across the scene; and the interest of the story centers about the character of young Fer Deane, idol of the mill-workers, who sacrifices himself in their cause.

"Here are no highly sentimentalized portraits of labor leaders and workers that have become the familiar property of Upton Sinclair. Mary Heaton Vorse takes no time off for tears or mawkish hero worship; she has a story to tell of the Southern textile workers. They are the actual protagonists of her novel and she has written about them with the use of a direct, clean prose style." Horace Gregory

+ Books p7 O 19 '30 600w

"By the device of combining Marion and Gastonia in one fictitious town, she has given a clear, honest, and often dramatic account of the horrors of the Southern textile mills. . . Are the Southern mill towns really as horrible as Mrs. Vorse asserts, and the strikers really as gallant and as innocent? I maintain on my word of honor . . . that she has exactly and understandingly described what is happening in the Piedmont today. I have been there, through some of the very scenes which she chronicles. I know several of the characters in the book. She tells the truth—and dramatically." Sinclair Lewis

+ Nation 131:474 O 29 '30 850w

Reviewed by Murray Godwin

New Repub 65:113 D 10 '30 950w

"Mrs. Vorse had powerful dramatic material to work with here, but she seems to have let it slip through her fingers. Instead of one clear, strong, powerful shot which should have held the reader in a grip of horror and intensity, she has scattered her ammunition in numerous series of small firework displays, each doubtless important in lighting up some fragment of the situation but leaving her little for the end. For all of its structural weaknesses, however, the book is a significant one and will give the reader a comprehensive idea of an industrial situation in America that needs attention."

+ — N Y Times p6 N 2 '30 550w

"As it was reported in newspapers and liberal journals, the North Carolina textile strike was one of the most dramatic affairs in recent domestic history. It made partisans for the workers out of plenty of hardened capitalists. As it appears in Mrs. Vorse's novel, it is devoid of color, pathos, tragedy, moral stimulus. . . The object of Mrs. Vorse's book was not to present facts or to sway judgments. Its object was to fire the brain and heart. And that it does not do." F. L. R.

— Outlook 156:267 O 15 '30 280w

"If one may detach one's self from the material of the book, which is difficult, since it is the material that gives the book whatever importance it may have, and try to judge it as a piece of fiction, there is not much to be said for its merits. The style is commonplace, the dialogue often studied and obviously designed to bring out certain of the author's points, and the whole, as has been suggested, too near journalism to have any especial importance as a work of art." Herschel Brickell

— Sat R of Lit 7:198 O 11 '30 1000w

"As a novel the volume leaves something to be desired. But as a burning, moving record of a disgraceful industrial tragedy this is a tract of power and compelling force. Its disclosures are poignant; its spirit deeply human." Ordway Tead

+ — Survey 65:398 Ja 1 '31 180w

Reviewed by W. L. Chappell

World Tomorrow 14:27 Ja '31 420w

VOSKUIL, WALTER HENRY. Economics of water power development. 225p il $3 Shaw, A.W.

333.9 Water power—United States. Water-rights

29-448

A discussion of water power problems in the United States, beginning with a description of the general principles underlying water power development. The chapters that follow are devoted to discussions of the St Lawrence drainage basin, water powers of the southeastern states, the Colorado river, water powers of the Pacific drainage, the development of isolated water powers, public control of water-powers, public ownership projects, and foreign water power notes.

"This is a very serviceable book for the non-technical reader who wishes a comprehensive and reliable survey of the entire subject of water power." John Bauer

+ Am Econ R 20:287 Je '30 600w

Booklist 26:14 O '29

"This presentation of the developed and potential water power of the United States should be a boon to many who desire some knowledge of the facts and problems of water power but have not had the time to delve deeply into the subject. . . Whenever tabulations are possible they have been inserted, and these which form in some cases the conclusions and in others the bases of arguments are an important part of the book." R. M. Brown

+ Geog R 20:347 Ap '30 250w

Survey 63:111 O '29 20w

"Within its scope this is a well-rounded presentation of the economics of water power development." D. A. MacGibbon

+ Yale Law J 39:446 Ja '30 280w

VRANGEL, PETR NIKOLAEVICH, baron. Memoirs of General Wrangel, the last commander-in-chief of the Russian national army; tr. by Sophie Goulston. 356p il $6 Duffield [21s Williams & Norgate]

B or 92 Russia—History—Revolution, 1917-

30-18888

"General Wrangel, the last Commander-in-Chief of the Russian National Army, who died in Brussels in the summer of 1929, gives in his Memoirs a vivid picture of the desperate struggle of the Russian White Armies against the Red Army, which finished by Wrangel's Army being forced to evacuate the Crimea in the first days of November, 1920, and to sail on 126 ships to Constantinople."—Sat R

"Whatever one may think of the merits or methods of the Bolshevik revolution, a mere cursory reading of this bulky volume is likely to evoke an appreciable measure of admiration for the zeal and devotion with which Wrangel fought the Bolsheviks, struggled to build up a White Russian bulwark in the Crimea, and held on stubbornly at Sebastopol until, bereft of British support and hopelessly outnumbered by the Soviet forces, he gave up the fight and let the French transport him and his army to Constantinople. For the early period of the war the entries in the memories are relatively brief, but from the date of the armistice onward they are full and detailed, the record of the last few weeks being set down with an almost hour-to-hour minuteness."

+ Books p15 Jl 27 '30 400w

Reviewed by Edmund Noble

Boston Transcript p2 Ap 5 '30 2200w

"The memoirs of Baron Wrangel, late commander of the White forces in the south of Russia, is a document of considerable interest and of some importance. It gives a remarkably vivid picture of the atmosphere of unhealthy nationalistic exaltation and complete aloofness from the general trend of world politics which has been one of the outstanding characteristics of the White movement ever since it came into being in 1918." M. T. Florinsky

VRANGEL, P. N.—Continued
+ Current Hist 32:424 Je '30 1100w

"This detailed and matter-of-fact book has value as an historical document, and anyone who wants to know what was going on in Southern Russia between 1918 and 1920 will have to consult it."
+ Nation and Ath 46:448 Ja 4 '30 750w

"General Wrangel's story of the last attempt of the 'Russian National Army' to turn back the tide of revolution is tediously diffuse. It is true we get it at third hand in a translation of a French version of the original Russian, but even so it is clear that the original itself must have been considerably cluttered up with detail. All that General Wrangel has to tell us stripped of this detail could have been told in a small pamphlet, and even then would have amounted to very little."
— New Statesman 34:310 D 7 '29 220w

Reviewed by H. R. Knickerbocker
N Y Evening Post p10m My 10 '30 300w

Reviewed by Alexander Nazaroff
N Y Times p6 Ap 20 '30 1350w

Reviewed by M. J. Larsons
Sat R 149:112 Ja 25 '30 100w

"His memoirs make an engrossing and tragic story, squarely told and to the point. With the many documents, both from and to General Wrangel, which are reproduced, they are a real contribution to the history of the time." Arthur Ruhl
+ Sat R of Lit 6:867 Mr 29 '30 1950w
Spec 144:25 Ja 4 '30 650w
Times [London] Lit Sup p990 N 28 '29 750w

VULLIAMY, COLWYN EDWARD. Voltaire. ^{3} 353p $3.50 Dodd [10s 6d Bles]
B or 92 Voltaire, François Marie Arouet de
30-33012

The enigmatic personality of the great French satirist engrosses the primary attention of the biographer. In his concern for an interpretation of Voltaire the man he studies the chief events of his life and the ideas expressed in his letters, more critically than his serious literary output. An important chapter in the biography takes up Voltaire's relations with Madame du Châtelet.

"These Frenchmen seem to have lived for the benefit of future biographers; and no life of Voltaire could fail to be interesting. This last one bears an air of originality because of the letters which are well incorporated with the motion of the biography and translated into an English equivalent to the French of the eighteenth century. It is a good biography, covering about the same ground as Mr. Aldington, though in its own individual way." Jenny Ballou
+ — Books p1 D 28 '30 1100w

"The author has pretensions, but his narrative sheds no new light on the subject, nor shows up brightly what was known before. The fact is, these men are too big. The biographer may try to clap his double aim on them, but they escape all round the edges." Sylva Norman
— Nation and Ath 48:438 D 27 '30 60w

Reviewed by Matthew Josephson
New Repub 65:196 D 31 '30 1000w

"The intention of Mr. Vulliamy's book is to reveal the meaning of Voltaire through an examination of his life, unobscured by any literary criticism. A very vivid impression of his extraordinary personality does indeed remain from the pages of this extremely readable biography."
+ New Statesman 36:338 D 20 '30 1900w

"The author has not added one tittle to our existing knowledge of Voltaire, and he ranks. in my mind, with Mr. Thaddeus. as an awful warning to those who are tempted by Voltaire as a subject of biography. Brandes and Morley are for those seriously interested in the man and his period. S. G. Tallentyre still remains unapproached by those who attempt popular biographies." Ernest Boyd
— N Y Evening Post p4d D 27 '30 200w
Spec 145:647 N 1 '30 220w

"Mr. Vulliamy, a translator and now the latest biographer of Voltaire, gives way to neither excessive praise nor blame in his sober and well-documented study. . . Yet one lays down his book dissatisfied; the picture somehow remains flat, we cannot become a part of it, nor does anything emerge from it to give us the illusion of reality. . . Mr. Vulliamy, one feels, has recorded too scrupulously, and in doing so has missed the opportunity of using irony to attack the failings of one who was himself such a master of irony."
— + Times [London] Lit Sup p827 O 16 '30 1000w

W

WADDELL, HELEN JANE, ed. and tr. Medieval Latin lyrics. 352p $5 Smith, R.R. [21s Constable]
879.1 Latin poetry, Medieval and modern—Translations into English [30-4622]

"A collection of Latin poems which leads up gradually to the lyrics of the great age of 1150 to 1250; it includes a number of specimens from that age, but, since the author aims at showing the line of tradition from the classical period, she takes us back far earlier. She begins, in fact, with the Copa of Virgil (if it was Virgil's) and some charming pieces by Petronius Arbiter, and then passes, through Ausonius and the pious Prudentius, and the twilight of the Roman Empire and the Dark Ages, down to the heyday of the 'Vagabonds.' "—New Statesman

"Since the original Latin confronts the English version on every page one is able to judge, according to one's learning, as to the faithfulness of the renderings. The comparison leaves one marveling at the skill of the translator. She has caught, in almost every instance, not merely the sense and, to a remarkable degree, the form of the originals, but also that peculiar intangible quality that is to a poem what fragrance is to a flower, bouquet to a wine. The range here is large. There are hymns and prayers, many touching verses of friendship, some rollicking drinking songs, a scattering of love lyrics that show how deep a debt English poetry owes to these obscure scholars of a forgotten age. Miss Waddell handles every sort with consummate taste and intelligence." Babette Deutsch
+ Books p11 Jl 27 '30 650w

"Miss Waddell's versions make easy and delightful reading. She has not attempted to reproduce the polysyllabic sonorities of the Latin, or any close metrical equivalent; and she makes very free with the letter of her text. But she is always faithful to the spirit, so that those who have no Latin may read her in the confidence that what might be a charming new poem is, at the same time, a true rendering of the intention of the original author. . . Miss Waddell's notes are little masterpieces of vivacious erudition."
+ Christian Science Monitor p7 F 15 '30 480w

"Miss Waddell is an admirable translator. Her method is not to make a literal version and then pinch it into the material shape of an English poem, but rather to produce an English equivalent, which follows the natural movement of our language, and which, read apart from the original, infects the reader with a similar emotion." Raymond Mortimer
+ Nation and Ath 46:514 Ja 11 '30 1600w

"We think Miss Waddell has acquitted herself well; many of her renderings are very happy, and they keep up to a high level throughout."
+ New Statesman 34:270 N 30 '29 450w

Reviewed by Granville Hicks
N Y World p10m My 4 '30 100w

"Miss Helen Waddell may have credit for bringing into the general view the whole body of medieval Latin lyrical poetry. She has done it with fine scholarship and with singular skill in translation. That is her most obvious distinction, but she has another. She is sensitive to the just perceptible, but, of course, historically very important connexion between the medieval and the late classical lyric."
+ Sat R 148:643 N 30 '29 1300w

"Miss Waddell has accomplished infinitely more than a book of translations. The only quality that suggests in her renderings that they are not original as well as beautiful poems is the versatility which would have marked the poet who could have conceived them all."
+ Spec 143:953 D 21 '29 260w

Times [London] Lit Sup p1095 D 26 '29 1500w

WADE, HENRY, pseud. See Aubrey-Fletcher, H. L.

WADE, JOHN DONALD. John Wesley. 301p il $3.50 Coward-McCann
B or 92 Wesley, John 30-28930

Mr Wade has set forth his John Wesley after the biographical manner of Strachey. He treats the various aspects of the character of the man, as it developed thru certain episodes or trends in his life, under such headings as creeper, scholar, monk, victor, bishop and saint. The biography is, on the whole, more impressive from the point of view of style and method than of subject. Dr Wade is a member of the faculty of Vanderbilt university. The biography is the product of his Guggenheim fellowship term.

"Dr. Wade is a member of that group at Vanderbilt University which has given us the 'Fugitive' poets. His life of Wesley represents a new phase of American scholarship, for although widely read in his subject he has treated it in a manner as steadfastly artistic, and even as playful, as that of Mr. Lytton Strachey might have been. His book bears no relation therefore to the 'solid, academic biographies of the past; it is written in an impeccable style and reflects the most urbane tendencies of the day. Indeed, if it is open to reproach at all it is not for being ponderous or professorial, but for hanging its portrait of the ascetic and earnest founder of Methodism in too precious a frame." Gerald Sykes
+ — Bookm 72:321 N '30 300w

"Mr. Wade relates this life in a brisk and modern manner, but not too brisk and not too modern. He tells of the labors of his hero entirely without sentimentality, and of his foibles without spite, and, thank heaven, without any psycho-analytical expatiation. It would have greatly increased the value of the book, I think, if he had told us more of the spiritual condition of Church and society in the England of that day." W. L. Sullivan
+ Books p4 D 14 '30 600w

"His work is modern without being iconoclastic, readable and vivid without being fiction, and full of human interest rather than theological controversy. It is a human document rather than a history of the times." T. C. R.
+ Boston Transcript p4 N 29 '30 600w

"A biography which combines the modern effort of 'psycho-graphing' with a genuine appreciation of the man's greatness and social contribution. Dr. Wade has set nothing down in malice, but he has set down much that most Methodists, even of the most loyal stripe, never heard about their spiritual father."
+ Christian Century 47:1315 O 29 '30 200w

"Mr. Wade has furnished refreshing proof that it is possible to write a great biography without muckraking; to portray for us a great personality with the lights not altogether darkened by the shadows. . . Mr Wade's Wesley becomes a fascinating if not altogether a lovable—character, whose life held more than the usual great man's quota of drama and in the end, of achievement." Stanley High
+ Christian Science Monitor p6 D 13 '30 350w

"Mr. Wade is doubtless the most remarkable stylist in biography we have had in America since the War. . . He has an even mastery of tone in which never a false note appears, and a control of the material so lucid that the emphases invariably fall into the right place. Without Strachey 'John Wesley' could not have been written." Allen Tate
+ New Repub 65:113 D 10 '30 700w

"Neither love nor courage brightens the somber portrait that Mr. Wade has built up so largely by means of personal comment and interpretation. Perhaps the picture would be somewhat less in monotone if the comment were a little less personal and abundant. There are times indeed when one can hardly see the subject for the underbrush of abstract diction with which Mr. Wade feels it neccssary to cloak even the simplest idea." William Troy
— N Y Times p12 D 21 '30 1400w

WADSLEY, OLIVE. Spring dust. 287p $2 Dodd
30-16605

Charles Reval, who grows up in Germany without having known his real parents, finds himself at twenty-one a wealthy young man. In England, he falls in love with the golden-haired Margot, who has eyes for his money only. The dissolving of his marriage upon the awakening of Charles to new values, and his final adjustment to life are beset with difficulties.

Books p10 Ag 3 '30 130w

"In spite of its title, which suggests nothing at all, in spite of its flagrantly pink jacket, and its lady in agonized pose and late Georgian evening dress thereupon, in spite, indeed, of our recent experiences with Olive Wadsley, we liked this novel a great deal. It is not only by far the best thing she has done, but it is distinctly good."
+ Boston Transcript p2 Ag 6 '30 300w

"In 'Spring Dust' Miss Wadsley has interpreted her characters by means of a series of sharply pointed incidents rather than by a psychological analysis of their mental processes. Her method makes for an eventful, swiftly moving narrative in which each person becomes an individual portrait as well as an integral part of the whole."
+ N Y Times p7 Je 29 '30 300w

"This English novel is a perfect example of the literature Mr. Nock recently denounced as being so typical of contemporary America, a book to be read for its contents alone, a book pandering to our lower appetites. It is a strange mixture of realism and cheap romanticism. One feels that the author had but one purpose in mind and that was to create an effect. No less commonplace and sensational than the style is the theme of this book."
— Sat R of Lit 7:12 Jl 26 '30 650w

Times [London] Lit Sup p321 Ap 10 '30 150w

WADSLEY, OLIVE. Yesterday's tomorrow. 288p $2 Dodd; same. Burt 75c
30-24144

The story of two men, Bill and Tim, one accused of a crime of which he was innocent, the other an outcast. Bill, dying, makes Tim promise to assume his identity and return to England as Lord Timeon Crane. Tim's new role has, naturally, several difficulties, and is complicated further by the fact that he falls in love with Diana Lansdale.

WADSLEY, OLIVE—Continued

"It is worth while to read the book for the story is dramatic, full of incident, and the strange situation holds one's interest to the end."

+ Boston Transcript p9 D 14 '29 380w

"Olive Wadsley writes with knowledge of places and people, and therefore makes them convincing, although at times the story verges on melodrama. Her style is restrained yet fluent, and the book deserves the amount of popularity usually attained by this type of sentimental novel."

+ N Y Times p20 D 8 '29 300w

WAGENKNECHT, EDWARD CHARLES. The man Charles Dickens; a Victorian portrait; with an introd. by Gamaliel Bradford. 365p il $4 Houghton

B or 92 Dickens, Charles 29-24494

For descriptive note see Annual for 1929.

Booklist 26:202 F '30

Books p18 F 9 '30 250w

"Notwithstanding the numerous volumes already published, any new and thoughtful study of Charles Dickens is bound to be interesting. This book is all of this and more." E. J. Cleveland

+ Churchman p15 D 7 '29 60w

"The major defect of Mr. Wagenknecht's study is a certain flabbiness of texture. It claims to be a portrait of Dickens, but it is rather a detailed, scientific report on Dickens's character. Mr. Wagenknecht tests Dickens for sin as conscientiously as a chemist tests a specimen for impurities, but he hopes he will not find any. In one chapter Dickens is put through five tests of character. . . But in the end we get a sober, well found, and tolerably complete estimate of the man. Dickens, one feels, not only might have been, but was, something like this." Barrington Gates

+ — Nation and Ath 46:643 F 8 '30 1000w

"Mr. Wagenknecht has produced an extremely competent survey of opinion about Dickens, but as a portrait it is only half alive; rather like a composite photograph in which one can't detect the joins. Fairness is the chief quality of the book. It does not add much to one's knowledge or understanding of Dickens; but a good many things are shown in a right, if rather distant, perspective."

+ — New Statesman 34:476 Ja 18 '30 800w

St Louis 28:82 Mr '30

Spec 144:208 F 8 '30 230w

Wis Lib Bul 26:105 Mr '30

WAGNER, CHARLES ABRAHAM, ed. Prize poems, 1913-1929; with an introd. by Mark Van Doren. (Bonibooks) 247p 75c Boni, C.

811.08 American poetry—Collections 30-13386

"This collection of poems, which have won prizes offered by American magazines, includes work by Edwin Arlington Robinson, Robert Frost, Carl Sandburg, Vachel Lindsay, Edna St. Vincent Millay, and others."—Publishers' Weekly

---

Reviewed by E. L. Walton

Books p2 My 18 '30 630w

"These 'Prize Poems' form an interesting survey of poetry during the twenties. And Mr. Wagner's idea of gathering them together is a very good one. They appear, moreover, in the Boni Paper Books series, an inexpensive and delightful presentation, and with a very charming introduction by Mark Van Doren. The level of the prize poems included is on the whole high. Such outstanding poems as T. S. Eliot's The Waste Land, Malcolm Cowley's Blue Juniata, William Carlos Williams's Paterson, and Wallace Stevens's Pecksniffiana would make any collection interesting."

+ Nation 130:658 Je 4 '30 250w

Reviewed by Edwin Seaver

N Y Evening Post p8m My 31 '30 340w

"One is grateful to the editor of this collection, for it is good to see how very excellent is some of the poetry produced in America at the present time. Perhaps few, if any, of the poets have produced a great deal on the high level of their prize work." Percy Hutchinson

+ N Y Times p11 Jl 13 '30 470w

"It is an interesting and delightful collection and Mark Van Doren has written a splendid introduction, giving something of the whole philosophy of prize poems and literary prize-giving in general." L. T. Nicholl

+ Outlook 155:147 My 28 '30 60w

Reviewed by W. R. Benét

Sat R of Lit 7:9 Jl 26 '30 50w

Springf'd Republican p14 My 7 '30 230w

WAGNER, DONALD OWEN. Church of England and social reform since 1854. (Columbia univ. studies in hist., economics and public law) 341p $5.25 Columbia univ. press

261 Sociology, Christian. Church of England. Christian socialism 30-27974

The year 1854, when the Christian socialists, headed by Charles Kingsley, F. D. Maurice and J. M. Ludlow, abandoned their organization, is made the starting point for this study of the further endeavors of churchmen to secure social reform. Considerable space is given to a history of reform organizations such as the University Settlements, the Guild of St Matthew and the Christian Social Union. The influence of these organizations upon the Lambeth Conference and other church assemblies, as well as upon the bishops in the House of lords, is traced.

"This book may be criticized for its exclusion of any treatment of currents from non-Anglican sources affecting the church, and for the omission of all reference to the influential propaganda fiction of the period; but these limitations have enabled Dr. Wagner to plough his selected field the deeper. More appropriate is the criticism that he deals too much with agencies and too little with results. Yet it is a book of unusual merit and, while conceived in the pure spirit of history, should prove very useful to ministers and social workers. Dr. Wagner is to be congratulated on having preserved through the tasks of research the precious quality of humor." J. T. McNeill

+ — Christian Century 47:1353 N 5 '30 650w

"Dr. Wagner's work is the result of much research and his judgments of movements and tendencies are clearly stated, though his account of the part taken by Archbishop Temple during the dock strike of 1889 seems a little ill-natured."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p848 O 23 '30 850w

WAGNER, HARR. Joaquin Miller and his other self. 312p il $5 Wagner, Harr

B or 92 Miller, Joaquin 29-25967

A biographical study of the poet beloved by the state of which he sang, California. The dualism of his character, the battle between Joaquin Miller's spiritual and physical self, the biographer explains, finds graphic illustration in his relations with women, of which his Song of the soul is a definite expression. Mr Wagner's sketch, while not over-rating the poet's achievements, is none the less a sympathetic and honest presentation of a colorful personality in American literature.

Cleveland Open Shelf p77 My '30

"Mr. Wagner makes good his claim that he has new information to offer concerning the once-great poet of California; letters, journals, and other bits of biographical evidence serve to fill out our picture of this man who went as a pioneer youth from Indiana to California, sowed his wild oats on the plains and among the mountains, settled down to pedagogy and poetry, enjoyed a period of rather flashy fame in England, and spent the long remainder of his Western life as a flowing-bearded bard and a 'natural' lover. The personality so sketched is indeed interesting. But Mr. Wagner fails to convince us that his hero was even a third-rate poet. If one was uncertain about this before, the quotations would settle the matter."

+ — Nation 130:225 F 19 '30 180w

"Although Harr Wagner recites the poet's failings, the portrait he draws of him is not disparaging. . . The biography is not an apology for Miller. It is written in a spirit of praise. Harr Wagner, far from seeing drawbacks in Miller's duality, considers that it lent him charm." Uffington Valentine
N Y Times p2 F 16 '30 1300w

"Harr Wagner, though unequal to the task of writing a really good biography of Miller, does lay the foundations for one. He was for years a friend of Joaquin, his business manager, and publisher. He has gotten together a mass of interesting material, indicated some of the sources for more, and told a good deal from first hand observation. But his high flown style and uncritical point of view have swamped him in pages of trash." C. H. Grattan
— + N Y World p11m Ja 26 '30 900w

WAGNER, HENRY RAUP. Spanish voyages to the northwest coast of America in the sixteenth century. (Special publication) 571p il $15 Cal. hist. soc., 609 Sutter st., San Francisco [63s Quaritch]

973.16 Pacific coast—Discovery and exploration. America—Discovery and exploration
29-21504

"The voyages described in this volume show some of the early, faltering steps of the Spaniards towards the north, the discovery of Lower California, the exploration of the Gulf of California, and the slow tracing of the ocean coast from Cape San Lucas to the southern boundary of old Oregon. . . To the voyages are added notes, cartographical, bibliographical, biographical, and general. These notes and the introductions which link together the various voyages show careful and detailed study, not only of the accounts used in the text, but also of the contemporaneous records."—Canadian Hist R

"The reproductions of some of the original maps and of many of the original manuscript reports add much to the usefulness of the work. To those who desire to follow the gradual approach to old Oregon and to all who are interested in the essential unity of the history of the Pacific coast, this scholarly volume, embodying the latest results of research, will be of real and permanent value." F. W. Howay
+ Canadian Hist R 11:256 S '30 600w

"The collection and interpretation of these interesting records represents the highest type of historical research work, and the volume can be most cordially recommended to the student or general reader." Godfrey Sykes
+ Geog R 20:694 O '30 850w

"The general introduction, as well as the chapter introductions, are particularly useful. Every reader should be interested in Dr. Wagner's conclusion that the documentary evidence overwhelmingly indicates that the Spanish were not anxious to find a northwest passage from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and that the Spanish voyages were not motivated by Sir Francis Drake's intrusion into the Pacific."
+ Hist Outlook 21:342 N '30 200w

WAITE, ARTHUR EDWARD. Holy kabbalah; a study of the secret tradition in Israel as unfolded by sons of the doctrine for the benefit and consolation of the elect dispersed through the lands and ages of the greater exile. 636p pl $7.50 Macmillan [30s Williams & Norgate]

181.3 Cabala [29-16764]

The fundamental doctrines of mysticism which comprise the Jewish Kabbalistic literature as expressed by the philosophers Pico della Mirandola, Reuchlin, Cornelia Agrippa, Raymond Lully, William Postel and Thomas Vaughn; and a discussion by the author on magic, superstition, the coming Messiah, and the mysteries of God and man.

"Mr. Waite has gone deeper into the subject than any of his predecessors, treating all phases of the doctrine as expressed in all authentic tracts. One can not call his volume easy reading but it is scholarly and as clearly presented as the subject allows."
+ Boston Transcript p4 Je 29 '29 300w
Christian Century 47:181 F 5 '30 100w

"Mr. Waites is evidently a fine student of mysticism. He should therefore have confined himself to this subject and not have dealt with the difficult problems of text criticism. To judge texts one must have an intimate knowledge of original sources. That Mr. Waite lacks this knowledge strikes the reader at once. . . When the author confines himself to the subject of mysticism and leaves literary criticism alone, he shows his mastery of the subject. His opinions are moderate and his judgments sound. Except for the technical weaknesses mentioned in the foregoing, the work is erudite, informative, and in general a valuable addition to mystic literature." S. B. Freehof
+ — J Religion 10:269 Ap '30 550w
St Louis 28:201 S '30

"Without delving into too many obscurities, Mr. Waite has given a remarkably true picture of the Kabbalistic movement."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p1056 D 12 '29 850w

WALKER, EDITH B., and MOOK, CHARLES ^{2} CRAIG. Tales of the first animals. 120p il $1.50 Farrar

560 Paleontology—Juvenile literature
30-25393

The story of the evolution of animal life from prehistoric days to the appearance of man on earth. For young readers with a taste for science.

"It is written for children, surely not under twelve, who can understand and enjoy long scientific names and references, and who have an intelligent and already directed curiosity about the development of the prehistoric earth. This being so, one wonders why the authors thought fit to sugar-coat their excellent work by the interpolation of verses between the chapters."
Nation 131:558 N 19 '30 130w

"Whether, unless they are unusually precocious, small children could understand the meaning of the many polysyllabic words which necessarily enter into the narrative, the reviewer seriously doubts. The style is lively and interesting, and should appeal to a child of the intermediate grades, but even he would need a dictionary at his elbow. The reviewer found but few factual errors, but there are some." R. S. Lull
+ — Sat R of Lit 7:490 D 27 '30 460w

WALKER, HARVEY. Federal limitations upon municipal ordinance making power. 207p $3 Ohio state univ.

352.003 Municipal corporations. United States—Constitutional law 29-19236

"In this work Mr. Walker presents an analysis of the decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States on the validity of municipal ordinances under the Constitution of the United States. It presents in compact form the general legal limitations on municipal ordinance power throughout the country. It makes no attempt to deal with the special provisions in the constitutions, statutes, or decisions of the several states. As compared with the voluminous treatises of Dillon and McQuillin, which include both national and state law, this deals with only one part of the problem. But it is an advantage to have these legal rules of general application presented in systematic form."—Yale Law J

WALKER, HARVEY—Continued

"Lawyers, legislative drafting experts, and others concerned with the legal technic of ordinance making will find this book of value for reference and study." J. A. Tobey

+ Am J Pub Health 20:103 Ja '30 130w

"To the political scientist the book presents in terms concise and direct a host of cases defining by analogy the limits of municipal legislation. The notes are full, but, except in a few cases, omit citations to the West Company's Supreme Court Reports. Generally these citations are of much value to the practicing lawyer. The citations given are not always uniform. But the defects are trivial and do not begin to outweigh the merits of the volume." N. F. Baker

+ — Am Pol Sci R 24:498 My '30 650w

"In his introduction, Mr. Walker states that he is writing primarily for the benefit of municipal officials and others who have not available the larger treatises on ordinance making. This limitation greatly restricts the scope of interest of his book. The treatment consists mainly in abstracting decisions of the Supreme Court which involve ordinances, with a view to determining the federal limitations on the municipal ordinance-making power. This approach, however, loses force by divorcing the subject in hand from the broader aspects of constitutional limitations upon all legislation."

— Harvard Law R 43:161 N '29 100w

St Louis 28:207 S '30

"The study has been carefully done, and should be of service not only to those who prepare municipal ordinances, but to students of municipal government and constitutional law." J. A. Fairlie

+ Yale Law J 39:923 Ap '30 450w

WALKER, JAMES HERBERT, and CROCKER, SABIN. Piping handbook; with contributions by others. 763p il $5 (25s) McGraw

621.185 Pipe. Pipe-fitting 30-11704

"A pocket reference work for engineers giving data on design and materials, with sections on piping in special fields and numerous tables and graphs."—Cleveland Open Shelf

Booklist 27:97 N '30

"A welcome newcomer on the 'active' shelf of every engineer who must face the multitudinous problems that piping involves. Lacking the unfriendly terseness usually associated with its kind, it is more conversational and hence more readable."

+ Chem & Met Eng 37:640 O '30 120w

Cleveland Open Shelf p109 Jl '30

"Throughout this book the authors have clearly presented the principles involved and compiled useful data. It should fill a definite need and prove useful to engineers interested in piping work. More specifically, it should be helpful to plant chemists and chemical engineers." N. E. Oglesby

+ Ind & Eng Chem 22:811 Jl '30 320w

N Y New Tech Bks 15:24 Ap '30

St Louis 28:211 S '30

WALKER, JOSEPH, pseud. See McSpadden, J. W.

WALKER, LOUIS CARLISLE. The office and tomorrow's business; modern points of view on office organization and administration. 187p il $1.50 Century

651.3 Office management. Efficiency, Industrial 30-5699

Written by the president of a large business corporation this book is a practical discussion of modern business administration and of office operation as the point of control.

Booklist 27:55 O '30

Cleveland Open Shelf p69 My '30

Outlook 155:425 Jl 16 '30 150w

St Louis 28:212 S '30

WALKER, LYDIA LE BARON (MRS WILLIAM H. P. WALKER). Homecraft rugs; their historic background, romance of stitchery and method of making; with il. in color and in line, and numerous diagrams by Mary Evangeline Walker. 421p $5 Stokes

745 Rugs 30-276

A well-arranged and comprehensive account of the various kinds of rugs and the methods of their making. There are sections devoted to the evolution of the craft; rugs constructed by braiding, weaving, knitting and crocheting; rugs in which the surface is superimposed on another fabric, as in the hooked type; quilted, appliquéd and embroidered rugs; various minor types; and the care, repair and sale of homecraft rugs. All the rugs described can be made at home by any woman who cares to take the trouble.

Booklist 26:271 Ap '30

"An attractive book on the hows and whys of handcraft rugs. Mrs. Walker tells clearly and in a readable style just how the amateur should go about achieving some of the fascinating products shown in the very numerous illustrations with which the pages of her book are brightened. She is plainly the entire master of her subject and has presented her material as clearly as it could be done."

+ Books p14 Je 22 '30 270w

J Home Econ 22:319 Ap '30 150w

N Y Times p21 Ja 26 '30 180w

St Louis 28:213 S '30

Wis Lib Bul 26:65 F '30

WALKINSHAW, ROBERT. On Puget Sound. 294p il $3.50 Putnam

917.97 Puget Sound. Washington (state)—Description and travel

The drama of the settlement of Puget Sound, and a description of the beauty of the northern Pacific coast country, including the cities Tacoma and Seattle.

"Robert Walkinshaw writes with compelling enthusiasm of the region in which he dwells, and the book is well illustrated. He shows that all sorts of picturesque figures had their part in the drama of settlement. He is, however, most at home in depicting the strenuous joys of mountaineering." J. G.

+ N Y Evening Post p7s Ja 4 '30 70w

N Y Times p17 Jl 27 '30 400w

St Louis 28:271 N '30

"Mr Walkinshaw's pace as a traveler and absorber of impressions is somewhat leisurely, and in his descriptive pages there is some lack of force and suggestion; yet he has the gift of seeing sensitively and interpreting intelligently, and he sets down both the visible evidences of history and the history which has to be learned."

+ Springf'd Republican p10 N 22 '29 280w

WALLACE, DILLON. Kidnapped by air; a boy's adventure in Labrador. 287p il $2 Revell

"The kidnappers of Fred Barnaby, son of a wealthy New Yorker, are as at home in a flying machine as in the proverbial sedan of gangster activities. So they fly Fred to a lake in the interior of Labrador, where they expect to hold him for ransom. But the plane cracks up there and one of the kidnappers is killed in the crash. The second kidnapper then tries to murder Fred, but is prevented from doing so by an Indian guide. The guide leads the boy out of the country to a Hudson Bay trading post. From there he makes his way back to New York to the relief of his father who has turned out detectives en masse to find him."—N Y Times

"The thinnest kind of a yarn is built around the title, with bad men, Canadian wilds, aeroplanes, faithful Indians and what not. Poor stuff!" D. G. Lunt

— Books p8 F 23 '30 50w

N Y Times p24 My 4 '30 180w

"Compared with other books of adventure this latest tale of Mr. Wallace's is distinctly second class. . . There is much good nature observation and some Labrador in the book, and the moot theme is skilfully used."
— + Sat R of Lit 6:881 Mr 29 '30 150w

WALLACE, EDGAR. The Black. 346p $2
Doubleday, Doran
30-5944

The hero, who is known to the police as The Black because he wears black clothing and a black mask, is a man of superior intelligence, and, moreover, a member of the United States Intelligence department. This is the story of The Black's adventurous duel with Hamon, a crooked millionaire from Morocco.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p18 Ja 19 '30 150w
N Y Times p24 F 9 '30 130w

"The mystery element is a bit feeble, but fully offset by the unabating vigor of movement in the story." E. C. Beckwith
+ — N Y World p11m Ja 12 '30 120w

"An average Wallace." W. R. Brooks
Outlook 154:71 Ja 8 '30 130w

WALLACE, EDGAR. Fourth plague. 303p $1
Doubleday, Doran
30-27774

A wicked Italian organization known as the Red Hand passes from bad to worse, ending with the supreme demand of £10,000,000 from the English government, else London would be victimized by the germs of the Fourth plague, a disease that terrorized Italy in Leonardo da Vinci's time. Two Italians, Tillizini and Festini, are the star performers in the plot.

Bookm 72:xxvii O '30 80w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p18 O 5 '30 120w
Boston Transcript p5 N 19 '30 550w

"Wallace at his best." Bruce Rae
+ N Y Times p22 O 19 '30 250w

"This reader finds tremendous delight in such a tale as Edgar Wallace spins in 'The Fourth Plague.' . . Something deadly happens on almost every page, but virtue and the law are always and ultimately triumphant." W. C. Weber
+ Sat R of Lit 7:232 O 11 '30 100w

WALLACE, EDGAR. Green ribbon. 311p $1
Doubleday, Doran
30-17709

The Green ribbon agency, an organization of racing racketeers, is the center of interest in this horsey mystery yarn. A lovely young heiress and Detective Inspector Luke provide the incidental love motif, and important races at Newmarket combine with mysterious happenings at Gillywood estate to furnish the thrills.

Bookm 71:xviii Ag '30 100w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p14 Je 22 '30 130w

"Few better stories could be devised for entertainment during this summer season."
+ Boston Transcript p2 Je 28 '30 200w
N Y Times p15 Je 29 '30 100w

Reviewed by Harry Hansen
N Y World p11 Je 21 '30 80w

"Wallace fans will not be disappointed." Bernice Whittemore
+ Outlook 155:357 Jl 2 '30 150w
Pratt p39 autumn '30

"Mr. Wallace winds up his yarn in a rapid and perfunctory manner. But he is still the grand romantic, who populates the Nat Gould country with ghouls and livestock from the empire of Rider Haggard. Half the schoolboys in the land (and a considerable number of adults) will want to know what did happen in that cavern on the Downs."
+ — Sat R 148:733 D 14 '29 160w

Reviewed by W. C. Weber
Sat R of Lit 6:1163 Je 28 '30 170w
Times [London] Lit Sup p46 Ja 16 '30 180w

WALLACE, EDGAR. Gunman's bluff (Eng title: The gunner). 300p 75c Burt [3s 6d Long]
29-19450

Margaret Leferre thought that Luke Maddison, the millionaire banker to whom she was engaged, was responsible for the financial ruin and suicide of her brother. But it transpires that she has been tricked into believing this by a high powered confidence man. Luke, by accident, falls into the hands of gangsters, but the efforts of Gunner Haynes and Inspector Bird, with the final cooperation of Margaret, save him.

"The methods of American gunmen lend an up-to-date atmosphere to this engaging yarn."
+ Bookm 69:xxix Ag '29 30w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p12 Jl 21 '29 150w

WALLACE, EDGAR. Hand of power. 319p 50c
Mystery league [3s 6d Long]
30-19826

"The contents include Betty Carew, an orphaned actress in the power of unscrupulous wretches; Clive Lowbridge (the ninth baron), her fiancé; Dr. Laffin, an unusually demented occultist; La Florette, a French dancer from Limehouse; the Proud Sons of Ragousa, the Buckle of Isis, dope, torture, murder, a desperate climax aboard ship and a happy ending in the good old U. S. A."—Books

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p11 Jl 13 '30 100w

"It is Wallace at his best, at his least adult, at his most naively melodramatic." Dashiell Hammett
+ N Y Evening Post 5s Jl 5 '30 500w

"Mr. Wallace's newest contribution falls far short of the skill he displayed in 'The Ringer,' yet it seems a pity that it must be judged by the Wallace standards rather than by those of other thrill dispensers. While not Wallace at his best, it is far superior to the average crime story."
+ — N Y Times p11 Jl 13 '30 250w
N Y World p5m Ag 3 '30 150w

WALLACE, EDGAR. India rubber men. 326p $2
Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Hodder]
30-13235

An organization of criminals who wore rubber gas-masks, rubber gloves and rubber shoes were committing the most daring of robberies in London. It was Inspector Wade's task to ferret out the identity of this gang; and the performing of it led him into one of the most dangerous adventures of his career.

"A sure guarantee for a sleepless night."
Bookm 71:xviii Jl '30 70w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p14 My 11 '30 100w

"There are thrills enough in the story, but one cannot help wishing for a few real detectives to make things a bit more interesting for the India Rubber Men."
+ — N Y Times p24 My 18 '30 130w

"As is frequent in Wallace stories, the plot and sleuthing are not remarkable, but these lacks are effectually disguised by the perpetually violent action of the tale from start to finish." E. C. Beckwith
+ — N Y World p9m My 18 '30 100w

"The mystery fan will find the story one of this author's best." W. R. Brooks
+ Outlook 155:106 My 21 '30 100w

WALLACE, EDGAR—Continued
"This book contains all the usual Wallace thrills and excitement and is one of the best he has written in the past few months." R. L. Center
+ Sat R of Lit 6:1077 My 24 '30 80w

"The story hurries along without giving the reader much time to think, and if he does not stop to worry about loose ends left unjoined or to ponder over improbabilities, he will find it as good as others of its kind."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p298 Ap 11 '29 150w

WALLACE, EDGAR. Mr. Commissioner San-
2 ders. 320p $1 Doubleday, Doran
30-33757

A sequel to Sanders of the River which continues the adventures of Sanders in Africa.

"Time lies lightly upon these stories, dating from the Boer war period. They are early but good Wallace." Will Cuppy
+ Books p14 N 9 '30 80w

"With his new book, half fun, half serious, of British supremacy in the jungle, Mr. Wallace has done his most finished piece of work."
+ Boston Transcript p3 D 27 '30 250w

Reviewed by W. R. Brooks
Outlook 156:585 D 10 '30 50w

WALLACE, EDGAR. Red Aces; being three cases of Mr Reeder. 284p $2 Doubleday, Doran 30-546

The volume contains three complete stories celebrating the exploits of the whimsical J. G. Reeder, detective: Red Aces, Kennedy the Con. Man, and The Case of Joe Attymar.

Bookm 71:xxviii Ap '30 80w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p16 Mr 16 '30 120w

"To the reader it seems as though Reeder knows nearly all there is to know about a case before he begins to work on it. He gets results, but he tells very little about how he gets them. He is, however, an interesting and amusing character, and these stories about him are distinctly worth while."
+ — N Y Times p28 Mr 23 '30 100w

"We may confidently assure his customers that this Wallace offering is worth the price." E. C. Beckwith
+ N Y World p10m Mr 9 '30 180w

"A most human and likable detective is Mr. Reeder; also he is completely credible. Each of the three cases described in this book is distinguished by Mr. Wallace's usual deft construction, neat dénouement, and happy combination of humour with drama."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p686 S 5 '29 200w

WALLACE, EDGAR. Sanders of the river. 317p
2 $1 Doubleday, Doran
30-21775

The adventures in British West Africa of Mr Commissioner Sanders, overseer of native tribes, whose jungle politics and well-timed palavers leave nothing to be desired in the way of diplomacy.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p24 S 28 '30 100w

Boston Transcript p2 S 27 '30 120w

Reviewed by R. I. Center
Sat R of Lit 7:103 Ag 16 '30 50w

WALLACE, EDGAR. Silver key. 319p $1
2 Doubleday, Doran
30-33612

The American method of taking troublesome gentlemen for "rides" is employed by the murderer in this Wallace story. He makes a great mistake, however, when he tries to take Detective Surefoot Smith for a ride.

"The ramifications of the plot are many, and seem offhand to be unrelated, but they are all nicely pulled together and properly labelled before the windup."
+ Bookm 72:xxvi D '30 50w

"Closely knit in the author's more careful manner." Will Cuppy
+ Books p20 N 23 '30 130w

"The reliable Mr. Wallace has turned out another good one. The chain of disaster is steadily unrolled, with an appealing Wallace girl always in the background, and a villain of melodramatic proportions. All in all, it's Wallace and thus excellent." Bruce Rae
+ N Y Times p16 D 28 '30 130w

Times [London] Lit Sup p1068 D 11 '30 250w

WALLAS, ADA (RADFORD) (MRS GRAHAM WALLAS). Daguerreotypes. 118p $1.75 Macmillan [5s Allen, G.]
B or 92 [30-12653]

"In this entertaining little book the wife of the eminent English author and professor of political science turns her eyes back on her own childhood and makes colorful sketches of some of the people she knew and of the life they and she lived during the latter '60s and early '70s of the nineteenth century. Mostly the 'daguerreotypes' are those of her own family and forebears and of people intimately associated with them. . . Mid-Victorian standards held sway in social life with a strength and vigor that Mrs. Wallas makes very plain as she pictures the methods and the personalities of some of those who influenced her childhood—teachers, governesses, sewing woman, guests of her home."—N Y Times

Reviewed by Garreta Busey
Books p10 Je 29 '30 630w

"It is a picture with a delicate and lovingly wrought surface, in which artistry has combined with recollection to produce a neat and careful finish. . . Mrs. Wallas has looked at her material from two angles. Seeing it first from present-day conditions as a gradually evolved but striking contrast, she has then slipped back into the period, charmed by an affection for the old remembrances. It is this affection that gives them detail, atmosphere and particularity, although it is half mockingly indulged."
+ Nation and Ath 46:324 N 30 '29 700w

"It is a simply written, interesting little book, usefully entertaining in the light of personal knowledge it throws on the life of sixty years ago. What it reveals seems hardly to belong in the same world as the life of today."
+ N Y Times p22 Ap 13 '30 380w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:48 Je '30

"In all these slight sketches, delightfully written, full of wit and irony, Mrs. Wallas recaptures the feelings of a child. She writes as one looking back, but the atmosphere and reactions of childhood are perfectly recollected."
+ Sat R 148:682 D 7 '29 400w

"This charming picture of Victorian childhood is true, and will give to those for whom it stirs the waters of memory a heartfelt satisfaction, a sense that the honour of a beloved generation so often aspersed is finding an avenger." Cecilia Townsend
+ Spec 143:sup865 D 7 '29 1150w

Springf'd Republican p12 My 29 '30 350w

" 'Daguerreotypes' has the uncommon fault of being too short."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p72 Ja 30 '30 480w

WALLER, WILLARD WALTER. Old love and the new; divorce and readjustment. 344p $3.50 Liveright
173.1 Divorce. Sex 30-12999

"Not where shall we get it, or how much alimony or what shall we do with the children, but what shall we do with ourselves is what

Willard Waller would answer in The Old Love and the New. From the life stories of some thirty-three divorced men and women, Dr. Waller has tried to determine what are the major problems of such a crisis. He has studied the social, the sexual, the psychological adjustments, the conflicts, the moods of those who have had to make a complete re-organization of old ways of living and loving."—Outlook

"Mr. Waller set out to write merely a study of attitudes and adjustments of newly divorced men and women, with a few suggestions for making the first few painful months more tolerable and warnings against the dangers and distresses of the period; but what has resulted is one of the most powerful tracts for monogamy ever printed. Mr. Waller uses the jargon of psycho-analysts, but provides a glossary of simple definitions. The book is valuable, and not only in the field which the author intended to cover."

Bookm 71:vi Je '30 100w

Reviewed by Lorine Pruette

Books p6 Jl 6 '30 550w

"Professor Waller writes with fairness, qualifies most statements, and often admits that certain factors in the case are unknown to him. As he is writing for the general reader, he makes sparing use of technical terms, and adds a glossary for the explanation of the few employed."

+ N Y Times p18 Jl 20 '30 350w

"Since there are probably four million divorced people in the United States today, the book should find many readers. And since tomorrow in marriage is uncertain, those who are not yet divorced may find it helpful. Its description of the varied miseries which have only just begun when the decree is handed down may have a chastening effect. It is a good book and a brave book, rich in the kind of material which is creating a new understanding of human nature." F. G. Seabury

+ Outlook 155:149 My 28 '30 180w

St Louis 28:202 S '30

WALLING, ROBERT ALFRED JOHN. Man with the squeaky voice. 304p $2 Morrow

30-841

"The plot of this story hangs on the furtive movements of Parkinson, the man with the squeaky voice. He is pursued from England to the United States, thence to Tiajuana, and back to England by Secret Service men. Through his sudden death the operations of a bank-robbing gang are uncovered. John Masters, an American journalist, becomes involved, not only in the mystery, but with an English girl who provides the necessary romance."—Bookm

Booklist 26:235 Mr '30

Bookm 70:xxvii F '30 80w

"The author is fast taking his place as a surefire entertainer. This one is an agreeable combination of polite detectivism with rougher stuff." Will Cuppy

+ Books p18 Ja 26 '30 140w

"One of the best of the recent thrillers. And it almost deserves to rank with immortal literature by virtue of being an English yarn that contains a recognizable American journalist."

+ Christian Century 47:243 F 12 '30 50w

"A murder so ingeniously contrived as to cast suspicion upon a person whom the reader knows to be innocent."

+ N Y Times p24 Ja 26 '30 150w

"It is agreeably written, never dull, completely bewildering." E. C. Beckwith

+ N Y World p11m Ja 12 '30 150w

"Decidedly better than the average." W. R. Brooks

+ Outlook 154:109 Ja 15 '30 60w

"Bears traces of rather hurried writing and though the plot is mystifying and plausible enough, for this reason it is rather less satisfying than his others."

— + Sat R of Lit 6:761 F 22 '30 170w

Times [London] Lit Sup p670 Ag 21 '30 220w

Wis Lib Bul 26:107 Mr '30

WALLIS, WILSON DALLAM, and WILLEY, [2] MALCOLM MACDONALD. Readings in sociology. 639p $4.50 Crofts (corr pub)

301 Sociology. Civilization—History. Social psychology. Social problems 30-9717

"This volume of readings has been prepared for use in connection with Professor Wallis' Introduction to Sociology, but is not arranged according to the same identical outline. It represents, in general, the viewpoint of the 'cultural sociologists,' and the readings which the editors have brought together constitute a very impressive demonstration of the possibilities of that approach to the general science."—Am J Soc

"I think this is one of the most interesting introductions to sociology that has been prepared in the form of republished and classified materials. The articles are mostly concrete, and deal with contemporary situations. The book has freshness; a great many of the readings do not appear in other sourcebooks; many were originally written for non-technical periodicals: the journalists are well represented; the philosophers are almost entirely absent. And with a few exceptions everything in the book was written within the last ten years. I doubt, on the other hand, if the book is as useful as it is interesting. . . It does not present any method of study." Robert Redfield

+ — Am Anthropol 32:661 O '30 680w

"A great deal of time seems to have been spent ransacking the printed sources of materials for a volume such as this, and almost no use has been made of selections from textbooks. A very meaty undergraduate course could be conducted on the basis of any one of several textbooks accompanied by these readings." F. N. House

+ Am J Soc 36:338 S '30 150w

WALPOLE, HORACE, 4th earl of Orford. Horace Walpole's England, as his letters picture it; ed. by Alfred Bishop Mason. 398p il $5 Houghton [21s Constable]

B or 92 England—Social life and customs

Selections from the correspondence of the greatest of English letter writers, made with the intention of illustrating the life and important personages of Walpole's day.

"'Horace Walpole's England As His Letters Picture It' is a new selection from the abundance of our greatest letter-writer, made and edited by Alfred Bishop Mason. Mr Mason has selected with discretion. Here, at any rate, is the England of the class to which Walpole belonged, and of the classes he affected; though every now and then are glimpses of the England of the 'low people,' with whom and whose lives Walpole was far less out of touch than were most fine gentlemen of his day. Mr. Mason's editing is simple and direct."

+ Nation and Ath 47:655 Ag 23 '30 200w

"Mr. Mason by careful selection not only among the letters, but in them, contrives to give us the distilled essence of three or four hundred. And we are grateful to him not merely for what he has put in but for what he has left out. Here are the pick of the letters, many very excellent illustrations, and the absolute minimum of editorial notes."

+ New Statesman 35:623 Ag 23 '30 1300w

"The panorama of eighteenth century life is spread before the reader with not only all the great domestic characters and scenes from the Coronation of George III to the life and fortunes of the Virgin Chudleigh, but with extracts of foreign intelligence as well—Dr Franklin and the Americans, Warren Hastings and the Begums, Maria Antoinette and the Mob. Walpole as a letter-writer suffers from the cutting and clipping; the ideal way to read him is to begin at the beginning of the nineteen volumes and read through to the end without skipping a word, but to one who lacks the time and the patience for that this book furnishes a generous peep at his inextinguishably interesting world."

WALPOLE, HORACE—Continued
+ Sat R of Lit 7:184 O 4 '30 200w

"Full of wit and interest, it is the very thing we want when we are dull or depressed."
+ Spec 145:314 S 6 '30 150w
Springf'd Republican p8 O 4 '30 1050w

WALPOLE, HUGH. Rogue Herries. 524p $2.50 Doubleday, Doran [10s 6d Macmillan]
30-26564

The Lake District of England in the eighteenth century is the setting for this historical novel. A study of Francis ("Rogue") Herries's powerful, capricious, and complex character, presented in relation to his son David, his daughter Deborah, his servant Benjamin, and Mirabell Starr, the gypsy girl he loves, is, however, Mr Walpole's chief interest.

Booklist 26:359 Je '30
Bookm 71:324 Je '30 370w

Reviewed by V. P. Ross
Books p3 Ap 20 '30 700w

Reviewed by D. L. Mann
Boston Transcript p2 Ap 26 '30 2050w

" 'Rogue Herries' is a strange alternation of tremendously moving, brilliantly conceived drama—drama which with even the slightest tinge of lack of skill would have been the most soppy of melodrama—and long chapters which are frankly dull, no matter how fine their description of the scene or the characters. The reader is very likely to misjudge the book, to sink in the slough of words and give up. He should not. The dull spot in the middle gives place to heights at the end not even hinted at in the beginning, supreme heights of characterization and description. 'Rogue Herries' is a tremendously long novel. Its height and breadth are in proportion. It is a great canvas." Fanny Butcher
+ Chicago Daily Tribune p10 My 3 '30 400w
Christian Science Monitor p12 Ap 19 '30 650w
Cleveland Open Shelf p148 D '30

"In spite of all the trappings the dominant note is strangely reminiscent of the Victorian decadence. The fact is that the whole book with its awkwardly displayed parallel narrations, its sentimental heavy-handedness, its bogus eighteenth-century atmosphere is nothing short of preposterous."
— + Nation 130:657 Je 4 '30 300w

Reviewed by Herbert Kahn
Nation and Ath 47:118 Ap 26 '30 40w

" 'Rogue Herries' as a whole is affected, self-consciously and unconvincingly colorful, full of repetition, choppy and pretentious."
— New Repub 63:81 Je 4 '30 420w

"The book is undeniably long. But is this an extenuation? We feel that it reveals something. Not that Mr. Walpole has been too localized with his colour. There are green velvet waistcoats, an it pleases you, and red heels galore. Silver-misted mountains, euphoniously named, and inns black with dirt. But we can see how, just as purple ran away with him, so did the whole picturesqueness of the eighteenth century. Though Rogue Herries is agreeably bawdy, it is only occasionally that he makes as if to forget his purple fancy dress. It is a pity."
— New Statesman 34:809 Mr 29 '30 650w

"Hugh Walpole knows the country, and he has a peculiar sensitiveness to the time in which his novel is laid. And when these, combined with an ever-present understanding of individuals work together for a common end there are chapters and scenes that are both dramatic and beautiful, or terrible, as the case may be. When, on the other hand, the novel lapses into mere statement, when it substitutes for the dramatic progress of fiction the purely expository progress of biography or of history, it becomes dull." P. H.
+ — N Y Times p4 Ap 13 '30 800w

"Runs to over 500 large and closely set pages of some of the poorest 'fine writing' I have read in recent years. It is an excellent example of the observation that no single style of writing is superior to another, unless it is handled by a superior artist. For Mr. Walpole writes in what is recognizably a traditional English novelist's style, which, unless one keeps one's balance, is likely to lead one to false generalizations about its prototype. It aims, moreover, to be two things at once, history and romance, and succeeds in being neither; or only as a pageant or tableau which provides a kind of entertainment with a serious purpose." Helen Berlin
— N Y World p7m Je 8 '30 450w

"A warm, richly colored, stalwart romance."
+ Outlook 154:667 Ap 23 '30 350w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:51 Je '30
Pratt p39 autumn '30

"Mr. Walpole has made Rogue Herries an appealing, rather likeable, if sometimes rather theatrical, figure. (It was a little theatrical and cheap to let him get his face slashed in a duel: but no doubt a scar, even a disfiguring scar, always adds romance to a romantic hero.) But it is the character of the man—and not such a bad character as he seemed, with all his rakishness—that matters, and makes the main interest of the story."
Sat R 149:364 Mr 22 '30 650w

"It is a book written neither to astound nor to force anything, creative or critical, down the throat of the reader. It is what a good novel must always be—a rather grand book conceived in a great tradition, and so it will probably not find a place side by side with dusty Pater and other preciosities on the most cherished shelfs of sophomores who as yet know nothing of existence or of dusty professors who have never known anything of it. . . For me it is the finest of Mr. Walpole's novels and one of the finest of our time. I hope and rather believe that my children and grandchildren will be reading it when some of the thin, dry little books are forgotten. It is a tapestry, wide, unfaked, and beautiful, which belongs to the race rather than to any school of writing." Louis Bromfield
+ Sat R of Lit 6:943 Ap 19 '30 1250w

"The whole book, which shows the Sir Walter Scott tradition revived, modernized and Anglicized, is remarkably spontaneous and vital. Mr. Walpole has never turned his varied gifts to ampler or better purpose." Gilbert Thomas
Spec 144:503 Mr 22 '30 450w

"It is difficult to speculate what place 'Rogue Herries' will take in Mr Walpole's work, yet one would not be surprised if it came to be regarded as the most significant book yet published. It has obvious faults: it opens slowly, and indeed the narrative is always apt to drag; while the end, satisfactory and romantic though it may be for the narrative, compromises the symbolism. It seems, however, to have called out Mr Walpole's full powers as few of his more recent books have done. It is full, stimulating and mellow. It has vivid scenes and beautiful writing. But one is struck most of all by the rounded developments of the main theme, by their richness and variety. 'Rogue Herries' should not be missed by those who prefer that their fiction be a stimulant rather than a soporific." H. K.
+ — Springf'd Republican p5e Ag 10 '30 1000w
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p240 Mr 20 '30 900w

WALSH, JAMES JOSEPH. Mother Alphonsa, ² Rose Hawthorne Lathrop. 275p il $2.25 Macmillan

B or 92 Lathrop, Mrs Rose (Hawthorne)
30-24529

"Rose Hawthorne Lathrop, younger daughter of Nathaniel Hawthorne, became a convert to Catholicism in her mature years, and shortly afterward began in a purely individual way to devote herself to the care of destitute sufferers from incurable cancer. From this grew a sisterhood and a great institutional work of which she was the head, known as Mother Alphonsa. For more than thirty years she devoted to this cause all the energies of a rare and saintly soul."—Christian Century

Booklist 27:205 Ja '31

Boston Transcript p3 N 15 '30 700w

"In this volume are assembled more of the facts of Mother Alphonsa's history than in any previous study of her." J. C. W.

+ Cath World 132:498 Ja '31 350w

Christian Century 47:1453 N 26 '30 130w

"Dr. Walsh tells [the] story effectively, making it chiefly the story of Mother Alphonsa, but backgrounding this with the story of Rose Hawthorne Lathrop, and combining them so that the reader never ceases to marvel that the one could and did become the other and yet showing how the servant of suffering was from the first implicit in the beautiful and gifted Rose Hawthorne. . . Dr. Walsh was closely associated with her work from the start, and his account of it is authoritative."

+ N Y Times p23 O 12 '30 400w

WALSH, WILLIAM SEBASTIAN. Cultivating personality. 288p $2.50 Dutton

137 Personality 30-13134

An elementary, practical presentation of the factors governing personality development. The author takes up the meaning of personality, personality types, mental mechanisms, how to overcome snobbishness, shyness, irritability, depression, and anxiety, and how to make friends.

Booklist 27:10 S '30

"Dr. Walsh writes upon his theme with extensive and authoritative psychological knowledge, but expresses himself always in clear and simple language with almost no use of technical phraseology. But his book would have gained in interest and value if he had written it with fewer words."

+ — N Y Times p26 My 18 '30 320w

"Cultivating Personality deserves special praise for giving definite procedures by which to correct unsocial and unlovely traits." F. G. Seabury

+ Outlook 155:508 Jl 30 '30 180w

WALSH, WILLIAM THOMAS. Isabella of
2 Spain; the last crusader. 515p il $5 McBride

B or 92 Isabella I, queen of Castile and Aragon 30-32127

This biography of Isabella of Spain shows her a great woman, as human as she was brave and noble, and emphasizes her importance as a fighter for Christian civilization in Europe. Mr Walsh who is a Catholic historian, takes issue on some points with Prescott and other modern historians.

"This book gives one the thorough understanding of the period and its problems that enables one to judge its controversies intelligently. It is a broad canvas crowded with vivid detail and the author unobtrusively substantiates every moot point in his notes and bibliography, which include references to original documents unknown to or ignored by previous historians."

+ Bookm 72:vi D '30 130w

"No biography of this amazing woman could fail to be interesting. Mr. Walsh had studied the original authorities very closely; he tells many good stories; his descriptions are lively and vivid. But his book cannot be recommended without reserve. He writes as a Catholic; in his short bibliography, which does not mention the standard history of Spain by Altamira, he finds room for Belloc's 'The Jews' and 'Europe and the Faith.' . . Moreover, he is not always accurate." H. B. Parkes

— + Books p21 N 30 '30 550w

"In this exhaustive study of the life and era of La Catolica, Mr. Walsh presents this long unrevealed 'truth' as he discovered it for himself, not in previous histories and biographies, but in forgotten, deeply-yellowed contemporaneous records and letters and other original documents in state and private archives. We confess however that to us certain of Mr. Walsh's estimates would seem more convincing did they not witness a somewhat prejudiced point-of-view." E. B.

+ — Boston Transcript p1 D 20 '30 1200w

"The book is absorbing and well detailed. Walsh has the happy faculty of tying things together. Not only are Spain, England, France, the Empire, the Papacy carefully interlocked, but even minor characters are set definitely into the picture."

+ Outlook 156:507 N 26 '30 280w

WAND, JOHN WILLIAM CHARLES. History of the modern church, from 1500 to the present day. 314p $3 Crowell [8s 6d Methuen]

270 Church history

A survey of universal church history from the Reformation to the present day, including two chapters on the Eastern church. A sketch of the reunion movements is given and a brief history of modern missions.

"The book is important by reason of its completeness. It is valuable also by its inclusion of educational and social movements, modern missions, and present day efforts for the reunion of churches. It is of course possible to suggest changes that would remedy some disproportions and we may hope that as happens in Germany this text will evolve through later editions on the basis of experience in the use of it. The main duty is to recognize the excellence and usefulness of this interesting and scholarly book." F. A. Christie

+ — Am Hist R 35:909 Jl '30 350w

"A sound scholar has produced this book, and it richly repays reading." W. L. Sullivan

+ Books p15 Jl 6 '30 100w

Christian Century 47:724 Je 4 '30 100w

Reviewed by J. F. Scott

Current Hist 33:x O '30 150w

Living Church 83:344 Jl 5 '30 150w

"Mr. Wand's book is a marvel of compression, and, considering the nature of his task, of fairness. As a mere assemblage of well-arranged facts—an elementary 'outline' of post-Reformation religious history—his volume should at once take its place as the standard work."

+ Nation and Ath 46:870 Mr 22 '30 300w

New Statesman 35:60 Ap 19 '30 200w

St Louis 28:203 S '30

"As compact and lucid an account of an immense and complicated area of events as could be devised. But the 'Select Book List' is the really weak feature of a volume that contains much solid work. The Book List is rather a pity; for the book it is meant to illustrate is so good."

+ — Spec 145:258 Ag 23 '30 500w

"Mr. Wand has attained a remarkable degree of success in the synoptic view which his study affords of the development of the various Christian bodies and of their proportionate contribution to the evangelization of non-Christian lands. No book of equal compass has marshalled so great and varied a mass of detail, bringing together in a comparative manner relevant information from all continents."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p178 Mr 6 '30 2250w

WAR nurse; the true story of a woman who lived, loved and suffered on the western front. 265p $2 Cosmopolitan bk.

30-11615

"The narrative begins with the personal history of the diarist, who calls herself Corinne Andrews and tells about her life in a well-to-do family in New York City previous to the outbreak of the war. There is a good deal of detail

WAR nurse—Continued
in the narration of the events that led up to her volunteering as a nurse in the hospital at Neuilly within a few months after the beginning of war, and then the story plunges into her experiences in this and other hospitals during the four years and more in which she continued at work. . . But the narrative soon swings away from this theme and is absorbed by the personal relations of the young nurse and her love affair with a young American ambulance driver who becomes an aviator."—N Y Times

Reviewed by M. M. Waterman

Bookm 71:329 Je '30 500w

"'War Nurse' is as unsentimental a war love story as one could wish. If the story of so clear-headed and analytical a heroine lacks dramatic intensity and sounds at times less like a diary or a novel than a document describing the morale (and morality) behind the lines—perhaps that is just what it is intended to be. In any case, fact or fiction, it is another valuable attempt to make something of the war." Garreta Busey

+ Books p24 Ap 13 '30 750w

"To what good is the unnecessary lack of reticence of this autobiography. . . It does not ring true to us." F. B.

— Boston Transcript p3 Ap 12 '30 850w

"Unfortunately for the effect of this book, a great deal of slightly bogus romance has been introduced, making a second-rate novel out of what might have been interesting fact." G. T. Hellman

— + New Repub 62:357 My 14 '30 100w

N Y Times p10 Ap 20 '30 380w

Reviewed by Stanley Went

Sat R of Lit 6:1105 Je 7 '30 100w

WARBEKE, JOHN MARTYN. Searching mind of Greece. 464p $5; text ed $3.75 Crofts

180 Philosophy, Ancient 30-7007

An analytical history of Greek philosophy written primarily for students of philosophy. The book attempts to show the analogy between Greek knowledge and modern psychological thought.

Books p12 Mr 23 '30 170w

"There have been countless histories of Greek philosophy, but none more charming to read than this."

+ Christian Century 47:1314 O 29 '30 180w

N Y Evening Post p10m Mr 8 '30 40w

Springf'd Republican p7e F 16 '30 200w

"It gives a clear, comprehensive, systematic survey of a very difficult period of thought, supports interpretations of the different authors' point of view with carefully chosen quotations, and offers the critical student a well-selected list of references for advanced work in the field." H. M.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 13 '30 750w

"His style is too formless, verbose, and unidiomatic to suit even comparative beginners among students of philosophy in England . . . But Professor Warbeke writes with gusto, which makes up for many peccadilloes of style. He makes the tenets and speculations of individual philosophers live again, and is himself quick to point out their affinities with the speculations and discoveries of modern science. He has a genuine enthusiasm for Greek philosophy, and a wide acquaintance with modern scientific ideas."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p231 Mr 20 '30 1250w

WARBURG, PAUL MORITZ. Federal reserve system; its origin and growth; reflections and recollections. 2v 853;899p $12 (50s) Macmillan

332.11 Federal reserve banks 30-11862

"This book embodies Mr. Warburg's views of the Federal Reserve System, both in the light of circumstances surrounding its origin and of its practical workings in its sixteen years of existence, during the first four of which the author was himself one of the original members of the Federal Reserve Board."—N Y Times

"In these two massive volumes Mr. Warburg has set himself two quite distinct tasks: First, to record certain phases of the history of a great financial reform movement which culminated in the Federal Reserve act of 1913—a movement in which he himself played a leading role—and, second, to appropriate certain policies which the reserve system has been following in recent years, and suggest changes in its organization. To the first task he has given much painstaking labor, based on intimate first-hand knowledge often shared heretofore with few others. Students of our financial history can henceforth have a much clearer insight into the genesis of the reserve system than was hitherto possible." C. O. Hardy

+ Books p10 My 11 '30 1700w

"Mr. Warburg reveals an extraordinary gift of simplifying and clarifying complex material; a fluid and captivating style leaves not a dull page in these volumes, and the subject matter is so excellently indexed, chapters so clearly labeled and the supplemental material so well separated that the reader can easily digest those portions that interest him and still have an adequate idea of the general sweep of the theme." Bernhard Ostrolenk

+ Current Hist 32:428 Je '30 750w

"Paul M. Warburg's two imposing volumes on the Federal Reserve System are at once a historical document of the very first importance, a theoretical treatise of extraordinary interest, and a valuable manual of detailed advice for financiers and statesmen. The essential facts of the origin and early development of the Federal Reserve System are established beyond the possibility of successful question. The theoretical foundations of that system are set forth with extraordinary clarity of thought and elegance of exposition. The dangers threatening the system and the practical methods of avoiding them are pointed out with a directness and simplicity that make unnecessary any parade of the profound knowledge of fact and theory underlying the suggestions." H. R. Mussey

+ Nation 130:602 My 21 '30 1250w

"Probably no man is in a better position and more soundly equipped to undertake the task of directing public attention to the defects, dangers and benefits of this great institution than Mr. Warburg. Any one who understands the great need of the country to be able to mobilize its credit resources and who has observed its achievements under normal conditions as well as in periods of financial crisis and credit strain can hardly fail to be impressed by the effective manner in which Mr. Warburg has presented his argument." P. O. Wotton

+ N Y Evening Post p8m My 24 '30 1000w

Reviewed by A. D. Noyes

N Y Times p14 My 11 '30 1600w

Reviewed by John Carter

Outlook 155:471 Jl 23 '30 150w

St Louis 28:206 S '30

"No future student of these subjects can afford to disregard these volumes which carry the weight of their distinguished author's thorough theoretical grasp and practical experience of monetary and banking problems." Russell Leffingwell

+ Sat R of Lit 7:153 S 27 '30 2150w

Springf'd Republican p12 Je 12 '30 420w

WARD, ARTHUR SARSFIELD. See Rohmer, S., pseud.

WARD, LEO RICHARD. Philosophy of value; an essay in constructive criticism. 263p $2.25 Macmillan

121 Worth 30-4876

The meaning of value, treated from the Catholic and Thomistic viewpoints, is discussed by Dr Ward. He presents, critically, the opinions of such thinkers as John Dewey, Whitehead, Bertrand Russell, Hobhouse and others on the question.

"Dr. Ward, whatever else he has done, has shown that moral problems can be treated in a lively manner and touched without injury by the imaginative and gracious phrase. But he does more than this. In the first part of his book he has a good time with the cloudiness and contradiction in the ethical definitions of certain of his contemporaries. It is all quite respectful and dignified, but the shrewd thrust is there, and it makes easy and pleasant reading. The difficulties arise of course when he passes from criticism to construction. It cannot perhaps be said that Dr. Ward is wholly successful in coming through the danger unscathed. Nevertheless, for having given us so readable a book and so useful a presentation of scholastic realism on the question of value he deserves no small share of commendation."

+ — Books p12 My 11 '30 400w

Boston Transcript p8 Mr 29 '30 380w

"Father Ward, in giving us the first book in English on this subject to be writen from the Catholic viewpoint, has made a very important and necessary contribution to philosophic thought, and has in addition presented his contribution in a most readable form." K. E. M.

+ Cath World 131:758 S '30 320w

"Neither the Church nor outsiders will find it satisfactory. By those of his own faith Mr. Ward will be considered to give too much weight to the philosophy of action. By others . . . Mr. Ward will be found to have no real agreement with non-religions philosophy. . . Mr. Ward would have done us a better service if he had admitted that he does not start from experience but from Being. Then he might have clarified the ultimate issues instead of slurring them over." Felix Morrow

— New Repub 62:252 Ap 16 '30 600w

Times [London] Lit Sup p418 My 15 '30 360w

WARD, LYND KENDALL. God's man; a novel in woodcuts. 144pl $3 Cape

Wood engravings 29-25173

For descriptive note see Annual for 1929.

"In this book the author-artist uses his genuine talent for the woodcut to tell a rather banal story of an artist's success and the tragedy of his disillusionment. . . Mr. Ward's book is unfortunately nearer the tabloid than the tapestry."

— Bookm 70:xiv Ja '30 120w

"The woodcuts themselves exhibit a fine quality of decorative design as well as that vigorous and simple handling of masses without which a woodcut does not justify its existence, and they have a grim macabre humor which fits both the technique and the theme. Like it or not, this is a genuine achievement of creative imagination."

+ Christian Century 47:310 Mr 5 '30 150w

"Beautiful, very able, and in its way profound, it is in total effect rather trivial."

+ — Nation and Ath 46:682 F 15 '30 170w

Reviewed by L. P. Hartley

Sat R 149:145 F 1 '30 30w

"Despite its extreme lucidity and interesting exploitation of a novel method, we have several faults to find with God's Man. As a story it is admittedly banal; as a series of woodcuts it is of uneven quality."

— + Spec 144:132 Ja 25 '30 350w

"An ingenious and interesting experiment. Mr. Ward's woodcuts tell, not perhaps a novel, but a dramatic short story. The story in itself may be exciting, but scarcely enough, one would have thought, to have carried one through the long series of woodcuts with so much interest. For after a little one's curiosity about the story becomes intense, which may show how keenly interesting after all the subject of pictures is."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p435 My 22 '30 250w

Reviewed by Douglas Haskell

World Tomorrow 13:89 F '30 400w

WARD, LYND KENDALL. Madman's drum; a novel in woodcuts. 128 pl $3 (7s 6d) Cape

Wood engravings 30-31383

The story of Lynd Ward's second novel in woodcuts follows the psychological method. A retired sailor with a wicked past determines to bring up his son in a very intellectual atmosphere. The boy indeed becomes, as this reader sees it, such a great scientist that he neglects love, physical appetite and several other healthy things in the pursuit of his scientific achievements, with the result that his life and those bound with his end in tragedy. The primitive lust as symbolized by the African drum in the early part of the book thus is made to triumph over the achievements of civilization.

"Mr. Lynd Ward's second novel in woodcuts is or is not an advance over his effective book of last year, 'God's Man,' according to the approach you choose. On the technical side the woodcutting is richer and more resourceful. There are many blocks that are thrilling as design and as successful in expression. Certain mannerisms which one must hope Mr. Ward will outgrow still obtrude themselves. . . The fable, however, has not served Mr. Ward well. . . Unlike 'God's Man,' which keenly enlisted the sympathy of the spectator for the hero and main characters, this book inspires no sympathy for the assuredly unfortunate protagonist." F. J. Mather

+ — Books p3 N 23 '30 400w

"By the very nature of the medium, any novel in woodcuts must depend on stock symbols and familiar emotional patterns; it can offer no great contribution either to fiction or to art."

New Repub 65:117 D 10 '30 100w

"Mr. Ward's best woodcuts show an exquisite sense of pattern and decorative detail; his conception is almost always poetic, ardent and lyrical. Looking through his book as an anthology of woodcuts cannot but afford one many pleasurable moments. But these woodcuts fall easily into two classifications, the excellent and the not-so-good, and invariably the latter was necessitated by the exigencies of story." Edwin Seaver

+ — N Y Evening Post p4d D 20 '30 180w

"There is no doubt about Lynd Ward: he can make wood-cuts that express single shades of feeling with remarkable accuracy. Taken page by page, 'God's Man,' his first attempt at the novel in wood-cuts, proved that. But there is also no doubt that he has yet to tell a good connected and dramatic story by means of wood-cuts. 'God's Man,' judged by literary standards, tended to the over-simplification of melodrama; the horrors, effective enough in the single picture, were piled on to such an extent that the result was ludicrous. And 'Mad Man's Drum,' Mr. Ward's second novel, is even less successful than the first, for the reason that it is more obscure."

— + N Y Times p9 D 7 '30 350w

"To convey ideas in drawings, to portray action as the result of protracted thought, is a hard task for the author. Ward has a trick of bringing the reader face to face with men who are thinking, probing, discovering an idea. The effect is dramatic. The story of Ward's picture novel demands pondering. I have not grasped all the symbolism myself, but I have read enough into it to convince me that he has power. The pictorial tale skips a beat now and then, but this is probably intentional." Harry Hansen

N Y World p9 N 3 '30 220w

Sat R of Lit 7:462 D 13 '30 100w

WARE, JOHN CHRISTIE. Chemistry of the colloidal state; a textbook for an introductory course. 313p il $3.75 Wiley

541.345 Colloids 30-3737

"This is 'A Textbook for an Introductory Course,' which undertakes 'to present the fundamentals of colloid chemistry as they are

WARE, J. C.—Continued
disclosed by an analysis of the material available at this time and not in accordance with the facts of twenty years ago, when the subject was on the threshold of a period of very intensive scientific research.' "—Chem & Met Eng

"The reviewer is disappointed not so much with the treatment of the subject matter which is presented as with the selection and arrangement of that included. The beginner in the field of colloid chemistry will find much of interest in this text. The numerous references to the literature will stimulate his desire for further reading." A. L. Elder
+ — Am Chem Soc J 52:2593 Je '30 180w

"Although intended primarily for college student use, it gives a simple and rather readable discussion in language that will not occasion difficulty for industrial chemists and chemical engineers. It is the type of book that will facilitate gaining acquaintance with this important new branch of chemistry by those whose college days lay well before the recognition of the importance of this division of science."
+ Chem & Met Eng 37:311 My '30 100w

Reviewed by W. D. Bancroft
J Phys Chem 34:894 Ap '30 900w

"One hoped to find in this volume a lucid and up-to-date account of a growing science; unfortunately, it is so marred by inaccuracies in detail that it would be inadvisable to place it in the hands of any but a very intelligent student." P. C. L. Thorne
— Nature 126:sup516 O 4 '30 400w
N Y New Tech Bks 15:17 Ap '30

WARMOTH, HENRY CLAY. War, politics and reconstruction; stormy days in Louisiana. 285p $3.50 Macmillan

976.3 Louisiana—Politics and government. Elections—Louisiana. Reconstruction—Louisiana 30-14670

The author, former governor of Louisiana, tells the story of the state after the Civil war. Warmoth, a self-made man, a lawyer at the outbreak of hostilities, became an officer in the Union army, was wounded in active service, and later drifted to Louisiana as a carpetbagger. Protected by the Union, and having won the Negro vote, he became governor in 1868. The history is a defense of carpetbaggers, and records, from a partisan viewpoint, the story of reconstruction in the state during and after his governorship.

Reviewed by D. C. Seitz
Bookm 71:567 Ag '30 380w

"It is a most naïve bit of writing. It is not good history; it is not even an honest attempt to tell the facts from the inside; it is a partisan's effort to reverse the judgments of history in his own interests. Its value lies largely in the unintentional picture which is given to the informed reader of plundering factions, upheld by war-engendered attitudes, carrying out the privileges of the conqueror over the fallen foe." Avery Craven
— Books p4 Ag 10 '30 850w
Current Hist 33:xxiii O '30 100w

"Under the circumstances it cannot well avoid being a partisan autobiography and justification, a fact quite unaffected by the writer's evident sincerity and honesty of purpose. His account of events has the documentary value inherent in the testimony of a participant and eyewitness regarding the history of his time and supplies first-hand material for the dispassionate consideration of the historian." F. H .M.
N Y Evening Post p5s Ag 9 '30 150w

"Probably this is the last word we shall ever hear from any surviving carpetbagger about what happened, and it is a good thing Warmoth is such a vigorous and strong-muscled writer. Warmoth, who bases his work on his diaries, notes and correspondence, without tiresomely quoting them, turns on lights that are new, at least to this generation." C. W. Thompson
+ N Y Times p3 Je 29 '30 1700w

"The record as he gives it is well worth reading. It cannot be ignored by any future student of that era." W. B. Shaw
+ R of Rs 82:12 Ag '30 200w
St Louis 28:219 S '30
Springf'd Republican p5e Je 22 '30 150w

WARNER, AMOS GRISWOLD; QUEEN, STUART ALFRED; and HARPER, ERNEST BOULDIN. American charities and social work. 4th ed 616p $3.75 Crowell

360 Charities—United States. Social service 30-10059

A new edition, based upon the author's first work on American charities appearing in 1894. The present volume, which is practically a new book, endeavors to "present a detailed contrast between American social work of two different periods, the eighteen-nineties and the nineteen-twenties."

Reviewed by G. B. Mangold
Am Econ R 20:785 D '30 450w

Reviewed by E. F. Young
Am J Soc 36:502 N '30 280w

"The authors have brought together a tremendous amount of information and have presented it in a thoroughly scholarly and readable style. This book deserves the careful study of every individual interested in the problems of humanity. Excellent bibliographies are provided for the various chapters and there is an adequate index." J. P. Shalloo
+ Ann Am Acad 151:289 S '30 220w
Booklist 26:410 Jl '30

"Insofar as their space permitted, they have faithfully and courageously depicted what they see in the arena of social welfare. The amount of figures and precise information they have included without sacrifice of readability, is truly astounding. As an introductory text—an orientation course for students of social work—the book should have immense value, and the young social workers of the future should not begin their professional careers so unacquainted with the roots of their calling as has sometimes been the case." J. C. Colcord
+ — Survey 65:231 N 15 '30 500w

WARNER, ARTHUR. Landlubber's log; around the world as sailor and tramp. 300p $3 Little

910.4 Voyages around the world 30-3977

Mr Warner, who has been a New York newspaper correspondent and is now an associate editor of the Nation, tells in this personal narrative the story of his trip some twenty years ago, around the world as sailor and tramp. Just out of college, he started off with a penny in his pocket to see the world, and when he came back he had a profit of $2.61—to say nothing of some invaluable and intensely interesting experiences. Mr Warner tells of his voyage on a tramp steamer to Australia and New Zealand, some cross-country adventures in the New Zealand bush, a job with the Salvation army at New Castle, and a final job as stoker on a boat to London.

Booklist 26:276 Ap '30

"Mr. Warner possesses a sharp eye for characterization and description, and exhibits a deep unalloyed love of life. The result is a book that convinces the reader of its authenticity from the first page to the last. There is nothing overdrawn or overreached here. . . A landlubber's Log is really an account of the actual realization of the dream of wandering that obsesses every adventurous youth who has heard of the sea. That, perhaps, is why it is so pleasing to read." Herbert Gorman
+ Bookm 71:123 Mr '30 320w

"Mr. Warner is one of those valuable persons who take a quiet pleasure in everything they see or do, and who recall it later with a kind of modest unembarrassed integrity. He even is one of those who on the whole prefer plain and unpleasant adventures—or at least remember them with the same relish that they bestow on conventionally happy hours. He likes life so much that he will not make distinctions between better and worse ways of living it. Everything has its point for him, everything rests comfortably in its natural setting." Mark Van Doren

+ Books p5 Ja 26 '30 700w

Boston Transcript p3 Mr 1 '30 480w

"Mr. Warner's yarn has something of the hard fidelity to fact which one associates with a ship's log. There is not the remotest suggestion of deliberate dramatic heightening or fictitious falsification for the sake of a better story. Without the use of any gestures or obtrusive devices he has told his story quietly and simply. His veracity is the veracity of cool restraint, even of under-statement, and he is as skilful in this respect as is William H. Davies in 'The Autobiography of a Super-Tramp.' But he is more charming than Davies in his commentaries upon his experiences—upon men and things. He has the ability to turn informal essayist at a moment's notice, but he does it with fine artistic tact and an understanding of the requirements of effective narrative." Glen Mullin

+ Nation 130:400 Ap 2 '30 800w

N Y Times p5 Mr 16 '30 600w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:55 Je '30

Springf'd Republican p7e My 18 '30 150w

Wis Lib Bul 26:104 Mr '30

WARNER, WELLMAN JOEL. Wesleyan movement in the industrial revolution. 299p $5 (15s) Longmans

287 Methodism. Wesley, John. Great Britain —Social conditions. Industrial revolution [30-12357]

Dr Warner takes up the social theory underlying the Methodist movement, which was a revivalist movement that occurred coincidentally with the industrial revolution. It is interpreted thus in relation to the political and economic revolution, and the interaction of each upon the other.

"Although presented in a somewhat heavy and monotonous style, Dr. Warner's study, thorough, detailed, discriminating, and well-documented, is a valuable contribution both to the literature on Methodism and to the social history of the period with which it deals." H. E. Starr

+ — Am Hist R 36:127 O '30 650w

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison

Christian Century 47:1063 S 3 '30 600w

"This is a useful study of the effect of a religious revival upon economic circumstances. [Its] is a more valuable example of ethical principle in operation than is to be found in textbooks of ethics." C. D. B.

+ Int J Ethics 41:139 O '30 200w

"Very detailed, able, and interesting study." Gilbert Thomas

+ Nation and Ath 47:540 Jl 26 '30 620w

"As a study of doctrine and social attitude his book is excellent; but he might well have told his readers more of the actual men who were leaders in the movement, and of the actual incidents of its growth in the industrial areas. Wesley's personality and point of view emerge clearly enough; but these we knew before. It would have been well if Mr. Warner had brought away from his wide reading in the plentiful biographical studies of Wesleyan leaders more light on their personalities and on their contacts with the new forces that the Industrial Revolution brought to birth."

+ — New Statesman 35:625 Ag 23 '30 850w

St Louis 28:204 S '30

"An important phase of our eighteenth-century history is discussed by an American scholar. He is well informed, and not unfriendly, but he sometimes seems to forget that Wesley had a spiritual mission and was not concerned with social or political or economic reform."

+ — Spec 144:866 My 24 '30 160w

"Mr. Warner's book is based on full and careful research in the abundant material at his command. He has explored all these records with great industry. His style is sometimes a little difficult and confused, but his book is full of instruction; and he writes as a student in deep sympathy with the ideals of Wesley, but well able to examine and survey Methodist history in a judicial temper. . . His book is valuable also as giving a picture of the admirable work done by the Methodists in making life more humane and in lifting the English people out of the barbarism of the times."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p404 My 15 '30 1270w

WARREN, DALE, comp. Modern galaxy. 425p $3 Houghton

Short stories—Collections 30-30229

A short story anthology from the work of contemporary writers. Contents: Papago wedding, by Mary Austin; Perpetual care, by M. A. Barnes; Blue clay, by Phyllis Bottome; Sing a song of sixpence, by John Buchan; Herself, by K. N. Burt; Double birthday, by Willa Cather; Bailey's beach, by Esther Forbes; Fame for Mr Beatty, by J. N. Hall; Miss Hinch, by H. S. Harrison; North is black, by Oliver La Farge; Wanted on the voyage, by Denis Mackail; Lambert Orme, by Harold Nicolson; The river god, by Roland Pertwee; Blood-money, by Rafael Sabatini; The rat, by A. D. Sedgwick; The world turned upside down, by Elsie Singmaster.

Boston Transcript p4 D 3 '30 200w

"The collection is more readable and has more true vitality than Mr. O'Brien's yearly offerings on the altar of art. One of the merits of the book lies in its variety."

+ — N Y Times p9 N 30 '30 450w

WARREN, EDWARD H. Shakespeare in Wall Street. 36p $1 Houghton

812 30-7219

A burlesque in the form of a Shakespearean tragedy celebrating the stock market crash. The characters are Shakespeare and Mrs Shakespeare, speculators; Shakespeare's sons, Hamlet, a pessimistic bond salesman, Macbeth, a timid bull, and Falstaff, an anti-prohibitionist. Polonius appears as secretary to Shakespeare, Shylock as a stockbroker; and the Three Witches (who hang out near a New Jersey blast factory) work into the play an atmospheric amount of ticker-tape.

"As one of the current attempts to laugh off the recent débacle in the stock market this is moderately amusing."

Boston Transcript p2 Ja 25 '30 130w

"Blank verse is, after all, a rather heavy medium for light treatment of so solemn a subject as the stock market crash. There are clever bits in Mr. Warren's book, but as a whole the work is tiresome." A. B. McMurphy

— Portland Evening News p5 Ja 7 '30 80w

St Louis 28:108 Ap '30

"The skit has understanding and humor. There are many phases of American life which could be illuminated by the same combination of gifts exhibited with equal neatness."

+ Springf'd Republican p12 D 18 '29 230w

WARREN, ROBERT PENN. John Brown; the making of a martyr. 474p il $5 Brewer

B or 92 Brown, John 29-23481

For descriptive note see Annual for 1929.

Reviewed by G. B. Munson

Bookm 71:114 Mr '30 130w

"Mr. Warren, with pen a trifle caustic, follows the story of this queer 'saint-devil' with considerable understanding but with much too flippant an attitude. He offers an indictment, not an unbiased biography. There is in it a certain quality of keen analysis and ability for pointed statement, but the temptation to clever manipulation and overstatement is too great. . . But there is, on the other hand, about as good a picture of that John Brown which the South knew in days of old as is to be found in popular form." Avery Craven

WARREN, R. P.—Continued

+ — Books p17 Ja 12 '30 920w

Cleveland Open Shelf p28 F '30

Reviewed by Francis Snow
Current Hist 31:836 F '30 150w

"He has judiciously re-evaluated the facts and events of Brown's life. The early years of struggle, brooding, vicissitude, and his Puritanic temperament furnish in Mr. Warren's opinion the key to Brown's later activities. In these pages he emerges a fanatical figure midway between Oswald Garrison Villard's John Brown: A Biography Fifty Years After and Hill Peebles Wilson's John Brown: Soldier of Fortune."

+ Hist Outlook 21:186 Ap '30 500w

Reviewed by William MacDonald
Nation 131:22 Jl 2 '30 900w

Reviewed by Allan Nevins
New Repub 62:134 My 19 '30 950w

"John Brown is dramatized, made vital, and to a certain extent he grips the reader's imagination. But he is not made understandable, unless the reader accepts Mr. Warren's estimate of him as a common criminal whose only virtue was his courage. And any one who has studied sympathetically the history of this country during the two decades preceding the Civil War cannot feel that such an estimate tells the whole story." F. F. Kelly

— + N Y Times p7 Ja 12 '30 1400w

St Louis 28:113 Ap '30

Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 12 '30 800w

Reviewed by R. H. Gabriel
Yale R n s 19:595 spring '30 150w

WARSHOW, ROBERT IRVING. Story of Wall Street. 362p il $5 Greenberg

332.6 Wall street. Capitalists and financiers. Speculation 29-23801

For descriptive note see Annual for 1929.

Booklist 26:190 F '30

Bookm 70:v Ja '30 200w

"Most of the material contained in the less than 350 pages of this work is familiar to the close student of American financial history; many of the colorful incidents which enrich its pages have even attained, in their general outlines, widespread public currency. Nevertheless, it would be unfortunate for any one who enjoys brisk, living biography to be dissuaded from reading it on that account. One may enjoy it purely for its dashing portraiture or look behind the impressive series of figures with which it deals and trace in the background the story of American finance and industry." E. H. Collins

+ Books p10 F 16 '30 950w

Cleveland Open Shelf p70 My '30

"Panoramic in breadth, its depth of economic insight is regrettably shallow. . . A reportorial style has just glazed the surface of the subject and set down, not always with thorough accuracy, a series of glamorous facts compiled from a bibliography which includes most of the standard Wall Street works. . . The book is conspicuous for its paucity of dates and aberrations in connection with those few which can be found." A. B. Gold

— Hist Outlook 21:88 F '30 580w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:3 Ja '30

St Louis 28:5 Ja '30

"It is unfortunate that Mr. Warshow does not trace this gradual evolution of the stock market with more care. The submersion of the individual and the transition into higher codes of ethics might have been woven into the theme as outstanding developments down through the years. While not burdening the reader with new material the author does present a series of early portraits with which every stock speculator must familiarize himself if he would know his Wall Street from the beginnings." P. W. Garrett

— + Survey 63:486 Ja 15 '30 330w

WARTHIN, ALDRED SCOTT. Creed of a biologist; a biologic philosophy of life. 70p $1.50 Hoeber [7s 6d Constable]

111 Life (biology) 30-5735

"The Professor of Pathology, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, here seeks to formulate some working creed for those who have lost faith in revealed religion, and finding no evidence for personal immortality, wish to enunciate some kind of purposeful ideal of life and conduct. From a biological point of view the most fundamental law is that of reproduction of the species. Here Dr. Warthin finds the key to a reasonable faith based on sociological and eugenic aims."—Times [London] Lit Sup

"Every creed is entitled to a few dogmas; and these are here tolerantly held and genially expressed." T. V. Smith

+ Am J Soc 36:337 S '30 320w

Nature 126:sup538 O 4 '30 180w

"It is the creed, not of a biologist, but of an extreme eugenist, who sinks all of life into the production of more life." Maynard Shipley

— New Repub 63:133 Je 18 '30 450w

Times [London] Lit Sup p579 Jl 10 '30 200w

WARWICK, EDWARD, and PITZ, HENRY C. Early American costume. (Century lib. of Am. antiques) 319p il $4 Century

391 Costume—United States. United States—Social life and customs—Colonial period 29-23781

An illustrated history of costume in America from the earliest Virginia settlements until approximately 1820, giving also more than a glimpse of the life and customs of the people themselves. Beginning with the European background the authors cover early Virginia, New England to 1675, the Dutch in New York, Pennsylvania to the Revolution, the Revolution and the new republic, and frontier life. There is a bibliography and an index.

Booklist 26:190 F '30

"Their collaboration has resulted in an authoritative and absorbing study."

+ Boston Transcript p2 F 5 '30 280w

N Y Times p31 N 10 '29 180w

"This is an exceptionally fine book for anyone who has artistic work to do involving the early life of our country. Although the title emphasizes the word 'costume' there is a wealth of detail and description giving an accurate and informative background from which one can reconstruct the whole environment of these costumes." H. L. Langdon

+ Portland Evening News p5 Ja 22 '30 180w

Pratt p13 autumn '30

St Louis 28:6 Ja '30

"Warwick and Pitz have written a textbook in social history, but they are apparently more interested in the artistic phases of its development. The layout of plates and figures no doubt makes what a printer would call a fine balance of reading matter for each illustration, but the reader must waste precious time in turning backwards to find the illustrations to which the text refers. Despite these criticisms, the book is a splendid piece of work and may be highly recommended to the general reader as well as to the specialist in applied art and American antiques." P. H. Nystrom

+ — Survey 64:447 Ag 15 '30 300w

Wis Lib Bul 26:65 F '30

WASHBURN, EDWIN CHAPIN. Caleb Cutter, New Englander. 368p il $2.50 The author, Englewood, N.J.

30-3070

"This is the second volume of that 'American Series' in which Mr. Washburn is to follow the fortunes of a typical New England family from before the Civil War down to the present time. The first volume, 'John Read, American,' gives a picture of New England life in the fifties, and through it that of the nation generally. It culminates in the stirring description of the proceedings of the Republican Convention of 1860, held in Chicago which nominated Abraham Lincoln of Illinois for the presidency. The present story begins about three months before his election in November of that year."—Boston Transcript

"Mr. Washburn writes sanely, presenting the cause of the South as fairly as that of the North." F. B.
+ Boston Transcript p8 D 28 '29 950w

"There is a good deal of incoherence in the plot of 'Caleb Cutter,' and the characters are mere lay figures, cut to a long-familiar pattern. But its historical material has been gathered with more than usual care and is presented with engaging enthusiasm."
— + N Y Times p7 D 22 '29 550w

WASHBURN, EDWIN CHAPIN. "The 17." 290p pl $2.50 The author, Englewood, N.J.
29-30525

The heroine of this novel giving the history of railroading from its early days to its modern development, is engine number 17. The story opens in 1880, when 17 is being completed in the Baldwin shops. She makes friends with all sorts of railway engines, old and new, who tell her many tales of their experiences, especially in the pioneer days when the Northwest territory was opened.

Boston Transcript p4 F 21 '30 200w

"Here is an unusual novel which will appeal, and perhaps strongly, to a limited group of readers. It contains a mine of interesting, authentic and, from a literary point of view, pliable material. But the form in which Mr. Washburn has chosen to cast his material tends a good deal to restrict its general usefulness. . . The drama of Mr. Washburn's novel, plentiful and inherent though it is, is weighted by technical disquisitions which slow the action and interrupt the tenuous thread of the plot."
+ — N Y Times p6 Ja 5 '30 620w

"In the beginning the story drags, and is somewhat difficult to read by one not particularly interested in railroads; but after a few chapters the book becomes more entertaining, and the interest mounts steadily to the end. Most boys will want to reread it. It is amply illustrated by pictures of historic interest and engines."
+ Sat R of Lit 6:791 Mr 1 '30 200w

WASHBURN, ROBERT COLLYER. Prayer for profit: being the colorful story of our Pilgrim fathers. 305p $3 Sears

974.48 Pilgrim fathers. Massachusetts—History
30-9235

"Following the modern popular method of presenting biography and history in more or less fictionized form, Mr. Washburn tells the narrative of the embarkation and voyage of the Mayflower, the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth and their life in Massachusetts for the next few years in novelized form. He uses, verbatim, long conversations; describes with colorful detail all manner of happenings, personal, public, intimate; reports and discusses motives, inner uncertainties and convictions as a novelist would with his own creations—and never once does he indicate whether or not he had any foundation of fact for any morsel of his 'colorful story.'"—N Y Times

Boston Transcript p2 D 24 '30 420w

"In attempting to show the human side of the Pilgrim Fathers, he yields so much to the spirit of caricature and to his facile pen that his portrait of the passengers on the 'Mayflower' is as distorted and inaccurate as Washington Irving's humorous sketches of the patroons—while lacking the literary merit of 'The Knickerbocker Papers.'" Joe Gould
— New Repub 64:188 O 1 '30 150w

"Now comes the turn of the Pilgrims to be debunked. Mr. Washburn undertakes the task with enthusiasm. So zestful is his absorption in it, indeed, that he forgets to tell us how much of the ammunition with which he attempts to deflate their renown is fact and how much is fancy. His 'colorful story' certainly does not lack color, but the reader's confidence in it might have been increased if he had made known how much of it is the product of his imagination and what are his authorities for the rest."
— N Y Times p23 Ap 6 '30 380w

WASSERMANN, JAKOB. Columbus: Don Quixote of the seas; tr. from the German by Eric Sutton. 287p il $3.50 Little [10s 6d Secker]

B or 92 Columbus, Christopher 30-7969

In his biography of Columbus Mr Wassermann, as his subtitle, Don Quixote of the seas indicates, emphasizes Columbus' mystical belief, to the point of fanaticism, in his own destiny. His voyage of discovery is seen by the author as something in the nature either of a mad religious obsession, or the adventure of a romantic knight of the Don Quixote order.

Reviewed by Charles Johnston
Atlantic Bookshelf p26 My '30 320w
Booklist 27:102 N '30

"Wassermann's Columbus is a biography worth reading. In these days of romantic biography it is strong meat, realism that makes no concessions. It neither vilifies nor idealizes the man whom everyone disliked, yet whose burning eloquence consumed all barriers to his accomplishment. No reader will forget this harsh figure from whom the fierce vicissitudes of life beat all joy, all humor, all nobility."
Bookm 71:227 Ap '30 350w

"While Mr. Wassermann relates pleasantly and with considerable literary skill all the well known facts, the Quixote theory stands on shaky legs, except it be taken for granted that there is something quixotic in the composition of every adventurer. Mr. Wassermann goes so far in pursuit of his idea that he rejects Columbus's early voyaging. . . The voyage to Iceland and to Bristol is not quite as unsubstantiated as Mr. Wassermann believes. It is worth noting that in the 'Book of Old Maps' there appears a reproduction of the world map made by Bartholomew and Christopher Columbus, hence Mr. Wassermann's statement that Columbus was no seaman seems to rest on slim foundations. There is another point to be noticed: The world knew a great deal more of geography in 1492 than Mr. Wassermann suspects." C. J. Finger
— + Books p2 Mr 9 '30 1100w
Boston Transcript p1 Ap 5 '30 550w

Reviewed by Titus Lehmann
Christian Century 47:1215 O 8 '30 550w

"The trouble with Wassermann, whose nature is intensely, almost feverishly moral, is that he cannot reconcile charlatanism with greatness. Therefore he has to rationalize or, better, mysticize what to many people would seem the qualities of a brave, daring, but greedy and unscrupulous trickster who played with commendable cleverness upon the religious susceptibilities of his employers and who was interested personally in the main chance. It is also possible that Wassermann has been misled by some obvious parallels in the exterior lives of his heroes; both suffered degradation, imprisonment, the incredulity of their contemporaries, etc. But not all Wassermann's eloquence can make these parallels seem other than accidental. As a work of lyric prose his book is valuable, but as a historical interpretation it is half-baked." C. P. Fadiman
— + Nation 130:298 Mr 12 '30 400w

Reviewed by G. T. Hellman
New Repub 63:239 Jl 16 '30 400w

"Herr Wassermann tells us very little about the facts of Columbus's career; as he says, the facts are all in dispute—'mere saga.' But his own account of Columbus's state of mind is equally guess-work, equally 'saga.'"

WASSERMANN, JAKOB—Continued

— + New Statesman 34:710 Mr 8 '30 600w

"Wassermann has constructed a new and, it must be confessed, hitherto the most plausible portrait of the discoverer. . . A good, sweeping narrative, this. It moves rhythmically and fluently. As it goes on the symbolical Explorer-Hero disappears and a credible, live human being emerges out of the fog of myth, legend and idolatry." Louis Sherwin

+ N Y Evening Post p10m Mr 15 '30 800w

"A remarkably dispassionate biography of the discoverer, which is a splendid piece of narration, a sombre and exciting tragedy."

+ Outlook 154:466 Mr 19 '30 230w

Sat R 149:530 Ap 26 '30 600w

"If Jacob Wassermann's 'Columbus' was intended to be a caricature of the current school of biographical writing, it is a brilliant success; if, as the publishers set forth, it is a serious historical and psychological study, it may fairly claim consideration as the dullest concatenation of words put into print during the present season." G. P. Winship

Sat R of Lit 6:896 Ap 5 '30 480w

Spec 144:336 Mr 1 '30 500w

Springf'd Republican p6 Ap 21 '30 550w

Times [London] Lit Sup p153 F 27 '30 650w

WASSERMANN, JAKOB. Maurizius case; tr. by Caroline Newton. 546p $3 Liveright

29-22204

For descriptive note see Annual for 1929.

Booklist 26:205 F '30

"The book has some grave faults, but they are faults of style rather than conception. . . These weaknesses pale before the mass and power of the book as a whole, before the gravity of its emotion, and the inexorability of its psychic exploration." C. P. Fadiman

+ — Bookm 70:673 F '30 350w

"The author has unusual scope, unusually varied knowledge and experience, but not more than average depth of understanding. It is impossible to judge from a translation all his qualities as a writer, but I should be surprised to discover that the original work possesses characteristics of style more striking than lucidity and vigour. He can carry the reader through this immensely long book without wearying him. But that is not nearly enough." L. L. Irvine

+ — Nation and Ath 46:707 F 22 '30 500w

"It is a great book, even in translation: a book written with intensity and with detachment, passionate at its source, but disciplined in its channels; a patient book; patient of life, and patient of art. Wassermann can witness the most terrible happenings without screaming; and he can wait for the hour of artistic creation without trying to force it."

+ New Statesman 34:706 Mr 8 '30 600w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:4 Ja '30

"Travellers through Herr Wassermann's dark country will be exhausted when they reach the farthest boundary, but as they look back on the heights of romance and valleys of despair they will realize its magnificence." B. E. Todd

+ Spec 144:284 F 22 '30 400w

Times [London] Lit Sup p165 F 27 '30 600w

WAST, HUGO, pseud. See Martínez Zuviría, G. A.

WATERS, FRANK. Fever pitch. 233p $2.50 Liveright

30-10704

"A perfervid story of the thirst for desert gold in a Mexican dancing girl and what it did to an American engineer."—Bookm

"Some vivid descriptions of torture in the desert fail to lift this book out of the slough of the unreal." Guy Holt

— Bookm 71:351 Je '30 50w

Books p22 S 28 '30 80w

Boston Transcript p2 Ap 30 '30 150w

"A dull if lurid novel involving several impossible puppets and a moving-picture desert. There is a certain fever pitch in the way the author goes about trying to concoct a genuine mystery thriller, but as a novel the book is middling Hollywood." Edwin Seaver

— N Y Evening Post p11m Mr 15 '30 100w

N Y Times p6 Je 29 '30 520w

"It's a badly built story, and the machinery by which it is told by a third person seems to us unnecessarily clumsy, but the picture of the desert, as seen by those thirsty and suffering travelers, is unforgettable." W. R. Brooks

— + Outlook 154:467 Mr 19 '30 50w

"Although Mr. Waters obviously knows the desert, knows what it can do to the hot and thirsty, he tells his story with such obscurity and preciousness that we have difficulty in taking either the events or the characters seriously. At times we encounter downright poor writing, but in general the trouble is that Mr. Waters tries too hard for his atmosphere and forgets to consider the effectiveness of the narrative. The story might well have been cut to approximately half its present length."

— + Sat R of Lit 6:1195 Jl 12 '30 300w

Springf'd Republican p5e Jl 20 '30 230w

WATKINS, GORDON S. Labor problems. (Crowell's social science ser.) rev ed 726p $3.50 Crowell [15s Pitman]

331 Labor and laboring classes. United States—Economic conditions. Social problems

29-20227

Complete revision of a book first published in 1922. Contents: Nature and development of labor problems; Technological factors; Psychological aspects; Economic and social phases; The labor movement; Employers; Methods of industrial peace; International control.

"The book belongs in the library of the overworked professor who, confronted with the daily problem of accumulating scattered materials, alternated economics, law, and labor history, with sociology, hating himself for being cast between the Scylla devil of meeting his class and the Charybdis sea of straying from his field; yet profoundly grateful, the while, to Professor Watkins for the most inclusive and illuminating list of short historical summaries, challenging facts, and convenient bibliographies which the labor problem literature affords." W. T. Watson

+ Am J Soc 36:478 N '30 1350w

Booklist 26:325 My '30

Reviewed by F. A. Fall

Outlook 155:663 Ag 27 '30 150w

WATSON, PAUL BARRON. Tales of Normandie. 163p il $2.50 Marshall Jones

920 Normandy—Biography. Normandy—History. French literature—Normandy 30-13883

"Written for children of the present day to acquaint them with the stories of Queen Mathilda's Tapestry, Mont Saint Michel, Joan of Arc, Charlotte Corday, and a few literary and artistic celebrities."—Sat R of Lit

Boston Transcript p1 Je 21 '30 450w

Reviewed by Harry Hansen

N Y World p9 Ag 27 '30 300w

"One suspects that the book is an answer to the requirements of those exacting parents who desire their children to read no nonsense, no fairy-tales or romances, but to know from the very first, poor things, the bare, stark, established facts of history—not history as the people of the time believed it but as the most rigid criticism would have it today. The treatment is, therefore, thoroughly modern and the tone is in keeping with the treatment. Is this new type of history-telling for children an improvement on the more romantic and pleasing histories for them that one used to read twenty-five years ago?" J. M. S. Allison

— Sat R of Lit 7:31 Ag 2 '30 600w

WAUGH, ALEC. Hot countries; with woodcuts by Lynd Ward (Eng title: Coloured countries). 304p $3.50 Farrar [18s Chapman]

910 Tropics. Voyages and travels 30-12374

The hot countries of which Mr Waugh writes are Tahiti, Martinique, Siam, Ceylon, the New Hebrides and the West Indies. He tells more about the people of these countries, and their native customs, than he does about the places themselves. The women of these tropical countries, the differences between the atmosphere of Tahiti and Martinique, and the effect of the tropics upon men of Western civilization are among the book's points of interest.

Reviewed by George Dangerfield
Bookm 71:236 Ap '30 280w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Books p5 My 4 '30 500w

"It is hard to determine how much of the fascination of it is inherent in the theme and how much is the author's contribution, but the result is such as will be highly satisfying to all who feel the lure of far horizons and strange places."
+ Christian Century 47:659 My 21 '30 100w

"It is by no means as exciting as its title, but its author keeps up a flow of small talk of the sort that would single him out as an interesting companion in the salon of any ocean liner. It is not talk that remains for any length of time in the mind, but it does not irritate with any pretensions." Isidor Schneider
Nation 131:129 Jl 30 '30 200w

"Mr. Waugh's book, in spite of its wide range, is short of substance, as his travels seem to have fallen short of satisfaction. By far the best chapter is the one on Haiti, where he retells the history of the negro struggle for independence under Dessalines and Christophe." Sylva Norman
— + Nation and Ath 46:804 Mr 15 '30 350w

"In fairness to Mr. Alec Waugh it must be said that his book is not all impressions. There is a good deal of information to be found in his pleasant, if sometimes slightly self-conscious, pages—including a succinct history of black rule in Haiti and its consequences, some shrewd reflections upon the familiar problem of the white man and the brown woman, upon 'free love' as practised in Tahiti, and an account of the origin of Angostura bitters. From which may be gathered an idea of the catholicity of the interests of an open-minded globe-trotter."
New Statesman 34:542 F 1 '30 400w

Reviewed by John Metcalfe
N Y Evening Post p10m My 10 '30 900w

"In those moods when poetry annoys and fiction bores and biography is a weary burden, a travel book can lead one out of one's self as no other reading can. And 'Hot Countries,' with its reach, its appreciative observation of nature and man (not to mention woman), and its companionable manner, is one of the best for the purpose."
+ N Y Times p7 Mr 9 '30 1250w

St Louis 28:216 S '30

Sat R 149:113 Ja 25 '30 850w

"The book contains a very human short story of white and brown love-making in Tahiti, and for some select, experienced travellers with an interest in life but none in material achievements its philosophy of travel should make it the travel-book of their dreams. Its weakness, if it is a weakness, lies in its absorption in psychology to the neglect of such achievements. Psychologically, however, it has a solid value as a description of certain aspects of French colonial life—a value that is enhanced by the author's frank recognition of the limitations of his opportunities of observing it."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p54 Ja 23 '30 1000w

WAUGH, ALEC. "Sir!" she said. 281p $1 Farrar [7s 6d Chapman]

30-25820

John Terance, father of two daughters, was worried. He believed that women had not yet learned how to use their new freedom, because his elder daughter, Julia, had made mistakes. Julia didn't want her nineteen-year-old sister, Melanie, to experience the same disillusionment. But Melanie proved that she knew what she wanted, and that she could, moreover, take care of herself.

Books p24 O 26 '30 180w

Boston Transcript p2 N 5 '30 180w

"The central theme of 'Sir, She Said,' is as old as the oldest hill. The elder sister having sinned is anxious to save her sister from sinning. The unreformed profligate is ever the stern moralist. The book is brightly and snappily written in the fashion of the moment and quite outshines its rivals in the Society columns of our penny Press." K. C. Tomlinson
Nation and Ath 47:477 Jl 12 '30 220w

New Statesman 35:413 Jl 5 '30 380w

"Mr. Alec Waugh is concerned as usual with modernity, and attempts an investigation of the problems and difficulties which assail the young woman of to-day. But the circumstances of the three people he has chosen are so different, economically as well as emotionally, that it is almost impossible to look upon their activities as part of a definite pattern. . . Melanie, if anyone, should supply the keynote to the tale; and the fact that Mr. Waugh is content to settle her off with a marriage of the conventionally happy kind leads one to the conclusion that his attitude to the modern young woman is either somewhat uncertain or else decidedly Victorian."
Times [London] Lit Sup p626 Jl 31 '30 450w

WAUGH, ALEC. Three score and ten. 301p $2.50 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Chapman]

30-7791

The story spans three generations of Cardews: the father, Conway; the son, Hilary; and the grandson, Godfrey. The point of view is Hilary's. We follow him in his relation to his father from early school days until marriage and the birth of his son. Hilary's absorption in Godfrey and conflict with him, as the boy grows up, forms the substance of the remainder of the book, which closes with the christening of Godfrey's son.

Books p16 Je 8 '30 450w

Boston Transcript p1 Jl 5 '30 320w

"It is surprising how much of an air of immaturity seems to cling to everything that Mr. Alec Waugh does. At the age of seventeen he was, for his years, astonishingly mature. The Loom of Youth was not a great book, but in many ways, and especially in consistency of execution, it would have done credit to a very much older practitioner. As time has gone on, and as he has followed that with six other novels, his soundness of execution has been increased, but he has not shown any corresponding advance in thought or feeling or to the comprehension of the minds of others. One is still arrested at intervals in all his books by the conviction that this is what a clever schoolboy imagines the minds of grown-up persons to be." E. S.
— New Statesman 33:712 S 21 '29 800w

"Without plumbing any untried depths, or revealing to us any obscure corners of the human spirit, Mr. Waugh has written an intelligent, coherent and interesting novel—of the sort which dozens of sensitive, well bred Englishmen do so very adequately." Margaret Wallace

WAUGH, ALEC—Continued

+ N Y Evening Post p10m Ap 26 '30 500w

"A human document—and an uncommonly interesting one of nice detail and delicate irony."

+ N Y Times p23 Ap 27 '30 380w

"Alec Waugh has gone Warwick Deeping one better. He takes in not only the close relationship of a father and son, but he lets in the grandson, and to a slight extent the great-grandfather. . . I can positively guarantee that anybody who liked 'Sorrel and Son' will like 'Three Score And Ten' much better, because it is a much better book." Bellamy Partridge

+ N Y World p11m My 4 '30 400w

"The book is serious, it is sustained, it is the work of a practised author; but its characters are not interesting, its conversation is not revealing, and its plot, though not sensational, is sometimes improbable." L. P. Hartley

— + Sat R 148:302 S 14 '29 120w

"When Mr. Waugh selects as his theme the father-and-son motive through three successive generations he must be content to be judged by the standard of a putative classic [The Forsyte Saga]. By that standard it must be admitted that he falls short of success. Galsworthy gives us the whole sweep of an age, as one epoch develops into another. There is nothing of all this in Mr. Waugh's story, and the author might fairly retort that he didn't attempt it and that this was not what he wanted to say. But the point is that he ought to have wanted to say it, that you cannot tell a believable story of father, son, and grandson without reproducing the atmosphere of the age in which each lived." Stanley Went

— Sat R of Lit 7:7 Jl 26 '30 560w

Reviewed by V. S. Pritchett

Spec 143:504 O 12 '29 80w

"Mr. Waugh's story is pleasantly and intelligently sketched, but the individual characters, after Hilary's own youth, are not sufficiently developed to arouse the reader's full interest."

+ — Springf'd Republican p7e Je 1 '30 350w

"Mr. Waugh's gifts as a narrator exhibit no decline. He is always graphic, and when he is writing out of his own knowledge always sincere. Only the years are wanting to make him master of his material."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p720 S 19 '29 550w

WAUGH, EVELYN. Bachelor abroad; a Mediterranean journal (Eng title: Labels). 279p il $2.50 Cape [8s 6d Duckworth]

910.4 Mediterranean sea—Description and travel 30-29272

Account of the author's observations and experiences on a recent journey around the Mediterranean.

Reviewed by Paul Horgan

Books p18 N 23 '30 350w

Nation 131:630 D 3 '30 280w

"As was to be expected from the author of Decline and Fall, the book is extremely witty and entertaining; and it is only occasionally dull when the author turns from his gay, holiday observations of people and places to a serious consideration of the æsthetic beauties which even tourists on luxury launches are unable to avoid in the Mediterranean. Mr. Waugh's talent more easily allows him to write of the affairs of the world than of the mind. Besides its engaging style and amusing matter, the book is full of information for tourists who have money to spend. The author is a sensible traveller and, like Baedeker, quite independent."

+ New Statesman 36:58 O 18 '30 650w

"A pleasant, if unimportant, book. . . There is a silly route map of his Mediterranean stopping places included along with some equally unimportant illustrations of Spanish architecture, and the actual details of the voyage are as worthless as his concluding architectural criticism. The charm of the book is indebted to the intimate and perfectly candid observations of the young Englishman, a charm managed several centuries ago by another Englishman who ventured abroad to see how they ordered things." Pare Lorentz

— + N Y Evening Post p4d N 29 '30 380w

"'A Bachelor Abroad' is depressingly naive and ladylike—for anyone who has ever been on a ship merely an artless catalogue of trivial information. . . His only exploit was to stay in Port Said a whole month without being bored to death. Possibly he had a mildly amusing time, but the account he gives does not make profitable reading."

— Sat R of Lit 7:493 D 27 '30 150w

Spec 145:741 N 15 '30 150w

"Although the want of education to which he so frankly confesses, but which he ascribes wholly to a system and not to any individual shortcoming, is frequently apparent, and not least in the complacency with which mere banalities are recorded, the main idea is successfully carried out, and many of the pages give that effect of cheery, unpretentious letter-writing which is entertaining enough for idle moments. Where Mr. Waugh falls behind the best of our modern travel-writers is that he does not make his own personality, as experiencer, particularly interesting, or draw incisive portraits of chance-met men and women. His descriptions of people are generic and dry, in consequence of which his anecdotes seem often less amusing than they might have been."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p863 O 23 '30 420w

WAUGH, EVELYN. Vile bodies. 321p $2.50 Cape [7s 6d Chapman] 30-7431

An ultra-modern satire on the ultra-modern antics of London's bright young people. Thru its mad and illogical whirl of extravagant parties and other pointlessly important social affairs runs the love story of Adam Fenwick-Synes, a young writer, and Nina Blount, lovely daughter of a decaying aristocrat, who become engaged and disengaged at intervals as the story progresses. Among the other satirized characters are Mrs Ape, an American lady evangelist, Mr Outrage, last week's prime minister, and the Honorable Agatha Runcible, who is just too thrill-making. The book ends in the No Man's land of the next war.

"Perhaps the most lucid description that can be given of this satiric novel is to say it is a lighter, gayer Aldous Huxley, tainted with Wodehouse and tinged with madness. Or would it be more sharply illuminated if called a cut-up comedy put together in a frenzy and run off at a gallop. At all events, it is violently inconsequential, desperately sophisticated and decidedly amusing." R. W. Linscott ✓

Books p7 Mr 16 '30 650w

Boston Transcript p8 My 3 '30 250w

"While it was possible to forgive Huxley's taking himself so seriously by reflecting that after all he had created something to be serious about, it is difficult to excuse Mr. Waugh for wrenching good slapstick into tragi-comedy. As satire the book is no less a failure. First of all, Mr. Waugh displays none of the élan that distinguishes the true satirist from the caricaturist. For all its brilliance the writing lacks vitality. The invention is tired, and effects are too often got by recourse to the devices of slapstick exaggeration." Dudley Fitts

— Nation 130:602 My 21 '30 500w ✓

"Mr. Waugh is very clever and very amusing, but, above all, he is smart. The only book which could be read immediately after this one without giving the impression of dowdiness is 'Decline and Fall,' last year's model by the same artist. One feels the same awe-stricken admiration for it as one feels for 'the last word' in a car or a hat or any other triumphant expression of the spirit, not of the age, but of the actual moment. Whether there is more in it than that, whether, so successfully built for speed it is also built to last, one has no idea. Nor, being at the moment so extremely entertaining, does that seem to matter."

+ Nation and Ath 46:682 F 15 '30 150w

"Apart from its title, 'Vile Bodies' is a diverting and humorous book. Mr. Waugh is much more successful than William Gerhardi in the use of fantastic comedy as a method of satire; he distorts and exaggerates to his heart's content, but his characters always remain, like Beerbohm's, fundamentally plausible. So plausible are a good many of them that the precaution of setting the action, or inaction rather, of the book an indefinite number of years ahead would seem to be simply a device for avoiding the displeasure of friends, or the danger of libel suits." Howard Coxe
+ New Repub 62:333 My 7 '30 400w
New Statesman 34:572 F 8 '30 650w

"The book could be called needlessly nasty, decadent, superficial and arrogantly, even offensively sophisticated. It is not even brilliantly original, for Mr. Waugh is decidedly indebted to Norman Douglas, Michael Arlen and Aldous Huxley. Yet it certainly is funny and that, surely, is enough to say for it. The larger part of modern satire makes you smile, and smile only faintly. 'Vile Bodies' may shock you, but it will make you laugh."
— + N Y Times p7 Mr 23 '30 500w

"Mr. Waugh's preface seems to regard this engaging piece of satirical extravaganza as a work of serious import, though on what grounds we have been unable to determine. We enjoyed the gay wit and graceful nonsense of the book, finding in it keen reminders of the earlier Aldous Huxley, in the mood of 'Antic Hay,' and candidly own that such sober implications as the story may have contained escaped us. As a fanciful parody of the ultra-smart English novel, the latter's familiar appurtenance—backgrounds, character types, idiosyncrasies, incidents and atmosphere—the book is something of a gem." Bernard Smith
+ N Y World p7m Jl 13 '30 230w

"He is a satirist, no doubt, but not a sceptic, for he believes, and proves, that amusement can be derived from the most unpromising material, from people, that is, whose one occupation in life is the quest for amusement, people who give and attend parties." L. P. Hartley
+ Sat R 149:115 Ja 25 '30 380w

"In the end it is evident that the author does not quite know what to do with his young people, so he dumps them into the middle of the next war, much as Alice was dumped into the middle of next week, and leaves them there. This may be 'frustration,' as the publisher says, but it looks much more like a deus ex machina to wind up a play of which the author is beginning to tire. However, the individual scenes have been highly diverting and the satire spirited and effective." Stanley Went
— + Sat R of Lit 6:891 Ap 5 '30 650w

"A hectic piece of savage satire. . . I laughed until I was driven out of the room." V. H. Pritchett
Spec 144:99 Ja 18 '30 220w

WAUGH, FRANK ALBERT. Everybody's garden; the how, the why and especially the wherefore of the home garden; with emphasis upon the interests of the average American. 396p il $3.50 Judd
716 Gardening. Gardens 30-8222

"A compendious work dealing with all phases of year-round gardening. Chapters of unusual interest are: Furnishing the garden; Life in the garden; The bird garden; The sub-tropical garden; Indian summer; The garden after frost; The garden in winter; Bush fruits; Plant foods. There are numerous excellent illustrations and each chapter is concluded with pertinent quotations from general and garden literature."—Cleveland Open Shelf

Booklist 26:348 Je '30
Cleveland Open Shelf p58 Ap '30

"A notable feature of his book is his insistence, all through it, that Americans should make more use of their gardens, should sit, read, sleep and entertain their guests, play and work in these outdoor beauty spots much more than most of them do. And he offers many suggestions as to ways and means of promoting such increased usefulness of American gardens, from the tiniest to the largest."
+ N Y Times p10 Ap 20 '30 160w

"Such a book, thoroughly practical in its suggestions, based on long experience in garden planning, with wide observation of American and foreign cities and villages, should have a marked influence in raising the standards of landscape architecture, rural, and urban. Everyone who cultivates flowers, whether in large or small plots, can get helpful hints from 'Everybody's Garden.' "
+ R of Rs 81:12 Ap '30 150w
St Louis 28:237 O '30

"The entire subject is presented in a manner to be understood by the veriest amateur, entering on his first venture with seed and trowel. Such an amateur will find the work immediately helpful to him, but it will also be of value to the gardener of greater experience."
+ Springf'd Republican p10 Ag 13 '30 280w

WEALE, PUTNAM, pseud. See Simpson, B. L.

WEATHERHEAD, LESLIE DIXON. Psychology in service of the soul. 219p $2 Macmillan
131 Psychoanalysis. Psychotherapy

Suggestions as to the use of psychoanalysis of people with whom the average minister comes in contact. Dr Weatherhead's methods in psycho-religious healing are based upon modern psychological knowledge and experiment. The book contains chapters on the meaning and interpretation of dreams, the value of autosuggestion, the religious value of hypnosis, the gospel of the harnessed instinct, etc.

"The entire volume is a fine combination of theory plus practical, pastoral experience in illumination of the theory. . . Here are challenging studies presented without technical terms and in a style as fascinating as a book of fiction." W. R. McNutt
+ Crozer Q 7:405 Jl '30 250w

"The treatment of the subject is especially helpful to those clergymen, of whom there should be many more, who desire to use psychology to relieve sin and suffering. For Mr. Weatherhead discusses the principles and limitations of psychotherapy, and also reveals the practical methods he has found most serviceable. Particularly it is to be noted that the author never loses sight of the fact that for the priest the religious element is the vital one." L. W. Batten
+ Living Church 83:344 Jl 5 '30 180w

Reviewed by E. B. Chaffee
Outlook 156:31 S 3 '30 180w

WEAVER, ANNIE VAUGHAN. Frawg. 128p il $1.50 Stokes
30-24945

The adventures of Frawg, a little five-year-old colored boy, with his many brothers and sisters and his dog, Buckeye.

Library J 55:925 N 15 '30 50w

"With the boy and the sunflowers and the watermelon on the cover, and ever so many pictures inside, and fine large type, it is worth insisting on at the book counter." Ernestine Evans
+ Nation 131:555 N 19 '30 80w
Outlook 155:346 Jl 2 '30 80w
St Louis 28:304 D '30

WEAVER, JOHN VAN ALSTYNE. Turning point. 69p $2 Knopf

811 30-24965

The author's second book of verse "in American," in which his subjects are the tragedies and comedies in the everyday lives of ordinary people.

"The movie inspired narrative monologues such as 'Laddie Boy' and 'The Extra,' are reeled off with brassy, mechanical pathos. Only when he repeats his original and indigenous pattern, the man-in-the-street, is Mr. Weaver wholly successful."

+ — Books p12 D 14 '30 280w

Reviewed by Edwin Seaver

N Y Evening Post p4d O 4 '30 100w

"'Turning Point' in the main sustains the position John Weaver has made for himself by its sincerity, its art of a kind and its dignified manner of shirtsleeve poetry. The book displays a homespun sort of beauty."

+ N Y Times p25 S 28 '30 280w

"John V. A. Weaver, in his new Turning Point, rolls out Hollywood, his latest habitat, in films of his peculiarly un-blank blank verse. The book is full of his never-failing weary gentleness—this time toward a mother whose little boy is getting spoiled in the movies, for an extra who wants to be a human being again, for various figures caught in that unreal kaleidoscope."

+ Outlook 156:146 S 24 '30 220w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:90 D '30

WEBB, EWING T., and MORGAN, JOHN 2 JACOB BROOKE. Strategy in handling people. 260p il $3 Boulton, Peirce & Co., 232 E. Erie st., Chicago

150 Psychology, Applied

A study of the methods by which many famous men, including Roosevelt, Woodrow Wilson, Henry Ford, J. Pierpont Morgan, Cyrus Curtis and Edward Bok, have been able to win people, and to make valuable friends. The book is based upon popular psychological principles.

"Grant that the Webb and Morgan book is sugar coated psychology. It is, but it packs dynamite. There is not a man or woman, young or old, successful or unsuccessful, but can learn something from it. . . From sky pilot to physician, salesman to dentist, actor to executive, this book will have meanings and values. Most of us have to get along with somebody, be it husband, wife, janitor, or cook, we have to handle people." Ralf Dennis

+ Chicago Daily Tribune p12 N 8 '30 350w

"Their method unites the practical knowledge of the successful advertiser and the psychologist's insight into human nature. To this union they give personal appeal and picturesque interest by showing how the principles they wish to inculcate are exemplified in the conduct of successful men and illustrating them with endless little anecdotes and instances."

+ N Y Times p20 O 5 '30 380w

"It is unquestionably a useful as well as entertaining book. It might be summarized in a single line to the general effect that capacity to subordinate the ego and refrain from immediate and personal satisfactions is absolutely fundamental in making a success of human relations." F. G. Seabury

+ Outlook 156:313 O 22 '30 200w

WEBBER, JAMES PLAISTED, and WEBSTER, HANSON HART, eds. Typical plays for young people. 291p $2 Houghton

808.2 Drama—Collections A30-1116

"Eight one act plays and three longer plays make up this collection for young people from fifteen to eighteen. Costume plays predominate among the short plays. The longer selections are Sweethearts, by W. S. Gilbert; The Gibson upright, by Tarkington; and The dragon, by Lady Gregory."—Wis Lib Bul

Reviewed by W. P. Eaton

Books p13 My 4 '30 100w

Reviewed by Bellamy Partridge

N Y World p11m F 23 '30 100w

"All the plays are easily staged, and while well within the range of the young amateur are sufficiently difficult to be stimulating. Altogether this is a volume to be recommended." Jane Dransfield

+ Sat R of Lit 6:1014 My 3 '30 400w

Wis Lib Bul 26:103 Mr '30

WEBER, ALFRED. Theory of the location of industries; [English ed., with introd. and notes by Carl Joachim Friedrich]. (Chicago Univ. Materials for the study of business) 256p il $3 Univ. of Chicago press [13s 6d Cambridge univ. press]

658.21 Industries, Location of. Factories—Location 29-18915

"The subject of location, whether applied to industries, retail services or social institutions, is becoming increasingly important as new factors are introduced to change spatial relations. Alfred Weber's studies in this field represent the first attempt to reduce location to mathematical terms. The method employed is hypothetical and abstract rather than analytical and concrete. The various factors entering into the production and distribution of different products are weighted and assigned values for hypothetically assumed conditions. Location becomes, therefore, a question of mathematical computation."—Am J Soc

"The work is an example of pure reasoning of the highest order. The serious student of economics will find the treatment of the subject of great interest as a method of reducing widely varying conditions into form for mathematical treatment. . . The editor refers in his introduction to the care exercised in translation. Evidently the greatest pains were taken to produce the exact equivalent of the German original. The result is a cumbersome style which one feels could have been avoided by free translation of the subject matter." C. P. Tolman

+ — Am Econ R 20:110 Mr '30 650w

"The discussion is highly technical and abstract and has but little practical value in its present form." R. D. McKenzie

— Am J Soc 35:853 Mr '30 380w

"The belated appearance of this English translation of a little book that appeared in Germany in 1909 is of much greater significance than is ordinarily indicated in such circumstances. Apparently it had only begun to attract attention in Germany when in 1914 the interest of economists was diverted from such problems. But in the last decade this book has been the source and center of an active study and of an animated discussion. It has come to be referred to as the crowning scholarly achievement of its author." F. A. Fetter

+ J Pol Econ 38:232 Ap '30 850w

St Louis 28:211 S '30

Times [London] Lit Sup p908 N 14 '29 500w

WEBER, ELIZABETH ANNE. Duk-Duks; primitive and historic types of citizenship. (Studies in the making of citizens) 142p $3 Univ. of Chicago press [13s 6d Cambridge univ. press]

323.6 Citizenship. Rites and ceremonies. Society, Primitive 29-18451

"An examination into the schemes, traditions, and ceremonies connected with training and inducting young people into citizenship among primitive, ancient, and mediæval feudal societies. The title of the volume—derived from 'Duk-Duk,' a cry that initiates the ceremonies by which young men of the tribe become citizens in Melanesia—gives the clue to the ritualistic symbolism and rigid procedure by which youth is subdued to ancestral interest and tradition."—Am Pol Sci R

Am J Soc 35:518 N '29 160w

"With decided ingenuity and careful scholarship Dr. Weber draws a concise picture of civic ceremonial among the peoples she has chosen to study. The upshot is a novel and diverting volume, as amusing as it is grave." C. A. Beard

+ Am Pol Sci R 23:1005 N '29 420w

Reviewed by F. H. Hankins

Pol Sci Q 45:307 Je '30 420w

St Louis 28:5 Ja '30

Reviewed by Ruth Benedict

Survey 63:357 D 15 '29 270w

Times [London] Lit Sup p748 S 26 '29 150w

WEBER, HERMAN C. Evangelism; a graphic survey. 208p $2 Macmillan

280 Protestant churches—United States. Evangelistic work 29-18007

A statistical survey of the growth of the major denominations in the United States based upon the carefully compiled records of the seven religious bodies studied: the Methodist Episcopal church, the Presbyterian church, U.S.A., the Presbyterian church, U.S. (Southern branch), the Northern Baptist, the Southern Baptist, the Congregational and the Protestant Episcopal. The graphs show the peaks and depressions in the general curve of growth and connect them with corresponding national events or changes of social attitude.

"The book will be helpful to the student of American church life, though we suspect that Mr. Weber would have done well to include the business cycle among the various influences."

+ Books p20 Ja 26 '30 300w

"The results are visualized in a startling manner and are well worth the study of the church as a whole and of the individual pastor."

+ Boston Transcript p2 Ja 15 '30 230w

"This is not only a valuable contribution to American church history, but the basis for a much needed study of the place of evangelism in the program of the church. It deserves a careful reading by everyone who is concerned with the promotional aspect of church work."

+ Christian Century 47:942 Jl 30 '30 200w

"On the whole this brief treatise comes to grip with realities. The 'yard-stick' is applied impartially and rigorously and we are enabled to see ourselves in a true perspective and in comparison with our neighbors. It is a fresh, realistic, suggestive and most valuable presentation of the subject and well worthy of serious study by all interested in the church's program." G. A. Oldham

+ Churchman 140:20 N 23 '29 200w

Cleveland Open Shelf p20 F '30

"Vast quantities of data are assembled, presented by graphs and charts, then significantly interpreted. The approach is not only unique but meaningful. We consider this the best scientific study yet given us in this important field. . . The results of the whole study are arresting in their interest and humiliating in their import." W. R. McNutt

+ Crozer Q 7:129 Ja '30 350w

Pratt p9 summer '30

WEBER, MAX. Protestant ethic and the spirit of capitalism; tr. by Talcott Parsons; with a foreword by R. H. Tawney. 292p $3 Scribner [10s 6d Allen, G.]

261 Capitalism. Wealth, Ethics of. Christian ethics 30-29300

An analysis of the relation between capitalism and Protestantism. The author finds that the necessity of fulfilling one's task, or doing one's duty in labor, lies as the basis of each. The profit accruing from hard work being legitimate, capitalism came to have a puritanic justification.

Reviewed by Jerome Rosenthal

Current Hist 33:xxii N '30 420w

Reviewed by C. D. Burns

Int J Ethics 41:119 O '30 350w

Reviewed by Sidney Hook

Nation 131:476 O 29 '30 1300w

"The book is a remarkable study of the remoulding of religion to fit men's needs—the more so as with all its knowledge it avoids a dogmatic interpretation of world progress." R. M. Fox

+ Nation and Ath 47:767 S 20 '30 550w

"We are so accustomed to the economic explanation of social institutions that it strikes us with amazement to be told that economic facts and economic motives are themselves not primary, but also require an explanation. It is just such amazement that the late Max Weber created in the camp of economists and historians when he published this essay twenty-five years ago, and it is just such amazement that the book will again create in the minds of the larger public to which this translation will make Weber's thought available." Benjamin Ginzburg

+ New Repub 64:212 O 8 '30 750w

New Statesman 35:544 Ag 2 '30 1200w

"It must be admitted that Weber writes most persuasively and that there is real substance in his argument."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p563 Jl 10 '30 1100w

WEBSTER, MRS DORIS, and HOPKINS, MARY ALDEN, eds. Mrs. Grundy is dead; a code of etiquette for young people, written by themselves. 109p $1.25 Century

395 Etiquet 30-5803

A book of etiquette compiled from the answers to a questionnaire sent out to a thousand young people. The questions asked are listed and then in two sections, How men behave and How women behave, the results are brought together in succinct form.

Booklist 26:300 My '30

Cleveland Open Shelf p40 Mr '30

"Amusingly characteristic of this present time and of the young people who give it so much of its distinctive color is this little book with its perky decisiveness upon good form. For it seems to indicate that the younger generation has scrapped the traditional rules of etiquette, just as it has scrapped so many other things that had seemed immutable to its elders, and is breezily working out and establishing for itself a code of social rules."

N Y Times p21 Mr 2 '30 480w

Reviewed by W. R. Brooks

Outlook 154:350 F 26 '30 160w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:39 My '30

Wis Lib Bul 26:100 Mr '30

WEBSTER, JOHN CLARENCE. Wolfe and the 2 artists; a study of his portraiture. ltd ed 74p il $3 Ryerson press

B or 92 Wolfe, James 30-21185

"A detailed history of portraits, sketches, and sculpture of Wolfe, of interest to collectors of Canadiana. The many portraits of Wolfe show how completely the death of this hero on the Plains of Abraham captured the imagination of the populace."—Bookm

Bookm 71:xix Jl '30 40w

"Dr. Webster has produced a delightful little book. It brings together many facts hitherto unknown regarding the youthful commander of the expedition to Quebec in 1759. . . Dr. Webster has done most valuable work in this field; he is an authority on Wolfe." A. G. Doughty

+ Canadian Hist R 11:348 D '30 900w

Spec 145:108 Jl 19 '30 170w

WEED, CLARENCE MOORES. Insect ways 325p il $2.50; school ed 343p il $1.36 Appleton

595.7 Insects 30-4136

"A series of stories concerning the more important phases of the lives of insects commonly occurring in North America." (Pref.) Intended for supplementary reading in upper grades and junior high schools. Contains study questions and an index.

WEED, C. M.—Continued

Booklist 26:317 My '30

"'Insect Ways' is interesting enough to be read and accurate and full enough to answer a child's questions about what he sees in woods and fields, and the writer is an authority on his subject. The chapter headings are appealing and provocative and the author's style is admirably clear and dignified. The choice of illustrations is excellent, though it is a pity that the reproduction of the photographs is not better." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p25 Mr 2 '30 120w
Times [London] Lit Sup p462 My 29 '30 170w

WEEKLEY, ERNEST. Adjectives—and other words. 224p $2 Dutton [5s Murray, J.]

422 English language—Etymology. Words 30-17751

Written by an English etymologist who carries his learning lightly, these essays are the overflowings from his rich knowledge of the history and adventures of words. He deals with such subjects as the "superfluous" adjective, the idiom of sport, the baby's contribution to speech, place-names and street-names, Americanized English, words invented by scientists, etc.

Booklist 27:14 S '30

"How did words take on the strange forms and accumulate all the associations which Sir Richard Paget's reformed spelling would help to sweep away? It is this question that Professor Weekley's delightful book answers by illustration. . . Every shade of meaning that a word has ever conveyed is to him part of an inheritance that standardization must not be allowed to destroy; it is for this reason that he sings, in a chapter full of erudition, the praises of the Oxford Dictionary."

+ Nation and Ath 46:898 Mr 29 '30 180w
N Y Times p27 Ap 27 '30 230w
St Louis 28:209 S '30

"A man who reads this book for distraction and want of better may wake to find himself an amateur philologist. Philologists and others will enjoy this book; in fact, to borrow a cliché which has been relentlessly exposed by its author, Philology without liars is a 'long-felt want.' Since Borrow there has been no attempt, save that of the present author, to supply it, and Borrow is more entertaining than trustworthy." Raglan Somerset

+ Sat R 149:490 Ap 19 '30 500w

"There is a joy or a tickle or an interesting scrap of new knowledge on nearly every page."

+ Spec 144:sup487 Mr 22 '30 750w

WEEKLEY, ERNEST. English language. (New lib.) 128p 60c Cape

420.9 English language—History 30-26639

An historical outline of the origin, growth and present state of the English language.

"Mr. Weekley, who writes this very excellent little book on 'The English Language,' speaks with authority on his theme, for he has long been a special student of the subject, is a member of the faculty of University College, Nottingham, and has written many books about it. . . The book is written in admirable style, being simple, lucid and interesting in its treatment."

+ N Y Times p27 My 25 '30 230w
Outlook 155:189 Je 4 '30 90w
St Louis 28:209 S '30
Spec 142:26 Ja 5 '29 30w

WEGERER, ALFRED VON. Refutation of the Versailles war guilt thesis; tr. from the German by Edwin H. Zeydel; introd. by Harry Elmer Barnes. 386p il $3 (12s 6d) Knopf

940.311 European war, 1914-1918—Causes. Versailles, Treaty of, 1919. European war, 1914-1918—Germany 30-23575

"Its title clearly demonstrates just exactly what it is—not an attempt to allocate the responsibility for the war or to arrive at a final conclusion as to the measure of culpability among the European Powers but a specific refutation of that charge in the Versailles treaty which declares that the war was imposed upon the Allied and associated Governments 'by the aggression of Germany and her allies.' It is Dr. von Wegerer's contention that as the basis for the treaty terms imposed upon Germany, especially reparations, the war guilt verdict is of paramount importance to the future of Germany and of Europe."—N Y Evening Post

"Careful and lucid book. Dr. von Wegerer is a German patriot. It is illuminating to observe how, in regard to the war-guilt problem, German patriotism is far less destructive to the impartial search for truth than American Anglomania." H. E. Barnes

+ New Repub 64:273 O 22 '30 250w

"It is an ably argued, carefully documented brief for Germany's case should the question of war guilt so summarily disposed of at Versailles ever be officially opened again." F. R. Dulles

+ N Y Evening Post p5s S 6 '30 950w

Reviewed by John Carter
Outlook 156:110 S 17 '30 100w
World Tomorrow 13:425 O '30 350w

WEIGALL, ARTHUR EDWARD PEARSE BROME. Nero, the singing emperor of Rome. 425p il $5 Putnam [21s Butterworth, T.]

B or 92 Nero, emperor of Rome. Rome—History—Nero 30-25098

Mr Weigall, in this biography of Nero, attempts to rescue the notorious Roman emperor from the bad character tradition has given him. Nero's faults were chiefly due to hereditary taints and corrupt social environment, the biographer contends. He loved music and poetry, and tried to encourage the arts. He did not set fire to Rome, but was, on the contrary, grief-stricken over the tragedy, and did all he could afterward to relieve the sufferings of the homeless. But other blots on Nero's career—such as the wilful execution of his mother—the biographer does not wholly vindicate.

Booklist 27:206 Ja '31

"Mr. Weigall's authority is considerable and he gives copious references, naming such writers as Suetonius, Tacitus, Seneca and Dion Cassius. This engrossing biography should alter materially the popular conception of Nero."

+ Bookm 72:vi S '30 250w
Books p13 D 28 '30 250w
New Statesman 36:340 D 20 '30 320w

"Mr. Weigall was Inspector General of Antiquities for Upper Egypt for many years, and we had looked to him for something more enlightening on the first century than is to be found in his latest work. And yet his unusual gift for narrative makes even this book fascinating reading, for it is brimful of enthusiasm which carries the reader along." M. E. Walker

+ — N Y Times p15 D 28 '30 1150w

Reviewed by W. B. Shaw
R of Rs 82:12 N '30 220w
St Louis 28:302 D '30

"Mr. Weigall's 'Nero' provides a fresh perspective in the study of the singing emperor, defending him against many ancient lies. This granted, it still must be said that the author has not succeeded in changing fundamentally the popular conception of Nero's character. He has, however, produced an instructive book, in which his effort to lay emphasis on the better qualities of Nero has not prevented a full statement of the sustained charges against him."

+ Springf'd Republican p12 O 2 '30 550w

"Mr. Weigall does his best to explain away Nero's crimes but he cannot be said to succeed. The tradition that made Caligula a madman and Claudius a dotard has dubbed Nero a monster, and we may revolt from the verdict; to go to the other extreme is at least equally fallacious: Nero cannot be whitewashed. In the main the book is good reading and for its type reasonably accurate in detail."
— + Times [London] Lit Sup p786 O 2 '30 280w

WEINSTEIN, MICHAEL. Precious and semi-precious stones. 2d ed 148p il $2.25 (7s 6d) Pitman

553.8 Precious stones 30-14388

Writing in a manner that can be comprehended and enjoyed by the general reader, yet giving accurate descriptive and scientific data concerning precious and semi-precious stones, with illustrations, the author discusses his subject from the legendary, historical, technical and esthetic points of view.

N Y New Tech Bks 14:54 O '29
St Louis 28:234 O '30

"A very readable book. The author is a serious and experienced student of gems, and writes in an easy and attractive manner."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p879 O 31 '29 80w

WELLES, WINIFRED. This delicate love. 77p $1.50 Viking press

811 29-23332

Lyrics with a delicacy of touch and a rhythmic sensitivity that express the beauty of actuality rather than the forced imagery of fancy.

Booklist 26:274 Ap '30

"Her emotions and her figures are so highly individualized that her thought and the reader's, like two parallel lines, meet only in an abstraction. She is at her best in the representation of objects, to which her sense of texture and movement give a vibrant life."
Bookm 71:viii Je '30 100w

"While Miss Welles's range as a lyricist is a narrow one, and her gift a little too precious, too self-conscious ever to escape into those unguarded, impassioned regions where cruder, but often greater poetry is created, her workmanship is faultless. Not the least of her abilities is a knack of reproducing experience in terms that, lyrically as evanescent as mist or cobweb, reshape in her hands to the durable finality of stone and steel." Ruth Lechlitner
+ — Books p17 Mr 23 '30 350w

Reviewed by Percy Hutchison
N Y Times p22 F 2 '30 300w

"For those who enjoy the quiet affirmations of the solitary spirit sensitive to beauty rather than the vasty cosmic affirmations of optimistic ardor there are the poems of Winifred Welles. . . This epitomizes what I regard as the most hopeful element in modern poetry." Granville Hicks
+ N Y World p11m D 22 '29 100w

"Winifred Welles's second book takes her as poet's second books should, from romantic association straight to the absolute. Detachment is in her as closely as her heart, and she has the silent crystal wisdom which it gives." L. T. Nicholl
+ Outlook 153:509 N 27 '29 80w

"Exquisite poems, as delicately and beautifully made as a cobweb or a bit of point lace. One can find no fault with them; the music is like a lute or a harp. The only trouble is, one longs, amid all this beauty, for a few strokes of strong color, a few stiff black lines." H. M.
+ Poetry 35:217 Ja '30 530w
Wis Lib Bul 25:410 D '29

WELLINGTON, AMY. Women have told; studies in the feminist tradition. 204p $2.50 Little

396.8 Women in literature and art. Woman—Social and moral questions. Women as authors 30-5739

Studies of pioneer feminists who were not afraid to tell their opinions to a sometimes hostile world. The "women who have told" are Mary Wollstonecraft, Margaret Fuller, Elizabeth Barrett Browning, the three Brontës, George Eliot, Olive Schreiner, Charlotte Perkins Gilman, May Sinclair, Ellen Glasgow and Rebecca West.

Booklist 27:95 N '30

Reviewed by Ferner Nuhn
Books p16 Mr 2 '30 500w
Boston Transcript p2 F 26 '30 900w

"Her method is a summary pigeonholing, too rapid and dogmatic to be convincing. Her indictment would be more effective if it were less waspish: she adds no weight to her defense of a neglected work of May Sinclair by impugning the motives of 'our masculine reviewers.' Yet, warped as her yardstick is, she has written, apparently without much enjoyment, a pathetically challenging little book." Hazelton Spencer
— + New Repub 62:251 Ap 16 '30 200w

Reviewed by R. C. Feld
N Y Times p26 Mr 23 '30 1200w

"The thesis presented by Miss Wellington is an interesting one, sustained with force and insight. It isn't all that the women have told us in the last fifteen decades, by any means. But it is quite enough to give away the subtle method by which they have won the day—if they have won it." Bellamy Partridge
+ N Y World p10m F 9 '30 550w

WELLS, CAROLYN (MRS HADWIN HOUGHTON). Doomed five. 295p $2 Lippincott

30-9314

A New York capitalist, Stephen Brandon, invests $10,000,000 in a city garden project detailed to the care of five people called the Garden Guardians—much to the ire of his sister, nephew and adopted daughter. Shortly thereafter Brandon dies of peritonitis. Then, one by one, four members of the garden committee succumb because of similar kinds of stomach trouble. The doctors are puzzled. So is Fleming Stone, detective, called in by Aunt Amanda to investigate the strange coincidences. Then the last member of the committee is stricken—but does not die; and the mystery is on the way to solution.

For biographical sketch of the author see Wilson bulletin 4:366 Ap '30

Bookm 71:xxviii Ap '30 80w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p17 F 23 '30 150w

"Despite awkwardness of style and slowness of pace, the mystery of these sudden deaths gets under the reader's skin. But Miss Wells takes an unfair advantage of her readers by leading them off on false clues which, suspicious in themselves, are never satisfactorily explained away." T. S. L.
+ — Boston Transcript p2 Mr 15 '30 500w

Reviewed by E. C. Beckwith
N Y World p10m Mr 9 '30 220w
Spec 145:504 O 11 '30 150w

WELLS, CAROLYN (MRS HADWIN HOUGHTON). Doorstep murders. 318p $2 Doubleday, Doran

30-12993

Three of the biggest and best summer residents of Gilead, Connecticut, are found—following a Saturday night poker session—murdered on their respective doorsteps. The motive in the affair is most elusive, but the astute Kenneth Carlisle is imported to handle the case, and all ends well, except for the murderer.

WELLS, CAROLYN—Continued

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p13 My 18 '30 150w
N Y Times p17 Je 15 '30 180w

"Barring the usual fault of consuming excess space with irrelevancies, the story is first rate." E. C. Beckwith
+ — N Y World p9m My 18 '30 170w

WELLS, CAROLYN (MRS HADWIN HOUGHTON). Ghosts' high noon. 296p $2 (7s 6d) Lippincott
30-27772

Irma's first husband, a romantic Spaniard, and her second husband, an American lawyer, both died of phosphorus poisoning. Things looked very dark for Irma; but Mark Stanhope (who proposed to be husband number three) believed in her innocence—and so did Fleming Stone. There was the eerie "Dercia curse" to be reckoned with, as well as a few other factors in Irma's Spanish background, before her innocence could be proved.

Bookm 72:xxiv S '30 80w

"One of Miss Wells's well knit, exciting and not too tragic thrillers." Will Cuppy
+ Books p18 O 5 '30 150w

Reviewed by Dashiell Hammett
N Y Evening Post p4d O 11 '30 80w

Reviewed by W. R. Brooks
Outlook 156:192 O 1 '30 100w

WELLS, GEOFFREY HARRY (GEOFFREY WEST, pseud.). H. G. Wells; with a specially written introd. by H. G. Wells. 287p il $3 Norton [10s 6d Howe]
B or 92 Wells, Herbert George 30-33689

An authorized biography of H. G. Wells which traces the development of his career, his ideas and his work as a novelist. The last few chapters contain critical interpretations of Wells the mature novelist and of Wells as "the prophet of world organization." In the appendices are listed notes on his student writings and The Time Machine, and on the Dickensian parallels in Wells's literary style. The biographer, Geoffrey H. Wells, the son of a Cardiff business man, has no family connection with his subject.

Reviewed by F. H. Britten
Books p3 D 14 '30 1000w

"Mr. West's book is by no means entirely a literary estimate, though it is largely concerned with Mr. Wells's mental adventures. It lacks perhaps that abundant sense of personal intimacy which shines in every page that Mr. Wells has written. We feel that Mr. West has not sketched in with enough strength the rubicund, Cockney realist, the exuberant inventor of Dickensian sentimental comedy. . . It is this man for whom we shall look with considerable interest in Mr. West's longer study when it comes. He is obviously well equipped for the task." V. S. P.
Christian Science Monitor p9 N 15 '30 600w

"I can only regret that Mr. West devotes so much of his space to Mr. Wells the opinionator instead of to Mr. Wells the artist. His essay is lacking in proportion. . . Mr. West should have devoted more space to the really great years, and dismissed much more summarily the years in which Mr. Wells turned out ephemeral articles by the score, in which controversy displaces imagination, and opinion chases away that muse of invention that used to come so willingly when Mr. Wells summoned her. . . Mr. West does not give us much idea of the precise quality of Mr. Wells's contribution to literature." Richard Sunne
— New Statesman 36:147 N 8 '30 1600w

"Whatever one's reaction to the estimates of Mr. Wells as outlined by Mr. West, the fact remains that the latter has done a thoroughgoing job in this book. Reading him, one gets a portrait of the man that is entirely consistent in spite of his many inconsistencies." R. C. Feld
+ N Y Times p5 D 21 '30 1350w

Reviewed by Harry Hansen
N Y World p11 D 2 '30 480w

Reviewed by W. R. Brooks
Outlook 156:668 D 24 '30 80w

"The author of this book modestly sub-titles it 'a sketch for a portrait.' But it is almost a full-length portrait, and a very natural one: nearly complete with warts and all. And moreover, it is, emphatically, a sound piece of work, done with an understanding which must, one feels, have won Mr. Wells's own approval."
+ Sat R 150:599 N 8 '30 800w

Reviewed by H. W. Nevinson
Spec 145:636 N 1 '30 1150w

"Mr. West's cool, aloof and analytical intelligence is seldom fired with enthusiasm. He wrote of Mrs. Besant, that creature of passion and fantasy, with the same steady, unemotional judgment that he now applies to the restless, fiery genius of Mr. Wells—and in both cases the result is a trifle disenchanting. Not that Mr. West is a mean critic. His gifts of lucidity and order are almost Latin, and his accuracy of judgment is, time and again, remarkable. . . He is sympathetic and admiring; he is, if you like, even a partisan—but he is almost intolerably level-headed."
— + Times [London] Lit Sup p881 O 30 '30 1450w

WELLS, GEORGE ROSS. Individuality and social restraint. 248p $2.50 Appleton
301 Social psychology. Individuality 29-23707

Basing his discussion upon the theory that there is continuous conflict between the individual and the social group, Dr Wells surveys the effect of group pressure upon the behavior of man. The first part of the book deals with the mechanism of the individual; the second part with the origins and classifications of groups in society.

"Each part of the book does fairly well what it does, but neither adequately presents the individual as a social person. The process by which a social being develops is nowhere analyzed; and the assumption persists to the end of the book that man's natural impulses are vicious and that he feels the heavy restraint of group control." R. S. Cavan
— + Am J Soc 36:162 Jl '30 300w

"Mr. Wells has written a popular exposition of social psychology from a diluted behavioristic standpoint." H. D. Lasswell
Am Pol Sci R 24:476 My '30 20w
Boston Transcript p4 D 14 '29 550w
St Louis 28:93 Ap '30

WELLS, HERBERT GEORGE. Autocracy of Mr. Parham; his remarkable adventures in this changing world. 328p $1 Doubleday, Doran
30-19508

In this satiric vision of the next war Mr Wells pictures Mr Parham, personification of conservative and cultured England, in the role of Lord Paramount, dictator of British activities in the future. Opposed to Parham is Sir Bussy Woodcock, a crude plutocrat who manages to get a corner on the production of the superpoison Gas L before it can be used to obliterate the enemy.

Booklist 27:66 O '30

"The satire in the book is diverting, the fantasy interesting; but the thesis, like that in Mr. Wells's other novels, we suspect of being unsound. At the risk of being accused of agreeing with Mr. Parham, we must say that Mr. Wells's confidence in 'free acting intelligence' and his opposition to tradition, discipline, and obedience to the age-old lessons of mankind are no less visionary than the lands in which his rules of life apply." A. B. Clarke

— + Bookm 71:542 Ag '30 420w

"The great naval battle of the North Atlantic between the British and American fleets, brought on before the declaration of war because of the nervous tension under which the two opposing navies labored while maneuvering about each other—a battle in which both fleets are nearly annihilated—is brilliantly described, a magnificent tour de force. And the subsequent 'Declaration of Washington,' in which the American President proposes to decline any further fighting, is a highly interesting document." F. F. Marsh
+ Books p5 Je 22 '30 900w

"In spite of its curious construction, in spite of its pretended view of a 'next war,' it is a hopeful and a cheerful book. It looks at possibilities with a satire that is delicious instead of bitter. It gives us a glimpse of the way out. And above all it is a piece of writing above the average of Mr. Wells and comes from a man who is one of the most curious and avid observers of life in all its aspects, large or small, who today puts pen to paper. . . In the humble estimate of one of his readers, 'The Autocracy of Mr. Parham' is very near Mr. Wells's peak." S. L. Cook
+ Boston Transcript p4 Je 28 '30 1700w

"The book is a feebly farcical political satire. Even the expected Wellsian doses of pleasant erudition, incisive portraiture, occasional brilliancies, and ironic analyses do not rescue it from the shoals of dulness. Protracted, jerky, and premeditatedly clever, 'The Autocracy of Mr. Parham' exhumes a cruelly mangled Mr. Polly only to bury him again with indecent haste."
— + Nation 131:208 Ag 20 '30 200w

"There runs through the book a strain which recalls irresistibly to mind that ladylike and long-forgotten schoolroom book, Mrs. Markham's History of England. This is not to suggest plagiarism on the part of Mr. Wells. Far from it. But unlike Mrs. Markham, who expected us to take her children seriously, Mr. Wells allows us to laugh, and indeed he laughs with us, at the Priggishness of Mr. Parham; and from first to last his book is extremely entertaining. It abounds in farce, in caricature, and in an irony flavoured with both. But he has as ever a message to deliver, and we must not think of his book as merely amusing. It is propaganda. But is Mr. Wells himself entirely satisfied with its success as such? It does not appear so, or he could not leave us with the picture of an unrepentant Mr. Parham, not one penny the better for those instructive experiences of his." Edith Olivier
+ — Nation and Ath 47:567 Ag 2 '30 900w

"This is an amusing and well aimed satire on a certain type of reactionary opinion which has lately been becoming fashionable." Edmund Wilson
+ New Repub 64:79 S 3 '30 650w

"There is little power in the story—a few bold splashings-in of London scenes, an effort in the old manner at a great description of a battle at sea, an amusingly frivolous cartoon of Parham playing 'Old Noll' in the House of Commons; but Mr. Wells's real business is the talk, and he comes back to it with zest after each flickering picture has been blacked out. It is good talk much of it, a little noisy, and with no serious argument, if by argument one means discussion between people of equal intelligence. Mr. Wells's ancient impatience betrays him—his hatred of the old tradition—the tradition of the peasant, of race, of family, of service, of creed—may not matter; but this complete inability to understand the things he hates is a very serious thing, and robs his latest tract of at least half its effectiveness."
— + New Statesman 35:504 Jl 26 '30 1100w

"There's a great deal of common sense in this book and, if you are interested in the minutiae of current British politics, there is also a good deal of amusement. However, dialectical dismissals of the 'next war'—like this—fail to take into account the basic fact that the true World War, like the true poet, is born, not made." John Carter
+ — N Y Times p4 Je 29 '30 600w

"Mr. Wells has presented us with a little dissertation on the subject of the next world war, done with his customary fluency and thrown into the form of a novel in order to make the ideas go down better. Amusing, relevant and typical of Mr. Wells's post-war sermons." Harry Hansen
N Y World p11 Je 21 '30 150w

"As prophesy, the novel is not as convincing as some of the early Wells tales, and some vital points of the plot, such as the boycott of the precious Gas L, are tiresome. But the book is first-rate social satire, even if one doesn't agree with the premises or conclusions." F. L. Robbins
+ Outlook 155:387 Jl 9 '30 170w

"An amusing and highly philosophical essay on the Fascist system, in story form. And with Fascism go its attributes; blind patriotism, hidebound tradition, and disregard of the rights of the individual. Black Shirts annoy Mr. Wells." W. B. Shaw
R of Rs 82:8 S '30 250w
Sat R 150:118 Jl 26 '30 900w

"There is something of the 'War of the Worlds' and 'The Time Machine' here but they lacked the boisterous humor that makes 'The Autocracy of Mr. Parham' a delight as well as a warning." Gladys Graham
+ Sat R of Lit 6:1203 Jl 19 '30 1000w

"The absurd apotheosis of the don for the purposes of satire is a sublime piece of malice, but Mr. Wells is never satisfied with his own comic genius. He is never content to be entirely the genial creator of common, mean and funny little people, or the satirist. His irony becomes at times like a rapier that has been dulled at the point through being used as a schoolmaster's pointer for beating the blackboard instead of the enemy. And Mr. Parham is far more significant and instructive before his apotheosis than after it. Perhaps we ought to treat the book as letterpress to the ten very funny cartoons by Low included in it." V. S. Pritchett
— + Spec 145:137 Jl 26 '30 800w

"Mr Wells's ability to describe scenes of terror and death is exercised to the full. The most vividly depicted incident is the sea fight between the fleets of Britain and America in the North Atlantic ocean. Notables of the day are only slightly disguised, and, through Mr Wells's humorous eyes, it is possible to enjoy a little laugh at their expense. The novel is a good example of the intelligent light journalism which Mr Wells is now dispensing."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 31 '30 550w

"The actual writing is almost continuously on Mr Wells's highest level. And if some of the caricatures of living people—as of 'Ramsay McDougal'—seem cruel, one may urge in mitigation that really they have all the redeeming fun of a sketch by 'Low.' It was an inspiration to obtain the 'pictorial assistance' of the latter to the extent of ten double-page drawings; these achieve an identity with the story so complete that one hesitates to say whether Mr. Low is picturing Mr. Wells's creations, or Mr. Wells describing Mr. Low's illustrations."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p608 Jl 24 '30 560w

WELLS, RHEA. Beppo the donkey. 135p il $2
^{2} Doubleday, Doran
30-27073

Beppo was a Sicilian donkey and the playfellow of several merry children. He was such a fine donkey that he grew up to draw proudly the most beautiful cart in the city. This story is by the author of Peppi the Duck.

Booklist 27:168 D '30

WELLS, RHEA—Continued

"Mr. Wells sees the countries he visits with sympathy and insight, he has also the gift of seeing with the fresh, unjaded interest of the child. The pictures in 'Beppo the Donkey' are as childlike and unsophisticated as is the story of this 'very tiny donkey, no bigger than a good-sized dog, who lived on the island of Sicily.' " A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p11 N 9 '30 220w

Sat R of Lit 7:352 N 15 '30 280w

WENDLER, OTTO BERNHARD. Soldiers' [2] women; tr. from the German by Ian F. D. Morrow. 302p $2 Harper

30-25154

The ills and evils that result from the enforced separation of men and women during the years of war, is the theme of Soldiers' Women. It traces the effect of such separation in the lives of five men in one German division and of their wives and sweethearts who remain at home.

"The author's strange and somewhat sharp mysticism fills the plain outline of simple thoughts and crude desires with a wide, compelling, and peculiar significance, while, constructively, a clear and controlled realism exactly balances the sheer horror of some of his episodes and the quiet beauty of others. An admirable book."

+ Bookm 72:vii O '30 100w

" 'Soldiers' Women' is written in a simple, lyrical, always adequate prose." Edwin Seaver

+ Books p29 N 16 '30 450w

"His book, far from being sensational, is exceedingly apt and interesting." Eugene Lohrke

+ N Y Times p8 D 7 '30 120w

"It is the same old story, but rewritten as a tour de force by a man whose skill brings it, no doubt, somewhat above the average of war literature. . . The book is carefully planned, economically written, and succeeds in its intention without forcing a single issue. Its chief defect is a usual one: self-consciousness, insistence on the gruesome, to the point of being scabrous and sadistic. The author is 'literary' about them, as Tolstoy was not in 'Sebastopol,' nor Stephen Crane in the 'Red Badge of Courage.' "

+ — Sat R of Lit 7:275 O 25 '30 230w

WENTWORTH, PATRICIA (MRS G. F. DILLON). Coldstone. 308p $2 Lippincott [7s 6d Hodder]

30-23188

A tale of mystery, adventure and love, its scene set in a little English village. Young Anthony Coldstone inherited Stonegate from his grandfather, and with it came the injunction never to move the ancient megalithic stone nearby. But Anthony and Susan Bowyer, about whom there seemed to be some mystery, determined to do a bit of investigating. The results were nearly, but not quite, disastrous.

Booklist 27:106 N '30

Bookm 71:xxi Ag '30 40w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Books p10 Ag 10 '30 150w

Boston Transcript p2 O 1 '30 250w

"The mystery is sustained to the end and the book is unusually well written and diverting." Bruce Rae

+ N Y Times p26 S 21 '30 150w

"A very pleasantly creepy atmosphere and plenty of excitement and suspense have been well presented by the author in this excellent mystery story." W. R. Brooks

+ Outlook 155:550 Ag 6 '30 130w

Times [London] Lit Sup p216 Mr 13 '30 150w

WENTWORTH, PATRICIA (MRS G. F. DILLON). Kingdom lost. 296p $2 Lippincott

30-8789

Valentine Ryven had lived twenty years on a desert island when she was found and returned to relations in England. Since Valentine was to inherit the Ryven fortune, the relations were not too delighted to see her. Valentine found civilization disagreeable, and began to long for the solitude of her desert island again. But there is Timothy, one friend among many enemies, and a secret packet that she dares to open when "things are so bad that they couldn't possibly be worse."

Books p19 My 4 '30 100w

Boston Transcript p3 Ap 5 '30 270w

Cleveland Open Shelf p77 My '30

N Y Evening Post p11m F 15 '30 80w

WERNER, MORRIS ROBERT. "Orderly!" 214p $2.50 Cape

940.476 European war, 1914-1918—Hospitals, charities, etc. European war, 1914-1918—Personal narratives 30-8114

The author, who served during the war in a base hospital unit at Etretat on the Normandy coast, tells of his work as an orderly. He writes, in realistic terms, of the various duties of doctors, nurses and assistants, and the care of the wounded and the dead.

" 'Orderly' offers much by way of snapshots to those who have no time or interest in large scale canvases of this part of the scene. It has the merit of rapid movement and interesting detail within the covers of a small book. Mr. Werner, for the purpose of his narrative, keeps to the middle of the road. His bloodiest scenes are therefore essentially bloodless. The reader is fairly well anæsthetized before he gets through; and all this may please him or not, but it can hardly fail to interest him." Eugene Lohrke

+ Books p2 Mr 16 '30 600w

Boston Transcript p8 My 10 '30 180w

"A lucid, undramatic account of his experiences as a soldier in a unit of the American medical corps attached to the British army. He neither spares his readers gruesome details nor dwells upon them. As a result the narration is admirable in its restraint and balance; but it is too slight for its subject, and lacking in power."

+ — Nation 130:738 Je 25 '30 100w

"Mr. Werner has a quiet way of saying things, but he can sometimes produce revolting effects. He admits that, before enlisting in the army, he had never in his life been in a hospital, even for a visit, and this perhaps accounts for the peculiar emphasis he occasionally places on things which are the common-places of all hospitals. Sometimes he appears to attack the reader's sensibilities wilfully, but if his document is somewhat less effective on account of this it does not lessen its validity." C. A. Chapman

New Repub 63:26 My 21 '30 170w

"Whether funny or terrible—and it is much more often terrible than funny—this is an honest book. The writer is not ashamed to show the hardening effect of continual contact with suffering on the healthy young."

New Statesman 35:744 S 20 '30 250w

"As Rabelaisian as his comparative wit can make it, as Voltairean as convenient, this book and author are at least in a good 'tradition.' To such realisms, however, as are in Miss Borden's politer 'sketches' (and in F. A. Voigt's hospital-service parts of his book, 'Combed Out'), Mr. Werner adds not a very great deal, except impishness." L. C. Woodman

N Y Times p9 Je 15 '30 320w

"A well-told and accurate account of some of its author's experiences during twenty months as an enlisted man in an American Base Hospital Unit during the war. Not pleasant reading, because there was no work in the war more humiliating, sickening, utterly disheartening than that of an orderly with a Base Hospital." Mary Lee

+ Sat R of Lit 6:1068 My 24 '30 1250w

"As an experienced writer Mr. Werner has no difficulty in making a good story out of his gruesome but monotonous two years, but British readers will not always recognize his pictures of the Army of the Empire. When he gets to the business in hand, however, there is no doubt that Mr. Werner knows what he is talking about. One cannot help regretting that he has allowed what one can only call the 'War-book atmosphere' to creep in, bringing with it largely irrelevant and uninteresting additions to what would otherwise have been a valuable narrative."
— + Times [London] Lit Sup p869 O 23 '30 320w

WEST, GEOFFREY, pseud. See Wells, G. H.

WESTERMANN, WILLIAM LINN, ed. Upon slavery in Ptolemaic Egypt. 69p il $3.75 Columbia univ. press [18s 6d Oxford]

326.1 Manuscripts, Greek. Slavery in Egypt. Taxation—Egypt. Ptolemies, kings of Egypt
30-5421

Gives a transliteration and translation of a papyrus in the library of Columbia university relating to taxes levied on sales of slaves, upon which and other evidence the author bases this discussion of the history of the tax on slave sales in Ptolemaic Egypt. There is also a discussion of slavery for debt and the slave trade in general in the time of the Ptolemies.

Reviewed by Donald McFayden
Am Hist R 35:902 Jl '30 220w

"From a legal point of view the papyrus, and the discussion of Westermann, 'is most important. . . The volume places Westermann in the ranks of the leading papyrologists, if he is not already there, a distinction which can be said of few, if any, American scholars." A. A. Schiller
+ Columbia Law R 30:749 My '30 1150w
Times [London] Lit Sup p594 Jl 17 '30 200w

WESTERMARCK, EDVARD ALEXANDER. Memories of my life; tr. from the Swedish by Anna Barwell. 312p il $5 Macaulay [16s Allen & U.]

B or 92

For descriptive note see Annual for 1929.

Reviewed by Ruth Benedict
Books p18 F 2 '30 450w
Boston Transcript p2 Ja 15 '30 250w

"A special type of autobiography has begun to appear in recent years—what might be called the philosophical will and testament of men eminent in politics, science or letters. . . This is perhaps the most stimulating and valuable kind of autobiography that can be put in the hands of the younger generation." Francis Snow
+ Current Hist 31:838 F '30 200w

"Westermarck gives a clear and charming picture of the simple, joyful life open to the true scholar today. The quiet note of happiness struck in his autobiography makes a heartening sound in the midst of contemporary turbulence. . . Here is almost a cloistered quiet and joy; it is well to be reminded that this may still be the lot of men who work with due humility and steadfastness at the tasks they love, and that the life of the scholar may still be, verily, a good one." Lorine Pruette
+ Nation 130:153 F 5 '30 400w
St Louis 28:82 Mr '30

"The whole is written in a quiet style which almost succeeds in disguising the heroic quality of the life, but not quite."
+ Spec 143:987 D 28 '29 200w

WESTMACOTT, MARY, pseud. Giants' bread. 358p $1 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Collins]
30-20635

Vernon Deyre visioned a new kind of music and wanted to create it. He was also infatuated with Nell. But Vernon was something of a coward, psychologically—and it took the war and the shock of a greater personal disaster to make him realize that he really loved Jane, who had sacrificed herself for him; and that he must now, in spite of himself, give his whole soul to his music.

Books p10 O 5 '30 300w
Boston Transcript p3 Ag 23 '30 220w

"Miss Westmacott writes with so engaging a knowledge of music that we are ready to believe that 'The Giant' will be one of the musical treats in the future." K. C. T.
+ Nation and Ath 47:447 Jl 5 '30 70w

"When Miss Westmacott reaches the world of music, which she really knows, her book suddenly comes alive and vivifies her characters with it. Jane, the singer, is a live and withal a charming personality, and in her presence the rather pallid and inadequate figure of Vernon's wife takes on for a while a real existence. The chapters in which Jane appears are worth the rest of the book put together, and make one wish to encourage Miss Westmacott to go on writing—but to prune her gift for imitating what half a hundred other authors can do."
+ — New Statesman 35:151 My 10 '30 370w
N Y Evening Post p5s S 6 '30 180w

"Her book comes well under the classification of a 'good book.' And it is only a satisfying novel that can claim that appellation. In 'Giants' Bread' there are traces of the careful, detailed writing of the English novelist, and there are hints of Mary Roberts Rinehart's methods of mentioning a finished episode and explaining later how it all happened."
+ N Y Times p7 Ag 17 '30 320w

"When Miss Westmacott has learnt to tighten up her dialogue, and to imply more than she states, she will be able to give fuller effect to her capacity for telling a story, and her very saving sense of humour. They are qualities not to be rated low in a first novel." I. M. Parsons
+ — Spec 144:913 My 31 '30 250w
Times [London] Lit Sup p460 My 29 '30 250w

WESTON, GEORGE. American marquis. 237p ² $2 Dodd
30-29824

To the impoverished family of Judge Marlebone comes the sudden good news that the Judge has fallen heir to a great Sussex estate. So the old Judge, his two lovely daughters, his mother and his sister go at once to England and take up residence in the ancestral manor. The daughters find romance, but the Judge soon discovers that the estate yields no income and cannot be sold. Several other disadvantages and complications make him decide to return to Belleview, the old home town, where he can be really happy.

Booklist 27:210 Ja '31

"This book is rather engaging, and the many missteps of the new titled family have a humor that is pleasing, and one follows the American marquis out of these foreign entanglements with interest and satisfaction."
+ Books p26 D 7 '30 180w

"Those readers who ask only light-hearted amusement will be satisfied with this unpretentious and inconsequential story. Furthermore, if they do not object to that lack of depth or finesse which make characters emotionally convincing, George Weston's youthfully exuberant and effervescent style will prove refreshing."
+ — N Y Times p36 D 7 '30 280w

"Mildly amusing tale."
Sat R of Lit 7:314 N 8 '30 150w

WETERSTETTEN, RUDOLPH, and WATSON, A. M. K. Biography of President von Hindenburg. 276p il $2.50 Macmillan [10s 6d Marriott]

B or 92 Hindenburg, Paul von 30-11397

This life of the German war leader and statesman follows von Hindenburg's own account of his career as a soldier up to his retirement in 1914, when he was sixty-seven; his sudden reassumption of military duties at the outbreak of the war, and the fame he acquired by stemming the Russian invasion. Once more, at the close of the war, Hindenburg retired. Then, at the age of seventy-seven, he became president of the German Republic. It is Hindenburg the statesman with whom the biographers are chiefly concerned.

Booklist 27:63 O '30

"The book is revelatory of the character of this stern, forbidding warrior who has become so greatly loved because of his simple, ingenuous virtues and almost childlike devotion to duty wherever that duty may lead him. Deep admiration for Hindenburg is clearly evident in this writing, but at the same time the authors have not shut their eyes to his narrow limitations." F. R. Dulles

+ — Bookm 71:449 Jl '30 400w

Boston Transcript p5 Je 28 '30 350w

Cleveland Open Shelf p101 Jl '30

"With such a vastly interesting subject, it is disappointing that the authors of this book have produced such a mediocre account. It is fair to say that the book is adequate; the chief biographical facts are there. Seldom, however, does this volume give the reader any vivid picture of von Hindenburg, or of what he has stood for in the changing course of German history."

— + Current Hist 32:614 Je '30 250w

Foreign Affairs 8:675 Jl '30 20w

"It has the great advantage, for average readers, of giving nearly half its space to the period of Hindenburg's presidency, and of going much more into detail in its treatment of Hindenburg's early years and personal life, but what is written is written prevailingly in praise, and there is a conspicuous absence of detachment or critical appraisal. The chapters on the presidential period, too, while they bring out the really noble traits of Hindenburg's character, are superficial in their treatment of the political situations with which he has had to deal." William MacDonald

— + Nation 131:251 S 3 '30 300w

"This life of Germany's most symbolic human figure is no more than a 'surface' biography. Von Hindenburg, in these pages, appears, if not a stuffed shirt, more or less of a stuffed dress uniform." F. H. M.

— N Y Evening Post p4s Je 7 '30 100w

"The book is thorough, compact and interesting. It is written with skill; there is a lack of striving for effect; an apparent desire to keep away from too much hero-worship and, at the same time, be fair to Hindenburg's good qualities. For those who wish to get a bird's-eye view, so to speak, of the career of the octogenarian President of the German Republic, from his earliest days as a cadet to his election to the Presidency in 1925, there could scarcely be a better book."

+ N Y Times p6 Je 1 '30 1870w

Reviewed by W. B. Shaw

R of Rs 81:12 Je '30 100w

St Louis 28:218 S '30

Springf'd Republican p12 Ag 1 '30 270w

Times [London] Lit Sup p486 Je 12 '30 450w

Reviewed by Johannes Mattern

Yale R n s 20:207 autumn '30 200w

WEXLEY, JOHN. Last mile: preface by Lewis E. Lawes. 128p $2 French

812 30-14693

A grimly realistic play in three acts, the scene of which is the death-house in a penitentiary. The first act is concerned with the few hours prior to the execution in the electric chair of Walters, the convict in cell No. 7. In the last two acts there occurs a rebellion and prison riot, led by "Killer" Mears, in which the tables are turned: the prisoners capture the guards, sentence and execute them one by one until the riot comes to its foreseen and logical end.

Cath World 131:214 My '30 350w

" 'The Last Mile' though it traffics no doubt in agony, prison situations, suspense and death, is as reality scarcely convincing at all, except in the most superficial sense. It is what is called photographic, by which is meant that it does nothing to the original and gives us things exactly as they are." Stark Young

— New Repub 62:152 Mr 26 '30 1200w

Reviewed by Edwin Seaver

N Y Evening Post p8m My 31 '30 60w

"So excellently is the melodrama built upon the first act foundation of reality that it is a strong man who can detect where realism ends and pure melodrama begins." F. R. Bellamy

+ Outlook 154:470 Mr 19 '30 330w

St Louis 28:215 S '30

WEYANT, MRS FANNY LEE. Tethered bubble. 299p $2.50 Century

30-5409

In 1896, Celia Thorne, at twenty-three, was a teacher in Brythley college. Then she met and fell in love with Frank Randon. The story traces the development of this typical romance of a cultured and sheltered girl of the Victorian period.

"I have nothing good to say of Fanny Lee Weyant's The Tethered Bubble. It may be, as the publishers say, 'a tender throbbing novel'. It is also—to me—unreadable." Guy Holt

— Bookm 71:239 Ap '30 30w

"This is an innocuous love story of the Victorian age which would have been better if its author could have resisted the temptation to dwell upon the fact that it is Victorian. She insists upon looking back upon it from the perspective of 1930, reminding the reader that times have changed, and playing up the quaintness of conventions and the sheltered innocence of those days."

— Books p10 Ap 20 '30 200w

Wis Lib Bul 26:106 Mr '30

WEYGAND, MAXIME. Turenne, marshal of France; tr. by George B. Ives. 282p il $3.50 Houghton

B or 92 Turenne, Henri de La Tour d'Auvergne, vicomte de. France—History, Military 30-12397

This account of Turenne, the great military genius of the Thirty years' war, is the biography of a soldier written by a soldier. General Weygand emphasizes Turenne's genius for strategy and outlines his military campaigns. The events of his life are carefully recorded, as are his relations with his famous contemporaries: Louis XIII, Louis XIV, Richelieu, Mazarin, Louvois, Vauban and others. The biography reflects also the general background of France during the period of the Thirty years' war.

"The book is far from brilliant, but it is a complete account of the great marshal's career, painstakingly and thoroughly set down."

+ — Bookm 71:vi Jl '30 100w

"The book reads well, in a sober way, and is not devoid of austere charm. Turenne would have been satisfied. The translation is adequate, with far fewer blemishes than in the common run of books." Albert Guerard

+ Books p14 Ag 24 '30 500w

Boston Transcript p2 Jl 9 '30 750w

"If the critic can find in this book by General Weygand one thing to cavil at, it is perhaps that the soldier of the twentieth century is a little over-zealous in his desire to enlarge upon the virtues of his hero and to minimize such faults as Turenne shared with his contemporaries. But that, in these days of zeal in the other direction is a wholesome attitude. And after all is said and done the wreath General Weygand places with such reverence upon the brow of the greater French chieftain is more or less deserved, as the book under discussion bears ample witness."

+ — Christian Science Monitor p9 Je 7 '30 380w

New Statesman 35:575 Ag 9 '30 250w

"A book more likely to interest military men than civilians. It is written in a cultured, direct, informative style, and great figures move through its pages." F. L. R.
+ Outlook 155:67 My 14 '30 100w

Reviewed by W. B. Shaw
R of Rs 82:14 Jl '30 50w

"This volume has no literary pretension, for it reads like a military textbook and smacks of the woodenness of all translation. However, General Weygand has composed a first-class historical manual. The book deserves to be the standard work in both languages, for English historians have little to say about Turenne, who was the French prototype of Marlborough and the inspiration of Napoleon." Shane Leslie
+ — Sat R 150:206 Ag 16 '30 1200w

Spec 145:288 Ag 30 '30 250w

"Using broad lines and neglecting detail, General Weygand has drawn for us a valuable portrait of Turenne, in which we see the man, the soldier and the political adviser of his sovran—the last aspect being one which has not had much attention in other studies."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p711 S 11 '30 1000w

WEYGANDT, CORNELIUS. Red hills; a record of good days outdoors and in, with things Pennsylvania Dutch. 251p il $4 Press of the Univ. of Pa.

917.48 Germans in Pennsylvania. Pottery
30-4548

For descriptive note see Annual for 1929.

Booklist 26:353 Je '30

Books p16 Ja 12 '30 160w

Boston Transcript p2 Ja 22 '30 620w

Reviewed by L. A. G. Strong
Nation and Ath 47:sup193 My 10 '30 130w

"Fully two-thirds of this book is given over to an enthusiast's account of the arts of and in Pennsylvania Dutchland. These chapters will delight collectors, and if they pile up too much detail for the general reader, that may be forgiven in the general delight of so rich and charming a book." Shaemas O'Sheel
+ N Y World p11m My 4 '30 670w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:35 Ap '30

St Louis 28:146 My '30

"This is a good background book on an interesting people and region."
+ Sat R of Lit 6:699 F 1 '30 170w

"As pleasant and unexciting reading as has come out of America for years past, a happy monument to an attractive people."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p323 Ap 10 '30 130w

WEYGANDT, CORNELIUS. Wissahickon hills; 2 memories of leisure hours out of doors in an old countryside. 366p il $4 Press of the Univ. of Pa.

917.48 Wissahickon creek. Natural history—Pennsylvania. Birds—Pennsylvania
30-33596

The author, professor of English literature in the University of Pennsylvania, writes with loving appreciation of the valley of the Wissahickon and its wooded hills, to the north of Philadelphia, where from childhood he has loved to tramp. This is a book of memories of a keen observer interested in everything living, and especially in the birds and flowers of this beautiful countryside.

"Books of this kind are rare nowadays, just as the leisurely tramping over hills and valleys is limited to a few hardy individuals. . . Nature it at every hand, but we do not know her. Then along comes a scholar and shames us with his nature lore—telling us not only how much happiness is to be found in the life of the woods but what fine observations may be made there, to be set down later in prose." Harry Hansen
+ N Y World p3e D 28 '30 600w

"A book somewhat local in its interest and a little miscellaneous in its contents but of undeniable charm. It should be read by lovers of the Pennsylvania country and by those who appreciate sound nature literature."
+ — Sat R of Lit 7:478 D 20 '30 80w

"'The Wissahickon Hills' discloses genuine love for the countryside of his forefathers and graceful and sincere facility of expression. . . Unless the reader is a confirmed city dweller, to whom the roar of the subway is music, these chapters will make him yearn for a life which embraces apple trees in bloom, cool spring-houses with pans of creamy milk and fowls in the henyard. Though the essays are not uniform in spontaneity, the author's spirit is gentle, wise and wholesome, in harmony with the fruits of that earth he knows so well."
+ Springf'd Republican p6 D 29 '30 750w

WHARTON, ANTHONY, pseud. See McAllister, A.

WHARTON, MRS EDITH NEWBOLD (JONES). Certain people. 232p $2 Appleton
30-28849

A group of six short stories with diverse scenes and characters: Atrophy, in which a woman is kept from seeing for the last time the dying man who had been her lover; A bottle of Perrier, dealing with an English servant and murder on an African desert; After Holbein, a study of aristocratic old age; Dieu d'amour; The refugees; and Mr Jones.

Booklist 27:209 Ja '31

Bookm 72:viii D '30 100w

"In Mrs. Wharton's latest book the proportion between tragedy and satirical comedy is judiciously blended, and the quality of sameness, so characteristic of lesser writers, is entirely absent. We find in 'Certain People' a fastidiousness of phrase, a warm recognition of emotion and an emphasis on the drama of life which evoke our deep and warm appreciation. . . When Mrs. Wharton leaves her legitimate generation her pen is not so steady. Despite a practiced stirring of bobbed hair, synthetic gin cocktails and modern ideas into a 100 per cent American background, Mrs. Wharton must remain forever of that generation that saw 'The Age of Innocence.' She is the best social historian America has ever produced." D. F. Gilman
+ — Books p5 N 2 '30 600w

Boston Transcript p2 D 13 '30 300w

Cleveland Open Shelf p150 D '30

"There is no excuse for 'Certain People' except what resides in the quality of After Holbein. After Holbein is a prism—delicate, transparent, colorful—containing a whole social order, a perfect imprint of a vanishing race. From behind its worn-out forms, its self-imposed seriousness, importance, and virtue Mrs. Wharton draws whatever humanity it has. She draws it conventionally so far as style goes and painlessly so far as ideas are concerned, but she draws with mature grace and rich understanding." Florence Codman
— + Nation 131:654 D 10 '30 150w

Reviewed by John Chamberlain
New Repub 65:225 Ja 7 '31 150w

WHARTON, E. N.—Continued
New Statesman 36:250 N 29 '30 120w

"Of the six tales that go to make up the collection, four are above the average in importance, and one is a triumph in short-story writing. This is 'After Holbein.' " Percy Hutchison
+ N Y Times p7 N 9 '30 1050w

"Mrs. Wharton's stories are composed with a flawless technique, so that one must agree with the opinion of Henry James with regard to her 'diabolical little cleverness.' One cannot deny, when one has read the excellent story, 'After Holbein,' that Mrs. Wharton knows that social stratum she deals with. Neither can one escape the fact that most of her present stories are 'composed.' For instance, 'A Bottle of Perrier' or 'Mr. Jones' are deft little mystery stories. Nevertheless, they leave one untouched." Maxim Lieber
+ — N Y World p3e N 23 '30 150w
Sat R 150:747 D 6 '30 380w

"The short story seems too mechanical, too reticent for her talent, and one is left over and over again with the sensation that, though expert in inventing ingenious situations, she has brought them off with ingenuity and not with art. She has a satirical study of the grotesque old age of two 'diners out' which one would have liked to see in the accomplished hands of Mr. Osbert Sitwell." V. S. Pritchett
— + Spec 145:804 N 22 '30 180w

"All the stories have Mrs. Wharton's smooth urbanity and excellence of style."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e D 28 '30 420w

"Mrs. Wharton's neatness and ease, besides her keen enjoyment of natural beauty, distinguish every page of this book, which is both a pleasure to read and a lesson to analyse."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p1010 N 27 '30 700w

WHARTON, MRS EDITH NEWBOLD (JONES). Hudson River bracketed. 559p $2.50 Appleton
29-24077

For descriptive note see Annual for 1929.

Booklist 26:163 Ja '30
Cath World 130:635 F '30 220w

"Mrs. Wharton, like all writers great and small, has her failures; 'Hudson River Bracketed' is one of them. No one belittles an author's attempt to extend his scope, but Mid-Westerners have shown themselves so able to express their neighbors' frustrations that Mrs. Wharton's unsuccessful foray into their field adds nothing to her laurels."
— Nation 130:76 Ja 15 '30 200w

"The theme and many of the situations are very hackneyed, and Mrs. Wharton does not improve matters by draping about them conventional sentiments. It is a proof of the reality of her talents as a writer that in spite of all this the book is neither uninteresting nor undistinguished." L. L. Irvine
+ — Nation and Ath 46:582 Ja 25 '30 80w

Reviewed by Gilbert Seldes
New Repub 61:283 Ja 29 '30 220w

"Her principal characters are marionettes—but with a setting so real, rich and vital that you feel that the ordinary conventions of the drama have been reversed, and that you are watching a puppet-show acted in natural scenery, instead of flesh-and-blood with a backcloth of painted canvas."
— + New Statesman 34:669 Mr 1 '30 800w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:4 Ja '30
Pratt p41 spring '30

Reviewed by L. P. Hartley
Sat R 149:144 F 1 '30 400w

'Edith Wharton has two Americas which she depicts with the wisdom, serenity and irony of one whose values are estabilshed; the vast forcing-house for success, new religions, and new talent; and the America of old families where everything but a vital sense of continuity is declining. . . The merciless description of the New York literary world and the intrigues for literary prizes is too generalized to be alive, as the wholesale tying up of loose strands at the end of the book is comforting but arbitrary." V. S. Pritchett
Spec 144:99 Ja 18 '30 380w

"Miss Wharton's art is equal to all the demands which so large a canvas makes on it; as the reflection of modern American life and its contradictions in the mirror of a mind nourished on tradition this novel takes a worthy place in Miss Wharton's work."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p42 Ja 16 '30 620w
Wis Lib Bul 25:414 D '29

WHARTON, JAMES B. Marsh wife. 338p $2 Coward-McCann
30-7293

When Everett was fourteen his father was drowned in the marsh where they lived. The boy gravely took up the work where his father laid it down, and went on earning his living trapping, fishing and hunting. Two women fell in love with him, when he grew older, but he was not really happy until he realized that it was Mary he loved, for Mary had lived all her life on the edge of the marsh and loved it as much as Everett did.

"He gives his book charm through the relation of its people to the land that bred and reared them, of human nature to great Nature. He is aware of what most American novelists seem to be unaware, that place is as important as people in fiction; more important, we are likely to conclude, when place is ignored and unaccounted-for characters float across merely perfunctory scenery. 'The Marsh Wife' is a very simple tale, but it has what most modern fiction utterly lacks—it has charm." Edna Kenton
+ Books p5 Mr 2 '30 750w
Boston Transcript p2 Ap 30 '30 380w

"A lachrymose, heavily sentimental tale patterned on archaic lines and laid, at the century's turn, in a remote region of Southwest New Jersey." E. C. B.
— N Y Evening Post p11m My 10 '30 270w

"There is more than story in this book. There is understanding of the deep currents that drive humans who are confident of their seamanship into channels and seas unsuspected by them. There is a low-hanging sense of beauty that gives the reader the miasmic atmosphere of the marsh. . . The portrayal of Everett Driscoll is excellent."
+ N Y Times p8 Mr 2 '30 600w
Sat R of Lit 7:92 Ag 30 '30 320w

WHAT is hell? by W. R. Inge, and others. 186p $2 Harper
237.5 Hell 30-6397

A symposium of theological teaching and lay opinion concerning the probability, nature or interpretation of Hell as a punishment in life after death. The chapters in the volume are contributed by the following ministers, writers and scientists: W. R. Inge, Sir Oliver Lodge, Abbot Butler, Warwick Deeping, J. E. C. Welldon, James Moffatt, Annie Besant, Sheila Kaye-Smith, W. E. Orchard, F. W. Norwood, G. H. Morgan, Irwin Edman.

Booklist 26:380 Jl '30

"In general, the contributors divide into two classes—those who think of Hell as the spiritual consequence in the next world of the evil we have done in this, and those who limit their attention to the life that now is and the Hell we make here for ourselves and other people. Hell, as a literal place of fire and brimstone, seems to have disappeared. There is ingenuity, imagination, true insight and vision in this volume, but the net result is a dreadfully futile threshing of old straw." J. H. Holmes
Books p17 Mr 23 '30 220w

Reviewed by E. DeW. Jones
Christian Century 48:18 Ja 7 '31 500w

"A variety of desires will be satisfied in reading this volume, but quite certainly the desire to know what a post-mortem Hell is will not be one of them. The significance of the chapters is not their exact description of Hell here or hereafter, but in their insights as to what it is in human nature that has created the idea of Hell, whatever its actual content, or wherever experienced." M. G. Evans
Crozer Q 7:248 Ap '30 280w

Reviewed by M. H. Krumbine
J Religion 10:435 Jl '30 720w

"While marred here and there by misprints and inconsistencies, the book is wonderfully readable and the argument worthy of careful consideration." F. L. Palmer
+ — Living Church 83:90 My 17 '30 500w

Reviewed by K. A. Porter
N Y Evening Post p10m Mr 8 '30 900w

"The book lacks a table of contents, which would have made it more easily usable, while the inclusion of brief biographical notes concerning its contributors would have made it more interesting for most readers."
N Y Times p32 F 23 '30 500w

Reviewed by Harry Hansen
N Y World p15 F 20 '30 360w

Times [London] Lit Sup p360 My 1 '30 800w

WHATHAM, RICHARD. Meteorology for aviator and layman. 179p il $3 Stokes
551.5 Meteorology 30-6167

A textbook on the study of atmospheric conditions, prepared for a course in meteorology at New York university and designed to train instructors in aeronautical meteorology for aviation ground schools.

Booklist 26:346 Je '30
Books p10 My 11 '30 80w
N Y New Tech Bks 15:23 Ap '30

"He explains clearly and interestingly and with many diagrams the principles of the subject and shows how the aviator can apply this knowledge to his needs."
+ N Y Times p26 Je 8 '30 200w

WHELESS, JOSEPH. Forgery in Christianity; a documented record of the foundations of the Christian religion. 406p $4 Knopf
270 Christianity. Bible—Criticism, interpretation, etc. Church history—Primitive and early church. Fathers of the church 30-23581

"This indictment consists of seven points, each of which Mr. Wheless afterward takes up in a separate chapter. Its main charges are that the Bible, 'in its every Book and in the strictest legal and moral sense, is a huge forgery'; that every Book of the New Testament is a forgery of the Christian Church, which from its inception until it reached the apex of its power 'was a vast and tireless forgery mill'; that forgeries, great and small, pious frauds of every sort and 'every conceivable form of religious lie, fraud and imposture' have been practiced throughout its existence by the Church and its priests and ministers."—N Y Times

"Mr. Wheless has attempted to write a critical analysis of the origin and character of one of the world's great literatures. He has brought to his formidable task no historical perspective, no knowledge of or respect for the scientific method, a pretentious but empty scholarship and a spirit of blind and bitter fanaticism. His book was conceived in prejudice and born in spite. Such a book is something more and worse than funny." J. H. Holmes
— Books p15 S 21 '30 900w

Reviewed by Gerald Sykes
N Y Evening Post p5d D 27 '30 500w

"Both those who are and those who are not believers in any of these religions can hardly fail to be arrested and interested by the intellectual keenness, the wide-reading, the pungent mental quality and the brilliant mastery of legal technique with which Mr. Wheless carries on his investigation, marshals his proofs and conducts his argument. But he would perhaps be more convincing if his manner had in it more of judicial calmness and temperateness and less of the advocate's heat and fervor. He injures his own cause by arguing it too much after the fashion of a lawyer for the prosecution determined to convict."
— + N Y Times p26 S 14 '30 420w

"Mr. Wheless's product is genuine bootlegger stuff, guaranteed to produce blind staggers in minimum quantity. Its base is the standard government article, diverted from medical and sacramental use. The flavoring is newspaper polemic. Only the labels are original—and the Latin. That is strictly homebrew." B. W. Bacon
— Sat R of Lit 7:160 S 27 '30 850w

WHETHAM, WILLIAM CECIL DAMPIER. See Dampier-Whetham, W. C. D.

WHITAKER, MRS MALACHI. Frost in April. 253p $2.50 (7s 6d) Cape

A collection of twenty short stories—most of them character sketches—which in mood and manner resemble the work of Katherine Mansfield. The author chooses a certain high point, or climax, in the life of an English peasant, or a young girl, a mother, or an old man, and portrays the character at a precise moment of grief or ecstacy, and its relation to past and future events.

Bookm 71:324 Je '30 250w

"All these people who are so real in themselves seem to wander through the stories like ghosts. There is no fusion between the reader and the subject; there is little excitement or burning intensity such as you get in Lawrence or Katherine Mansfield. The stories are told very simply as tales. A few of the subjects remind you of Katherine Mansfield—the woman who holds a workman's head in her lap while he dies—one or two others—but even though they are genuinely felt, you remain aloof, you do not merge, there is no burning contact with something in the story that you never realized before was in yourself." Margery Latimer
+ — Books p14 My 4 '30 650w

"All of the stories in this book are slight in texture. Almost all of them have touches of deft humor which lighten their quiet-toned pattern. This is an admirable collection of tales. It should not be overlooked."
+ New Repub 63:27 My 21 '30 150w

"Her skill is as unusual as it is natural. She has a carefree ease, a lovely quickness, and an intense justice of treatment which make Frost in April one of the most promising books that have appeared for a long time. . . She is astonishingly good at visualisation, and her scenes and people spring into significant activity with no effort, and extremely simply."
+ New Statesman 34:537 F 1 '30 280w

"All of Mrs. Whitaker's stories show a sympathetic understanding of people, an insight into the pathos of life. All her characters live, and live not through representation, but through our knowing them. If Mrs. Whitaker is to be criticized, it is for her being too easily satisfied with the episodic, with something less than the whole of experience. It is for this reason that her fine sense of pathos rarely rises to the plane of tragic conception." Edwin Seaver
+ — N Y Evening Post p10m Ap 5 '30 100w

"Mrs. Whitaker has what is more profound than a sense of tragedy, namely, a tragic sense of life; she can, therefore, never merely pity her chosen characters nor sentimentalize over them. Instead she makes their tragedies so impersonal and inevitable as to be universal. . . Mrs. Whitaker's art is in her perfect choice of detail and word, in her accurate understanding of the right moment for portrayal, and, most of all, in her sense of the meaning of all life as shown through the characters she describes. 'Frost in April' is a very fine piece of writing."
+ N Y Times p8 Mr 30 '30 650w

WHITAKER, MALACHI—Continued

"Mrs. Whitaker is gifted. Her stories are among the best that this reviewer has read for a long time."

+ Outlook 154:545 Ap 2 '30 140w

Reviewed by Gilbert Thomas
Spec 143:824 N 30 '29 170w

Times [London] Lit Sup p1004 N 28 '29 220w

WHITE, BETTY. I lived this story. 308p $1 Doubleday, Doran
30-21864

"This novel by Betty White won the prize offered jointly by Doubleday, Doran and College Humor for a story of American college life written by an undergraduate or by a graduate of not more than a year. . . Her narrative may or may not be autobiographical, but in any case it would serve very well for the autobiography of thousands of co-eds—nice and not very unusual young girls who came up to college filled with bright illusions, and who lost them, one by one, fairly painlessly."—N Y Times

Bookm 72:ix S '30 50w

"If Miss White's tale does not wholly escape that aura of tremendous unimportance which is apt to cling to college stories, it may boast of a pleasant manner, lively incident, sharp observation and irony of a mature cast, as well as a high degree of informational value. . . For the general reader, here is a speedy, amusing and honest story of youth aglow, with a fillip of contemporary slang and racy conversation."

+ Books p12 Jl 20 '30 250w

"There is an honesty about this story as well as a reality which makes one hope much from Betty White's later work." D. F. G.

+ Boston Transcript p2 Ag 13 '30 550w

Reviewed by G. T. Hellman
New Repub 64:81 S 3 '30 60w

"Miss White has made a very neat and workmanlike and altogether convincing job of 'I Lived This Story.' She may have sacrificed something in the way of popularity by her disavowal of the traditional color of college life, but her book may be earnestly recommended to any one anxious to know what a girl's adventures at a co-educational university are really like."

+ N Y Times p7 Ag 3 '30 520w

"As a story the novel is tolerable, but little better; it has, for its chief fault, a tendency towards sensationalism. Miss White has a good deal of facility but little power to weave the strands of her narrative into an effective whole."

— + Sat R of Lit 7:43 Ag 9 '30 350w

WHITE, GRACE M., and DEAKIN, HILDA L. Square mark. 243p $2 Dutton [3s 6d Methuen]
30-21637

When Mr Bradford was murdered in the gardens of a select girls' school, Bellingford Court, the police arrested Miss Gray, the head mistress. But John Tremayne proved with the assistance of two young teachers that, whatever Miss Gray's shadowy past, she was not guilty of the murder.

Bookm 71:xxi Ag '30 50w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p10 Jl 13 '30 170w

Boston Transcript p3 Jl 26 '30 250w

Reviewed by Dashiell Hammett
N Y Evening Post p8m Je 21 '30 50w

"The story is clever and entertaining."

+ N Y Times p15 Je 29 '30 170w

Reviewed by Bernice Whittemore
Outlook 155:310 Je 25 '30 120w

Reviewed by W. C. Weber
Sat R of Lit 6:1164 Je 28 '30 100w

Times [London] Lit Sup p749 S 26 '29 180w

WHITE, LEONARD DUPEE. Prestige value of public employment in Chicago; an experimental study. (Social science studies) 183p il $2.50 Univ. of Chicago press

331.795 Chicago—Officials and employees. Chicago—Occupations. Municipal employees
29-22438

"In order to determine what the people of Chicago really think about the employees of their city, Professor White and his assistants obtained from 4,680 residents personal opinions regarding the relative prestige values of some twenty characteristic occupations in both public and private employment. The results are set forth in the present book. Professor White found that the 4,680 citizens interviewed 'expressed a substantial preference for private employment rather than city employment, and in such crucial matters as integrity, competence, courtesy, and attention to duty, rated city employees much lower than persons in similar occupations in the business or commercial world.' "—Am Pol Sci R

Am J Soc 36:341 S '30 230w

Am Pol Sci R 24:217 F '30 330w

Reviewed by C. R. Woodruff
Ann Am Acad 148:297 Mr '30 400w

St Louis 28:38 F '30

"The chief distinction of the study is the application of a scientific technique of investigation to this problem. For example, one schedule consisted of a word-association test, a rating scale for twenty occupations as against each other, and three rating scales to test opinion as to courtesy, honesty, and efficiency of city employes. From these data a certain 'prestige index' was developed to use for quantitative comparison. Over 5,000 individuals in various walks of life were interviewed and a broad sampling of the community thus obtained. The study thus earns its place as a significant contribution to an important national problem involving some 2,000,000 public employees in the federal, state and municipal governments." Herman Feldman

+ Survey 63:602 F 15 '30 350w

WHITE, OWEN PAYNE. Frontier mother. 101p $1.50 Minton

B or 92 White, Mrs Catherine Payne. Frontier and pioneer life
29-27663

The life story of a pioneer heroine, Mrs White, as narrated by her son. She was a teacher in an Eastern school before she left for the frontier of Colorado with her husband, where, under the most primitive conditions and in constant danger from Indians, she brought up her family.

Booklist 26:278 Ap '30

"Mr. White tells the history of his mother's life in the wild and woolly West with a lively appreciation of its heroic moments and a deep sympathy for its hardships, but admiration for her pluck is what really motivates his treatment of the narrative. As a result, the reader gets a vivid picture of what happened and at the same time a realization of the tang which physical danger and privation injected into the lives of those who faced the hazards staunchly."

+ Books p32 D 1 '29 100w

"Simple, graphic, unadorned is this tale of his mother's life by Mr. White. It is the epitome of the life of the pioneer women told so simply and restrainedly as to be a tribute not only to one frontier mother, but also to all those who faced hardship for themselves and their children gallantly and unafraid. Intimate and personal, it is nevertheless universal because it is true."

+ Boston Transcript p2 D 14 '29 120w

Cleveland Open Shelf p9 Ja '30

"The little book draws a unique and vivid picture of a very attractive personality. One quickly develops much admiration for this woman of salty humor, supple abilities and dauntless spirit. In writing this little sketch of her and her experiences during the '70s and early '80s Mr. White has not only drawn her portrait but he has also pictured with savor and much facetious humor a phase of frontier life, that phase of it that centred around its women, that has had scant attention from its historians."

+ N Y Times p32 O 20 '29 300w
Wis Lib Bul 25:412 D '29

WHITE, PERCIVAL. How to fly an airplane; a textbook for beginners. 358p il $5 Harper

629.13 Airplanes. Aeronautics 30-11354

"Profusely illustrated text for flying schools and for readers who desire a general knowledge of the art." (N Y New Tech Bks) "This book aims to be elementary. It merely touches on aerodynamics. It contains no technical formulas. It will be of no assistance in the designing of aircraft. It speaks directly to those who wish to handle the controls themselves or who like to imagine themselves doing so. It has a message to those desiring to become licensed pilots, and be masters of the ships in which they fly." (Pref.)

Booklist 26:384 Jl '30
Cleveland Open Shelf p109 Jl '30
N Y New Tech Bks 15:31 Jl '30
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:66 O '30

WHITE, STEWART EDWARD. Dog days, 2 other times, other dogs; the autobiography of a man and his dog friends through four decades of changing America. 285p il $2.50 Doubleday, Doran

636.78 Dogs—Legends and stories 30-27997

"'Dog Days' is a retrospect over bygone arcadian ages, that of the shotgun and that of the horse on the roads of California, and over the early decades of the motor age. It is conducted, so to speak, by the dogs that Mr. White had in those periods: Old Joe, the pointer that taught him as a boy how to hunt ruffed grouse in Michigan; Deuce, the Llewellyn that we know from 'The Forest'; Tuxana, and then Irish, both half-and-half bull and bull terrier."—Sat R of Lit

---

Booklist 27:194 Ja '31
Books p22 D 7 '30 220w
Reviewed by Fanny Butcher
Chicago Daily Tribune p15 O 18 '30 50w
Cleveland Open Shelf p144 N '30
St Louis 28:293 D '30

"A mellow book, so pleasant that the dictated but-not-read-ness of parts of it is quickly forgiven."

+ Sat R of Lit 7:373 N 22 '30 320w

WHITE, MRS THADDEUS C. See Der Ling, princess.

WHITE, WILFORD L. Cooperative retail buy- 2 ing associations. 207p il $3 McGraw

658 Retail trade. Cooperation 30-9330

"Five important marketing functions are performed, in varying degrees, by the cooperatives. These are, in the order of their presentation by Dr. White—selling; credit; delivery; buying; and storage. Following the chapters devoted to those functions, the author discusses general problems of organization, management, location and cooperation. The concluding chapters deal with the present status of this type of distributive organization, and probable future trends."—Outlook

---

"The book gives evidence of a careful analysis of material, and an apparent realization of, as well as a statement of, any limitations to the accuracy of the conclusions." F. E. Clark

+ Am Econ R 20:513 S '30 420w
Booklist 27:55 O '30

"While this is essentially a special study, it offers much that is of value to all who are interested, even in a general way, in the basic problems of distribution." F. A. Fall

+ Outlook 156:63 S 10 '30 120w

WHITECHURCH, VICTOR LORENZO. First and last. 372p $2 Duffield [7s 6d Collins]

30-6540

Following a prologue which introduces the characters as they were in youth, we find—in the main portion of the novel—Tom Ragless, the son of a fisherman in the village called Rundleham, grown to wealth and position thru war profiteering in a distant town. His boyhood friend, Alan Crawford, became a poor vicar. Tom had a son, and Alan a daughter. The two meet, fall in love, and thus bring their parents together again.

Books p14 My 4 '30 100w

"For the most part it is the very real life of a collection of people who are pleasant to know and who turn out, for the most part, to be very decent, as all good characters should."

+ Boston Transcript p2 Ap 5 '30 300w

"The best that can be said of it is that it is pleasantly written and not altogether uninteresting."

— + N Y Times p9 Mr 9 '30 280w

"A second-rate novel of glacé romance, treachery, and 'fatalism.' Clichés, platitudes, and unconscious humor abound. The major characters are all hopelessly mechanical, the plot obvious and pieced together by a chain of coincidences. Nevertheless, it holds the reader's attention until the bitter end,—probably by the suspense and fever which Mr. Whitechurch as a detective story-writer injects into his works."

— + Sat R of Lit 6:970 Ap 19 '30 300w
Times [London] Lit Sup p849 O 24 '29 150w

WHITEHEAD, ALFRED NORTH. Function of reason. (Louis Clark Vanuxem foundation lectures, 1929) 72p $1.50 Princeton univ. press [7s Oxford]

156 Reason 30-2482

"For Dr. Whitehead, the function of reason is to promote the art of life; and it has two especial provinces, that typified by Ulysses, the sagacious and practical Reason, discriminating among the immediate arrangements of life, and that of Plato, the speculative type, which ranges in a lordly way over territories beyond the local horizon. The first is as old as man; the second has been in existence only a few thousand years."—New Repub

Booklist 26:261 Ap '30

"Dr. A. N. Whitehead's little treatise on 'The Function of Reason' is one of those satellite books which the weighty planet of his mind casts off from time to time: it offers to the unskilled reader who has neither the philosophic background nor the patience to master 'The Concept of Nature' or 'Process and Reality' an opportunity to survey a smaller but nearer province of Dr. Whitehead's audacious and brilliant mind. . . His touch is sure; his observations penetrating; his insights are deep; and, needless to say, his attacks upon the scientific dogma of our time are in the interests, not of a lower form of superstition, but of a higher and more comprehensive conception of truth." Lewis Mumford

+ New Repub 62:332 My 7 '30 300w
Pratt p7 summer '30
St Louis 28:92 Ap '30

WHITEHEAD, ALFRED NORTH. Process and reality; an essay in cosmology; Gifford lectures delivered in the Univ. of Edinburgh during the session 1927-28. 547p $4.50 Macmillan

113 Cosmology. Science—Philosophy 29-23503

For descriptive note see Annual for 1929.

WHITEHEAD, A. N.—Continued

Booklist 26:222 Mr '30

"The book seems more difficult than it has any right to be. No doubt these are high matters and arduous, but even so the presentation of hypothetical and relative conclusions at the very outset in the form of categories and 'obligations' of the most extreme generality, the whole couched in a vocabulary designed to obliterate even the minimum of connection with familiar ideas, is rather needlessly trying to the reader." A. E. Murphy

Christian Century 47:303 Mr 5 '30 1000w

"That Professor Whitehead has accomplished a tremendously difficult piece of work, which perhaps no other contemporary thinker could have carried through with equal skill, is undeniable. Whether such a piece of work can even in principle furnish relevant information as to the occurrent world of events and whether the very great powers of Professor Whitehead might not on the whole have been employed to better advantage in a more limited and analytic inquiry is a further question." A. E. Murphy

+ Int J Ethics 40:433 Ap '30 950w

Int J Ethics 40:567 Jl '30 220w

"Not many people will read Whitehead's recent book in this generation; not many will read it in any generation. But its influence will radiate through concentric circles of popularization until the common man will think and work in the light of it, not knowing whence the light came. After a few decades of discussion and anaylsis one will be able to understand it more readily than can now be done." H. N. Wieman

+ J Religion 10:137 Ja '30 1500w

"Professor Whitehead is a very eloquent writer with a considerable gift of phrase-making. But he is excessively and, to my mind, unnecessarily obscure. . . The obvious merits of his work [are] great erudition, a richness and variety of culture, a comprehensiveness of method which takes history and poetry, art, literature as well as science and mathematics in its stride, and culls its illustrations indifferently from all the ages and all the civilizations." C. E. M. Joad

+ — Nation and Ath 46:710 F 22 '30 1000w

Reviewed by F. S. Marvin

Nature 126:754 N 15 '30 1000w

"Science and the Modern World remains Whitehead's best book for the general reader; his latest work Process and Reality is rather for the specialist. It bristles with new terminology, and gives little relief by means of illustration or comparative argument; yet it is the most final expression so far of the greatest piece of constructive thinking which English philosophy has recently seen." J. D. Mabbott

+ New Statesman 34:sup xi Mr 15 '30 2100w

Pratt p7 autumn '30

St Louis 28:63 Mr '30

Reviewed by F. S. C. Northrop

Sat R of Lit 6:621 Ja 4 '30 650w

"Prof Whitehead will be the first to admit that the volume is one less for the general reader than for the laborious student possessed of sufficient faith in its importance to carry him through its technicalities."

Springf'd Republican p12 Mr 28 '30 470w

"The last part, in which cosmology in the ordinary acceptation of the term is left behind, forms a short and partially separable essay in the interaction of God and the world. It contains much of Professor Whitehead's most characteristic and loftiest thought, and it may well become the most widely known portion of his work. . . An enthusiastic welcome should be assured for one of the great philosophical works of the century—the outpouring, as one would have known even without the author's assurance, of 'the material derived from years of meditation.' "

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p446 My 29 '30 2300w

WHITFIELD, RAOUL. Green ice. 282p $2 Knopf
30-18306

"A fast-moving story of the underworld. It opens with the release of Mal Ourney from Sing Sing where he has served a short term, gallantly having taken the blame for a manslaughter committed by a young woman. The girl, Dot Ellis, is waiting for him at the prison gate but he is blind to her pleas and she drives off. A matter of minutes later Dot is killed and it is made to look like a suicide. Ourney proves an alibi and the murder serves only to fortify his determination, reached in prison, to make war on the 'big ones' of crime, the masters whom he calls 'crime breeders.' "—N Y Times

---

Bookm 72:xx S '30 150w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Books p10 Jl 13 '30 300w

"It is written in the jargon of the gangster, in a fast-moving style faintly reminiscent of the old-time dime novel. Murder is committed in nearly every chapter, and all for a handful of emeralds, known on the streets as 'Green Ice.' The story would be easier reading if the author had varied his sentence structure more. As it is, too many short sentences give a rather irritating staccato effect."

— Boston Transcript p2 Ag 6 '30 200w

"The plot does not matter so much. What matters is that here are two hundred and eighty pages of naked action pounded into tough compactness by staccato, hammerlike writing." Dashiell Hammett

N Y Evening Post p5s Jl 19 '30 100w

Reviewed by Bruce Rae

N Y Times p18 Ag 24 '30 120w

Times [London] Lit Sup p686 Ag 28 '30 180w

WHITFIELD, RAOUL. Silver wings. 234p il $2
2 Knopf
30-23361

"Here are five stories of war flying, one long tale of a mail flight, and six of transport flying."—Springf'd Republican

Cleveland Open Shelf p133 N '30

St Louis 28:304 D '30

"The stories are of course full of action, but much of its appeal lies in the painless introduction it gives to aviation terminology and flying practice."

Springf'd Republican p7e S 28 '30 150w

WHITLEY, WILLIAM THOMAS. Art in England, 1821-1837. 372p $9 Macmillan [25s Cambridge univ. press]

709.42 Art—England. Royal academy of arts, London. National gallery, London
[31-1603]

A continuation of the author's Art in England, 1800-1820. In addition to discussions and criticisms of the work of Turner, Constable and other artists, Mr Whitley covers the establishment of the National gallery during this period, and of the Royal society of British artists.

"His information is extraordinarily abundant; he has explored the newspapers of his period, and some unpublished correspondence." Edmund Blunden

+ Nation and Ath 47:84 Ap 19 '30 1350w

Reviewed by H. L. Matthews

N Y Times p15 Jl 6 '30 300w

"Mr. Whitley in this book pleases as much by his manner as he interests with his matter. He writes as one so sure of his facts that he does not need to raise his voice, though it quivers with suppressed excitement on occasion, as well it may, for some of his facts are astonishing."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p405 My 15 '30 950w

WHITLOCK, BRAND. La Fayette. 2v 475;452p $10 Appleton

B or 92 Lafayette, Marie Joseph Paul Roch Yves Gilbert de Motier, marquis de 29-19629

For descriptive note see Annual for 1929.

"Rarely in modern historical writing has the Plutarchian insistence upon moral evaluation of motive and deed been so finely united with loyalty to demonstrable truth. The author's style seems to reflect prolonged absorption in Gallic culture. The lucidity, the flexibility and grace of the narrative might stir a Voltaire to envy. There is, perhaps, a certain ingenuousness in the complete surrender of the author to his subject. The hero is almost too perfect. One could wish that the writing showed more of the particular corrective quality so eminently lacking in La Fayette himself, a sense of humor." Armand Burke

+ Bookm 72:184 O '30 620w

"Mr. Whitlock has written not only one of the best of the biographies which have come in a torrent from the press during the past year or two, but also by far the best biography of La Fayette that has yet been produced. The text gives abundant evidence of thorough-going use of the documentary material now available in print, and lovers of good writing will be drawn to the work by its lively and often brilliant style." William MacDonald

+ Current Hist 31:853 F '30 1350w

"Mr. Whitlock started with a partiality so great that it carried him through blindly to the end. After nine hundred pages he can still look at his hero without a smile or a shrug, and treat the whole world in terms of Lafayette. Unfortunately, his subject cannot rise to the heights necessitated by such a treatment. In fact the author is often driven into frank absurdity by the continual necessity of heightening the theme." Francis Birrell

— Nation and Ath 46:514 Ja 11 '30 900w

New Statesman 34:472 Ja 18 '30 1000w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 34:82 D '29

Reviewed by D. S. Muzzey

Pol Sci Q 45:608 D '30 1250w

Pratt p37 spring '30

St Louis 28:18 Ja '30

Wis Lib Bul 25:412 D '29

WHITMAN, WILLSON. Contradance; a Puritan's progress in New Orleans. 350p $2 Bobbs

McDonogh, John—Fiction 30-29339

"A story of New Orleans in the first half of the last century, which is, in fact, a free fantasia upon the life of an actual person, John McDonogh, a merchant who is now remembered as the donor of free schools in Baltimore and New Orleans."—Bookm

"McDonogh's slow march toward defeat is well handled in its external aspects, but the author is less successful in dealing with his changing character. He alters by flashes rather than, as in life, by a process continuous and imperceptible, and long before the end of the book he has become a wholly alien figure. This defect keeps the book from being the substantial performance which one might expect after reading the opening chapters. Yet it has dignity and charm and honesty, and these are no inconsiderable merits." Guy Holt

+ — Bookm 72:339 N '30 230w

"Miss Whitman has not made her hero an altogether admirable character, for he does many things that are narrow-minded and petty, but he is consistent and has the sympathy of the reader even when that reader calls him a fool. There is not a false note in the entire book."

+ N Y Times p7 O 19 '30 450w

"John McDonogh was an actual figure in nineteenth century New Orleans history, and his manifold philanthropies are still continued in his name, but he seems a particularly unattractive mortal to play the main role in a novel." E. C. Beckwith

N Y World p3e N 16 '30 200w

WHITNEY, CHARLES SMITH. Bridges; a study in their art, science and evolution. 363p il $20 Rudge

624 Bridges 29-24056

"In this beautiful volume, illustrated with 400 plates, the history of the bridge, as art and engineering, is recounted from earliest times to the present day. The problems raised by various building materials and the esthetic values realized by each are also considered."—Books

"The illustrations are chosen with discrimination and are well reproduced; an index adds to the book's usefulness."

+ Books p12 Mr 2 '30 100w

Boston Transcript p4 N 30 '29 520w

N Y New Tech Bks 14:51 O '29

"Mr. Whitney surveys the development of bridges, from those built by the Romans to those of our own time, and thus gives a historical background to his discussion of the modern bridge and the way it has been influenced by the materials used in its construction—wood, stone, concrete and steel. At the beginning he discusses illuminatingly and convincingly the art and science of bridge design, and both here and throughout the book he shows that the fundamental principles of architecture can and should be applied to the design and the criticism of bridges. The book is handsomely made and fascinatingly illustrated with pictures of bridges from many countries made in both ancient and modern times."

+ N Y Times p13 N 17 '29 260w

St Louis 28:210 S '30

"Mr. Whitney, with the able cooperation of the press of William Rudge, has produced a book to delight the heart and eye of a pontist whether he be an admirer and lover of bridges or a designer and builder. Clear type in widely spaced lines, and the large page with wide margins contribute to easy reading and luxurious appearance. 'Bridges' is a work with a wide appeal." P. G. Laurson

+ Sat R of Lit 6:952 Ap 19 '30 800w

WHYTE, ARTHUR JAMES BERESFORD. 2 Political life and letters of Cavour, 1848-1861. 478p $6 Oxford

B or 92 Cavour, Camillo Benso, comte di

An account of Cavour's parliamentary career and a connected view of his diplomacy, based chiefly upon a wealth of material arranged and published by a royal commission appointed for that purpose. The present volume forms a sequel to the author's Early Life and Letters of Cavour published in 1925.

"Dr. Whyte has written a living book containing both history and life." R. K. M.

+ Boston Transcript p3 N 22 '30 400w

"Dr. Whyte sticks faithfully to the seemingly narrow task of recording Cavour's political life. The sinuosities of Cavour's diplomacy are carefully, almost lovingly, exposed. At every important move in the game which this man played in order to make Italy there were usually not less than three courses open to him, and Dr. Whyte does not flinch from discussing them. In less skilful hands the detail might have overlaid the humanities, but because the author is himself stirred by the greatness of the game, and knows how to keep historical facts on the move, we rise on Cavour's shoulders to an animated view of the whole course of Italian liberation."

+ New Statesman 36:306 D 13 '30 850w

WICKHAM, HARVEY. Unrealists. 314p $3.50 Dial press

190 Philosophy, Modern. Science—Philosophy. Philosophers 30-8913

An attack, from a humanist's viewpoint, upon certain modern philosophers whose thought is directed by the logic of science. Among the philosophers so considered are William James, Henri Bergson, George Santayana, Albert Einstein, Bertrand Russell, and John Dewey.

WICKHAM, HARVEY—Continued

Booklist 26:381 Jl '30

"'The Unrealists' is a philosophic merry-go-round, in which Dewey is a unicorn, Bergson a lion, Einstein a giraffe and Santayana a gazelle. Wickham leaps nimbly from the back of one to the back of another. One admires his agility, but one is reminded of the old darky's criticism of merry-go-rounds in general: 'You pays yo' money, you travels, but whar you been?'"

Books p14 Je 29 '30 230w

Boston Transcript p2 My 14 '30 600w

"It is not that Mr. Wickham lacks cleverness. He has too much of the smart variety. His ideas are of sound material but draped in shoddy." E. VR. W.

— + Cath World 132:118 O '30 350w

"Epigrams sizzle and paradoxes pop on every page of Wickham's books. He writes almost as entertainingly as three of those who furnish his targets in this book—James, Bertrand Russell and Santayana—and much more so than the other three—Dewey, Bergson, and Einstein." W. E. Garrison

+ Christian Century 47:756 Je 11 '30 820w

"Mr. Wickham is shrewd enough to quote passages in the most technical language and freighted the heaviest with philosophical implications. The immediate result seems to be that philosophers today are (at best) talking wordy nonsense, or (at worst) not even remotely concerned with value-for-life, with what Mr. Wickham would call 'realities.' This, of course, is the author's thesis, and the reason for the title he gives to his book. He plays his game cleverly; at times, perhaps, a little crudely." Alburey Castell

Int J Ethics 40:571 Jl '30 170w

"Mr. Wickham, it can be said, is one of the real leaders of humanism in this country. . . In a certain sense, he is of more value to American humanism than Irving Babbitt, for his books will be perused by an ever-wider and wider public, while Babbitt's will be revered but not read. . . Whatever one may say in criticism of Mr. Wickham's logic, one cannot, granting its premises, deny its consistency. It is his premises that must be assailed. Mr. Wickham, contrary to most humanists, writes with a clarity that is altogether admirable." V. F. Calverton

+ — N Y Evening Post p10m Ap 19 '30 750w

Reviewed by Axton Clark

N Y Times p16 Je 22 '30 1500w

Reviewed by C. H. Grattan

N Y World p4m Ag 31 '30 650w

"Why Mr Wickham so often employs his wit and critical insight with colloquial levity, or smart derisiveness, is hard to say. Again and again he is brilliantly incisive. But too often his trenchancy is the mere sarcasm of invective or repartee. Surely Mr Wickham would not claim for himself that he had given, or attempted, an unbiased examination of the philosophers discussed in these pages. Yet, in his brusquely clever way, he frequently summarizes the weakness of a philosophical position with devastating effectiveness. This type of argument is all right if you have some one on hand to present the defensive with equal facility of idea and verbal thrust."

— + Springf'd Republican p10 My 6 '30 500w

WIDDEMER, MARGARET. All the king's
2 horses. 300p $1 Farrar

30-27145

"Miss Widdemer has taken as theme the problems of a girl who has by nature and training learned to be consistently gay, a little too gay to recognize and make the most of life's more important moments. . . Helen, with problems of self-support, and her younger sister to care for, eased through life in her laughing way, until she was suddenly faced by a real problem—she was jilted. Just that—from then on, the story is of her attempt to readjust herself and her pride."—Publisher's note

Booklist 27:165 D '30

"This little story is endowed with the light-hearted Widdemer charm and a fresh tonic quality of youthfulness."

+ Books p12 D 7 '30 220w

Boston Transcript p5 N 19 '30 300w

"'All the King's Horses' falls definitely into that type of light, pleasant fiction which makes no attempt at reality and desires only to tell a charming story while upholding all the kindly virtues."

N Y Times p32 N 16 '30 420w

"A kittenish, saccharine tale of small-town love."

— N Y World p3e D 21 '30 100w

WIDDEMER, MARGARET. Loyal lover. 304p $1 Farrar

30-14513

The story of an American girl, reared in England, who goes to America to decide whether or not half of her uncle's fortune should go to unknown American relatives. The book ends in three happy love affairs.

Booklist 27:30 S '30

"A thoroughly entertaining romance of young love, suitable for at least three or four of the seven ages."

+ Books p10 S 21 '30 150w

"In spite of a certain amount of manufactured tragedy, the story is jolly enough to please any-one who likes romances."

+ — Boston Transcript p2 Jl 23 '30 300w

"A light, romantic tale . . . having no less than three love affairs, all leading to the altar."

N Y Times p9 Ap 20 '30 250w

WIEGLER, PAUL. Genius in love and death; tr. by Carl Raushenbush. 236p $2.50 Boni

920 Biography 29-29864

"Herr Paul Wiegler, the well-known German literary critic has taken two of the three great crises in the lives of certain notable subjects and so presented them that they cast a light upon the complete histories of his people." (N Y Times) Contents: Nupta (Héloïse and Abélard); Apotheosis (Byron); Ashes (Michelangelo); Scardanelli (Hölderlin); The two sisters (Bürger); A Bedouin at heart (Flaubert); Julie and her lovers (Lespinasse); Ivan Sergeiyevitch (Turgenyev); The pavilion (Goethe); Death of Goethe; The homely one (Adele Schopenhauer); Hotel d'Alsace (Wilde); The chimera of Venice (Sand and De Musset); Poor Lelian (Verlaine); Honoreski (Balzac); The man in Wolfenbüttel (Lessing); The fall (Lassalle); Eureka (Poe); A girl from Russia (Bashkirtsev); Astapovo, last stop! (Tolstoi); Guggum (Rossetti).

Reviewed by Eric Strong

Books p25 F 16 '30 500w

Boston Transcript p1 F 1 '30 380w

"With psychological insight and poetic fancy he shows the moral anarchy and weakness of men of genius, their pathetic attempts to capture the elusive bluebird of happiness, their tragic finale in disillusion and despair. The weakness of Wiegler, as of others of this school, is in what may be called his historical falsification by purely imaginative inventions; in many cases he even transcribes the most secret thoughts of the genius whom he describes. This is romantic fiction built around great historical figures, but it is emphatically not true biography nor even history." Francis Snow

+ — Current Hist 31:838 F '30 260w

"Mr. Wiegler's often brilliant objectivity is his chief defect as well as his virtue. He re-creates the great but forgets to give us that which was primarily great in them. Which is, perhaps, to say that genius in love and death acts pretty much the same as non-genius under similar circumstances." Edwin Seaver

+ — N Y Evening Post p13m D 14 '29 200w

"In pages instead of volumes, in phrases instead of chapters, he seizes upon the saliencies of notable lives and burns into our minds that the laws of the universe are no respecters of persons." H. J. Forman

N Y Times p2 Ja 5 '30 720w

"Wiegler is evidently a stylist, and, as we are all willing to concede, it is difficult to judge such work in translation. His language is terse, telegraphic even, clear and forceful; a manner quite as safe in his hands as it is dangerous in those of less able writers who affect it. It is well suited to biographical vignettes." F. L. Robbins
+ Outlook 153:630 D 18 '29 270w

WIEGLER, PAUL. Infidel emperor and his struggles against the pope; a chronicle of the thirteenth century; [tr. by Brian W. Downs]. 323p il $5 Dutton [16s Routledge]
B or 92 Frederick II, Holy Roman emperor. Holy Roman empire—History [30-18951]

Germany in the thirteenth century under Frederick II, grandson of Barbarossa, is the subject of this biographical history. The chronicle pictures the contrasting virtues and vices of the period, the feudal squabblings, the crusades, the cruelties in the name of religion, and the independent spirit of inquiry in Frederick himself that earned him the title "Infidel."

"It is a graphic but confused book that gives no quarter to the amateur in history. Only those who know the period can appreciate Wiegler's subtle and illuminating characterizations."
Bookm 71:vii Ag '30 40w

"The book shows wide and varied learning. Many of the incidents are told with extraordinary vividness. If Herr Wiegler's sole object was to reproduce the welter and turmoil of the age, its medley of treachery and devotion, cruelty and idealism, then he has succeeded admirably. It is a pity that the perspective has not been kept more open and that the staccato effect of the short sentences tends to become wearisome. This reviewer found the pictures in the book even more interesting than the text. The seventeen illustrations are reproductions of frescos, mosaics, miniatures, statues, portrait busts and seals of the period. Many of them are delightful." W. K. Stewart
+ — Books p15 Jl 6 '30 550w
Boston Transcript p2 Jl 23 '30 300w

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison
Christian Century 47:1088 S 10 '30 550w
St Louis 28:219 S '30

"This moving historic panorama, once the style of it has been absorbed, wins much from the quality of speed. The struggles of the grandson of Frederick I, surnamed Barbarossa, against the pope, mingle with the involved and cruel politics of the day to make a story of high educational, as well as entertaining, worth."
+ Springf'd Republican p5e Ag 3 '30 320w

WIEHE, MRS EVELYN MAY (CLOWES) (ELINOR MORDAUNT, pseud.). These generations. 287p $2.50 Brewer [7s 6d Hutchinson]
30-25303

On a coffee estate in Central America—with most of the world's capitals as a background—the Comtesse de Rochecourt, now a "Gran'mère," but with the love of life still unquenched, continues to dominate her family, and to watch with interest the affairs of her grandchildren. The minds and the romances of Ann and Felicia develop in the foreground of the story, and a more complex situation is introduced with the arrival of two young Americans, John Verney and Max Van Rennen, at the plantation.

"This novel is written with ease and grace and a competent style. Interest is sustained throughout."
+ — Bookm 72:303 N '30 320w
Books p15 N 9 '30 380w
Boston Transcript p5 N 22 '30 500w

"Mrs. Mordaunt's light comedy is modern, realistically founded and extremely deft. She has easily in command all the minor endowments of the novelist, and often as in the scene at Felicia's bedside, her insight enables her to carry off a situation of considerable spiritual intensity. The progressions of her story are admirably handled; it is flexible as willow, gay, casually witty in terms of character and generally charming. Her ironic old Countess has many literary progenitors; Mrs. Mordaunt has accomplished the task of making her fresh, individual and contemporary." Vincent McHugh
+ N Y Evening Post p4d O 25 '30 150w
N Y Times p9 D 7 '30 600w

"Elinor Mordaunt has written a novel of distinction and beauty. When the scope of it . . . is considered one cannot withhold admiration at the vividness and certainty of the descriptive detail, the observation and penetrative power displayed in the sure handling of national and individual differences."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p186 Mr 6 '30 380w

WIESE, KURT. Liang & Lo. unp il $1.50 Doubleday, Doran
30-26890

Two little Chinese boys set out on the back of a buffalo to find a dragon. When they found the dragon the buffalo charged into it, only to discover that it was a paper one made for the feast of dragons. But they all had a good time laughing over it anyway.

Booklist 27:68 O '30

"Kurt Wiese writes about two Chinese boys in a most forthright manner. He presents an exciting adventure as directly as it happens, and his tale cannot but delight any child under seven." Nancy Evans
+ Books p8 Ja 4 '31 450w
Cleveland Open Shelf p134 N '30

"There is real gaiety in the pictures and much originality—and in the text, too." Padraic Colum
+ New Repub 65:24 N 19 '30 50w

"The drawings are without doubt the more necessary and impressive part of the book. Wiese has the ability to impart charm to almost everything he does. His drawing of animals is consistently delightful and there are not many men who have his technical proficiency." Lynd Ward
+ N Y Evening Post p7d N 15 '30 100w

WIESE, KURT. Wallie, the walrus. unp il $1.50
^{2} Coward-McCann
30-31017

How Wallie, the baby walrus who lived in the Arctic, learned how to swim, how to beware of polar bears, how to eat like a grown-up walrus, and how to follow the old walrus leader.

"Mr. Wiese has merged the arts of story-telling and illustrating so skilfully that he has succeeded in producing one of the best books of the year for young children. Even walruses are good to look at when pictured by Mr. Wiese."
+ Bookm 72:xxvii D '30 60w

"Mr. Wiese has done a book, text and pictures, worthy to succeed his own 'Karoo, the Kangaroo.' From the time when he is first able to wiggle his nose until he can eat through his whiskers with 'loud inhaling smacks,' Wallie is an appealing, entirely walrus baby." Nancy Evans
+ N Y Evening Post p7d N 15 '30 80w

"Besides Wally and his family and the rest of the walrus herd there are gulls and whales and polar bears, drawn with humor, a delightful simplicity and plenty of action. The story, which tells how the baby walrus learns to swim, to eat oysters and clams, and to escape the polar bear and the Eskimo hunter will please little children." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p33 N 30 '30 100w

WIESE, KURT—Continued

"It is an attractive book, done with much care. . . The illustrations, always the most important part of a child's book, are good. . . Is it all true? Not entirely. Objection is not made to the human dialogue—that is a convention, or limitation, which if used properly can convey the spirit of truth. If used improperly, it is just a facile, slick way of faking the stuff to give children. Mr. Wiese transgresses occasionally." Henry Williamson

+ — Sat R of Lit 7:490 D 27 '30 270w

WIGGAM, ALBERT EDWARD. Marks of an 2 educated man. 339p $3 Bobbs

370.1 Education. Culture. Conduct of life 30-28822

A book about education in its broadest sense and its application to the business of living. Mr Wiggam urges a "department of social intelligence, tact, good manners, and get-alongableness in all our schools and colleges."

Booklist 27:189 Ja '31

Reviewed by Lorine Pruette

Books p18 D 7 '30 750w

"Between the covers of Mr. Wiggam's book there are 328 pages of trivial chatter, largely reminiscent, which never rises above the level of the most trite and obvious platitudes. . . The marks of an educated man must be drawn more subtly and to a larger scale. The confusion which hangs over the field of education, like mist, cannot be swept away with such a tiny broom. . . And the harm, of course, lies in the possibility that someone may find many of Mr. Wiggam's 'marks' in himself, and be satisfied." Samuel Harkness

— Christian Century 47:1350 N 5 '30 600w

"The education Wiggam preaches is a sort of enlightened humanitarianism, an ability to get along with one's fellows and to make the most out of one's self. His book is filled with anecdotes and concrete examples of conduct, and every other chapter is a homily, so skillfully disguised that you won't recognize it. Wiggam stands between the preacher and the psychologist. He avoids the preacher's admonitions and the professional psychologist's verbiage and talks over some homely truths. All of which is novel and useful." Harry Hansen

N Y World p3e O 5 '30 600w

"Mr. Wiggam's book appeals to popular taste. It is a book of etiquette for the would-be educated. The ideas are presented in primer fashion, brightened up with little stories, each with a moral tag. And there are sets of questions and answers, charts whereby the reader can check his educational progress. But, in his endeavor to write for popular taste, of which he evidently has a poor opinion, Mr. Wiggam has found it necessary to be not only trivial and cheap but also ungrammatical. Or is respect for the English language perhaps not one of the marks of an educated man? Such meretricious books should not be written. . . One of the marks of an educated man is that he does not waste time on such books." F. L. R.

— Outlook 156:426 N 12 '30 380w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:87 D '30

St Louis 28:290 D '30

WIGGINTON, REGINALD. Coal carbonisation. (Industrial chemistry ser.) 287p il $6.50 Thomas [21s Baillière]

662.6 Carbonization. Coal. Coke [30-14072]

"After two short chapters devoted to the early history and subsequent development of coal carbonization equipment, there are five extensive chapters dealing primarily with the chemistry of the operations carried out in the coal-processing industry. The action of heat on coal, coal gas, ammonia and its recovery, coal tar, and the formation and properties of coke are the subjects treated."—Chem & Met Eng

"The work is not exhaustive, but it is complete enough to promise distinct utility to the chemist who is connected with a carbonization plant or desires to make such connection. Nowhere has the present writer seen the chemical side of the industry treated with as great clarity, within such short compass." G. L. Montgomery

Chem & Met Eng 37:697 N '30 280w

"The value of the book is due to the fact that it gives a conspectus of the subject in the light of the recent laboratory studies. Anyone desiring to get to grips with the science of carbonization will scarcely find a better channel of access, for the author is evidently familiar with the British, European, and American investigations of the last decade. The collection of information on the decomposition of ammonia and hydrocarbons at high temperatures is valuable." H. J. H.

+ Nature 126:161 Ag 2 '30 550w

N Y New Tech Bks 15:17 Ap '30

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:48 Je '30

WILD, JOHN. Unpublished letters from the collection of John Wild; sel. and ed. by R. N. Carew Hunt. 234p $3 Dial press [6s Allan, P.]

808.6 Letters 30-32322

"John Wild, who died seventy-five years ago, had a real flair for obtaining autographed letters, as has his great-grandson, Carew Hunt, for editing them. Wild managed the gathering together of a truly superb collection, and a list of the people represented in this book alone resembles a roll-call of distinguished authors and people of affairs. It is worth while listing the top-notchers: Marvell, Sir Christopher Wren, Gay, Pope, Chesterfield, Richardson, Sterne, Burke, Crabbe, Lady Hamilton, Byron, Shelley, Moore, Queen Caroline, Vesalius, Henri IV, La Rochefoucauld, the Abbé Prevost, Voltaire and Goethe. All these letters, moreover, have to the best of Carew Hunt's knowledge never before been published."—N Y Times

Nation and Ath 48:114 O 18 '30 150w

"In extent of interest, of course, the letters greatly vary. Some are trivial, others are dull, still others are both. None is epochal, none reveals any important fact about the author which was previously unknown. But a large number of them are quietly, and a few arrestingly, interesting. . . Mr. Carew Hunt makes, on the whole, a good editor; he has scrupulously retained the letters in their exact form; and he has provided notes on each author represented which, if sometimes too wordy, are in general interesting and informative." Louis Kronenberger

+ N Y Times p2 O 12 '30 850w

"Fifty unpublished letters from the pens of immortals whose slightest word must be treasured. Perhaps the most valuable contributions come from Sterne and Shelley, but all are worth preserving and will, as time goes on, find their way into their proper homes, the biographies of their illustrious authors."

+ Sat R of Lit 7:251 O 18 '30 120w

Times [London] Lit Sup p1005 N 27 '30 480w

WILDE, OSCAR. Sixteen letters; ed. and with notes by John Rothenstein. ltd ed 39p il $5 Coward-McCann [21s Faber]

B or 92 Rothenstein, William [30-18579]

These sixteen letters are all that remain of a series written by Oscar Wilde to his friend William Rothenstein, the artist, between 1891 and 1900. Some of the letters are only a few lines in length and of slight interest. The longest one, written soon after Wilde's release from prison, has more significance and value. Two cartoons by Max Beerbohm, not hitherto published, and a pen-and-ink portrait by William Rothenstein are included in the volume.

Bookm 72:vi D '30 80w

New Statesman 35:384 Je 28 '30 60w

"The letters that compose this little book are, with two exceptions, unimportant to any large understanding of Wilde, but the exceptions, written after his release from Reading Gaol, go a long way toward confirming the popular opinion of Wilde's 'conversion.' "

N Y Times p6 D 14 '30 500w

"There is only one of the Sixteen Letters from Oscar Wilde which is of any importance: it was written in June, 1897, after his release from prison, and recapitulates the good resolves which we already know he made, and broke, to live plainly and think highly. Yet Mr. William Rothenstein has done well to publish these letters, and the three new sketches of Wilde, for the volume will be of interest to collectors."
+ Spec 144:838 My 17 '30 70w
Springf'd Republican p5e Ag 10 '30 160w
Times [London] Lit Sup p461 My 29 '30 170w

WILDE, PERCIVAL. Devil's booth. 368p $2.50 Harcourt
30-6155

Molly May Millen, nineteen, stood watching the Easter parade on Fifth Avenue in 1889. She was a poor girl, of Irish parentage, with one consuming ambition: to be somebody, to ride one day, like Mrs Stirling Severance, in a glistening victoria. Molly May, aware of her physical charms, knows one way only to elevate her station, and takes it. She passes from one lover to another, each time increasing her price, till she becomes the mistress of a millionaire. Then having fallen ardently in love with young Brierly, an employee of the Severance Corporation, she later learns that he is the rich Brierly Severance. Thru him Molly May attains her life ambition—all the money she wants, a purchased husband, a New England estate, and social leadership.

Books p12 Ap 20 '30 350w

"This first novel possesses most of the faults of most first novels. To begin with, Mr. Wilde uses at first his playwright's technique, pounding rather heavily and with not too much subtlety, his central idea, which after all is not startlingly unique. And later, in contrary fashion, he is equally delighted at opportunities to linger on the way, etching in with a smudgy hand all the vicious chapters in this social queen's early life. . . A skilled worker would have found it more to his purpose to suggest rather than to articulate with such precision. Mr. Wilde succeeds best in establishing an atmosphere—that of New York in 1889." W. E. H.
— + Boston Transcript p2 Mr 26 '30 550w

"Mr. Wilde has attempted a record of two generations and two antagonistic codes of manners; but his work seldom escapes from surfaces and commonplaces. 'The Devil's Booth' exemplifies his failure to digest its material and a subordinate failure to realign it upon some imaginative level. Open and frequently maladroit invention carries his story forward. His 1929 chapters have the air of being as literally transcribed from the fact as his nineties parades are literally reassembled." Vincent McHugh
— N Y Evening Post p10m Mr 15 '30 500w

"Percival Wilde, whose plays are well known in the Little Theatre, has brought to his novel that same dramatic quality that is necessary to the stage. He has something to say and he says it in a manner that leaves no question either as to his sincerity or his craftsmanship. Every page of 'The Devil's Booth' is packed with real and dramatic emotion."
+ N Y Times p6 Mr 23 '30 550w

WILDER, THORNTON NIVEN. Woman of Andros. 162p $2.50 Boni
30-5690

This short novel is based upon the theme of the Andria, a comedy by Terence. The woman of Andros is Chrysis, a Greek hetaira, who has established herself on the island of Brynos and gathered about her the young men of the neighborhood, charming them all with her beauty and wisdom. The story turns on the love of Pamphilus, son of a merchant of the island, for Glycerium, sister of Chrysis, and the testing of that love thru bereavement.

For biographical sketch of the author see Chicago Daily Tribune p13 Ap 20 '29

Reviewed by G. B. Munson
Atlantic Bookshelf p20 Mr '30 850w
Booklist 26:283 Ap '30

" 'The Woman of Andros' is first and last a work of art, conscious, skillful, exacting, lucid, and graceful. As Mr. Wilder did not in the least hesitate to throw away as much of the 'Andria' as did not fit his purpose, so he has not hesitated to add whatever he chose from whatever other sources of observation or reflection. He has shaped all his materials to his own design, touched them all with his own colors, set them all to his own music. He has so far sacrificed bulk to significance that his story may seem somewhat thin to rough or greedy tastes. He has refined his action and his language to match his own delicate tastes, and has slowed the movement to match his own deliberate temper." Carl Van Doren
+ Books p1 F 23 '30 850w

"Technically as well as spiritually this novel is an advance over 'The Bridge.' The same harmonious limpidity of style, the same brilliant insight and sympathetic irony are evident; but there is no trace, as there still was occasionally in 'The Bridge,' of virtuosity for its own sake." Norman Fitts
+ Boston Transcript p3 Mr 8 '30 1900w
Cath World 131:504 Jl '30 300w

" 'The Woman of Andros' is as classically beautiful, as self-sufficient, as compact, as much of the seed of beauty which breeds in each beholder whatever of art and philosophy his soul has the substance to nourish as any exquisite fragment of Greek sculpture. It is not what the characters say or what Mr. Wilder says that makes 'The Woman of Andros' a thing of beauty. It is what the words generate in the reader's own spirit that makes it a memorable piece of work." Fanny Butcher
+ Chicago Daily Tribune p11 F 22 '30 700w
Cleveland Open Shelf p110 Jl '30

"It is written with scrupulous care; there are passages of genuine beauty in it, and flashes of what I suspect are real insight and wisdom; there are appealing characters, like the father of Simo, and the atmosphere is sustained with great skill. But somehow the novel leaves me cold. The situations seem to me patently arranged, the plot shopworn, and at no time in reading the book was I able to lose sight of Mr. Wilder in the act of being a fine stylist." Henry Hazlitt
— + Nation 130:246 F 26 '30 420w

"The difference between this book and 'Thaïs,' by Anatole France, is the difference between the chaste delicacy of an antique gem and the crude, warm colours and flamboyant figures of a Roman tessellated design. One has the incommunicable delight that only a secret joy can give: the other one enjoys with the world. 'The Woman of Andros' is a book of unusual beauty." K. C. Tomlinson
+ Nation and Ath 47:19 Ap 5 '30 450w

"Thornton Wilder has achieved his effect with accomplished technical skill: he has induced us to follow his story with sympathy and suspense, but he has kept us from understanding the full significance of the incidents we have been witnessing until we read the final sentence of the book. . . 'The Woman of Andros' for all the charm of style, the grace of narrative and the spare firm outline which Wilder never fails of, as it is paler than his other books, is also more in danger of being mawkish." Edmund Wilson
+ — New Repub 62:156 Mr 26 '30 1100w

Reviewed by Michael Gold
New Repub 64:266 O 22 '30 450w

"This story is lifted above the commonplace, transfigured into something lucidly fine: it is set apart from the world, like the island Brynos in the Greek sea. The sense of frustration and defeat, the indefinable melancholy which infected the Greece of the period, infects the whole story, even the style; and it is this melancholy which takes the place of the vitality which we found in The Bridge of San Luis Rey. After reading, one is at first conscious of dissatisfaction, partly with the small compass of the book, partly with the lack of any real profundity in the conclusion. But later, when one has had time to get back and look at it, every circumstance, from the slow opening sentence to the calm of the end, becomes full of meaning, of clearness and light, and the book seems, within its narrow confines, a perfect whole."

WILDER, T. N.—Continued

+ New Statesman 35:92 Ap 26 '30 450w

"All things considered, 'The Woman of Andros' is the best book we have had from him."

+ N Y Times p4 F 23 '30 1450w

"Viewing this work from all sides, I believe Mr. Wilder's writing makes for a better appreciation of literature that has good manners, of which we have had very little in the last decade. His fine feeling for style, his urbanity, his restraint, are a welcome interlude amid the noise and confusion of countless experiments. His writing stirs the sense of aesthetic pleasure, and that is no mean achievement in a day of cheap trickery." Harry Hansen

+ N Y World p12 F 21 '30 1100w

"The Woman of Andros is rich in pleasure-giving qualities, but it prompts no fresh comment upon Wilder's style or content. He seems likely to occupy about the same place in American literature that Pater does in English. His prose is pure, lyric, metrical rather than rhythmic and marked by the true poet's sense of the right word. His philosophy is Epicurean. He loves the good because he is too sensitive to endure evil or the consequence of evil." F. L. Robbins

+ Outlook 154:348 F 26 '30 550w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:32 Ap '30

Pratt p42 summer '30

Sat R 149:422 Ap 5 '30 380w

"'The Woman of Andros' is the quiet, perfectly finished meditation of a scholar in literature, bookish, philosophic, slight in narrative, and yet touched with a fire of beauty, and raised by a fine imagination into an understanding that is more than esthetic and intellectual. It is less varied and less picturesque than 'The Bridge,' but less of a tour de force and more nearly an authentic rendering of first-hand emotion. It will not be so popular, but it will be as much approved. Best of all, to the critic, its success, though in a modest kind, is nevertheless proof that scholarship and care for style and thought and the refinement of emotion are once again to have value in our recently slapdash though so vigorous American literature." H. S. Canby

+ Sat R of Lit 6:771 Mr 1 '30 1450w

"Mr. Wilder has eschewed both sensationalism and sentimentality, and has given us a delicately written idyll that is poignant in its restraint and quiet beauty." Gilbert Thomas

+ Spec 144:503 Mr 22 '30 120w

"Color and movement are lacking in 'The Woman of Andros.' It derives its strength and its beauty rather from its attainment of classical form and the human and natural manner in which Wilder discloses the workings of the heart. Time and place come to hold little significance in the tale, for it is the mystery of life, reposing in the quiet depths of the soul which here interests the author. . . The form and style of 'The Woman of Andros' so aptly fit the theme that the result is a beautiful and harmonious whole, suggestive of 'the calm blue sea of Hellas' and the profundity inherent in the simplest movement of life." A. J. B.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 16 '30 600w

'It is difficult to find fault with The Woman of Andros; it is so literate, so intelligent and so full of sweet epigrams to be rolled under the tongue of the mind. But it misses somewhere, perhaps because of its very smoothness. The despair is too well controlled. The answer may be that for all Wilder's appreciation of the classic traditions, it takes a Greek to curve a Greek medallion." Marjorie McFarland

+ — Survey 64:50 Ap 1 '30 350w

"As a composition or an embodiment of a central idea that regulates the whole down to the minutest details, this book seems to us a failure; and, to speak candidly, we doubt whether the author quite knew what he meant to be at when he began it. But it is a collection of exquisite parts. Taken as a series of meditations by a charmingly pensive mind on life, especially on its emptiness and the possible means of compensating for it, it is filled with a sad beauty, expressed in sentences faultlessly turned. The descriptions of natural scenery are well done, but considering that the whole action passes in the obscure little island of Brynos, an illegitimate effect of the grandiose is sometimes obtained by painting it on an irrelevantly large scale."

— + Times [London] Lit Sup p238 Mr 20 '30 900w

Wis Lib Bul 26:107 Mr '30

WILEY, HARVEY WASHINGTON. Autobiography. 339p il $5 Bobbs
B or 92 30-10925

The leading figure in this country's fight for pure food tells his life story and of his work as chief of the Bureau of chemistry in the Department of agriculture.

Reviewed by M. P. Ravenel
Am J Pub Health 20:1162 O '30 450w

Booklist 27:26 S '30

"I have enjoyed reading this entertaining record of an interesting and useful man." Logan Clendening

+ Books p19 Ag 24 '30 320w

Reviewed by Frances Bartlett
Boston Transcript p3 My 24 '30 1370w

Cleveland Open Shelf p99 Jl '30

"The story of the pure food battle that he waged unremittingly throughout the twenty-nine years of his incumbency of the office as chief chemist of the Department of Agriculture in Washington bulks large in these pages. Dr. Wiley tells that story dramatically, vividly, vigorously, but always with good humor. And it is a story of lively interest as well as great importance to the health of the people of the United States." G. W. Harris

+ N Y Times p14 My 18 '30 1800w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:68 O '30

Springf'd Republican p10 Ag 28 '30 500w

WILHELM, DONALD GEORGE. Writing for profit; with contributions by many editors and writers. 385p $3 McGraw 029 Authorship. Journalism 30-16484

"A book for amateur writers which covers very nearly every type of literary work: newspaper, magazine and syndicate articles, interviewing, publicity work and advertising, what editors want in verse and fiction, motion picture and talking scenarios, and writing for the radio."—Bookm

Booklist 27:48 O '30

"The book should rouse endless gratitude in young workers and those who live out of touch with publishing centers."

+ Bookm 72:xxvi S '30 50w

Books p12 S 14 '30 150w

Boston Transcript p2 S 10 '30 280w

Reviewed by Edmund Blunden
— Nation and Ath 47:650 Ag 23 '30 1150w

"I do not criticize Mr. Wilhelm's book in itself. Indeed, there is nothing here to criticize. What it sets about doing it does competently enough, giving more or less practical market tips on everything from publicity work to poetry and quoting experts voluminously throughout. What I do criticize, and what anybody must deplore, is the sort of nonsense this type of book countenances so glibly. Which nonsense is simply this: that the business of writing and the business of selling are somehow related." Edwin Seaver

N Y Evening Post p5s Jl 19 '30 350w

Reviewed by Harry Hansen

N Y World p9 Je 28 '30 850w

"It seems to us a very comprehensive and up-to-date guide for the beginning writer. Excellent are the long quotations from various magazine editors on different aspects of technique. It is the first book we have seen that has a chapter on writing radio continuities." W. R. Brooks

+ Outlook 155:507 Jl 30 '30 50w

St Louis 28:201 S '30

"He has done the job well, evading the innumerable pitfalls that must have lain in his way. Much of the book is made up of the observations of experienced authors and experienced editors; if the young writer finds the views of veterans occasionally in conflict, so much the better; he can weigh them against each other and perhaps evolve some views of his own."

Sat R of Lit 7:110 S 6 '30 450w

Times [London] Lit Sup p761 S 25 '30 420w

WILHELM, RICHARD. Short history of Chinese civilization; tr. by Joan Joshua, with an introd. by Lionel Giles. 284p pl $4 Viking press [12s 6d Harrap]

951 China—History. China—Civilization

30-26049

For descriptive note see Annual for 1929.

Booklist 26:198 F '30

"The volume is noteworthy on many counts besides its scholarliness. It has a great number of well-chosen illustrations; it has a complete chronological table of important events in the history of China; it has a splendid bibliography. One wonders when its author will bring forth its companion on China since the Revolution."

+ Bookm 71:iv Je '30 150w

"His book is not as readable as Lady Hosie's; it makes of course, no effort whatever to explain the contemporary antics of the younger generation; but it provides a richer background of the Chinese history that matters than anything in equal compass in English." Lewis Gannett

+ Books p4 Mr 9 '30 370w

"He brings to his task not only twenty years of residence in China as missionary, adviser to the German legation, and professor in the Imperial university in Peking, but also painstaking work as a research scholar, a penetrating mind, and a disinterested viewpoint coupled with deep appreciation of the culture he portrays. We have been very much in need of such a book as this. Nor is the book simply a record of political events, of the rise and fall of dynasties. It is a thorough and many-sided examination of the whole culture of the people as expressed in religion, in art, in economic and social institutions, in government, in customs, and in literature." P. T. Sarvis

+ Christian Century 47:965 Ag 6 '30 380w

"Compact, scholarly, and understanding, this rather short book contains the matter of a political history, a social history, a history of the arts, the literature, and the religions of China, and in three of these fields can displace the best previous book on the subject. All that may be said in objection is that at times the author is too reverential."

+ Nation 130:158 F 5 '30 70w

"A full and vital if brief record of the progress of civilization with the Chinese people. . . Wonderful to relate, this volume is not wearisome. Rather it is possessed of a real fascination augmented by the variety and number of exquisite plates that spur on the willing reader."

+ N Y Times p2 S 28 '30 550w

Reviewed by F. L. Robbins

Outlook 153:510 N 27 '29 130w

St Louis 28:149 My '30

"Dr. Wilhelm [is] a sinologue who combines with Chinese scholarship imagination and a sense of human values. . . It is the chief merit of Dr. Wilhelm's book that he has been able to crowd into the small canvas given him a picture in which the perspective is not lost. Details are necessarily wanting here and there, but the outline is never blurred." Nathaniel Peffer

+ Sat R of Lit 6:732 F 15 '30 650w

Spec 144:23 Ja 4 '30 220w

World Tomorrow 13:233 My '30 70w

Reviewed by K. S. Latourette

Yale R n s 19:857 summer '30 580w

WILHELMSON, CARL. Midsummernight; il. with woodcuts by Lynd Ward. 305p $2.50 Farrar

30-30569

Beginning with a quaint custom in Finnish midsummer-night courtship, the story follows the rivalry between two young men, Otto and Esko, for the love of Aino, a shoemaker's pretty daughter. Otto, the rejected suitor, watches the marriage feast and customs as an onlooker; and thru his eyes the novelist gives us many other aspects and customs of Finnish village life.

Reviewed by Guy Holt

Bookm 72:449 D '30 380w

" 'Midsummernight' is clearly a labor of love, conscientiously and richly performed, in full awareness of the beauty and interest of the primitive customs it immortalizes." F. H. Britten

+ Books p7 N 2 '30 600w

" 'Midsummernight' is a strange and at times a very lovely book. . . It is told in that rarely pure English that a foreigner always writes when he learns English as an adult." F. B.

+ Chicago Daily Tribune p13 N 29 '30 200w

New Repub 65:200 D 31 '30 100w

"The novel has anthropological interest, but little value otherwise. As a narrative it is rather wearisome, the characters have in themselves no power for creating drama. The plot is ordinary. But the local color dominates and curiosity concerning village customs holds the reader till the book is finished."

+ — N Y Times p8 N 30 '30 550w

"The semi-archaic singsong in which much of the dialogue is cast, is very like the pseudo-poetic prose affected by some of the modern Irish dramatists; the constant use of the participle for the simpler direct present or future is a bit too obviously arranged and grows irksome. The novel has vitality, freshness, and charm, nevertheless." Arthur Ruhl

+ — Sat R of Lit 7:415 D 6 '30 580w

WILKINS, ERNEST HATCH. Above Pompeii. 73p $1.25 Univ. of Chicago press [6s Cambridge univ. press]

814 30-16029

Nine brief essays and a sonnet in which the author "shows how European humanism may be rightly appreciated and the message of the past interpreted. In the first address, for instance, he describes his thoughts and sensations as he looked from the slope of Vesuvius upon the rich plans below with their vestiges of ancient civilization, and compares that storied view with the loneliness of a wild American landscape. In other papers he deals with the human desire for knowledge as defined by Aristotle and others, weighs the spiritual function of art and exhorts his students to find in the liberal heritage of the past the need of the American future." (Times [London] Lit Sup)

WILKINS, E. H.—Continued

"Rarely in so small a volume does a reader find so much thought so simply, so appealingly put. Rarely does one find so much that is stimulating, fresh, and suggestive. Dr. Wilkins has given his readers an insight into his mind and into his governing sympathies." R. K. M.
+ Boston Transcript p2 Jl 9 '30 700w

"Always the graceful touch and the earnest message characterize the utterances of the former Chicago dean, now president of Oberlin."
+ Christian Century 47:818 Je 25 '30 150w

"If, through commending the pregnant brevity illustrated here by the President of Oberlin College, one could inculcate a similar manner of speech and writing in all those who address college audiences, the public side of college life in America would be immeasurably improved." T. V. S.
+ Int J Ethics 41:130 O '30 280w

"His addresses, though academic in intention, have a cordial and invigorating quality which should appeal to the young American mind."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p761 S 25 '30 200w

WILKINSON, LOUIS UMFREVILLE (LOUIS MARLOW, pseud.). Love by accident. 325p $2.50 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Gollancz]
30-10982

Tony is an attractive, innocent young man, and indifferent to women. All the girls are mad about him and are forced to make the advances. After a series of these inverted situations in love making, Tony finally meets the one and only girl for him, and the story concludes in the traditional happy manner.

"Mr. Marlow's ointment is so smooth that one really does not mind the fly. He has tried an experiment that is interesting and refreshing. The combination of seriousness and humor is effective and the author has once again proved himself a good student of human nature." M. M. Waterman
+ Bookm 71:549 Ag '30 450w

"The farcical surface of 'Love by Accident' entertains. It is the underlying woe, the pain beneath the clown's fooling, which jars, attuned as it is, so hopefully, to the tinkle of light mockery."
Books p17 Je 15 '30 500w

"No doubt Mr. Louis Marlow knew what he was about when he made this curious attempt to write two distinct novels side by side: all I can say is that I don't. . . At the close Mr. Marlow seeks to bring the two into unison in a riot of sentimentality. As I have said, I have no doubt he has some definite end in mind. But I do not think he has reached it." E. S.
— New Statesman 34:124 N 2 '29 180w

"If 'Love by Accident' proves anything it is that imitations of Aldous Huxley are dangerous or that Huxley achieves his own particular kind of success in spite of the limitations of his method. Lacking Huxley's skill as well as most of his other qualities Louis Marlow attempts to make his points by repetition, never a very successful device, and, in this case, fatal; Tony's indifference to his fate is harped on so steadily the reader ends, not believing, but actually sharing it." Robert Cantwell
— N Y Evening Post p9m My 31 '30 360w

"The book is a long, languid sigh. If it were not half so long its own satire on languor and sighing might have been more entertaining."
— N Y Times p24 Je 8 '30 280w

"Mr. Louis Marlow has written a clever piece of fiction in which two interrelated themes are presented side by side, the one frivolous, the other serious, and yet remain curiously distinct. . . 'Love by Accident' is a good title for an entertaining and original novel."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p894 N 7 '29 460w

WILLARD, THEODORE ARTHUR. Wizard of Zacna; a lost city of the Mayas. 319p il $2.50 Stratford
29-28180

A tale within a tale, in which an American archeologist exploring in Yucatan hears the story of a dying descendant of an ancient race. Strangely enough the love story of the young American shows some similarity to that of the aged Ahmen.

"The story is ingeniously devised and cleverly written. It shows a deep knowledge not only of the Yucatan of the present day, but also of the almost forgotten race whose deserted cities have been destroyed by time and by the creeping in of the forest."
+ Boston Transcript p2 D 31 '29 320w

"There is a 'moral' to the tale, trite and superfluous. The combination of an ancient love, glorious and unpersuasive as a fairy tale, with the realism of a modern attachment is not a happy one. It would not in the least have injured the story, had Mr. Willard omitted the episode of the explorer."
— + N Y Times p9 Mr 2 '30 450w

WILLEBRANDT, MRS MABEL (WALKER). Inside of prohibition. 347p $2 Bobbs
351.761 Prohibition—United States 29-25923

"An account of prohibition in the United States by the colorful former Assistant Attorney General, in charge of the prohibition activities of the Department of Justice during the Coolidge administration. The thesis is that prohibition has not been efficiently enforced, but can be, and even as enforced is far better than attempts at regulation of the liquor traffic."—Wis Lib Bul

Booklist 26:190 F '30

"Cold type is not the medium in which our former Assistant Attorney General shows off to the best advantage. Yet she has a highly important story to tell of the obstacles to prohibition enforcement experienced by one who was for eight years in the thick of the struggle. The reader will gain from her narrative a new respect for the superhuman task which our dry lawmakers have set the executive branch of the government even if he fails to be impressed by her passionate protestations that it is not an impossible task." W. M. Houghton
+ — Books p10 F 9 '30 550w

"One wonders as one reads Mrs. Willebrandt's account how she succeeded as well as she did in her own work of enforcement. Certainly her words vibrate with courage. She did not lay down the task because she thought it unenforceable, nor because she did not believe in prohibition."
+ Boston Transcript p2 F 26 '30 400w

Christian Century 47:723 Je 4 '30 100w

"A document which should interest wets and drys alike, for it is a calm and dispassionate discussion of the most debated public question before the American people. It should be valuable to every dry because it gives sound reasons for the conviction that is in him. It should be valuable to every wet because it states the case for law enforcement and law obedience upon a high level of clear and rational argument. It is neither captious nor doctrinaire. It is practical, not preachy."
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 Ja 11 '30 500w

Churchman p17 Ja 25 '30 50w

Cleveland Open Shelf p72 My '30

"With deplorably bad taste she has included in an appendix five political and very partisan speeches which she made during the Presidential campaign of last year, thus increasing whatever appearance the volume may have of its being intended to be a work of personal defense and lessening its value as a specially informed presentation and discussion of the question and the problems of prohibition."
— + N Y Times p44 D 8 '29 600w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:34 Ap '30

"Any person interested in this matter may well spend the time required to read carefully what Mrs. Willebrandt has to say, for the book deals in plain facts, told in simple language, by a clearheaded woman possessing a legally trained brain." G. A. Wing
+ Portland Evening News p5 Ja 7 '30 1000w

St Louis 28:36 F '30

Reviewed by H. L. McBain
Sat R of Lit 6:1107 Je 7 '30 600w

Reviewed by A. G. Fox
Survey 63:597 F 15 '30 100w

"Unquestionably one of the best presentations of the position of the 'drys' on the prohibition question."
+ Wis Lib Bul 26:38 Ja '30

WILLETT, HERBERT LOCKWOOD. Bible through the centuries. 337p $3 Willett
220 Bible.Whole—History 29-20664

Dr Willett, for many years professor of Oriental languages and literature at the University of Chicago, and widely known for his lecture courses on the Bible, discusses in this book the origin, contents, composition, transmission, translation and inspiration of the Bible.

Booklist 26:261 Ap '30

"This is a book of very high value indeed. It does more than classify the Biblical writings, more than describe the historical circumstances in which they arose, more even than trace the developing conceptions of the Judaeo-Christian tradition. All this, in fact, it does achieve with a quiet mastery of pertinent scholarship. But over and above this it wisely and liberally understands the processes of the human spirit which wrote themselves out immortally in the Bible record." W. L. Sullivan
+ Books p18 Mr 23 '30 500w

"Dr. Willett's book is one that can be read with profit and pleasure. He has a clear, lucid style and an abundance of the most up-to-date and authoritative Bible knowledge, and covers the ground in a most comprehensible manner. . . Few men are better fitted to undertake a task of this kind." J. C. G.
+ Boston Transcript p2 D 28 '29 300w

"Comes nearer than any other one book to telling all that the average man wants to know about the Bible."
+ Christian Century 46:1379 N 6 '29 30w

Reviewed by James Moffatt
Christian Century 47:303 Mr 5 '30 300w

Reviewed by F. G. Lewis
J Religion 10:405 Jl '30 630w

St Louis 28:64 Mr '30

WILLETT, HILDA. Diamonds of death. 282p $2 (7s 6d) Longmans
[30-18662]

Mystery story dealing with Russian villains, a diamond necklace of great value, and a beautiful young Englishwoman who is kidnapped and suffers kindred perils.

"A full bag of tricks that will delight mild mystery addicts."
+ Bookm 72:xxiv D '30 80w

"Conceived and executed in the mood of the title." Will Cuppy
— Books p14 O 19 '30 80w

"A good enough tale but not rating among the top notchers." Bruce Rae
+ — N Y Times p10 O 5 '30 100w

Times [London] Lit Sup p737 S 18 '30 150w

WILLETT, HILDA. Tragedy in Pewsey Chart. 314p $2 (7s 6d) Longmans
[29-17660]

From the discovery of the body of an elderly man in Pewsey Chart, the action in the story goes back to certain mysterious happenings in a sinister country inn, where a nice young man, Blaise Cantallack, and a beautiful but not too clever young girl, Mia Gwinnell, unwittingly fall into the hands of two nefarious jewel thieves and drug smugglers. It is a kindly professor who aids Mia, and comes to the final rescue of the couple just in time to enable Inspector Nixon of Scotland Yard to catch the villains.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p22 N 24 '29 100w

"Here are all the ingredients of an up-to-date 'thriller,' and Miss Willett has mixed them well. . . [Her] characters speak in the main the conventional language of detective novels, though she generally eschews the more preposterous sort of slang with which some writers love to bore us. But she is not strong on the dialects of the lower orders."
+ — New Statesman 34:26 O 12 '29 120w

Reviewed by L. P. Hartley
Sat R 149:56 Ja 11 '30 50w

WILLIAMS, BEN AMES. Great oaks. 351p $2.50 Dutton
30-30576

In a series of loosely connected stories or episodes Mr Williams follows the history of the successive generations that lived on Great Oaks, an island off the coast of Georgia. The first episode tells of the Jesuit missionary who came to the island and was killed by Indians; the second, of the home on the island established and cherished by a pioneering young couple; third, the punishment of Mungo Heardman, who tried to control the island; fourth, the coming of the French refugees; fifth, the era of slavery and Civil war period; and lastly, the island's salvation thru the "Builder" and his wife.

Bookm 72:x D '30 80w

"The story moves at an entertaining pace. Recommended for those who relish a historical sightseeing trip—there and back the same day."
+ Books p12 Ja 4 '31 100w

Boston Transcript p2 D 31 '30 250w

"A frankly romantic piece of work. It is deftly performed, notably in the technique of the transitions in each tale from the matter-of-fact present to the imagined past. Mr. Williams has called it 'a book of the dreams men dream and the loyal tenderness of women.' He is pleasing himself in writing in this romantic fashion. Stanch realists may take warning and avoid it. There still are plenty of readers of the other school."
+ Christian Science Monitor p12 N 29 '30 420w

"Ben Ames Williams is ever a skillful and facile narrator of good stories; he has the gift of making swift action and improbable incident seem fascinatingly credible. . . The author's style is sometimes stilted and over-decorated; occasionally the lushness of the scene seeps into and enervates the tale."
+ — N Y Times p8 N 16 '30 450w

"The descriptive passages are overloaded with stock phrases and the whole book has a pedestrian quality as though the author's usual skill had deserted him and as if, for all that he loves and knows the country of which he writes, he could not put his emotion into effective words or his knowledge into picturesque form." F. L. R.
— Outlook 156:427 N 12 '30 120w

WILLIAMS, BEN AMES. Touchstone. 337p $2.50 Dutton
30-12994

The Caterson twins, Tony and Sandy, were football heroes at college—Tony, charming and brilliant, Sandy, slower, but sure and dependable. Then comes the confession of the nurse who attended Mrs Caterson's twins at their birth: one of the babies had died, and an unwanted baby born the same night, been substituted by the nurse. No one ever discovered the deception. Hearing the truth after twenty years, the parents are tortured with the knowledge that one of these beloved boys is not their own. Sandy makes good after college, and wins the girl Tony wanted. Tony goes from bad to worse, till a final act of dishonesty destroys his good name. He, however, dies the death of a hero in sacrificing his own life to save that of an old man.

WILLIAMS, B. A.—Continued

Booklist 26:399 Jl '30

"This complexity of human relations is ably handled; and though the mystery is never cleared up, one finishes the book satisfied that, despite tragedy, things have worked out well."
+ Bookm 71:xxvi Ap '30 100w

"Inevitably the moment comes when one tires of riddles—even good ones. Mr. Williams presses a restraining finger too often on the lips of his characters; their thoughts are half thoughts and their knowledge is half-uttered, too long."
— + Books p12 Mr 30 '30 570w
Boston Transcript p1 Mr 8 '30 1300w
Cleveland Open Shelf p61 Ap '30

"When you come right down to it, there is nothing like a good, all-round accident to relieve the heart and mind of a noble mother and father. There is much sweetness and tenderness in Mr. Williams's novel, marred only by the downright villainy of one young woman 'hard as nails,' which villainy is directly responsible for our poor hero's demise. Next to an automobile, a gold-digging if somewhat uncalled-for villainess is certainly the best dea ex machina for a hard working, successful novelist." Edwin Seaver
— N Y Evening Post p11m Mr 8 '30 250w

"The machinery creaks. If any of a dozen popular writers had done it there would be no such comment. But Mr. Williams is a careful writer. And this is not a careful book."
— N Y Times p9 Mr 9 '30 500w
Pratt p42 summer '30
— Sat R of Lit 6:929 Ap 12 '30 400w

"While the author's faculty of fashioning an interesting narrative is here in evidence, the work belongs to a somewhat artificial type of emotional novel."
+ — Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 20 '30 100w
Times [London] Lit Sup p893 O 30 '30 150w

WILLIAMS, BLANCHE COLTON, and MACY, JOHN ALBERT. Do you know English literature? a book of questions and answers for students and general readers. 597p $3.50 (12s 6d) Appleton

820.7 English literature—Examinations, questions, etc. 30-14829

A complete survey of English literature by means of questions and answers. The answers are of two kinds: accepted facts, such as may be found in standard works of reference; and critical opinions, either those of the authors or the quoted opinions of well-known critics.

"This book of questions and answers on English literature is likely to be a source of discomfort in high places and a great contribution to general humility. To be sure, the questions frequently call for mind-reading rather than information, but on the whole it is stimulating and informative."
Bookm 72:xxv S '30 100w

"If you are a teacher and desire a new way to present your subject to your classes, here is the book for your use. If you are a student bent upon passing an examination in that subject, here is the book for your use."
+ Boston Transcript p2 Jl 9 '30 130w
N Y Times p18 Je 29 '30 170w

"This book has a place as a stimulant. Some of the appraisals are excellent; much information of importance is put before the reader in a nutshell. I do not believe that any reader will gain a clear impression of the power of Thomas Hardy by reading what is said about him in a book of information, but at least he will gain the key to the author's garden. It is valuable to know Froude's theory and practice as a historian, to comprehend the general qualities of Ruskin's writings, to grasp the general characteristics of Swinburne's poetry. Such information can never take the place of experience, but it may prove a guide." Harry Hansen
+ — N Y World p11 Je 3 '30 1000w
St Louis 28:215 S '30
Times [London] Lit Sup p761 S 25 '30 500w

WILLIAMS, CHARLES WALTER STANSBY. Poetry at present. 226p $2.50 (7s 6d) Oxford

821.09 English poetry—History and criticism [30-23886]

" 'Poetry at Present' sets out to give a short introduction to the works of sixteen contemporary poets, and, although designed to be a companion volume to anthologies of modern verse, it gives a survey of the whole work of each poet. The choice of the sixteen poets was not decided by preference. Selection has been made of those poets who 'have, to however small an extent, enlarged the boundaries of English verse.' " (Nation and Ath) The poets included are Thomas Hardy, John Masefield, Rudyard Kipling, T. S. Eliot, Robert Bridges, Walter de la Mare, W. B. Yeats, Robert Graves, G. K. Chesterton, A. E. Housman, Edmund Blunden, W. H. Davies, Lascelles Abercrombie, Ralph Hodgson, Wilfred Gibson and the Sitwells.

Booklist 27:199 Ja '31
Boston Transcript p2 Ag 23 '30 450w

"Whether or not this critic and poet may be forgiven his not-too-frequent lapses into incoherence and forced epigram, whether or not his sometimes humorously relieved dicta will be generally accepted, nobody will dispute the excellence of his choice of quotable lines from the numerous volumes of present-day verse that he has read so lovingly. These titbits alone should entice many a wide-eyed young reader into the banquet halls of modern poetry." C. M.
+ Cath World 132:504 Ja '31 280w
Nation 131:531 N 12 '30 220w

"One novel feature of the book is that each essay concludes with an 'end piece,' a poem on the poet in question, which is something of a pastiche, something of an atmospherical appreciation. If these are read aloud to another person, it makes an excellent guess-game to allot them to the poets to whom they respectively apply."
+ Nation and Ath 46:898 Mr 29 '30 200w

"Mr. Williams is, perhaps, at his best in the essays on Hardy and A. E. Housman; he is, perhaps, furthest from his best in those on Gibson and Robert Graves; but he is good in all."
+ — New Statesman 34:778 Mr 22 '30 650w

"Conceivably the uninitiated and the very young may find use for these amiable and discursive essays on present-day British poets. The reviews of such careers as Yeats', Walter de la Mare's, and Masefield's are well-planned and concise. Nowhere, however, does any convincing comment on the nature of poetry appear, and nowhere any very clear indication that Mr. Charles Williams understands the profounder issues with which he proposes to deal in his friendly, fawning, but never fastidious way." M. D. Z.
— Poetry 36:350 S '30 280w
St Louis 28:215 S '30

"These are careful studies and interpretations that present us not only with a number of sensitively-wrought portraits, but also a commentary on the development of modern verse that is full of intuition and constructive criticism. In particular, the studies of Mr. W. H. Davies and Mr. Robert Graves are to be recommended for the way in which they bring out the original qualities in these poets."
+ Spec 145:28 Jl 5 '30 150w

"Mr. Williams's mirror is small, but it never distorts; and if on occasion it is slightly misted with lack of understanding, the reader can (if suspicious) easily lay it down and contemplate the originals—which is the final justification of all books of this kind."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p229 Mr 20 '30 1150w

WILLIAMS, EGERTON RYERSON. Hill towns of Italy; with an introd. and a chapter on touring, by John T. Faris. new enl ed 398p il $3 Houghton

914.5 Italy—Description and travel 30-9213

A new edition of this guide book to the hill towns of central Italy, which is brought up to date by an introduction, a chapter on motor touring in central Italy, and a road map of the district covered.

Reviewed by A. B. Maurice
+ Bookm 71:xiv Jl '30 80w

"Mr. Faris was on the point of writing his own travel volume, but he discovered that the book by Mr. Williams covered the ground admirably, being, in fact, 'so complete, so well written, and characterized by such accuracy, that for many years no one should attempt another popular book on the rare Etruscan towns and their neighbors.' The volume is plentifully illustrated and indexed with admirable thoroughness."
+ Books p12 Je 8 '30 150w

"Though Mr. Williams wrote his little book on the Etruscan towns over twenty-five years ago, it is just as vivid in its descriptions, just as fascinating as it was then, for though the roads have been improved the towns have changed but little and remain practically as they have been for centuries."
+ Boston Transcript p3 My 31 '30 250w
St Louis 28:216 S '30

WILLIAMS, FRANKWOOD EARL. Adolescence; studies in mental hygiene. 279p $2.50 Farrar

136.7 Adolescence. Psychology, Pathological. Mental physiology and hygiene 30-14361

An eminent psychiatrist discusses the problems of adolescence, and those of the parents, from the standpoint of mental hygiene and its promotion.

"The title of this book is misleading. It is not a study of adolescence; it is merely a colloquial ill-organized discussion of some phases of mental hygiene. Much of it is invective; little, remedial." L. L. W. Wilson
— Ann Am Acad 149:201 My '30 400w

"This book is a significant contribution in this field." Margaret Flenniken
+ N Y Times p12 Ag 24 '30 350w
St Louis 28:202 S '30

"There is much wisdom in the book, presented in a conversational, somewhat journalistic, way which is altogether attention-compelling."
+ Sat R of Lit 7:11 Jl 26 '30 200w

"For eight years Frankwood Williams has been the chief spokesman for organized mental hygiene. There are good reasons for this aside from the fact that he is Director of the National Committee. He is a man of a high degree of intelligence, as every line of his book clearly indicates. He has had very competent training and experience in psychiatry. He is keenly aware of what might be called the crucial problems of mental hygiene. And finally, Dr. Williams has a gift of extraordinarily clear writing. He says what he means to say with a minimum of wasted effort, superfluous words, and professional jargon. What he says, therefore, is understandable, authoritative, and convincing." K. A. Menninger, M.D.
+ Survey 64:404 Ag 1 '30 350w

WILLIAMS, HENRY SMITH. Great astronomers. 618p il $6 Simon & Schuster

520.9 Astronomy—History. Astronomers 30-15-905

A narrative of astronomical discoveries and the progress of astronomy beginning with the measurements of the earth by Eratosthenes and continuing to the present day, with accounts of the men who contributed to the development of the science.

Booklist 27:17 S '30

"As a biographical record of the great astronomers certainly no single volume of recent times is so complete. While the style of the book is distinctly popular, the treatment of the considerable amount of material involved suggests here and there little more than text-book information." H. T. Stetson
+ — Bookm 71:472 Jl '30 500w

"From most aspects the book is well worth reading by those who have no first hand knowledge either of the history of astronomy or of the modern idea of the universe. Frankly imaginative, it nevertheless gives an adequate picture of the thought of the past and the panorama of the present. The illustrations are the least satisfactory part of the volume." Cecilia Payne
+ — Books p14 Je 8 '30 740w

"A readable but rather long winded history of astronomy, occasionally marred by an eagerness to overpopularize and by the effort to make every discovery startling. It contains a very serviceable appendix, with an alphabetical summary of astronomical topics, and also maps and charts of the heavens which make the book useful for anyone who wishes to carry on amateur astronomy." Benjamin Ginzburg
+ — New Repub 64:107 S 10 '30 100w

"The book covers an enormous sweep of development in the oldest of the physical sciences, and represents an intensive and comprehensive piece of work, reflecting the enthusiasm, imagination and understanding of the author." Clyde Fisher
+ N Y Evening Post p4s Je 7 '30 350w

"The author possesses qualities that go to the making of an excellent book. He knows his subject thoroughly, he is in love with it, he has written and lectured about it, until the whole story is at his fingers' tips. Hence a very readable book, concerned less with the abstract outline of star-lore than with the men who built it up, and with them as human beings working vigorously to widen man's thought and imagination, rather than as midnight watchers in chilly observatories." Charles Johnston
+ N Y Times p4 Jl 27 '30 1250w

Reviewed by F. L. Robbins
Outlook 155:225 Je 11 '30 170w
St Louis 28:209 S '30

"This is a book which tells a story from several points of view, and always in a scholarly and inspiring manner. . . Each biography is short but told in a dramatic manner, so that the reader is less conscious of the mechanical effort of reading than is the case with most histories of science." W. M. Reed
+ Sat R of Lit 7:19 Ag 2 '30 1000w
Springf'd Republican p10 Ag 20 '30 280w

Reviewed by Leon Whipple
Survey 64:41 O 1 '30 450w

WILLIAMS, JESSE LYNCH. She knew she was right. 345p $2.50 Scribner

30-11847

"The principal character is a beautiful woman, and in the eyes of all, including her own, one of exemplary virtue and integrity. She is a woman of large affairs and supposedly of a great executive ability. The power of the family centres in her. She has married a young journalist professor and it is a long time before he realizes her real significance and the hollow-

WILLIAMS, J. L.—Continued
ness of her virtue. She never realizes it. In her self-righteous effort to throw him over for another man, she rationalizes every step, but she is caught in the ecclesiastical technicalities, and unable to see the spirit, she is thwarted by the letter. In contrast to this lady, is her extremely charming secretary, Connie, the true heroine of the book."—Publishers' note

Booklist 27:66 O '30

"A subtly entertaining book with brilliant characterizations."
+ Bookm 71:x Jl '30 100w

"This novel should be read slowly. The story is handled with originality and flavored richly with the observations of a witty, shrewd, laughing mind. The situations broaden at times into farce, occasionally approach burlesque. But even that succeeds, for one is not looking too meticulously for reality. The characters, wickedly drawn, one accepts intellectually as real and rejects emotionally as puppets, with the possible exception of the charming young cousin, Connie, and Hilda's husband. They are life-like but not living. And in leaving his characters skillfully constructed characters, instead of making them people, Mr. Williams proved his knowledge of the psychological reaction of the reader." Thayer Hobson
+ — Books p7 Je 1 '30 800w

"It is all contrived as slickly as a play by Pinero; well oiled, artificial, and at times absurd; it is nevertheless written with a certain easy fluency of style and is agreeable in a well mannered kind of way."
+ — New Repub 63:53 My 28 '30 220w

"An entertaining, skilful satire of human emotions and motives."
+ N Y Evening Post p7e My 11 '30 220w

"The story itself is scarcely of absorbing interest, but the rich background of the tale and Mr. Williams's genial and witty narrative style make it a highly entertaining book."
N Y Times p8 My 18 '30 320w
Outlook 154:666 Ap 23 '30 250w

WILLIAMS, JOSEPH JOHN. Hebrewisms of West Africa; from Nile to Niger with the Jews. 443p $7.50 Dial press [30s Allen, G.]
296 Jews in Africa. Ethnology—Africa. Ashanti 30-11399

"This curious book sets out to prove a difficult thesis, . . . that a migration across Africa brought Jews and Jewish influences from Egypt to the Gold Coast. Dr. Williams, a Jesuit scholar, and, [presumably], a missionary, made his first observations among the interesting Negroes of Jamaica. He observed certain correspondences with historical Jewish customs, in the practices of their superstitions and in their traditional lore. The Jamaica Negroes, his research disclosed, were descendants mainly of the Ashantis, (a West Coast tribe) so noted for their independence and courage that they were turned away as slaves from all the American settlements except Jamaica. Dr. Williams continued his investigations in Africa, and in books (whose mere listing covers fifty-two pages of this volume)."—Books

"The special interest of the book is that, consciously or not, Dr. Williams, in rummaging among his vast heap of data, has an eye for the dramatic and the interesting. Without any outward distinction of style, and writing in apparently the dullest scholar's tradition, he nevertheless has the writer's instinct. His paragraphs have literary as well as scientific relevance to each other. This pursuit of Hebrew tribes across Africa and across historical time and space—becomes a continuously absorbing adventure." Isidor Schneider
+ Books p15 Jl 20 '30 400w
Boston Transcript p3 Jl 2 '30 480w
Cath World 131:764 S '30 200w
Reviewed by H. L. Nathan
Nation and Ath 47:655 Ag 23 '30 80w

"The extreme tenuity of many of the threads he traces and the necessarily scattered and fragmentary nature of the evidence, makes the volume one which must be read with closest attention if the reader is not to become hopelessly confused. There are, too, times when the author's personal opinions and beliefs seem to have led him to a certain straining of the evidence." L. M. Field
N Y Times p14 Ag 3 '30 900w

WILLIAMS, NORMAN POWELL. Grace of God. (Anglican lib. of faith and thought) 117p $1.35 (4s; pa 2s 6d) Longmans
234.1 Grace (theology) [30-17621]

An historical essay which traces the development of the conception of grace in Christian theology.

"A genuinely constructive theory of religious experience; reconciling the historical and psychological points of view." Evelyn Underhill
+ Spec 145:418 S 27 '30 220w

"A sound work on the Christian doctrine of grace."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p719 S 11 '30 400w

WILLIAMS, VALENTINE. Knife behind the curtain; tales of crime and the secret service. 259p $2 Houghton [7s 6d Hodder]
30-12135

Thirteen short stories, with varied settings, of the secret service, mystery, crime and adventure.

Bookm 71:xvii Jl '30 60w
Boston Transcript p2 My 31 '30 530w

"Mr. Williams' tales are competently told, well written and discreet models of their kind. Unfortunately, however, the plot, the point, the dénouement of each and every story have been worn threadbare."
— + N Y Times p8 Je 22 '30 250w

"Excellent stories, all of them." W. R. Brooks
Outlook 155:27 My 7 '30 50w
Times [London] Lit Sup p461 My 29 '30 90w

WILLIAMS, VALENTINE. Mysterious Miss Morrisot. 298p $2 Houghton
30-23554

A story of love, murder and mystery in Paris and on the Riviera.

Bookm 72:xxvi O '30 100w

"This one is actually worth reading as you go along, aside from the central riddle and the harmless, necessary climax." Will Cuppy
+ Books p14 O 19 '30 120w

WILLIAMS-ELLIS, MRS AMABEL. Men who found out; stories of great scientific discoverers. 259p il $2 Coward-McCann
925 Scientists. Science—History 30-7403

Brief biographies of men whose curiosity to find something out led to valuable scientific discoveries. Contents: Some Greeks and Romans; Galileo Galilei; William Harvey; Antony Van Leeuwenhoek; Michael Faraday; Charles Darwin; Louis Pasteur; Lord Lister; Madame Curie; Fighting yellow fever.

Booklist 26:401 Jl '30

"These are vivid yet simply expressed stories of the lives and scientific activities of great scientific discoverers. The obvious purpose of the author is to use the personal narratives as a means of imparting a glimmering of the meaning of scientific method and of the excitement of scientific research. . . I find it hard to imagine that this book could be less than interesting to any child who has in his temperament that which makes him a potential scientist." L. P. Hammett
+ Books p8 Je 1 '30 800w

Cleveland Open Shelf p128 S '30

Reviewed by B. A. Keen
Nature 126:268 Ag 23 '30 130w

"The author has succeeded in putting into these accounts a certain human and vivid quality which makes them more inviting reading than most of the books for young people dealing with scientific discoveries. The title indicates where the emphasis is laid and no boy or girl reading this volume in whole or in part could fail to grasp something of what 'the scientific method' means." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p15 Jl 6 '30 250w

Outlook 155:347 Jl 2 '30 50w

St Louis 28:220 S '30

"We feel that there is no need for any age limit for this book, for many adults will also thoroughly enjoy it. The fascinating and exciting stories of Galileo, Darwin, Madame Curie and other famous adventurers in science are told clearly and simply, without a trace of patronage, and there is no doubt that they will fire many children with the desire to 'find out by trying.' Mrs. Williams-Ellis knows exactly how to interest children in difficult subjects. Men Who Found Out is an admirable piece of work: every child should read it."
+ Spec 143:337 S 14 '29 130w

WILLIAMSON, GEORGE. Donne tradition; a study in English poetry from Donne to the death of Cowley. 264p $3 Harvard univ. press [14s Oxford]

821.09 English poetry—History and criticism. Donne, John 30-12260

"Since the War the younger generation has made a particular study of Donne, appropriating him, as it were, for its own, and using his poetry as a kind of foundation for its own exercises in verse, and his intellectual conception of the passions as a model for its own. In this post-War revival Mr. T. S. Eliot has played an important part. . . 'This book,' Mr. Williamson says, 'was really begun in a small essay on "The Talent of T. S. Eliot." . . . There I urged the relationship of Eliot to Donne, only to find myself beguiled into larger speculations.' Those 'larger speculations' led Mr. Williamson back to Donne and to his contemporaries, and his judgment on them is now contained in a very able critical study which he has called 'The Donne Tradition.' "—Times [London] Lit Sup

"I am grateful for the moderation with which he puts the claim of Donne as well as for the critical discernment with which he recognizes the very great importance of that claim." Austin Warren
+ Bookm 71:463 Jl '30 850w

Cath World 132:502 Ja '31 80w

Reviewed by E. L. Walton
N Y Times p2 Ag 31 '30 650w

St Louis 28:268 N '30

"In form it suffers occasionally from repetition and lack of coordination, for some of the chapters were written as separate essays and published as such; but it is consistent in so far as its chapters on individual poets in the Donne tradition have been written from one critical standpoint, and tend, therefore, to one critical end."
Times [London] Lit Sup p625 Jl 31 '30 1800w

WILLIAMSON, HENRY. Dandelion days. 318p $2.50 Dutton [7s 6d Faber]

30-10257

Continues the story of Willie Maddison's boyhood, begun in The Beautiful Years (Book Review Digest, 1929). Dandelion Days is concerned chiefly with Willie's school life, his friends, and the poignancy of his first adolescent love affair.

For biographical sketch of the author see Boston Transcript p1 N 22 '30

Booklist 26:399 Jl '30

"Mr. Williamson writes with a keen perception of youth's problems, friendships and loves."
+ Bookm 71:xiv Je '30 80w

" 'Dandelion Days,' standing on its own merits, appears to me on the whole the least interesting of the volumes that have now appeared. The book shares the qualities of its fellows; much of the writing is good, the descriptive passages peculiarly so, but there is overmuch of the detail of Willie's school life in it; overmuch detail for the amount of character drawing that comes out of it. The Willie of this volume is less interesting than the more youthful Willie of 'The Beautiful Years,' and there is missing the tension of the struggle between the boy and his father that made the first volume of the series absorbingly interesting." Herschell Brickell
— + Books p4 Ap 27 '30 650w

Boston Transcript p3 Je 11 '30 550w

Christian Science Monitor p5 My 31 '30 480w

"A charming story of English public-school life just before the war. The chief fault of 'Dandelion Days' lies in its relationship with the other novels that belong under the inclusive title 'The Flax of Dream.' Willie's adolescent years are here, one feels, being too lightly dealt with. Those who do not know Mr. Williamson, however, should hasten to make his acquaintance."
+ — Nation 130:658 Je 4 '30 200w

"This is more interesting than 'The Beautiful Years,' and the descriptions of the school are amusing in some parts and credible in others. But it is still far too long and detailed and too full of the wonder of Nature." L. L. Irvine
+ — Nation and Ath 46:707 F 22 '30 80w

"This is the second volume in the Willie Maddison tetralogy, of which 'The Pathway' was the fourth and climactic section. It is in some ways more satisfactory than the latter book; it is simpler, and Willie has not yet begun to show signs of the rather distressing mysticism which is later to lead him to a premature and watery grave. His adventures at Colham School are narrated with a sure humor and tenderness, without the bitterness and introspection which disfigure most reminiscences of sensitive adolescence."
+ New Repub 63:107 Je 11 '30 280w

"It is in his capacity for treating Nature not as accidental, but as essential, that the secret of Mr. Williamson's own power lies; we never feel that the artist and the naturalist are at variance in him, but that they are perfectly fused together, and the outcome of that fusion is a fine and flexible prose beautifully adapted to the purpose to which it is put in this subtle and unusual novel."
+ New Statesman 34:680 Mr 1 '30 180w

N Y Times p8 Ap 20 '30 650w

"Mr. Williamson's style has an original and distinguished quality, resembling in its terse, epigrammatic expression the style of George Meredith. His profound feeling for nature makes sometimes lush writing, but is effective in creating an atmosphere of languor and sentimentality to which the mood of the young is so responsive." Helen Berlin
+ N Y World p7m Je 15 '30 500w

Reviewed by W. R. Brooks
Outlook 154:668 Ap 23 '30 80w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:51 Je '30

Pratt p42 summer '30

"The war, of course, developed him, as we were told in 'The Pathway': the present book just takes him to the beginning of the war. No doubt his development as a whole will prove to be natural. But one cannot help feeling that if he was to find his soul so late his earlier life was not worth describing quite at such length as it has been given in these two volumes. This seems ungracious, and even ungrateful, to one of the most distinguished of living writers. If this were eight years ago, it would be a duty and a delight to point out the beauty of

WILLIAMSON, HENRY—Continued
Mr Williamson's style, and the intimacy of his friendship with the country. But Mr. Williamson's gifts are by now well known; and one must confess that this second novel, even in its revised form, shows some, but not all, and not the greatest of them." Basil Davenport
+ — Sat R of Lit 6:1089 My 31 '30 850w

"Mr. Williamson can and does convey the atmosphere of the English countryside just as he can and does describe all the rather wearying emotions of boyhood. Willie Maddison, like so many other young heroes, is unhappy at school. He has a romantic friendship for a boy, a reverent love for a girl. He is misunderstood. It is a great tragedy, but we knew it all by heart before Mr. Williamson wrote of it." B. E. Todd
— Spec 144:287 F 22 '30 180w
Springf'd Republican p5e Jl 20 '30 900w

"On the whole, unless one has a strong interest in ordinary schoolboys and naturalistic pursuits, the rather pedestrian gait of this volume is likely to be a little disconcerting."
— + Times [London] Lit Sup p140 F 20 '30 450w

WILLIAMSON, HENRY. Patriot's progress; being the vicissitudes of John Bullock. 194p $2.50 Dutton [10s 6d Bles]
30-18658

The war as experienced by John Bullock, British private soldier, recorded in simple and powerful episodes from his enlistment to Armistice day. With lino-cut illustrations by William Kermode.

Booklist 27:106 N '30

"This really fine war novel by Henry Williamson has been brought to birth much too late to receive the attention it manifestly deserves. In spite of the clarity and competence with which Mr. Williamson approaches his subject, the reader can hardly be blamed for finding this Odyssey of a British private faintly repetitious." Margaret Wallace
+ — Bookm 71:548 Ag '30 500w

"As a piece of writing 'Patriot's Progress' will be of especial interest to those who know the other work of its author, because it shows him in a changed mood as well as a changed manner. Here he has apparently suppressed the sensitivity that is so marked a quality of his nature books and of his four-part novel as well; he writes with feelings so deeply harrowed, perhaps, that he has them under complete control, and the effect is all the stronger. Mr. Williamson's book is not different in plan from a number of others that have tried very hard to tell the story of the war from the angle of the man in the ranks. It is merely that it is superior because it is written by a man whose business is writing, who knows his job, and who in this instance was powerfully moved before he sat down to write his book." Herschel Brickell
+ Books p7 Jl 20 '30 650w

"Mr. Williamson, in his luminous descriptive prose, has written a second fine war book. The story is short, graphic, and haunting. It belongs among the best of the increasing number of war memorials in literature."
+ Nation 131:303 S 17 '30 120w

"Everything that has happened in every other war book happens to the patriot. He is not an interesting creature. His name is John Bullock, and John Bullock is short for John Bull. His adventures, his fall from virtue, his endurance of suffering are never sufficiently personal to make him interesting as a character." R. P. F. Strachey
— Nation and Ath 47:540 Jl 26 '30 150w

"There has been no better book about the war than this, and none that mirrors so well the unreasonable joy or the unreasonable resentment of the ordinary fighter."
+ New Statesman 35:sup xiv My 10 '30 500w

"Mr. Williamson has told the story of the war a little differently from any other writer. He has, in a sense, just told the story of war, making his protagonist as much of a symbol and as little of an individual as he possibly could. . . His descriptions of the fighting and of life at the front fall short of those in 'All Quiet' because they lack human heightening and because they are not based on the selection of few and consummate details; but as examples of the dynamic staccato manner they are excellent. Mr. Williamson writes with a detachment made to seem, through artifice, almost casual. The facts must speak for themselves, for the author never intrudes and John Bullock never—or almost never—reflects. Emotionally the book is pitched in the lowest possible key, and its matter-of-fact air, its literalness, is intentional." Louis Kronenberger
+ N Y Times p7 Jl 13 '30 900w

Reviewed by E. C. Beckwith
N Y World p5m Ag 3 '30 250w

Reviewed by F. L. Robbins
Outlook 155:427 Jl 16 '30 350w

"This is one of the few war books that ought to be read, even after a surfeit of that sort of literature. It gives perhaps the truest picture of what war meant to the individual, the ordinary, average youngster turned soldier. It is forceful but seldom forced in its presentations of the horrors of trench warfare."
+ Sat R 150:92 Jl 19 '30 100w

Reviewed by Basil Davenport
Sat R of Lit 7:123 S 13 '30 450w

"The Patriot's Progress is undoubtedly one of the best of the British War books, and Mr. Williamson has proved that he is a writer of the utmost integrity." Vernon Bartlett
+ Spec 144:981 Je 14 '30 200w

" 'The Patriot's Progress' is a book of power, yet its savagery and irony pass at times beyond restraint and defeat their own purpose. In the field of war literature it seems much less effective, ultimately, despite a greater immediate impression, than the same writer's quieter, more mellow, more beautiful work, 'The Wet Flanders Plain.' " H. K.
+ — Springf'd Republican p9e Ag 17 '30 800w

"The public apparently relished this sort of thing, but it is now showing unmistakable signs of having had almost enough, and the end cannot be far off; though Mr. Williamson's reputation and certain marks of individuality which not even this subject can destroy may carry this particular work through. There is, moreover, a passionate conviction behind Mr. Williamson's writing to which it is impossible to deny respect. In brief, it may be said that, considering that he has gone over ground already traversed a hundred times and that he does not recognize there being anything more in the Great War than blood, mud, brothels, drink and field punishment, he has done as well with his subject as any man could."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p472 Je 5 '30 430w

WILLIAMSON, HENRY. Village book. 342p il $2.50 Dutton [7s 6d Cape, J.]
828 Country life
30-29355

Essays and sketches of various aspects of life in a Devonshire village, arranged in two groups, the chapters, in the section entitled The spirit of the village dealing with the people, and those in Air and light of the fields dealing with natural life.

Reviewed by George Dangerfield
Bookm 72:414 D '30 350w

"If there were no more to this book than its descriptions of countryside and of birds and animals—there are few people living who write so beautifully of birds as Mr. Williamson, or with so much sympathy—it would be a thing to treasure, for its pages are permeated with the spirit of Richard Jefferies, and with the tradition of the peculiarly English attitude toward the country. But Mr. Williamson has gone much farther this time; he has caught the people of the village, and put them into the picture." Bruce Johns

+ Books p5 O 26 '30 550w

"A catalogue of the contents of Mr. Williamson's book will not convey the secret of its success. Somehow or other he has captured the over-soul of English rural life, that permeating quality which one can appreciate only after living through several years at least in one place; each tree, path, cottage, human being, the very stones and weeds, uniting in a sort of unheard song of place and history; music to break the heart because of its elusive beauty and pathos and unfading ardour." Richard Church
+ Nation and Ath 47:626 Ag 16 '30 680w

"Other readers than those with birds or bees in their bonnets will enjoy such writing as this. Too many writers about animals are sentimental. Their tearful reflections muddle clear thinking. They assume that animals feel what they feel about them. Not so Mr. Williamson. Whether he is dealing with water ousels or beer drinkers, he is objective with that touch of personality which gives form and tone to a book of this sort, saving it from dulness."
+ New Statesman 35:546 Ag 2 '30 750w

Reviewed by Charles Johnston
N Y Times p7 D 7 '30 550w

Reviewed by Harry Hansen
N Y World p12 N 7 '30 100w

"A love of wild things and creatures is saved from sentimentality by the firm structure of Williamson's utterly unsentimental prose. If you do not know Williamson, this is the book in which to meet him."
+ Outlook 156:508 N 26 '30 100w

"The strength of these stories and sketches is uneven, but in all of them Mr. Williamson shows his artistry in the sane balancing of his two rôles of romantic naturalist and realist. His choice of words is exact, often unusual without affectation; his writing is unforced and frequently of real beauty." Geoffrey Grigson
+ Sat R 150:116 Jl 26 '30 550w

"Williamson is a trained craftsman, and for all his protest that he finds writing a bit of a grind, his mellow prose is compact and disciplined and full of guile." Brooks Shepard
+ Sat R of Lit 7:359 N 22 '30 620w

"His portraits of men and women are too much warped by bitterness and cynicism. If it was once the custom to idealise rural life, the fashion has now certainly swung to the other extreme, and it is regrettable to find a writer of Mr. Williamson's quality yielding to the prevailing mode. The descriptive studies of Nature itself reveal him, once more, as a sensitive and impassioned artist, carrying on without imitation the tradition of Richard Jefferies."
— + Spec 145:88 Jl 19 '30 160w

"There is in Mr. Williamson's view of his villagers an acrid temper in curious contrast with his reverence and sympathy for the animal world. His position seems to imply that in his prospect only man is vile. . . The falsity which vitiates the whole picture is the omission of the salt which keeps the commune alive, the great qualities of patience, enduring labour, mutual help, wise humour, old-mannered piety, which still exist for those with minds to feel their power. . . There is revolt in his temper and something like rancour in his way of expressing himself—very serviceable qualities for certain purposes, but very ill adapted for getting inside the minds of English country folk."
— + Times [London] Lit Sup p649 Ag 14 '30 520w

WILLIAMSON, JAMES ALEXANDER. Short history of British expansion; v 1, The old colonial empire; v 2, The modern empire and commonwealth. 2d ed 470;315p il $12 (30s) Macmillan

942 Great Britain—Colonies. Great Britain—Commerce

The history of British colonization, administration of tropical dependencies, foreign trade, religious and secular incentives to emigration, and broad changes in national character and outlook. The first edition, published in 1922, has been extended to include the last imperial conference.

"Regarded as an interpretation of British overseas expansion the work has distinct and original value. Students will be glad of its clearness of outline, its treatment of epochs of transition in theories of trade, in the art of navigation, and in the conception of empire. But in detail the work impinges upon fields of specialized knowledge—fields upon which the author seems to be treading without due fear. His method raises quite seriously the question as to whether it is any longer advisable for a single writer to endeavor to encompass all local as well as general imperial history. . . Mr. Williamson gives the impression of striving to encompass subjects with which he is not completely familiar." C. E. Fryer
+ — Am Hist R 35:915 Jl '30 350w

"The volume is of considerable interest, and the story of India in particular makes the book worth owning for those interested in historic backgrounds." E. S. Griffith
Am Pol Sci R 24:754 Ag '30 160w

Reviewed by R. G. Trotter
Canadian Hist R 11:278 S '30 280w

Nation 131:132 Jl 30 '30 150w

"The book as a whole is decidedly better balanced than in the first edition, and it includes a large amount of additional information. It may be regretted, however, that Dr. Williamson has not felt under greater obligation to bring his narrative up to date. He tells us nothing of the course of events in India during the last ten years, nothing of important recent developments in the dependent empire, and scarcely anything about the internal history of the Dominions since the war." R. L. Schuyler
— + Pol Sci Q 45:473 S '30 250w

Spec 144:446 Mr 15 '30 100w

WILLIAMSON, JEFFERSON. American hotel; [2] an anecdotal history. 324p il $3.50 Knopf

647.94 Hotels, taverns, etc.—United States 30-28615

This account of the growth of the American hotel from 1794, when the City Hotel was opened in New York,—the first building erected in America for strictly hotel purposes, to the palatial skyscraper hotels of today, affords in miniature a social history of the country during the past 130 years.

Booklist 27:194 Ja '31

Nation 131:462 O 29 '30 600w

"The story of the American hotel, which Mr. Williamson has here related in what he modestly calls 'an anecdotal history,' turns out to be an exceedingly rich field. . . The book is highly entertaining and will prove worthwhile for any student of what, for want of a more original term, may be called Americana. Certainly no topic could better reflect the progress of our national customs and tastes." R. L. Duffus
+ N Y Times p15 N 16 '30 580w

"A great deal of social history is bound up with the record of these American hotels. The list of their rules alone, from the early days, throws a significant light on American mores. Mr. Williamson attempts no sociological discussion of the effects of the hotel and of our national taste for hotel life upon American civilization, or vice-versa; but he has a keen eye for items which bear upon this subject. He has provided a trustworthy and sufficiently comprehensive treatment of a not unimportant subject." Allan Nevins
+ Sat R of Lit 7:488 D 27 '30 550w

WILLIAMSON, MARGARETTA A. Social worker in group work. (Harper's social science ser.) 249p $2.50 Harper

361 Social service 30-436

"This is the second volume in the 'Job Analysis Series' of the American Association of Social Workers. It sets forth the personnel

WILLIAMSON, M. A.—Continued
practices of a wide variety of agencies in the rather vaguely defined field known as 'group work.' The work of the executive, the group director, and the specialists in music, dramatics, dancing, arts-craft, home economics, and physical education are discussed. In each case the author covers such subjects as rôle in the organization, relations to the community, education, training, personality, remuneration, conditions of work, and gives selections from diaries showing 'the day's work.' "—Am J Soc

"The entire study is objective and though somewhat condensed in form will be of interest to a variety of readers. Executives and workers can use such material to judge conditions in their own agency; the student or prospective worker will find it valuable as a vocational guide; the training schools will find help here in building curriculums; standardizing bodies can utilize these findings in setting and raising standards in group work." E. F. Young

+ Am J Soc 36:315 S '30 320w

Booklist 26:224 Mr '30

Pratt p11 autumn '30

"The book has the advantage of easy reference and cannot but suggest to group workers and their supervisors, teachers and employers sins of omission if not of commission. Indeed the book possesses two outstanding virtues which make it of real and lasting value. It offers the first authoritative statement of the nature and range of social group work and gives as well a variety of concrete suggestions out of actual experience in the different aspects of that work. But by what it does not do or claim to do it indicates the need for a thoroughly modern book on the philosophy and methods of group work." A. L. Swift, Jr.

+ — Survey 64:201 My 15 '30 450w

WILLIAMSON, THAMES ROSS. The earth told me. 350p $1 Simon & Schuster
30-20159

"A story of the Alaskan tundra. Taliak lives in a hut on the tundra with Orulo, his wife, Akpek, his apprentice, and his Old Mother. He owns some two hundred head of deer. His work is to herd them and look after them. . . Taliak's days would be quiet, in harmony with the great quiet of the tundra, were it not for Akpek, the apprentice, who has been to a Mission School and, from the dread whites, has learned to look upon a woman with the eyes of jealous love. Akpek desires the brown warmth of Orulo. Taliak discovers that he must fight for his wife. It brings a change to his nature, a sense of weakness and degradation. At last, however, he claims her."—Outlook

"Mr. Thames Williamson has written a stark and fascinating novel; a novel which is only secondarily valuable in the glimpse that it affords of a little known folk. It is primarily a work of art. . . Mr. Williamson has not attempted to write a novel of background or a novel in which ethnological and anthropological detail encumber the story. Instead he has done a drama of a tiny group of primitive people. As a piece of prose the book is a notable achievement." F. T. Marsh

+ Books p3 Ag 10 '30 600w

"The story, which is the cycle of a primitive civilization, shows the pure artistry of the author. It is slow moving, in harmony with the people and the life that it portrays. . . There is a definite bond of sympathy between the reader and Taliak, the hero. For the time, the reader lives the life of the hero and this is one of the supreme tests of a novel." H. G. K.

+ Boston Transcript p1 Ag 30 '30 400w

"On the whole, Williamson has been successful in sustaining an interest in his characters and their difficulties. The book lacks the color of contrast and perspective; it has the excellence of a story well told."

+ — Nation 131:479 O 29 '30 250w

"Mr. Williamson keeps the narrative moving smoothly, with a certain fresh vigor entirely in keeping with his primitive material, without becoming unduly interested in local color for its own sake. Particularly well written are the opening chapters and those describing a reindeer fair which plays a very definite part in developing the relations between the characters." Eugene Armfield

+ New Repub 64:161 S 24 '30 230w

"Except for a battle between two bulls in the herd, the chase from a pack of wolves, and the last struggle between Taliak and Akpek, there is little surface drama. Yet underneath the cold covering of the earth and the blunt faces of the Alaskans a fire of life blazes steadily. This tensity which Mr. Williamson rolls up from page to page takes hold of you, gathers you in, and does not release you till the end." V. P. R.

+ Outlook 155:629 Ag 20 '30 380w

WILLIS, HENRY PARKER, and BOGEN, JULES IRWIN. Investment banking. 529p il $3.50 Harper
332.1 Banks and banking. Investments
29-24176

An exposition of the principles and practices of investment banking, of special value to the student of banking, since it is the outgrowth of the teaching experiences of the authors at two universities.

"An excellent and useful book. Despite its range and inclusiveness, it is never discursive or controversial; and it presents its material in singularly terse and lucid English. . . For the student of investment banking, the book is well arranged for reference to special subjects. The information to be derived will be found accurate and dependable, rarely expanded beyond a compact and coherent statement of essential facts. Each chapter is fortified, however, with valuable references for any reader who seeks to extend his inquiries." W. L. Garrison, Jr.

+ Am Econ R 20:121 Mr '30 480w

Reviewed by E. E. Lincoln
Ann Am Acad 149:203 My '30 300w

Booklist 26:190 F '30

St Louis 28:38 F '30

Special Libraries 21:269 S '30

Wis Lib Bul 26:100 Mr '30

WILLOUGHBY, MRS FLORANCE (BARRETT). Sitka, portal to romance. 233p il $3 Houghton
917.98 Sitka, Alaska. Tlingit Indians
30-9234

Miss Willoughby, an Alaskan who loves her native land, writes of Sitka's romantic days when Russia ruled the north Pacific coast prior to the purchase of Alaska by the United States, and contrasts this richly glamorous period with Sitka as it is today. She tells charming tales of the old Russian nobility, describes the life of the Indians of the region, and sketches some of the interesting types, such as the hermit artist, whom she met on her recent return visit to Alaska.

Booklist 26:354 Je '30

Reviewed by C. L. Skinner
Books p19 My 4 '30 400w

Boston Transcript p2 Ap 2 '30 1300w

Reviewed by F. W. Howay
Canadian Hist R 11:171 Je '30 330w

Cleveland Open Shelf p103 Jl '30

"In her simple, unstrained, lively narrative visual impressions blend and contrast with the shadows of the past in a colorful picture. Moreover, she has a real gift for calling back to life the romance of the bygone days without sinning against history, without losing that peculiar Russian flavor which characterized Alaska of the early nineteenth century." Alexander Nazaroff

+ N Y Times p13 My 25 '30 1050w

"Not ordinarily fond of travel books, this reviewer has been pleased with the forthright simplicity with which Barrett Willoughby in Sitka, Portal to Romance approaches the task of telling people about a place which does not offer too much copy in a way which may tempt them into going there. The Russian and Indian elements in the story of Sitka are the ones which are most romantic and they are well played up."

+ Outlook 154:545 Ap 2 '30 80w

Pratt p31 autumn '30

Reviewed by W. B. Shaw
R of Rs 81:16 My '30 130w

"A chatty book, very informative nevertheless, and good reading. It is a description of Sitka in the light of its Russian and Indian past, especially its Russian past. A good piece of journalism, this book is hardly of reference grade, but might well be read by anyone contemplating an inside voyage to South Eastern Alaska."
+ Sat R of Lit 6:974 Ap 19 '30 60w

Spec 145:674 N 8 '30 200w

Springf'd Republican p10 Jl 15 '30 270w

Times [London] Lit Sup p879 O 30 '30 550w

WILLOUGHBY, HAROLD RIDEOUT. Pagan regeneration; a study of mystery initiations in the Graeco-Roman world. 307p $3 Univ. of Chicago press [13s 6d Cambridge univ. press]

292 Mysteries, Religious. Greece—Religion. Rome—Religion 29-22404

Contents: Pagan piety in the Graeco-Roman world; The greater mysteries at Eleusis; Dionysian excesses; Orphic reform; The regenerative rites of the Great mother; Death and rebirth in Mithraism; Isiac initiation; The new birth experience in Hermeticism; The mysticism of Philo; The social significance of mystery initiation.

"'Pagan Regeneration' will be found profitable and fascinating to any intelligent reader, but quite indispensable to the historian of Hellenistic times, to the classicist, and above all to every student of early Christianity." S. V. McCasland
+ Christian Century 46:1507 D 4 '29 1000w

Reviewed by Paul Shorey
Class Philol 25:99 Ja '30 650w

"He shows himself as perfectly at home in the field, and the quite unpretentious way in which he has made the non-Christian writers themselves yield their evidence carries conviction. Not only for the lay reader—its value for him can hardly be exaggerated—but for the teacher who is obliged to introduce his students to these cults with which Christianity found itself in the liveliest competition this book is more than timely. With no intention of being fulsome in its praise it is but fair to say that it would be difficult to see how it could be bettered." M. S. Enslin
+ Crozer Q 7:142 Ja '30 450w

"Professor Willoughby has said about the best that can be said concerning the ethical and social effects of these mystery religions. The book represents a substantial piece of work to be placed alongside of such well-known studies as those by Cumont and Glover, and others." Vergilius Ferm
+ Int J Ethics 40:564 Jl '30 300w

"The importance of the subject, the patient and careful investigation of the writer, the clarity and forcefulness of the presentation combine to make this a welcome addition to our literature on Christian origins and to give us a prolegomenon that raises our expectation regarding discussions yet to come from the author's pen." E. W. Parsons
+ J Religion 10:416 Jl '30 1350w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:54 Je '30

"The discussions of the greater mysteries at Eleusis, Dionysian excesses, Orphic reform, Mithraism, Isiac initiation and the mysticism of Philo are clear and well documented, and each section is followed by a useful bibliography."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p1036 D 5 '29 250w

WILLOUGHBY, WESTEL WOODBURY. Constitutional law of the United States. 2d ed 3v $36 Baker, Voorhis

342.73 United States—Constitutional law 29-13658

"This second edition is more than twice the length of its predecessor published nineteen years earlier. One-fourth of the increase is due to the expansion of the treatment of the commerce clause. One-sixth of the additional space is devoted to due process and the police power which was hardly touched upon in the first edition. The rest is distributed throughout the treatise and is occasioned mainly by the product of the judicial mill since the first edition was published. At many points, however, Mr. Willoughby has rearranged, rewritten, and expanded his treatment of decisions rendered before his first edition. Thus we are given a genuine new edition, with the revision and expansion contributed by the titular author and not by some alien hand chosen by the publisher."—Harvard Law R

"The appearance of the revised edition of Professor Willoughby's monumental treatise on The Constitution is an epoch-making event in the field of American constitutional law. . . Two decades have seen much constitutional law made and remade, so that in settling himself to the task of revision the author faced an undertaking hardly less arduous than the preparation of the original work. This task he has performed in the most thoroughgoing manner. . . Professor Willoughby has given us a genuine revision in the best sense of the word. . . Furthermore, the work of revision has been done by the author himself, which guarantees the accuracy, soundness of judgment, and richness of scholarship which the profession has learned to expect from him." R. E. Cushman
+ Am Pol Sci R 24:746 Ag '30 1150w

"Mr. Willoughby has given us a monumental work that every library should demand. In preparing constitutional arguments in legislative chambers, it will often be an indispensable aid. Students of history and government will find in it a mine of material that has no rival in any other single work. The practitioner will go to it for background before he begins his intensive investigations. Students and teachers of constitutional law will consult it frequently to widen their horizons and refresh their recollections. When they read the many scattered sections in which the author turns from his rôle of narrator and becomes critic and coördinator, they will regret the more that these higher talents confine themselves to occasional excursions instead of permeating every page." T. R. Powell
+ Harvard Law R 43:331 D '29 1750w

"The original edition, even after nineteen years of obsolescence, was with perhaps a single exception the standard treatise on American constitutional law. By the new edition that position is made all the more secure. It is a security, however, that is based upon compilation and exhaustiveness rather than upon critical treatment. For this is assuredly not intended as a critical study. It is essentially consultative." R. A. Leydig
+ Pol Sci Q 45:471 S '30 700w

WILLOUGHBY, WESTEL WOODBURY.
² Ethical basis of political authority. 460p $3.50 (15s) Macmillan

320.15 State, The. Political ethics. Political science 30-12684

Professor Willoughby's aim is to examine political authority as it is viewed by the moralist. He believes that political coercion "is justified just to the extent that it provides a more efficient and less oppressive form of control than would exist without it." The discussion is also carried into the international field.

"No one can fail to welcome so scholarly an achievement on a problem of such primary importance. The plain man will perhaps fail, should he venture to explore the pages of this comprehensive volume, to appreciate why it takes so long to achieve a formula which is quite as simple as Professor Willoughby's, or why it is necessary to pass in bibliographic review all the deviations from this formula; but of such is the essence of scholarship." H. D. Lasswell

WILLOUGHBY, W. W.—Continued

+ — Ann Am Acad 151:299 S '30 250w
Booklist 27:141 D '30

"History, philosophy, and keen criticism are in this valuable volume by the Professor of Political Science in Johns Hopkins University. Dr. Willoughby's method is clear, systematic, brief, discerning. He has placed important and interesting material at the disposal of students and all general readers interested in any aspect of political science. His comprehensive outreach into scholarship embraces many theories of government and ethics." R. K. M.

+ Boston Transcript p2 Je 25 '30 600w

"We need not assure the future readers of this book that a writer with Professor Willoughby's knowledge and experience will give them a large amount of useful information and many excellent comments on the value of the different theories. This defense of the philosophical approach to politics and of the connection between philosophy and politics is very welcome in the present times." G. S. Brett

+ — Int J Ethics 41:238 Ja '31 1000w

"Professor Willoughby has the habit of writing important books. In this he reviews with learning and clarity preceding political thought and expounds his own theory of the principles of political obligation. . .The general character of this excellent book is markedly more 'liberal' than that of Professor Willoughby's more purely juristic treatises." G. E. G. Catlin

+ Nation 131:278 S 10 '30 300w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:82 N '30
St Louis 28:230 O '30

WILLOUGHBY, WILLIAM FRANKLIN. Principles of judicial administration. (Inst. for government research. Principles of administration) 662p $5 Brookings

353.5 Justice, Administration of. Courts—United States 29-13834

"This contains a description of American legal institutions and practices, together with a good deal of critical comment upon the administration of justice, and numerous proposals for its improvement, and is designed for students of political science as well as for lawyers interested in legal reform. There has been no attempt to present fresh information obtained from independent investigations by the staff of the Institute for Government Research. The materials which have gone into this volume have been derived from the available printed books and legal periodicals."—Harvard Law R

"As a basis for future research in the much-neglected field of the judicial process, he could hardly have performed a more valuable work." R. L. Mott

+ Am J Soc 36:324 S '30 320w

"This is a notable volume, and as timely as it is notable. It offers what for all practical purposes is a complete analysis of the American judicial system and its deficiencies, a complete record of worthwhile criticism and of remedial suggestions, a complete chronicle and assessment of progress so far made and of results so far attained by way of reform." E. S. Corwin

+ Am Pol Sci R 23:1007 N '29 1500w

"It would be difficult to exaggerate the importance of the contribution which this book makes to the subject of law reform in judicial administration. . . While the author has undoubtedly rendered a great service by accumulating this material one cannot help but feel that the work would have more important practical results had there been less of a tendency to give undue praise to almost every nostrum which the ingenuity of man has produced during the past century with reference to reform in law administration." H. R. Medina

+ — Columbia Law R 30:751 My '30 1200w

"There are extensive quotations from leading writers on the topics which the volume covers, and its author claims no other merit than to have put together a well-proportioned and reliable description of the system of judicial administration, as seen by the most authoritative observers, and to have summarized what seem to him the most promising suggestions of the judicial reformers. The book will be very useful to students of political science. It covers the whole range of topics in which such students may be interested and deals with them dispassionately and systematically. . . Lawyers who may look for an original contribution to the subject of judicial reform from the Institute of Government Research will be disappointed with this volume, but those who seek a foundation for appraising, let us say, the findings and recommendations of President Hoover's Commission on Law Enforcement, when its report shall appear, will be grateful to Dr. Willoughby for this orderly and judicious survey." A. N. Holcombe

Harvard Law R 43:157 N '29 480w

"The criticisms set forth in this review should not be taken to imply that the reviewer minimizes the importance of a volume which has manifestly entailed much laborious preparation, and which is, on the whole, both penetrating and dispassionate. It is clearly and effectively written and contains carefully selected references to a large amount of material which can profitably be used as a basis for further investigations in more restricted phases of the subject. It promises well for the future of the study of the administration of justice in the United States." Pendleton Howard

+ Pol Sci Q 45:625 D '30 1500w
St Louis 28:133 My '30

"In the process of listing and assaying the author has brought forward a wealth of information. But the cataloging is more successful than the evaluation. Notwithstanding the author's long and wide experience both as investigator and as administrator, his book proves that successfully to weigh the merits of so vast a number of complex institutions is beyond the power of any one man. . . But though the book may not be entirely convincing as a final judgment upon the questions raised and the institutions discussed, it should serve a very useful purpose as a compendium of plaintiff's arguments. . . As a book of information, rather than as a book of opinion, this work should find its place." H. L. Bevis

+ — Yale Law J 39:919 Ap '30 1100w

WILLS, LEONARD JOHNSTON. Physiographical evolution of Britain. 376p il $8.40 Longmans [21s Arnold]

554.2 Geology—Great Britain. Physical geography—Great Britain [30-9512]

A study of the physiographical processes that were at work in Great Britain ages past, modifying the surface of the earth from period to period. The author is lecturer in geology at the University of Birmingham, England.

N Y New Tech Bks 15:7 Ja '30

"One cannot be too grateful for so useful and so relatively cheap a volume. Lucidity, however, is a praiseworthy aim, and one could wish that Dr. Wills had allowed himself more space for a narrative that can. in the hands of a good writer, be made both clear and fascinating. If Dr. Wills's style does not reach this level, his diagrams forbid misunderstanding and his pen-and-ink sketches are clearer than the photographs on which they are based."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p91 F 6 '30 270w

WILM, MRS GRACE (GRIDLEY). History of music. 382p il $3 Dodd

780.9 Music—History and criticism 30-12869

A survey of music and musicians from ancient to modern times. Designed as a text for courses in the history of music or the appreciation of music.

Booklist 27:57 O '30

Reviewed by Peter Bowdoin
Books p9 Jl 13 '30 750w

N Y Times p9 Ag 3 '30 300w

"It is a truly valuable book of its kind, a book that is solid yet readable, fresh and animated." Grace Overmyer
+ N Y World p5m Ag 17 '30 520w

St Louis 28:214 S '30

"In certain definite ways Mrs. Wilm succeeds admirably, especially in the condensation of her material and in the biographical portions of her book. In her sympathetic treatment of individual composers, and in her inclusion of essentials, she renders in the main a distinct service to the musically unlettered. In matters of emphasis and balance, however, some issue might be taken. . . Too frequently throughout the book estimates of composers of unquestioned importance are vitiated by a qualifying 'perhaps' or 'is said to be.' The beginner needs more decisive judgments to guide him in his first conceptions."
+ — Sat R of Lit 6:1132 Je 14 '30 580w

WILSON, CHARLES MORROW. Acres of sky. 340p $2 Putnam
30-25742

The Ozark hill country of Arkansas is the setting; the story concerns the efforts of an idealistic young man to become educated, to be somebody. But his love for the land—for its acres of sky—is fundamentally stronger than his ambitions.

Reviewed by Guy Holt
Bookm 72:451 D '30 30w

N Y Evening Post p4d D 20 '30 150w

"It is in the hills that the main interest lies, and they tend to overshadow the characters. . . Mr. Wilson understands his mountains and the people who have been rooted in them for generations, and he has perfected a style which is a finished and flexible medium for his purpose. In time he may develop the power necessary to create characters vital enough to dominate rather than merge with the surroundings in which they live."
+ — N Y Times p7 O 19 '30 500w

"The strength of the book rests on its breadth and truthfulness as a picture of a countryside and its people. Its weakness is a matter of some over-studied descriptive writing and of the love story. This episode is like an incident in a fairy-tale gone Hollywood and strikes a false note in an idyll of earth and sky."
+ — Outlook 156:468 N 19 '30 150w

"The qualities which distinguish this melancholy tale of Ozark mountaineers from the bulk of hillbilly novels are the profound lyricism of its nature descriptions and the facility with which the author has reproduced backwoods dialect without exasperating the reader with atrocious spelling. Considered solely as a novel, the book is not imposing, since it is but another drab variation on the theme of the primitive young idealist who strives to educate himself for the task of ameliorating the lot of his poverty-stricken, benighted people."
+ — Sat R of Lit 7:313 N 8 '30 250w

WILSON, MRS DESEMEA (NEWMAN). See Patrick, D., pseud.

WILSON, ERNEST HENRY. Aristocrats of the trees. ltd ed 279p il $15 Stratford
582 Trees 30-9101

Chapters on many kinds of trees and their uses, written by the keeper of the Arnold Arboretum of Harvard University. Much of the material has appeared in the author's previous books, some of which are now out of print. There are sixty-six full page plates.

Booklist 26:386 Jl '30

"The literature of trees is so numerous and varied that one might be pardoned for thinking that even so great a subject had been approached in most of its phases by poet and press writer alike. Dr. Wilson, however, has come forward with so masterly a volume, so broad and sympathetic an interpretation of this most human form of plant life, that our whole outlook upon it is transformed."
+ Books p19 S 14 '30 420w

"Never before has there been a book just like this. Mr. Wilson himself has never written such a book before, although he has many volumes to his credit. In 'Aristocrats of the Trees' he reveals himself as a man of sentiment, imagination and delicate feeling as well as a practical working botanist. For example, his imagination is seen in his chapter headings: 'Trees and the Heart of Man,' 'The March of the Ages,' or 'The Patriarchal Ginkgo.' One might suspect these to be the titles of essays, but this is far from being the fact. Each chapter is replete with information, although interspersed with passages manifesting the author's depth of feeling." E. I. Farrington
+ Christian Science Monitor p7 Ap 26 '30 950w

"A reading of these pages is certain to furnish much information even to those whose knowledge of trees is more than casual. But little emphasis is placed on the purely botanical aspects except where these are of special significance. But there is much about the habits of growth, the method of their introduction from one country to another and, particularly, how they thrive in various places." Nicholas Roosevelt
+ N Y Times p14 Je 8 '30 800w

St Louis 28:210 S '30

"The book, though its interest is primarily for Transatlantic planters, is of the greatest value for all in a time when afforestation, and the preservation of what fine wood we have, have become pressing needs."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p459 My 29 '30 310w

WILSON, PHILIP WHITWELL. William Pitt, the younger. 347p $3 Doubleday, Doran
B or 92 Pitt, William, 1759-1806 30-8115

A political biography of England's great Whig statesman, who became prime minister at twenty-four and so remained, with one brief intermission, to the end of his life.

Booklist 27:102 N '30

"As the first modern biography of Pitt, this book had tremendous possibilities. Its author fully recognizes his opportunities and emphasizes his purpose to enable the reader of the twentieth century to see William Pitt as he was. But Mr. Wilson has not entirely succeeded. The great fault of his book is oversimplification. . . The trouble is that Pitt does not lend himself to such elementary treatment. . . Yet his book is not without value. A former member of the House of Commons himself, the author presents an engrossing picture of England's parliamentary life at the close of the eighteenth century. He has made the story of Pitt's life dramatic and absorbing, writing consistently in a clear and engaging style. What he has done he has done well; we only wish he had done a little more." F. R. Dulles
+ — Bookm 71:221 Ap '30 550w

"A clear and succinct life of the younger Pitt has been needed for a long time. Mr. Wilson, a former member of Parliament now living in this country, has given us a first-rate one. In the present study we have for the first time a straightforward unpadded account, lucidly simplified, of Pitt's political life, with decent views from time to time of his private and personal character." F. K. Brown
+ Books p7 My 18 '30 1030w

"Mr. Wilson is as sober in his biography as Pitt was in his statesmanship, but he is never dull. Many a time a striking and mordant phrase catches eye and intellect, but it comes out of the author's mind naturally and without the sense that he is working on his narrative as if it was a piece of embroidery which must be strikingly embellished. . . In sympathy with Pitt, in understanding of his ability to differentiate between statecraft and partisanship, in the facility for putting a realism which pulsates into the political battles of a dead and gone time, which had the same sincerity and the same chicanery that distinguishes the present, Mr. Wilson proves himself to have not only expertness but depth." S. L. Cook

WILSON, P. W.—Continued

+ Boston Transcript p3 Mr 22 '30 1900w

"He has not hesitated to pause from time to time to draw attention to history's apparent repetitions. He has even found parallels in recent American politics and in Anglo-American relations. In a book as serious as this one the device is rather a novelty. Its virtue is that it gives contemporary vividness to the picture. It is curious to reflect that we have had to wait until now for an adequate, scholarly, witty biography of William Pitt." C. A. C.

+ New Repub 64:134 S 17 '30 400w

"Mr. Wilson has made up a very bright and readable book."

+ New Statesman 35:683 S 6 '30 1000w

"Seldom has the life of a man preeminently one of words, an orator and statesman, been told in a more brilliant, compellingly interesting fashion. Pitt is not unduly eulogized, his limitations are clearly revealed; but the portrait we get is unforgettable in its vivid clarity of outline, its keenly analytical distinction." F. H. Martens

+ N Y Evening Post p11m Mr 8 '30 500w

"The book is well written, lively, and full of interest throughout." C. W. Thompson

+ N Y Times p7 Mr 30 '30 1650w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:47 Je '30

"The hand of the journalist is apparent on every page of the book. Its merits are those of clear, straightforward narrative, written with a gratifying economy of epigram and psychological probing. Furthermore, Mr. Wilson has been at commendable pains to acquaint his American readers with the English political system and with the social atmosphere of the eighteenth century." David Owen

+ Sat R of Lit 7:20 Ag 2 '30 1000w

WILSON, ROBERT MCNAIR (ANTHONY WYNNE, pseud.). Josephine: the portrait of a woman. 342p il $5 Scribner [15s Eyre]

B or 92 Josephine, empress consort of Napoleon I [30-18950]

"The present volume is an attempt to trace [Empress] Josephine's motives through a life of steadfast opportunism. She is presented from childhood onward as the prey of circumstances in which she finds no permanent victory or defeat. Her courage is that of a woman with strong appetites demanding satisfaction. Her resourcefulness is that of the adventuress who sees all things in flux and whose expectations are the measure of each succeeding situation. She is depicted as the rebellious daughter of plantation owners in Martinique, later the philandering wife of Alexandre de Beauharnais, later still the tearful Empress whom Napoleon mentally distrusts and sentimentally cherishes."—Bookm

---

"Mr. Wilson's interpretation of Josephine is a worthy monument to the Strachey school of biographical technique."

+ Bookm 72:183 O '30 500w

"Able and readable book." Albert Guerard

+ Books p14 D 7 '30 700w

"A new personality comes into view on almost every page of his book, with its outlines too well documented to suggest any resort to fiction in the interest of effect, and with the details worked out in the form of the narrative proper, of striking episodes, anecdotes, correspondence and conversations." E. N.

+ Boston Transcript p2 N 1 '30 800w

"Dr. Wilson's study is interesting and well-documented though the habit which biographers have now borrowed from historical novelists of allowing themselves knowledge of thoughts and actions of which no record remains detracts at times from the convincingness of the story. In spite of this the book carries the reader along, and it contains many letters that the Napoleonic student will be glad to read, though intrinsically they cannot be said to possess much merit."

+ — Christian Science Monitor p5 S 6 '30 280w

New Statesman 35:24 Ap 12 '30 180w

St Louis 28:245 O '30

"Mr. McNair Wilson has written a hard, energetic, and effective book. The sub-title, 'The Portrait of a Woman,' is misleading, for he dislikes her so steadily that he allows us the rarest glimpses of the 'speaking grace' which was her chief virtue, so that we never see more than a dim outline. . . This author creates an impossible Josephine. Like a strong wind he blows all her graces and kindnesses away, and all that sweetness of regality she wore when it was necessary, and which was so useful to Napoleon."

— + Sat R 149:296 Mr 8 '30 1250w

Spec 144:498 Mr 22 '30 1050w

"In general, it may be said that his portrait is a satisfactory one, if not particularly distinguished or novel. It suffers from the fact that he has attempted to do too much, for the historical background is uneven and the attempt to define the causes of the Revolution might have been shortened—or greatly expanded. At all events he has written a spirited book, with ample quotations from Napoleon's letters."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p232 Mr 20 '30 550w

WILSON, ROBERT MCNAIR (ANTHONY WYNNE, pseud.). Room with the iron shutters. 315p $2 Lippincott [7s 6d Hutchinson]

30-8779

Lord Gerald Glen was found dead in his iron-shuttered study. The shutters were closed and the door locked on the inside, but Lord Gerald was murdered and the incriminating statement he left "I have been murdered by P——" trailed off before the name could be written. The butler and Lord Gerald's nephew both had a motive for murder, but Dr Hailey was not convinced that either had done it. It took some time and nearly his own life to prove who was guilty.

Bookm 71:xxix Mr '30 50w

Boston Transcript p1 F 21 '30 450w

N Y Times p28 F 23 '30 150w

"The familiar, astute, thorough-going Dr. Hailey here masters a murder mystery which is, by long odds, the most artfully constructed we have, of late, encountered in the field of detective fiction."

+ N Y World p11m F 2 '30 180w

Reviewed by W. R. Brooks

Outlook 154:189 Ja 29 '30 20w

Springf'd Republican p7e Je 15 '30 150w

"Dr. Hailey uses his great powers of observation, his medical knowledge, but, above all, his reading of character, to arrive in the end at a most unexpected solution."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p877 O 31 '29 180w

WILSON, ROBERT MCNAIR (ANTHONY WYNNE, pseud.). Yellow crystal. 303p $2 Lippincott [7s 6d Hutchison]

30-23186

John Oldmay had a presentiment that some immediate danger threatened his life. A quarrel with his son, followed by his usual morning swim—and the dour Scotsman's body is found. A yellow crystal paperweight aids Dr Hailey in his solution of the mystery.

"Conventional plot, but good deductive work."

Bookm 71:xviii Ag '30 120w

"The net result is a lively if rather conventional riddle." Will Cuppy
Books p10 Jl 18 '30 100w

Boston Transcript p2 Jl 30 '30 330w

Reviewed by Dashiell Hammett
N Y Evening Post p5s Jl 5 '30 400w

"It is all rather boring. In the end the average reader will awaken with a start to discover that it was the Yellow Crystal after all, and no doubt will hope that Dr. Hailey, usually so diverting, will stay away from crystals in the future, no matter what their color."
— N Y Times p12 Jl 27 '30 150w

Reviewed by W. R. Brooks
Outlook 155:508 Jl 30 '30 100w

Reviewed by W. C. Weber
Sat R of Lit 7:94 Ag 30 '30 170w

Times [London] Lit Sup p373 My 1 '30 200w

WILSON, ROMER (MRS E. J. H. O'BRIEN). Silver magic. (Magic ser.) 436p il $2.50 Harcourt [7s 6d Cape, J.]

398 Fairy tales 29-18882

A collection of twenty-two fairy tales from all countries. The book includes retellings of Beauty and the beast and Cinderella, as well as several stories from Irish and Norwegian sources that will be less familiar, but probably no less interesting to the average child. With line drawings and colored illustrations by Violet Brunton.

Sat R 148:692 D 7 '29 100w

"By right of genuine mysteriousness and their vigor as narrative these stories are actually much closer to a child's mental experience than the output of the Crime Club, for instance, which is now proclaimed by the ten-year-old group as its favorite literature. Violet Brunton's colored illustrations have charm, but nothing like the vitality of the stories themselves; her line drawings achieve a more satisfactory unreality."'
Sat R of Lit 6:608 D 28 '29 280w

Reviewed by B. E. Todd
Spec 143:869 D 7 '29 80w

Springf'd Republican p7e D 22 '29 30w

WILSON-HAFFENDEN, J. R. Red men of Nigeria; an account of a lengthy residence among the Fulani, or "red men," & other pagan tribes of central Nigeria, with a description of their headhunting, pastoral & other customs, habits & religion; with a foreword by Bronislaw Malinowski. 318p il $5 Lippincott [21s Seeley]

916.69 Fulani. Nigeria

An account of the life and customs of the Fulani, or red men of Nigeria. The book represents the results of Captain Wilson-Haffenden's researches on behalf of the Nigerian anthropological department.

Reviewed by F. A. Clement
Nation and Ath 48:sup344 D 6 '30 150w

"The book is a mine of information."
+ New Statesman 36:sup xviii O 11 '30 170w

Spec 145:848 N 29 '30 180w

"Captain Wilson-Haffenden is a trained anthropologist, and those interested in the subject will find much material here; while his sketch of the history of this interesting region of Africa, and the life of an administrator in Central Nigeria, will also interest a wider public."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p867 O 23 '30 200w

WILSTACH, PAUL. Tidewater Virginia. 326p il $5 Bobbs

917.55 Virginia—Description and travel. Virginia—Historic houses, etc. 29-22645

For descriptive note see Annual for 1929.

Booklist 26:198 F '30

Reviewed by A. B. Maurice
Bookm 70:xviii F '30 450w

"Mr. Wilstach's book will grow in value and importance with the growing interest in the romantic region of which he writes. So many American family trees have their roots in the soil of Tidewater Virginia that Mr. Wilstach's intimate account of the history of its great families will assure it a wide interest." T. L. Hunter
+ Books p19 F 16 '30 250w

Cleveland Open Shelf p74 My '30

"Richmond, Williamsburg, Yorktown, and Fredericksburg are treated in charming style. The volume is not overburdened with petty details, and it is, therefore, thoroughly readable." N. G. G.
+ Hist Outlook 21:188 Ap '30 500w

N Y Times p18 Ja 26 '30 500w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:27 Mr '30

St Louis 28:54 F '30

Wis Lib Bul 26:104 Mr '30

WINCHESTER, BENJAMIN SEVERANCE. Church and adult education. 181p $1.50 Smith, R.R.

374 Education of adults. Religious education. Church and education 30-19151

Dr Winchester, in answer to the question, "why educate adults?" takes up the possibility of educating adults for world citizenship, and the methods whereby the church may be mobilized for such adult education.

"It is not an academic and abstract treatment but replete with illustrations of what has been accomplished and is fertile in projects, objects and methods. It certainly has something worthwhile to say on 'Education for a changing world.' In itself it would be a good text-book for a class in adult education."
+ Boston Transcript p2 Jl 16 '30 300w

"Evaluating this book from the viewpoint of its practical worth, it is to be highly commended. It is not a contribution to the general literature on adult education but an excellent interpretative project. From this viewpoint it is, in the reviewer's judgment, the best book that has been published this year in the general field of religious education." J. A. Jacobs
+ Christian Century 47:1091 S 10 '30 850w

"For those unacquainted with new methods in this field there is much to be dug out of Dr. Winchester's proposals for fresh advances in work with adults as part of a general program of religious education." R. P. K.
+ Churchman p5 Ag 30 '30 100w

"A very fine study for the minister who is really desirous of enlarging and vitalizing the educative work of his church." W. R. McNutt
+ Crozer Q 7:534 O '30 220w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:83 N '30

St Louis 28:258 N '30

"Dr. Winchester makes a careful appraisal of the means available in the rural church for carrying on the education which he proposes, and finally lays down some definite plans for existing conditions. His book is suggestive, constructive, and displays keen and accurate conceptions of the needs that must be met if the church is to function efficiently in the building of a Christian civilization." G. O. Mudge
+ Survey 65:171 N 1 '30 220w

WINGFIELD-STRATFORD, ESME CECIL. Those earnest Victorians. 340p $3.50 Morrow

914.2 England—Social life and customs. Great Britain—History—Victoria, 1837-1901 30-25260

An urbane and impartial appraisal of Victorian values—the virtues and shortcomings of the age—that is partly criticism, but in a larger sense a vindication of the era. The author, from this point of view, comments on prevailing notions of Victorian women, morals, snobbishness, character and customs.

WINGFIELD-STRATFORD, E. C.—Continued

Booklist 27:154 D '30

"The distinction of Mr. Wingfield-Stratford's book lies in the degree of its critical detachment. It is free from the illusions of adulation and rancor. . . No one has said sharper or wittier things about Victorian stupidities while preserving a high respect for Victorian achievement. He has written a searching and well informed history of British civilization between Waterloo and the Great War, with the emphasis falling on the four decisive decades between 1830 and 1870 when the tendencies of the new age were mainly formed. It is a book that the heirs of the Victorians, when they have done hating and enjoying their ancestors, will do well to ponder." G. F. Whicher

+ Books p5 O 5 '30 1050w

Cleveland Open Shelf p155 D '30

"A successful attempt to read the mind and face of the Victorian through his pamphlets, his Punch, his interior decoration, his architecture, his painting, his lack of music, his novels—both good and bad—his religious expression and his social customs. Many of the chapters are invitations to laughter. But many more carry the implication that the Victorian, for all his defects, had something on his grandson." John Chamberlain

+ N Y Times p1 O 5 '30 2050w

"The book is almost constantly entertaining; and if its conclusions are nebulous, the discussion is a splendid starting point of debate." R. D. T.

+ Outlook 156:310 O 22 '30 350w

"His book is less brilliant than Strachey's—and fairer. . . Mr. Wingfield-Stratford believes that the Victorian must first be recognized as one of the great ages of human culture. Only then can one ask intelligently, the question, why did it fail? The author is tireless, but never tiresome, in pursuit of the answer, and, better than in any recent book, the age lives again in his pages. They are crammed with anecdote and yet never unrelated to the social and economic currents underlying. Romance, snobbishness, religion, the decline of the aristocracy into the sporting pages, the cult of the double bed, interior decorations mental and physical, are characteristic topics, discussed with a depth of analysis that the clever titles do not suggest." H. S. Canby

+ Sat R of Lit 7:173 O 4 '30 2800w

WINKLER, JOHN KENNEDY. Morgan the magnificent; the life of J. Pierpont Morgan (1837-1913). 313p $3.50 Vanguard press

B or 92 Morgan, John Pierpont 30-22945

This popular biography of the great financier and foremost collector of his time in many fields of art opens with a summing up of the man followed by chapters dealing with the salient episodes in his public career—his work in railway reorganization, his assistance to President Cleveland in the panic of 1895, his share in the Hill-Harriman battle and the Northern securities merger, and his second "saving the country" in the panic of 1907.

Booklist 27:102 N '30

Bookm 72:vi S '30 200w

"Mr. Winkler is no Strachey and sometimes his style betrays considerable looseness, but he has told a clear and moving story of Morgan and his times." Stanley Walker

+ — Books p1 Ag 31 '30 1250w

"This is a profoundly interesting book. It probes deep. It reveals much. Few biographies of late have had so much historical significance." S. L. Cook

+ Boston Transcript p3 Ag 23 '30 1500w

"Mr. Winkler, it seems to his present reader, has done well with a remarkable figure, presenting rather than attempting to interpret, and leaving with his reader a vivid impression of the living man."

+ Christian Science Monitor p6 O 14 '30 500w

"In 'Morgan the Magnificent' Mr. Winkler has undoubtedly risen from Smart Aleck 'debunking' to authentic biography. Not that 'Pierpontifex Maximus' does not deserve greater analysis. But at least it is a good likeness of the sitter and not an unconscious cartoon of the artist. And were it not for the fact that Morgan was big enough to be a whole epoch, it would be an exceedingly good job. Mr. Winkler lacks the disciplined comprehensiveness of the social historian to place his man in his period. But though he really misses Morgan's total significance, he docs convey his sense of power. The man lives, though with less fulness than he actually did live. But he lives with sufficient pace and audacity for you to regret that you never met him." Benjamin Stolberg

+ Nation 131:327 S 24 '30 1050w

Reviewed by R. M. Lovett

New Repub 64:236 O 15 '30 1350w

Reviewed by C. H. Grattan

N Y Evening Post p5s Ag 30 '30 650w

"Mr. Winkler's treatment of Morgan arouses interest and commands respect. There is much less innuendo than the same author employed in his volume on Mr. Rockefeller, published last year. Perhaps, for that reason, the book will appeal less to those who enjoy seeing rich men toasted on a spit. It is, nevertheless, a more solid piece of work than its predecessor." R. L. Duffus

+ N Y Times p1 Ag 31 '30 1000w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:77 N '30

Reviewed by W. B. Shaw

R of Rs 82:16 O '30 320w

St Louis 28:245 O '30

"The outstanding merit of this volume—which is a decided improvement upon Mr. Winkler's popular and caustic life of Rockefeller—is its readability; its outstanding defect is its lack of expertness. If a masterly life of Morgan is ever written, it will be by a man who combines the role of economist and historian, and Mr. Winkler understands neither too well. But he does understand how to give a quick, vivid impression of a social scene, how to tell a story with vigor and interest, and how to render a portrait of his hero. In this book he had a fascinating tale, and there is not a dull page in its narration." Allen Nevins

+ — Sat R of Lit 7:122 S 13 '30 950w

"Even in these days of slapdash and attenuated biography it is surprising to come upon so trifling an account of an important career as John K. Winkler's 'Morgan the Magnificent.' Anecdote, gossip and a haphazard miscellany of data from various published sources are presented by Mr Winkler as a portrayal of the greatest financier of his times. But even with this slender array of material, it is Mr Winkler's style that condemns the book to utter futility. The chief defect is that as much of the material as possible is reproduced in the form of drama and conversation."

— Springf'd Republican p14 Ag 22 '30 400w

Reviewed by M. S. Rukeyser

Survey 65:166 N 1 '30 600w

WINKLER, MAX. Investments of United States capital in Latin America. 297p $2 World peace foundation

332.6 Investments, Foreign. Spanish America—Economic conditions 30-821

An encyclopaedic treatment of economic and financial relationships between the United States and Latin America. The author surveys such investments historically and in their present status. In the latter part of the volume the various countries of South America and the Caribbean area are tabulated in order, with facts concerning their specific resources and economic development.

Reviewed by C. W. Hackett
Ann Am Acad 149:206 My '30 150w

Booklist 26:265 Ap '30

Books p10 Ap 27 '30 100w

"Dr. Winkler makes here the first complete presentation, comprehensive and detailed, that his very important subject has had. His treatment is thorough, and his statistics, both in the text and in tabulated form, appear to be authoritative."
+ N Y Times p10 Ja 5 '30 350w

Reviewed by E. M. Patterson
Pol Sci Q 45:614 D '30 850w

WINSLOW, CHARLES EDWARD AMORY. Road to health; the Jayne foundation lectures for 1929. 151p $2 Macmillan

610.4 Medicine—Addresses, essays, lectures. Hygiene—Addresses, essays, lectures
29-16458

The author is professor of public health in the Yale medical school. Contents: Man and his environment; Learning the game of life; The physician in the modern state.

"The presentation is convincing, the style pleasing, and it cannot fail to interest and delight readers of the same type as the audience to whom the lectures were addressed." R. S. Patterson
+ Am J Pub Health 20:99 Ja '30 280w

J Home Econ 22:131 F '30 50w

St Louis 27:334 D '29

WINSTON, ROBERT WATSON. High stakes and hair trigger; the life of Jefferson Davis. 306p il $3.50 Holt

B or 92 Davis, Jefferson. United States—History—Civil war
30-32924

Judge Winston pictures Jefferson Davis as a militant, proud egoist who was predestined to failure, a man destroyed by his own self-will. Judge Winston, tho a Southerner born and bred, is a Federalist in political sympathies.

"The career of Davis is faithfully traced, with special clearness as regards his youth and old age. . . From the time of his entrance into politics the scope is broadened to comprise a running account of American political and military history. This is in a measure inescapable, but it is done in such degree that the personal theme is occasionally lost; and it is not well done. . . Winston's characterization of Davis, if not intimate or novel, is carefully just." U. B. Phillips
+ — Books p4 O 19 '30 750w

"It is a notable book, and though relating to a subject and time that is pretty well known, not only to scholars and students of history but to the great majority of educated American citizens, still it has much to commend it to readers anywhere in the country who may wish to inform themselves on a peculiarly critical period in our country's history, and especially as to the role played by one of the chief figures of the time." F. G. M.
Boston Transcript p1 N 26 '30 1750w

Christian Century 48:28 Ja 7 '31 280w

Reviewed by E. F. Brown
Current Hist 33:vi D '30 150w

"He is sometimes careless about his facts. His fatal talent for spelling proper names wrong, shown in his life of Andrew Johnson, is accentuated in his life of Davis. In spite of these failings, Judge Winston is a fine biographer; only he should be more careful. And he should cut the acquaintance of the bad adviser who persuaded him to give this book its street-arab title and to put slam-whanging headings over his chapters. He is a writer of worth and dignity, and should not let ill-counsel put him in a false position." C. W. Thompson
+ — N Y Times p8 N 9 '30 850w

Reviewed by E. C. Beckwith
N Y World p3e D 28 '30 240w

"Judge Winston's narrative and his analysis of the whole pre-war period is masterly. . . The story of his activities during the war and after has been told many times, and that part of Judge Winston's book, although well and carefully done, adds little. Why the publisher should have hit upon High Stakes and Hair-trigger for the title of this book is a puzzle. It is inept and sensational." R. D. T.
+ — Outlook 156:347 O 29 '30 380w

Reviewed by W. B. Shaw
R of Rs 82:6 D '30 100w

Reviewed by Dumas Malone
Sat R of Lit 7:413 D 6 '30 650w

WINTER, JOHN KEITH. Other man's saucer. 308p $2 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Heinemann]
30-32842

Shaw Latimer's precocious adolescence, his position as the eldest and cleverest of the Latimers, the shocks he suffers because of his sister's moral misstep, an ugly sexual experience of his own at school, the death of his beloved brother Mac, and his determination at college to accept, but never give friendship—an obsession that serves him well until he meets Orm Lind: these are the causes motivating the conduct of the hero in this first novel by an Oxford undergraduate.

"Mr. Winter has a decided talent for dialogue and he manages his narrative well. He has, as Miss Kaye-Smith points out, sincerity—that dreadful green sincerity of extreme youth, which postures and attitudinizes and blurts out half-truths and never by any chance is capable of faithful reporting or accurate observation: that sincerity which in this grotesque and extravagant form is the greatest single handicap an artist can possess. But instead of the power of which his admirers speak, I see only crude violence, instead of a love of beauty I detect only the yearnings of the immature esthete." Guy Holt
— + Bookm 72:450 D '30 380w

"Mr. Keith Winter's novel is as young a book as any one is ever likely to publish. It has all the very young determination to tell the whole truth, it has young poetry and young style and young characters. The fable, such as there is of it, is unconvincing and the hero most unsatisfactory. Nevertheless, in spite of these things, it is a most encouraging work, encouraging because it shows the real gifts of the novelist, the power to create character, to be dramatic, to make the reader want to turn the page, to call up atmosphere out of the vasty deep." Hugh Walpole
+ — Books p9 Ag 17 '30 200w

Reviewed by Gerald Sykes
Books p10 N 23 '30 750w

"The book suffers sadly from want of selectiveness, the incidents related more often retard than advance the development of the characters and the action of the story. The book deals with a boy's adolescence at school and college, and, in the present fashion, it is the uglier moments that endure." K. C. Tomlinson
— Nation and Ath 47:540 Jl 26 '30 120w

"Mr. Winter possesses fluency—a great deal of it—and some sense of character; but this novel of a very unattractive young man's soul-adventures at school and at college was hardly worth writing."
— New Statesman 35:309 Je 14 '30 50w

"A fairly routine piece of youthful highjinks and sophomoric audacity, always exciting and sometimes even brilliant, but hardly ever shocking. . . I find it hard to believe either in Shaw Latimer's disillusions or in his ruthlessness—and Mr. Winter's novel is concerned primarily with youthful disillusion and youthful ruthlessness. To me, it seems that Shaw's disillusion is merely an attitude, since it is not earned at the price of real experience, and his ruthlessness sentimental, a sort of schoolboy version of Nietzsche's superman in a sweater and plus fours." Edwin Seaver
— N Y Evening Post p4d N 22 '30 300w

WINTER, J. K.—Continued

"'Other Man's Saucer' is a most vulnerable novel. It would be possible for the unscrupulous to quote passages from it that would, in isolation, give an impression of novelistic 'grand writing,' at times even of mawkish sentiment, certainly of the trite apeing of sophistication. But, on the other hand, there are indications of a growing power and sureness of characterization which this novelist can hardly have intended."

— + Sat R 150:20 Jl 5 '30 350w

"Perhaps it is unkind to call Mr. Keith Winter's work light reading. He did not mean it to be funny, yet funny it is. The title is shown by a little design on the cover to mean a cigarette smoker at tea-time who deposits his ashes in an Other Man's Saucer. That is a sample of the desperate originality to be found in this collection of odds and ends from other books as crazy as itself. A lot of fun can be got out of it."

— Spec 145:24 Jl 5 '30 180w

"There is a restless brilliance and an ease of dialogue in this first novel of Oxford life, but they have been expended upon a theme of very doubtful interest. Moreover, Mr. Winter handicaps himself by the uncertainty of his intentions."

— Times [London] Lit Sup p717 S 11 '30 280w

WINTERS, YVOR. Proof. (Songs of today ser.) 64p $1 Coward-McCann

811 30-22725

The poems in the first section of the volume are radical in form and impressionistic in substance; the second part consists of a series of conventionally rhymed sonnets; part three contains lyrics in regular verse forms.

"He is still content to render sense-impressions with a hardness, economy and certitude which give to their expression a value almost absolute in itself. So triumphant, in fact, is his achievement within the purely literary discipline that it would be impossible for him to develop further if he did not happen to be an extremely ambitious poet. But both by temperament and by the pressure of his time Mr. Winters is compelled to go out in search of much bigger game than the single circumscribed image that occupied his immediate predecessors. . . For a poet as acutely sensitized as Mr. Winters the task is more than ordinarily difficult." William Troy

+ — Bookm 72:190 O '30 450w

"Insofar as it is possible to classify Mr. Winters at all, he belongs to a division of contemporary American poetry that has already produced Leonie Adams, Allen Tate and Stanley Kunitz. . . Yvor Winters's originality consists of an ability to convert the experiences of an introverted mind into terms of muscular reflex and recreation." Horace Gregory

Books p14 S 7 '30 320w

"Mr. Winters remains one of the best of the imagist school, but limited by that school. He is afraid to trust himself in any extension of language beyond absolute clarity and precision, and he therefore loses much in power. He remains one of the more interesting and contemporary of our poets, despite the fact that his critical mind does his poetic mind some injury. He states more clearly than any other poet the modern dilemma: the gradual loss of feeling through too much of 'print.'" E. L. Walton

+ — Nation 131:679 D 17 '30 500w

"Although this is his fourth collection, much of his work is still rude, lacking in finality of expression. Occasionally we strike an image that startles the mind. But this does not happen often enough. The most successful of the poems do reveal, however, an imagination and a technique that may still produce a body of poetry of more than experimental importance." M. U. Schappes

— + N Y Evening Post p4d D 20 '30 320w

Reviewed by Percy Hutchison

N Y Times p22 D 14 '30 220w

"Mr. Winters belongs to the younger experimentalists, among whom Hart Crane is the most eminent. . . In Mr. Winters's verse it is not, for the most part, that the thing he is saying is difficult to follow so much as that his manner of presenting it typographically constantly curbs its natural rhythms. His phrasing is often arresting, his impressions of natural things are sensitive, his metaphysic is interesting, but he often thwarts its effectiveness through mere singularity of presentation." W. R. Benét

Sat R of Lit 7:104 S 6 '30 1000w

WISE, JENNINGS CROPPER. Great crusade; a chronicle of the late war. 319p $2 Dial press 30-8777

One man's account of the World war, as he saw it, has been made into a novel. Smith, an intelligent member of a fine Virginian family, and an officer in the war, is the hero.

Books p13 Ag 31 '30 180w

"Colonel Wise's book is exceptionally honorable war journalism; because it is finely honest, candid, opinionated, in myriads of ways simply unreviewable in an extensive group review; variously informative and enthralling and inspiriting enough to call itself a sizable source-chapter in American history." L. C. Woodman

+ N Y Times p9 Je 15 '30 350w

"The only American war book which bears comparison with All Quiet on the Western Front and Journey's End, though quite different in treatment and temper. The fair, judicious, first-hand recital of events it conveys will win a hearing elsewhere. The book will give a shock to national complacency." John Carter

+ Outlook 154:669 Ap 23 '30 200w

Reviewed by W. B. Shaw

R of Rs 82:8 S '30 120w

"It contains some strange misinterpretations . . . but it is, in the main, accurate and always honest and straightforward." Vernon Bartlett

Spec 145:196 Ag 9 '30 180w

Springf'd Republican p12 Jl 10 '30 400w

WISE, STEPHEN SAMUEL, and DE HAAS, ² JACOB. Great betrayal. 315p $2 Brentano's

296 Zionism. Great Britain—Foreign relations—Palestine 31-279

"The authors have rehearsed the steps by which a Jewish national home was established in Palestine and supported through ten years of difficult administration by the promises of the British Government to see it through. The White Paper of Lord Passfield and the attempt of the Labor Government so to construe British obligations to the Jews as to nullify the intent of Lord Balfour's declaration meets with the most severe criticism from the authors. With the attack goes a rehearsal of the relations between the Zionists and the British Empire." —N Y World

"Dr. Wise and Mr. DeHaas, I think, make out their case that England meant to give the Jews a real home land in Palestine, something more than protection within an Arab state, toward which their status seems to be dwindling. . . 'The Great Betrayal' makes no mention of the statesmanlike and pacific vision of men like Dr. Judah Magnes, rector of the Hebrew University of Jerusalem, who understands that a Jewish state based on British bayonets would be a denial of the Jewish ideal, and that Jews and Arabs must discover common ground. If the book refers to him at all it is only as one of 'a handful of innate compromisers.' Such words do not help the avowed aim of this book to serve as an appeal to 'the conscience of mankind.'" Lewis Gannett

— + Books p1 D 28 '30 1350w

"A timely and effective statement of the Zionist case against the present Labor Government in England." Harry Hansen

+ N Y World p11 D 17 '30 280w

WISSLER, CLARK. Introduction to social anthropology. (Am. soc. science ser.) 392p $3.50 Holt

572 Anthropology 30-838

The author of this textbook is professor of anthropology, Institute of human relations, Yale university, and curator of anthropology, American museum of natural history. His book is a review of achievement in anthropological research. It defines anthropology, in detail and from every angle, and gives guidance on how to acquire the anthropological viewpoint.

Bookm 71:vi Je '30 100w
Nation 131:656 D 10 '30 200w

"Perhaps Dr. Wissler omitted to mention indebtedness to Professor Franz Boas from embarrassment at the banality, as one writing on Judaism might omit the Bible from his bibliography; but . . . one who says anthropology must also say Boas, and one who says American anthropology must say Boas twice." Florence Becker
+ — New Repub 62:225 Ap 9 '30 550w

"Dr. Wissler has produced an excellent textbook. It makes good its 'promise of an orientation in human society as a whole.' It will help to make the embryonic anthropologist, who is already presumably socially minded, also geographically and historically minded." E. T. Devine
+ Outlook 154:150 Ja 22 '30 50w
Pratt p15 autumn '30
St Louis 28:98 Ap '30

"The author has given you an excellent survey of the social antecedents of the modern family and the modern community. Throwing light as it does on that borderline field, this book is a contribution." Nels Anderson
+ Survey 64:281 Je 15 '30 200w

WISTER, JOHN CASPAR. Bulbs for American gardens. 278p il $6.50 Stratford

635.944 Bulbs 30-14865

A complete guide, for the amateur, of all the better known and many of the rare bulbs suitable for culture in the United States, with careful directions for planting, dividing, resetting and culture of the bulbs. The book includes a detailed history of the daffodil and tulip, with lists of named varieties of each. Index.

Booklist 27:55 O '30

"The only complete and modern manual of the bulbs that we have seen. He has contrived to present a book which is as attractive in first appearance as it later proves to be in detail of contents. Decidedly a standard volume for permanent reference and enjoyment." R. S. Lemmon
+ Books p15 O 19 '30 550w

"This is a solid and informative work on bulbs, beautifully got up and profusely illustrated by both detailed line drawings and excellent photographs. The first chapter on the cultivation of bulbs and the various pests they are subject to will be of inestimable aid to amateurs at the garden problem and assist in stocking many estates for the Spring months."
+ N Y Times p20 Je 15 '30 200w
St Louis 28:264 N '30

WISTER, JOHN CASPAR. Lilac culture. (Farm and garden lib.) 123p il $1.25 Judd

715 Lilacs 30-8221

"The first brief, elementary guide to lilac culture to be published. Reviews the more important garden varieties, gives a short history of lilacs, and simple directions for culture and propagation. Appendices contain a color chart, and check lists of names including a list of Dunbar seedlings not yet in commerce. Mr. Wister is the president of the American Iris Society and the author of The iris."—Cleveland Open Shelf

Booklist 26:348 Je '30
Cleveland Open Shelf p58 Ap '30
Reviewed by W. B. Shaw
R of Rs 81:12 Ap '30 100w
St Louis 28:211 S '30

WISTER, MARINA. Night in the valley. 64p $1.25 Macmillan

811 30-24711

Poems reflecting a keen lyrical sense of rhythm and individuality of phrasing. Included are lyrics on music, nature and love, and a sonnet sequence.

"Miss Wister, who is, by the way, Owen Wister's daughter, has a poet's sensitiveness to experience and she is under a poetic compulsion to strive to be articulate through the medium of verse. There is a pleasing variety, both of substance and form. But Miss Wister seems beset with a desire for the bizarre which may, if too fully indulged, work her subsequent harm. Her sonnets, of which there are several, are firmly knit, penetrating, and suggest that Miss Wister may eventually reach no little perfection in this form."
+ — N Y Times p16 N 2 '30 200w
Reviewed by L. T. Nicholl
Outlook 156:590 D 10 '30 30w

"The sincerity of the author's lyricism sometimes makes one forget her defects as a craftsman. Despite certain ambitious attempts in the first fifty pages of the book, it is in the twelve sonnets at the end that we find true promise."
+ — Sat R of Lit 7:182 O 4 '30 280w

WISTER, OWEN. Roosevelt; the story of a friendship, 1880-1919. 372p il $4 Macmillan

B or 92 Roosevelt, Theodore 30-23743

From his lifelong friendship with Theodore Roosevelt and his personal correspondence with him, Owen Wister, the novelist, has constructed this intimate and revealing biography. The friendship between Wister and Roosevelt began at Harvard, continued thru the events that led Roosevelt from his governorship to the presidency, up to the last days at Sagamore Hill. With insight and charm, Wister has portrayed not only T. R., but the Familiars, or friends of his administration, as well: Henry Adams, Justice Holmes, Leonard Wood, Jusserand, Senator Lodge, Gifford Pinchot and others. The biography is for the most part a personal rather than a political record.

Booklist 27:63 O '30

"This story, and especially the conversations recorded with moving fidelity, cannot fail to be of interest even to those who never saw the author or his hero. To me, who knew them both and many others of those described, the book is keenly interesting. . . Of the controversial part of the book I do not feel called upon to write. The author is sure of his ground and sets forth his concepts with calm authority. Mainly his comments are agreeable to mine, although I might not have had the courage to set them down." Hamlin Garland
+ Bookm 71:560 Ag '30 650w

"Unfortunately Mr. Wister has not confined himself to a simple chronicle of his friendship with Roosevelt. In carrying the story down to its close, the author has felt compelled to enter the lists on behalf of his hero; and the latter half of the book is marred by wholly unnecessary obiter dicta on a variety of subjects, by a bitter and virulent attack upon President Wilson, an uncritical discussion of the war-guilt question, and gratuitous criticism of liberals and historians." H. S. Commager
+ — Books p1 Je 15 '30 1700w
Reviewed by Frances Bartlett
Boston Transcript p4 Je 14 '30 2450w
Cath World 132:497 Ja '31 550w

"It rarely happens that there comes to this reviewer so satisfying a book as Owen Wister's 'Roosevelt,' fittingly subtitled 'The Story of a Friendship.' There has been much written about Theodore Roosevelt, of which all that has come under this reviewer's notice contributes to upbuild admiration for his character. In this book the reader is made so much the better acquainted with Roosevelt rather than with his achievements; with what he was rather than what he did."

WISTER, OWEN—Continued

+ Christian Science Monitor p13 S 27 '30 400w

"The book is replete with all the Rooseveltian vices and virtues together with all the vices and virtues (the latter self-assigned) of the author of 'The Virginian' and other romances to the list of which this present book is a notable addition."

— Nation 131:303 S 17 '30 220w

Reviewed by R. M. Lovett
New Repub 63:321 Jl 30 '30 1670w

"One of the most sparkling sections of the volume is that in which Wister sketches, one after another, the outstanding members of what he terms the salon which existed when Roosevelt was in the White House: Justice Holmes, Taft, Henry Adams, Lodge, Root, Jusserand, Leonard Wood, Gifford Pinchot, Winthrop Chanler." R. J. Davis

+ N Y Evening Post p9m Je 14 '30 800w

"The charm with which Owen Wister writes sets this book apart from all other books ever written about Roosevelt. . . Some of the most charming parts of it are about other men. . . And, to the reader of this review, they may be more revelatory and alluring than even what the author says about Roosevelt, since what he contributes to the widespread knowledge of that President lies not in novelty but in the loveliness of his writing—and his quoting." C. W. Thompson

+ N Y Times p1 Je 15 '30 1550w

"Owen Wister's fine sense of proportion makes this a biographical record that reads like an adventure in personality. We have not a merely laudatory account of T. R. We have the story of a friendship, of the shifting influences that shaped the lives of two men, one an author, the other a political leader and President of the United States, both concerned with the fortunes of their country and the times of which they were a part." Harry Hansen

+ N Y World p7 Je 14 '30 1000w

"The portrait offered is intimate, detailed and far more impartial than would be possible to most men who enjoyed the friendship of this stimulating individual. Mr. Wister offers new material, not all of it accurate, regarding the historic split with the Republican Party in 1912. In dealing with the World War he suffers from a cancerous hatred of Woodrow Wilson." H. F. Pringle

+ — Outlook 155:306 Je 25 '30 600w

Reviewed by W. B. Shaw
R of Rs 82:8 Ag '30 280w

Reviewed by John Corbin
Sat R of Lit 6:1137 Je 21 '30 3350w

Spec 145:946 D 13 '30 380w

"On the whole, this is the most attractive and revealing of such books of reminiscences by Roosevelt's intimates that has yet appeared. Mr Wister writes with grace and charm, and while his pages are colored by his affection for Roosevelt, when he undertakes critical judgments and comparisons of Roosevelt with other men it is to be said that he conscientiously endeavors to be as judicial as he can and that he does not hesitate to indicate his regret over Roosevelt's treatment of Taft in 1912."

+ Springf'd Republican p5e Je 29 '30 1300w

"Such breathless hero worship makes impossible any clear picture at all. Roosevelt died in June 1919. Either Mr. Wister has read, heard, accepted nothing new since that time, or he has been amazingly successful in turning back the clock. For here, set down in swinging prose, are the hates and fears, the jealousies and fabrications with which we went to war. It is an appalling record—but it is not one we can afford to forget." Beulah Amidon

— Survey 64:45 O 1 '30 380w

Times [London] Lit Sup p907 N 6 '30 1350w

Reviewed by Richard Hooker
Yale R n s 20:388 winter '31 30w

WITHERS, HARTLEY. Meaning of money. 5th rev ed 305p $2.20 Dutton [6s Murray, J.]

332.4 Money. Banks and banking—Great Britain. Foreign exchange 30-20696

The last revised edition of a book which first appeared in 1908. The author includes the most recent happenings in the money market, presents the new theories and problems of money that have developed since the World war, together with an explanation of how America has risen to her position as financial center of the world.

Reviewed by F. A. Bradford
Am Econ R 20:770 D '30 280w

Booklist 26:410 Jl '30

"A really up-to-date edition of 'The Meaning of Money' was most necessary, and students and general readers must be grateful to Mr. Withers for providing it. Anyone who wishes to gain an insight into everyday finance cannot possibly do better than start with this revised version of a book which has enlightened and charmed many thousands of beginners."

+ Sat R 149:666 My 24 '30 100w

WITHERS, HARTLEY. Money. (New lib.) 127p 60c Cape

332.4 Money. Gold 30-26640

A discussion of the evolution, function, qualities and theory of money, with an explanation of bimetalism, the gold standard, and what happens to the country when prices rise and fall.

Books p23 Ap 6 '30 120w

"Its author is an English economist who has written a number of books on various financial themes. He shows in this tiny volume that complete mastery of his subject which enables him to write of it with such ease and clarity and simplicity as quite conceal its complex and thorny realities. In fact, he handles it with such skill as will make it even to the novice for whose reading it is particularly intended not only understandable but interesting."

+ N Y Times p19 Ag 31 '30 230w

WITTELS, FRITZ. Critique of love. 317p $3.50 Macaulay

176 Sex (psychology). Psychoanalysis. Love 30-7728

A book by a follower of Freud which discusses the influence of sex upon human behavior. It applies psychoanalysis to the subject of love. Among the subjects treated are sex deviations, sadism, bisexuality, narcissism, love and marriage, and the child-woman.

"The author is a member of the Vienna group of psychoanalysts and would have us accept his book as a psychoanalytic pronouncement. This seems hardly a fair estimate of his method of presentation. It is rather a work written by a psychoanalyst, familiar with psychoanalytic principles, but essentially descriptive in character. It is essentially light, literary and popular in character, interesting and bright, and capable of holding one's attention, but if one expects to find out very much about the principles of psychoanalysis as applied to this great problem of human life he will come away from its reading disappointed." W. A. White, M.D.

— + Books p16 Ja 12 '30 230w

Boston Transcript p5 D 28 '29 550w

Reviewed by John Piper
Nation and Ath 47:679 Ag 30 '30 150w

"Wittels is a faithful disciple of Freud, and his book is a serviceable primer of Freudian psychology." Malcolm Cowley

New Repub 61:227 Ja 15 '30 1500w

"That this speculative critique is not one of pure reason but of prejudiced imagination is not itself the only reason for its unfavorable impression upon the critical mind. The deepest distrust arises from the manner in which the thesis is maintained. . . To meet with glib judgments didactically pronounced on every page and on all varieties of matters—all this definitely discloses so imperfect a logical sense of evidence or pertinence as to create a conviction that the more constructive and integral part of the structure is equally uncertain in its foundations. . . The final impression of the volume is its complete futility as a critique of love." Joseph Jastrow

— N Y Evening Post p9m D 7 '29 1500w

Sat R 150:323 S 13 '30 200w

"It is written in a clear, convincing and easily readable style and as love is the most important of the kinetic and many-sided energies of man, such a volume must necessarily discuss all the varied aspects of the love motives of human beings. . . For the reader who wishes an accurate and clear account of the many flowing streams of this dynamic libido with its subtle interwoven manifestations, this volume can be highly recommended." Isador Coriat, M.D.

+ Survey 64:100 Ap 15 '30 380w

WODEHOUSE, PELHAM GRENVILLE. Mr Mulliner speaking. 334p $2 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Jenkins]

30-6539

Short stories of hilarious adventures indulged in by Mr Mulliner's various relatives and told by Mr Mulliner in the bar-parlor of the Anglers' Rest.

Booklist 26:314 My '30

Books p13 My 4 '30 300w

Boston Transcript p1 Mr 15 '30 450w

Cleveland Open Shelf p47 Mr '30

New Statesman 33:226 My 25 '29 170w

"The new book has the usual urbane Wodehouse humor and can be read aloud quite as satisfactorily as those that have gone before. But it should not be read too liberally at a sitting. These are short stories, and there should be intervals between the reading of them if they are to be savored at their best."

+ N Y Times p27 F 23 '30 400w

"At his best he is riotously funny; at his worst he is cambric tea, without sugar. But in Mr. Mulliner Speaking he is champagne. Read these stories told by Mr. Mulliner in the bar parlor of The Anglers' Rest, but read them in private, where your cackles will not disturb others." W. R. Brooks

+ Outlook 154:467 Mr 19 '30 80w

Pratt p42 summer '30

"Nine more of Mr. Mulliner's yarns fill this new Wodehouse volume with gaiety and nonsense. They are of the familiar texture—brilliant with the slangy farcical high-life that so many readers enjoy. Indeed, though it is amazing that Mr. Wodehouse can have kept his inventiveness and his high spirits through so many books, we should be grieved and surprised if he failed us, turning dull or trite. But there is no reason to anticipate the decay of his winning talent."

+ Sat R of Lit 6:973 Ap 19 '30 180w

Times [London] Lit Sup p384 My 9 '30 400w

WODEHOUSE, PELHAM GRENVILLE. Very good, Jeeves. 340p $1 Doubleday, Doran

30-17701

New stories concerning the resourceful Jeeves, man servant to the irresponsible Bertie Wooster. In these tales Jeeves extricates Bertie from eleven overwhelming dilemmas.

Booklist 27:31 S '30

Bookm 71:x Jl '30 20w

"The tales (long or short) of P. G. Wodehouse are always delightful and the only ones of their kind in the known world. And where else, one reader demands, is a humorist of fairly long service whose work not only shows no sign of diminution but actually gets better and better? Which is as much as to say that the reviewer was unable to find the smallest fault with 'Very Good, Jeeves.'" Will Cuppy

+ Books p6 Ag 10 '30 250w

Reviewed by I. W. Lawrence

Boston Transcript p2 Ag 9 '30 220w

N Y Times p6 Jl 13 '30 300w

"The tales are satisfactory if you laugh easily, but they are not the old Wodehouse." F. L. Robbins

+ — Outlook 155:349 Jl 2 '30 100w

Sat R of Lit 6:1159 Je 28 '30 150w

"As in all good farce, there is underlying wisdom, and we certainly approach more truly to life in Mr. Wodehouse's deliberate travesty of it than we do in following the adventures of the crashers and heartbreakers in which the other writers apparently expect us to believe." Gilbert Thomas

+ Spec 145:319 S 6 '30 150w

"Eleven tales about the discreet and ingenious Jeeves will not strike all readers as equally successful, just as Jeeves and his master are not equally successful in solving all the social problems thrust upon them—even with Jeeves's penchant for studying the psychology of the individual. But there is no tale destitute of fun. Though Mr Wodehouse's characters are lightly sketched, they are certainly real enough when we are with them. The author could probably be more searching and satirical if he chose."

+ — Springf'd Republican p5e Je 22 '30 400w

"Mr. Wodehouse has long since mastered a technique which is flawless of its kind and unapproached by anybody else, in which through a medium of highly original metaphorical slang an artless tale is unfolded step by cunning step, so that one does not know which to admire most, the conjurer's patter or his tricks."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p626 Jl 31 '30 400w

WOLBARST, ABRAHAM LEO. Generations of ² Adam. 355p $3.50 Newland press, 25 W. 45th st, N.Y.

176 Sex. Sex hygiene 30-10394

"A frank, dignified discussion of sex in its relation to the individual and to society by a New York physician who believes that 'the unscientific and unnatural attitude toward sex and its manifestations which have been fostered by theology and supported by the state are largely to blame for the sex problems of present society and that the solution depends upon an honest consideration of their biological and sociological aspects.' "—J Home Econ

"The main virtue of this book is its direct, simple, straightforward frankness. It is one of the few on its subject that can be recommended."

+ — Books p23 S 14 '30 200w

J Home Econ 22:690 Ag '30 80w

"Probably there has been no more valuable book about sex since the series by Havelock Ellis which is guarded under lock and key in our libraries. If there is any failure in the point of view it is that the author does not always see clearly that sex is only one aspect of the emotional life and that the adjustment of all the emotions is necessary to a normal sexual maturity." F. G. Seabury

+ — Outlook 154:710 Ap 30 '30 200w

WOLFE, HUMBERT. Uncelestial city. 258p $3 Knopf [7s 6d Gollancz]

821 30-28089

Mr Wolfe's satire in verse records various episodes in the life of Justice Crayfish, who attains professional success and social approval only at the cost of his early idealism and loves.

Booklist 27:199 Ja '31

WOLFE, HUMBERT—Continued

"As an indictment of a corrupt modern social system, of which law is a willing servant and Crayfish, K. C., a more exponent, Mr. Wolfe's satire functions with greater success than as a psychological study of a soul on trial before itself. Of corrupt justice we have long been aware. Just what should be done about the individual who either bucks it or becomes its victim is a more difficult problem to set before a poet—and Mr. Wolfe's answer is a trifle hazy." Ruth Lechlitner
+ — Books p10 O 26 '30 550w
Boston Transcript p2 N 29 '30 750w

" 'The Uncelestial City' is a fantastic verse-narrative, a novel in poetry, and the theme gives all the scope the author requires for the exercise of his many-sided artistry. Sometimes he is just a singer, as the thrush is just a singer; seldom have his lyrical outpourings seemed so lovely as they are here, flowing in the midst of harsh, satirical, occasionally facetious fragments that not merely provide a setting, but have a vital importance of their own." Thomas Moult
+ Christian Science Monitor p13 Je 21 '30 900w

"Above the din and strife, the sophisticated urban music with which the 'Uncelestial City' reverberates, there rises an overtone of compassion and graceful pity. It is a great achievement to have captured this and given it a poetic form. Such can be done only by unstinted labour of soul and brain; enthusiasm driving the mind to greater and greater architectural effort." Richard Church
+ Nation and Ath 47:352 Je 14 '30 130w
New Repub 65:119 D 10 '30 80w

Reviewed by E. L Walton
N Y Evening Post p4d O 18 '30 800w

"On first reading 'The Uncelestial City' seemed to this writer to be somewhat blurred; but with the clarification of further inspection it has come to appear to him as remarkably near being a very great poem. If to some degree a tour de force, its artificialities are alchemized into realities by the poetic fervor and intellectual sincerity of the author. It is a work of importance; a poem deserving wide attention." Percy Hutchison
+ N Y Times p2 O 19 '30 1200w

Reviewed by Harry Hansen
N Y World p14 D 12 '30 580w
Outlook 156:590 D 10 '30 80w
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:82 N '30

"The narrative as well as the poetry holds the attention, and as a reader follows the alternate simplicities and complexities of Mr. Wolfe's imagination there grows in him a realization of a pattern of rare and strange beauty which the poet has woven, a beauty as unusual as it is moving."
+ Sat R 149:696 My 31 '30 450w

"It is a curious and inconsistent composition, contradictory even in its own terms. It purports to be a long poem, but it is actually a series of separate poems unevenly, and, often, awkwardly strung together. Since the poems are not woven in the story but the 'plot' fitted about them, the result is both unsatisfying as narrative and unconvincing as documentation. But even the least sympathetic critic will have to admit this poet's technical dexterities; his subtle nuances that slip from the full, round cadence to the 'slant' or 'suspended' rhyme and back to the rich tonic; his almost imperceptible shifts from tenderness to cruelty; his mastery of carefully controlled effects. Whatever it may lack, Mr. Wolfe's, like his ghostly fiddler's, is never a mean performance. It is virtuoso-playing. The instrument may be Heine's, but the fingers are the fingers of Paganini.' " Louis Untermeyer
— + Sat R of Lit 7:304 N 8 '30 1050w

"In The Uncelestial City Mr. Wolfe shows a deeper self; a self that has learned a greater honesty of inward contemplation; a self made doubly sensitive by some recent wound that has startled him into a new consciousness of suffering. The old technique is still there, but now we have to accept it because of what it conveys, and also because with its stronger purpose it has had to purge itself of much of its theatrical trimmings."
+ Spec 144:946 Je 7 '30 750w

"A poem in which Mr. Wolfe displays his remarkable versatility and dexterity, putting his mastery of verbal craft now to the service of lyrical enchantment, now to that of ironic comment, and making his hero's pilgrimage a pretext for touching life at various points and exploiting a diversity of moods. . . The essential weaknesses of the poem as a whole is that it lacks any compelling unity."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p494 Je 12 '30 850w

WOLFE, HUMBERT, ed. Winter miscellany;
2 to which are added original poems by the editor. 351p $2.50 Viking press [8s 6d Eyre]
808.8 Winter

A garland of prose and verse for the winter season, grouped thus invitingly: Countryman's winter; Traveller's winter; Soldier's and sailor's winter; Reveller's and fireside winter; Sportsman's winter; Poet's winter; God and Mary's winter.

"The idea of the anthology is admirable, and it has been carried out with rare skill and taste. To each section Mr. Wolfe brings an ingenious fancy and a well-read attention, and there will be surprises for most of us, his readers." Richard Sunne
+ New Statesman 36:239 N 29 '30 680w

" 'A Winter Miscellany' is not a careless jumble of paragraphs snipped here and there. It is one of the most delicately placed mosaic patterns of its kind. The opening essay, in which Wolfe describes his gradual conversion to the idea of winter, is a gem." Harry Hansen
+ N Y World p14 D 12 '30 300w

"An entirely delightful anthology. . . Almost everything that is disagreeable, terrible, or beautiful about winter has found its way into this book. There is reverence and profanity, admiration and disgust, fear and love in it. But there is no chill." F. L. R.
+ Outlook 156:707 D 31 '30 300w

"Winter offers the anthologist a subject which is fruitful and unexplored as well as appropriate to the moment, and Mr. Humbert Wolfe has made a good use of his opportunities. . . He has perhaps been too generous and admitted too many good things of the same kind, but he has also included very little that is inappropriate or not good enough for its company."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p1036 D 4 '30 300w

WOLFF, WILLIAM ALMON. Manhattan night. 252p $2 Minton
30-15620

A mystery concerned with the murder of a young man who had been a prominent member of the younger fast set in New York.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p14 My 25 '30 100w
Boston Transcript p2 Ag 9 '30 270w

"There is a vague but actual similarity between this book and Rupert Hughes's 'Ladies' Man,' but this is by far the better book. Its night-life sections are nicely done. There is also a very satisfactory detective." Dashiell Hammett
+ N Y Evening Post p8m My 24 '30 200w

"The characters are well drawn, and the author's narrative style is as effective as it is simple and straightforward."
+ N Y Times p24 Je 1 '30 200w

WOLFSON, HARRY AUSTRYN. Crescas'
² critique of Aristotle; problems of Aristotle's Physics in Jewish and Arabic philosophy. (Harvard Semitic ser.) 759p $6 Harvard univ. press [28s Oxford]

185.1 Aristotle. Chasdai ben Abraham Crescas. Philosophy, Jewish. Philosophy, Arabic 30-2330

"According to Professor Wolfson, the work of Crescas (1340-1410) marks the fruition of the critical attitude and vast learning attained by fourteenth-century Jewish scholars. The present volume is an exhaustive study of the first book of Crescas' Or Adonai, and consists of an extensive analysis and evaluation of Crescas' argument, an edited text, an English translation, bibliographies, and exhaustive notes."—Int J Ethics

Boston Transcript p2 Ja 8 '30 400w

"The notes, which constitute the bulk of the volume, collate Crescas' doctrines with the writings of Jewish and Arabic philosophers, Maimonides, Avicenna, Averroes, and others, and represent, independently of their relation to Crescas, a valuable study of an interesting and important sector of medieval philosophy. Since many of the works to which Professor Wolfson refers in the notes are not ordinarily available, the notes are a valuable source of information for students not primarily interested in Crescas." C. M. Perry

+ Int J Ethics 41:277 Ja '31 150w

"A scholarly work of high attainment, containing much material to be found nowhere else in English. Professor Wolfson not only succeeds in making the Maimonides-Crescas proofs intelligible, but converts his book into a fine reference work on the philosophy of Aristotle, particularly as seen through the eyes of some of his most ardent and competent disciples." Paul Weiss

+ New Repub 63:323 Jl 30 '30 400w

WOOD, CHARLES WESLEY. Passing of normalcy. 309p $3 Forbes

309.1 United States—Social conditions. United States—Economic conditions. Marion, Ohio. Chain stores 30-1919

Six months of intensive study of a typical small city, Marion, Ohio, backed by a journalist's trained observation, has brought the author of this sociological and economic survey to the conclusion that business has replaced the family as the dominant institution of society. He has made an interesting survey of the changing ideas, ideals, morals, working conditions, social life and family life of the average American town in the year 1929.

"Lacking the intensive research technique of the already classical study of Middletown in a neighboring state, and written in a much lighter and more popular style, the author nevertheless makes a keen and penetrating analysis of the life of Marion of-the-past and of Marion on-the-way-to-be." E. H. Shideler

+ Am J Soc 36:338 S '30 200w

"It so happens that along with this strange religious passion Mr. Wood is one of the wittiest players with words and ideas who ever reflected upon the meaning of the business world, and his book is full of profound and cutting comments upon the reshaping of the modern world. . . When he writes about Marion as he saw it, and what is happening to it, he is superb. He has wide-open eyes, and he sees significant things. But when he closes his eyes and begins intoning, swaying with the agony of religion on him, he is just a sort of second-rate Holy Roller preaching the gospel which hitherto nobody even knew." Lewis Gannett

+ — Books p5 Ja 26 '30 1050w

Boston Transcript p2 Mr 5 '30 400w

Cath World 131:374 Je '30 400w

Reviewed by Stanley High

Current Hist 32:609 Je '30 1800w

"Charles W. Wood is a writer with a knack for shrewd observation and a skill in a sort of writing that is easy to read. Mr. Wood makes no Middletown study of Marion, but he does make some sound and shrewd observations about it, and tells us rather vividly how and why the old days of normalcy are passing—which is a very different matter from proving the adequacy of his gospel. It remains to be seen how far he can convince even the business leaders to whom he appeals." Norman Thomas

+ — Nation 130:219 F 19 '30 250w

"'The Passing of Normalcy' makes no pretense of being another statistical and social survey like 'Middletown.' It is, rather, a fine flight of fancy in the realm of modern business philosophy—a humanistic chart of the new economics, on behalf of which Mr. Wood is a spokesman deserving attention and compelling it once you have fallen into the web of his words." K. W. Payne

+ N Y Evening Post p11m F 1 '30 750w

"Whether Mr. Wood has or has not been successful in reconciling Christian morality and economic determinism is, of course, for the individual reader to decide. . . But Mr. Wood does set up a code for enlightened business men to try to follow. By dint of much repetition and moralizing—in the better sense of that word—he does show what may be a way out of the existing confusion. If one believes in progress at all one may well believe in Mr. Wood's doctrines. Unless, of course, one can suggest a better 'ole." R. L. Duffus

N Y Times p10 F 16 '30 1250w

Reviewed by Harry Hansen

N Y World p16 Ja 15 '30 1000w

"Why Marion is less content with itself and its way of life than it used to be Mr. Wood does a competent job of explaining in easy, journalistic, non-statistical style. What modern conditions mean for the church, the family, and the old local prides Mr. Wood knows and can explain to others. But Mr. Wood explains only to clear the way for the preaching of his gospel. He has become the devotee and evangelist of salvation by Big Business." Norman Thomas

+ — Sat R of Lit 6:689 F 1 '30 1550w

"Mr Wood in 300 diffuse pages discusses in very general terms the passing of the old order—in society, as illustrated by lessened coherence in the family, and in business, as illustrated by the development of chain stores."

— Springf'd Republican p10 Ja 29 '30 280w

WOOD, CLEMENT. Bernarr Macfadden; a study in success. 316p $3 Copeland

B or 92 Macfadden, Bernarr Adolphus

A biography laudatory of the successful publisher and teacher of physical culture. It is, for the most part, an account of Macfadden's beliefs, methods and philosophy of life.

Reviewed by Lisle Bell

Books p21 F 16 '30 160w

Christian Century 47:309 Mr 5 '30 50w

Reviewed by C. H. Grattan

New Repub 62:78 Mr 5 '30 450w

"The three recent books on MacFadden are all alike in the glow of enthusiasm and warm admiration through which they view their subject. In none of them does one find the judicial temper and the balanced judgment in the estimating of character and accomplishment or much of the penetrating insight and analysis that are important in biographical writing. The keynote of all three is uncritical admiration."

— N Y Times p20 Mr 9 '30 160w

WOOD, CLEMENT. Tabloid murders. 286p $2 Macaulay

30-17940

A murder story told entirely as it would be in the tabloid newspapers. It involves the murders, presumably with an axe, of the wealthy Eric Vant, his wife and son, and later of Olga Bearn, winner of a beauty contest in which Vant had been a judge.

"While the story itself is a little out of bounds and unbelievable, it is by the same token a nearer approach to true tabloid form—and for a

WOOD, CLEMENT—Continued
garbled and ridiculous version of an actual event (such as is greedily snapped up by the great American public) it is perfectly priceless."
+ — Bookm 71:xxi Ag '30 100w

"Announced as 'a new departure in literature' in that it consists entirely of news stories, feature stories, truelife stories, editorials, et cetera from the Daily Star, a picture newspaper, it is at least a clever novelty at which the reader may thrill or smile as he sees fit." Will Cuppy
Books p10 Jl 13 '30 250w

"Broad burlesque and clever satire go hand in hand in the story as Mr. Wood pulls every known stunt in tabloid thrilling. It is so well done, in fact, that the thrill is a mere incident. Poems, good and terrible, editorials that many will take for their face value rather than enjoy as beautiful parodies on present-day metropolitan slush, and all done in almost perfect technique. Almost, but not quite." W. H. M.
+ — Boston Transcript p2 Ag 6 '30 500w

Reviewed by Bernice Whittemore
Outlook 155:470 Jl 23 '30 120w

Reviewed by W. C. Weber
Sat R of Lit 7:94 Ag 30 '30 50w

WOOD, MRS FRANCES (GILCHRIST). Gospel Four Corners. 300p $2 Appleton
30-23201

Tells the story of the fight for peace and prosperity in an Illinois town of the '70s, which was waged by the hero John Ellison, a newspaper editor, and his friend Ted Hale, a lawyer.

Reviewed by Guy Holt
Bookm 72:451 D '30 50w

"Either as a temperance tract or as a handbook of civic righteousness the volume should find its way to its special audience."
Books p10 O 26 '30 120w
Boston Transcript p4 D 3 '30 100w

"A structural looseness has made the book a succession of episodes thinly strung together on the theme of civic virtue and moral reform. . . The author treads on fairly firm ground in her portrayal of the stormy and unsettled atmosphere of the post-Reconstruction West, and there is some measure of authenticity in the purely descriptive passages. When the book touches character and motivation (which, unfortunately, it often does) it lapses into sentimentality that borders frequently on mawkishness."
— + N Y Times p7 O 5 '30 480w

"The author of this dull and formless novel has sacrificed whatever mild interest one might feel in the lives of her characters to the task of setting before us a panoramic vista of an Illinois village, from the frontier days of the 1850's, through the passing decades, to the dawn of the '80's."
— Sat R of Lit 7:252 O 18 '30 160w
Times [London] Lit Sup p1102 D 25 '30 230w

WOOD, PEGGY (MRS JOHN V. A. WEAVER).
2 Actors—and people; both sides of the footlights. 178p il $2.50 (10s 6d) Appleton
792 Actors and actresses. Theater—United States
30-24531

In her stage reminiscences Peggy Wood talks about her meetings with George Bernard Shaw and Emma Calvé, makes some intimate revelations concerning the theater world, gives sensible advice to beginners in the acting profession, and discusses the psychology of audiences.

Boston Transcript p2 N 5 '30 300w

"Miss Wood starts off her vivacious book with an account of how she met George Bernard Shaw at a hotel in Italy and of their long conversation, in which Shaw said a good many things of real interest and did several that were characteristic and unconventional. The next chapter is an equally long and lively narrative of a visit to Emma Calvé. The rest of it deals in similarly vivid style with a great variety of matters and people on and off the stage. . . The chapter on the talkies is full of practical information concerning how they are made and the technique, difficulties and successes of the actors appearing in them."
+ N Y Times p34 D 14 '30 220w
Times [London] Lit Sup p932 N 13 '30 750w

WOODBRIDGE, FREDERICK JAMES EUGENE. Son of Apollo; themes of Plato. 272p $4 Houghton
888.4 Plato
For descriptive note see Annual for 1929.

Booklist 26:341 Je '30
Cleveland Open Shelf p71 My '30

"Professor Woodbridge has drawn an engaging picture of this mortal god, of this immortal man. Those who know not Plato will find the picture self-rewarding, and those who do know him will find his spirit here incarnated in a body that Plato himself could hardly hesitate to own." T. V. S.
+ Int J Ethics 40:452 Ap '30 270w

"Written just after the judicial murder of Socrates it does indeed keep up the full dramatic form to which Plato was accustomed, but it preaches the Socratic doctrines of righteousness with a burning passion of indignation which gives a very poor chance to the characters upholding the other side. I think Professor Woodbridge, besides writing a charming book, has done good service to Platonic study in emphasizing one side of the master's work; but he has still another book to write about the Plato who somehow ceased to be his Plato, and drew nearer to the Plato of Shorey or Taylor." Gilbert Murray
+ — J Philos 27:301 My 22 '30 950w

Reviewed by Woodbridge Riley
New Repub 62:359 My 14 '30 1200w

"The author contributes nothing new either to philosophy or scholarship; he contributes nothing new to internal or external criticism bearing on Plato or Platonism. On the whole, his work is nothing more than a series of informal talks of the sort one might give to a group of undergraduates in the classroom—interesting, diverting even, but of no great consequence to the student in search of new light on Plato."
— N Y Times p5 F 9 '30 430w

"His book is beautiful, deliberate, and learned: a flowering of sedulous scholarship and mellow wisdom. . . No juster or higher praise of this book could be given than to say that its manner is appropriate to its thesis and its theme." Raymond Weaver
+ Sat R of Lit 6:916 Ap 12 '30 2200w
Springf'd Republican p10 Ja 24 '30 400w
Wis Lib Bul 26:37 Ja '30

WOODFILL, SAMUEL. Woodfill of the regulars; a true story of adventure from the Arctic to the Argonne; by Lowell Thomas. 325p $2.50 Doubleday, Doran
B or 92
29-26836

Lowell Thomas tells the story, as narrated to him by Samuel Woodfill, of the experiences and exploits of an American army man who has a record of thirty-three years of continuous service soldiering in China, the Philippines, Alaska, Mexico and France. The first two-thirds of the book tells of Woodfill's army experiences before the war; the last third deals with his service in the Argonne. Called by General Pershing the greatest soldier in the A. E. F., Woodfill received the Congressional medal of honor and several other decorations.

Booklist 26:117 D '29

"Mr. Thomas has recaptured the spirit of the regulars in this wide-sweeping record."
+ Bookm 70:v F '30 100w
Cleveland Open Shelf p9 Ja '30

Nation and Ath 47:710 S 6 '30 180w

"Only a third of the book is devoted to Woodfill's adventures in France; the remainder deals with his life in the old regular army before the war. And it is this autobiography of a professional soldier in the ranks which is one of the contributions of the Woodfill book. For thus far no American Rudyard Kipling has given a picture of the Yankee counterpart of Tommy Atkins." S. T. Williamson

+ N Y Times p10 O 20 '29 1100w

Pratt p39 spring '30

St Louis 28:18 Ja '30

"The book is packed with good stories and adventures, in the breezy, engaging manner of a vernacular cowboy novel. It is a good piece of journalism, readable and worth reading, not least for the inside light it gives on the American Army."

+ Sat R 150:59 Jl 12 '30 230w

"The whole story is told in such a pleasant, forthright way that the book is hard to put down."

+ Spec 145:385 S 20 '30 230w

Times [London] Lit Sup p574 Jl 10 '30 550w

WOODGER, JOSEPH HENRY. Biological principles; a critical study. (Int. lib. of psychology, philosophy and scientific method) 498p $7 Harcourt [21s Routledge]

570 Biology [29-22228]

A critical interpretation of biology that establishes its connection with physics, chemistry, psychology and philosophy. Following a general introduction, the book is divided into two parts: Data of natural science and principles of systematization, and Problems of biological knowledge.

"A well-reasoned and illuminating effort to orient biologists in the principles of their science, at once useful to students and of interest to the general reader, has been carried to fruition in this book."

+ Boston Transcript p2 Ja 15 '30 500w

"Mr. Woodger's very difficult task has been accomplished so successfully that no biologist who really wishes to face fundamental problems should omit to read it. Yet it suffers from three defects: (a) it is unnecessarily long, because unnecessarily polemic, especially against textbook statements; (b) it attributes to physiologists, biochemists, and others with whom the author is not in sympathy, opinions much cruder than those they actually hold; and (c) it is insufficiently constructive."

+ — Nature 124:909 D 14 '29 350w

"What the author has here tried to do needed to be done, and one should not complain of the spirit in which the ambitious attempt has been made. The author is a fair critic on the whole, rarely captious, but occasionally too epigrammatic. The writer's knowledge of biology is professional and wide, though occasionally lacunar, and his acquaintance with the standpoints of modern philosophy seems to a mere biologist almost uncannily complete." F. R. Lillie

+ — Sat R of Lit 6:695 F 1 '30 850w

Times [London] Lit Sup p677 Ag 28 '30 100w

WOODROW, NANCY MANN (WADDELL) (MRS WILSON WOODROW). Moonhill mystery. 320p $2 Macaulay

30-24625

When a notorious crook is found murdered in Anne Morton's house, and gems of great value belonging to her neighbors are stolen, suspicion naturally falls upon Anne herself and her mysterious past. Also, the career of Judge Curtis, her fiancé, is jeopardized by the situation. Devore, insurance detective, saves the day for them.

Bookm 72:xxiv N '30 50w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Books p23 N 16 '30 150w

Reviewed by W. R. Brooks

Outlook 156:312 O 22 '30 100w

WOODS, WILLIAM SEAVER. Colossal blunders of the war. 274p $2.50 Macmillan

940.3 European war, 1914-1918 30-25099

The author takes up, respectively, the many and costly mistakes resulting in needless loss of life made on the part of America, Germany, Great Britain, France, and Russia during the war. Mr Woods is the editor of the Literary Digest.

Boston Transcript p4 D 6 '30 300w

Foreign Affairs 9:356 Ja '31 50w

"'Colossal Blunders of the War,' as implied by the title, is devoted to pointing out the various and many mistakes made by the greatest of the contending nations in the World War. One could hardly set for one's self an easier task. Yet Mr. Woods, editor of the Literary Digest, has done it superficially. His work has not the tone, the sense of individual thought behind it, to give it value. Certainly it is unlikely to succeed in its aim, as stated in the preface, of avoiding, another time, a needless loss of 'gallant men.'" J. B. Wharton

— Nation 131:475 O 29 '30 100w

"An extremely entertaining book. It is generally accurate, with occasional very minor lapses, but it suffers from complete lack of bibliographical data or documentation, which might have greatly increased its permanent value." John Bakeless

+ — N Y Evening Post p5d O 11 '30 720w

Reviewed by W. B. Shaw

R of Rs 82:18 O '30 300w

St Louis 28:303 D '30

"Mr Woods has the qualities of honesty and frankness, and he is competent in editing a mass of matter to assure thoroughness without waste. He is not, however, a military critic, and he has had the good sense to regard himself more as a reporter, quoting the authority of others, than as a self-erected court of errors. However, the compilation might easily have been more authoritative."

+ — Springf'd Republican p12 O 15 '30 350w

Reviewed by Leon Whipple

Survey 65:283 D 1 '30 80w

World Tomorrow 14:29 Ja '31 150w

WOODSON, CARTER GODWIN. Rural negro. 265p il $2.50 Assn. for the study of negro life

325.26 Negroes—Moral and social conditions. Negroes—Employment. Sociology, Rural 30-21077

This study deals with conditions among the Negroes in rural sections of the South, as to health, farming, tenancy and peonage, industry and trade, religion, education and recreation.

Booklist 27:141 D '30

"A first-hand piece of research, well-documented and intimately interpreted." Alain Locke

+ Books p14 N 23 '30 200w

Boston Transcript p3 Ag 16 '30 400w

Cath World 132:116 O '30 200w

Reviewed by Haynes Trebor

N Y Times p16 S 14 '30 400w

St Louis 28:260 N '30

WOODY, THOMAS. History of women's education in the United States. (Science and educ.) 2v 624;658p il $10 Science press

376 Education of women—United States 30-1557

"Professor Woody has recorded the development of the schooling of women in this country, from the narrow training of the early colonial seminary to the elaborate offerings of the coeducational college. He has not only examined the curricular provisions of the various educational institutions fostered by different states in succeeding eras; he has also examined the social structure which sponsored those institutions. They range from private tutor (or parent) in the early eighteenth century, through 'penny' schools, parochial and convent schools, private academies, seminaries and normal schools, to collegiate institutions of today."—Bookm

WOODY, THOMAS—Continued

"A valuable and well documented reference book."
+ Bookm 71:viii Ap '30 100w

"The work has many merits. It is exhaustive and detailed; it has an air of finality about it. In this exhaustive treatment lie both the merits and the demerits of the work. The general reader may wish that the author could have told his story in less than thirteen hundred pages. Even the specialist may now and then grow a little weary in getting at the heart of the matter. In any case, however, Professor Woody has placed under obligation to him all those who may be interested in the history of the intellectual emancipation of women." I. N. Edwards
+ — El School J 30:707 My '30 400w
J Home Econ 22:411 My '30 100w

"These two sturdy and solid volumes are the outcome of an immense amount of patient research. . . The bibliography fills over a hundred pages and includes references to more than a hundred and fifty newspapers of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries, to magazine articles and reports of meetings, debates and resolutions of societies, to books, pamphlets, special reports, to court records, catalogues and records of minutes of educational institutions and similar material, the whole of it covering a period of considerably more than two hundred years, and in its latest items is brought up to within the last year or two."
+ N Y Times p14 Ja 12 '30 750w

"A truly monumental work." W. R. Brooks
+ Outlook 154:351 F 26 '30 30w
St Louis 28:133 My '30

WOOFTER, THOMAS JACKSON. Black yeomanry; life on St. Helena Island. 291p il $3 Holt

917.57 St Helena Island, S.C. Negroes—South Carolina 30-21592

St Helena is an island off the coast of South Carolina inhabited largely by Negroes, who practice there a kind of primitive yeomanry as a livelihood. T. J. Woofter, Jr., sociologist, headed a group of specialists who recently went to live on the Island for nine months in order to study the Negro life. This book is the result of the experiment. It describes the health of the people, agriculture, the home, education, play, religion and other aspects of social and economic interest.

Booklist 27:203 Ja '31

" 'Black Yeomanry' shows itself at once to be unique among the thousands of books concerned with the Negro in that it sets out to present a unified picture of a whole community and the factors that have made it what it is rather than to concern itself with the study of an individual or one phase of Negro life. The best of the thirteen chapters is the one contributed by Guy B. Johnson on 'St. Helena Songs and Stories.' The rest of the volume, for all its information and interest, shows the usual faults of sociologists—balky and uncertain writing." Paul Green
— + Books p5 Ag 24 '30 1100w
N Y Times p38 N 30 '30 350w

"The volume is well written, richly illustrated, supplied (in the appendix) with tables of statistics that give complete authority to every statement made. It is a glorious story of this out-of-way place which once gave us our highest grade of cotton [and] the wood from which 'Old Ironsides' was made sea-worthy." A. W. Porterfield
+ Outlook 155:627 Ag 20 '30 550w

St Louis 28:289 D '30
Reviewed by P. U. Kellogg
Survey 65:288 D 1 '30 320w

WOOLF, VIRGINIA (STEPHEN) (MRS LEONARD SIDNEY WOOLF). A room of one's own. 199p $2 Harcourt [5s Hogarth press]

396.8 Women as authors. Woman in England. English fiction—History and criticism 29-27524

For descriptive note see Annual for 1929.

Reviewed by Margaret Wallace
Bookm 70:687 F '30 530w
Cleveland Open Shelf p40 Mr '30
Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:7 Ja '30
Pratt p15 spring '30
St Louis 28:39 F '30

"Future historians will place Mrs. Woolf's little book beside Mary Wolstonecraft's The Rights of Women and John Stuart Mill's The Subjection of Women. It does for the intellectual and spiritual liberation of women what those works did for their political emancipation. But A Room of One's Own outshines them both in genius."
+ Spec 143:985 D 28 '29 350w

"Its quiet, demure laughter is what one remembers with special delight. 'A Room of One's Own' offers us, among other good things, a meditation, delicately whimsical and deeply true, on the writer-temperament, that inner drive to create in words, that is continually seeking expression, that is continually being frustrated, or partly frustrated, so that it rarely reaches the state of 'incandescence' (inspired word!) in which creative activity is unhindered and free." Elisabeth Woodbridge
+ Yale R n s 19:627 spring '30 750w

WOOLLEY, CHARLES LEONARD. Dead towns and living men; being pages from an antiquary's notebook. rev ed 259p $2 Oxford

913 Archeology

A British archaeologist tells of his experiences while unearthing buried cities, in many lands. "Our author explains that when he was in the United States last Spring he was asked many questions concerning the incidents of discovery, the kind of labor employed, and, in short, all the day-by-day routine of an archaeologist working in the field. Answering these questions, he found himself quoting from a book first written for the amusement of his fellow-captives in a Turkish prison camp during the World War and later brought out in London. This is the book, one which tells his early experiences, antedating by some years those discoveries in Ur of the Chaldees by which he is best known." (N Y Times)

Reviewed by Ruth Benedict
Books p17 My 18 '30 480w

"The material is always interesting and frequently amusing; particularly the anecdotes of the blundering and ineptitude of the prewar Turkish officials." Isidor Schneider
+ Nation 131:21 Jl 2 '30 100w

Reviewed by B. W. Bacon
New Repub 63:186 Jl 2 '30 280w

"Informally and entertainingly written, the book is full of excellent stories and of adventures far out of the beaten paths. Moreover, the reader receives a friendly and most agreeable impression of the author's personality. Modest and unassuming, sympathetic, with an unfailing fund of kindliness and a no less unfailing sense of humor, he proves the most informative and delightful of guides with whom to wander at one's ease among 'Dead Towns and Living Men.' " L. M. Field
+ N Y Times p4 Mr 9 '30 1500w

"If your idea of an archaeologist is a sort of Professor Dryasdust, with a head full of dates and hieroglyphics, read this book for a pleasant reversal of opinion. The author, one of the foremost men in the field, is interested in the men as well as the towns, and his stories of difficulties met and overcome, his character sketches of native workmen and headmen and officials, are full of interest and color and humor." W. R. Brooks

+ Outlook 154:427 Mr 12 '30 130w

WOOLLEY, CHARLES LEONARD. Ur of the Chaldees; a record of seven years of excavation. 210p il $2.50 Scribner [7s 6d Benn]

913.35 Ur, Chaldaea. Sumerians 30-26562

The director of the joint expedition of the British museum and the Museum of the University of Pennsylvania to Mesopotamia, gives in this book a popular account of the seven years of excavations and important discoveries on the site of Ur, the city of Abraham, which have disclosed evidences of a civilization more than five thousand years old.

Booklist 26:352 Je '30

"Mr. Woolley's description of his work is delightful reading and completely non-technical. Any one who is interested in the new horizons that archeology has given us cannot do better than to read this volume. He will find out also a good deal about archeology, about the kind of problems that arise in the interpretation of finds in the field, and the kind of evidence by means of which answers are arrived at. Mr. Woolley is an excellent guide." Ruth Benedict

+ Books p3 My 18 '30 720w

Boston Transcript p3 Jl 12 '30 330w

Reviewed by R. St. B. Baker

Christian Science Monitor p9 Je 7 '30 350w

Cleveland Open Shelf p75 My '30

Reviewed by Isidor Schneider

Nation 131:20 Jl 2 '30 220w

Nation and Ath 46:682 F 15 '30 600w

Reviewed by B. W. Bacon

New Repub 63:186 Jl 2 '30 420w

"As a popular record of scientific excavation this book could hardly be improved upon."

+ New Statesman 34:480 Ja 18 '30 200w

"Told in a clear, direct narrative, it is a thing to fascinate even those who know little or nothing of the people once living in Ur. For the story has as many twists as the best of mystery tales."

+ N Y Times p6 Ap 13 '30 900w

St Louis 28:216 S '30

"This is a fascinating, thought-provoking book."

+ Sat R 149:242 F 22 '30 180w

"An uncommonly attractive and informing account of his epoch-making discoveries during the last seven years. Mr. Woolley has the rare gift of making field archaeology as exciting as a detective story, and his book will stimulate interest in the remarkable work that is being done in Mesopotamia."

+ Spec 144:137 Ja 25 '30 100w

"One of the most brilliant and engrossing of recent works about the distant past."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e My 18 '30 1370w

"The story of what has been uncovered at Ur has been told by Mr. Woolley with admirable clearness and attractiveness." R. P. Dougherty

+ Yale R n s 20:193 autumn '30 550w

WORCESTER, DEAN CONANT. Philippines, past and present; new ed. in one volume with biographical sketch and four additional chapters by Ralston Hayden. 862p il $6 (25s) Macmillan

991.4 Philippine Islands—History. Philippine Islands—Politics and government 30-14901

Dean C. Worcester's standard work on the American administration of the Philippines, first published in 1914, has been revised, brought to date and condensed into one volume by Ralston Hayden, with the addition of a 75-page memoir of the author.

"Worcester's book, as he wrote it, has already gone through several printings and has received generally favorable reviews. Its greatest drawback was in the personal feeling introduced. In the revision by Hayden, this has been largely omitted, changes or additions have been made in the annotation, a biography of nine chapters has been prefixed to the work, and four new chapters to bring the work up to date added. The result is admirable. Hayden has come closer than any previous writer to appraising occurrences at their true value. He must be classed with LeRoy and Barrows in his attempt to state results without a mass of useless and misleading details. The volume is now much more valuable than formerly and will clarify many points." J. A. Robertson

+ Am Hist R 36:182 O '30 250w

"Worcester's record has become the accepted account of the accomplishments of the United States in the Islands. . . The biographical chapters are an excellent short-length portrait of Worcester as the distinguished colonial administrator that he undoubtedly was. Few men, if indeed any others, have made so enviable a record in service in the territories outside the continental United States over which the republic has come to exercise control since the turn of the century." C. L. Jones

+ Am Pol Sci R 24:1039 N '30 500w

Booklist 27:38 S '30

Reviewed by William MacDonald

Current Hist 32:1046 S '30 600w

New Statesman 35:484 Jl 19 '30 250w

WORTHAM, HUGH EVELYN. Three women: St Teresa, Madame de Choiseul, Mrs Eddy. 318p pl $3.50 Little [10s 6d Cassell]

920.7 Choiseul, Madame de. Teresa of Jesus, Saint. Eddy, Mrs Mary (Baker) [30-12077]

"Each of the women of whom Mr. Wortham writes, St. Theresa, Madame de Choiseul and Mrs. Eddy, epitomizes her period and race, each had qualities which made her great in her own day and which continue to fire the imaginations of men: and each acknowledged with her whole soul the supreme power of love. St. Theresa was Spanish Catholicism, mystic and indomitable, embracing the ideal and making it actual. Madame de Choiseul was aristocratic France, making the actual the ideal. And Mrs. Eddy is Anglo-Saxon protestantism, denying the actual. Mr. Wortham calls his book a study in Feminism."—Outlook

---

Booklist 27:26 S '30

"Mr. Wortham does not press comparisons. He has written a sensible book, just, witty, sympathetic, thoroughly readable. If one does not care to look for unity one can read the three biographies separately and gain much scholarly information, knowledge of humanity and pure enjoyment. As comments on the life and preoccupations of society in three different ages, the essays are beyond criticism." H. F. Whicher

+ Books p14 Mr 16 '30 500w

Reviewed by Dorothy Brewster

Nation 130:710 Je 18 '30 400w

"Mr. Wortham has evidently packed a great deal of reading into these three hundred cleverly written and most entertaining pages."

+ New Statesman 36:750 S 28 '29 850w

Reviewed by Isabel Proudfit

N Y Times p23 Mr 23 '30 1400w

"The study of Mrs. Eddy is done with every intention of being fair. But one who is not 'in Science' finds it practically impossible to remain neutral to the end. Sooner or later the secular writer blows up and what wheat there is remains ungarnered because of the chaff. The book is good reading throughout, although the cause of feminism has little to gain or lose by it." Bellamy Partridge

+ — N Y World p10m Ja 26 '30 450w

"It is inevitable that Mr. Wortham's book should remind many readers of Eminent Victorians. It is equally fascinating. But, although marked by brilliance and precision of style, by wit as well as profundity, by searching character analysis and graphic description, and by its author's perfect emotional detachment, Mr. Wortham's work is definitely warmer in tone than Strachey's." F. L. Robbins

WORTHAM, H. E.—Continued

+ Outlook 154:266 F 12 '30 550w

St Louis 28:272 N '30

Sat R 148:326 S 21 '29 480w

"A biographer who is said to be of the school of Strachey is expected to be ironical but with restraint, and Mr. Wortham's irony is restrained. It appears here and there in the studies of Saint Theresa and Madame de Choiseul, but his liking and admiration for these women is too hearty for irony. . . In the study of Mrs. Eddy irony reappears. The subject perhaps invites it. The character of Mrs. Eddy is still no doubt controversial, but those of us to whom Science and Health has not as yet brought any revolutionary experience, may find the history of Christian Science not uninviting of irony. Mr Wortham's is under such admirable control that one is not quite sure what he does think of Mrs. Eddy."

Sat R of Lit 6:761 F 22 '30 270w

"Mr. Wortham draws a memorable picture of the valiant and witty woman who established the 'dovecotes of the Virgin'—St. Teresa. With Madame de Choiseul he is equally happy, but he does not do justice to Mrs. Eddy. Neither of these two extraordinary women had the transcendent charm, wit or courage of St. Teresa, but the founder of Christian Science has as great a pragmatical claim as the Spaniard to the serious consideration of history. Mr. Wortham tries to be fair to her, but seems to write with ingrained prejudice."

+ — Spec 143:373 S 21 '29 180w

"On the whole Mr. Wortham carries his task out well, if without brilliance; he has narrative skill, tactful sympathy, and a notable gift for thumbnail characterization (with the result, more than once, that a minor figure springs to life more vividly than any of the protagonists)."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p759 O 3 '29 550w

WORTHINGTON, MARJORIE MUIR. Spider web. 263p $2.50 Cape

30-3235

Hedwig Mendelsohn, shrewd, tyrannical and gluttonous, has built up her own millinery business in New York. But her sons turn out to be untrustworthy weaklings, and her unattractive daughter Dora marries Max Bikof, who had wanted to be a doctor, and failed. Hedwig tries to mold him to her business when she is stricken bedfast with a lingering heart disease. Max, nagged on by Dora and his malicious mother-in-law, makes a compromising success of the business in which he is by nature a misfit. Hedwig, intolerant and depising her weak, grasping children, dominates their lives up to her death. Only Miriam, Bikof's youngest daughter, saves her soul from the wreckage.

"It is admirably done. There is an economy of phrasing, a fine restraint in Miss Worthington's English which makes for good writing. One might say, trumping a metaphor, that there is sufficient silver in the casting to make it ring true." Leo Kennedy

+ Bookm 71:106 Mr '30 350w

"'Spider Web' has stretches of desert sterility. It has characters molded from a nightmare. It has a bleak monotony which far exceeds the worst that life can offer. Yet for Max's sake, you will not forget it. Here, in him, is ugliness transcended. He alone lives through the pages vested with human dignity." V. P. Ross

— + Books p2 F 2 '30 550w

Boston Transcript p2 F 12 '30 650w

Cleveland Open Shelf p61 Ap '30

"Every character in the book is alive, but the only one we could endure knowing in the flesh is Miriam. As a story, 'Spider Web' has just one fault—old Hedwig should have suffered with asthma, as most enormous and disagreeable old women have a tendency to do, rather than with the painless angina pectoris." W. T.

New Repub 62:135 Mr 19 '30 170w

"Miss Worthington has written this novel, which concerns a German family in New York, more or less in the tradition of the comedie humaine, and, on the whole, she has done a good job of it. Though the craftsmanship of the book scarcely equals that of the better French novels, its style is quite as admirably clean, lucid and precise. Miss Worthington has many scenes of fine penetration and—except for Max's encounters with music—a complete lack of sentimentality in her portrayal of characters." Clinton Simpson

+ — N Y Evening Post p10m F 8 '30 350w

"Miss Worthington has put movement and life and credibility into her tale. It has an excellent pictorial quality—Max's timidity and futility are admirably contrasted with the courage and directness and vigor of old Hedwig. Miss Worthington has forborne to comment. She has been content to submerge her own opinions, whatever they may be, in the facts and incidents of the story. The result is a compact and integrated work, with characters which stand out clearly and vitally and with an interest which never flags."

+ N Y Times p8 Ja 26 '30 600w

"The story has a good deal of local color but somehow one feels the pulp gone out of the last half. The author seems to have been infected by the dryness of her subject."

— + Outlook 154:188 Ja 29 '30 150w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:51 Je '30

"The novel is written without much drama of incident. It is a series of life stories monotonously related without humor and without sympathy. Its various backgrounds are probably its most interesting contribution."

Sat R of Lit 6:1075 My 24 '30 350w

Springf'd Republican p5e Ag 10 '30 150w

"Marjorie Worthington describes with fidelity and accuracy the age-old conflict waged between idealism and materialism, lived out in secret in a house divided against itself. In quiet and simple prose well adapted to the theme and the people portrayed, she spins the shoddy threads of their lives bound to that monstrous old Hedwig, a species of Teutonic tarantula, swollen with venom yet wholly plausible and convincing. Aside from the interest of the story built up with careful, small strokes this novel reflects faithfully a world familiar in its homely realism." Halle Schaffner

+ Survey 64:279 Je 15 '30 370w

WRANGEL, NICOLAI EGOROVICH. See Vrangel, P. N.

WREN, PERCIVAL CHRISTOPHER. Mammon. 330p $2 Stokes

30-7107

A strange story of murder—or suicide—and mystery. The main part of the action took place in London, but the mystery was not cleared up until a man dying in Africa made a confession to an old school friend.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Books p14 Ap 6 '30 200w

Boston Transcript p1 Ap 12 '30 480w

N Y Times p24 Ap 20 '30 130w

"It is awkwardly told, at too great length, but if you start it, we predict you'll finish." W. R. Brooks

+ — Outlook 154:468 Mr 19 '30 150w

Pratt p39 autumn '30

Spec 144:1071 Je 28 '30 130w

WREN, PERCIVAL CHRISTOPHER. Mysterious Waye; the story of "The unsetting sun." 351p $2 Stokes [7s 6d Murray, J.]
30-27769

Thirsting for vengeance against the four men who had kidnapped and brought about the death of his little daughter, the man now calling himself John Waye at last tracks down the criminals. This is the story of his revenge, and of his own regeneration thru Marjorie, a girl who resembles greatly his lost daughter.

"As ever and anon with Major Wren, it's hard to tell whether or not he works with tongue in cheek. The point is that 'Mysterious Waye' is good entertainment." Will Cuppy
+ Books p14 N 9 '30 150w
New Statesman 36:156 N 8 '30 200w

" 'Mysterious Waye' gets off for a good start, but somewhat lamely hobbles in at the finish. There are present the usual dramatic situations, gripping action and miraculous escapes, all competently executed with a nicety of expression and some cleverness. The differences in plot and characters between 'Mysterious Waye' and the galaxy of detective stories now so much in vogue appear almost accidental."
— + N Y Times p33 N 16 '30 280w

"An excellent thriller." W. R. Brooks
+ Outlook 156:312 O 22 '30 100w

"Mr. Wren's new book is a trifle disappointing in that his plot lacks that originality and invention which we have come to expect from him. . . Though it is possible that he fails in this story to reach the exceptionally high standard which he has set himself with his previous publications, the book still remains one which we can confidently recommend to any who have not yet had the good fortune to enjoy one of the products of Mr. Wren's inventive genius."
+ — Spec 145:471 O 4 '30 160w

WRIGHT, BENJAMIN FLETCHER, ed. Source book of American political theory; with introd. notes. 644p $3.75 Macmillan
320.9 Political science—History. Political science—Collections. United States—Politics and government—Sources 29-17340

"Containing about a hundred selections, averaging six pages each, this book gives a fairly complete view of the development of American political theory. The selections are arranged into chapters by periods, each chapter being preceded by a short introduction, and each selection being prefaced by an explanatory paragraph about the author or the circumstances in which the original pronouncement appeared. Earlier periods are represented more fully, partly because the author gave preference to material ordinarily difficult of access."—Int J Ethics

"Designed for use in connection with courses in American political theory, this compact volume renders available much useful material hitherto inaccessible for teaching purposes. Conceding the compiler's assumption that political writings since the Civil War cannot now be evaluated, one will find little with which to disagree in his choice of examples. But both teacher and student must deal with the later period, and it is to be regretted that a more serious effort was not here made to face the admitted difficulty of providing specimens representing important modern trends."
+ — Am J Soc 35:683 Ja '30 130w

"Five-sixths of the entire volume is devoted to the theories prior to 1850. This gives a lack of balance and a weak background for an appreciative understanding of the issues of the present day. No attention is given to American doctrines of foreign policy, of territorial expansion, or of local government." R. G. Gettell
— Am Pol Sci R 24:207 F '30 500w

Reviewed by L. W. Lancaster
Ann Am Acad 148:309 Mr '30 100w
Boston Transcript p2 N 16 '29 250w

"The introduction and explanatory paragraphs, though concise and unpretentious, reflect a considerable and exact knowledge of the field covered, and should be helpful to the student." C. M. Perry
+ Int J Ethics 40:279 Ja '30 120w

"The abundant extracts here given from almost every notable American political theorist, from the earliest down to modern times, form a valuable summary of the movements of opinion and of the chief arguments adduced on both sides. The book is least satisfactory on the legal side and in the chapter on 'Some Recent Tendencies,' but it may be welcomed as an excellent bird's-eye view of American political thought in its great creative and formative period."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p1038 D 5 '29 300w

WRIGHT, GILBERT MUNGER (JOHN LEBAR, pseud.). Lighted lantern. 310p $2 (7s 6d) Appleton
30-6726

The story of a ranch near the Mexican border where a brave girl fought her way thru a long string of difficulties including poisonous snakes, storms, murder and a half-insane partner, and lived to tell the story.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p10 Jl 6 '30 120w
Boston Transcript p4 Ap 26 '30 220w

"An entertaining, quickly moving story."
+ N Y Times p20 My 18 '30 180w
Times [London] Lit Sup p397 My 8 '30 100w

WRIGHT, HAROLD BELL. Exit. 315p $2 Appleton
30-19835

A love story of two generations, which takes place partly in a small town in Ohio, and partly in the world of the theatre.

"It may be sad for literature and sad for morality that this will be America's favorite novel of 1930. But it will be. And those who see literature as something more than printed words, as an expression of a folk-soul can learn something of America here. Plot—rapidity of action—has something to do with it. Pious morality has something to do with it. . . The popular Wright sermon text, preached in 'Exit' as in all his novels, is that hearts of gold beat where the world little suspects them." Lewis Gannett
— Books p5 Ag 3 '30 1750w
Boston Transcript p3 Ag 30 '30 380w
Chicago Daily Tribune p10 Ag 9 '30 550w

"This novel has the qualities that have made the others popular, the same wholesome sentiment (slightly overstrained), the same utilization of the western scenery that he knows so well, the same careful avoidance of shooting either above the intellectual level or below the moral standards of the millions."
Christian Century 47:1064 S 3 '30 220w

Reviewed by Edwin Seaver
N Y Evening Post p5s Ag 16 '30 240w
N Y Times p14 Ag 24 '30 450w

"We'd like to say that it is a charming story of young love, a gripping tale of raw, red passions, and a tenderly intuitive study of the genius of the boy, Pierre. But unfortunately, none of those things is true. The general idea, enforced by quotations from Robert Service and one Shakespeare, seems to be that all the world's a stage. Which is the only proof Mr. Wright offers—except his word for it—that Pierre is really an actor." W. R. Brooks
— Outlook 155:589 Ag 13 '30 200w
Sat R of Lit 7:129 S 13 '30 280w
Springf'd Republican p7e S 14 '30 250w
Times [London] Lit Sup p737 S 18 '30 150w

WRIGHT, HAROLD BELL. Long ago told (Huh-kew ah-kah) legends of the Papago Indians; il. by Mrs Katherine F. Kitt. 287p $2.50 (7s 6d) Appleton

398 Indians of North America—Legends. Papago Indians—Legends [29-17845]

Mr Wright has collected a number of Papago Indian folk tales and retold them in a manner that should prove interesting to children.

Booklist 26:56 N '29

"The legends themselves are full of interest and color. . . Mr. Wright has put them together in attractive, coherent fashion without violating the spirit of the legends. Mrs. Kitt has done some good work in illustrating the folk-lore."

+ Boston Transcript p6 N 13 '29 320w

Cleveland Open Shelf p40 Mr '30

Pratt p15 spring '30

Times [London] Lit Sup p1056 D 12 '29 230w

Wis Lib Bul 25:374 N '29

WRIGHT, HENRY WILKES. Religious response; an introd. to the philosophy of religion. 256p $2 (6s) Harper

201 Religion—Philosophy 29-24204

"A philosophical approach to the fundamental problem of religion, the validity of belief in a personal God. The author maintains that there are two ways of looking at the universe, each equally true; that of physical causation and that of correlation on the basis of value. The former is the way of science, the latter that of religion. . . The argument of this book is deeply philosophical, but is sufficiently nontechnical to be within the grasp of the average earnest reader."—Outlook

"We find in Professor Wright's book lack of recognition of the school of personalistic philosophy. Nowhere does he mention Bowne or his viewpoint. His statement of the vitality of value judgments might well be strengthened by reference to so careful a study as that which Professor Brightman of Boston University gives us in 'Religious Values.' Nevertheless, Professor Wright has given us a stimulating, nontechnical and logical discussion of the philosophical respectability of religion, which will appeal to the student as well as to the average reader." R. R. M.

+ — Boston Transcript p5 My 31 '30 450w

"The book should be read slowly, for the author has been parsimonious with words and lavish with ideas. The paragraphs of unnecessary elaboration that can be safely skipped are simply not there. . . I recommend the careful reading of this book by all who either boast or fear that the expanding area of scientific knowledge is destined to crowd religion off the earth." W. E. Garrison

+ Christian Century 47:305 Mr 5 '30 650w

Reviewed by M. G. Evans

Crozer Q 7:116 Ja '30 800w

"In some places the author is a little vague and one wishes that he had talked in more specific terms. On the whole, however, the book is stimulating." H. H. Titus

+ — J Religion 10:427 Jl '30 1300w

Reviewed by E. B. Chaffee

Outlook 153:430 N 13 '29 180w

"None of the more assailable features of the author's constructive theory is of sufficient importance to detract seriously from the merit of his work when viewed as a whole; and the three opening chapters, which are devoted to introductory matter and to criticism of superseded (or partially superseded) attempts which have been made to demonstrate the ultimate spirituality of the universe, exhibit Professor Wright's notable gifts of succinctness and perspicuity at their highest."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p1086 D 19 '29 300w

WRIGHT, QUINCY. Mandates under the League [2] of nations. 726p il $6 Univ. of Chicago press [27s Cambridge univ. press]

321.027 European war, 1914-1918—Territorial questions. League of nations. Mandate system 30-18881

"The nearly six hundred pages of text are divided into four parts. The first consists of an exposition of the development of the mandate system, the second contains a survey of its organization, the third a consideration of its legal aspects, and the fourth reflections on its value. . . The Appendix contains Articles 22 and 23 of the League Covenant, the chief documents dealing with each mandated territory, and statistics on their area, population trade, railroads, financial condition, and economic development, as well as three maps. The exhaustive bibliography, the Table of Cases, and the Index, are models of their kinds."—Ann Am Acad

Reviewed by W. E. Rappard

+ Am Pol Sci R 24:1026 N '30 750w

"This is a masterly presentation of the subject, the mature result of long study and first-hand investigation, at once the most able and the best written account in any language, and a distinct triumph for American scholarship." L. J. Ragatz

+ Ann Am Acad 152:412 N '30 350w

"This volume, written by one of the leading students of international law in the country, is, on the whole, the best legal and historical study of the mandates system that has yet appeared. . . The book is least satisfactory, from the political point of view. Nevertheless, as an analysis of the documents, and in the legal field, Mr. Wright's book will be authoritative for many years to come." R. L. Buell

+ — Books p10 N 2 '30 600w

"Professor Wright's book is to be classed with works which, until policies themselves change, may be regarded as definitive. . . The book is a mine of well-arranged information and a scholarly performance of a high order." William MacDonald

+ Nation 131:528 N 12 '30 280w

World Tomorrow 13:522 D '30 250w

WRIGHT, SYDNEY FOWLER. Case of Anne Bickerton. 318p $2 Boni

30-25158

Anne Bickerton was charged with the murder of her sister, when it was found that the cause of death was arsenic administered in tea which Anne had made. The trial brought out hidden facts in the lives of several others besides Anne.

"Brilliant characterizations make the story as powerful although less fantastic than The Deluge"

+ Bookm 72:xxiii S '30 50w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Books p24 S 28 '30 120w

Boston Transcript p2 O 22 '30 300w

"Though the tale moves slowly, with too many comments aside on judicial procedure, and has an altogether inadequate solution in fine, it is for most of its course interesting enough." Dashiell Hammett

— + N Y Evening Post p12 S 20 '30 100w

Reviewed by W. R. Brooks

Outlook 156:69 S 10 '30 50w

"We cannot say that he has written a first-rater of its kind. The cat is out of the bag about fifty pages from the end of the story, the guilty party has not entered the story theretofore. The latter end of the book has merely the interest of a 'reprieve' which we are, after all, positive will come in time, for the benefit of the falsely accused. In our opinion Mr. Fowler Wright transgresses the rules of detective story writing in this yarn, though the first part of the book promises something, and the solution has probability."

— + Sat R of Lit 7:145 S 20 '30 120w

"Mystery fiction on a higher plane than the average of the current product."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e S 21 '30 300w

WRIGHT, SYDNEY FOWLER. Elfwin; a romance of history. 291p $2 Longmans [7s 6d Harrap]

30-24851

An historical novel founded on the battles of Ethelfleda, the Lady of Mercia, daughter of Alfred the Great, who fought to expel the Danes from the land of her birth, and on Elfwin, her daughter who loved and married a Danish prince, and sailed with him to the New World to found a new kingdom.

Bookm 72:xi S '30 50w

"Not even the Scandinavian authors have done those early years with such somber richness and poetry drawn from the very blood of life. It goes deeper than Hewlett ever went into the nature of women, and its men wear flesh and brain. The story is there, too, of Saxons storming the stockades and Danes harrying the coasts and the Vikings launching keels into cold northern seas." Donald Douglas

+ Books p35 S 28 '30 380w

New Statesman 36:55 O 18 '30 180w

"This historical novel of Saxon England and King Alfred's granddaughter, Elfwin, has real quality. At moments it touches Hewlett. The human interest, the tension of a love that does not win free from disaster until the story's end, is admirably maintained. In other words, it is a good story aside from its historical milieu, though this last is colorful and convincing." F. H. M.

+ N Y Evening Post p5s Ag 2 '30 80w

"The reader will recognize immediately the time-worn mechanism, but he may be recompensed occasionally by a considerable ingenuity in the dialogue, especially when Elfwin is working herself out of a dangerous situation. A sufficiently naïve reader might peruse this book with some relish if he were not too soon discouraged by the strange names and the conscious attempt at an archaic style."

— + N Y Times p28 S 28 '30 400w

"'Elfwin' has not the power and originality of 'Deluge.' but it is a historical novel very much above the average, full of meat and shrewdness and containing three or four admirably drawn characters. . . It would be easier going if Mr. Wright had stuck to modern colloquial speech for his dialogue, instead of dropping after the first few pages into a pseudo-Anglo-Saxon reminiscent of 'The King's Henchman'; and also if a map had been provided for those whose early English geography is a little rusty." Elmer Davis

+ — Sat R of Lit 7:123 S 13 '30 650w

"All who like tales of high romance and valour will enjoy Mr. Fowler Wright's latest book when once they have made the acquaintance of its innumerable characters. Mr. Fowler Wright avoids the sentimentalities common to those who write of chivalry, and tells his tale of intrigue with the utmost directness."

+ Spec 145:644 N 1 '30 200w

Springf'd Republican p7e S 7 '30 180w

"The style of the book is peculiar; the author has tried to choose short words, and to avoid stilted phrases on one hand or modernisms on the other. . . The result is a Quaker-like sobriety of phrase. It befits fights and flights, that is, most of the book. But it is not so good a medium for one-eyed Thorkald's philosophic speeches."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p778 O 2 '30 400w

WRIGHT, SYDNEY FOWLER. World below. 344p $2 Longmans [7s 6d Collins]

30-9487

Making practical application of the Einstein theory of space, a skilled scientist is able, experimentally, to project a young American into a far future civilization. This story is the narrative record of the man's experiences in this strange, advanced civilization, where he is guided by a pleasant Amphibian into the land of the Dwellers, and where he ascertains the fate of the two friends who had preceeded him into this world of half a million years hence—and failed to return.

"Such a tale, of course, is a vehicle for satire. How do our emotional and bigoted customs seem in the light of remote and detached reason applied to them by the amphibians? This comment, which might be trenchant, is too little leavened with wit to be engaging. The story as a whole, being rather inventive than imaginative, seems monstrous rather than beautiful."

— Books p10 Ap 20 '30 400w

Boston Transcript p1 My 17 '30 420w

Cleveland Open Shelf p64 Ap '30

"The book is entertaining, and sometimes exciting. Generally speaking, it is a well and vividly imagined fantasy, but it is much too long, and the sociological discussions are both trite and tedious."

+ — N Y Times p27 Mr 23 '30 380w

"The book falls naturally into parts, social satire and pure adventure. The satire is by much the weaker part. The strength of the book lies in the adventures, related with a combination of extravagant imagination and sober verisimilitude which makes Mr. Wright unique. . . 'The World Below' is an almost painfully absorbing story."

+ — Sat R of Lit 6:1176 Jl 5 '30 550w

WRIGHT, WILLIAM KELLEY. General introduction to ethics. 559p $2.75 (12s) Macmillan

170 Ethics 29-13461

"This synopsis of ethical theory and practice by the Professor of Philosophy at Dartmouth College is resigned primarily with a view to forming the basis for the scholastic curriculum of an American University."—Times [London] Lit Sup

"The book is clearly written; in fact, something of an achievement in simplification and consecutive exposition. The material is well-organized and the treatment is sane and judicious. The author is successful in maintaining a tone of high enthusiasm befitting his subject matter, while not losing contact with the concrete actualities of moral experience. As an introductory textbook in ethics it is a meritorious production." H. W. Wright

+ Int J Ethics 40:443 Ap '30 1150w

"At a time when ethics, and especially the Christian ethic, is so much discussed in popular print, with a net achievement of more confusion than clarity, it is an occasion for especial satisfaction that Professor Wright of Dartmouth has written so lucid and comprehensive a text on general ethics. For this is a text, designed for undergraduates, and an admirable one for such use. Two motives can be detected running through the book: a concern with undergraduates' problems, and a desire to place ethical problems in an intelligent, comprehensive setting." E. E. Aubrey

+ J Religion 10:441 Jl '30 480w

"Dr. Wright's work as a whole is to be commended for its breadth of outlook and for the moderation and sagacity of its view as well as for its philosophical merits."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p771 O 3 '29 300w

WRISTON, HENRY MERRITT. Executive agents in American foreign relations. (Albert Shaw lectures on diplomatic history, 1923) 874p $5 Johns Hopkins [23s Milford]

327.73 United States—Foreign relations. Presidents—United States—Powers and duties. Executive power. Diplomats, American 29-13548

"In these Albert Shaw Lectures on Diplomatic History, delivered in 1923, President Wriston makes a thorough historic examination of the use of diplomatic agents by the President of the United States to transact particu-

WRISTON, H. M.—Continued
lar items of foreign business, without obtaining the consent of the Senate to their appointment. He begins with the work of Silas Deane and ends with Colonel House and General Crowder. There are valuable chapters discussing the constitutional position of these executive agents, and also the attitude of Congress toward their appointment."—Books

"With its appropriate archival references the volume is certain to be a standard reference work and guide for research workers using the Department archives. Only one complaint may be made. It is too long, too tautological. Dutiful reviewers are the only persons very likely to read the book from cover to cover. The ordinary student will use it constantly for what it is and what it ought to be called: 'Wriston's Encyclopedia of Executive Agents in American Foreign Relations.'" S. F. Bemis
+ — Am Hist R 35:644 Ap '30 700w

"The suggestiveness and competence of the treatment as a whole are too great to render its defects of decisive importance. This is an excellent book on an important subject." P. B. Potter
+ Am Pol Sci R 23:1042 N '29 500w

"Altogether, President Wriston has made the most thorough and scholarly study of this aspect of American foreign policy."
+ Books p9 D 29 '29 120w

"The whole is well done with ample citation of source materials, and the volume is, for the future, an indispensable guide to American diplomatic practice. The recent development of international conferences and their output of international legislation add importance to the subject."
+ Harvard Law R 43:519 Ja '30 100w
Nation 129:698 D 4 '29 220w

"The range of our national history covered by his work is amazing. So important have been the interventions of these representatives of American Presidents in our foreign relations that Dr. Wriston's book must be held essential to any intelligent or comprehensive survey of American diplomacy." W. B. Shaw
+ R of Rs 80:10 S '29 250w

"Mr. Wriston's answer fills 800 closely printed and elaborately documented pages, which incidentally contain much valuable material for the diplomatic history of the United States."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p731 S 26 '29 2500w

"He has produced a carefully documented study, in which he describes and analyzes with skill the long struggle between the President and the Senate." Charles Seymour
+ Yale Law J 39:767 Mr '30 460w

WU, CHAO-KWANG. [2] International aspect of the missionary movement in China. (Johns Hopkins univ. studies in hist. and political science. Extra volumes. New ser.) 285p $2.50 Johns Hopkins [11s 6d Oxford]

275.1 Missions—China. China—Foreign relations. Christians in China 30-22336

"This little volume, a doctoral dissertation, endeavors to describe the rights that Christian missionaries and their converts enjoy in China under the treaties with foreign powers, to survey historically the international difficulties in which Christian missions have involved China, to recount the main outlines of the recent anti-Christian movement, and to give the reasons for the antipathy of so many Chinese to the missionary. The author obviously shares the irritation of many of his fellow countrymen against the missionary."—Ann Am Acad

Reviewed by K. S. Latourette
Ann Am Acad 152:405 N '30 150w
Booklist 27:187 Ja '31
Books p25 N 16 '30 200w

"All things considered, it is hard not to regard this as the most damaging attack on the social results of the entrance of western missionaries into China so far delivered. It is damaging just because it is in no sense an attack. It is a restrained, carefully documented, almost academic thesis, written by a professor of political science in Fuh Tan university, Shanghai, and published as a volume in the Johns Hopkins University Studies in Historical and Political Science. Case by case the record is piled up of the way in which the activities of the missionaries have operated to inflict upon China loss of territory, impairment of sovereignty, and indignities of too many kinds to recount." Paul Hutchinson
+ Christian Century 47:1563 D 17 '30 550w

"While his argument is to a certain extent that of the advocate of Chinese interests and Chinese national sentiments, he evidently endeavors to treat the question with truth and justice. And of course China is entitled to a fair presentation of her side of the case. She gets it set forth here with wide and thorough legal and political knowledge, with vigor and forcefulness, with warmth and conviction, but without rancor or unfriendliness or suspicion."
+ N Y Times p24 S 7 '30 380w
Times [London] Lit Sup p895 O 30 '30 180w

WULF, THEODOR. Modern physics; a general survey of its principles; tr. from the 2d German ed. by C. J. Smith. 469p il $10 Dutton [35s Methuen]

530 Physics 30-23797

This book is written especially for those readers who are not technical experts. It aims to give a coordinated account of the fundamental results of physics, based upon the latest researches in atomic phenomena.

"This treatise shows not only scholarship but a real relation and integration of the various parts by an underlying idea which we have failed to see in most books on physics."
+ Boston Transcript p2 Jl 26 '30 320w

"The Rev. Father Wulf's masterly conspectus of modern physical science, competently translated from the second German edition (1929) by Dr. C. J. Smith, will be welcome to all who wish to possess 'a co-ordinated account of the fundamental results of physics' and of the immense advances made in our knowledge of Nature during the last thirty years. . . Anyone with a moderate mathematical training will find the book extremely helpful."
+ Spec 145:196 Ag 9 '30 850w

WYLIE, IDA ALENA ROSS. Some other beauty. 315p $2.50 Doubleday, Doran [7s 6d Cassell]

30-14196

Six short stories, in each of which character rises triumphant over the irony or tragedy of circumstance. Contents: Some other beauty; "All dressed up;" "Young Nowheres;" The old people; Bravo, Toro!; The strange story of the man who believed in God.

Booklist 27:31 S '30

"In these stories, Miss Wylie lifts up her conception of beauty in both hands and turns it round before your eyes, like some frail crucible into which she has poured her treasure. The book brims over with a luminous understanding. Each tale, though from a different facet of her sense of beauty, is akin to the others, bound by her own spirit."
+ Books p13 Je 15 '30 450w

"With that amazingly vivid style which in itself is like a procession with trumpets, Miss Wylie writes a succession of studies in Christian resignation."
+ Boston Transcript p2 Je 11 '30 370w
Cleveland Open Shelf p112 Jl '30
+ New Statesman 34:616 F 15 '30 50w

Reviewed by Margery Latimer
N Y World p5m Je 29 '30 320w

"Miss Wylie is evidently a cosmopolitan with extended human interests, and these stories reflect an uncommon breadth of view. Though the stories are not notable, they are well written."

+ Springf'd Republican p5e Jl 6 '30 320w

"Miss Wylie writes sympathetically, vividly and with the ease of experience."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p192 Mr 6 '30 200w

WYLIE, PHILIP. Gladiator. 332p $2.50 Knopf 30-6546

"This is the story of a biologist's prenatal experiment on his own son. Hugo Danner was born with super-human physical strength, plus a fine brain and a thoughtful, gentle nature. But throughout his life his mysterious power rouses only fear, repulsion, jealousy, and hate among his fellows. He is sentenced to the solitary imprisonment of his own superiority. As a background fitting his protagonist, the author has used a vast canvas, painting in bold strokes the War, college football, steel mills, and Mayan excavations."—Outlook

"Mr. Wylie's Hercules is a colossus who straddles the rocks of fantasy and fact in an effort to uphold a mighty theme. If you begin to read his story you will finish it and be glad that you found it. And if you are not altogether satisfied your dissatisfaction will be only the greater assurance that the book will live with you much longer than most books do." R. O. Ballou

+ Books p4 Mr 9 '30 620w

"The mistake is that the spectacular in the tale, which is bound to be striking enough anyway, is even exaggerated, instead of being toned down. The results are more ludicrous than imposing. The book is not without passages which are fairly well written, however, nor is it without thought or uninteresting."

— + Boston Transcript p2 Mr 29 '30 170w

Cleveland Open Shelf p64 Ap '30

"'Gladiator' shows the development of a good idea, and also shows what a poor thing even a good idea can be, by itself. . . Incident after incident occurs and each one is well described, but half way through the book a reader is almost bound to put it down with a sigh. Incidents are all very well, but the original conception is soon threadbare." John Piper

— Nation and Ath 47:652 Ag 23 '30 200w

"The obscurity of its intention may be regarded as the chief flaw of the novel. For mechanically, it is a more than usually successful story, written swiftly and gracefully, with wit and imagination to spare." Margaret Wallace

+ — N Y Evening Post p10m Mr 8 '30 530w

"A book that is not only interesting because of the imaginative quality of the problem posed, but continuously interesting because Mr. Wylie happens to be a writer who can surmount the barriers of probability and proceed to write scenes and create characters that have the breath of life."

+ N Y Times p9 Mr 2 '30 520w

"It is a splendid allegory surcharged with emotion, not emotionalism."

+ Outlook 154:467 Mr 19 '30 220w

"'Gladiator' shows neither development nor growth; it is the novel of a writer who, though obviously gifted, lacks literary common sense. The whole trouble is this: 'Gladiator' is written around too good an idea. It does not, as a piece of sustained narrative, attain the slightest effectiveness; indeed, it is almost an affliction to the reader looking for entertainment. And the reason for this failure to tell a good story is that Mr. Wylie starts merrily out on the development of an idea that by its very brilliance can never be properly finished; his premises admit of no logical conclusion."

— Sat R of Lit 6:971 Ap 19 '30 300w

"It all makes an unusual and very readable story, one that is at times extremely amusing, but the author has hardly risen quite to the occasion. In the absence of any vitalizing touch of the poetic imagination, his commendable realism topples over at times into a frank vulgarity, and at his best he seldom soars above the obvious. But the simple novelty of the story will certainly please many readers."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p556 Jl 3 '30 200w

WYNNE, ANTHONY, pseud. See Wilson, R. M.

WYNNE, PAMELA, pseud. See Scott, W. M.

WYNNTON, PATRICK. Strange pursuit (Eng title: Honourable pursuit). 304p $2 Lippincott 30-23087

Hugo met Theresa "underneath a taxicab at the less refined end of the Rue des Palmiers." From this romantic beginning there follows the tale of Hugo's adventures as a leader of smugglers and other disreputable characters off the coast of France, pursued by the girl he loves, who is in the employ of the French police.

Books p13 S 7 '30 100w

"A story of smuggling that has little plausibility about it, 'Strange Pursuit' is nevertheless amusing."

+ — Boston Transcript p3 Jl 26 '30 180w

"In 'Strange Pursuit' Mr. Wynnton has shown that he might have produced either a story of wild excitement or a well-constructed novel; instead, he has partially missed both goals." M. G.

— N Y Evening Post p5s Ag 30 '30 100w

"If you like blood and thunder tales, you should enjoy 'Strange Pursuit.'"

N Y Times p15 Ag 10 '30 150w

"This is a collection of worn-out melodramatic devices which gain a certain novelty from the fact that few authors are rash enough to spread them so thick as Mr. Wynnton does: The sentiment is plentiful and conventional. The style is cheap and strained."

— Sat R of Lit 7:12 Jl 26 '30 250w

"The situation is melodramatic enough, but Mr. Wynnton has neither a melodramatic mind nor a melodramatic style of writing, and Hugo's reasonable doubts of Theresa's loyalty and Theresa's love for him are treated in a way that lifts the novel out of the class of the cheaply thrilling. The book has merits which would make the reader forgive it much more than one improbability."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p481 Je 5 '30 180w

Y

YANCEY, LEWIS ALONZO. Aerial navigation and meteorology; a comprehensive treatise in simple language for the student with an average education. 2d rev and enl ed 316p pl $4 Henley

629.13 Aeronautics. Meteorology 29-20269

"In simple language Capt Yancey explains the use of charts and maps and gives instruction about the compass, the correction of courses, and the use of various instruments. The information is of the elementary sort which all pilots need to possess. There are also chapters on air commerce regulations and first aid to the injured—the last perhaps falling somewhat outside the scope of the work. The book contains 100 engravings and colored plates, and many examples are given concerning correction of courses."—Springf'd Republican

Booklist 26:326 My '30

Cleveland Open Shelf p105 Jl '29

N Y New Tech Bks 14:51 O '29

"Many young aviators who are now becoming commercial pilots should find such a book helpful. A pilot who can add some knowledge of navigation to his equipment certainly has an advantage." W. B. Shaw

YANCEY, L. A.—Continued
+ R of Rs 80:24 S '29 100w

"A well-prepared study for the use of students."
+ Springf'd Republican p7c S 8 '29 100w

YASHIRO, YUKIO. Sandro Botticelli and the Florentine renaissance. rev ed 261p il $15 Hale

759.5 Botticelli, Sandro. Renaissance—Italy 30-26189

A new and less expensive edition of Professor Yashiro's three-volume work on Botticelli, which appeared in 1925. The author is professor of the history of art in the Imperial academy of Tokio. His book is a sympathetic and interpretive study of Botticelli's work. With 190 illustrations and 16 color plates.

Booklist 26:326 My '30

"Mr. Yashiro is professor of the history of art in the Imperial Academy of Tokio. His aim in writing this book was not so much to give an exact historical account of Botticelli's art as to convey to his readers the very strong impression it had made upon him. He is a Botticelli enthusiast, and in this reaction of the painting of an Italian Renaissance master on an Oriental mind lies the chief interest of the book." Angus Davidson
Nation and Ath 46:sup370 D 7 '29 140w

"A cheaper edition of Professor Yashiro's monumental work, which is likely to remain for a long time as the standard authority. The latest, and probably the final, research on Botticelli is presented, although experts will still bicker as to the vexed question of the attribution of certain canvases. But Professor Yashiro tells us all that is now likely to come to light as regards Botticelli himself, and makes a fascinating story out of it. His command of English is beyond criticism, and would not be worth commenting upon if it were not for the fact that many of our native writers upon art fall far behind him in the graces of expression."
+ New Statesman 34:306 D 7 '29 250w

"Here, manifestly, is a book that deserves to be read by many rather than just to be treasured by the few. . . Professor Yashiro's enthusiasm is as stimulating as his penetration is scholarly and clear-headed. The book is prepared supremely con amore, by a man for whom art possesses no arbitrary boundaries; by one who sees the East and the West undivided, esthetically, and whose steadfast wish besides 'is to deliver art from the guidance of specialists and return it to the simple desire of man.' "
+ N Y Times p40 N 24 '29 200w
St Louis 28:213 S '30

"One reads Professor Yashiro's new revised edition of his 'Sandro Botticelli' with a growing sense that it was needed in the literature of art. This cheaper edition has been eagerly expected by those who could only covet the original three-volume limited edition now out of print. These pictures speak out with the scholarly text, and those who think while they look can compose their own history of one of the greatest geniuses of the Florentine Renaissance."
+ Sat R of Lit 6:607 D 28 '29 80w
Times [London] Lit Sup p167 F 27 '30 250w

YATES, DORNFORD, pseud. See Mercer, C. W.

YATES, HANNAH. Dim star. 296p $2.50 Morrow

30-33265

The story of Amos Bernand, a young artist, and Silvia, whom he loved. These two were bound together by a deep and understanding love, but were destined never to marry, owing to the scheming of a clever woman who loved Amos passionately. The scene is Liverpool in the 1790's.

" 'Dim Star' is a novel of the utmost decorum, stilted and exceedingly sentimental."
Books p16 O 5 '30 100w

"The character sketches are strong and lifelike. The story of Amos's deterioration is discriminating. How everybody was cheated by the transaction is well pictured. The psychology of the character studies is penetrating. The plot is simple and its strength is in its simplicity, where one might expect mystery or liaison."
+ Boston Transcript p2 Je 14 '30 250w

"Miss Yates has brought the period of the French Wars, the tragedies of shipbuilders who see their boats sunk or captured, the warm afternoons in the public square, and the household difficulties of the ladies, with equal vividness before the reader—who is transported, with all of his senses keen, into the Liverpool that is pictured. The author's device of having the story written by some one who still has the pictures is convincing and helps to lend verisimilitude to the tale, which is delicately and beautifully told."
+ N Y Times p9 Ap 20 '30 520w

YATES, MARGARET. Miss Morrow sees the Mediterranean. 298p il $3 Penn

910.4 Mediterranean sea—Description and travel 29-20894

"Perhaps instigated by a travel bureau, this book tells the novice exactly what to expect on a winter cruise of the Mediterranean. From the moment that 'Miss Morrow' buys her ticket on Fifth Avenue, she overlooks no opportunity for conveying information casually. Advice about the best hotels for lunch and the conventional things to see is interwoven with a shipboard romance."—N Y Evening Post

"The ingenuous little story not only gives welcome glimpses of picturesque Mediterranean littorals, but also equally welcome glimpses of those well-bred traveling Americans, too generally ignored in travel-stories."
+ Boston Transcript p7 N 27 '29 280w
N Y Evening Post p11m D 28 '29 50w
Springf'd Republican p8 D 23 '29 300w

YATES, RAYMOND FRANCIS. A B C of television; or, Seeing by radio. 210p il $3 Henley [10s 6d Chapman]

621.388 Television 29-14118

A handbook compiled for those who seek to assemble their own television and telephotographic machines. "Includes a brief history of television, a glimpse into its future, as well as its immediate possibilities. Explains in easily-understood language the theory of photo-electric cells, scanning discs, neon tubes, Kerr cells, selenium cells, and the underlying factors involved in the successful transmission of still and living scenes. Outlines the various television and telephotographic systems in use today and tells how to build and use simple home-made equipment." (Subtitle)

Booklist 26:192 F '30
N Y New Tech Bks 15:26 Ap '30
Pratt p18 summer '30
St Louis 28:8 Ja '30

YATES, ROBERT L. When I was a harvester. 174p il $1.75 Macmillan

30-15509

Seventeen-year-old Bob Yates, tired of regular summer vacations, hires out as a harvester in the wheat fields of the Canadian Northwest. This is a record of his experiences.

Bookm 72:xxviii N '30 50w

"The style is wordy and cheap. The photographs used as illustrations are the best part of the book."
— N Y Times p17 Je 22 '30 180w

"Here is the zest of young blood and the very feel of healthy muscle. Bubbles of poetry float up from the pages, and an occasional hymnal strain. If spontaneity and good humor could make 'an important manuscript' as the publisher's reader calls this one, important it would be. Unluckily for the check-up, we, too, once went west with the harvesters and got to know something about Saskatchewan, and we are wondering if Yates has not listened to the glib natives of that region (which he calls 'uncharted') not wisely but too well." Morris Longstreth

+ — Sat R of Lit 7:110 S 6 '30 380w

"Whether or not all the details are veracious, the author has made an entertaining story about a very real adventure—the annual Canadian trek to the wheat fields."

+ Springf'd Republican p10 Jl 22 '30 600w

YBARRA, THOMAS RUSSELL. Bolivar, the passionate warrior. 365p $4 Washburn

B or 92 Bolívar, Simón 29-21294

For descriptive note see Annual for 1929.

Booklist 26:203 F '30

"Mr. Ybarra has not done a job of research and fresh interpretation; he has merely followed, and rather hastily, the standard biographies. In his book Bolivar is still the cloudy strutting hero of a simple political melodrama. There are no shadings to the character, no understandings of the complicated social and political background on which he moved." L. M. Marin

— Books p18 N 24 '29 720w

Boston Transcript p5 N 27 '29 320w

Cleveland Open Shelf p94 Je '30

"Too much praise cannot be given to the achievement of the extremely difficult and important balance which the author has gained in his recording of the varied and kaleidoscopic events of Bolivar's life. The whole careful scheme of the book is indicative of the devotion which has gone into its creation, in concept, in evaluation of material and in presentaton. It is essentially historical in the highest sense, the sense of bringing history close to the life of the reader." Wallace Thompson

+ Current Hist 31:851 F '30 1200w

"Apparently no considerable use has been made of the large mass of inedited manuscripts that have never been properly utilized by any biographer of the great liberator. Yet Ybarra often adds piquancy to his story by quotations from printed sources. . . The volume lacks an index. Because of its movement, sympathy, and local color this biography appeals to the general reader, while mistakes due to hero worship and imperfect knowledge of the field render it less attractive to students of Hispanic-American history." W. S. Robertson

+ — Nation 131:185 Ag 13 '30 500w

"We grow fairly weary of his lyrical questions, exclamations and refrains, as of his constant calculations of the vastness of Bolivar's conquests in terms of France plus Germany plus Italy. It is to be said, however, that Bolivar lived in the rhetoric of the Napoleonic era, as Miranda in that of the Revolution. In detail he is sometimes wrong. And behind his story there certainly remains a mass of unexplored material. Probably the historian of Bolivar's period must go to Spain, as Dr. Robertson to England. At all events, Mr. Ybarra has performed a useful service by demonstrating that the history of South America remains as unfinished as its political institutions." R. M. Lovett

— + New Repub 64:211 O 8 '30 950w

"Ybarra's story of the hero is a zealous song of praise. This spirit, and the oratorical style common to Latin American tales of its national heroes, makes the biography somewhat difficult reading for a North American. . . Submitting to Senor Ybarra's bombast, one may find in the book, sometimes in the lines, and sometimes between them, an extraordinary person who was ardently hated, wonderfully loved, who starved, sacrificed, fought, gave everything, and charmed others into giving everything, for the sake of being called the Liberator." Anita Brenner

+ — N Y Evening Post p11m N 9 '29 650w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:9 F '30

St Louis 28:148 My '30

YEATS-BROWN, FRANCIS CHARLES CLAYPON. Lives of a Bengal lancer (Eng title: Bengal lancer). 299p $2.75 Viking press [9s Gollancz]

B or 92 India—Social life and customs 30-30790

The first part of Major Yeats-Brown's autobiography relates his experiences as a young subaltern in the Bengal lancers. Then came the war, when he was attached to the Royal flying corps in Mesopotamia and captured by the Turks. The last part of the story is concerned with his return to India and his absorption in the study of Yoga.

"The book has rare qualities of wit, humor, and unusual knowledge for anyone to enjoy, but for one who had the honor of being shouted at by the author in the mud-walled riding school of the 17th Cavalry in Rawalpindi, it has more than mere enjoyment." A. W. Smith

+ Atlantic Bookshelf p41 D '30 450w

Booklist 27:203 Ja '31

"His book is an utterly honest book. It is no heady brew to carry you breathless over pitfalls, but rare and good wine that will warm your memory and delight you, and draw you into introspection." Harold Lamb

+ Books p1 N 2 '30 800w

"One of the most remarkable books in modern literature. I have known no other instance of a genuine psychological record of any intimate touch of a western mind with the mind of the east." Rabindranath Tagore

+ Chicago Daily Tribune p15 D 13 '30 700w

Christian Century 47:1454 N 26 '30 200w

Cleveland Open Shelf p157 D '30

"Major Yeats-Brown can write well, and he has considerable powers of describing scenes and incidents in his past with remarkable vividness. Particularly scenes of swift action seem to appeal to him as an artist, for he gets the feeling of rapid movement into his descriptions in a way which very few writers are capable of. His account of a polo match and of pig-sticking are much the best things in his book, and the whole of the first part in which he describes life in the Bengal Lancers is admirable. I could have wished that he had devoted his whole book to that life, for I do not think he is nearly so successful where he is dealing with his war adventures or with his mysticism. But it is only fair to him and to the book to say that many people will not and do not agree with me." Leonard Woolf

+ — Nation and Ath 47:569 Ag 2 '30 550w

"No autobiography I have ever read so successfully achieves the secret purpose of all autobiography—to display the author as an interesting and admirable man. Mr. Yeats-Brown does so by out-of-the ordinary means. It is impossible not to like him for his comradely closeness to his soldiers, his affection for his bulldogs, his feeling for horses, his enthusiasm for games. In all this there is so direct a sense of fine, free living that one is irresistibly led to envy him his experiences and still more his superb sensory equipment." Isidore Schneider

+ New Repub 65:199 D 31 '30 680w

"The book is vigorously written; with many passages of surprising beauty."

+ New Statesman 35:508 Jl 26 '30 600w

Reviewed by Eugene Lohrke

N Y Evening Post p4d N 1 '30 700w

"It is a splendid book. If Major Yeats-Brown has any more books as good within him, let

YEATS-BROWN, F. C. C.—Continued
him come forward with them. The readers of 'The Lives' will welcome them eagerly." H. J. Forman
+ N Y Times p5 N 2 '30 950w

"The vitality in the author's story telling, his flair for action and his alertness make this a most readable book. Even in describing his slow comprehension of East Indian mysticism ne remains a man of common sense. In fact, the qualities in this book remind one of those in 'The Story of San Michele.'" Harry Hansen
+ N Y World p9 N 1 '30 600w
Outlook 156:388 N 5 '30 230w

"This is not a long book, but it has no wasted word, and the author can describe anything with quiet mastery." Osbert Burdett
+ Sat R 150:52 Jl 12 '30 1150w

"No book I know that deals with the East, Near or Far, enters so deeply into the soul and spirit of the unknown brother as this brilliant and unpretentious autobiography." Leonard Bacon
+ Sat R of Lit 7:285 N 1 '30 480w

"Bengal Lancer is an autobiography of an unusual kind, for Major Yeats-Brown is possessed of that extremely rare faculty of being able to decipher himself without self-consciousness. Quoting from one of his own note-books, he speaks of certain hours when the brain seems to be separate from the body, and it is in just some such mood of detachment that he has written this fascinating volume. He gives the impression of a very acute observer noting down and describing with great vividness in a style of excellent clarity a quantity of most interesting happenings external to himself, but all the time he is carving with deft and quiet strokes that image of himself which, long before the book is done, stands out complete." E. F. Benson
+ Spec 145:56 Jl 12 '30 750w
Times [London] Lit Sup p604 Jl 24 '30 800w

YERKES, ROBERT MEARNS, and YERKES, MRS ADA (WATTERSON). Great apes; a study of anthropoid life. 652p il $10 Yale univ. press [45s Oxford]

599.88 Apes. Psychology, Comparative 29-18079

For descriptive note see Annual for 1929.

"This book will become a classic. As a handbook and critical evaluation of the literature to date on the behavior and capacities of the great apes—the gibbon, the orang-outan, the chimpanzees, and the gorilla—it is superb. It contains 172 amusing and informative illustrations, ranging from such curiosities as a drawing of a 'manlike creature' which first appeared in Briedenbach's Travels in 1486 to many recent photographs of the four types of great ape in various experimental or semi-experimental situations. . . The book, considered as a whole, is a tremendous storehouse of critical information." E. C. Tolman
+ Am Anthropol 32:313 Ap '30 1500w

"The book is a masterly piece of work, scholarly, careful, and non-sensational; it shows a rare combination of scepticism with sympathy; and it ends appropriately by indicating the lines of further investigation that are at present most urgent and most promising."
+ Nature 125:485 Mr 29 '30 500w
St Louis 28:135 My '30

"The authors' knowledge of the chimpanzee, as they justly remark, is only equalled by Köhler's, and most of their research work on this ape has not hitherto been published. They too alone possess intimate knowledge of the gorilla. Hence it is not surprising that the book has gradually and irresistibly developed so as to present detailed accounts of their own unique psychological experiments and observations. . . The whole work is admirably done, with characteristic accuracy and cautiousness of statement. It is hard to find a misprint in these 670 pages." C. S. Myers
+ Sat R of Lit 6:843 Mr 22 '30 1100w

"It presents little that is new, but this does not prevent it from being the most useful work on the living anthropoid that has yet been written. . . Professor and Mrs. Yerkes have illustrated their treatise with a magnificent collection of photographs. They have also included a comprehensive bibliography. The book has one important disadvantage. It is unnecessarily long. Without in any way departing from their purpose and without omitting any facts, they could have achieved their aim in many fewer words. Repetition is common."
+ — Spec 143:981 D 28 '29 1100w

"An historical and critical summary of knowledge regarding these apes that will hereafter be indispensable to students of animal behavior and comparative psychology, and will be of great value to all interested in human evolution and our next of kin." E. G. Conklin
+ Yale R n s 19:603 spring '30 2000w

YOUMANS, N. O., pseud. See Marple, A. C.

YOUNG, C. WALTER. International relations of Manchuria; a digest and analysis of treaties, agreements, and negotiations concerning the three eastern provinces of China, prepared for the 1929 conference of the Institute of Pacific relations in Kyoto, Japan. 307p $3.50 Univ. of Chicago press [16s Cambridge univ. press]

951.8 Manchuria. Eastern question (Far East). China—Foreign relations 30-3997

"Prepared as one of the 'data papers' for the third conference of the Institute of Pacific Affairs, this volume gives a digest and analysis of treaties, agreements and negotiations concerning the Three Eastern Provinces of China. It provides a background of information necessary for the understanding of the issues that reached a critical stage in the recent armed conflicts at the terminals of the Chinese Eastern Railway. . . After an introductory essay, briefly sketching the events that led up to the incidents reported in the last few months, he gives an account of half a century's struggle for the control of power in Manchuria."—Ann Am Acad

"The treaties, agreements, and negotiations concerning the three eastern provinces of China are summarized and analyzed with such painstaking care that very few slips are to be noted. . . . The method of arrangement of material adopted by the author, however valuable in a reference work, involves an extraordinary amount of repetition. This, together with the rather heavy style, renders this admirable work somewhat tedious for those who read it from cover to cover, as no serious student of Far Eastern affairs should fail to do." J. P. B.
+ — Am Pol Sci R 24:226 F '30 220w

"A story authenticated by reference to original sources in every particular, but also giving evidence of the author's thorough grasp of the multitude of concrete problems involved, as observed by him on the spot. The book is recommended by some of our best American authorities as a reliable guide through the mazes of the present struggle in and about Manchuria. Every editor of foreign news and every teacher of current history will feel safer in his interpretations of coming events in this disturbed region after consulting a book which is factual, impartial and arranged for easy reference." Bruno Lasker
+ Ann Am Acad 147:224 Ja '30 450w

"It is no book for the average reader. It is for the student of history and for such others as need to know about the Far East and want facts. For them it is invaluable. Only those who have attempted to work in Far Eastern historical materials can know how prodigious has been Mr. Young's task and how admirably he has executed it. He has not written history, but what is far more difficult, has delved for the raw materials with which historians can write." Nathaniel Peffer
+ Books p25 N 10 '29 750w

Reviewed by A. M. Nikolaieff
Current Hist 31:1066 Mr '30 700w

"The work of Mr. Young went to press after the Chinese seizure of the railway last July. It includes a brief account of that crisis and the most important documents relating to railway control."
Nation 130:21 Ja 1 '30 60w

St Louis 28:38 F '30

"The work, as a whole, admirably fulfils the author's purpose of supplying a connected account of events in and about China's loosely held Northern Dependencies and of explaining the essential facts of a situation which, as Professor Willoughby observes in a brief preface, is certain to become of increasing international importance."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p87 F 6 '30 900w

YOUNG, CATHARINE. Lady who loved herself; the life of Madame Roland. 327p il $4 (16s) Knopf

B or 92 Roland de la Platière, Mme Marie Jeanne (Phlipon) 30-21288

Catharine Young depicts the "Egéria of the Gironde" as a woman of boundless ambition deeply dissatisfied with the reality of her life, who by keeping persistently in mind the kind of person she wished to be almost succeeded in becoming that person. The biography analyzes her psychology and motives and shows how this comparatively obscure young woman came to be the confidante of some of the most powerful politicians of the French revolution and her salon their informal headquarters.

"Half through the book and just when she reached the drama and meaning of the story, the biographer seems suddenly to have grown tired of the whole thing and completes the tale as if it were something to be got through quickly. It is a pity, for Miss Young shows that when she wishes to she knows how to write."
— Bookm 72:80 S '30 180w

"Shrewdly, competently and racily written, the book is vivid and impressive. I must admit that I do not like the book's title. Have not all women—at least all who were normal—loved themselves? Fortunately, Miss Young is only part of the time the biographer with a purpose. Her book is pleasant as well as profitable reading."
+ — Books p35 S 28 '30 650w

"Far too ecstatic, with unnecessary descriptive details and imaginative psychologisings, and not enough plain fact."
— New Statesman 35:770 S 27 '30 50w

"Although it may seem that, from a scholarly point of view, there is little reason for telling her story again, Catharine Young's biography has at least the excuse of novelty. It is a refreshingly unsentimental analysis of Mme. Roland's character, excellently calculated to revise the impressions which the average layman is likely to have acquired from his school reader." Margaret Wallace
+ N Y Evening Post p5s Ag 9 '30 850w

"Taken together the two present studies [Catherine Young's and Mme Clemenceau-Jacquemaire's] admirably supplement each other, probably affording as fully rounded a portrait as the lay reader may well obtain of this strange woman whose name has come to overshadow many far more historically important ones in that long chronicle of blood and horror. Each is the work of a scholar-craftsman." Howard Devree
+ N Y Times p9 S 7 '30 700w

St Louis 28:302 D '30

YOUNG, ELEANOR G. R. Anastasia arrives. 146p il $1.50 Sully

29-20429

Several tales in which Anastasia, colored servant to "Mis' Elner" up North, tells of her experiences and adventures as a girl in Virginia, and as a servant in the best families. These stories originally appeared in The Christian Science Monitor.

"The book is written in a quietly humorous, delightfully impersonal manner. The dialect assumes form that necessitates no hours of pondering over its meaning."
+ Boston Transcript p10 N 9 '29 120w

"Anastasia would make Noah Webster turn in his grave if he were capable of it; but she is an amusing and enjoyable raconteur of old experiences to which 'Mis' Elner' smilingly listens, getting a remonstrance if she tries to censor the story either as to fact or vocabulary."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 5 '29 160w

YOUNG, EMILY HILDA. Miss Mole. 293p $2 Harcourt [7s 6d Cape, J.]

30-30566

Miss Mole was the seemingly colorless housekeeper in an English minister's family. The family was an exceedingly difficult one to manage, but Miss Mole succeeded marvelously, as long as she was not meddled with. Then along came Mr Pilgrim, with his knowledge of Miss Mole's past, and all her cleverness could not keep the fat out of the fire. But, at that, it was the best thing which could have happened.

"A thousand books launched by such circumstances as those of Miss Hannah Mole have been wrecked on the reefs of sentimentality, but this is too clear-sighted, too witty to be even in danger. It sails past in gay serenity, and only toward the close does one discover that unexpected, but not surprising, chapter in the life of the little housekeeper that explains the qualities that have kept her whole." Mary Ross
+ Books p6 S 28 '30 600w

"The story is unimportant, though it is skilfully constructed, and the element of suspense, delicately created, is not lacking. In the sane and subtle delineation of her characters Miss Young shows extraordinary gifts."
+ Nation 131:450 O 22 '30 200w

"The interest is sustained all through. Miss Young has much to reveal about this courageous, pitiful, happy-go-lucky spinster, who goes from post to post until she becomes housekeeper to a nonconformist minister. The scenes between Miss Mole and the minister are rich in humour, inferred rather than expressed. The unhappy girls are treated with genuine psychological insight, free from sentiment and with exquisite understanding." K. C. Tomlinson
+ Nation and Ath 47:681 Ag 30 '30 200w

"An unexpected romance, so stripped of sentimentality that one feared at moments for its sentiment, makes a surprisingly moving climax to a beautiful and witty book."
+ New Statesman 35:413 Jl 5 '30 180w

Reviewed by Edwin Seaver
N Y Evening Post p4d O 18 '30 80w

"Except for the fact that the quite necessary thread of plot is sometimes lost, the novel is, in its brilliant, fragile way, faultless. As a character study, the novel is subtle, penetrating and honest. As a romance, it is completely free from sentimentality. And as a piece of literature, it is quite unaffected by the writing currents of the day and sits securely in its tiny niche in the great edifice of English letters." F. L. R.
+ Outlook 156:230 O 8 '30 150w

"Miss Mole, the gay and penniless spinster on the wrong side of forty, is a delightful character, an original and living creation. Once one has adjusted the sight to the author's spectacles and has agreed to see life in little, Miss Mole's skirmishings, sallies and retreats in the household of a pompous nonconformist minister are intensely amusing. The insight into character is expert; the irony is fine; the sense of comedy a trifle kittenish but essentially intelligent." V. S. P.
+ Spec 145:172 Ag 2 '30 250w

YOUNG, E. H.—Continued

"While the author has employed a vast amount of delicacy and subtlety in embodying her intuition, the embodiment remains at the end a little incomplete and unsubstantial. But all readers who prize rarity and freshness in a novelist's spirit and workmanship will find much to admire in Miss Young's tale. Its defect is that ultimately it seems an achievement of fancy rather than of imagination."

+ — Springf'd Republican p7e S 28 '30 550w

"An exciting and stimulating study of character by a witty and accomplished writer. Miss Young's picture of Hannah is brilliant. Such an incalculable mixture of kindliness, glorious unscrupulousness, shrewdness and sudden prodigality of heart would be hard to match."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p608 Jl 24 '30 380w

YOUNG, FRANCIS BRETT. The Redlakes (Eng title: Jim Redlake). 617p $3 Harper [10s 6d Heinemann]

30-28398

A long novel which portrays Jim Redlake, grandson of a sturdy English doctor, and son of a famous but eccentric author, from his boyhood days until his marriage after the war.

"In an interlude in which he tells the story of Jim Redlake in Africa during the war, Mr. Young escapes the romantic halo and writes vigorously of a hard reality. For the rest, this is the soothing kind of romance in which the brave and the good win here and now and live happy ever afterward, the evil are punished, and the world runs on smoothly in a moral orbit." Mary Ross

Atlantic Bookshelf p42 D '30 220w

Booklist 27:163 D '30

"Somehow the whole thing appears to be a little too familar, and circumstances, even when they are as wealthy and well managed as they are here, do not alter cases. Obviously Mr Brett Young deserves to sell his six hundred pages, because he is a very capable novelist. But he ought to be a great one. The beauty of his English in general and his account of the Smuts campaign in particular are quite beyond a merely capable writer."

+ Bookm 72:301 N '30 230w

"'The Redlakes' is a smug and showy book in the lushness of its setting. For many readers it will be quite as good as the 'movies' in transporting one from the pricks of personal circumstance to an opulent world where all ultimately turns out well. For another and smaller group there will be a mild regret that a writer who can sling words as smoothly as Francis Brett Young should have expended such thousands of them on this overgrown bedtime story. From that epithet, however, one must except the series of chapters on Jim's life and war service in Africa. There is freshness in the apperception of that majestic landscape and a straightforward story of marching men which gives this narrative far more of life and breath than the stereotyped emotion of the English scenes." Mary Ross

— + Books p5 O 19 '30 800w

Cleveland Open Shelf p148 D '30

New Statesman 36:179 N 15 '30 400w

"A comparison with a recent novel, 'The Edwardians,' will be instructive. The subject of the latter book, the breakdown of a sense of significance and conviction in the Edwardian aristocracy, is a mere part of the arc which is subtended by 'The Redlakes.' It is the richness of documentation, the milieu and contrast of other classes, as fully presented as they themselves, that give 'The Redlakes' a reality that is not posssssed by Miss Sackville-West's witty book. The characterization is as rich and substantial as the background. . . Possibly Mr. Young sometimes runs the use of coincidence a bit fine." Edgar Johnson

+ — N Y Evening Post p4d O 25 '30 850w

"Brett Young's new novel is thoroughly in a tradition beloved by the English. It is smoothly, dextrously, now and then wittily, written; it reveals an excellent surface knowledge of manners; its characters are vivid types. So much for its virtues; as for its shortcomings, it falls gracefully enough, into sentimentality, and it overflows, entertainingly enough, with snobbery."

+ — N Y Times p6 N 2 '30 500w

Reviewed by E. C. Beckwith

N Y World p3e D 21 '30 230w

Sat R 150:598 N 8 '30 180w

"It is a long and leisurely book, and a rich and fertile one. It is full of incidents, full of characters, and full of scenes. And all the characters and scenes are set forth with a sense of their length, breadth, and thickness, and their past and future, and four dimensions which, according to Mr. Wells's 'Time Machine' anything must possess to have a real existence." Basil Davenport

+ Sat R of Lit 7:414 D 6 '30 500w

"A long, solid, distinguished bit of work, with enough good writing and characterization to make the reputation of two new writers. It is also, finally, rather a bore." L. A. G. Strong

+ — Spec 145:697 N 8 '30 450w

Times [London] Lit Sup p912 N 6 '30 600w

YOUNG, JAMES C. Marse Robert, knight of the confederacy. 362p $5 Henkle

B or 92 Lee, Robert Edward 29-30437

"Mr. Young's book attempts no final appraisal of Lee's strategy; it has to do rather with the human aspects of its subject's character and career—those traits that made him the hero of the South and have at last brought him recognition as one of the great Americans of all time."—R of Rs

"There is in this life-story of the Knight of the Confederacy a strange quality that produces the feeling that you are meeting Lee through the kindness of a reverent press agent and not growing to know him through his own inherent noblesse. The book, aside from this effect, is revealing and poetic and interesting, and is backed by a wealth of excellent source material."

+ — Bookm 71:vi Jl '30 130w

"The presentation is interesting and effective, though somewhat conventional. Although Mr. Young occasionally lapses into the language of and the attitudes of chivalry, and though he is guilty of some egregious historical errors, the faults of the book are negative rather than positive, and they are quite outweighed by its qualities of charm and enthusiasm and intelligence."

+ — Books p14 My 18 '30 380w

"There is a great deal to commend Mr. Young's biography of General Lee. While it does not add greatly to our knowledge either of the War of the South or of its leader, yet much that was widely scattered is brought together here with scholarly discrimination. He pays more attention to the Lees in England than do most of the other biographers." G. R. B. Richards

+ Boston Transcript p2 Ja 4 '30 1800w

"That Mr. Young has been earnest, industrious and intelligent in his task of portraiture is evident in his book from the first to the last page. That he had many difficulties to overcome is equally evident. Perhaps it is still too early to permit a full length. untilted picture to be painted of Robert E. Lee. The man himself stands in the way of the biographer. The very qualities that made General Lee 'Marse Robert' to his hungry, ragged, barefooted armies call for a biographer who is something more or less, than human. . . It is a pity that certain mannerisms of style compel the reviewer to withhold the full measure of praise he would like to give for such a really splendid piece of biography."

+ — Christian Science Monitor p10 Ja 11 '30 1100w

Cleveland Open Shelf p28 F '30

"There is an atmosphere of charm and gentility about this book that is in keeping with its conception of Lee and that makes of it pleasant reading, but the treatment of Lee's career is neither profound nor critical and adds nothing new to our understanding of the man and his achievements." T. R. Hay

+ — Current Hist 32:608 Je '30 600w

Reviewed by Allen Tate

New Repub 62:277 Ap 23 '30 80w

"'Marse Robert' is bewildering rather than enlightening. From its pages, Lee emerges as a hero who is so completely without fear and without reproach that, if one might ignore facts, he could be dismissed as a prig. Mr. Young has painted his hero completely without warts. . . His account of Lee's campaigns and battles is his book's highest virtue. His chief failure has been his inability, whether because of his subject or of his own inadequacies, to present Lee so that the reader of today can catch even a remote echo of a magnetism and charm that fired ragged, starving men with so blind a devotion." F. F. Van de Water

— + N Y Evening Post p11m D 28 '29 750w

Reviewed by C. W. Thompson

N Y Times p4 F 2 '30 2000w

"The treatment throughout is laudatory; the kindly side of Lee is stressed; one gets the impression, after reading the book, that Lee is sitting somewhere on Traveler, surveying man and his works without rancor and hatred, but with a great calm and a benevolent kindliness." Harry Hansen

N Y World p12 D 13 '29 1000w

Reviewed by W. B. Shaw

R of Rs 81:28 F '30 160w

St Louis 28:113 Ap '30

"Mr. Young is moderately successful in discussing the personal life of General Lee, although it is occasionally difficult to discern where fact leaves off and fancy begins, but when he ventures into political and military affairs, he sometimes gets beyond his depth. Many of his blunders could have been avoided by a more careful study of some of the sources listed in his bibliography." A. H. Meneely

— + Sat R of Lit 7:71 Ag 23 '30 1200w

YOUNG, KIMBALL. Social psychology; an analysis of social behavior. 674p $4 Crofts [21s Knopf]

301 Social psychology 30-14174

"The purpose of this book, by the Associate Professor of Sociology at Wisconsin University, is 'to present pertinent materials in the field of social psychology which are not easily available.' They are designed to indicate the nature of social behaviour rather than to suggest how people should behave, and are classified in six sections:—General features of social behaviour; psychological foundations; personality and social behaviour; social attitudes and the subjective environment; leadership and prestige in social behavior; collective behavior."—Times [London] Lit Sup

"The book is well written, clear, concise, interesting, with a wealth of carefully chosen illustrative materials, class assignments, and questions. Whether it is used with or without the author's Source Book for Social Psychology, it is safe to call it one of the best, if not the best, sociological introductions to social psychology." Read Bain

+ Ann Am Acad 151:288 S '30 380w

"Here is much material—too much for unified development, and none too effective in its organization. The inclusion of hundreds of case histories and long illustrative quotations precludes evenness of literary quality; but those portions of the text which come from the author himself are the most lacking in stylistic effectiveness. Errors not only of usage but of fact detract from the effectiveness of this work. Considerations like these, however aside, Mr. Young's text is of interest as a revelation of the present state of the social scientists' thinking." Stanley Rypins

— + Books p30 S 28 '30 500w

Times [London] Lit Sup p147 F 21 '29 100w

YOUNG, STARK. Street of the islands. 218p il $2.50 Scribner

30-25745

A collection of short stories, the scenes of which are set in southern or Latin lands. In all of them the story counts for less than the mood which it communicates. Contents: The land of Juan de Dios; Assisi farmer; The light on the hills; Cowboy at the antique shop window; The passionate road; Felipe; Beatus Rex; Miss Sissie; Campo Santo; The harp player; Ora pro nobis.

Booklist 27:163 D '30

"Certainly this book does transcend current fiction in some respects, notably as regards matters of taste, decorum, volition and restraint. In an era which has confused imaginative verity with the literal transcription of the ugliest aspects of contemporary life, it is a pleasure to read such a story as 'The Harp Player.' Encouraging as the doctrines of Mr. Young are, they are mainly peripheral to his central doctrine, which seems to me very far from new, very far from being 'less naïve' than the main current of thought from the youthful Wordsworth through Keats, Shelley, Browning and Pater to the scented souls of Pre-Raphaelitism and modern imagism. In its main trend, with [a few] exceptions, The Street of the Islands represents not the dawn of anything new but rather the twilight glow of the old naturalism."

+ — Bookm 72:165 O '30 1700w

"Sometimes Mr. Young puts between the reader and the mood of the writing both himself and a journalistic female character—with a most unpleasant effect. The tone of their dialogue and intrusions is not good. It is irritating. Again, he frames some of his delicate, water-color creations with heavy and cumbersome situations. None of these pieces is forceful enough to stand such treatment. The moods and the atmospheres—always more impressive than the stories themselves—are dissipated. Even these moods and atmospheres, uninterrupted, are not enough to make this an exceptionally good book of short stories. They are polite, gentle writing by a man who has been very stimulating in other fields." Lawrence Lea

— + Books p15 O 12 '30 480w

Cleveland Open Shelf p144 N '30

"One admires this writing but one is conscious of a lack in all the tales. To one reader, at least, they fail to take hold on either the mind or the emotions."

Nation 131:532 N 12 '30 180w

"The stories and sketches collected in 'The Street of the Islands' are always charming and always distinguished by a certain impalpable glamour. They are wrought out of an undeniable perception of beauty, and, in their entirety, make up a fine body of homogeneous writing."

+ N Y Times p6 O 12 '30 850w

Pittsburgh Mo Bul 35:88 D '30

"As I finished this book I thought, 'here is art that has roots.' In much modern prose, even the finest, here is a suggestion of those Japanese flowers that are rooted in no element more stable than water; but in the writing of Stark Young I never lose the feeling of solid substance, of clinging tendrils and rich, dark soil, beneath. I am brought back again and again to the truth that life as a sum and a whole reaches far below the fragmentary surface we call human experience. . . These stories have a rare quality. . . Always the prose, with its grave rhythm and wistful undertones, is restrained by a sensitive and highly civilized nature." Ellen Glasgow

+ Sat R of Lit 7:157 S 27 '30 850w

YOUTH dares all. 299p $2 Macaulay

30-21950

"A picaresque novel of American life. Its hero, Eddie Law, is at once a living character, finely realized, and a walking embodiment of a huge slice of our national mores. Just as Babbitt is a caricature of the middle-class American, so Eddie Law is a broader caricature of the lower-class American. Objectively considered, this Eddie Law is a small-town loafer, a sharper, a lecher, a coward, and a cad; but this is (ostensibly) an autobiographical narrative; Eddie Law tells it himself, with his own grandiloquent illiteracy, and to himself he is always the glamorous adventurer, honest, ambitious, industrious, and pure, and his career a romantic saga."—Nation

YOUTH dares all—Continued

"Picaresque stories are rare, for some reason, in this country of yarn-spinning Yankees. but this anonymous novel has as foot-loose a good-for-nothing hero as ever got into a book. The book bears evidence of being a labor of fascinated hate. It is as impossible to read it without nausea as without laughter."
— + Bookm 71:ix Ag '30 100w

"This 'autobiography' of a young hill billy turned rolling stone is so brilliant an achievement that an unwarned reader might easily be hoaxed into believing that the book actually is an autobiography, or at least that it very closely follows an original document. To an almost uncanny degree the author has caught the manner and style of composition which is one degree removed from illiteracy. . . On the whole the volume defies classification. Its surprise and charm is its uniqueness. It is a sport. And it has been, in a professional sense, quite the despair of this reviewer." F. T. Marsh
+ Books p2 Jl 20 '30 1100w

"The anonymous author of 'Youth Dares All' has produced the most brilliantly humorous picaresque novel of American life that has come this way in a long time." Henry Hazlitt
+ Nation 131:205 Ag 20 '30 750w

"The book is none the less original and amusing for all the slips in it. In fact, the amazing episodes and the riff-raff of characters give it a tone which a story about Paul Bunyan written by Daisy Ashford might have."
+ — New Repub 63:379 Ag 13 '30 500w
N Y Times p7 Jl 27 '30 470w

"A ripe American comedy and a smooth piece of satirical fiction. . . The book is juicy in its humor and is a cruel but truthful portrait of a certain common type of American. The eternal adolescent, innocent hypocrite, victim of untoward circumstance, quick-witted and empty-headed, slick and lazy, full of preachy phrases, convinced that he has a mission in life, bumptious, slyly lustful, sentimental, incredibly conceited: everybody knows Eddie Law." F. L. Robbins
+ Outlook 155:505 Jl 30 '30 250w
Sat R of Lit 7:59 Ag 16 '30 100w

YUGOFF, ARON. Economic trends in soviet
2 Russia; tr. by Eden and Cedar Paul. 349p $4.25 Smith, R.R. [12s 6d Allen, G.]

330.947 Russia—Economic conditions. Russia—Economic policy 30-16123

"Professor Yugoff's view is that, however sincere the Communist leaders may be in their desire to develop an integral Socialist economic supremacy, present economic circumstances in Russia are bound to force her in time to modify her programme in such a way as to attract privately owned capital into the country. He is very sceptical of every Russian proposal and of all Russian figures."—Nation and Ath

"The trouble with Mr. Yugoff is that he is so unreasonably reasonable. An émigré, outside of the creative stream of the revolution, he makes his prognostications on the basis of stray figures and fugitive admissions in the Soviet press. Obviously lacking imagination himself, Mr. Yugoff brooks no flights of imagination in others. He ignores the terrific emotional impetus supplied by the revolution; he fails to realize the miraculous possibilities contained in a concentrated, unflinching will to succeed." Joshua Kunitz
— Books p14 Ag 17 '30 450w

Reviewed by William MacDonald
Current Hist 33:xiv D '30 230w

"This work can be utilized as a cold douche after reading the details of the five-year economic plan; but the cold douche will prove to be not unmixed with a hot temper that detracts from the effect of all the great learning, multifarious newspaper quotations, and technical information Professor Yugoff has amassed in order to corroborate his attacks upon the Soviets and in order to improve his rhetorical periods. It may be added that, for many reasons, this is by no means an easy book to read." R. G. Randall
— Nation and Ath 47:534 Jl 26 '30 220w

"Mr. Yugoff's criticism of the Soviet economic system, although obviously that of a political opponent, is free from vindictiveness and exaggeration, and is based primarily on economic considerations. Mr. Yugoff's analysis of the economic development of the Soviet Union, although already out of date in a number of details, especially in the matter of agriculture (the Russian and German texts of this book were published in 1929), constitutes a healthy corrective to the overoptimistic view that the Communist system offers a panacea for all the ills of capitalist industrialism." V. M. Dean
+ New Repub 64:303 O 29 '30 650w

"Mr. Yugoff overreaches himself by the regularity of his depreciation. He nags; and in the end his nagging becomes very wearisome. One ends by feeling that surely there must be something the Communists have done aright—some rift in the dark clouds of failure and impracticability."
— New Statesman 35:90 Ap 26 '30 850w

"This is one of the best and most reliable 'heavyweight' economic works on Russia that the reviewer ever has chanced to read. It contains a complete picture of Soviet economics, from agriculture to finance, the working of the economic machinery, the housing problem, and so on. Its author employs figures—carefully verified figures—neither to condemn nor to extoll the Soviets, but to draw, as precisely as possible, the complicated panorama on which he is working. While reading his book one constantly feels in him a real student." Alexander Nazaroff
+ N Y Times p5 Ag 31 '30 700w

"Mr. Yugoff's 'Economic Trends in Soviet Russia' is an extraordinary mixture of clever and absurd analysis. . . On the whole the book is more interesting as a personal reaction than as a study, for his understanding of Soviet ideology is hardly profound, as his final interpretive chapter proves." Bernard Smith
— N Y World p10m Ap 13 '30 150w
St Louis 28:231 O '30

Z

ZACHRY, CAROLINE BEAUMONT. Personality adjustments of school children; with an introd. by William Heard Kilpatrick. 306p il $1.80 Scribner

136.7 Child study. Children, Abnormal and backward. Mental physiology and hygiene. Educational psychology 29-10163

"Case studies setting forth The troublesome child, The over-conscientious child, The over-dependent child, and so on, with discussions of proper treatment clearly and sanely presented. Of interest to parents, teachers, and social workers."—Wis Lib Bul

"The psychology involved is 'new,' with a considerable, and perhaps disproportionate, emphasis upon the desire for security. The style is readable and the purpose, that of aiding teachers and parents in the understanding and the direction of the personality pattern, is commendable. Unfortunately, the latter part of the book suffers a bit from a seeming haste in construction."
+ — Ann Am Acad 149:sup210 My '30 280w

Booklist 26:15 O '29

Cleveland Open Shelf p131 N '29

"As a teacher, principal, and director of the Department of Psychology and Mental Hygiene of the State Teachers College, Upper Montclair, New Jersey, the author has an unusually rich background for her study. The book should be thought of not as a book merely presenting five case studies but, rather, as a contribution of value to all persons working with school children. The discussion of each case shows the application of that case to similar cases. The material dealing with the general phase of personality development and the responsibility of the school in guiding this development is invaluable." Ruth Cope

+ El School J 30:394 Ja '30 500w

Pratt p8 spring '30

St Louis 27:327 D '29

Wis Lib Bul 25:273 Jl '29

ZAPOLEON, LOUIS B. Inedible animal fats in 2 the United States. (Fats and oils studies) 353p $3.50; pa $3 Food research inst.

665.2 Oils and fats 30-9853

"A technical discussion based on a comprehensive study of the subject, with 'special reference to sources of animal waste, the rendering industry, municipal reduction, and some effects of meat inspection.' " (J Home Econ) The appendix gives the commercial grades of inedible tallow, grease, and derivatives, and methods of sale.

"The author has succeeded in giving a very readable account, authentic and unbiased, of the profound influence exerted by governmental meat inspection, not only on the food industry itself, but on the related industries that are concerned either with the salvaging of animal by-products and meat wastes or with the utilization as raw material of the products so salvaged. For this reason the book can be particularly recommended as a source of information for the public-minded layman interested in food legislation." V. H. Gottschalk

+ Ind & Eng Chem 22:403 Ap '30 280w

"Brings together information which has not been hitherto assembled and contains material of value to advanced classes in food economics."

+ J Home Econ 22:319 Ap '30 60w

St Louis 28:265 N '30

ZEITLIN, IDA. King's pleasure; with il. by Theodore Nadejen. 230p $4 (15s) Harper

Legends—Serbia 29-25612

For descriptive note see Annual for 1929.

Reviewed by A. L. Basinger

Books p21 Mr 16 '30 500w

New Statesman 34:850 Ap 5 '30 200w

"In 'King's Pleasure,' Ida Zeitlin has fused ancient Serb historic and mystic legends with traditions into a Chronicle. It is composed in rhythmic yet compact prose, that moves with strength and with vivid and often beautiful descriptions; 'a naive blend of fact and fancy,' which the author claims reflects the Serb more truly than does any other method. Mr. Nadejen, the illustrator, has gathered some of the material from monasteries in Serbia, and has modeled his pictures upon early Serb art." F. J. Olcott

+ Sat R of Lit 6:671 Ja 25 '30 530w

Times [London] Lit Sup p385 My 8 '30 650w

Wis Lib Bul 26:107 Mr '30

ZHABOTINSKII, VLADIMIR EVGEN'EVICH. See Jabotinsky, V.

ZOLLMANN, CARL FREDERICK GUSTAV. 2 Cases on air law. 530p $5.50 West

345 Aeronautics—Laws and regulations. Aeronautics—Cases. Radio—Laws and regulations. Radio—Cases 30-6707

"Nearly all the cases are of dates subsequent to 1900 except a few referring to balloons, and a large per cent of the cases were decided since 1925. The cases relate both to aviation and radio, and to administrative rulings as well as court decisions. The range of topics is wide. Trespass, insurance, liens, torts, contracts, unfair practices, and many other topics find illustration. Many of the cases necessarily show that air law is still in an early stage, and the rulings and decisions are in a measure tentative. Appendices contain the Air Commerce Act of 1926, Uniform State Law of Aëronautics, and the Radio Act of 1927. There is a list of cases and an index."—Am Pol Sci R

Am Pol Sci R 24:522 My '30 130w

"With one important exception, the book covers adequately the existing field of aviation case law. The exception refers to constitutional questions, the only reference to which appears in a case cited in a footnote to one of the appendices. . . The reviewer believes that the usefulness of the volume would have been increased substantially by the inclusion of extracts from some of the leading articles on the various problems presented. However, the instructor who will discuss the cases, in the light of these articles and the newer and perhaps more authoritative decisions which may be expected in the very near future, will be able to make the book the foundation for an interesting and profitable course." A. L. Newman, II

+ — Columbia Law R 30:753 My '30 900w

"Law teachers will find this casebook an excellent source of material. Professor Zollmann has made a handy, large-print, interesting, well arranged volume." Sayre Macneil

+ Harvard Law R 43:981 Ap '30 1100w

ZUCKER, ADOLF EDUARD. Ibsen, the master builder. 312p il $3.50 Holt

B or 92 Ibsen, Henrik 29-23918

For descriptive note see Annual for 1929.

Booklist 26:158 Ja '30

Cath World 131:246 My '30 600w

"Professor Zucker's fine biography, containing much new material derived largely from conversations with acquaintances of Ibsen and bringing a critical detachment toward and complete understanding of the dramatist which earlier biographies lacked, supplies the lover of Ibsen with an invaluable means of rounding out his knowledge and the ordinary reader with a vastly interesting study of the man who made modern drama." D. B.

+ Churchman p15 D 7 '29 70w

"Within his self-imposed limitations, Mr. Zucker has produced an absorbing book." L. M. Hollander

+ — Nation 130:248 F 26 '30 400w

St Louis 28:53 F '30

"Mr. Zucker, although not particularly gifted with the graces of literary style or any notably keen critical faculty, deserves every credit for the breadth and carefulness of his research, his evident conscientiousness as a collector and reporter of facts, and his unfaltering adherence, sometimes in disregard of such facts, to his own preconceived ideals. As a biographer, doubtless, he is entirely trustworthy. It is only in his estimates of the ject, that his zeal outruns his discretion and exposes him to challenge." J. R. Towse

+ — Sat R of Lit 6:794 Mr 8 '30 1500w

"Though it contains occasional criticism that is shrewd and well-informed, the present volume is not critical in design and no attempt is made in it to reestimate Ibsen. Nor, considered as a biography, is it strongly evocative of its subject's individuality, as a biography must be that, ceasing to be a record, becomes a work of art. But if it is for these two reasons a trifle dull, it has all the merits of its defects. It never strains after the shocks of criticism and is happily innocent of that forced 'picturesqueness' of description by which so many recent books on great men have been made lively beyond endurance. Quiet in manner, orderly in arrangement and thorough in inquiry, it is a genuine contribution to the study of the dramatist's life and through his life, of his work."

ZUCKER, A. E.—Continued
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p754 S 25 '30 400w
Wis Lib Bul 26:41 Ja '30

ZUR MUHLEN, HERMINIA. Runaway coun-
2 tess; tr. from the German by Frank Barnes. 276p $2.50 Cape
B or 92 30-21184

The autobiography of an Austrian noblewoman who rebelled against her environment and whose socialistic ideas brought her into conflict with the aristocratic traditions of her family and her husband.

Books p23 O 5 '30 250w

Reviewed by F. J. Ringel
N Y Evening Post p5s Ag 9 '30 400w

"The book is crowded with information set forth in a most charming way."
Outlook 155:588 Ag 13 '30 300w

ZWEIG, ARNOLD. Claudia; tr. by Eric Sutton. 252p $2.50 Viking press [7s 6d Secker]
30-28848

A series of episodes which picture the growth of an understanding of life in Claudia Eggeling, a sensitive German girl of the upper classes, during the time of her courtship and the early days of her married life.

Bookm 72:viii D '30 100w

"An exquisite novel. 'Claudia' has beauties all the more remarkable for their unlikeness to anything in Zweig's great war book. This short novel, which might more properly be regarded as a series of cumulative episodes, shows less in itself, I think, the mark of an outstanding novelist than the sure sensibilities of Continental tradition. It is the kind of book which no American has written or is likely, in our generation, to write; its fastidiousness, its charm, its quality belong to a different world from ours. It is not only a world of marked and spacious culture; it is also a world where such a culture has done its work, has long reflected itself upon the spirit. It is a world of delight, but it is also a world so fastidious as to be slightly enfeebled, and fearful and unmanned." Louis Kronenberger
+ Books p3 O 19 '30 900w

"'Claudia' is, like all such works, a little tenuous, and the illusion of importance Zweig creates is not abiding; but the creation of that illusion is an artistic achievement, and one feels that at least a few facets of human personality have been illumined with absolute clarity." Granville Hicks
+ Nation 131:620 D 3 '30 220w

"A sentimental, pretentious, boring book. What impelled the author to write it I cannot imagine. It is a pity that Mr. Eric Sutton should waste his talent as a translator upon such unrewarding material." Raymond Mortimer
— Nation and Ath 47:796 S 27 '30 80w

"It is pleasant every now and then to come across a novel of delicacy and restraint and beauty, in which there is no trafficking with morons, a novel peopled by intelligent human beings, written for people of intelligence by an intelligent man. This is one." Howard Coxe
+ New Repub 65:109 D 10 '30 680w

"Claudia is an odd vague attempt to portray an odd vague lady: in the beginning one is constantly wondering what it is all about; but in the end one shrugs the shoulders and no longer cares."
— New Statesman 35:796 O 4 '30 180w

"Compared to the full fruit of the tree shown in Mr. Zweig's war novel, 'Claudia' is a hot house exotic of the intimate and unappealing sort. The mise en scene is that unusually unpleasant world where art is cultivated for its metaphysical hallucinations. Mr. Zweig is remarkably faithful to that world. He fills it with color, but in the light of his greater production 'Claudia' is merely a lapse from the sublime to the rhetorical." Eugene Lohrke
— N Y Evening Post p4d N 8 '30 150w

"Writing of such things, of the human spirit and its need for confession and understanding, its desperate and futile reaching out for some human to share its pain and loneliness, is art beyond the scope of even the most talented writing. Words are inadequate to express emotions as deep and as subtle as these. Music can do it. Beethoven has, Shubert has, Tchaikovsky has. So, in this book, has Zweig. Reading him, it is clear he is a musician. The work gives the impression of powerful musical composition, carrying the theme with contrapuntal effect throughout the lives of the characters that sustain it. It isn't all sorrowful or all entirely despairing; there are moments of joy and light and ecstacy, but beyond it and above it, runs the truth, bitterly, of man's complete isolation in pain." R. C. Feld
+ N Y Times p2 N 9 '30 850w

"The [character] stories are marked by brilliant and sympathetic character analysis and by delicate imagination and are told in a finished, fluent style. They are especially interesting as showing the wide range of Zweig's interest and his talent as a dramatist of subtle emotions." F. L. Robbins
+ Outlook 156:387 N 5 '30 80w
Sat R 150:793 D 13 '30 100w

"It would be no more than bare justice to Herr Arnold Zweig to expect to find in his new novel something of the insight and humanity which gave such a strength of purpose to 'The Case of Sergeant Grischa.' Something of the sort there is, but it is disappointingly little. There are fragments of observation and scraps of psychology in this story, which suggest that Herr Zweig may have had an urgent reason for writing it, and which certainly leave the reader with an impression of the author's extremely sympathetic habit of mind. The chief impression, however, is of a strangely artificial and empty kind of narrative; the book, in fact, consists for the most part of strained and rather lifeless descriptions and of awkward bits of sentimental ornamentation."
Times [London] Lit Sup p802 O 9 '30 450w

ZWEIG, STEFAN. Joseph Fouché; the portrait of a politician; tr. from the German by Eden and Cedar Paul. 327p il $3.50 Viking press
B or 92 Fouché, Joseph, duc d'Otrante
30-27671

A biography of Joseph Fouché, who rose to power in the time of the French revolution, became minister of police under Napoleon, and whose ability to shift sides at opportune moments amounted to genius.

For biographical sketch of the author see Wilson bulletin 5:8 S '30

Booklist 27:206 Ja '31

"Notwithstanding Stefan Zweig's intent and colorful exploration of Fouché's character, we never see it quite clearly. Certainly we are never admitted to the secret of Fouché's power. . . Still, if the riddle has not been resolved for us here, we must nevertheless admit that it has been propounded uncommonly well." Margaret Wallace
+ — Bookm 71:555 Ag '30 500w

"This biography is a fascinatingly clever book with all the evidence cunningly searched out, attorney for the prosecution in the center of the stage, attorney for the defense somewhere around but never much in evidence, the whole ably wrought into an excellent structure. . . It is a real drawback to this biography that Stefan Zweig is so certain of his aims: he has made up his mind too completely beforehand about the world-builder whose biography he is going to write—too completely to be a good biographer of a human being—and masterly as this book is the subject of it never really becomes alive." M. M. Colum

+ — Books p1 Ag 10 '30 2800w

Boston Transcript p2 Ag 27 '30 550w

Reviewed by C. R. Hall

Hist Outlook 21:395 D '30 750w

"In 'Joseph Fouché' we have the portrait of a politician. We have, again, a neatly stylized essay and a frame arranged in advance so that a portrait may fit into it. What does actually emerge from a perusal of this book is the fact that Joseph Fouché, on the human side at least, is worthy of a more full-blooded biographer than the modern monk of the Kapuzinerberg. There is no questioning Mr. Zweig's scholarship. He has his facts delicately at his finger tips. . . But the business of biography as we understand it today is to create and not to evaluate. Mr. Zweig's half-tones do not blend with the flame and passion of Fouché's times. They are lost in it, until only the author's pronouncements remain—in their turn to be questioned and evaluated." Eugene Löhrke

— + Nation 131:226 Ag 27 '30 600w

New Repub 65:200 D 31 '30 100w

"A biography of Fouché which is at once a sober record of his career and a finely imaginative recreation of his character. It is Stefan Zweig's merit that he has made Fouché comprehensible."

+ New Statesman 36:58 O 18 '30 700w

"Herr Zweig has fully succeeded in portraying Fouché, in making him intimately understandable to the reader, in 'blowing the soul into him'—and this, no doubt, is the chief purpose of a portrayer. Yet our author's narrative also has defects, and rather serious ones. Along with excellent passages of portraiture it contains long pages of narrative of the events of Fouché's life. It is these pages that often leave a great deal to be desired. Although lengthy they are sometimes extremely watery and unsubstantial; it begins to seem to the reader that, as though in haste, the author does not take the trouble to tell the facts so that they would speak for themselves, but tries instead to get away with words; and his phrases, usually so charged with power, cease to limn and become merely verbose, pretentious and sometimes banal." Alexander Nazaroff

+ — N Y Times p9 Ag 17 '30 1300w

"Due to Herr Zweig's matchless ability to round up the facts and draw the conclusions, an ability greater than Emil Ludwig's, he has given us the season's greatest story. To say this is not merely a pleasure; it is a duty. Zweig's superiority to Ludwig lies in his judgment. Ludwig will write an intimate life of anybody; Zweig treats only those about whom he can become perfectly informed." A. W. Porterfield

+ Outlook 155:586 Ag 13 '30 900w

"A truly brilliant piece of biographical writing." W. B. Shaw

+ R of Rs 82:12 S '30 150w

St Louis 28:273 N '30

"In spite of his predilection for 'psychological biography' and his debt to Freud as shown in earlier works, he does not seem to have varied the story to such an extent as to obscure the original tune. . . Herr Zweig, in limning 'the portrait of the most remarkable politician the world has ever known' has furnished one of the most interesting biographies of recent months." A. W. G. Randall

+ Sat R of Lit 7:36 Ag 9 '30 900w

ZWEIG, STEFAN. Three masters: Balzac, Dickens, Dostoeffsky; tr. from the German by Eden and Cedar Paul. (Master builders) 238p $3 Viking press

928 Balzac, Honoré de. Dickens, Charles. Dostoevskiĭ, Fedor Mikhaĭlovich 30-11762

Short, interpretative sketches of the lives and works of the three men whom the author considers the "supremely great novelists of the nineteenth century."

Booklist 26:395 Jl '30

"The 'essential uniformity' attributed to them by the author can apply only to the manner of presentation, which is on the whole dithyrambic, moving the reader more by the dynamic spirit of the prose than by any adventure of critical discovery. The essays are unequal in merit and scope. By far the most adequate is the Dostoeffsky. It would have been better, perhaps, if the Dostoeffsky essay had stood alone; beside it the others are strangely inadequate."

Bookm 71:338 Je '30 550w

" 'Three Masters' is a brilliant book; the typology of the spirit is fully explained; and in doing so Zweig has brought forth, in his persuasive and warm prose, many new verities, many thrilling perspectives." Angel Flores

+ Books p6 Ap 27 '30 1000w

"He who would thoroughly understand the work of these novelists should by all means read these essays, brilliantly executed studies of three great creative spirits."

+ Boston Transcript p2 Je 28 '30 320w

"This is a singularly brilliant study despite needless repetitions, occasional contradictions, and questions provoked but left unanswered." J. J. R.

+ Cath World 132:241 N '30 500w

"Zweig is brilliant, but he is also thorough; he glitters, but he is not superficial. These essays—especially the Dostoievsky—are long, and yet condensed, exhaustive, interpretative and significant." Arthur Colton

+ New Repub 64:80 S 3 '30 280w

New Statesman 35:445 Jl 12 '30 1200w

"That Stendhal means more to us today than Dickens, or Tolstoy, perhaps, than Balzac, is a question of their residual significance in the light of modern emotions and ideas; but it does not destroy the fact that Stendhal's world, or Tolstoy's, is multiple and divisible, while Dickens's or Balzac's, always operating under the same laws and always subject to the same interpretation, is integral. But it is not by merely proving this point that Zweig has written a brilliant and exciting book; that fact is due to his masterly analysis of the men themselves, to the piercing manner in which he has cut to essentials." Louis Kronenberger

+ N Y Times p2 My 11 '30 1150w

"Biographies so beautifully organized and condensed that they make the vast mass of current biographical writing look like the diffuse and fumbling products of fact gatherers."

+ N Y World p7m Je 1 '30 900w

"A brilliant, masterly study, combining biography and literary criticism of 'the three supremely great novelists of the nineteenth century,' Balzac, Dickens and Dostoeffsky, which no one seriously interested in literature should miss." F. L. R.

+ Outlook 154:709 Ap 30 '30 80w

St Louis 28:217 S '30

Sat R 149:830 Je 28 '30 280w

"The surprising thing is that Herr Zweig is able to make a number of pointed and illuminating remarks in the course of these studies, particularly in the case of Balzac, which is much the best of them. His rhetorical manner of writing is a nuisance; but he has evidently read Balzac with pleasure and is able to impart his enthusiasm. . . The essay on Dickens, ill-aimed as it is for the most part, has a few interesting things in it; but it is necessary to turn to the study of Dostoevsky to appreciate the full flavour of this type of ecstatic criticism. There is no need to say much about it. Herr Zweig prostrates himself with the utmost humility and passes from one solemn and enraptured extravagance to another. A reputation is a formidable thing, but it is a little hard to discover the purpose of this translation."

— + Times [London] Lit Sup p530 Je 26 '30 1100w

List of Documents for Use in the Smaller Libraries

Compiled by

MARY E. FURBECK

Public Affairs Information Service

Accidents, Industrial

Coal-mine fatalities in the United States, 1928. W. W. Adams. (U.S. Mines bur. Bul. 319) 125p pa '30

Metal-mine accidents in the United States during the calendar year 1928. W. W. Adams. (U.S. Mines bur. Bul 320) 102p pa '30

Proceedings of the 16th annual meeting of International association of industrial accident boards and commissions held at Buffalo, N.Y., October 8-11, 1929. (U.S. Labor statistics bur. Bul. 511) 345p pa '30

Quarry accidents in the United States during the calendar year, 1928. W. W. Adams. (U.S. Mines bur. Bul. 325) 103p pa '30

Some phases of the relative responsibility of management and workers for accidents in mines. D. Harrington. (U.S. Bur. of mines. Rept. of investigations no. 2993) 17p pa '30 (Mim.)

Accounting

Agriculture

Accounts for Kansas farms. Morris Evans and I. N. Chapman. (Kansas. Agric. exp. sta. Circ. 150) 35p pa N '29 Agricultural Experiment Station, Manhattan, Kansas

Aeronautics

Laws and regulations

State aeronautical legislation and compilation of state laws, revised to September 1, 1929. (U.S. Commerce dept. Aeronautics bul. 18) 76p pa '29

Agricultural colleges

Federal legislation, regulations, and rulings affecting landgrant colleges and experiment stations. (U.S. Agric. dept. Dept. circ. 251) 60p pa F '30

Agricultural credit

The agricultural credit situation in Louisiana. R. L. Thompson. (Louisiana. Agric. exp. sta. Bul. 208) 101p pa Ja '30. Louisiana State University, Baton Rouge

Agricultural surveys

Agricultural survey of Europe: Hungary. L. G. Michael. (U.S. Agric. dept. Technical bul. 160) 104p pa '30

Agriculture

Bibliography

A bibliography of the history of agriculture in the United States. E. E. Edwards. (U. S. Agric. dept. Misc: publication 84) 307p pa '30

Economic aspects

Social and economic effects of land speculation on farm families in central Kentucky. Merton Oyler. (Kentucky. Agric. exp. sta. Bul. no. 300) 30p pa Mr '30. University of Kentucky, Lexington

Statistics

Yearbook of agriculture, 1930. M. S. Eisenhower, ed. U.S. Agric. dept. 1080p '30

United States

The agricultural outlook for 1930. (U.S. Agric. dept. Misc. pub. 73) 64p pa '30

The agricultural outlook for the southern states, 1930-31. (U. S. Agric. dept. Misc: circ. 102) 56p pa D '30

Virginia

Report to the General assembly of Virginia, January, 1930. Virginia. Commission to study the condition of the farmers of Virginia. 133p pa '30 Division of purchase and printing, Richmond, Va.

Airports

Airport rating regulations, effective as amended September 1, 1930. (U.S. Aeronautics branch. Aeronautics bul. 16) 27p pa '30

Apple industry

Apple varieties: prices, yields, and acreages. G. P. Scoville and T. E. LaMont. (N.Y. state. Cornell univ. Agric. exp. sta. Bul. 495) 104p pa D '29

Arbor day

Illinois arbor and bird days. L. L. Blair, comp. (Illinois. Dept. of public instruction) 64p pa '30 State superintendent of public instruction, Springfield, Ill.

Births

Statistics

Birth, stillbirth, and infant mortality statistics, 1927: pt. 2, Text and text tables. U.S. Census bur. 80p pa '29

Books for the blind

Catalogue of publications in Braille—grade 1½, January 1930. (U.S. Lib. of congress. Service for the blind.) 86p pa '30

Canada

The maritime provinces, Canada. (Canada. Nat. development bur.) 79p pa '30. Department of the Interior, Ottawa

Commerce

Condensed preliminary report on the trade of Canada, 1930: with comparative statistics for the years 1928 and 1929 (fiscal years ended March 31st). (Canada. Dept. of trade and commerce. Bur. of statistics). 134p pa '30. Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa

Candy industry

Confectionery distribution in the United States. R. L. Purdon. (U.S. Foreign and domestic bur. Domestic commerce ser. 31) 84p pa '30

Canning industry

Australian canned-fruit industry. E. C. Squire. (U.S. Bur. of foreign and domestic commerce. Trade information bul. 703) 21p pa '30

Carbon monoxide poisoning

Review of carbon monoxide poisoning. R. R. Sayers and S. J. Davenport. (U.S. Public health service. Bul. 195) 97p bibl pa '30

Cattle

Dairy cattle breeds. A. B. Nystrom. (U.S. Agric. dept. Farmers' bul. 1443) 30p pa Ja '30

Chemical industries

German chemical developments in 1929. W. T. Daugherty. (U.S. Foreign and domestic commerce bur. Trade information bul. 690) 32p pa '30

Child welfare

In place of a parent: the A B C of foster family care for children. B. J. Paget. (Pennsylvania. Dept. of welfare. Bul. 38) 62p pa '29 Department of welfare, Harrisburg, Pa.

Children

Bibliography

Children's bureau and other publications relating to children. (U.S. Supt. of docs. Price list 71, 11th ed.) 17p pa '29

Civil service

General information regarding the United States civil service. (U.S. Civil service comm.) 29p pa Je '30

Clothing

An annotated list of literature references on garment sizes and body measurements. Ruth O'Brien. (U.S. Agric. dept. Misc. pub. 78) 48p pa My '30

Coal industry

Hours and earnings in bituminous coal mining, 1929. (U.S. Labor statistics bur. 516) 63p pa '30

Colleges and universities

Statistics of universities, colleges and professional schools 1927-28. (U.S. Educ. off. Bul. 1929, no. 38) 194p pa '30

Colorado river

Upper Colorado river and its utilization. Robert Follansbee. (U.S. Geol. survey. Water-supply pa. 617) 394p pa '29

Cotton industry

The world cotton situation with outlook for 1931-32, and the long time outlook for southern agriculture. (U. S. Agric. dept. Misc: publication 104) 75p pa D '30

County finance

Fiscal problems of rural decline: a study of the methods of financing the costs of government in the economically decadent rural areas of New York state. R. T. Compton. (N.Y. [state]. Tax comm. Spec. rept. no. 2) 283p '30. State Tax Commission, Albany, N.Y.

Credit

National retail credit survey, pt. 1. (U.S. Foreign and domestic commerce bur. Domestic commerce ser. 33) 52p pa '30

Dance halls

Public dance halls: their regulation and place in the recreation of adolescents. Ella Gardner. (U.S. Children's bur. Pub. 189) 57p pa '29

Debating

A bibliography for debaters: list of publications for sale by superintendent of documents. (U.S. Supt. of docs. Price list 74) 93p pa S '29

Education

Bibliography

Bibliography of research studies in education, 1927-1928. E. A. Wright, comp. (U.S. Educ. Office. Bul. 1929, no. 36) 225p pa '30

Publications available March, 1930. U.S. Office of educ. 28p pa '30

Electric industries

Statistics

Census of electrical industries, 1927: telegraphs. U.S. Census bur. 29p pa '30

Census of electrical industries, 1927: telephones. U.S. Census bur. 52p pa '30

Electricity in the home

Cost of electricity for the home electric refrigerator. R. L. Patty. (South Dakota. Agric. exp. sta. Bul. 241) 16p pa Je '29 South Dakota State College of Agriculture and Mechanics Arts, Brookings

Electricity on the farm

Costs and uses for electricity on South Dakota farms. (South Dakota. Agric. exp. sta. Bul. 239) 28p pa Je '29. South Dakota State College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts, Brookings

An economic study of farm electrification in New York, with a discussion of rural electrification in the provinces of Quebec and Ontario, Canada. R. F. Bucknam. (N.Y. Cornell univ. Agric. exp. sta. Bul. 496) 65p pa D '29

Employment

Statistics

Variations in employment trends of women and men. (U.S. Women's bur. Bul. 73) 143p pa '30

Extension education

College and university extension helps in adult education, 1928-1929. L. R. Alderman. (U.S. Educ. office. Bul. 1930, no. 10) 64p pa '30

Farm buildings

Adobe brick for farm buildings. J. W. Sjogren and J. W. Adams. (Colorado. Exp. sta. Bul. 308, rev.) 29p pa Mr '30 Colorado Experiment Station, Fort Collins

Farm life

The routine and seasonal work of Nebraska farm women. M. R. Clark and Greta Gray. (Nebraska. Experiment sta. Bul. 238) 39p pa Ja '30 College of agriculture, University of Nebraska, Lincoln

Farm management

Types of farming in Nebraska. Harold Hedges and F. F. Elliott. (Nebraska. Col. of agric. Bul. 244) 76p pa My '30. University of Nebraska, Lincoln.

Farm produce

Prices

Prices of Illinois farm products, 1866-1929. L. J. Norton and B. B. Wilson. (Illinois. Agric. exp. sta. Bul. no. 351) 80p pa Jl '30. University of Illinois, Urbana

Farmhouses

Designs for Kansas farm homes. H. E. Wichers. (Kansas. State agric. col. Eng. exp. sta. bul. 23) 105p pa N '29 Kansas State Agricultural College, Manhattan

Farms

The farm real estate situation, 1929-30. E. H. Wiecking and B. R. Stauber. (U. S. Agric. dept. circ: 150) 69p pa N '30

Federal commissions

Federal commissions, committees and boards, created during the period Sept. 14, 1901 to March 4, 1929. (U.S. 71st Congress, 2d sess., S. doc. no. 174) 147p '30

Feed stuffs

Marketing

Some factors affecting the cost of operation of retail feed stores in New York state. Whiton Powell. (N.Y. [state]. Agric. exp. sta. Bul. 505) 126p pa Je '30 Agricultural Experiment Station, Cornell University. Ithaca, N.Y.

Finance

Far East

Financial developments in the Far East during 1929. H. M. Bratter. (U.S. Foreign and domestic commerce bur. Trade information bul. 680) 23p pa '30

Food supply

Marketing

Some facts concerning the distribution of fruits and vegetables by wholesalers and jobbers in large terminal markets. M. P. Rasmussen. (N.Y. state. Cornell univ. Agric. exp. sta. bul. 494) 115p pa O '29

Foods

Bibliography

Foods and cooking; canning, cold storage, home economics. (U.S. Supt. of docs. Price list 11, 21st ed.) 12p pa '30

Forests and forestry

Growing black locust trees. W. R. Matoon. (U.S. Agric. dept. Farmers bul. 1628)

Measuring and marketing farm timber. W. R. Mattoon and W. B. Barrows. (U.S. Agric. dept. Farmers' bul. 1210) 56p pa '30

Fruit, Dried

Dried-fruit industry and trade of South Africa. (U.S. Bur. of foreign and domestic commerce. Trade information bul. 676) 11p pa '30

Fruit industry

Carlot shipments and unloads of import fruits and vegetables, for the calendar years 1927 and 1928. (U.S. Agric. dept. Statistical bul. 30) 164p pa '30

Foreign trade in fresh fruits. D. J. Moriarty. (U.S. Foreign and domestic commerce bur. Trade promotion ser. 90) 103p pa '30

Fur industry

Fur-seal industry of Pribilof Islands, Alaska. Henry O'Malley. (U.S. Fisheries bur. Econ. circ. 71) 15p pa '30

Game

National wild-life reservations. (U.S. Agric. dept. Misc. pub. 51) rev ed 9p pa '30

Grapefruit industry

Canned grapefruit production and trade. C. E. Boigfeld. (U.S. Foreign and domestic commerce bur. Trade information bul. 706) 21p pa '30

Haiti

Report of the president's commission for the study and review of conditions in the republic of Haiti. (U.S. State dept. Latin Am. ser. 2) 45p pa '30

High schools

Statistics

Statistics of public high schools, 1927-1928. (U.S. Educ. office. Bul. 1929, no. 35) 136p pa '29

Immigration

The immigration work of the Department of state and its consular officers. (U.S. State dept. Pub. 22) 49p pa '29

Industrial surveys

Industrial structure of New England. C. E. Artman. (U.S. Foreign and domestic commerce ser. 28) 591p '30 $1.30

Insects, Injurious and beneficial

Insect pests of trees and gardens. J. A. Munro and H. W. Riddle. (North Dakota. Agric. exp. sta. Circ. 42) 56p pa Ap '30 North Dakota Agricultural College, Fargo

Investments, Foreign

American direct investments in foreign countries. P. D. Dickens. (U. S.) Foreign and domestic commerce bur. Trade information bur. 731) 57p pa N '30

American underwriting of foreign securities in 1929. (U.S. Foreign and domestic commerce bur. Trade information bul. 688) 21p pa '30

Iron and steel industry

The Czechoslovak iron and steel industry. K. L. Rankin. (U.S. Foreign and domestic commerce bur. Trade information bul. no. 713) 21p pa '30

Irrigation

Commercial irrigation companies. W. A. Hutchins. (U.S. Agric. dept. Technical bul. 177) 39p bibl pa '30

Junior colleges

Bibliography

Bibliography on junior colleges. W. C. Eells. (U.S. Educ. office. Bul. 1930, no. 2) 167p pa '30

Juvenile courts

Analysis and tabular summary of state laws relating to jurisprudence in children's cases and cases of domestic relations in the United States. F. R. Lyman. (U.S. Children's bur. Chart 17) 33p pa '30

Labor

Bibliography

Publications of the Department of labor. U.S. Labor dept. 40p pa Jl '30

Decisions

Decisions of courts and opinions affecting labor, 1927-1928. C. S. Sharkey. (U.S. Labor statistics bur. Bul. no. 517) 516p pa '30

Laws

Laws administered by the Department of labor and industry. (Pennsylvania. Dept. of labor and industry. Spec. bul. 5) 174p pa '30. Department of labor and industry, Harrisburg.

Latin America

Travel routes and costs in Latin America. (U. S. Foreign and domestic commerce. Trade promotion ser. 100) 82p pa '30

Law enforcement

Public cooperation in prohibition law enforcement. U.S. Prohibition bur. 64p pa '30

Lawns

Better lawns. H. R. Cox. (New Jersey. Agric. exp. sta. Exten. bul. 76) 8p pa Ja '30 Agricultural Experiment Station, Rutgers University, New Brunswick, N.J.

Lead industry

Summarized data of lead production: showing the relation of production in the United States to that of the world. L. A. Smith. (U.S. Mines bur. Econ. pa 5) 44p pa '29

Leather industry

International trade in leather. J. Schnitzer. (U. S. Foreign and domestic commerce bur. Trade promotion ser. 103) 266p pa '30

Libraries, Children's

The first 300 books for the children's library. C. W. Hunt. 3d ed rev (N.Y. (state). Univ. Bul. 933) 16p pa '29

Libraries, School

State direction of rural school library service. E. A. Lathrop. (U.S. Educ. office. Bul. 1930, no. 6) 50p map pa '30

Liquor laws

Liquor laws. E. A. Lewis, comp. (U.S. House of representatives) 65p pa '29

Livestock industry

State sanitary requirements governing admission of livestock. (U.S. Agric. dept. Misc. circ. 14) 108p pa '30

Manufactures

Statistics

Biennial census of manufactures, 1927. (U.S. Census bur.) 1497p '30 $2.25

Marketing, Cooperative

Cooperative marketing and purchasing, 1920-1930. R. H. Elsworth. (U.S. Agric. dept. Circ. no. 121) 55p pa Ag '30

Fruits and vegetables; guide for setting up local cooperative marketing association. H. C. Hensley. (U. S. Fed. farm bd. Bul. 1) 28p pa '30

Meat industry

International trade in pork and pork products. Knute Bjorka. (Iowa, Col. of agric. and mechanic arts. Agric. exp. sta. Research bul. 122) 54p pa '30 Agricultural experiment station, Ames, Ia.

Mica

International trade in mica. Joseph Ulmer. (U.S. Foreign and domestic commerce bur. Trade promotion ser. 95) 70p bibl pa '30

Mines and mining

Statistics

Mineral resources of the United States, 1929; preliminary summary. M. B. Clark. (U. S. mines bur.) 120p pa '30

Money

Handbook of foreign currency and exchange. J. R. Mood. (U.S. Foreign and domestic commerce bur. Trade promotion ser. 102) 189p pa '30

Mortality

Statistics

Causes of death by occupation: occupational mortality experience of the Metropolitan life insurance company, Industrial department, 1922-1924. L. I. Dublin and R. J. Vane, jr. (U.S. Labor statistics bur. Bul. 507) 130p pa '30

Mortality statistics, 1927: pt. 1, Summary and rate tables and general tables for the death registration area in continental United States; with supplemental statistics for Hawaii and the Virgin Islands; pt. 2, Text and text tables. U.S. Census bur. 2v '29-'30

Mortality statistics, 1928; 29th annual report. U. S. Census bur. 444p '30

Motor vehicle industry and trade

The motorization of North Africa. H. C. Schuette. (U.S. Foreign and domestic commerce bur. Trade information bul. 689) 39p pa '30

Naval conference, London, 1930

London naval conference: digest of the London naval treaty of 1930 with fleet-tonnage tables. (U.S. State dept. Conference ser. 4) 12p pa '30

Permanent court of international justice

The United States and the Permanent court of international justice: documents relating to the question of American accession to the court. U.S. State dept. 57p pa '30

Plant quarantines

Summary of state and territorial plant quarantines affecting interstate shipments. M. A. Thompson. (U.S. Agric. dept. Misc. pub. no. 80) 128p pa '30

Postal service

Postage rates, 1789-1930: abstract of laws passed between 1789 and 1930 fixing rates of postage and according free mail privileges. (U.S. Post office dept. Div. of classification). 55p pa '30

Poultry

Feeding chickens. M. A. Jull and A. R. Lee. (U.S. Agric. dept. Farmers' bul. 1541) 22p pa Ja '30

Poultry industry

Business records for poultry keepers. E. R. Johnson and A. R. Lee. (U.S. Agric. dept. Farmers' bul. 1614) 19p pa '29

Marketing of poultry products. G. L. Stevenson. (South Dakota. Agric. exp. sta. Bul. 243) 12p pa Je '29. South Dakota State College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts, Brookings

Prenatal care

Prenatal care. (U. S. Children's bur. Publication 4) rev ed 71p Jl '30

Public health

Public health laws and regulations adopted during 1927 William Fowler, comp. (U.S. Public health service. Suppl. 75) 866p pa '30

Radio

Directories

Amateur radio stations of the United States, June 30, 1930. (U. S. Radio div.) 369p pa '30

Commercial and government radio stations of the United States, June 30, 1930 (U. S. Radio div.) 231p pa '30

Railroads

Railways of South America: pt. 3, Chile. W. R. Long. (U.S. Foreign and domestic commerce bur. Trade promotion ser. 93) 373p maps '30

Statistics

42d annual report on the statistics of railways in the United States, for the year ended December 31, 1928. U.S. Interstate commerce comm. 272p '29

A preliminary abstract of statistics of common carriers, for the year ended December 31, 1929. (U.S. Interstate commerce comm.) 33p pa '30 (Mim.)

Restaurants

The San Francisco restaurant industry. (U.S. Foreign and domestic commerce bur.) 28p pa '30

Roadside marketing

Roadside marketing in New Hampshire. M. G. Eastman. (New Hampshire. Agric. exp. sta. Bul. 249) 39p pa '29 University of New Hampshire, Durham

Roses

Hardy roses for South Dakota. N. E. Hansen. (South Dakota. Agric. exp. sta. Bul. 240) 48p pa Je '29. South Dakota College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts, Brookings

Rubber industry

Rubber. (Pan American union. Commodities of commerce ser. 15) 30p pa '30

Sewing

Organization of the sewing center in the home. E. M. Cushman. (N Y state. Cornell univ Agric. exp. sta. Bul. 492) 37p pa Ag '29 Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y.

Silver

Statistics

Summarized data of silver production. C. W. Merrill. (U.S. Mines bur. Econ. pa. no. 8) 58p pa '30

Social surveys

A partial sociological study of Dryden, New York; with special emphasis on its historical development. G. M. Kensler and B. L. Melvin. (N.Y. Agric. exp. sta. Bul. 504) 65p pa '30. Ithaca, N.Y. Cornell University, Agricultural experiment station.

Sparrows

English sparrow control. E. R. Kalmbach. (U.S. Agric. dept. Leaflet 61) 8p pa Je '30

Taxation

Taxation of farm property. Whitney Coombs. (U.S. Agric. dept. Technical bul. 172) 74p pa '30

Textiles

Cotton fabrics and their uses. (U. S. Foreign and domestic commerce bur.) rev ed 45p pa S '30

Tin industry

World reserves and resources of tin. C. W. Merrill. (U.S. Mines bur. Information circ. 6249) 7p Mr '30 (Mim.)

Tomatoes

Preparation of fresh tomatoes for market. F. E. Parsons. (U.S. Agric. dept. Farmers' bul. 1291) 32p pa Ap '30

United States. Agriculture, Department of

The United States department of agriculture: its growth, structure and functions. M. S. Eisenhower and others. (U.S. Agric. dept. Misc. pub. 88) 147p pa '30

United States, Mines. Bureau of

Work of the United States bureau of mines. (U.S. Mines bur. Information circ. 6257) 55p pa Ap '30 (Mim.)

United States

Commerce

Foreign trade of the United States in the calendar year 1929. G. A. Witherow. (U.S. Foreign and domestic commerce bur. Trade information bul. 684) 54p pa '30

Foreign trade of the United States in the fiscal year 1929-30. G. A. Witherow. (U.S. Foreign and domestic commerce bur. Trade information bul. 718) 22p pa '30

Bibliography

Publications of the Bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, November, 1929. U.S. Foreign and domestic commerce bur. 116p pa '29

Statistics

Foreign commerce and navigation of the United States, for the calendar year 1928. U.S. Foreign and domestic commerce bur. 592p '29

Foreign commerce and navigation of the United States, for the calendar year 1929, v 2 U. S. Foreign and domestic commerce bur. 189p '30

Statistical abstract of the United States, 1929. U.S. Foreign and domestic commerce bur. 868p '29 (v 51) $1

Statistical abstract of the United States. (U. S. Foreign and domestic commerce bur.) 876p '30 (v. 52)

Village life

Village service agencies, New York, 1925. B. L. Melvin. (N.Y state Cornell univ. Agric. exp. sta. Bul. 493) 117p pa Ag '29

Wages

Wages and hours of labor in the motor-vehicle industry, 1928 (U.S. Labor statistics bur. Bul. 502) 73p pa D '29

Wholesale trade

Problems of wholesale dry goods distribution. Wroe Alderson and N. A. Miller. (U. S. Foreign and domestic commerce bur. Distribution cost studies 7) 48p pa '30

Women in industry

A study of two groups of Denver married women applying for jobs. E. C. Brown. (U.S. Women's bur. Bul. 77) 10p pa '29

Women in 5-and-10-cent stores and limited-price chain department stores. M. E. Pidgeon. (U.S. Women's bur. Bul. 76) 58p pa '30

The Senate and House documents and reports are issued in limited editions, and unless otherwise indicated may be obtained only through members of Congress. Librarians should make application to their own representatives in Washington.

The Department of Agriculture's supply of the Current number of Farmers' Bulletins is ordinarily sufficient to make it possible to send them free to all applicants. They are also for sale at 5 cents per copy [by the Superintendent of Documents].

The Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D. C., is authorized to sell at cost of paper and printing any United States public document in his charge, the distribution of which is not otherwise provided for. Publications cannot be supplied free to individuals nor forwarded in advance of payment.

Subject, Title and Pseudonym Index

To Author Entries, March, 1930—February, 1931

A. Lincoln. Lockridge, R. F. (O '30)
A B C of television. Yates, R. F. (D '30)
A-100. Harrison, B. (D '30)
Aaron Traum. Cohen, H and L. (S '30)
Abandoned woman. O'Brien, H. V. (D '30)

Abilene, Kansas
  Henry, S. O. Conquering our great American plains. (Je '30)
Abominable branch. Eng title of: Through traffic. Davenport, R. W. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
About antiques. Bowles, E. (Mr '30)
About English poetry. Bradby, G. F. (S '30)
About Russia. Benn, E. J. P. (Ag '30)
About the murder of Geraldine Foster. Abbot, A. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
About women. Macy, J. A. (Je '30)
Above and below. Dorthy, R. D. (Je '30)
Above Pompeii. Wilkins, E. H. (N '30)
Abraham Lincoln. Shaw, A. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Abraham Lincoln traveled this way. Holmes, F. L. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Accidents, Industrial
  Bowers, E. L. Is it safe to work? (O '30)
According to the flesh; a biography of Mary Baker Eddy. Springer, F. C. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Ace of spades. Holt, H. (S '30)
Acres of sky. Wilson, C. M. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Across Iceland. Chapman, O. M. (O '30)

Acting
  Chalmers, H. Modern acting. (Ag '30)
  Crauford, L. Acting. (N '30)
Acting. Crauford, L. (N '30)

Actors and actresses
  Brundidge, H. T. Twinkle, twinkle, movie star! (D '30)
  Coad, O. S., and Mims, E. American stage. (My '30)
  Fyfe, H. H. Sir Arthur Pinero's plays and players. (O '30)
  Harding, A. Revolt of the actors. (Ap '30)
  Nungezer, E. Dictionary of actors. (Mr '30)
  Skolsky, S. Times Square tintypes. (D '30)
  Smith, W. Italian actors of the renaissance. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Wood, P. Actors—and people. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Actors—and people. Wood, P. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Actors' equity association
  Harding, A. Revolt of the actors. (Ap '30)
Actress. Applin, A. (D '30)
Adam. Lewisohn, L. (My '30)

Adams, Henry
  Adams, H. Letters (1858-1891). (N '30)

Adams, John Quincy
  Bobbé, D. Mr. and Mrs. John Quincy Adams. (N '30)

Adams, Louisa Catherine (Johnson) (Mrs John Quincy Adams)
  Bobbé, D. Mr. and Mrs. John Quincy Adams. (N '30)

Adams family
  Adams, J. T. Adams family. (Ag '30)
Adam's Rest. Millin, S. G. (N '30)

Adaptation (biology)
  Howell, A. B. Aquatic mammals. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Addams, Jane
  Ferris, H. J., ed. When I was a girl. (O '30)
Adjectives—and other words. Weekley, E. (Je '30)
Admiral Franklin Buchanan. Lewis, C. L. (My '30)

Adolescence
  Brooks, F. D. Psychology of adolescence. (My '30)
  Eliott, G. L. Understanding the adolescent girl. (Ag '30)
  Furfey, P. H. Growing boy. (Je '30)
  Mead, M. Growing up in New Guinea. (N '30)
  Schwab, S. I., and Veeder, B. S. The adolescent. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
  Williams, F. E. Adolescence. (O '30)
The adolescent. Schwab, S. I., and Veeder, B. S. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual) Advanced principles of real estate practice. Fisher, E. M. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Adventure. Seely, J. E. B. (My '30)

Adventure and adventurers
  Bridges, T. C., and Tiltman, H. H. More heroes of modern adventure. (Je '30)
  David, E. J., ed. Great moments of adventure. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Adventure of science. Ginzburg, B. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Adventurers of the air. Chatterton, E. K. (O '30)
Adventures in dish gardening. Beard, P. (N '30)
Adventures in religion. King, B. (S '30)
Adventures of a deep-sea angler. Grey, R. C. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Adventures of Blackshirt. Jeffries, G. M. (Mr '30)
Adventures of Ephraim Tutt. Train, A. C. (N '30)
Adventures of Galley Jack. Maxwell, V., and Hill, H. (Mr '30)
Adventures of Johnny Appleseed. Chapin, H. (Je '30)
Adventures of Mario. Bonsels, W. (Ag '30)
Adventures of Polydore. Cauffman, S. H. (Je '30)
Adventurous America. Mims, E. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Advertising
  Darwin, B. R. M., ed. Dickens advertiser. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Meynell, F. Typography of newspaper advertisements. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
  Phelps, G. H. Tomorrow's advertisers and their advertising agencies. (Je '30)

Yearbooks

  Advertising parade. (Ag '30)
Advertising parade. (Ag '30)
Aerial navigation and meteorology. Yancey, L. A. (Je '30)

Aeronautical instruments
  Ramsey, L. C. Navigation of aircraft. (Ja 31) (1930 Annual)

Aeronautics
  Davis, W. J. Air conquest. (D '30)
  Dichman, E. W. This aviation business. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Duncan, R. Stunt flying. (O '30)
  Elm, I. E. Weather and why. (O '30)
  George, L., and Gilman, J. Air, men and wings. (O '30)
  George, L., and Gilman, J. Grow up to fly. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Grace, D. Squadron of death. (Mr '30)
  Guggenheim, H. F. Seven skies. (N '30)
  Hinton, W. Opportunities in aviation. (My '30)
  Kneen, O. H. Everyman's book of flying. (O '30)
  Manly, G. B. Aviation from the ground up. (Ap '30)
  Mitchell, W. Skyways. (Ag '30)

Aeronautics—Continued
  Ramsey, L. C. Navigation of aircraft. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Reeves, E. Lindbergh flies on! (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Studley, B. How to fly. (My '30) (1930 Annual)
  Tomlinson, D. W. The sky's the limit. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  White, P. How to fly an airplane. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Yancey, L. A. Aerial navigation and meteorology. (Je '30)
  Cases
    Zollmann, C. F. G. Cases on air law. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Flights
    Byrd, R. E. Little America. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
    Cobham, A. J. Twenty thousand miles in a flying-boat. (O '30)
    Koenig-Warthausen, F. K. Wings around the world. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
    Maclean, J. K., and Fraser, C. C. Heroes of the farthest North and farthest South. (S '30)
    Putnam, G. P. Andrée. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
    Shenton, E. Riders of the winds. (S '30)
    Sibour, V. Flying gypsies. (Je '30)
    Swedish society for anthropology and geography. Andrée's story. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  History
    Goldstrom, J. Narrative history of aviation. (My '30)
    Hodgins, E., and Magoun, F. A. Sky high. (Mr '30)
  Juvenile literature
    Iseman, J. W., and Taylor, S. Book of airplanes. (S '30)
    Shenton, E. Riders of the winds. (S '30)
  Laws and regulations
    Zollmann, C. F. G. Cases on air law. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Aeronautics, Commercial
  Bennett, R. R. Aviation. (My '30)
Aeronautics, Military
  Spaight, J. M. Air power and the cities. (Ag '30)
Africa
  Colonization
    Hoskins, H. L. European imperialism in Africa. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Description and travel
    Akeley, D. J. Jungle portraits. (My '30)
    Anderson, I. W. Circling Africa. (Mr '30)
    Cobham, A. J. Twenty thousand miles in a flying-boat. (O '30)
    Mott-Smith, M. Africa from port to port. (O '30)
    Roome, W. J. W. Tramping through Africa. (D '30)
  Native races
    Smuts, J. C. Africa and some world problems. (Je '30)
Africa, Central
  Description and travel
    Campbell, D. Wanderings in Central Africa. (Ag '30)
    Puleston, F. African drums. (Je '30)
Africa, East
  Cron, G. Roaring veldt. (My '30)
  Cudahy, J. African horizons. (Ag '30)
Africa, French Equatorial
  Description and travel
    Gide, A. P. G. Travels in the Congo. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Africa, North
  Foster, H. La T. Vagabond in Barbary. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Antiquities
    Khun de Prorok, B. Mysterious Sahara. (O '30)
Africa and some world problems. Smuts, J. C. (Je '30)
Africa from port to port. Mott-Smith, M. (O '30)
African drums. Puleston, F. (Je '30)
African horizons. Cudahy, J. (Ag '30)
After-walker. Cline, L. L. (S '30)
Afternoon and twilight of Vanda Pinelli. Steni, L. (My '30)
Age for love. Pascal, E. (Je '30)
Age of hate [Andrew Johnson]. Milton, G. F. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Age of the chartists, 1832-1854. Hammond, J. L. Le B. and B. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Age of youth. Roche, A. S. (Ag '30)
Agriculture
  Economic aspects
    Burr, W. Small towns. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
  Rumania
    Mitrany, D. Land & the peasant in Rumania. (N '30)
Agriculture, Cooperative
  Comish, N. H. Coöperative marketing of agricultural products. (Je '30)
Air conquest. Davis, W. J. (D '30)
Air, men and wings. George, L., and Gilman, J. (O '30)
Air power and the cities. Spaight, J. M. (Ag '30)
Air tourist's guide to Europe. Macmillan, N. (Je '30)
Airplane mechanics rigging handbook. Hartz, R. S., and Hall, E. E. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Airplane welding. Johnson, J. B. (Je '30)
Airplanes
  Duncan, R. Stunt flying. (O '30)
  Hartz, R. S., and Hall, E. E. Airplane mechanics rigging handbook. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Iseman, J. W., and Taylor, S. Book of airplanes. (S '30)
  Jackson, G. G. World's aeroplanes and airships. (D '30)
  Johnson, J. B. Airplane welding. (Je '30)
  Kneen, O. H. Everyman's book of flying. (O '30)
  Manly, G. B. Aviation from the ground up. (Ap '30)
  White, P. How to fly an airplane. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Models
    Day, O. H., and Vincent, T. Miniature aircraft. (S '30)
  Motors
    Kuns, R. F. Aviation engines. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Airships
  Jackson, G. G. World's aeroplanes and airships. (D '30)
Airways
  Europe
    Macmillan, N. Air tourist's guide to Europe. (Je '30) .
Akan-Ashanti folk tales. Rattray, R. S., comp. and tr. (D '30)
Al Capone. Pasley, F. D. (D '30)
Alabama
  Social conditions
    Shumway, H. I. I go South. (D '30)
Alain, pseud. See Chartier, E.
Alaric I, king of the Visigoths
  Brion, M. Alaric the Goth. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Alaric the Goth. Brion, M. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Alaska
  Davis, M. L. Uncle Sam's attic. (O '30)
  Edington, A. C. and C. B. Tundra. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  History
    Clark, H. W. History of Alaska. (Je '30)
Alay-oop. Gropper, W. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Albania
  History
    Swire, J. Albania. (S '30)
Albania. Swire, J. (S '30)

Albany and Susquehanna railroad company
  Hicks, F. C., ed. High finance in the sixties. (My '30)
Albert Einstein. Reiser, A. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Aldrich, Nelson Wilmarth
  Stephenson, N. W. Nelson W. Aldrich. (N '30)
Aleutian islands
Antiquities
  McCracken, H. God's frozen children. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Alexander. Mann, K. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Alexander the Great
Fiction
  Mann, K. Alexander. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Alexander Pope. Sitwell, E. (My '30)
Alias Bluebeard [Gilles de Raiz]. Gabory, E. (S '30)
Alibi. Van de Water, F. F. (D '30)
Alien in our midst. Grant, M., and Davidson, C. S., eds. (S '30)
Alison's house. Glaspell, S. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
All our yesterdays. Tomlinson, H. M. (Mr '30)
All smoke. McFadyen, F. (N '30)
All the king's horses. Widdemer, M. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
All the king's trumpets. Gate, E. M. (Je '30)
Allen, Ethan
  Pell, J. Ethan Allen. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Alloys
  Thews, E. R. Metallurgy of white metal scrap and residues. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
The aloe. Mansfield, K., pseud. (O '30)
Along the shore. Butler, E. L. (Ag '30)
Alphabets
  Hollister, P., ed. American alphabets. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Alpine flora
  Correvon, H. Rock garden and alpine plants. (O '30)
Alps
Description and travel
  Muller, E., jr. They climbed the Alps. (Ag '30)
Altar of honour. Dell, E. M. (Ap '30)
Aluminum
  Edwards, J. D., and others. Aluminum industry. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Aluminum alloys
  Edwards, J. D., and others. Aluminum industry. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Aluminum industry. Edwards, J. D., and others. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Amateur theatricals
  Brown, C. Creative drama in the lower school. (Je '30)
  Collins, L. F. Little theatre in school. (N '30)
  Miller, C. A. Stunts of all lands. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Purdom, C. B. Producing plays. (Je '30)
Amazing adventures of Kermit. Chamberlin, E. C. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Amazing career of Bernadotte, 1763-1844. Barton, D. P. (Mr '30)
Amazing web. Keeler, H. S. (My '30)
Amazon. Paul, E. H. (My '30)
Amazon and Andes. Grubb, K. G. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Amazon valley
  Grubb, K. G. Amazon and Andes. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Ambassadors
  Adair, E. R. Exterritoriality of ambassadors in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. (N '30)
Amber bead. Rothmund, T. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Ambition. Guttmann, B. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Ambrose Bierce. McWilliams, C. (Ap '30)
Amellaranne and the monkey. Heward, C. (Mr '30)
America
Discovery and exploration
  Chatterton, E. K. Seed of liberty. (Je '30)
  Maynard, T. De Soto and the conquistadores. (Ag '30)
  Proper, I. S. Monhegan. (N '30)
  Wagner, H. R. Spanish voyages to the northwest coast of America in the sixteenth century. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
America and England? Roosevelt, N. (Ap '30)
America conquers Britain. Denny, L. (Ap '30)
America in the forties. Raeder, O. M. (My '30)
America looks abroad. Mazur, P. M. (Je '30)
America moves west. Riegel, R. E. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
America set free. Keyserling, H. A. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
America the dream. Bates, K. L. (Ag '30)
American. Linderman, F. B. (Je '30)
American alphabets. Hollister, P., ed. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
American ballads and songs
  Davis, A. K., jr., ed. Traditional ballads of Virginia. (Ag '30)
American charities and social work. Warner, A. G., and others. (N '30)
American city government and administration. MacDonald, A. F. (My '30)
American drama
Collections
  Clark, B. H., and Nicholson, K., eds. American scene. (D '30)
  Cordell, R. A., ed. Representative modern plays. (Mr '30)
  Nicholson, K., ed. Hollywood plays. (D '30)
History and criticism
  Clark, B. H. Hour of American drama. (Je '30)
  Eaton, W. P. Drama in English. (O '30)
American epoch. Odum, H. W. (D '30)
American essays
  Taft, K. B., and others, eds. Contemporary attitudes. (Je '30)
American federation of labor
  Childs, H. L. Labor and capital in national politics. (S '30)
American fiction
  Cabell, J. B. Some of us. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Pearson, E. L. Dime novels. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
History and criticism
  Overton, G. M. Hour of the American novel. (Mr '30)
American folk and fairy tales. Field, R. L., comp. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
American girl. Tunis, J. R. (O '30)
American heresy. Hollis, C. (My '30)
American hotel. Williamson, J. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
American housing. Allen, E. L. (N '30)
American industry and commerce. Durand, E. D. (D '30)
American influences on Canadian government. Munro, W. B. (Ap '30)
An American Jezebel [Anne Hutchinson]. Augur, H. (Je '30)
American leviathan. Beard, C. A. and W. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
American literature
  Mims, E. Adventurous America. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Collections
  Hazard, L. L., ed. In search of America. (Ag '30)
  Quinn, A. H., and others, eds. Literature of America, v 2. (Mr '30)
History and criticism
  Cabell, J. B. Some of us. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Foerster, N. Toward standards. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Josephson, M. Portrait of the artist as American. (Ag '30)
  Parrington, V. L. Main currents in American thought, v 3. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Pattee, F. L. New American literature, 1890-1930. (D '30)
  Sayler, O. M. Revolt in the arts. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

American marquis. Weston, G. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
American naturists. Tracy, H. C. (Je '30)
American peace crusade, 1815-1860. Curti, M. E. (N '30)
American poetry
  Lowell, A. Poetry and poets. (Ag '30)
  Collections
  Braithwaite, W. S. B., ed. Anthology of magazine verse for 1929, and Yearbook of American poetry. (Mr '30)
  Chapin, E., and Thomas, R. B. New approach to poetry. (My '30)
  Drinkwater, J., and others, eds. Twentieth-century poetry. (Mr '30)
  Erskine, H., ed. To the gods of Hellas. (S '30)
  Kreymborg, A., ed. Lyric America. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Moult, T., ed. Best poems of 1930. (D '30)
  Shortridge, V., comp. Songs of science. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Taggard, G., ed. Circumference. (My '30)
  Untermeyer, L., ed. Modern American poetry. (O '30)
  Wagner, C. A., ed. Prize poems, 1913-1929. (Ag '30)
  History and criticism
  Brenner, R. Ten modern poets. (Ag '30)
  Kreymborg, A. Our singing strength. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
American public mind. Odegard, P. H. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
American rhythm. Austin, M. (Je '30)
American rich. Nickerson, H. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
American road to culture. Counts, G. S. (O '30)
American scene. Clark, B. H., and Nicholson, K., eds. (D '30)
American scholar. Foerster, N. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
American speeches. MacDonald, J. R. (O '30)
American stage. Coad, O. S., and Mims, E. (My '30)
Americanization of Carl Schurz. Easum, C. V. (My '30)
America's cup races. Stone, H. L. (S '30)
America's England. Hughes, M. V. (Ag '30)
Amiel, Henri Frédéric
  Amiel, H. F. Philine. (Ag '30)
Among the Franciscan tertiaries. De Robeck, N. (Ag '30)
Among those present. Roche, A. S. (O '30)
Amusements
  Gibbard, M. K. Hobbies for girls. (N '30)
  Jackson, G. G. Hobbies for boys. (N '30)
  Lamkin, N. B. Good times for all times. (S '30)
  Miller, C. A. Stunts of all lands. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Analysis of industrial securities. Kraft, C., and Starkweather, L. P. (S '30)
Anastasia arrives. Young, E. G. R. (Mr '30)
Anatomy, Human
  Elwyn, A. Yourself, inc. (Ag '30)
Anatomy of music. Parkhurst, W. (O '30)
Ancient explorers. Cary M., and Warmington, E. H. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual) Ancient painting. Swindler, M. H. (My '30)
"—& Co." Bloch, J. R. (Mr '30)
And this is Boston! Early, E. (N '30)
Anderson, Margaret
  Anderson, M. My thirty years' war. (Ag '30)
Andes
  Grubb, K. G. Amazon and Andes. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
André. Cobb, B. B. and E. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Andrée, Salomon August
  Putnam, G. P. Andrée. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Swedish society for anthropology and geography. Andrée's story. (F '31) (1930 Annual) Andrée's story. Swedish society for anthropology and geography. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Andrew Jackson. Nicolay, H. (Mr '30)
Andrew W. Mellon. Love, P. H. (S '30)
Andromeda in Wimpole street; the romance of Elizabeth Barrett Browning. Baynes, D. J. (S '30)
Anet, Claude, pseud. See Schopfer, J.
Angel Pavement. Priestley, J. B. (O '30)
Anglo-American peace movement in the mid-nineteenth century. Phelps, C. (D '30)
Angus and the ducks. Flack, M. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Animal children. Eipper, P. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Animal intelligence
  Hingston, R. W. G. Instinct and intelligence. (F '31) (1929 Annual)
Animal lover's knapsack. Grover, E. O., ed. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Animal pictures
  Daglish, E. F. Animals in black and white, v 5 & 6. (S '30)
Animals
  Habits and behavior
  Buck, F., and Anthony, E. Bring 'em back alive. (D '30)
  Carr, W. H. Stir of nature. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Chadwick, W. S. Giants of the forest. (Ap '30)
  Eipper, P. Animal children. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Hingston, R. W. G. Instinct and intelligence. (F '31) (1929 Annual)
  Morse, G. F. My life with animals. (Ag '30)
  Legends and stories
  Demaison, A. Beasts called wild. (D '30)
  Johnson, O. H. Jungle babies. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Kaigh-Eustace, E. Jungle babies. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Minot, J. C., comp. Best animal stories I know. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Morse, G. F. My life with animals. (Ag '30)
  Rhys, E., and Scott, C. A., eds. Mainly horses. (Mr '30)
  Stoney, S. G., and Shelby, G. Black Genesis. (Je '30)
Animals in black and white, v 5 & 6. Daglish, E. F. (S '30)
Animals in literature
  Grover, E. O., ed. Animal lover's knapsack. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Animism
  Róheim, G. Animism, magic, and the divine king. (D '30)
Animism, magic, and the divine king. Róheim, G. (D '30)
Anise, pseud. See Strong, A. L.
Anita agrees. Benson, T. (Je '30)
Anna Comnena. Buckler, G. G. (Mr '30)
Annals of American sport. Krout, J. A. (Je '30)
Anne Hutchinson. Curtis, E. (Je '30)
Anonyms and pseudonyms
  Marble, A. Pen names and personalities. (O '30)
Answer before dark. Vermorcken, E. (Je '30)
Answers to everyday questions. Cadman, S. P. (O '30)
Ant heap. Knoblock, E. (Je '30)
Antarctic adventure and research. Taylor, T. G. (Ag '30)
Antarctic regions
  Byrd, R. E. Little America. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Cherry-Garrard, A. G. B. Worst journey in the world. (Ag '30)
  Foster, C. Rear Admiral Byrd and the polar expeditions. (S '30)
  Gwynn, S. L. Captain Scott. (Ap '30)
  Hayward, W. B. Last continent of adventure. (Ag '30)
  Maclean, J. K., and Fraser, C. C. Heroes of the farthest north and farthest south (S '30)
  Miller, F. T. Byrd's great adventure. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Taylor, T. G. Antarctic adventure and research. (Ag '30)
Anthology of American Negro literature. Calverton, V. F., ed. (Je '30)
Anthology of Czechoslovak poetry. Manning, C. A., and others, eds. (My '30)
Anthology of invective and abuse. Lunn, H. K., ed. (My '30)

Anthology of magazine verse for 1929, and Yearbook of American poetry. Braithwaite, W. S. B., ed. (Mr '30)
Anthony in the nude. Brinig, M. (Ag '30)
Anthropogeography
  Hulbert, A. B. Soil. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Huntington, C. C., and Carlson, F. A. Environmental basis of social geography. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Anthropology
  Lowie, R. H. Are we civilized? (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
  Wissler, C. Introduction to social anthropology. (My '30)
Anthropometry
  Measurement of man. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Antinoe (freighter)
  Pratt, E. J. The Roosevelt and the Antinoe. (Ag '30)
Antipathies and prejudices
  Clarke, E. L. Art of straight thinking. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Antiques
  Bowles, E. About antiques. (Mr '30)
Anton and Trini. Olcott, V. (D '30)
Ants
  Maeterlinck, M. Life of the ant. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
The anvil. Frenssen, G. (Ag '30)
Anybody's pearls. Footner, H. (Je '30)
Apes
  Tilney, F. Master of destiny. (Ap '30)
  Yerkes, R. M. and A. Great apes. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Aphorisms and apothegms
  Characters and observations. (O '30)
  Coster, D. The living and the lifeless. (N '30)
Apologia of an imperialist. Hewins, W. A. S. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Apostolic succession
  Lockton, W. Divers orders of ministers. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Apple Pie hill. Forbes, H. C. (Ag '30)
Apples be ripe. Powys, L. (Ag '30)
Applied geophysics in the search for minerals. Eve, A. S., and Keys, D. A. (My '30)
Applied inorganic analysis. Hillebrand, W. F., and Lundell, G. E. F. (Ap '30)
Appointed date. Farjeon, J. J. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Approach to definite forecasting. Hall, L. W. and R. L. (S '30)
Approach to poetry. Mallam, P. (S '30)
April fools. Mackenzie, C. (S '30)
Aquatic mammals. Howell, A. B. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Arabia
  Description and travel
  Musil, A. In the Arabian desert. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Rihani, A. F. Arabian peak and desert. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Rihani, A. F. Around the coasts of Arabia. (My '30)
  Social life and customs
  Musil, A. In the Arabian desert. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Arabian peak and desert. Rihani, A. F. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Arbitration, Industrial
  Amulree of Strathbraan, W. W. M. Industrial arbitration in Great Britain. (S '30)
Arbitration, International
  Curti, M. E. American peace crusade, 1815-1860. (N '30)
Archaeology of Roman Britain. Collingwood, R. G. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Archeology
  Magoffin, R. V. D., and Davis, E. C. Magic spades. (Ap '30)
  Peake, H. J. E., and Fleure, H. J. Way of the sea. (Ap '30)
  Woolley, C. L. Dead towns and living men. (My '30)
Archer's chronicle and greenwood companion. Hare, K. (D '30)
Archery
  Decker, G. C. Bows and arrows for boys. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Hare, K. Archer's chronicle and greenwood companion. (D '30)
Archibald. Markham, F. (N '30)
Architectural drawing
  Dalzell, J. R., and others. Blueprint reading. (D '30)
  Hake, G. D. G., and Button, E. H. Architectural drawing. (S '30)
Architectural ironwork
  Geerlings, G. K. Wrought iron in architecture. (My '30)
Architecture
  Cheney, S. W. New world architecture. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Hitchcock, H. R., jr. Modern architecture. (My '30)
  Taut, B. Modern architecture. (Ap '30)
  England
  Oliver, B. Cottages of England. (Ap '30)
  United States
  Ferriss, H. Metropolis of tomorrow. (Ap '30)
Architecture, Colonial
  Reynolds, H. W. Dutch houses in the Hudson Valley before 1776. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Scarborough, K. Homes of the cavaliers. (F '31) (1930 Annual) Architecture, Domestic
  England
  Oliver, B. Cottages of England. (Ap '30)
  United States
  Allen, E. L. American housing. (N '30)
  Reynolds, H. W. Dutch houses in the Hudson Valley before 1776. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Scarborough, K. Homes of the cavaliers. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Arctic regions
  Hobbs, W. H. Exploring about the North pole of the winds. (Je '30)
  McCracken, H. God's frozen children. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Maclean, J. K., and Fraser, C. C. Heroes of the farthest north and farthest south. (S '30)
  Miller, F. T. Byrd's great adventure. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Putnam, G. P. Andrée. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Swedish society for anthropology and geography. Andrée's story. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Ardent Adrienne. [Mme de LaFayette]. McCabe, L. R. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Are we civilized? Lowie, R. H. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Aresbys, The, pseud. See Bamberger, R. S. and H. R.
Aretino, Pietro
  Fiction
  Condé, E. R. Scandal sheets. (N '30)
Argentina
  Foreign relations
  Cady, J. F. Foreign intervention in the Rio de la Plata, 1838-50. (Ag '30)
Aristocrats of the trees. Wilson, E. H. (Ag '30)
Aristotle
  Herrick, M. T. Poetics of Aristotle in England. (S '30)
  Wolfson, H. A. Crescas' critique of Aristotle. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Ark of Father Noah and Mother Noah. Petersham, M. and M. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Armageddon. Löhrke, E. W., ed. (Ag '30)
Armor of light. Mygatt, T. D., and Witherspoon, F. (Je '30)
Arm's-length. Metcalfe, J. (Je '30)
Armstrong family
  Armstrong, M. N. Five generations. (Je '30)
Army behind barbed wire. Eng title of: Prisoner of war. Dwinger, E. E. (O '30)
Army without banners. Beames, J. (My '30)
Arnold, Benedict
  Sellers, C. C. Benedict Arnold. (My '30)

Arnold, Benedict—Continued

Fiction

Roberts, K. L. Arundel. (Ap '30)

Arnold Damen. Conroy, J. P. (Ag '30)
Around the coasts of Arabia. Rihani, A. F. (My '30)
Around theatres. Beerbohm, M. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Arrogance. Couperus, L. M. A. (My '30)
Arrows of desire. Clark, J. (Je '30)

Art

Allen, M. C. Painters of the modern mind. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Parkhurst, H. H. Beauty. (S '30)
Poore, H. R. Art principles in practice. (O '30)

Collectors and collecting

Friedländer, M. J. Genuine and counterfeit. (O '30)

History

Goldberg, M. E. 100,000 years of art. (D '30)
Pach, W. An hour of art. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Symons, A. From Toulouse-Lautrec to Rodin. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Juvenile literature

Berry, A. M. Art for children. (My '30)

Philosophy

Ducasse, C. J. Philosophy of art. (Mr '30)
Goldberg, I. Fine art of living. (Ag '30)
McMahon, A. P. Meaning of art. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Maritain, J. Art and scholasticism. (Je '30)

England

Whitley, W. T. Art in England, 1821-1837. (S '30)

Russia

Freeman, J., and others. Voices of October. (Ag '30)

Siena

Misciattelli, P. Mystics of Siena. (My '30)

United States

Sayler, O. M. Revolt in the arts. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

History

La Follette, S. Art in America. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Morris, H. S. Confessions in art. (Ag '30)

Venice

Powers, H. H. Venice and its art. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Art, American
La Follette, S. Art in America. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Art, Chinese
Cohn, W. Chinese art. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Art, Commercial
Kiesler, F. Contemporary art applied to the store and its display. (S '30)

Art, Egyptian
Meier-Graefe, J. Pyramid and temple. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Art, Gothic
Sitwell, S. Gothick North. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Art, Italian
Faure, E. Italian renaissance. (D '30)
Vaughan, H. M. Studies in the Italian renaissance. (O '30)

Art, Mexican
Smith, S. C. Made in Mexico. (N '30)
Art of reading. Guppy, H. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Art, Primitive
Luquet, G. H. Art and religion of fossil man. (S '30)

Art, Renaissance
Faure, E. Italian renaissance. (D '30)
Vaughan, H. M. Studies in the Italian renaissance. (O '30)

Art and religion
Cram, R. A. Catholic church and art. (My '30)

Art and religion of fossil man. Luquet, G. H. (S '30)
Art and scholasticism. Maritain, J. (Je '30)
Art and sound pictures. Pitkin, W. B., and Marston, W. M. (Je '30)
Art for children. Berry, A. M. (My '30)
Art in America. La Follette, S. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Art in England, 1821-1837. Whitley, W. T. (S '30)

Art industries and trade

Spain

Carrick, A. Van L. Collector's luck in Spain. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Art of feminine beauty. Rubinstein, H. (D '30)
Art of good living. Simon, A. L. (N '30)
Art of interrogation. Hamilton, E. R. (Mr '30)
Art of rapid reading. Pitkin, W. B. (My '30)
Art of reading. Guppy, H. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Art of reading. Orage, A. R. (My '30)
Art of social dancing. Hostetler, L. A. (N '30)
Art of straight thinking. Clarke, E. L. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Art principles in practice. Poore, H. R. (O '30)

Artagnan, Charles de Baatz de Castelmore, styling himself comte d'

Fiction

Féval, P. Comrades at arms. (O '30)

Arthur, king of Britain
Gardner, E. G. Arthurian legend in Italian literature. (D '30)
Arthurian legend in Italian literature. Gardner, E. G. (D '30)
Artificial sunlight. Luckiesh, M. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
An artist talks about color. Chase, J. C. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Artists

Correspondence, reminiscences, etc.

Beaux, C. Background with figures. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Reynolds, J. Letters. (Ap '30)

Artists, American
Morris, H. S. Confessions in art. (Ag '30)
Smith, R. C. Biographical index of American artists. (O '30)

Artists, French
Symons, A. From Toulouse-Lautrec to Rodin. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Artists in string. Haddon, K. (O '30)

Artists' materials
Frazer, S. W., and Stine, G. F. Treatise on the air brush. (O '30)
Arundel. Roberts, K. L. (Ap '30)

Aryans
Poindexter, M. Ayar-Incas. (O '30)
As I lay dying. Faulkner, W. (D '30)
As I saw it. Brooks, A. (O '30)
As we were. Benson, E. F. (D '30)
Ash Wednesday. Eliot, T. S. (O '30)

Ashantis
Williams, J. J. Hebrewisms of West Africa. (O '30)

Ashton, Helen, pseud. See Jordan, H. R.

Ashton, Winifred. See Dane, C., pseud.

Asia

Economic conditions

Stamp, L. D. Asia. (S '30)
Asia. Stamp, L. D. (S '30)

Asia, Central
Strong, A. L. Red star in Samarkand. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Description and travel

Roerich, N. K. Shambhala. (S '30)
Schroeder, H. A., and Peters, L. A. Shirt-tail and pigtail. (My '30)

Asia Minor

Antiquities

Garstang, J. Hittite empire. (N '30)
Ask no questions. Duff, B. (Je '30)
Asking price. Hull, H. R. (My '30)

Asphalt
Abraham, H. Asphalts and allied substances. (Je '30)
Asphalts and allied substances. Abraham, H. (Je '30)

Assassination
Benjamin, L. S., and Hargreaves, R. Famous duels and assassinations. (My '30)
Assorted articles. Lawrence, D. H. (Ag '30)

Astrology
Adams, E. S. Astrology. (Ag '30)
Thompson, C. J. S. Mystery and romance of astrology. (O '30)

Astronomers
Williams, H. S. Great astronomers. (Ag '30)

Astronomy
Baker, R. H. Astronomy. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Duncan, J. C. Astronomy. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Jeans, J. H. Mysterious universe. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Maeterlinck, M. Magic of the stars. (Je '30)
Shapley, H., and Howarth, H. E. Source book in astronomy. (My '30)
Stetson, H. T. Man and the stars. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Thomas, O. Heaven and earth. (Ag '30)

History

Williams, H. S. Great astronomers. (Ag '30)
At the sign of the flying angel. Gollock, G. A. (Je '30)

Athletics

History

Gardiner, E. N. Athletics of the ancient world. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Athletics of the ancient world. Gardiner, E. N. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Atlantic. Rogers, S. (D '30)

Atlantic ocean
Anthony, I. W. Voyagers unafraid. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Rogers, S. Atlantic. (D '30)
The atom. Thomson, G. P. (O '30)

Atoms
Ruark, A. E., and Urey, H. C. Atoms, molecules and quanta. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Thomson, G. P. The atom. (O '30)
Atoms, molecules and quanta. Ruark, A. E., and Urey, H. C. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Atonement
Grensted, L. W., ed. Atonement in history and in life. (Je '30)
Mathews, S. Atonement and the social process. (S '30)
Atonement and the social process. Mathews, S. (S '30)
Atonement in history and in life. Grensted, L. W., ed. (Je '30)
Aubrey Dene. Hooke, S. D. (Je '30)
Audit of America. Hunt, E. E. (Je '30)
August Strindberg. McGill, V. J. (Je '30)

Augustine, Saint, bp. of Hippo
Papini, G. Saint Augustine. (S '30)
Simpson, W. J. S. St Augustine's conversion. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Australia

Discovery and exploration

Scott, E., ed. Australian discovery by land. (Ag '30)
Australia felix. Richardson, H H., pseud. (Ap '30)
Australian discovery by land. Scott, E., ed. (Ag '30)

Austria

Description and travel

Laughlin, C. E. So you're going to Germany and Austria! (Je '30)

Foreign relations

Baernreither, J. M. Fragments of a political diary (S '30)

History

Glaise von Horstenau, E. Collapse of the Austro-Hungarian empire. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Langsam, W. C. Napoleonic wars and German nationalism in Austria. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Nationality

Langsam, W. C. Napoleonic wars and German nationalism in Austria. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Politics and government

Baernreither, J. M. Fragments of a political diary. (S '30)
Jaszi, O. Dissolution of the Habsburg monarchy. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Langsam, W. C. Napoleonic wars and German nationalism in Austria. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Redlich, J. Austrian war government. (Mr '30)

Austrian war government. Redlich, J. (Mr '30)
Author unknown. Dane, C., pseud., and Simpson, H. (My '30)

Authors
Anderson, M. My thirty years' war. (Ag '30)
Marble, A. Pen names and personalities. (O '30)

Correspondence, reminiscences, etc.

Bennett, A. Journal of things new and old. (O '30)
Benson, E. F. As we were. (D '30)
Garland, H. Roadside meetings. (N '30)

Authors, American
Josephson, M. Portrait of the artist as American. (Ag '30)
Stahl, G. M. Growing with the West. (Ag '30)

Authors and readers
Cruse, A. Englishman and his books in the early nineteenth century. (N '30)

Authorship
Brennecke, E., and Clark, D. L. Magazine article writing. (S '30)
Montague, C. E. Writer's notes on his trade. (O '30)
Wilhelm, D. G. Writing for profit. (N '30)

Autobiography
Stauffer, D. A. English biography before 1700. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Autobiography. Wiley, H. W. (Ag '30)
Autobiography of a criminal. Tufts, H. (Ag '30)
Autobiography of America. Van Doren, M., ed. (Ap '30)
Autobiography of God. Trattner, E. R. (Ag '30)
Autocracy of Mr. Parham. Wells, H. G. (S '30)
Autograph collection. Charnwood, D. M. R. (N '30)

Autographs
Charnwood, D. M. R. Autograph collection. (N '30)
Madigan, T. F. Word shadows of the great. (Je '30)

Autolycus, pseud. See Bacon, L.

Automobiles

Touring

Buchanan, J. J. Take your own car abroad and find your own Europe. (Je '30)
Green, A. Lighthearted journey. (S '30)

Avenging ikon. Barry, C., pseud. (Je '30)
Avenging parrot. Austin, A. (My '30)
Avenging ray. Small, A. J. (O '30)
Aviation. Bennett, R. R. (My '30)
Aviation engines. Kuns, R. F. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Aviation from the ground up. Manly, G. B. (Ap '30)

Aviators
Glassman, D. Jump! (Je '30)
Awakening college. Little, C. C. (Je '30)
Axcile. Benoit, P. (Ag '30)
Ayar-Incas. Poindexter, M. (O '30)

Bābar, emperor of Hindustan
Grenard, F. Baber. (N '30)
Baber. Grenard, F. (N '30)
Babylonia
Antiquities
Gadd, C. J. History and monuments of Ur. (My '30)
History
Barton, G. A. Royal inscriptions of Sumer and Akkad. (S '30)
Dougherty, R. P. Nabonidus and Belshazzar. (S '30)
Bach, Johann Christian
Terry, C. S. John Christian Bach. (My '30)
Bach, Johann Sebastian
Boughton, R. Bach, the master. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Bach, the master. Boughton, R. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Bachelor abroad. Waugh, E. (D '30)
Back Bay murders. Scarlett, R., pseud. (N '30)
Back door guest. Kerr, L. (Je '30)
Back-to-backs. Grant, J. C. (D '30)
Backgammon
Boyden, E. C. New backgammon. (D '30)
Background with figures. Beaux, C. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Backgrounds of biology. Giesen, J., and Malumphy, T. L. (Je '30)
Backstage mystery. Cohen, O. R. (N '30)
Backwater. Stribling, T. S. (My '30)
Backwoods of Canada. Traill, C. P. (My '30)
Bacon, Francis, viscount St Albans
Steel, B. Sir Francis Bacon. (My '30)
Bacteria, Pathogenic
Kopeloff, N. Man vs. microbes. (Je '30)
Bacterial metabolism. Stephenson, M. (D '30)
Bacteriology
Kopeloff, N. Man vs. microbes. (Je '30)
Stephenson, M. Bacterial metabolism. (D '30)
Bainbridge murder. Fitzsimmons, C. (Ap '30)
Baireuth
Jais, R. Legendary Germany, Oberammergau and Bayreuth. (D '30)
Baker's dozen. Davis, M. G., ed. (D '30)
Baldwin, Faith. See Cuthrell, F.
Balfour, Arthur James Balfour, 1st earl of
Balfour. A. J. B. Retrospect. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Malcolm, I. Z. Lord Balfour. (N '30)
Bali island
Powell, H. Last paradise. (Ag '30)
Balkan states
Armstrong, H. F. Where the East begins. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Ballads, American
Davis, A. K., jr., ed. Traditional ballads of Virginia. (Ag '30)
Milburn, G. Hobo's hornbook. (N '30)
Ballads, English
Barry, P., and others, eds. British ballads from Maine. (Ap '30)
Balm in Gilead. Mullins, H. (Ag '30)
Balzac, Honoré de
Gribble, F. H. Balzac. (Ap '30)
Zweig, S. Three masters. (Je '30)
Bandar-log. Smith, A. W. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
The bandit. Charteris, L. (Mr '30)
Bank and its directors. Hazelwood, C. B. (Je '30)
Bank for international settlements
Einzig, P. Bank for international settlements. (S '30)
Myers, D. P. Reparation settlement. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Banks and banking
Hazelwood, C. B. Bank and its directors. (Je '30)
Madden, J. T., and Nadler, M. Foreign securities. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Willis, H. P., and Bogen, J. I. Investment banking. (My '30)
Branch banks
Ostrolenk, B. Economics of branch banking. (S '30)
Great Britain
Withers, H. Meaning of money. (S '30)
United States
Ostrolenk, B. Economics of branch banking. (S '30)
Princeton university. Dept. of economics and social institutions. Industrial relations section. Labor banking movement in the United States. (S '30)
Tippetts, C. S. State banks and the federal reserve system. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Banks and banking, Trade union
Princeton university. Dept of economics and social institutions. Industrial relations section. Labor banking movement in the United States. (S '30)
Bantus
Bryant, A. T. Olden times in Zululand and Natal. (O '30)
Barnard college, New York
Erskine, H., ed. To the gods of Hellas. (S '30)
Baron, Peter, pseud. See Clyde, L. W.
Baron Fritz. Federn, K. (N '30)
Baron's fancy. Botkin, G. E. (D '30)
Barrel of clams. Lesher, S. B. (O '30)
Barren corn. Heyer, G. (N '30)
Barrett, Edward John Boyd
Barrett, E. J. B. Magnificent illusion. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Barrington, E., pseud. See Beck, L.
Barro Colorado island
Chapman, F. M. My tropical air castle. (Mr '30)
Basic industries and social history of Japan, 1914-1918. Kobayashi, U. (O '30)
Basic principles of concrete making. McMillan, F. R. (Je '30)
Bass fishing
Hawes, H. B. My friend the black bass. (S '30)
Bathos
Lewis, D. B. W., and Lee C., eds. Stuffed owl. (My '30)
Baudelaire, Charles Pierre
Shanks, L. P. Baudelaire. (Je '30)
Baumes law. Johnsen, J. E., comp. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Bavaria
Description and travel
Baker, S. St B. Wayfarer in Bavaria. (S '30)
Be of good cheer. McCormick, W. P. G. (My '30)
Beacon Hill murders. Scarlett, R., pseud. (My '30)
Beale, Edward Fitzgerald
Stacey, M. H. Uncle Sam's camels. (Ap '30)
Bearing metals and bearings. Corse, W. M. (N '30)
Bearings (machinery)
Corse, W. M. Bearing metals and bearings. (N '30)
Bears
Holzworth, J. M. Wild grizzlies of Alaska. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Beasts called wild. Demaison, A. (D '30)
Beau lover. Barnes, C. D. (O '30)
Beauty. Parkhurst, H. H. (S '30)
Beauty-mask murder. Shore, V. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Beauty, Personal
Rubinstein, H. Art of feminine beauty. (D '30)
Beauvallet. Heyer, G. (My '30)
Beaux, Cecilia
Beaux, C. Background with figures. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Beaver island, Michigan
Quaife, M. M. Kingdom of Saint James. (Ag '30)
Because I stutter. Johnson, W. (Je '30)
Becher, Augusta Emily (Prinsep) (Mrs Septimus Harding Becher)
Becher, A. E. Personal reminiscences in India and Europe, 1830-1888. (D '30)
Beckoning road. Snedeker, C. D. (My '30)

Bedford Forrest. Sheppard, E. W. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Beebe, Elswyth Thane. See Thane, E., pseud.
Beethoven, Ludwig van
  Ludwig, E. Three Titans. (O '30)
  Schauffler, R. H. Beethoven, the man who freed music. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
    Fiction
  Chotzinoff, S. Eroica. (My '30)
Beethoven, the man who freed music. Schauffler, R. H. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Before and after prohibition. Tydings, M. E. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Beggarman. Abbott, J. L. (O '30)
Beggars abroad. Tully, J. (N '30)
Beguiling shore. Gardiner, D. F. (S '30)
Behaviorism. King, W. P., ed. (Ag '30)
Behaviorism (psychology)
  King, W. P., ed. Behaviorism. (Ag '30)
Behind dark spaces. Cane, M. (My '30)
Behind the monocle. Fletcher, J. S. (O '30)
Behind the scenes of espionage. Eng title of: Secrets of espionage. Lüdecke, W. (My '30)
Belgium
    Description and travel
  Holland, C. Things seen in Belgium. (D '30)
    History
  Lichtervelde, L. de. Léopold First. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
    Nationality
  Clough, S. B. History of the Flemish movement in Belgium. (N '30)
Bell, Eric Temple. See Taine, J., pseud. (My '30)
Beloved! [O mon goye]. Lévy, S. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Beloved community. Humphrey, Z. (S '30)
Belshazzar
  Dougherty, R. P. Nabonidus and Belshazzar. (S '30)
Belshazzar. Haggard, H. R. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Benedict Arnold. Sellers, C. C. (My '30)
Benedictines
  Chapman, J. Saint Benedict and the sixth century. (S '30)
Benedictus, Saint, abbot of Monte Cassino
  Chapman, J. Saint Benedict and the sixth century. (S '30)
Bengal Lancer. Eng title of: Lives of a Bengal Lancer. Yeats-Brown, F. C. C. (N '30)
Bennett, Arnold
  Cross, W. L. Four contemporary novelists. (D '30)
Beppo the donkey. Wells, R. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Berger, Helen, pseud. See Bamberger, H. R.
Berkeley, Anthony, pseud. See Cox, A. B.
Berkeley square. Balderston, J. L. (Mr '30)
Berkshire mystery. Cole, G. D. H. and M. P. (Je '30)
Bernarr Macfadden. Wood, C. (My '30)
Berta and Elmer Hader's picture book of Mother Goose. Mother Goose. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Best animal stories I know. Minot, J. C., comp. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Best British short stories of 1930. O'Brien, E. J. H., ed. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Best English detective stories of 1929. (Ag '30)
Best plays of 1928-29; and, The year book of the drama in America. Mantle, B., ed. (Ap '30)
Best plays of 1929-30. Mantle, B., ed. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Best poems of 1930. Moult, T., ed. (D '30)
Best seller. Marple, A. C. (D '30)
Best short stories of 1930. O'Brien, E. J. H., ed. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Bethel. Millen. E. M. (Mr '30)
Betsy Ross. Parry, E. S. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Betty Bradford, engineer. Davis, M. M. (D '30)
Betty of the consulate. Trowbridge, L. J. (Ap '30)
Between the flags. Page, H. S. (Je '30)
Between the lines. Tomlinson, H. M. (D '30)
Between the river and the hills. Huddleston, S. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Beverages
  Craddock, H., comp. Savoy cocktail book. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Beyle, Marie Henri
  Kayser, R. Stendhal. (My '30)
  Krutch, J. W. Five masters. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Beyond. Ripley, S., ed. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
The Bhagavad-gita. Mahābhārata. Bhagavad-gītā. (Ap '30)
Bible. Whole
  McClure, J. G. K. Supreme book of mankind. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Richardson. H. G. Life and the Book. (Mr '30)
    Criticism, interpretation, etc.
  Gilbert, G. H. Christian content of the Bible. (Je '30)
  Wheless, J. Forgery in Christianity. (N '30)
    History
  Willett, H. L. Bible through the centuries. (Mr '30)
    Stories
  Stoddard, A. Young heroes of the Bible. (O '30)
Bible. Old Testament
    Biography
  Black, J. M. Rouges of the Bible. (My '30)
    Criticism, interpretation, etc.
  Powell, J. W. In search of God. (My '30)
    Parts of the Old Testament
    Prophetical books
  Mackay, W. M. Goodly fellowship of the prophets. (O '30)
    Single books
    Jeremiah
  Calkins, R. Jeremiah the prophet. (My '30)
    Job
  Jordan, W. G. Book of Job. (Ap '30)
Bible. New Testament
  Nairne, A. Every man's story of the New Testament. (N '30)
    Criticism, interpretation, etc.
  Moffatt, J. Love in the New Testament. (Je '30)
  Montefiore, C. J. G. Rabbinic literature and Gospel teachings. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Selections
  Robinson, B. W. Sayings of Jesus. (D '30)
    Parts of the New Testament
    Gospels
  Deane, A. C. How to understand the Gospels. (My '30)
    Single books
    St Matthew
  Bacon, B. W. Studies in Matthew. (D '30)
Bible through the centuries. Willett, H. L. (Mr '30)
Bibliography
    Best books
  Drury, F. K. W. Book selection. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Bibliography of John Dewey. Thomas, M. H., and Schneider, H. W. (S '30)
Bibliography of Oliver Cromwell. Abbott, W. C. (N '30)
Bid her awake. Grigs, M. (O '30)
Bierce, Ambrose
  McWilliams, C. Ambrose Bierce. (Ap '30)
Big American parade. Haldeman-Julius, E. (Mr '30)
Big barn. Edmonds, W. D. (N '30)
Big book of boys' hobbies. Hall, A. N. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Big business girl. (N '30)
Big trees. Fry, W., and White, J. R. (O '30)

Bio-dynamics. Sokolov, B. F. (S '30)
Biographical index of American artists. Smith, R. C. (O '30)

Biography (as a literary form)
  Pearson, H. Ventilations. (My '30)
  Stauffer, D. A. English biography before 1700. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Biography (individual)
  Ackerman, C. W. George Eastman. (Je '30)
  Adam, G. J. The Tiger: Georges Clemenceau 1841-1929. (Je '30)
  Adams, H. Letters (1858-1891). (N '30)
  Adams, S. H. Godlike Daniel [Daniel Webster]. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Adkins, N. F. Fitz-Greene Halleck. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Amann, G. Legacy of Sun Yatsen. (Ap '30)
  Anderson, M. My thirty years' war. (Ag '30)
  Andrews, C. F. Mahatma Gandhi's ideas. (Ap '30)
  Angell, H. Simón Bolívar. (Ag '30)
  Appel, J. H. Business biography of John Wanamaker. (Ap '30)
  Arthur, G. C. A. George V. (My '30)
  Asbury, H. Carry Nation. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
  Ashton, G. G. Biography of the late Marshal Foch. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
  Ashton, H. Molière. (S '30)
  Athavale, P. My story. (S '30)
  Atkins, H. G. Heine. (My '30)
  Augur, H. An American Jezebel [Anne Hutchinson]. (Je '30)
  Baker, G. P. Hannibal. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
  Balfour, A. J. B. Retrospect. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Ballard, C. R. Kitchener. (N '30)
  Barnes, H. F. Charles Fenno Hoffman. (S '30)
  Barrett, E. J. B. Magnificent illusion. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Barton, D. P. Amazing career of Bernadotte, 1763-1844. (Mr '30)
  Barton, W. E. Lincoln at Gettysburg. (My '30)
  Baynes, D. J. Andromeda in Wimpole street; the romance of Elizabeth Barrett Browning. (S '30)
  Beaux, C. Background with figures. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Becher, A. E. Personal reminiscences in India and Europe, 1830-1888. (D '30)
  Beer, T. Hanna. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
  Bell, M. Margaret Fuller. (D '30)
  Belloc, H. Joan of Arc. (My '30)
  Belloc, H. Richelieu. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
  Belloc, H. Wolsey. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Bémont, C. Simon de Montfort. (Je '30)
  Benson, E. F. Ferdinand Magellan. (Ap '30)
  Bishop, J. B. and F. Goethals, genius of the Panama canal. (N '30)
  Blackwell, A. S. Lucy Stone. (N '30)
  Bland-Sutton, J. Story of a surgeon. (N '30)
  Blumenfeld, R. D. In the days of bicycles and bustles. (O '30)
  Blunden, E. C. Leigh Hunt. (N '30)
  Boas, L. S. Elizabeth Barrett Browning. (Ap '30)
  Boas, L. S. Great rich man [Sir Walter Scott]. (Mr '30)
  Bobbé, D. Mr. and Mrs. John Quincy Adams. (N '30)
  Bogen, B. D., and Segal, A. Born a Jew. (S '30)
  Bonavia, F. Verdi. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Boswell, J. Everybody's Boswell. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Boughton, R. Bach, the master. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Bowman, W. D. Divorce case of Queen Caroline. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Brandenburg, A. J. Life of John Keats. (Mr '30)
  Brandes, G. M. C. Voltaire. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Bright, J. Hizzoner Big Bill Thompson. (Je '30)
  Brion, M. Alaric the Goth. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Brown, H. C. Grandmother Brown's hundred years, 1827-1927. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
  Browning, E. Letters to her sister, 1846-1859. (S '30)
  Buck, F. A. Yankee trader in the gold rush. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Buckler, G. G. Anna Comnena. (Mr '30)
  Bunsen, M. von. Lost courts of Europe. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Burlingame, A. E. Condorcet. (S '30)
  Butt, A. W. Taft and Roosevelt. (O '30)
  Cahill, H. Max Weber. (D '30)
  Cahill, H. Yankee adventurer [Frederick Townsend Ward]. (D '30)
  Campbell, D. de B. Intriguing duchess, Marie de Rohan, duchesse de Chevreuse. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Campbell, R. J. Livingstone. (Mr '30)
  Canton, F. M. Frontier trails. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Carlton, W. N. C. Pauline, favorite sister of Napoleon. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Carneal, G. Conqueror of space [Lee De Forest]. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Carré, J. M. Frail warrior [Robert Louis Stevenson]. (Je '30)
  Carruthers, J. H. M. Captain James Cook. (O '30)
  Carswell, D. Scott, and his circle. (D '30)
  Cecil, E. C. D. Stricken deer; or, The life of Cowper. (Je '30)
  Chapin, H. Adventures of Johnny Appleseed. (Je '30)
  Charpentier, J. Coleridge, the sublime somnambulist. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
  Chevalier, J. Pascal. (N '30)
  Chidsey, D. B. Marlborough. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
  Chinard, G. Thomas Jefferson, the apostle of Americanism. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
  Chubb, T. C. Life of Giovanni Boccaccio. (Je '30)
  Churchill, W. L. S. Roving commission. (D '30)
  Clark, E. B. William L. Sibert. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Clemenceau, G. E. B. Claude Monet. (My '30)
  Coffin, R. P. T. Laud. (S '30)
  Coleman, M. Eugene V. Debs. (S '30)
  Connely, W. Brawny Wycherley. (My '30)
  Conroy, J. P. Arnold Damen. (Ag '30)
  Corbin, J. Unknown Washington. (Je '30)
  Corey, L. House of Morgan. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Coulson, T. Mata Hari. (My '30)
  Craig, G. Henry Irving. (D '30)
  Cresson, W. P. Francis Dana. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Cruttwell, M. Madame de Maintenon. (O '30)
  Cunninghame Graham, R. B. José Antonio Páez. (Ap '30)
  Curtayne, A. Saint Catherine of Siena. (D '30)
  Curtis, E. Anne Hutchinson. (Je '30)
  Curwood, J. O. Son of the forests. (D '30)
  Cust, L. H. King Edward VII and his court. (O '30)
  Cutting, E. B. Jefferson Davis. (D '30)
  Damon, S. F. Thomas Holley Chivers. (Ag '30)
  D'Arcy, M. C. Thomas Aquinas. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  De Koven, A. Horace Walpole and Madame du Deffand. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
  Delteil, J. Once there was a man Napoleon. (My '30)
  Dent, R. C. Life story of King George V. (Ap '30)
  Dermenghem, E. Life of Mahomet. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Dix, T. Black baron [Giles de Rais]. (N '30)
  Dostoevskiĭ, F. M. Letters to his wife. (Je '30)
  Drew, M. Mary Gladstone (Mrs Drew) her diaries and letters. (Ag '30)
  Drinkwater, J. Pepys. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Duffy, H. S. William Howard Taft. (O '30)
  Du Moulin-Eckart, R. M. F. Cosima Wagner. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Easton, E. Roger Williams. (Ag '30)
  Easum, C. V. Americanization of Carl Schurz (My '30)
  Eckenrode, H. J., and Wight, P. W. Rutherford B. Hayes. (Je '30)
  Einstein, L. D. Roosevelt. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Ekrem, S. Unveiled. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Ellinger, E. P. Thomas Chatterton. (S '30)
  Elton, O. C. E. Montague. (My '30)

Escholier, R. Victor Hugo. (Ap '30)
Febvre, L. P. V. Martin Luther. (My '30)
Ferrara, O. Private correspondence of Nicolo Machiavelli. (Mr '30)
Finger, C. J. Seven horizons. (Je '30)
Flament, A. Private life of Lady Hamilton. (Mr '30)
Fleg, E. Life of Solomon. (Mr '30)
For Joan of Arc. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Ford, H., and Crowther, S. Edison as I know him. (D '30)
Forester, C. S. Lord Nelson. (Mr '30)
Foster, C. Rear Admiral Byrd and the Polar expeditions. (S '30)
Frothingham, T. G. Washington, commander in chief. (D '30)
Fuess, C. M. Daniel Webster. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Fuller, J. F. C. Generalship of Ulysses S. Grant. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Fyfe, H. H. Northcliffe. (N '30)
Gabory, E. Alias Bluebeard [Gilles de Raiz]. (S '30)
Gandhi, M. K. Mahatma Gandhi: his own story. (N '30)
Gardiner, A. Canfield. (Ap '30)
Garland, H. Roadside meetings. (N '30)
Garrick, D. Pineapples of finest flavour; or, A selection of sundry unpublished letters of . . . David Garrick. (S '30)
Gates, S., and Widtsoe, L. E. Life story of Brigham Young. (N '30)
Gibbon, E. Gibbon's journal to January 28th, 1763. (My '30)
Gibbs, P. H. King's favourite. (Je '30)
Gilmore, A. F. Fellowship [the biography of Clarence H. Howard]. (Mr '30)
Gleason, A. H. Book of Arthur Gleason. (Ap '30)
Goldsmith, M. L., and Voigt, F. Hindenburg. (S '30)
Gorman, H. S. Incredible marquis, Alexandre Dumas. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Gosse, P. Hawkins: scourge of Spain. (D '30)
Gratz, R. Letters. (Mr '30)
Graves, R. Good-bye to all that. (Mr '30)
Grenard, F. Baber. (N '30)
Greville, C. C. F. Leaves from the Greville diary. (Je '30)
Gribble, F. H. Balzac. (Ap '30)
Gwynn, D. R. Daniel O'Connell. (Je '30)
Gwynn, S. L. Captain Scott. (Ap '30)
Gwynn, S. L. Life of Sir Walter Scott. (D '30)
Hackenburg, F. L. Solitary parade. (Ag '30)
Haeckel, E. H. P. A. Love letters. (Je '30)
Haight, G. S. Mrs. Sigourney. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Haller, J. Philip Eulenberg. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Hallock, G. T., and Turner, C. E. Edward Livingston Trudeau. (S '30)
Hamilton, A. Memoirs of the Comte de Gramont. (S '30)
Hamilton, M. A. J. Ramsay MacDonald. (Je '30)
Hamlin, F. S. Parkes Cadman. (Ag '30)
Hapgood, N. Changing years. (D '30)
Harbage, A. Thomas Killigrew. (My '30)
Hardman, W. Hardman papers. (O '30)
Hardy, F. E. Later years of Thomas Hardy, 1892-1928. (Ag '30)
Harris, F. My reminiscences as a cowboy. (My '30)
Harrison, E. Sketches along life's road. (S '30)
Hawkins, R. L. Madame de Staël and the United States. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Heard, J., jr. John Wheelwright. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Hoby, M. Diary of Lady Margaret Hoby, 1599-1605. (N '30)
Holmes, F. L. Abraham Lincoln traveled this way. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Howard, J. L. Seth Harding. (S '30)
Howland, H. H. Dwight Whitney Morrow. (Ag '30)
Hoyt, H. F. Frontier doctor. (Ap '30)
Hughes, R. George Washington, v 3. (Ap '30)
Hurn, P. D., and Root, W. L. Truth about Wagner. (My '30)
Hussey, C. Tait McKenzie. (Ap '30)
Hutchinson, W. T. Cyrus Hall McCormick. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Irvine, A. F. Fighting parson. (Je '30)
Jacks, L. V. Xenophon. (Ag '30)
Jackson, A. Correspondence, v 4. (Ap '30)
Jacquemaire, M. Life of Madame Roland. (O '30)
James, H. Charles W. Eliot. (D '30)
James, H. Letters to A. C. Benson and Auguste Monod. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
James, W. Lone cowboy. (O '30)
Jefferson, T. Correspondence between Thomas Jefferson and Pierre Samuel du Pont de Nemours, 1798-1817. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Jenkins, M. Emily Dickinson. (Ag '30)
Johnson, S. Samuel Johnson, president of King's college. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Johnston, A. Life and letters of Sir Harry Johnston. (My '30)
Johnston, M. Domination. (O '30)
Jones, D. A. Taking the curtain call; the life and letters of Henry Arthur Jones. (N '30)
Jones, R. M. George Fox. (Ag '30)
Kasovich, I. I. Days of our years. (D '30)
Kayser, R. Stendhal. (My '30)
Kemechey, L. Il duce. (S '30)
Kenton, E. Simon Kenton. (My '30)
Kessler, H. K. U. Walter Rathenau. (Mr '30)
Ketterl, E. Emperor Francis Joseph I. (D '30)
Krupp, A. Krupp. (S '30)
Krupskaya, N. K. Memories of Lenin. (N '30)
Lahey, G. F. Gerard Manley Hopkins. (N '30)
Laighton, O. Ninety years at the Isles of Shoals. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Landau, R. Pilsudski and Poland. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Langbridge, R. G. Charlotte Brontë. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Laver, J. Whistler. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Lawrence, W. Life of Phillips Brooks. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Leach, P. R. That man Dawes. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Lejeune, J. A. Reminiscences of a marine. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Lewis, C. L. Admiral Franklin Buchanan. (My '30)
Lewis, D. B. W. King Spider [Louis XI]. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Lewis, O. Hearn and his biographers. (N '30)
Lichtervelde, L. de. Léopold First. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Liddell Hart, B. H. Sherman, soldier, realist, American. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Lincoln, A. New letters and papers. (Je '30)
Linderman, F. B. American. (Je '30)
Littlehales, L. Pablo Casals. (Ap '30)
LoBagola, B. K. A. I. Lobagola. (My '30)
Lockridge, R. F. A. Lincoln. (O '30)
Loth, D. G. Lorenzo the Magnificent. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Loth, D. G. Royal Charles, ruler and rake. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Love, P. H. Andrew W. Mellon. (S '30)
Lowrie, D. A. Masaryk: nation builder. (Je '30)
Ludwig, E. Lincoln. (Ap '30)
Lyman, G. D. John Marsh, pioneer. (D '30)
Lyon, H., and Block, H. Edward Coke. (Je '30)
Maartens, M., pseud. Letters. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Macauley, T. Donn Byrne. (Ap '30)
McBride, M. M. Story of Dwight W. Morrow. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
McCabe, L. R. Ardent Adrienne [Mme de La Fayette]. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
McElroy, R. M. Levi Parsons Morton. (Je '30)
McGill, V. J. August Strindberg. (Je '30)
Mackinnon, J. Luther and the reformation, v 3-4. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
McMahon, J. R. Wright brothers. (Je '30)
McWilliams, C. Ambrose Bierce. (Ap '30)
Malcolm, I. Z. Lord Balfour. (N '30)
Mallet, C. E. Mr. Lloyd George. (N '30)
Marie, grand duchess of Russia. Education of a princess. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Mariejol, J. H. Daughter of the Medicis [Margaret of Valois]. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Marjoribanks, E. For the defence; the life of Sir Edward Marshall Hall. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Marlborough, S. C. Memoirs. (S '30)

Biography (individual)—Continued
Marsh, W. J., jr. Our president Herbert Hoover. (O '30)
Martet, J. Georges Clemenceau. (Ap '30)
Mary Monica, Sister. Cross in the wilderness. (O '30)
Massingham, H. J. Friend of Shelley [Edward John Trelawny]. (D '30)
Maurois, A. Byron. (My '30)
May, J. L. Cardinal Newman. (Je '30)
May, J. L. George Eliot. (O '30)
Mazzini, G. Letters. (O '30)
Merezhkovskii, D. S. Life of Napoleon. (Ap '30)
Michaud, R. Emerson, the enraptured Yankee. (Ag '30)
Milton, G. F. Age of hate [Andrew Johnson]. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Misciattelli, P. Savonarola. (Ap '30)
Monfreid, H. de. Pearls, arms and hashish. (D '30)
Moody, W. R. D. L. Moody. (O '30)
Morris, H. S. Walt Whitman. (Ap '30)
Morrow, H. W. Tiger! Tiger! [John B. Gough]. (Ap '30)
Moses, M. J. Fabulous Forrest. (Ap '30)
Mott, T. B. Myron T. Herrick. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Mozley, J. K., ed. G. A. Studdert Kennedy. (N '30)
Munthe, A. M. F. Memories and vagaries. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Nelson, W. H. Blood & fire: General William Booth. (My '30)
Nevins, A. Henry White. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
New, C. W. Lord Durham. (Ap '30)
Newcomb, A. Dowie, anointed of the Lord. (O '30)
Newman, B. Lord Melbourne. (Je '30)
Newman, F. Frances Newman's letters. (Ap '30)
Newton, T. W. L. Lord Lansdowne. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Nezelof, P. Josephine, the great lover. (Mr '30)
Nicolay, H. Andrew Jackson. (Mr '30)
Nicolson, H. G. Portrait of a diplomatist [Sir Arthur Nicolson]. (N '30)
Niemann, W. Brahms. (My '30)
Nock, A. J., and Wilson, C. R. Francis Rabelais. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
O'Flaherty, L. Two years. (N '30)
Olden, R. Stresemann. (Ag '30)
Oliver, J. R. Foursquare. (Ap '30)
Orliac, J. d'. Moon mistress, Diane de Poitiers. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Osborne, C. H. Religion of John Burroughs. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Oursler, F. True story of Bernarr Macfadden. (My '30)
Painter, F. R. That man Debs and his life work. (O '30)
Palache, J. G. Marie Antoinette. (My '30)
Palen, L. S. Water and gold. (O '30)
Palmer, J. Molière. (O '30)
Papini, G. Saint Augustine. (S '30)
Parkes, H. B. Jonathan Edwards. (N '30)
Parry, E. S. Betsy Ross. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Pasley, F. D. Al Capone. (D '30)
Pasma, H. K. Close-hauled. [Henry Kay Pasma]. (Ag '30)
Peers, E. A. Ramon Lull. (My '30)
Pell, J. Ethan Allan. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Pennell, E. Whistler, the friend. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Perkins, G. Chats with the Macfadden family. (My '30)
Pierce, L. A. William Kirby. (S '30)
Pollard, A. F. Wolsey. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Pollitt, J. Emily Dickinson. (Ap '30)
Ponsonby, F. E. G. Side lights on Queen Victoria. (D '30)
Postgate, R. W. That devil Wilkes. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Potter, S. D. H. Lawrence (S '30)
Pound, A., and Day, R. E. Johnson of the Mohawks. (Je '30)
Powell, L. P. Mary Baker Eddy. (D '30)
Preston, J. H. Gentleman rebel [Anthony Wayne]. (My '30)
Putnam, S. François Rabelais. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Randell, J. I'm alone. (Je '30)
Rapin, R. Willa Cather. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Reiser, A. Albert Einstein. (Ja '31) (1930 Annaul)
Reynolds, J. Letters. (Ap '30)
Rilke, R. M. Journal of my other self. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Rival, P. Madcap queen; the story of Marguerite of Navarre. (S '30)
Robertson, W. S. Life of Miranda. (My '30)
Robeson, E. G. Paul Robeson, Negro. (S '30)
Robinson, W. A. Thomas B. Reed. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Roeder, R. Savonarola. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Rogoff, H. East Side epic [Meyer London]. (Ap '30)
Roof, K. M. Colonel William Smith and lady. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Rosebault, C. J. Saladin, prince of chivalry. (Je '30)
Rosen, F. Oriental memories of a German diplomatist. (O '30)
Rugg, W. K. Unafraid [Anne Hutchinson]. (Ap '30)
Ruskin, J. Solitary warrior. (Ap '30)
Russell, C. E. Charlemagne. (Ag '30)
Russell, P. Emerson, the wisest American. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Sage, L. Last rustler. (Ag '30)
Salomon, G. Shadow king [Louis XVII of France]. (S '30)
Sand, G., pseud. Intimate journal. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Sand, G., pseud. Letters. (My '30)
Sandburg, C. Steichen, the photographer. (Ap '30)
Sanders, G. DeW. Elizabeth Gaskell. (Je '30)
Saxon, L. Lafitte the pirate. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Scapini, J. G. Challenge to darkness. (Mr '30)
Schafer, J. Carl Schurz. (O '30)
Schauffler, R. H. Beethoven, the man who freed music. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Scheidemann, P. Making of new Germany. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Scott, W. Private letter-books. (D '30)
Sedgwick, H. D. Henry of Navarre. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Seely, J. E. B. Adventure. (My '30)
Sellers, C. C. Benedict Arnold. (My '30)
Sencourt, R. E. Life of George Meredith. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Seymour, F. W. Sam Houston, patriot. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Shanks, L. P. Baudelaire. (Je '30)
Shaw, A. Abraham Lincoln. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Shaw, M. F. Up to now. (Mr '30)
Shelley, P. B. Lost letters to Harriet. (Je '30)
Sheppard, E. W. Bedford Forrest. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Sherrard, O. A. Life of John Wilkes. (O '30)
Simpson, W. J. S. St Augustine's conversion. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Sitwell, E. Alexander Pope. (My '30)
Sparkes, B., and Moore, S. T. Hetty Green. (Je '30)
Specht, R. Johannes Brahms. (S '30)
Spring Rice, C. A. Letters and friendships. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Springer, F. C. According to the flesh; a biography of Mary Baker Eddy. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Stadelmann, H. Messalina. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Stahl, J. M. Growing with the West. (Ag '30)
Steel, B. Sir Francis Bacon. (My '30)
Stephenson, N. W. Nelson W. Aldrich. (N '30)
Stevens, L. Here comes Pancho Villa. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Stewart, L. Pioneer of old Superior [Charles Dean Kimball]. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Street, C. J. C. Thomas Masaryk of Czechoslovakia. (S '30)
Sutley, Z. T. Last frontier. (Je '30)
Taggard, G. Life and mind of Emily Dickinson. (Ag '30)
Tarbeaux, F. Autobiography. (Ag '30)
Taylor, E. G. Paul Revere. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Taylor, G. Pioneering on social frontiers. (O '30)

Terhune, A. P. To the best of my memory. (Je '30)
Terry, C. S. John Christian Bach. (My '30)
Thiéry, M. Captain Cook. (Je '30)
Thomas, L. J. Hero of Vincennes [George Rogers Clark]. (My '30)
Thomas, L. J. Lauterbach of the China sea. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Thomason, J. B. Jeb Stuart. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Thomson, V. Briand. (Ag '30)
Thurston, H. My life of magic. (My '30)
Tillyard, E. M. W. Milton. (N '30)
Tolstaı͡a, S. A. Countess Tolstoy's later diary; 1891-1897. (Ap '30)
Trotsky, L., pseud. My life. (Je '30)
Tschuppik, K. Empress Elizabeth of Austria. (S '30)
Tschuppik, K. Francis Joseph I. (Ag '30)
Tufts, H. Autobiography of a criminal. (Ag '30)
Turner, N. B., and Gunn, S. Mother of Washington. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Vallée, R. Vagabond dreams come true. (My '30)
Vanamee, M. C. Vanamee. (Ap '30)
Van Doren, C. C. Swift. (D '30)
Van Loon, H. W. R.v.R. [Rembrandt]. (N '30)
Vaucaire, M. Paul Du Chaillu, gorilla hunter. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Vauclain, S. M., and May, E. C. Steaming up! [autobiography of S. M. Vauclain]. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Victoria, queen of Great Britain. Letters, v 1. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Vinaver, E. Malory. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Vladimirtsov, B. I͡A. Life of Chingis-Khan. (D '30)
Vrangel, N. E. Memoirs. (My '30)
Vulliamy, C. E. Voltaire. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Wade, J. D. John Wesley. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Wagenknecht, E. C. The man Charles Dickens. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Wagner, H. Joaquin Miller and his other self. (My '30)
Walpole, H. Horace Walpole's England. (N '30)
Walsh, J. J. Mother Alphonsa, Rose Hawthorne Lathrop. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Walsh, W. T. Isabella of Spain. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Warren, R. P. John Brown. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Wassermann, J. Columbus. (My '30)
Weigall, A. E. P. B. Nero, the singing emperor of Rome. (D '30)
Wells, G. H. H. G. Wells. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Westermarck, E. A. Memories of my life. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Weterstetten, R., and Watson, A. M. K. Biography of President von Hindenburg. (S '30)
Weygand, M. Turenne. (S '30)
White, O. P. Frontier mother. (Mr '30)
Whitlock, B. La Fayette. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Wiegler, P. Infidel emperor [Frederick II]. (O '30)
Wild, J. Unpublished letters. (D '30)
Wiley, H. W. Autobiography. (Ag '30)
Wilson, P. W. William Pitt, the younger. (My '30)
Wilson, R. M. Josephine, the portrait of a woman. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Winkler, J. K. Morgan, the magnificent. (N '30)
Winston, R. W. High stakes and hair trigger: the life of Jefferson Davis. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Wister, O. Roosevelt. (S '30)
Wood, C. Bernarr Macfadden. (My '30)
Wood, P. Actors—and people. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Woodfill, S. Woodfill of the regulars. (Ap '30)
Ybarra, T. R. Bolivar, the passionate warrior. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Yeats-Brown, F. C. C. Lives of a Bengal lancer. (N '30)
Young, C. Lady who loved herself; the life of Mme Roland. (N '30)
Young, J. C. Marse Robert. (Ap '30)
Zucker, A. E. Ibsen, the master builder. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Zur Mühlen, H. Runaway countess. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Zweig, S. Joseph Fouché. (O '30)

Biography (collective)
Adams, J. T. Adams family. (Ag '30)
Appleyard, R. Pioneers of electrical communication. (N '30)
Bechdolt, F. R. Giants of the old West. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Bibesco, M. L. Some royalties and a prime minister. (O '30)
Bolitho, W., pseud. Twelve against the gods. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Bradford, G. Daughters of Eve. (Ap '30)
Cruse, A. Boys and girls who became famous. (Je '30)
Darrow, F. L. Builders of empire. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Feiling, K. G. Sketches in nineteenth century biography. (N '30)
Ferris, H. J., ed. When I was a girl. (O '30)
Hagedorn, H. Book of courage. (Ag '30)
Henderson, A. Contemporary immortals. (N '30)
MacLaurin, C. Post mortems of mere mortals. (S '30)
Morison, S. E. Builders of the Bay Colony. (Ag '30)
Sweetser, K. D. Famous girls of the White House. (S '30)
Taylor, G. R. S. English political portraits of the nineteenth century. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Tucker, B. R. Gift of genius. (S '30)
Viereck, G. S. Glimpses of the great. (O '30)
Wallas, A. Daguerreotypes. (Je '30)
Wiegler, P. Genius in love and death. (Ap '30)
Zweig, S. Three masters. (Je '30)

Juvenile literature
Peters, I. Girls of long ago. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Biography of President von Hindenburg. Weterstetten, R., and Watson, A. M. K. (S '30)
Biography of the late Marshal Foch. Aston, G. G. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual) Biological basis of human nature. Jennings, H. S. (Je '30)
Biological chemistry
Gortner, R. A. Outlines of biochemistry. (Je '30)
Michaelis, L. Oxidation-reduction potentials. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Parsons, T. R. Materials of life. (S '30)
Biological principles. Woodger, J. H. (My '30)
Biology
Cowdry, E. V., ed. Human biology and racial welfare. (S '30)
Giesen, J., and Malumphy, T. L. Backgrounds of biology. (Je '30)
Koppanyi, T. Conquest of life. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Needham, J. Sceptical biologist. (Ap '30)
Woodger, J. H. Biological principles. (My '30)

History
Rádl, E. History of biological theories. (N '30)

Biometry
Measurement of man. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Bird in the bush. Hallock, G. T. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Bird-lovers' anthology. Scollard, C., and Rittenhouse, J. B., comps. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Birds
Allen, A. A. Book of bird life. (Ag '30)
Daglish, E. F. Life story of birds. (My '30)

Juvenile literature
Garson, E. C. Featherland. (Je '30)

Migration
Berg, B. M. K. To Africa with the migratory birds. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Birds—Continued

Poetry

Scollard, C., and Rittenhouse, J. B., comps. Bird-lovers' anthology. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Pennsylvania

Weygandt, C. Wissahickon hills. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Birmingham, George A., pseud. See Hannay, J. O.

Birth control

Place, F. Illustrations and proofs of the principle of population. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Robinson, C. Seventy birth control clinics. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Birth of the American people. Morgan, J. (N '30)

Bismarck, Otto, fürst von

Nowak, K. F. Kaiser and Chancellor. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Bitter tea of General Yen. Stone, G. Z. (D '30)
Bitter waters. Hauser, H. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
The Black. Wallace, E. (My '30)
Black arrowhead. Snedeker, C. D. (Je '30)
Black baron [Gilles de Rais]. Dix, T. (N '30)

Black bass

Hawes, H. B. My friend the black bass. (S '30)

Black bread and red coffins. Farson, N. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Black door. Markham, V. (Je '30)

Black Forest

Marlowe, C. Black Forest. (My '30)
Untermeyer, L. Blue Rhine, Black Forest. (Je '30)

Black Genesis. Stoney, S. G., and Shelby, G. (Je '30)
Black light. Mundy, T. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Black Manhattan. Johnson, J. W. (S '30)
Black roadways. Beckwith, M. W. (F '31) (1929 Annual)

Black Rock, Connecticut

Lathrop, C. P., ed. Black Rock. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Black Rock. Lathrop, C. P., ed. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Black sheep. Payne, J. (Je '30)
Black soil. Donovan, J. (N '30)
Black Venus (La négresse de Sacre-Cœur). Salmon, A. (Mr '30)
Black yeomanry. Woofter, T. J. (O '30)
Blackleg. Hyde, S. W. (S '30)
Blackshirt again. Eng title of Adventures of Blackshirt. Jeffries, G. M. (Mr '30)
Blacksmith of Vilno. Kelly, E. P. (D '30)
Blackthorn winter. Powys, P. (N '30)

Blair, Dorothy. See Scarlett, R., pseud.

Bland-Sutton, Sir John, bart.

Bland-Sutton, J. Story of a surgeon. (N '30)

Blenden Hall (ship)

Lockhart, J. G. Blenden Hall. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Blind

Scapini, J. G. Challenge to darkness. (Mr '30)
Villey, P. World of the blind. (N '30)

Asylums and education

Ritchie, J. M. Concerning the blind. (D '30)

Printing and writing systems

Ritchie, J. M. Concerning the blind. (D '30)

Blind fury. Gluck, S. (D '30)

Blockade

Guichard, L. Naval blockade, 1914-1918. (Ap '30)

Blood & fire: General William Booth. Nelson, W. H. (My '30)
Blood on the Yukon trail. Hendryx, J. B. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Blood royal. Mercer, C. W. (Mr '30)
Blot: little city cat. Crawford, P. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Blow, whistles, blow! Atherton, S. H. (Je '30)
Blowing clear. Lincoln, J. C. (D '30)
Blue door. Starrett, V. (N '30)
Blue rajah murder. MacGrath, H. (O '30)
Blue Rhine, Black Forest. Untermeyer, L. (Je '30)
Blue rum. Souza, E., pseud. (Je '30)
Blueprint reading. Dalzell, J. R., and others. (D '30)

Blueprints

Dalzell, J. R., and others. Blueprint reading. (D '30)

Blumenfeld, Ralph David

Blumenfeld, R. D. In the days of bicycles and bustles. (O '30)

Boat building

Burnham, B. Outboard motor boats and engines. (Je '30)

Bob North with dog team and Indians. North, R. C. (Mr '30)

Boccaccio, Giovanni

Chubb, T. C. Life of Giovanni Boccaccio. (Je '30)
Krutch, J. W. Five masters. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Bodily changes in pain, hunger, fear and rage. Cannon, W. B. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Body in the road. Dalton, M. (Je '30)
Body in the safe. Gregg, C. F. (My '30)

Bogen, Boris D.

Bogen, B. D., and Segal, A. Born a Jew. (S '30)

Bohemian poetry

Translations into English

Manning, C. A., and others, eds. Anthology of Czechoslovak poetry. (My '30)

Böhme, Jakob

Brinton, H. H. Mystic will. (N '30)

Bold dragoon. Irving, W. (D '30)

Bolívar, Simón

Angell, H. Simón Bolívar. (Ag '30)
Ybarra, T. R. Bolivar, the passionate warrior. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Bolivar, the passionate warrior. Ybarra, T. R. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Bolshevism

Lenin, N. Collected works, v 4. (My '30)
Lenin, N. Selections; v 2, The Bolshevik party in action, 1904-1914. (N '30)
Strong, A. L. Red star in Samarkand. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Russia

Chamberlin, W. H. Soviet Russia. (Je '30)
Dillon, E. J. Russia: today and yesterday. (My '30)
Farson, N. Black bread and red coffins. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Feiler, A. Russian experiment. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Imrey, F., and Palen, L. S. Through blood and ice. (Ag '30)
Petrova, N., pseud. Twice born in Russia. (N '30)

Bombardment

Spaight, J. M. Air power and the cities. (Ag '30)

Bong' kwé. Hubbard, W. D. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Booby trap. Crawshay-Williams, E. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Book of airplanes. Iseman, J. W., and Taylor S. (S '30)
Book of Arthur Gleason. Gleason, A. H. (Ap '30)
Book of bird life. Allen, A. A. (Ag '30)
Book of Christopher Columbus. Claudel, P. (Ag '30)

Book of common prayer

Chorley, E. C. New American prayer book. (Ap '30)

Book of courage. Hagedorn, H. (Ag '30)
Book of days. Morley, C. D., comp. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Book of dramatic costume. Dabney, E., and Wise, C. M. (Je '30)
Book of gliders. Teale, E. W. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Book of Job. Jordan, W. G. (Ap '30)
Book of murder. Anderson, F. I. (O '30)
Book of Simon. Hutchinson, A. S.-M. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Book of the three dragons. Morris, K. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Book of the tulip. Hall, A. D. (Je '30)
Book of the White mountains. Anderson, J., and Morse, S. (O '30)
Book of theatres. Urban, J. (Ap '30)
Book selection. Drury, F. K. W. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Bookbinding
Sadleir, M. Evolution of publishers' binding styles, 1770-1900. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Books
Orcutt, W. D. Magic of the book. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Reviews
Mansfield, K., pseud. Novels and novelists. (D '30)
Books. Duffus, R. L. (O '30)
Books and reading
Cruse, A. Englishman and his books in the early nineteenth century. (N '30)
Drury, F. K. W. Book selection. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Duffus, R. L. Books. (O '30)
Guppy, H. Art of reading. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Jones, L. How to read books. (Je '30)
Orage, A. R. Art of reading. (My '30)
Rogers, R. E. Fine art of reading. (Mr '30)
Sanford, A. P., and Schauffler, R. H., eds. Magic of books. (My '30)
Booksellers and bookselling
United States
Duffus, R. L. Books. (O '30)
Bookshop mystery. Childers, J. S. (My '30)
Booth, John Wilkes
Ferguson, W. J. I saw Booth shoot Lincoln. (Ag '30)
Booth, William
Nelson, W. H. Blood & fire: General William Booth. (My '30)
Borghese, Marie Pauline Bonaparte, princesse
Carlton, W. N. C. Pauline, favorite sister of Napoleon. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Borgia cabinet. Fletcher, J. S. (Ap '30)
Borgia family
Henschke, A. Incredible Borgias. (Ap '30)
Fiction
Huna, L. Bulls of Rome. (Je '30)
Huna, L. Star of the Orsini. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Borgian bull. Eng title of: Bulls of Rome. Huna, L. (Je '30)
Born a Jew. Bogen, B. D., and Segal, A. (S '30)
Borromean islands
Ara, U. Romance of the Borromean islands. (O '30)
Boston
Description
Early, E. And this is Boston! (N '30)
Prospect union association, Cambridge, Mass., comp. Recreation in and about Boston. (O '30)
History
Early, E. And this is Boston! (N '30)
Recreation facilities
Prospect union association, Cambridge, Mass., comp. Recreation in and about Boston. (O '30)
Boston, England
Lambert, M. R., and Walker, R. Old Boston (England). (N '30)
Boston, Tattershall and Croyland. Eng title of: Old Boston (England). Lambert, M. R., and Walker, R. (N '30)
Boston Evening Transcript
Chamberlin, J. E. Boston Transcript. (Ag '30)
Botany
Juvenile literature
Kenly, J. C. Green magic. (S '30)
Africa
Fairchild, D. G. Exploring for plants. (S '30)
Dutch East Indies
Fairchild, D. G. Exploring for plants. (S '30)
Morocco
Fairchild, D. G. Exploring for plants. (S '30)
Both sides of the street. Cobb, I. S. (N '30)
Botticelli, Sandro
Yashiro, Y. Sandro Botticelli. (Mr '30)
Bottom dogs. Dahlberg, E. (My '30)
Bound to happen. Thane, E., pseud. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Bourru, soldier of France. Taboureau, J. (Ap '30)
Bow of burning gold. Root, E. M. (My '30)
Bows and arrows for boys. Decker, G. C. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Box office. Anderson, J. (Mr '30)
Boy with the parrot. Coatsworth, E. J. (S '30)
Boyhoods of the presidents. Smith, B. W. (D '30)
Boys
Furfey, P. H. Growing boy. (Je '30)
Hamilton, A. E. Boyways. (S '30)
Reckless, W. C. Six boys in trouble. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Boys and girls who became famous. Cruse, A. (Je '30)
The boys and Sally down on a plantation. Knox, R. B. (N '30)
Boys' book of exploration. Gable, J. H. (Ag '30)
Boyways. Hamilton, A. E. (S '30)
The bracelet. Hichens, R. S. (D '30)
Brahms, Johannes
Niemann, W. Brahms. (My '30)
Specht, R. Johannes Brahms. (S '30)
Brain
Tilney, F. Master of destiny. (Ap '30)
Bramah, Ernest, pseud. See Smith, E. B.
Brass hat in No Man's Land. Crozier, F. P. (O '30)
Bravery of earth. Eberhart, R. (Ag '30)
Brawny Wycherley. Connely, W. (My '30)
Brazil
Description and travel
Dyott, G. M. Man hunting in the jungle. (My '30)
Bread
Snyder, H. Bread. (Ag '30)
Bread of Britain. Hurst, A. H. (Je '30)
Break of day. King, B. (O '30)
Brébeuf, Jean de
Fitzpatrick, B. Donjon of demons. (Ag '30)
Breed of Basil. Bell, T. (Ag '30)
Brent, Stephen, pseud. See Buntin, S. W.
Bretherton, khaki or field-grey? Eng title of "G. B." Morris, W. F. (Mr '30)
Briand, Aristide
Thomson, V. Briand. (Ag '30)
Bridal pond. Gale, Z. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
The bridge. Crane, H. (Je '30)
Bridge between the Testaments. Booth, H. K. (Je '30)
Bridges
Whitney, C. S. Bridges. (Ap '30)
Brief candles. Huxley, A. L. (Ag '30)
Bright tiger. Glasgow, A. (Ap '30)
Bright world. Norman, C. (S '30)
Bring 'em back alive. Buck, F., and Anthony, E. (D '30)
Bringing jazz! Bodenheim, M. (S '30)
Bringing up your child. Cowan, E. E., and Carlson, A. D. (O '30)
Bristles. Bird, T. W. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Bristol, Rhode Island
Howe, M. A. De W. Bristol, Rhode Island. (N '30)
British ballads from Maine. Barry, P., and others, eds. (Ap '30)
British opinion and the American revolution. Clark, D. M. (O '30)
Brock, Lynn, pseud. See McAllister, A.
Bronshtein, Lev Davidovich. See Trotsky, L., pseud.
Brontë, Charlotte
Langbridge, R. G. Charlotte Brontë. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Brontë, Charlotte—Continued
  Romieu, E. and G. Three virgins of Haworth. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Brontë family
  Romieu, E. and G. Three virgins of Haworth. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Bronze age
  Childe, V. G. Bronze age. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Bronzes, Greek
  Lamb, W. Greek and Roman bronzes. (S '30)
Bronzes, Roman
  Lamb, W. Greek and Roman bronzes. (S '30)
Brook, Barnaby, pseud. See Brooks, C.
Brooks, Jonathan, pseud. See Mellett, J. C.
Brooks, Phillips
  Lawrence, W. Life of Phillips Brooks. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Brother and sister. Frank, L. (D '30)
Brother Anselmo. Glaser, D. (Mr '30)
Brother Luther. Molo, W. von. (Ag '30)
Brown, John
  Warren, R. P. John Brown. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Brown, Mrs Maria Dean (Foster)
  Brown, H. C. Grandmother Brown's hundred years, 1827-1927. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Brown on Resolution. Eng title of Single-handed. Forester, C. S. (Mr '30)
Browning, Mrs Elizabeth (Barrett)
  Baynes, D. J. Andromeda in Wimpole street; the romance of Elizabeth Barrett Browning. (S '30)
  Boas, L. S. Elizabeth Barrett Browning. (Ap '30)
  Browning, E. Letters to her sister, 1846-1859. (S '30)
Fiction
  Lenanton, C. M. A. Miss Barrett's elopement. (My '30)
Browning, Robert
  Baynes, D. J. Andromeda in Wimpole street; the romance of Elizabeth Barrett Browning. (S '30)
Fiction
  Lenanton, C. M. A. Miss Barrett's elopement. (My '30)
Brueghel, Pieter, the elder
Fiction
  Timmermans, F. Droll Peter. (My '30)
The bruiser. McKenna, E. L. (Ap '30)
Brusski. Panferov, F. (O '30)
Buccaneers
  Besson, M., ed. Scourge of the Indies. (Je '30)
  Sternbeck, A. Filibusters and buccaneers. (Je '30)
Buccaneer's log. Bennett, C. M. (Ap '30)
Buchanan, Franklin
  Lewis, C. L. Admiral Franklin Buchanan. (My '30)
Buck, Franklin Agustus
  Buck, F. A. Yankee trader in the gold rush. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Buckner, Fitzhugh, pseud. See Houston, F. F. B.
Buddha and Buddhism
  Horner, I. B. Women under primitive Buddhism. (S '30)
  Saddharmapundarīka. Lotus of the wonderful law. (N '30)
Budget
United States
  Buck, A. E. Public budgeting. (My '30)
Buffaloes
  Hubbard, W. D. Bong' kwé. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Builders of empire. Darrow, F. L. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Builders of the Bay Colony. Morison, S. E. (Ag '30)
Building
  Harding, L. A., and Willard, A. C. Mechanical equipment of buildings. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Tucker, M. Buying an honest house. (Je '30)

Building a model railroad. Coolidge, A. S. (D '30)
Building trades
  Cooley, R. L., and others. My life work; building and metal trades. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Bulbs
  Wister, J. C. Bulbs for American gardens. (N '30)
Bulbs for American gardens. Wister, J. C. (N '30)
Bulls of Rome. Huna, L. (Je '30)
Bunsen, Marie von
  Bunsen, M. von. Lost courts of Europe. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Bureau of home economics. Betters, P. V. (D '30)
Bureau of the census. Holt, W. S. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Burke, Edmund
  Cobban, A. Edmund Burke. (Mr '30)
Burns, Robert
Fiction
  Steuart, J. A. Immortal lover. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Burnt man. Eng title of: Third day. Manning-Sanders, G. (O '30)
Burnt offering. Galzy, J. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Burroughs, John
  Osborne, C. H. Religion of John Burroughs. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Bushman Burke. Devanny, J. (D '30)
Business
  Floyd, W. People vs. Wall street. (S '30)
  Keezer, D. M., and May, S. Public control of business. (D '30)
  Lyon, L. S. Hand-to-mouth buying. (Je '30)
  Rautenstrauch, W. Successful control of profits. (O '30)
Dictionaries
  Crowell's dictionary of business and finance. (O '30)
Graphic methods
  Hall, L. W. and R. L. Approach to definite forecasting. (S '30)
Business biography of John Wanamaker. Appel, J. H. (Ap '30)
Business cycles
  Hall, L. W. and R. L. Approach to definite forecasting. (S '30)
  Kuznets, S. S. Secular movements in production and prices. (S '30)
Business statistics
  Snider, J. L., ed. Business statistics. (S '30)
Business statistics. Snider, J. L., ed. (S '30)
Buying
  Forbes, R. Governmental purchasing. (Mr '30)
  Lyon, L. S. Hand-to-mouth buying. (Je '30)
Buying an honest house. Tucker, M. (Je '30)
By guess and by God. Carr, W. G. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
By reason of strength. Johnson, G. W. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
By the waters of Manhattan. Reznikoff, C. (O '30)
By way of Cape Horn. Villiers, A. J. (O '30)
By whose hand? Rice, L. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Byrd, Richard Evelyn
  Foster, C. Rear Admiral Byrd and the Polar expeditions. (S '30)
  Miller, F. T. Byrd's great adventure. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Byrd Antarctic expedition, 1928-1930
  Byrd, R. E. Little America. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Byrd's great adventure. Miller, F. T. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Byrne, Donn
  Macauley, T. Donn Byrne. (Ap '30)
Byron, George Gordon Noël Byron, 6th baron
  Massingham, H. J. Friend of Shelley [Edward John Trelawny]. (D '30)
  Maurois, A. Byron. (My '30)

Fiction
Edschmid, K. Passionate rebel [Lord Byron]. (N '30)
Bystander. Gorky, M., pseud. (Je '30)
Byzantine empire
History
Bury, J. B. Selected essays. (N '30)

C. E. Montague. Elton, O. (My '30)
Cab and omnibus service, New York City
Hazard, R. Hacking New York. (Je '30)
Cabala
Waite, A. E. Holy kabbalah. (Mr '30)
Cabbages and harlequins. Gauntler, G. (Mr '30)
Cabinet council of England in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, 1622-1784. Turner, E. R. (N '30)
Cabinet making. Keeble, A. L. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Cabinet system
Turner, E. R. Cabinet council of England in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, 1622-1784. (N '30)
Cabinet-work
Hjorth, H. Principles of woodworking. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Keeble, A. L. Cabinet making. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Cabinet-workers
Ormsbee, T. H. Early American furniture makers. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Cadman, Samuel Parkes
Hamlin, F. S. Parkes Cadman. (Ag '30)
Caesar, Caius Julius
Fiction
Jelusich, M. Caesar. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Caesar. Jelusich, M. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Caged. Cooper, C. R. (Ag '30)
Cakes and ale. Maugham, W. S. (N '30)
Caleb Cutter. Washburn, E. C. (My '30)
Calendar
Johnsen, J. E., comp. Thirteen-month calendar. (My '30)
Calendar of doubts and faiths. Malisoff, W. M. (S '30)
Calhoun, John Caldwell
Hollis, C. American heresy. (My '30)
Caliban in Grub street. Knox, R. A. (S '30)
California. University
History
Ferrier, W. W. Origin and development of the University of California. (S '30)
California
Gold discoveries
Buck, F. A. Yankee trader in the gold rush. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Gillis, W. R. Gold rush days with Mark Twain. (Ag '30)
Lee, B. Death Valley. (Ag '30)
Manly, W. L. Death Valley in '49. (S '30)
Page, E. Wagons west. (D '30)
Pancoast, C. E. Quaker forty-niner. (Ag '30)
Missions
Saunders, C. F., and O'Sullivan, St J. Capistrano nights. (S '30)
Politics and government
Bird, F. L., and Ryan, F. M. Recall of public officers. (Ap '30)
Social life and customs
Bell, H. On the old west coast. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Call of the Rio Bravo. Bailey, A. E. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Cambridge history of the British empire; v 1. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Cambridge history of the British empire; v 4. (S '30)
Cambridge history of the British empire, v 6. (D '30)
Cambridge medieval history, v 6. (My '30)
Camels
Stacey, M. H. Uncle Sam's camels. (Ap '30)
Camera obscura. Bolltho, W., pseud. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Cameron, John, pseud. See MacDonell, A. G.
Campagna di Roma
Description
Bagnani, G. Roman Campagna and its treasures. (Ag '30)
Rand, E. K. Walk to Horace's farm. (S '30)
Camping
Dimock, H. S., and Hendry, C. E. Camping and character. (S '30)
Hamilton, A. E. Boyways. (S '30)
Mason, B. S. Camping and education. (S '30)
Camping and character. Dimock, H. S., and Hendry, C. E. (S '30)
Camping and education. Mason, B. S. (S '30)
Canada
Harrison, M. Go west—go wise! (S '30)
Description and travel
Cooper, C. R. Go north, young man! (Mr '30)
Traill, C. P. Backwoods of Canada. (My '30)
Economic conditions
Cooper, C. R. Go north, young man! (Mr '30)
Innis, H. A. Fur trade in Canada. (N '30)
Innis, H. A., ed. Select documents in Canadian economic history, 1497-1783. (S '30)
Foreign relations
Dewey, A. G. Dominions and diplomacy. (Ap '30)
Stephens, G. W. St. Lawrence waterway project. (O '30)
History
Cambridge history of the British empire, v 6. (D '30)
Innis, H. A. Fur trade in Canada. (N '30)
To 1763
Schlarman, J. H. From Quebec to New Orleans. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Politics and government
Munro, W. B. American influences on Canadian government. (Ap '30)
Pierce, L. A. William Kirby. (S '30)
Canals
Canada
Stephens, G. W. St. Lawrence waterway project. (O '30)
United States
Stephens, G. W. St. Lawrence waterway project. (O '30)
Candle in the wilderness. Bacheller, I. A. (Ag '30)
Candles in the sun. Graham, D. (Ap '30)
The candlestick. Blanco, M. (Mr '30)
Candy and candy-making. Bookmeyer, M. B. (My '30)
Canfield, Richard Albert
Gardiner, A. Canfield. (Ap '30)
Canterbury tales. Chaucer, G. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Canton, Frank M.
Canton, F. M. Frontier trails. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Cape Cod
History
Kittredge, H. C. Cape Cod. (Ap '30)
Cape Cod. Kittredge, H. C. (Ap '30)
Cape Cod cook book. Gruver, S. C. (O '30)
Capillarity
Adam, N. K. Physics and chemistry of surfaces. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Lawrence, A. S. C. Soap films. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Capistrano nights. Saunders, C. F., and O'Sullivan, St J. (S '30)
Capital
Marx, K. Capital. (Mr '30)

Capital and labor under fascism. Haider, C. (Ag '30)

Capitalism
  Bukharin, N. I. Imperialism and world economy. (Ap '30)
  Nearing, S. Twilight of empire. (Ag '30)
  Page, K., ed. New economic order. (Je '30)
  Weber, M. Protestant ethic and the spirit of capitalism. (O '30)

Capitalists and financiers
  Barron, C. W. They told Barron. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Sparling, E. Mystery men of Wall street. (S '30)
  Warshow, R. I. Story of Wall Street. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Capone, Alphonse
  Pasley, F. D. Al Capone. (D '30)

Cap'n Bailey and the Widder Dyer. Burton, C. W. (D '30)
Captain Cook. Thiéry, M. (Je '30)
Captain James Cook. Carruthers, J. H. M. (O '30)
Captain Scott. Gwynn, S. L. (Ap '30)
Captured! Horvath, F. H. (S '30)
Car and country. Eng title of: Open road in England. Prioleau, J. (My '30)
Car of Croesus. Poole, E. (Je '30)

Carbonization
  Wigginton, R. Coal carbonisation. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Card castles and how to build them. Adams, P. (My '30)
Card 13. Luther, M. L., and Ford, L. C. (N '30)
Cardinal Newman. May, J. L. (Je '30)

Cards
  Lasker, E. Encyclopedia of games, v 1. Ag '30)

Care and training of children. Goodspeed, H. C., and Johnson, E. (My '30)

Caribbean Sea
  Jones, C. L., and others. United States and the Caribbean. (My '30)

Caribou
  Holzworth, J. W. Wild grizzlies of Alaska. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Caricatures and cartoons
  Arno, P. Hullabaloo. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Shaw, A. Abraham Lincoln. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Carl and Anna. Frank, L. (Mr '30)
Carl Schurz. Schafer, J. (O '30)

Carlyle, Thomas
  Dunn, W. H. Froude & Carlyle. (My '30)

Carnock, Arthur Nicolson, baron
  Nicolson, H. G. Portrait of a diplomatist [Sir Arthur Nicolson]. (N '30)

Caroline Amelia Elizabeth, consort of George IV, king of Great Britain
  Bowman, W. D. Divorce case of Queen Caroline. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Parry, E. A. Queen Caroline. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Carry Nation. Asbury, H. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Carson college for orphan girls, Flourtown, Pa.
  Dixon, C. M. Children are like that. (S '30)

Carvalho, David Nunes
  Carvalho, C., and Sparkes, B. Crime in ink.

Casals, Pablo
  Littlehales, L. Pablo Casals. (Ap '30)

Casanova Jones. Anthony. J. (O '30)
(Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Case for India. Durant, W. J. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Case for India. Hoyland, J. S. (N '30)
Case of Anne Bickerton. Wright, S. F. (N '30
Case of Miss R. Adler, A. (Mr '30)
Case of Robert Robertson. Elvestad, S. (S '30)
Case of the Marsden rubies. Gribble, L. R. (Ag '30)
Case of the missing sandals. Mavity, N. B. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Cases and materials on the law of sales. Llewellyn, K. N. (O '30)
Cases on air law. Zollmann, C. F. G. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Cases on conflict of laws. Humble, H. W. (My '30)
Castle. Kafka, F. (O '30)
Castle Gay. Buchan, J. (O '30)
The cat who went to heaven. Coatsworth, E. J. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Cataloging
  Mann, M. Introduction to cataloging and the classification of books. (Ag '30)

Caterpillar club
  Glassman, D. Jump! (Je '30)

Cathedrals

France

  Henderson, H. W. Cathedrals of France. (Ap '30)

Cathedrals of France. Henderson, H. W. (Ap '30)

Cather, Willa Sibert
  Rapin, R. Willa Cather. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Catherine de Gardeville. Sutton, B. R. (S '30)

Catherine of Siena, Saint
  Curtayne, A. Saint Catherine of Siena. (D '30)

Catholic church and art. Cram, R. A. (My '30)
Catholic church and current literature. Shuster, G. N. (Ap '30)
Catholicism and Christianity. Cadoux, C. J. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Cat's cradle
  Haddon, K. Artists in string. (O '30)

Cattle trade
  Henry, S. O. Conquering our great American plains. (Je '30)

Cavaliers of death. Forbes, R. (O '30)
Cavalry goes through. Newman, B. (O '30)
Cavalry went through. Eng title of: Cavalry goes through. Newman, B. (O '30)
Caverns of sunset. Haworth, P. L. (Ag '30)

Cavour, Camillo Benso, comte di
  Whyte, A. J. B. Political life and letters of Cavour, 1848-1861. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Cease firing. Hulbert, W. (My '30)
Cécile. Lucas, F. L. (N '30)

Cellulose
  Smith, S. Cellulose lacquers. (S '30)

Cellulose lacquers. Smith, S. (S '30)
Censored. Ernst, M. L., and Lorentz, P. (Je '30)

Censorship
  Dennett, M. Who's obscene? (Je '30)
  Kallen, H. M. Indecency and the seven arts. (Je '30)

Century of Anglo-Catholicism. Stewart, H. L. (O '30)
Certain people. Wharton, E. N. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Cervantes Saavedra, Miguel de
  Krutch, J. W. Five masters. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Ceylon

Description and travel

  Still, J. Jungle tide. (D '30)

Chaffee of Roaring Horse. Haycox, E. (S '30)

Chain stores
  Bloomfield, D., comp. Selected articles on trends in retail distribution. (N '30)

Challenge of the forum. Lurie, R. L. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Challenge to darkness. Scapini, J. G. (Mr '30)

Chamber music
  Cobbett, W. W., comp. and ed. Cyclopedic survey of chamber music. (Ag '30)

Chamber of commerce of the United States of America
  Childs, H. L. Labor and capital in national politics. (S '30)

Chance (schooner)
  Dodd, E. H., jr. Great dipper to Southern cross. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Chances. Gibbs, A. H. (Ag '30)
Changing civilizations in the modern world. Rugg, H. O. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Changing years. Hapgood, N. (D '30)

Chapman, John
  Chapin, H. Adventures of Johnny Appleseed. (Je '30)

Chapters of autobiography. Eng title of: Retrospect. Balfour, A. J. B. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Chapters on the geology of Scotland. Peach, B. N., and Horne, J. (O '30)
Character
  Bower, W. C. Character through creative experience. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Cabot, E. Temptations to right-doing. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
  Künkel, F. Let's be normal! (Ag '30)
Character building through recreation. Heaton, K. L. (D '30)
Character education
  Dimock, H. S., and Hendry, C. E. Camping and character. (S '30)
  Germane, C. E. and E. Character education. (Ag '30)
  Mason, B. S. Camping and education. (S '30)
Character through creative experience. Bower, W. C. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Characters and characteristics
  Hollingworth, H. L. Vocational psychology and character analysis. (Ag '30)
Characters and observations. (O '30)
Charioteer. Skelton, G. (O '30)
Charities
  Faris, E., and others, eds. Intelligent philanthropy. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Great Britain
  Slater, G. Poverty and the state. (N '30)

United States
  Warner, A. G., and others. American charities and social work. (N '30)
Charity organization
  Faris, E., and others, eds. Intelligent philanthropy. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Charlemagne
  Russell, C. E. Charlemagne. (Ag '30)
Charles II, king of Great Britain
  Loth, D. G. Royal Charles, ruler and rake. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Charles XIV, king of Sweden and Norway
  Barton, D. P. Amazing career of Bernadotte, 1763-1844. (Mr '30)
Charles Fenno Hoffman. Barnes, H. F. (S '30)
Charles W. Eliot. James, H. (D '30)
Charlie Chan carries on. Biggers, E. D. (N '30)
Charlotte Brontë. Langbridge, R. G. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Charm of trees. Davies, T. F. (S '30)
Charming murder. Shay, F. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Chartism
  Hammond, J. L. Le B. and B. Age of the chartists, 1832-1854. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Chasdai ben Abraham Crescas
  Wolfson, H. A. Crescas' critique of Aristotle. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Chatfield, Mother Julia
  Mary Monica, Sister. Cross in the wilderness. (O '30)
Chats on old English tobacco jars. Myer, R. (O '30)
Chats with the Macfadden family. Perkins, G. (My '30)
Chatterton, Thomas
  Ellinger, E. P. Thomas Chatterton. (S '30)
Cheerful cherub. McCann, R. (D '30)
Chelsea rooming house. Gregory, H. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Chemical dictionary. Hackh, I. W. D. (Ap '30)
Chemical magic. Lippy, J. D., jr. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Chemical reactions
  Smith, J. W. Effects of moisture on chemical and physical changes. (Ap '30)
Chemistry

Dictionaries
  Hackh, I. W. D. Chemical dictionary. (Ap '30)

History
  Harrow, B. Making of chemistry. (My '30)
  Jaffe, B. Crucibles. (S '30)
  Leonard, J. N. Crusaders of chemistry. (D '30)
Chemistry, Analytic
  Hillebrand, W. F., and Lundell, G. E. F. Applied inorganic analysis. (Ap '30)

Qualitative
  Hammett, L. P. Solutions of electrolytes. (Ap '30)
Chemistry, Inorganic
  Mellor, J. W. Elementary inorganic chemistry. (D '30)
Chemistry, Organic
  Deming, H. G. In the realm of carbon. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Gortner, R. A. Outlines of biochemistry. (Je '30)
Chemistry, Physical and theoretical
  Smith, J. W. Effects of moisture on chemical and physical changes. (Ap '30)
Chemistry, Technical
  Beery, P. G. Stuff. (S '30)
  Houssa, A. J. H. Physics and chemistry applied to flour milling. (D '30)
Chemistry of the colloidal state. Ware, J. C. (O '30)
Chemists
  Jaffe, B. Crucibles. (S '30)
  Leonard, J. N. Crusaders of chemistry. (D '30)
Cheng Tcheng. See Sheng-Cheng
Chess
  Nimzowitsch, A. My system. (Mr '30)
Chevreuse, Marie Aimée (de Rohan) duchesse de
  Campbell, D. de B. Intriguing duchess. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Chicago. University
  Smith, T. V., and White, L. D., eds. Chicago. (Ap '30)
Chicago

Charities
  Shaw, C. R., ed. Jack-roller. (S '30)

Occupations
  White, L. D. Prestige value of public employment in Chicago. (My '30)

Officials and employees
  White, L. D. Prestige value of public employment in Chicago. (My '30)

Politics and government
  Bright, J. Hizzoner Big Bill Thompson. (Je '30)

Social conditions
  Pasley, F. D. Al Capone. (D '30)
  Shaw, C. R. Delinquency areas. (S '30)
  Smith, T. V., and White, L. D., eds. Chicago. (Ap '30)
  Sullivan, E. D. Chicago surrenders. (D '30)
  Taylor, G. Pioneering on social frontiers. (O '30)
Chicago. Smith, T. V., and White, L. D., eds. (Ap '30)
Chicago civic opera company
  Moore E. C. Forty years of opera in Chicago. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Chicago commons
  Taylor, G. Pioneering on social frontiers. (O '30)
Chicago surrenders. Sullivan, E. D. (D '30)
Chi-Chao, Liang. See Liang Chi-Chao
Child adjustment in relation to growth and development. Inskeep, A. L. (S '30)
Child from five to ten. Kenwrick, E. and M. (Ag '30)
Child from one to six. Arlitt, A. H. (N '30)
Child study
  Adler, A. Education of children. (O '30)
  Adler, A. Pattern of life. (N '30)
  Adler, A., and others, eds. Guiding the child on the principles of individual psychology. (Ag '30)
  Arlitt, A. H. Child from one to six. (N '30)
  Bühler, C. First year of life. (N '30)
  Bühler, K. Mental development of the child. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Calverton, V. F., and Schmalhausen, S. D., eds. New generation. (Ag '30)

Child study—Continued
Cowan, E. E., and Carlson, A. D. Bringing up your child. (O '30)
Dixon, C. M. Children are like that. (S '30)
Franzen, R. H. Physical measures of growth and nutrition. (O '30)
Furfey, P. H. Growing boy. (Je '30)
Germane, C. E. and E. Character education. (Ag '30)
Inskeep, A. L. Child adjustment in relation to growth and development. (S '30)
Kenwrick, E. and M. Child from five to ten. (Ag '30)
Lee, P. R., and others. Mental hygiene and social work. (Ag '30)
Mateer, F. Just normal children. (Ap '30)
Mid-West conference on character development, Chicago, 1930. Child's emotions. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Mitchell, A. M. Children and movies. (Je '30)
O'Shea, M. V. Newer ways with children. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Piaget, J. Child's conception of physical causality. (N '30)
Strang, R. M. Introduction to child study. (S '30)
Swift, E. J. Psychology of childhood. (Ag '30)
Thomas, D. S., and others. Some new techniques for studying social behavior. (My '30)
Zachry, C. B. Personality adjustments of school children. (Ap '30)

Children
Deering, I. E. Creative home. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Eipper, P. Human children. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Care and hygiene

Goodspeed, H. C., and Johnson, E. Care and training of children. (My '30)
Mateer, F. Just normal children. (Ap '30)
Strang, R. M. Introduction to child study. (S '30)
Turner, C. E., and others. Home nursing and child care. (Je '30)

Charities, protection, etc.

Reeves, M. Training schools for delinquent girls. (N '30)
Shaw, C. R., ed. Jack-roller. (S '30)

Management

Adler, A. Education of children. (O '30)
Adler, A., and others, eds. Guiding the child on the principles of individual psychology. (Ag '30)
Arlitt, A. H. Child from one to six. (N '30)
Calverton, V. F., and Schmalhausen, S. D., eds. New generation. (Ag '30)
Cowan, E. E., and Carlson, A. D. Bringing up your child. (O '30)
Crawford, N. A., and Menninger, K. A., eds. Healthy-minded child. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Germane, C. E. and E. Character education. (Ag '30)
Goodspeed, H. C., and Johnson, E. Care and training of children. (My '30)
Mateer, F. Just normal children. (Ap '30)
Myers, G. C. Modern parent. (N '30)
O'Shea, M. V. Newer ways with children. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Strang, R. M. Introduction to child study. (S '30)
Swift, E. J. Psychology of childhood. (Ag '30)

Nutrition

Franzen, R. H. Physical measures of growth and nutrition. (O '30)

Children, Abnormal and backward
Adler, A. Pattern of life. (N '30)
Adler, A., and others, eds. Guiding the child on the principles of individual psychology. (Ag '30)
Benedict, A. E. Children at the crossroads. (O '30)
Culbert, J. F. Visiting teacher at work. (Je '30)
Zachry, C. B. Personality adjustments of school children. (Ap '30)

Children and movies. Mitchell, A. M. (Je '30)
Children are like that. Dixon, C. M. (S '30)
Children at the crossroads. Benedict, A. E. (O '30)

Children in France
Crump, L. Nursery life 300 years ago. (S '30)

Children in Hungary
Jacobi, E. P. When I was a girl in Hungary. (O '30)

Children in New Guinea
Mead, M. Growing up in New Guinea. (N '30)

Children of the earth. Mannin, E. E. (Je '30)
Children of the New Forest. Marryat, F. (S '30)

Children's literature
Adam, J. Mountains are free. (D '30)
Adams, J. Vaino. (Mr '30)
Adams, P. Card castles and how to build them. (My '30)
Adams, P. Racing yachts done in cork models. (O '30)
Albert, E. Little pilgrim to Penn's woods. (S '30)
Aldis, D. Squiggles. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Allee, M. Judith Lankester. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Bailey, A. E. Call of the Rio Bravo. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Baker, M. Noddy goes a-plowing. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Bamberger, H. R. Mystery of World's end. (D '30)
Barrie, J. M. Peter Pan in Kensington gardens. (Je '30)
Barry, M. E., and Hanna, P. R., eds. Wonder flights of long ago. (Ag '30)
Beaman, S. G. H. Ernest the policeman. (Ag '30)
Bennet, C. M. With Morgan on the Main. (Je '30)
Bennett, C. M. Buccaneer's log. (Ap '30)
Best, H. Garram the hunter. (My '30)
Bianco, M. The candlestick. (Mr '30)
Biddle, G. Green Island. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Bird, T. W. Bristles. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Blake, G. Even Sara. (Je '30)
Bland E. Five children. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Bonsels, W. Adventures of Mario. (Ag '30)
Bouquet, J. A. People's book of saints. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Brann, E. Lupe goes to school. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Brock, E. L. To market! to market! (O '30)
Bronson, W. S. Fingerfins. (S '30)
Brooks, W. R. More To and again. (N '30)
Broster, D. K. Flight of the heron. (Je '30)
Bruère, M. S. Sparky-for-short. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Bullard, M. Enchanted button. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Bunzel, M. Picture book of a big city. (Je '30)
Burrows, E. Judy of the Whale gates. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Butler, E. L. Along the shore. (Ag '30)
Camp, R. O. Story of markets. (My '30)
Cannon, C. J. Pueblo girl. (Mr '30)
Capuana, L. Golden-feather. (O '30)
Carpenter, F. Tales of a Basque grandmother. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Carr, W. H. Stir of nature. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Carroll, G. H. Land spell. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Carter, R. G. King's spurs. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Carus, H. Metten of Tyre. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Chamberlin, E. C. Amazing adventures of Kermit. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Chapin, H. Adventures of Johnny Appleseed. (Je '30)
Charles, R. H. Roundabout turn. (D '30)
Chase, M. E. Silver shell. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Chatterton, E. K. Adventurers of the air. (O '30)
Coatsworth, E. J. Boy with the parrot. (S '30)
Coatsworth, E. J. The cat who went to heaven. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Coatsworth, E. J. Toutou in bondage. (Mr '30)

Cobb, B. B. and E. Andre. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Coffman, R. Our America. (Ag '30)
Coit, D. Ivory throne of Persia. (Mr '30)
Coolidge, A. S. Building a model railroad. (D '30)
Cooper, P. F. Tal. (My '30)
Coppard, A. E. Pink furniture. (O '30)
Crawford, P. Biot: little city cat. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Crew, H. Singing seamen. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Cruse, A. Boys and girls who became famous. (Je '30)
Curtis, H. P. When Sally sews. (Je '30)
Daglish, E. F. Animals in black and white, v 5 & 6. (S '30)
Dalgliesh, A. Little wooden farmer. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Damon, S. F. Day after Christmas. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Daniel, H. Peggy of old Annapolis. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Darby, A. C. Hickory-goody. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Darling, E. B. Navarre of the North. (N '30)
Davis, M. G., ed. Baker's dozen. (D '30)
Davis, M. M. Betty Bradford, engineer. (D '30)
Decker, G. C. Bows and arrow for boys. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Deming, T. Many snows ago. (My '30)
Dumas, A. Nutcracker of Nuremberg. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Evans, E. R. G. R. Pirate's doom. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Everson, F. M. and H. Secret cave. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Falls, C. B. Modern A B C book. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Farjeon, E. Perfect zoo. (Ap '30)
Farjeon, E. Tale of Tom Tiddler. (O '30)
Ferris, H. J., ed. When I was a girl. (O '30)
Fitier, M. B. Reddy. (Mr '30)
Fitzgerald, P. L. Trail of the Ragged Fox. (Ag '30)
Flack, M. Angus and the ducks. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Forbes, H. C. Apple Pie hill. (Ag '30)
Fowler, H. N. and M. Z. Picture book of sculpture. (Mr '30)
Fraser, G. White Captain. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Fyleman, R. Tea time tales. (Je '30)
Gable, J. H. Boys' book of exploration. (Ag '30)
Garson, E. C. Featherland. (Je '30)
Gate, E. M. All the king's trumpets. (Je '30)
Gay, Z. and J. Pancho and his burro. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
George, L., and Gilman, J. Air, men and wings. (O '30)
Gibbard, M. K. Hobbies for girls. (N '30)
Gill, M. S. Huttee Boy of the jungle. (Mr '30)
Gimmage, P. Picture book of ships. (O '30)
Golden Gorse, pseud. Moorland Mousie. (S '30)
Gray, E. J. Meggy MacIntosh. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Hader, B. and E. Under the pig-nut tree. (S '30)
Hall, A. N. Big book of boys' hobbies. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Hall, J. N. Mother Goose land. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Hallock, G. T. Bird in the bush. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Harper, T. A. and W. M. His Excellency and Peter. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Heward, C. Ameliaranne and the monkey. (Mr '30)
Hewes, A. D. Spice and the devil's cave. (N '30)
Hill, H., and Maxwell, V. Golden goat. (Mr '30)
Hinkle, T. C. Tornado Boy. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Housman, L. Turn again tales. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Howes, E. Long bright land. (Mr '30)
Hubbard, R. Queer Person. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Hulbert, W. Cease firing. (My '30)
Hutchinson, V. S., ed. Chimney corner poems. (Mr '30)
Hutchinson, V. S., ed. Fireside poems. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Hyde, M. P. Singing sword. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Irving, W. Bold dragoon. (D '30)
Jackson, G. G. Hobbies for boys. (N '30)
Jackson, G. G. World's aeroplanes and airships. (D '30)
Jacobi, E. P. When I was a girl in Hungary. (O '30)
Jekyll, G. B. Two boys in South-American jungles. (Mr '30)
Jenkins, A. C. Pal. (S '30)
Jones, W. How the derrick works. (Ag '30)
Justus, M. Peter Pocket's luck. (D '30)
Kästner, E. Emil and the detectives. (N '30)
Kelly, E. P. Blacksmith of Vilno. (D '30)
Kempton, K. P. Loot of the Flying dragon. (Je '30)
Kerr, E. M. Town crier of Gevrey. (Ag '30)
Kipling, R. "Thy servant a dog." (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Knox, R. B. The boys and Sally down on a
Kochka, M. M. Washington. (O '30)
plantation. (N '30)
Krasnov, P. N. Yermak the conqueror. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Kuebler, K. Hansel and gander. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Kyle, A. D. Prince of the Pale Mountains. (My '30)
Lebermann, N. New German fairy tales. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Leeming, J. Things any boy can make. (My '30)
Lenski, L. Washington picture-book (S '30)
Lesher, S. B. Barrel of clams. (O '30)
LoBagola, B. K. A. I. Folk tales of a savage. (D '30)
Lockridge, R. F. A. Lincoln. (O '30)
Lofting, H. Twilight of magic. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
McCracken, H. Iglaome. (S '30)
Mackenzie, C. Told. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
McMahon, J. Deenie men. (Ag '30)
MacMillan, D. B. Kah'-da. (Ag '30)
McSpadden, J. W. How they carried the mail. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Madariaga, S. de. Sir Bob. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Malkus, A. S. Dark star of Itza. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Malkus, A. S. Pirates' port. (My '30)
Malkus, A. S. Timber line. (Mr '30)
Marble, A. From Boston to Boston. (Ag '30)
Marryat, F. Children of the New Forest. (S '30)
Martin, M. S. First picture book. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Mason, A. Wee men of Ballywooden. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Matheson, J. Needle in the haystack. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Maurois, A. Country of thirty-six thousand wishes. (N '30)
Maxwell, V., and Hill, H. Adventures of Galley Jack. (Mr '30)
Meador, S. W. Red Horse Hill. (D '30)
Metzger, B. Tales told in Hawaii. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Millay, E. St V. Edna St. Vincent Millay's poems selected for young people. (Mr '30)
Miller, E. C. Pran of Albania. (Mr '30)
Milne, A. A. Hums of Pooh. (S '30)
Moe, L. M. N. P. H. Little bear-cub and The dressed-up pig. (S '30)
Moon, G. Missing Katchina. (N '30)
Morris, K. Book of the three dragons. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Morrow, E. Painted pig. (N '30)
Mother Goose. Berta and Elmer Hader's picture book of Mother Goose. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Mukerji, D. G. Rama. (D '30)
Murphy, A. B. Every which way in Ireland (Ag '30)
Newcome, L. A. Lincoln's boy spy. (Mr '30)
Nicholson, W. Pirate twins. (Mr '30)
Nicolay, H. Andrew Jackson. (Mr '30)
North, R. C. Bob North with dog team and Indians. (Mr '30)

Children's literature—Continued
O'Conor, N. J. There was magic in those days. (D '30)
Olcott, F. J. Wonder tales from Goblin hills. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Olcott, V. Anton and Trini. (D '30)
Orton, H. Queenie. (S '30)
Palm, A. Wanda and Greta at Broby farm. (N '30)
Parker, C. Watching Europe grow. (S '30)
Parrish, A. Floating island. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Patch, E. M. Holiday meadow. (Je '30)
Pease, H. Gypsy caravan. (D '30)
Peters, I. Girls of long ago. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Petersham, M. and M. Ark of Father Noah and Mother Noah. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Potter, B. Tale of little pig Robinson. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Potter, E., comp. This way and that. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Raymond, M. T. Linnet on the threshold. (O '30)
Reed, W. M. Earth for Sam. (Ap '30)
Reeves, E. Lindbergh flies on! (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Robinson, G. White heron feather. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Rothmund, T. Amber bead. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Sand, G., pseud. Tales of a grandmother. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Seymour, F. W. Sam Houston, patriot. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Skinner, C. L. Red man's Luck. (D '30)
Slaughter, C. E. Hahtibee, the elephant. (D '30)
Smith, B. W. Boyhoods of the presidents. (D '30)
Smith, F. Trading east. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Smith, S. Tranquilina's paradise. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Snedeker, C. D. Black arrowhead. (Je '30)
Stafford, M. A. Little Tooktoo. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Starbuck, E. D., and Shuttleworth, F. K., comps. Wonder road. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Sterne, E. G. Loud sing cuckoo. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Stoddard, A. Young heroes of the Bible. (O '30)
Thackeray, W. M. Thackeray alphabet. (Je '30)
Thomas, L. J. Hero of Vincennes [George Rogers Clark]. (My '30)
Tippett, J. S. I spend the summer. (S '30)
Trell, M. Tom and moT. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Trowbridge, L. J. Betty of the consulate. (Ap '30)
Vaughan, A. C. Lucian goes a-voyaging. (Ag '30)
Verrill, A. H. Lost treasure. (S '30)
Walker, E. B., and Mook, C. C. Tales of the first animals. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Wallace, D. Kidnapped by air. (Ag '30)
Watson, P. B. Tales of Normandie. (O '30)
Weaver, A. V. Frawg. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Wells, R. Beppo the donkey. (F '31) (1930 Annual) Whitfield, R. Silver wings. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Wiese, K. Liang & Lo. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Wiese, K. Wallie, the walrus. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Williams-Ellis, A. Men who found out. (S '30)
Wilson, R., pseud. Silver magic. (Ap '30)
Wright, H. B. Long ago told. (My '30)
Yates, R. L. When I was a harvester. (O '30)

Children's plays
Field, R. L. Patchwork plays. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Sanford, A. P. comp. and ed. Plays for graduation days. (Je '30)
Sanford, A. P., and Schauffler, R. H., comps. and eds. Little plays for little people. (Je '30)

Children's poetry
Allingham, W. Robin Redbreast. (O '30)
De La Mare, W. J. Poems for children. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Drinkwater, J. More about me. (D '30)
Farrar, J. C. Songs for Johnny-Jump-Up. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Fyleman, R. Gay go up. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Harrington, M. P., comp. Ring-a-round. (F '31) (1930 Annual) Hutchinson, V. S., ed. Fireside poems. (F '31) (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Roberts, E. M. Under the tree. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Sandburg, C. Early moon. (D '30)
Teasdale, S. Stars to-night. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Children's songs
Coleman, S. N., and Thorn, A. G. Singing time. (Mr '30)
Milne, A. A. Hums of Pooh. (S '30)
Potter, E., comp. This way and that. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Child's approach to religion. Fox, H. W. (O '30)
Child's conception of physical causality. Piaget, J. (N '30)
Child's emotions. Mid-West conference on character development, Chicago, 1930. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Chile

History

Fiction

May, S. Conqueror's lady, Ines Suarez. (D '30)

Chimney corner poems. Hutchinson, V. S., ed. (Mr '30)
Chimney murder. Channon, E. M. (Mr '30)

China
Peffer, N. China: the collapse of a civilization. (D '30)

Civilization

Peffer, N. China: the collapse of a civilization. (D '30)
Wilhelm, R. Short history of Chinese civilization. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Commerce

Coons, A. G. Foreign public debt of China. (N '30)
Dulles, F. R. Old China trade. (N '30)
Morse, H. B. Chronicles of the East India company, v 5. (S '30)

Courts and courtiers

Der Ling, princess. Lotos petals. (D '30)

Economic conditions

Abend, H. Tortured China. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Milam, A. B. Study of the student homes of China. (O '30)

Foreign relations

Park, N. Y. Making a new China. (Mr '30)
Wu, C.-K. International aspect of the missionary movement in China. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Young, C. W. International relations of Manchuria. (Ap '30)

History

Granet, M. Chinese civilization. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Wilhelm, R. Short history of Chinese civilization. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Taiping rebellion, 1850-1864

Cahill, H. Yankee adventurer [Frederick Townsend Ward]. (D '30)

Republic, 1912-

Amann, G. Legacy of Sun Yatsen. (Ap '30)
Lo, R. Y. China's revolution from the inside. (S '30)
Park, N. Y. Making a new China. (Mr '30)
T'ang Leang-li. Inner history of the Chinese revolution. (D '30)

Politics and government

Holcombe, A. N. Chinese revolution. (S '30)
Liang-Chi-Chao. History of Chinese political thought, during the early Tsin periods. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

  Park, N. Y. Making a new China. (Mr '30)
  T'ang Leang-li. Inner history of the Chinese revolution. (D '30)

Social conditions
  Abend, H. Tortured China. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Lo, R. Y. China's revolution from the inside. (S '30)
  Milam, A. B. Study of the student homes of China. (O '30)

Social life and customs
  Der Ling, princess. Lotos petals. (D '30)
  Granet, M. Chinese civilization. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Hosie, D. Portrait of a Chinese lady. (My '30)
  Sheng-Cheng. Son of China. (Je '30)
China: the collapse of a civilization. Peffer, N. (D '30)
China's revolution from the inside. Lo, R. Y. (S '30)
Chinese art. Cohn, W. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Chinese civilization. Granet, M. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Chinese drama
  Buss, K. Studies in the Chinese drama. (O '30)
Chinese in the United States
  Gong, E. Y., and Grant, B. Tong war! (S '30)
Chinese revolution. Holcombe, A. N. (S '30)
Chivers, Thomas Holley
  Damon, S. F. Thomas Holley Chivers. (Ag '30)
Chlorophyl
  Macdougal, D. T. Green leaf. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Choice candy recipes. Allen, L. G. (My '30)
Choiseul, Madame de
  Wortham, H. E. Three women. (My '30)
Christ of the forest. Michel, R. (O '30)
Christian apprehension of God. Mackintosh, H. R. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Christian art and symbolism
  Misciattelli, P. Mystics of Siena. (My '30)
Christian content of the Bible. Gilbert, G. H. (Je '30)
Christian ethics
  Enslin, M. S. Ethics of Paul. (S '30)
  Inge, W. R. Christian ethics and modern problems. (N '30)
  Messenger, R. E. Ethical teachings in the Latin hymns of medieval England. (D '30)
  Weber, M. Protestant ethic and the spirit of capitalism. (O '30)
Christian ethics and modern problems. Inge, W. R. (N '30)
Christian faith in the modern world. James, E. O. (N '30)
Christian God. Roberts, R. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Christian life
  Brown, C. R. Gospel for Main street. (N '30)
  Gilkey, J. G. Solving life's everyday problems. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  McCormick, W. P. G. Be of good cheer. (My '30)
Christian outlook in the modern world. D'Arcy, C. F. (S '30)
Christian science
  Fisher, H. A. L. Our new religion. (Ap '30)
  Powell, L. P. Mary Baker Eddy. (D '30)
  Springer, F. C. According to the flesh; a biography of Mary Baker Eddy. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Christian socialism
  Wagner, D. O. Church of England and social reform since 1854. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Christian reunion in ecumenical light. Hall, F. J. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Christian union
  Halifax, C. L. W., ed. Conversations at Malines, 1921-1925. (My '30)
  Hall, F. J. Christian reunion in ecumenical light. (F '31) (1930 Annual) Marchant, J., ed. Reunion of Christendom. (Ap '30)
Christianity
  Baillie, J. Place of Jesus Christ in modern Christianity. (Ap '30)
  Barnes, H. E. Twilight of Christianity. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
  D'Arcy, C. F. Christian outlook in the modern world. (S '30)
  Glover, T. R. Influence of Christ in the ancient world. (Mr '30)
  Halliday, J. F. Robbing youth of its religion. (Ap '30)
  Hodgson, L. Essays in Christian philosophy. (Je '30)
  Hough, L. H., ed. Whither Christianity. (Ap '30)
  Joad, C. E. M. Present and future of religion. (Ag '30)
  Knox, R. A. Caliban in Grub street. (S '30)
  Masterman, J. H. B. Christianity of to-morrow. (Mr '30)
  Nixon, J. W. Emerging Christian faith. (S '30)
  Page, K. Jesus or Christianity. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Powys, L. Hour on Christianity. (S '30)
  Scott, E. F. Gospel and its tributaries. (Je '30)
  Snowden, J. H. What do present day Christians believe? (F '31) (1930 Anual)
  Speer, R. E. Some living issues. (O '30)
  Wheless, J. Forgery in Christianity. (N '30)
Christianity and other religions
  Angus, S. Religious quests of the Graeco-Roman world. (Mr '30)
  Box, G. H. Early Christianity and its rivals. (O '30)
  Fleming, D. F. Ways of sharing with other faiths. (S '30)
  Macchioro, V. D. From Orpheus to Paul. (S '30)
Christianity of to-morrow. Masterman, J. H. B. (Mr '30)
Christians in China
  Wu, C.-K. International aspect of the missionary movement in China. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Christine. Green, J. (My '30)
Christmas
  Frost, L., ed. Come Christmas. (Mr '30)
Chronicles of the East India company, v 5. Morse, H. B. (S '30)
Church
  Hawkins, C. J. Do the churches dare? (Mr '30)
  Stidger, W. L., ed. The pew preaches. (S '30)
Church advertising
  Leach, W. H. Church publicity. (Je '30)
  Norton, W. B. Church and newspaper. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Church and adult education. Winchester, B. S. (N '30)
Church and education
  Winchester, B. S. Church and adult education. (N '30)
Church and labor
  Davis, J. D., ed. Labor speaks for itself on religion. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual) Church and newspaper. Norton, W. B. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Church and social problems
  Myers, J. Religion lends a hand. (Ap '30)
Church and state
  Luzzatti, L. God in freedom. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Church and state in England
  Jameson, S. Decline of merry England. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Church and state in France
  Phillips, C. S. Church in France, 1789-1848. (Ap '30)
Church and state in Italy
  Bagnani, G. Rome and the papacy. (Ap '30)
  Moore, T. E. Peter's city. (N '30)
Church and state in the United States
  High, S. Church in politics. (S '30)
  Smith, R. G. Politics in a protestant church. (O '30)
Church architecture
  Powys, A. R. English parish church. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Church entertainments
Heaton, K. L. Character building through recreation. (D '30)
Church history
Wand, J. W. C. History of the modern church. (My '30)
Middle ages
Flick, A. C. Decline of the mediaeval church. (S '30)
Primitive and early church
Angus, S. Religious quests of the Graeco-Roman world. (Mr '30)
Case, S. J. Experience with the supernatural in early Christian times. (S '30)
Lockton, W. Divers orders of ministers. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Scott, E. F. Gospel and its tributaries. (Je '30)
Wheless, J. Forgery in Christianity. (N '30)
Church in France, 1789-1848. Phillips, C. S. (Ap '30)
Church in politics. High, S. (S '30)
Church of England
Wagner, D. O. Church of England and social reform since 1854. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Anglo-Catholic movement
Stewart, H. L. Century of Anglo-Catholicism. (O '30)
Church of England and social reform since 1854. Wagner, D. O. (F '31) (1930 Annual) Church of the Greek people. Kephala, E. (F '31) (1930 Annual) Church publicity. Leach, W. H. (Je '30)
Church schools and colleges
Hites, L. T. Effective Christian college. (Ap '30)
Church work
Social work of the churches. (N '30)
Churches
England
Powys, A. R. English parish church. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
France
Arms, D. N. Churches of France. (Ap '30)
United States
Fry, C. L. U. S looks at its churches. (O '30)
Churches of France. Arms, D. N. (Ap '30)
Churchill, Winston Leonard Spencer
Churchill, W. L. S. Roving commission. (D '30)
Cimarron. Ferber, E. (My '30)
Cinderella's daughter. Erskine, J. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Circle of vengeance. Jorgenson, N. and G. E. (My '30)
Circling Africa. Anderson, I. W. (Mr '30)
Circumference. Taggard, G., ed. (My '30)
Cities and towns
Burr, W. Small towns. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
United States
Hubbard, T. and H. V. Our cities, to-day and to-morrow. (Mr '30)
MacDonald, A. F. American city government and administration. (My '30)
Citizenship
Flournoy, R. W., jr., and Hudson, M. O., eds. Collection of nationality laws of various countries. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Peters, C. C. Objectives and procedures in civic education. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Pierce, B. L. Civic attitudes in American school textbooks. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Weber, E. A. Duk-Duks. (My '30)
City of desire. Savage, J. (Ag '30)
City of to-morrow and its planning. Jeanneret, C. E. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
City planning
Duffus, R. L. Mastering a metropolis. (My '30)
Ferriss, H. Metropolis of tomorrow. (Ap '30)
Hubbard, T. and H. V. Our cities, to-day and to-morrow. (Mr '30)
Jeanneret-Gris, C. E. City of to-morrow and its planning. (Ag '30) (1930 Annual)
Nolen, J., ed. City planning. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Civic attitudes in American school textbooks. Pierce, B. L. (F '31) (1930 Annual) Civil service
Canada
Dawson, R. M. Civil service of Canada. (S '30)
Civil service of Canada. Dawson, R. M. (S '30)
Civilization
Babcock, D. C. Man and social achievement. (S '30)
Barnes, H. E. World politics in modern civilization. (Ag '30)
Beard, C. A., ed. Toward civilization. (Je '30)
Catlin, G. E. G. Study of the principles of politics. (S '30)
Freud, S. Civilization and its discontents. (N '30)
Hatfield, H. S. Conquest of thought by invention. (Ap '30)
Lowie, R. H. Are we civilized? (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Millikan, R. A. Science and the new civilization. (My '30)
Pupin, M. I. Romance of the machine. (Je '30)
Randall, J. H. Our changing civilization. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
History
Duff, C. This human nature. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Libby, W. Introduction to contemporary civilization. (Ag '30)
Mānekjī Nasarvānjī Dhālā. Our perfecting world. (D '30)
Ries, E. H. Mother wit. (Ag '30)
Smith, P. History of modern culture, v i. (Ag '30)
Wallis, W. D., and Willey, M. M. Readings in sociology. (F '31) (1930 Annual) Civilization, Ancient
Smith, G. E. Human history. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Civilization, Greek
Hamilton, E. Greek way. (Ag '30)
Myres, J. L. Who were the Greeks? (S '30)
Civilization, Homeric
Quennell, M. and C. H. B. Everyday life in Homeric Greece. (N '30)
Civilization, Medieval
Haskins, C. H. Studies in mediaeval culture. (Ag '30)
Civilization, Occidental
Douglas, N. Good-bye to Western culture. (O '30)
Kirkconnell, W. European heritage. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Civilization, Scandinavian
Olrik, A. Viking civilization. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Civilization and its discontents. Freud, S. (N '30)
Civilization of the renaissance in Italy. Burckhardt, J. C. (Mr '30)
Clamoring self. Frank, L. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Clark, George Rogers
Thomas, L. J. Hero of Vincennes [George Rogers Clark]. (My '30)
Clash of angels. Daniels, J. (Je '30)
Classical sculpture. Lawrence, A. W. (Ag '30)
Classicism
Vines, S. Course of English classicism. (Je '30)
Classification
Books
Bliss, H. E. Organization of knowledge and the system of the sciences. (Mr '30)
Mann, M. Introduction to cataloging and the classification of books. (Ag '30)
Classification of sciences
Bliss, H. E. Organization of knowledge and the system of the sciences. (Mr '30)
Piper, R. F., and Ward, P. W. Fields and methods of knowledge. (S '30)

Claude Monet. Clemenceau, G. E. B. (My '30)
Claudia. Zweig, A. (D '30)
Claudine at school. Jouvenel, G. C. de, and Gauthier-Villars, H. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Claypoole, Mrs Elizabeth (Griscom) Ross Ashburn
Parry, E. S. Betsy Ross. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Cleaning
Hubbard, C. C. How to clean rugs and upholstery fabrics. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Clemenceau, Georges Eugène Benjamin
Adam, G. J. The Tiger: Georges Clemenceau, 1841-1929. (Je '30)
Martet, J. Georges Clemenceau. (Ap '30)

Clemens, Samuel Langhorne (Mark Twain, pseud.)
Gillis, W. R. Gold rush days with Mark Twain. (Ag '30)

Clergy
Lockton, W. Divers orders of ministers. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Clio, a muse. Trevelyan, G. M. (Je '30)

Clipper ships
Cutler, C. C. Greyhounds of the sea. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Ramsay, R. Rough and tumble on old clipper ships. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Close-hauled [Henry Kay Pasma.]. Pasma, H. K. (Ag '30)
Closing hour. Hoult, N. (Ap '30)

Clothing and dress
Hurlock, E. B. Psychology of dress. (My '30)
Story, M. Individuality and clothes. (O '30)

Clubs
Heaton, K. L. Character building through recreation. (D '30)
Clues of the Caribbees. Stribling, T. S. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Coaching
Cole, H. E. Stage coach and tavern tales of the Old Northwest. (O '30)
Sheldon, G. From trackway to turnpike. (My '30)

Coal
Wigginton, R. Coal carbonisation. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Coal carbonisation. Wigginton, R. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Coal measure plants. Crookall, R. (Mr '30)
Coast to coast by motor. Vernon, P. E. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Cock o' the north. Mundy, T. (My '30)

Coke, Sir Edward
Lyon, H., and Block, H. Edward Coke. (Je '30)

Coke
Wigginton, R. Coal carbonisation. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Cold feet. Mahon, T., ed. (Ag '30)
Coldstone. Wentworth, P. (O '30)

Coleridge, Samuel Taylor
Charpentier, J. Coleridge, the sublime somnambulist. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Muirhead, J. H. Coleridge as philosopher. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Snyder, A. D. Coleridge on logic and learning. (Ap '30)
Coleridge as philosopher. Muirhead, J. H. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Coleridge on logic and learning. Snyder, A. D. (Ap '30)
Coleridge, the sublime somnambulist. Charpentier, J. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Colette, pseud. See Jouvenel, G. C. de

Collapse of the Austro-Hungarian empire. Glaise von Horstenau, E. (F '31) (1930 Annual) Collection of nationality laws of various countries. Flournoy, R. W., jr., and Hudson, M. O., eds. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Collectors and collecting
Bowles, E. About antiques. (Mr '30)
Carrier, A. Van L. Collector's luck in Spain. (F '31) (1930 Annual) Collector's luck in Spain. Carrick, A. Van L. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

College and school drama
Collins, L. F. Little theatre in school. (N '30)

College presidents
Schmidt, G. P. Old time college president. (Je '30)

College sports
Rogers, F. R. Future of interscholastic athletics. (S '30)
College student thinking it through. Charters, J. B. (O '30)

College verse
Erskine, H., ed. To the gods of Hellas. (S '30)

Colleges and universities
Flexner, A. Universities; American, English, German. (F '31) (1930 Annual) Gauss, C. E. Life in college. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

United States

Good, C. V. Teaching in college and university. (Ap '30)
Hites, L. T. Effective Christian college. (Ap '30)
Little, C. C. Awakening college. (Je '30)
Schmidt, G. P. Old time college president. (Je '30)
Colloid symposium annual; v 7. (S '30)

Colloids
Colloid symposium annual; v 7. (S '30)
Ware, J. C. Chemistry of the colloidal state. (O '30)
Colonel William Smith and lady. Roof, K. M. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Color
Chase, J. C. An artist talks about color. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Maerz, A. J., and Paul, M. R. Dictionary of color. (N '30)

Color photography
Pitkin, W. B., and Marston, W. M. Art of sound pictures. (Je '30)

Colors
Chase, J. C. An artist talks about color. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Maerz, A. J., and Paul, M. R. Dictionary of color. (N '30)
Colossal blunders of the war. Woods, W. S. (D '30)
Coloured countries. Eng title of: Hot countries. Waugh, A. (My '30)

Columbia university
Johnson, S. Samuel Johnson, president of King's college. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Columbus, Christopher
Wassermann, J. Columbus. (My '30)

Drama

Claudel, P. Book of Christopher Columbus. (Ag '30)
Combed out. Voigt, F. A. (My '30)

Combustion
Bone, W. A., and others. Gaseous combustion at high pressures. (My '30)
Come Christmas. Frost, L. ed. (Mr '30)
Come on, Texas. Schubert, P. (O '30)
Come with me through Germany. Schoonmaker, F. (O '30)
Coming age and the Catholic church. Barry, W. F. (O '30)
Coming of the war, 1914. Schmitt, B. E. (N '30)
Commando. Reitz, D. (Ap '30)

Commedia dell'arte
Duchartre, P. L. Italian comedy. (Mr '30)
Common problem. Coleman, S. L. (Mr '30)
Common stocks and the average man. Frederick, J. G. (Ag '30)

Commonwealth steel company
Gilmore, A. F. Fellowship [the biography of Clarence H. Howard]. (Mr '30)

Communism
Gide, C. Communist and co-operative colonies. (S '30)
Marx, K., and Engels, F. Communist manifesto. (N '30)
Page, K., ed. New economic order. (Je '30)
Plekhanov, G. V. Fundamental problems of Marxism. (N '30)

Communist and co-operative colonies. Gide, C. (S '30)
Communist manifesto. Marx, K., and Engels, F. (N '30)

Community life
Burr, W. Small towns. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Comnena, Anna
Buckler, G. G. Anna Comnena. (Mr '30)
The company. Seaver, E. (Je '30)

Company of Scotland trading to Africa and the Indies
Hart, F. R. Disaster of Darien. (Ap '30)

Competition
National industrial conference board. Public regulation of competitive practices. (S '30)
Compleat workes. Buddicom, J. L. M. (My '30)
Complete Sherlock Holmes. Doyle, A. C. (N '30)

Composition (art)
Poore, H. R. Art principles in practice. (O '30)
Composition and expression in landscape painting. Glass, F. J. (S '30)

Compulsory labor
Simpson, L. B. Encomienda in New Spain. (S '30)
Comrades at arms. Féval, P. (O '30)
Comrades of the Clouds. Erskine, L. Y. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Concerning the blind. Ritchie, J. M. (D '30)

Concordat of 1929
Civis romanus, pseud. The pope is king. (Ap '30)
Moore, T. E. Peter's city. (N '30)

Concrete
McMillan, F. R. Basic principles of concrete making. (Je '30)

Condorcet, Marie Jean Antoine Nicolas Caritat, marquis de
Burlingame, A. E. Condorcet. (S '30)

Conduct of life
Borsodi, R. This ugly civilization. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Charters, J. B. College student thinking it through. (O '30)
Gilkey, J. G. Solving life's everyday problems. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Goldberg, I. Fine art of living. (Ag '30)
Powys, J. C. In defence of sensuality. (N '30)
Wiggam, A. E. Marks of an educated man. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Conductivity of solutions and the modern dissociation theory. Davies, C. W. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Confectionery
Allen, L. G. Choice candy recipes. (My '30)
Bookmeyer, M. B. Candy and candy-making. (My '30)

Confederacy (frigate)
Howard, J. L. Seth Harding. (S '30)

Confederate states of America
Chesnut, M. B. Diary from Dixie. (Ag '30)
Confessions in art. Morris, H. S. (Ag '30)
Confessions of Zeno. Schmitz, E. (O '30)
Conflict. Kellett, E. E. (N '30)

Conflict of laws
Humble, H. W. Cases on conflict of laws. (My '30)
Confucianism. Starr, F. (N '30)

Confucius and Confucianism
Starr, F. Confucianism. (N '30)

Conjuring
Gibson, W. B. Houdini's escapes. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Lippy, J. D., jr. Chemical magic. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Thurston, H. My life of magic. (My '30)

Connington, John Jervis, pseud. See Stewart A. W.

Connor, Ralph, pseud. See Gordon, C. W.
Conquering our great American plains. Henry, S. O. (Je '30)
Conqueror of space [Lee De Forest]. Carneal, G. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Conqueror's lady, Ines Suarez. May, S. (D '30)
Conquest. O'Connor, J. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Conquest of happiness. Russell, B. A. W. (N '30)
Conquest of life. Koppanyi, T. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Conquest of thought by invention. Hatfield, H. S. (Ap '30)

Conrad, Joseph
Cross, W. L. Four contemporary novelists. (D '30)

Consciousness
Fite, W. Living mind. (Je '30)
Consequences. Ford, J. E. (Ap '30)
Constitution of sugars. Haworth, W. N. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Constitution of the United States. Munro, W B. (O '30)

Constitutional history
Strong, C. F. Modern political constitutions. (Ag '30)
Constitutional law of the United States. Willoughby, W. W. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Consumption (economics)
Carroll, M. R. Our wants and how they are satisfied. (N '30)
Nystrom, P. H. Economic principles of consumption. (My '30)
Contact. Springs, E. W. (O '30)

Contagion and contagious diseases
Kopeloff, N. Man vs. microbes. (Je '30)
Contempo. Vassos, R. (Mr '30)
Contemporary American philosophy. (S '30)
Contemporary American portrait painters. Lee, C. (Ag '30)
Contemporary art applied to the store and its display. Kiesler, F. (S '30)
Contemporary attitudes. Taft, K. B., and others, eds. (Je '30)
Contemporary immortals. Henderson, A. (N '30)
Contradance. Whitman, W. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Conversation
Hall, B. Modern conversation. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Conversations at Malines, 1921-1925. Halifax, C. L. W., ed. (My '30)
Conversations with George Moore. Goodwin, G. (Ag '30)

Conveying machinery
Tournier, E. J. Materials handling equipment. (My '30)

Cook, Elsie Thornton. See Thornton-Cook, E.

Cook, James
Carruthers, J. H. M. Captain James Cook (O '30)
Thiéry, M. Captain Cook. (Je '30)

Cookery
Carey, N., pseud. Soup to nuts. (D '30)

Juvenile literature
La Ganke, F. Patty pans. (Ap '30)

Cookery, American
Gruver, S. C. Cape Cod cook book. (O '30)
Rhett, B. S. 200 years of Charleston cooking. (S '30)

Cookery, French
Lucas, E. French cookery book. (My '30)
Marcellys,—. French cooking for everywoman. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Cookery for institutions, etc.
Allevi, B. Savarin cookbook. (Ap '30)

Cookery for the sick
Rudy, A. Practical handbook for diabetic patients. (N '30)
Coonardoo. Prichard, K. S. (Ap '30)

Cooperation
White, W. L. Cooperative retail buying associations. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Coöperative marketing of agricultural products. Comish, N. H. (Je '30)
Cooperative retail buying associations. White, W. L. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Cops 'n robbers. Russell, J. (O '30)
Corn in Egypt. Roberts, C. E. B. (Ap '30)

Corn laws
Barnes, D. G. History of the English corn laws from 1660-1846. (Je '30)
Cornered poets. Housman, L. (My '30)
Coronet Komroff, M. (Mr '30)
Corporal once. Nason, L. H. (D '30)

Corporation law
  Keezer, D. M., and May, S. Public control of business. (D '30)
  Seager, H. R., and Gulick, C. A. Trust and corporation problems. (Je '30)
  Toulmin, H. A. Millions in mergers. (Ap '30)
Corpse guards parade. Burge, M. R. K. (Ap '30)

Corpulence
  Axtell, L. E. Grow thin on good food. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Correspondence, v 4. Jackson, A. (Ap '30)
Correspondence between Thomas Jefferson and Pierre Samuel du Pont de Nemours, 1798-1817. Jefferson, T. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Corsairs of France. Norman, C. B. (Mr '30)
Cosima Wagner. Du Moulin-Eckart, R. M. F. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Cosmology
  Langdon-Davies, J. Man and his universe. (S '30)
  Shapley, H. Flights from chaos. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Thomas, O. Heaven and earth. (Ag '30)
  Whitehead, A. N. Process and reality. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Cost accounting
  Sanders, T. H. Industrial accounting. (S '30)

Cost and standard of living
  Douglas, P. H. Real wages in the United States. (Ag '30)
  Dublin, L. I., and Lotka, A. J. Money value of a man. (S '30)
  Nystrom, P. H. Economic principles of consumption. (My '30)

Costume
  Dabney, E., and Wise, C. M. Book of dramatic costume. (Je '30)
  Evans, M. Costume throughout the ages. (My '30)
  Laver, J. English costume of the nineteenth century. (My '30)
  Warwick, E., and Pitz, H. C. Early American costume. (Ap '30)
Costume throughout the ages. Evans, M. (My '30)
Cottages of England. Oliver, B. (Ap '30)

Cotton growing and manufacture
  Rhyne, J. J. Some southern cotton mill workers and their villages. (Je '30)
  Vance, R. B. Human factors in cotton culture. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Alabama

  Shumway, H. I. I go South. (D '30)

Countess Tolstoy's later diary; 1891-1897. Tolstaia, S. A. (Ap '30)

Country church
  McLaughlin, H. W., ed. Country church and public affairs. (O '30)
Country church and public affairs. McLaughlin, H. W., ed. (O '30)

Country life
  Lanier, H. W. O rare content. (S '30)
  Williamson, H. Village book. (D '30)
Country newspaper and its operation. Safley, J. C. (O '30)
Country of thirty-six thousand wishes. Maurois, A. (N '30)
Course of English classicism. Vines, S. (Je '30) Courts

Egypt

  Brinton, J. Y. Mixed courts of Egypt. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Goodenough, E. R. Jurisprudence of the Jewish courts in Egypt. (S '30)

United States

  Moley, R. Our criminal courts. (N '30)
  Willoughby, W. F. Principles of judicial administration. (My '30)
Covered wagon days. Dickson, A. J. (Ap '30)
Coverlets
  Finley, R. Old patchwork quilts. (Mr '30)

Cowboys
  Dobie, J. F. Vaquero of the brush country. (Ap '30)
  Harris, F. My reminiscences as a cowboy. (My '30)
  James, W. Lone cowboy. (O '30)
  Sage, L. Last rustler. (Ag '30)
Cowper, William
  Cecil, E. C. D. Stricken deer; or, The life of Cowper. (Je '30)
Coxey, Jacob Sechler
  McMurry, D. Le C. Coxey's army. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Coxey's army. McMurry, D. Le C. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Crane Pacific expedition of Field museum of natural history
  Shurcliff, S. N. Jungle islands. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Cranes (birds)
  Berg, B. M. K. To Africa with the migratory birds. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Cranes, derricks, etc.
  Jones, W. How the derrick works. (Ag '30)
Crawley, England (Hampshire)
  Gras, N. S. B. and E. Economic and social history of an English village. (S '30)
Creation of a home. Blair, E. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Creative activities in physical education. Horrigan, O. K. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Creative drama in the lower school. Brown, C. (Je '30)
Creative home. Deering, I. E. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Creator man. Morgan, A. (My '30)
Crecas' critique of Aristotle. Wolfson, H. A. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Creed of a biologist. Warthin, A. S. (O '30)
Creston, Dormer, pseud. See Baynes, D. J.
Crime and criminal law in the United States. Best, H. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Crime and criminals
  Ahearn, D. How to commit a murder. (Ag '30)
  Barnes, H. E. Story of punishment. (O '30)
  Carey, A. A., and McLellan, H. Memoirs of a murder man. (S '30)
  Carvalho, C., and Sparkes, B. Crime in ink. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
  Coates, R. M. Outlaw years. (O '30)
  Fiaschetti, M. You gotta be rough. (Mr '30)
  Glueck, S. S. and E. 500 criminal careers. (Mr '30)
  Haynes, F. E. Criminology. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Pearson, E. L. Instigation of the devil. (N '30)

Bibliography

  Johnsen, J. E., comp. Baumes law. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Chicago

  Pasley, F. D. Al Capone. (D '30)
  Shaw, C. R. Delinquency areas. (S '30)
  Sullivan, E. D. Chicago surrenders. (D '30)

France

  Ashton-Wolfe, H. Forgotten clue. (Ag '30)
  Ashton-Wolfe, H. Thrill of evil. (O '30)

Great Britain

  Judges, A. V., ed. Elizabethan underworld. (D '30)

New York (city)

  Van Every, E. Sins of New York. (D '30)

New York (state)

  Johnsen, J. E., comp. Baumes law. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

United States

  Best, H. Crime and criminal law in the United States. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Crime in ink. Carvalho, C., and Sparkes, B. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual) Crime in the Dutch garden. Adams, H. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Crime of the just. Chamson, A. (Je '30)
Criminal code. Flavin, M. (My '30)
Criminal justice in America. Pound, R. (O '30)
Criminal law
Best, H. Crime and criminal law in the United States. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Ewen, C. L., ed. Witch hunting and witch trials. (Je '30)
Johnsen, J. E., comp. Baumes law. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Criminal procedure
Best, H. Crime and criminal law in the United States. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Moley, R. Our criminal courts. (N '30)
Pound, R. Criminal justice in America. (O '30)
Criminal statistics
Glueck, S. S. and E. 500 criminal careers. (Mr '30)
Criminology. Haynes, F. E. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Crinkled crown. Le Queux, W. (S '30)
Critical year. Beale, H. K. (Ag '30)
Critique of humanism. Gratton, C. H., ed. (Ag '30)
Critique of love. Wittels, F. (Mr '30)
Cromwell, Oliver

Bibliography

Abbott, W. C. Bibliography of Oliver Cromwell. (N '30)
Crooked Eye. Virden, K. (D '30)
Cross bearers. Frey, A. M. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Cross in the wilderness. Mary Monica, Sister. (O '30)
Cross roads in Ireland. Colum, P. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Crow Indians
Linderman, F. B. American. (Je '30)
Crowd your luck on death. Kapustin, H. (My '30)
Crowded solitude. Kittredge, B. (Ag '30)
Crowds
Notch, F. K., pseud. King Mob. (Ag '30)
Crowell's dictionary of business and finance. (O '30)
Crucibles. Jaffe, B. (S '30)
Crusaders of chemistry. Leonard, J. N. (D '30)
Crusades
Lamb, H. The crusades. (My '30)
The crusades. Lamb, H. (My '39)
"Crying pig" murder. MacClure, V. (My '30)
Crystal icicle. Keith, K. (Ap '30)
Crystal tree. Temple, J. (O '30)
Cultivating personality. Walsh, W. S. (O '30)
Cultural history of the modern age, v 1. Friedell, E. (Ap '30)
Culture
Powys, J. C. Meaning of culture. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Wiggam, A. E. Marks of an educated man. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Cuneiform inscriptions
Barton, G. A. Royal inscriptions of Sumer and Akkad. (S '30)
Dougherty, R. P. Nabonidus and Belshazzar. (S '30)
Curie, Mme Marie (Sklodowska)
Ferris, H. J., ed. When I was a girl. (O '30)
Curriculum principles and practices. Hopkins, L. T. (My '30)
Currier, Nathaniel
Crouse, R. Mr Currier and Mr Ives. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Currier and Ives
Crouse, R. Mr Currier and Mr Ives. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Curwood, James Oliver
Curwood, J. O. Son of the forests. (D '30)
Cyclopedic survey of chamber music. Cobbett, W. W., comp. and ed. (Ag '30)
Cynics. Marienhoff, A. (N '30)
Cyrano de Bergerac, Savinien

Fiction

Bedford-Jones, H. Cyrano. (Je '30)
Féval, P. Comrades at arms. (O '30)
Cyrano. Bedford-Jones, H. (Je '30)
Cyrus Hall McCormick. Hutchinson, W. T. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Czechoslovak Republic
Baerlein, H. P. B. Dreamy rivers. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

D. H. Lawrence. Potter, S. (S '30)
D. L. Moody. Moody, W. R. (O '30)
Dagger. Dahlberg, M. (Ag '30)
Daggers drawn. Thomas, A. E. W. (D '30)
Daguerreotypes. Wallas, A. (Je '30)
Dairy products
Eckles, C. H., and others. Milk and milk products. (Je '30)
Dairying
Eckles, C. H., and others. Milk and milk products. Je '30)
Damen, Arnold
Conroy, J. P. Arnold Damen. (Ag '30)
Dana, Francis
Cresson, W. P. Francis Dana. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Dance, little gentleman! Frankau, G. (Mr '30)
Dance night. Powell, D. (D '30)
Dance of youth. Sudermann, H. (O '30)
Dancing
Horrigan, O. K. Creative activities in physical education. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Hostetler, L. A. Art of social dancing. (N '30)
Selden, E. S. Elements of the free dance. (O '30)
Dancing girl of Gilead. Joelson, A. (My '30)
Dandelion days. Williamson, H. (My '30)
Danger spots in world population. Thompson, W. S. (My '30)
Dangers of obedience. Laski, H. J. (Je '30)
Daniel O'Connell. Gwynn, D. R. (Je '30)
Daniel Webster. Fuess, C. M. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Daniel Webster as an economist. Carey, R. L. (Mr '30)
Dante Alighieri
Leigh, G. New light on the youth of Dante. (My '30)
Dare, Alan, pseud. See Goodchild, G.
Darien expedition
Hart, F. R. Disaster of Darien. (Ap '30)
Dark star of Itza. Malkus, A. S. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Dark trails. Cherrie, G. K. (D '30)
Darwin, Charles
Rádl, E. History of biological theories. (N '30)
Datchley inheritance. McKenna, S. (S '30)
Daughter of the Medicis [Margaret of Valois]. Mariejol, J. H. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual) Daughters. Reuter, G. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Daughters of Eve. Bradford, G. (Ap '30)
David Golder. Némirovsky, I. (N '30)
David Lloyd George. Edwards, J. H. (Ap '30)
Davis, Jefferson
Cutting, E. B. Jefferson Davis. (D '30)
Winston, R. W. High stakes and hair trigger; the life of Jefferson Davis. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Dawes, Charles Gates
Leach, P. R. That man Dawes. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Day after Christmas. Damon, S. F. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Day before yesterday. Moffatt, J. (Ag '30)
Day of small things. Buchan, A. (N '30)
Day of Yahweh. Heidel, W. A. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Day the world ended. Rohmer, S., pseud. (O '30)
Days of her life. Irwin, W. A. (Je '30)
Days of our years. Kasovich, I. I. (D '30)
Dead man twice. Bush, C. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Dead towns and living men. Woolley, C. L. (My '30)
Dean in the high school. Johnson, M. H. (Mr '30)
Dear acquaintance. Rees, R. F. (My '30)
Dear Judas. Jeffers, R. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Death
Bjerre, P. C. Death and renewal. (Ag '30)
Poetry
Curtiss, M. K., comp. Olive, cypress and palm. (Ag '30)
Death and renewal. Bjerre, P. C. (Ag '30)
Death in the box. Hill, B. (Ap '30)
Death mask. Applin, A. (Ap '30)
Death of Christopher. Sommerfield, J. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Death of Cosmo Revere. Bush, C. (O '30)
Death of my aunt. Kitchin, C. H. B. (My '30)
Death takes a holiday. Ferris, W. (O '30)
Death traps. Strahan, K. (Je '30)
Death Valley, California
Lee, B. Death Valley. (Ag '30)
Manly, W. L. Death Valley in '49. (S '30)
Death Valley. Lee, B. (Ag '30)
Death Valley in '49. Manly, W. L. (S '30)
Debates and debating
Lurie, R. L. Challenge of the forum. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Phelps, E. M., ed. University debaters' annual. (Je '30)
Debs, Eugene Victor
Coleman, M. Eugene V. Debs. (S '30)
Painter, F. R. That man Debs and his life work. (O '30)
Debts, Public
Madden, J. T., and Nadler, M. Foreign securities. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Studensky, P. Public borrowing. (N '30)
China
Coons, A. G. Foreign public debt of China. (N '30)
France
Haig, R. M., and others. Public finances of post-war France. (S '30)
Turkey
Blaisdell, D. C. European financial control in the Ottoman empire. (Mr '30)
Decisive wars of history. Liddell Hart, B. H. (My '30)
Decline of merry England. Jameson, S. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Decline of the mediaeval church. Flick, A. C. (S '30)
Decoration and ornament
Frankl, P. T. Form and re-form. (Je '30)
Kahle, K. M. Modern French decoration. (S '30)
Rivera, D. Frescoes. (Ap '30)
Decoration and ornament, Architectural
Geerlings, G. K. Wrought iron in architecture. (My '30)
Deenie men. McMahon, J. (Ag '30)
Deep South. Carmer, C. L. (My '30)
Deepening stream. Fisher, D. F. (N '30)
Defective and delinquent classes
Davies, S. P. Social control of the mentally deficient. (Je '30)
Defendant soul. Forrest, C. E. (Je '30)
Defoe, Daniel
De La Mare, W. J. Desert islands and Robinson Crusoe. (O '30)
De Forest, Lee
Carneal, G. Conqueror of space [Lee De Forest]. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Deism
Torrey, N. L. Voltaire and the English deists (S '30)
Delafield, E. M., pseud. See De la Pasture, E. E. M.
Delinquency areas. Shaw, C. R. (S '30)
Deluge
Peake, H. J. E. Flood. (Je '30)
Democracy
Burns, C. D. Democracy. (My '30)
Lindsay, A. D. Essentials of democracy. (Ap '30)
Smith, J. A. Growth and decadence of constitutional government. (My '30)
Demoniac possession
Oesterreich, T. K. Possession. (S '30)
Demonology
Coulange, L., pseud. Life of the devil. (Je '30)
De mortius. Eng title of: Post mortems of mere mortals. MacLaurin, C. (S '30)
Denny and the dumb cluck. McEvoy, J. P. (O '30)
Department stores
Employees
La Dame, M. Filene store. (S '30)
Deputy sheriff. Mulford, C. E. (Ap '30)
Derelict. Shaw, J. T. (D '30)
Dering, Cini Willoughby, pseud. See Buddicom, J. L. M.
Desert islands and Robinson Crusoe. De La Mare, W. J. (O '30)
Design, Decorative
Christie, A. H. Traditional methods of pattern designing. (D '30)
Desires & devices. Simpson, H. De G. (My '30)
Desolate house. Eng title of: Desires & devices. Simpson, H. De G. (My '30)
De Soto and the conquistadores. Maynard, T. (Ag '30)
Destiny. Nückel, O. (My '30)
Destry rides again. Brand, M. (N '30)
Detective stories
Best English detective stories of 1929. (Ag '30)
Detectives
Ashton-Wolfe, H. Forgotten clue. (Ag '30)
Carey, A. A., and McLellan, H. Memoirs of a murder man. (S '30)
Fiaschetti, M. You gotta be rough. (Mr '30)
Determination of generalizations basic to the social studies curriculum. Billings, N. (Ag '30)
Development of American political thought. Carpenter, W. S. (N '30)
Development of English humour. Cazamian, L. F. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Development of Harvard university, 1869-1929. Morison, S. E., ed. (Ap '30)
Development of the federal program of flood control on the Mississippi River. Frank, A. De W. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Devil
Coulange, L., pseud. Life of the devil. (Je '30)
Garcon, M., and Vinchon, J. The devil. (Mr '30)
Devil and the lady. Tennyson, A. T. (My '30)
Devil drums. Ripley, C. (Je '30)
Devil's booth. Wilde, P. (My '30)
Devil's brigade. Spivak, J. L. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Devil's spoon. Du Bois, T. (My '30)
Devonshire, England
Sheldon, G. From trackway to turnpike. (My '30)
Dewer rides. Strong, L. A. G. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Dewey, John
Essays in honor of John Dewey. (Ap '30)
John Dewey, the man and his philosophy. (S '30)
Bibliography
Thomas, M. H., and Schneider, H. W. Bibliography of John Dewey. (S '30)
De Wolf family
Howe, M. A. De W. Bristol, Rhode Island. (N '30)
Dhalla, Maneckji Nusservanji. See Mānekjī Nasarvānjī Dhālā
Diabetes
Rudy, A. Practical handbook for diabetic patients. (N '30)
Diagnosis of health. Emerson, W. R. P. (Ag '30)
Dialogue on miracles (1220-1235). Caesarius, of Helsterbach. (Mr '30)
Diamonds of death. Willett, H. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Diamonds to sit on. Ilf, I., and Petrov, E. (O '30)
Diary from Dixie. Chesnut, M. B. (Ag '30)
Diary of an ambassador; v 2, Rapallo to Dawes, 1922-1924. D'Abernon, E. V. (Je '30)

- Diary of Lady Margaret Hoby, 1599-1605. Hoby, M. (N '30)
- Dickens, Charles
  - Darwin, B. R. M., ed. Dickens advertiser. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  - Wagenknecht, E. C. The man Charles Dickens. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
  - Zweig, S. Three masters. (Je '30)
- Dickens advertiser. Darwin, B. R. M., ed. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
- Dickinson, Emily
  - Jenkins, M. Emily Dickinson. (Ag '30)
  - Pollitt, J. Emily Dickinson. (Ap '30)
  - Taggard, G. Life and mind of Emily Dickinson. (Ag '30)
  - Fiction
    - Jenkins, M. Emily. (N '30)
- Dictionary of actors. Nungezer, E. (Mr '30)
- Dictionary of American biography. v 3-5. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
- Dictionary of color. Maerz, A. J., and Paul, M. R. (N '30)
- Did she fall? Smith, T. (O '30)
- Diet
  - Axtell, L. E. Grow thin on good food. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  - Holck, H. H. G. Diet and efficiency. (O '30)
  - Kebler, L. F. Eat and keep fit. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  - Rosewarne, D. D. Science of nutrition simplified. (My '30)
- Diet and efficiency. Holck, H. H. G. (O '30)
- Diet in disease
  - Rudy, A. Practical handbook for diabetic patients. (N '30)
- Dilemma in India. Craddock, R. H. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
- Dilemma of the liberated. Munson, G. B. (D '30)
- Dillingham, Robert Barclay, pseud. See Foulke, W. D.
- Dim star. Yates, H. (S '30)
- Dime novels
  - Pearson, E. L. Dime novels. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
- Diplomats, American
  - Wriston, H. M. Executive agents in American foreign relations. (Ap '30)
- Direction (yacht)
  - Kent, R. N by E. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
- Disarmament
  - Johnsen, J. E., comp. Disarmament. (D '30)
  - Union of soviet socialist republics. Soviet union and peace. (N '30)
- Disaster of Darien. Hart, F. R. (Ap '30)
- Discoveries (in geography)
  - Brendon, J. A. Great navigators & discoverers. (Ap '30)
  - Cary, M., and Warmington, E. H. Ancient explorers. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
  - Juvenile literature
    - Gable, J. H. Boys' book of exploration. (Ag '30)
- Disillusioned India. Mukerji, D. G. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
- Dissenters
  - Hall, T. C. Religious background of American culture. (O '30)
- Dissenting opinions of Mr Justice Holmes. Holmes, O. W. (Ap '30)
- Dissertations, Academic
  - Almack, J. C. Research and thesis writing. (N '30)
- Dissociation
  - Davies, C. W. Conductivity of solutions and the modern dissociation theory. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
- Dissolution of the Habsburg monarchy. Jaszi, O. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
- Divers orders of ministers. Lockton, W. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
- Diving, Submarine
  - Berge, V., and Lanier, H. W. Pearl diver. (Mr '30)
- Division of labor
  - Kraus, A. J. I. Sick society. (S '30)
- Divorce
  - Russell, B. A. W., and others. Divorce. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  - Waller, W. Old love and the new. (S 30)
- Divorce as I see it. Eng title of: Divorce. Russell, B. A. W., and others. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
- Divorce case of Queen Caroline. Bowman, W. D. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
- Dixon's cubs. Moore, J. C. (D '30)
- Do the churches dare? Hawkins, C. J. (Mr '30)
- Do you know English literature? Williams, B. C., and Macy, J. (S '30)
- Doctor and patient. Peabody, F. W. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
- Doctor Donne and Gargantua. Sitwell, S. (N '30)
- Dr. Serocold. Jordan, H. R. (S '30)
- Doctors' wives. Lieferant, H. and S. (Ag '30)
- Dog days, other times, other dogs. White, S. E. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
- Dogs
  - Hardy, H. F. H. Good gun dogs. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  - Richardson, E. H. Forty years with dogs. (D '30)
  - Legends and stories
    - Bird, T. W. Bristles. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
    - Darling, E. B. Navarre of the North. (N '30)
    - De La Roche, M. Portrait of a dog. (D '30)
    - Jenkins, A. C. Pal. (S '30)
    - Kipling, R. "Thy servant a dog." (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
    - Rohan, J. Rags. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
    - Rosman, A. G. Jock the Scot. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
    - Terhune, A. P. Lad of Sunnybank. (Mr '30)
    - White, S. E. Dog days, other times, other dogs. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  - Training
    - Richardson, E. H. Forty years with dogs. (D '30)
- Domination. Johnston, M. (O '30)
- Dominions and diplomacy. Dewey, A. G. (Ap '30)
- Domitila. Setubal, P. (N '30)
- Don Juan's daughters. Forbes-Mosse, I. (My '30)
- Donjon of demons. Fitzpatrick, B. (Ag '30)
- Donn Byrne. Macauley, T. (Ap '30)
- Donne, John
  - Williamson, G. Donne tradition. (O '30)
- Donne tradition. Williamson, G. (O '30)
- Doomed five. Wells, C. (My '30)
- The door. Rinehart, M. (My '30)
- Doorstep murders. Wells, C. (Ag '30)
- Dorchester company
  - Rose-Troup, F. Massachusetts Bay company and its predecessors. (N '30)
- Dostoevskiĭ, Fedor Mikhaĭlovich
  - Zweig, S. Three masters. (Je '30)
- Doubloons. Driscoll, G. B. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
- Douglas, O., pseud. See Buchan, A.
- Dowie, John Alexander
  - Newcomb, A. Dowie, anointed of the Lord. (O '30)
- Dowie, anointed of the Lord. Newcomb, A. (O '30)
- Down in flames. Redman, B. R. (Ap '30)
- Down in the valley. Freeman, H. W. (Ap '30)
- Down the red lane. Vendel, H. J. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
- Down the sky. Lucas, E. V. (D '30)
- Down the Tiber and up to Rome. Eberlein, H. D., and others. (Je '30)
- Drama
  - Collections
    - Baker, G. P., ed. Yale one-act plays. (O '30)
    - Housman, L. Little plays of St. Francis. (S '30)
    - Mantle, B., ed. Best plays of 1928-29; and, The year book of the drama in America. (Ap '30)
    - Mantle, B., ed. Best plays of 1929-30. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Tucker, S. M., ed. Modern continental plays. (My '30)
Webber, J. P., and Webster, H. H., eds. Typical plays for young people. (Je '30)

History and criticism

Brown, J. M. Modern theatre in revolt. (Ap '30)

Drama in education
Brown, C. Creative drama in the lower school. (Je '30)
Collins, L. F. Little theatre in school. (N '30)
Drama in English. Eaton, W. P. (O '30)

Dramas
Anderson, M. Elizabeth the queen. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Aristophanes. Lysistrata. (N '30)
Balderston, J. L. Berkeley square. (Mr '30)
Barry, P. Hotel Universe. (D '30)
Behrman, S. N. Meteor. (Ag '30)
Chekhov, A. P. That worthless fellow Platonov. (My '30)
Chekhov, A. P. Uncle Vanya. (S '30)
Connelly, M. C. Green pastures. (My '30)
Dukes, A. Jew Süss. (Ap '30)
Ervine, St J. G. First Mrs Fraser. (Mr '30)
Ferris, W Death takes a holiday. (O '30)
Flavin, M. Criminal code. (My '30)
Frank, W. D. New Year's eve. (Mr '30)
Glaspell, S. Alison's house. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Howard, S. C. Half gods. (Je '30)
Huston, J. Frankie and Johnny. (D '30)
Job, T. Giants in the earth. (My '30)
Kirshon, V., and Uspenskii, A. V. Red rust. (Ap '30)
Lardner, R. W., and Kaufman, G. S. June moon. (S '30)
Lewisohn, L. Adam. (My '30)
MacKaye, K. Honey Holler. (O '30)
Masters, E. L. Gettysburg, Manila, Acoma. (O '30)
Rice, E. L. See Naples and die. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Sherwood, R. E. Waterloo bridge. (Ap '30)
Sturges, P. Strictly dishonorable. (My '30)
Tennyson, A. T. Devil and the lady. (My '30)
Warren, E. H. Shakespeare in Wall Street. (Ap '30)
Wexley, J. Last mile. (Ag '30)

Drapery
Candee, H. C. Weaves and draperies. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Drawings
Manning-Sanders, J. Drawings and paintings. (Ap '30)
Drawings and paintings. Manning-Sanders, J. (Ap '30)
Dreamy rivers. Baerlin, H. P. B. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Dressmaking
Curtis. H. P. When Sally sews. (Je '30)

Drew, Mrs Mary (Gladstone)
Drew, M. Mary Gladstone (Mrs Drew) her diaries and letters. (Ag '30)

Dreyfus, Alfred

Fiction

Kerkhoff, J. D. Traitor! Traitor! (N '30)
Drink: coercion or control? Dorr, R. L. (Mr '30)
Droll parade. Talbott, C. (Je '30)
Droll Peter. Timmermans, F. (My '30)
Drum and monkey. Manning-Sanders, G. (Ap '30)

Dualism
Lovejoy, A. O. Revolt against dualism. (Ag '30)

Du Chaillu, Paul Belloni
Vaucaire, M. Paul Du Chaillu, gorilla hunter. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Du Deffand de La Lande, Marie Anne (de Vichy Chamrond) marquise
De Koven, A. Horace Walpole and Madame du Deffand. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Dudevant, Mme Amantine Lucile (Dupin). See Sand, G., pseud.
Duel of the queens. Beck, L. (N '30)

Dueling
Benjamin, L. S., and Hargreaves, R. Famous duels and assassinations. (My '30)

Duk-Duks. Weber, E. A. (My '30)

Dumaru (steamship)
Thomas, L. J. Wreck of the Dumaru. (N '30)

Dumas, Alexandre
Gorman, H. S. Incredible marquis, Alexandre Dumas. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Dunkerley, William Arthur. See Oxenham, J., pseud.

Dupont de Nemours, Pierre Samuel
Jefferson, T. Correspondence between Thomas Jefferson and Pierre Samuel du Pont de Nemours, 1798-1817. (F '31) (1930 Anual)
Durawald. Shea, T. E. (D '30)

Durham, John George Lambton, 1st earl of
New, C. W. Lord Durham. (Ap '30)
Dust to life. Thom, B. P. (Ap '30)
Dusty highway. Parmenter, C. (Mr '30)

Dutch Guiana

Description and travel

Pedrick, H. A. Jungle gold. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Dutch houses in the Hudson Valley before 1776. Reynolds, H. W. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Dwarfs
Akeley, D. J. Jungle portraits. (My '30)

Dwellings
Olney, D. and J. Home-owner's manual. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Tucker, M. Buying an honest house. (Je '30)
Dwight Whitney Morrow. Howland, H. H. (Ag '30)
Dying alderman. Aubrey-Fletcher, H. L. (D '30)

Eagle & the serpent. Guzmán, M. L. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Early American costume. Warwick, E., and Pitz, H. C. (Ap '30)
Early American furniture makers. Ormsbee, T. H. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Early American portrait painters. Lee, C. (Ag '30)
Early American prints. Drepperd, C. W. (S '30)
Early American silver. Avery, C. L. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Early Christianity and its rivals. Box, G. H. (O '30)
Early keyboard instruments. James, P. (D '30)
Early letters. Hopkins, M. (Ap '30)
Early moon. Sandburg, C. (D '30)
Early reaping. Rice, C. Y. (Mr '30)
Early sorrow. Mann, T. (Ap '30)
Early traditions about Jesus. Bethune-Baker, J. F. (S '30)
Earning and spending the family income. Friend, M. R. (O '30)

Earth
Baitsell, G. A., ed. Evolution of earth and man. (My '30)
Reed, W. M. Earth for Sam. (Ap '30)
Earth for Sam. Reed, W. M. (Ap '30)
The earth told me. Williamson, T. R. (O '30)
Earth's generations pass. Foulke, W. D. (O '30)

East

Politics

Kohn, H. History of nationalism in the East. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

East (Far East)
Palmer, F. Look to the East. (S '30)

Description and travel

Greenbie, S. Romantic East. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Michelson, F., and Byrne, L. Ocean parade. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

East India company
Morse, H. B. Chronicles of the East India company, v 5. (S '30)
East Side epic. Rogoff, H. (Ap '30)
East wind: West wind. Buck, P. S. (Je '30)

Eastern question (Far East)
  Blakeslee, G. H. Pacific area. (O '30)
  Holcombe, A. N. Chinese revolution. (S '30)
  Institute of Pacific relations, 1929. Problems of the Pacific, 1929. (N '30)
  Palmer, F. Look to the East. (S '30)
  Young, C. W. International relations of Manchuria. (Ap '30)

Eastman, George
  Ackerman, C. W. George Eastman. (Je '30)
Eat and keep fit. Kebler, L. F. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Economic and social history of an English village. Gras, N. S. B. and E. (S '30)
Economic aspects of sovereignty. Hawtrey, R. G. (Ag '30)
Economic causes of the reformation in England. Marti, O. A. (My '30)
Economic chronicle of the Great war for Great Britain and Ireland, 1914-1919. Dearle, N. B. (Mr '30)

Economic conditions
  Nearing, S. Twilight of empire. (Ag '30)
  Patterson, E. M. World's economic dilemma. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Thompson, W. S. Danger spots in world population. (My '30)
Economic democracy. Brookings, R. S. (Ap '30)
Economic development of India. Anstey, V. (Mr '30)
Economic development of post-war France. Ogburn, W. F., and Jaffé, W. (O '30)
Economic history of modern Europe, 1760-1930. Birnie, A. (N '30)
Economic interpretation of history. Sée, H. E. (Je '30)

Economic policy
  Hawtrey, R. G. Economic aspects of sovereignty. (Ag '30)
  Patterson, E. M. World's economic dilemma. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Economic principles of consumption. Nystrom, P. H. (My '30)
Economic trends in soviet Russia. Yugoff, A. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Economics
  Black, J. D. and A. G. Production organization. (S '30)
  Bukharin, N. I. Imperialism and world economy. (Ap '30)
  Carey, R. L. Daniel Webster as an economist. (Mr '30)
  Carroll, M. R. Our wants and how they are satisfied. (N '30)
  Florence, P. S. Statistical method in economics and political science. (Mr '30)
  Ford, P. Economics and modern industry. (O '30)
  Hobson, J. A. Economics and ethics. (My '30)
  Hobson, J. A. Rationalisation and unemployment. (N '30)
  Kimball, D. S. Industrial economics. (S '30)
  Kuznets, S. S. Secular movements in production and prices. (S '30)
  Marx, K. Capital. (Mr '30)
  Rueff, J. From the physical to the social sciences. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
  Sée, H. E. Economic interpretation of history. (Je '30)

Addresses, essays, lectures
  Brookings, R. S. Economic democracy. (Ap '30)
  Page, K., ed. New economic order. (Je '30)

Bibliography
  Batson, H. E., comp. Select bibliography of modern economic theory, 1870-1929. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Economics, Mathematical
  Fisher, I. Theory of interest. (D '30)
Economics and ethics. Hobson, J. A. (My '30)
Economics of branch banking. Ostrolenk, B. (S '30)
Economics of modern industry. Ford, P. (O '30)
Economics of retailing. Nystrom, P. H. (S '30)
Economics of water power development. Voskuil, W. H. (S '30)
Eddic [mythology]. Macculloch, J. A. (S '30)

Eddy, Mrs Mary (Baker)
  Fisher, H. A. L. Our new religion. (Ap '30)
  Powell, L. P. Mary Baker Eddy. (D '30)
  Springer, F. C. According to the flesh; a biography of Mary Baker Eddy. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Wortham, H. E. Three women. (My '30)
Edge of the unknown. Doyle, A. C. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Edib, Halide. See Halidah Adib
Edinburgh
  Grierson, F. Haunting Edinburgh. (O '30)
Edison, Thomas Alva
  Ford, H., and Crowther, S. Edison as I know him. (D '30)
Edison as I know him. Ford, H., and Crowther, S. (D '30)
Editorial page. Jones R. W. (O '30)
Editorials
  Jones, R. W. Editorial page. (O '30)
Edmund Burke. Cobban, A. (Mr '30)
Education
  Boyd, W., and Mackenzie, M. M., eds. Towards a new education. (S '30)
  Wiggam, A. E. Marks of an educated man. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Addresses, essays, lectures
  Hopkins, E. M. Education and life. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Laski, H. J. Dangers of obedience. (Je '30)
  Schelling, F. E. Pedagogically speaking. (Ap '30)

Curricula
  Hopkins, L. T. Curriculum principles and practices. (My '30)

Africa
  Murray, A. V. School in the bush. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Austria
  Dottrens, R. New education in Austria. (S '30)

California
  Ferrier, W. W. Origin and development of the University of California. (S '30)

England
  Norwood, C. English tradition of education. (O '30)

Europe
  Prescott, D. A. Education and international relations. (O '30)
  Roman, F. W. New education in Europe. (Je '30)

France
  Hayes, C. J. H. France. (Ap '30)

Germany
  Alexander, T., and Parker, B. New education in the German republic. (My '30)

Russia
  Pinkevich, A. P. New education in the Soviet republic. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

United States
  Counts, G. S. American road to culture. (O '30)

History
  Knight, E. W. Education in the United States. (My '30)
Education, Elementary
  Horn, J. L. Principles of elementary education. (Mr '30)
Education, Higher
  Ferrier, W. W. Origin and development of the University of California. (S '30)
  Good, C. V. Teaching in college and university. (Ap '30)

Bibliography
  Good, C. V. Teaching in college and university. (Ap '30)
Education and international relations. Prescott, D. A. (O '30)
Education and life. Hopkins, E. M. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Education and state
United States
Morrison, H. C. School revenue. (Ag '30)
Education in the United States. Knight, E. W. (My '30)
Education of a princess. Marie, grand duchess of Russia. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Education of adults
Fisher, D. F. Learn or perish. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Lurie, R. L. Challenge of the forum. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Winchester, B. S. Church and adult education. (N '30)
Education of children
Horn, J. L. Principles of elementary education. (Mr '30)
Education of children. Adler, A. (O '30)
Education of women
India
Athavale, P. My story. (S '30)
United States
Woody, T. History of women's education in the United States. (Ag '30)
Educational achievement in relation to intelligence. St John, C. W. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Educational psychology
Adler, A., and others, eds. Guiding the child on the principles of individual psychology. (Ag '30)
Kenwrick, E. and M. Child from five to ten. (Ag '30)
Pintner, R. Educational psychology. (F '31) (1929 Annual)
Swift, E. J. Psychology of childhood. (Ag '30)
Zachry, C. B. Personality adjustments of school children. (Ap '30)
Educational psychology. Pintner, R. (F '31) (1929 Annual)
Educators beyond their depth. Greenbie, S. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Edward VII, king of Great Britain
Cust, L. H. King Edward VII and his court. (O '30)
Edward Coke. Lyon, H., and Block, H. (Je '30)
Edward Livingston Trudeau. Hallock, G. T., and Turner, C. E. (S '30)
Edwardians. Sackville-West, V. M. (O '30)
Edwards, Jonathan
Parkes, H. B. Jonathan Edwards. (N '30)
Effective Christian college. Hites, L. T. (Ap '30)
Effects of moisture on chemical and physical changes. Smith, J. W. (Ap '30)
Efficiency, Industrial
Burtt, H. E. Psychology and industrial efficiency. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Diemer, H., ed. Wage-payment plans that reduced production costs. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Kimball, D. S. Industrial economics. (S '30)
Taylor society, New York. Scientific management in American industry. (My '30)
Walker, L. C. The office and tomorrow's business. (S '30)
Egypt
Bibesco, M. L. Egyptian day. (S '30)
Description and travel
Gérard de Nerval. Women of Cairo. (My '30)
Meier-Graefe, J. Pyramid and temple. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Rydh, H. A. Land of the sun-god. (Je '30)
History
British occupation, 1882-
Gordon, J. My six years with the Black watch. 1881-1887. (Mr '30)
Kings and rulers
Great ones of ancient Egypt. (Ag '30)
Queens
Great ones of ancient Egypt. (Ag '30)
Religion
Spence, L. Mysteries of Egypt. (Ag '30)
Egyptian day. Bibesco, M. L. (S '30)
Egyptian portrait. Grundy, C. W. (S '30)
Eighteenth century
Cobban, A. Edmund Burke. (Mr '30)
Eighteenth-century gentleman. Roberts, S. C. (Ap '30)
Einstein, Albert
Reiser, A. Albert Einstein. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Ekrem, Selma
Ekrem, S. Unveiled. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
El goes south. Kantor, M. (O '30)
Elections
Louisiana
Warmoth, H. C. War, politics and reconstruction. (O '30)
Electric engineering
Franklin, W. S., and Dawes, L. M. Fundamentals of electrical engineering. (D '30)
Moyer, J. A., and Wostrel, J. F. Industrial electricity and wiring. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Sanderson, C. H., ed. Electric system handbook. (Je '30)
Electric light plants
Bird, F. L., and Ryan, F. M. Public ownership on trial. (S '30)
Electric lighting
Caldwell, F. C. Modern lighting. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Electric power plants
Bird, F. L., and Ryan, F. M. Public ownership on trial. (S '30)
Electric system handbook. Sanderson, C. H., ed. (Je '30)
Electric utilities
Mosher, W. E., and others, eds. Electrical utilities. (F '31) (1929 Annual)
Electric wiring
Moyer, J. A., and Wostrel, J. F. Industrial electricity and wiring. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Electric wiring, Interior
Nelson, A. L., and Dunlap, C. H. Interior electric wiring and estimating. (D '30)
Electrical utilities. Mosher, W. E. and others, eds. (F '31) (1929 Annual)
Electricians
Appleyard, R. Pioneers of electrical communication. (N '30)
Electrolytes
Hammett, L. P. Solutions of electrolytes. (Ap '30)
Conductivity
Davies, C. W. Conductivity of solutions and the modern dissociation theory. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Electroplating
Blum, W., and Hogaboom, G. B. Principles of electroplating and electroforming (electrotyping). (Je '30)
Electrotyping
Blum, W., and Hogaboom, G. B. Principles of electroplating and electroforming (electrotyping). (Je '30)
Elementary inorganic chemistry. Mellor, J. W. (D '30)
Elementary wrought iron. Bollinger, J. W. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Elements of the free dance. Selden, E. S. (O '30)
Elements of topographic drawing. Sloane, R. C., and Montz, J. M. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Elephants
Legends and stories
Gill, M. S. Huttee Boy of the jungle. (Mr '30)
Slaughter, C. E. Hahtibee, the elephant. (D '30)
Elfwin. Wright, S. F. (N '30)
Eliot, Charles William
James, H. Charles W. Eliot. (D '30)
Eliot, George, pseud. (Mrs Mary Ann [Evans] Cross)
May, J. L. George Elitot. (O '30)

Elizabeth, empress consort of Francis Joseph I, emperor of Austria
Tschuppik, K. Empress Elizabeth of Austria. (S '30)
Elizabeth, queen of England
Hollis, C. Monstrous regiment. (S '30)
Drama
Anderson, M. Elizabeth the queen. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Elizabeth Barrett Browning. Boas, L. S. (Ap '30)
Elizabeth Gaskell. Sanders, G. De W. (Je '30)
Elizabeth the queen. Anderson, M. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Elizabethan. Lee, S. (Ag '30)
Elizabethan underworld. Judges, A. V., ed. (D '30)
Ella. Thomas, E. W. (Ap '30)
Elsie Dinsmore on the loose. Crawford, P. (Ag '30)
Elmsworth, Elmer. See Thayer, T., pseud.
Emden (cruiser)
Thomas, L. T. Lauterbach of the China sea. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Emerging Christian faith. Nixon, J. W. (S '30)
Emerson, Ralph Waldo
Carpenter, F. I. Emerson and Asia. (N '30)
Michaud, R. Emerson, the enraptured Yankee. (Ag '30)
Russell, P. Emerson, the wisest American. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Emerson and Asia. Carpenter, F. I. (N '30)
Emerson, the enraptured Yankee. Michaud, R. (Ag '30)
Emerson, the wisest American. Russell, P. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Emil and the detectives. Kästner, E. (N '30)
Emily. Jenkins, M. (N '30)
Emily Dickinson. Jenkins, M. (Ag '30)
Emily Dickinson. Pollitt, J. (Ap '30)
Emmet Thorpe. Jenkins, D. E. (D '30)
Emotions
Cannon, W. B. Bodily changes in pain, hunger, fear and rage. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Mid-West conference on character development, Chicago, 1930. Child's emotions. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Emperor Francis Joseph I. Ketterl, E. (D '30)
Employees' representation in management
La Dame, M. Filene store. (S '30)
Employment insurance in Germany. Carroll, M. R. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Empress Elizabeth of Austria. Tschuppik, K. (S '30)
Enchanted button. Bullard, M. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Enchantment. Cross, R. (My '30)
Enchantments of the field. Bryden, H. A. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Encomienda in New Spain. Simpson, L. B. (S '30)
Encyclopaedia of the social sciences, v 1-2. (Ap '30, Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Encyclopedia of games, v l. Lasker, E. (Ag '30)
End of roaming. Laing, A. K. (N '30)
End of the avenue. Scott, W. M. (My '30)
End of the world. Dennis, G. P. (D '30)
Endocrinology
Sokolov, B. F. Bio-dynamics. (S '30)
Endowments
Keppel, F. P. The foundation. (S '30)
Enfants terribles. Cocteau, J. (Ag '30)
Engineering
Grant, E. L. Principles of engineering economy. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
History
Neuburger, A. Technical arts and sciences of the ancients. (D '30)
England
Dibelius, W. England. (My '30)
Civilization
Wingfield-Stratford, E. C. Those earnest Victorians. (N '30)
Description and travel
Eberlein, H. D. Little known England. (O '30)
Hughes, M. V. America's England. (Ag '30)
Newman, E. M. Seeing England and Scotland. (Ag '30)
Prioleau, J. Open road in England. (My '30)
Intellectual life
Somervell, D. C. English thought in the nineteenth century. (Je '30)
Social life and customs
Davies, W. S. Life in Elizabethan days. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Walpole, H. Horace Walpole's England. (N '30)
Wingfield-Stratford, E. C. Those earnest Victorians. (N '30)
England in the age of the American revolution. Namier, L. B. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
England in the nineteenth century, 1801-1805. Fremantle, A. F. (Mr '30)
England under Queen Anne; v 1, Blenheim. Trevelyan, G. M. (N '30)
English biography before 1700. Stauffer, D. A. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
English constitution. Amos, M. S. (O '30)
English costume of the nineteenth century. Laver, J. (My '30)
English drama
Collections
Cordell, R. A., ed. Representative modern plays. (Mr '30)
History and criticism
Beerbohm, M. Around theatres. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Dobrée, B. Restoration tragedy, 1660-1720. (Je '30)
Eaton, W. P. Drama in English. (O '30)
Stoll, E. E. Poets and playwrights. (O '30)
English essays
Taft, K. B., and others, eds. Contemporary attitudes. (Je '30)
English fiction
Cross, W. L. Four contemporary novelists. (D '30)
History and criticism
Mansfield, K., pseud. Novels and novelists. (D '30)
Woolf, V. Room of one's own. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
English government and politics. Ogg, F. A. (Ap '30)
English humor. Priestley, J. B. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
English inn. Burke, T. (O '30)
English language
Aiken, J. R. English, past and present. (N '30)
Etymology
Roberts, G. Heart of words. (Je '30)
Weekley, E. Adjectives—and other words. (Je '30)
Grammar
Jones, G. M., and Yates, A. Practical and literary English. (D '30)
History
Weekley, E. English language. (Ag '30)
Phonology
Aiken, J. Why English sounds change. (My '30)
Provincialisms
Macy, W. F. Nantucket scrap basket. (S '30)
Rhetoric
Jones, G. M., and Yates, A. Practical and literary English. (D '30)
English language. Weekley, E. (Ag '30)
English literature
Collections
Hare, K., ed. Archer's chronicle and greenwood companion. (D '30)
Lunn, H. K., ed. Anthology of invective and abuse. (My '30)
Lunn, H. K., comp. and ed. More invective. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Examinations, questions, etc.
Williams, B. C., and Macy, J. Do you know English literature? (S '30)
History and criticism
Cazamian, L. F. Development of English humour. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Cole, G. D. H. Politics and literature. (Mr '30)
Cruse, A. Englishman and his books in the early nineteenth century. (N '30)
Groom, B. Literary history of England. (Mr '30)
Lee, S. Elizabethan. (Ag '30)
Quiller-Couch, A. T. Studies in literature; third ser. (Ap '30)
Shaaber, M. A. Some forerunners of the newspaper in England, 1476-1622. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Somervell, D. C. English thought in the nineteenth century. (Je '30)
Stauffer, D. A. English biography before 1700. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Tradition and experiment in present-day literature. (Ap '30)
Vines, S. Course of English classicism. (Je '30)
English literature (Early modern [to 1700])
Judges, A. V., ed. Elizabethan underworld. (D '30)
English monasteries in the middle ages. Palmer, R. L. (D '30)
English parish church. Powys, A. R. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
English, past and present. Aiken, J. R. (N '30)
English poetry
Bradby, G. F. About English poetry. (S '30)
Collections
Chapin, E., and Thomas, R. B. New approach to poetry. (My '30)
Clark, T. C., comp. Poems of justice. (Mr '30)
Curtiss, M. K., comp. Olive, cypress and palm. (Ag '30)
Drinkwater, J., and others, eds. Twentieth-century poetry. (Mr '30)
Imagist anthology, 1930. (Je '30)
Lewis, D. B. W., and Lee, C., eds. Stuffed owl. (My '30)
Moult, T., ed. Best poems of 1930. (D '30)
Shortridge, V., comp. Songs of science. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Taggard, G., ed. Circumference. (My '30)
History and criticism
Brenner, R. Ten modern poets. (Ag '30)
Williams, C. W. S. Poetry at present. (N '30)
Williamson, G. Donne tradition. (O '30)
English poetry (Middle English)
Collections
Adamson, M. R., comp. Treasury of Middle English verse. (Ag '30)
English political portraits of the nineteenth century. Taylor, G. R. S. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
English thought in the nineteenth century. Somervell, D. C. (Je '30)
English tradition of education. Norwood, C. (O '30)
Englishman and his books in the early nineteenth century. Cruse, A. (N '30)
Engravings
Clayton, M. Print collector. (My '30)
Printing
Strang, D. Printing of etchings and engravings. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Engravings, American
Crouse, R. Mr Currier and Mr Ives. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Drepperd, C. W. Early American prints. (S '30)
Enlargement of personality. Denison, J. H. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Entertaining
Chambers, M. D. Table etiquette. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Lamkin, N. B. Good times for all times. (S '30)
Entertainments
Miller, C. A. Stunts of all lands. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Environmental basis of social geography. Huntington, C. C., and Carlson, F. A. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Ephesian, pseud. See Roberts, C. E. B.
Epic Peters, Pullman porter. Cohen, O. R. (My '30)
Episode in Luxor. Kent, J. (Ag '30)
Epochs of German history. Haller, J. (N '30)
Eppworth case. Patterson, I. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Erie railroad
Hicks, F. C., ed. High finance in the sixties. (My '30)
Erl King. Granberry, E. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Erlande, Albert, pseud. See Brandenburg, A. J.
Ernest the policeman. Beaman, S. G. H. (Ag '30)
Eroica. Chotzinoff, S. (My '30)
Escape. Nitti, F. F. (Ap '30)
Espionage! Berndorff, H. R. (Je '30)
Essays
Bailey, H. T. Yankee notions. (Mr '30)
Bolitho, W., pseud. Camera obscura. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Burnet, J. Essays and addresses. (Ag '30)
Chase, M. E. Golden asse. (Ap '30)
Davis, R. H. On home soil with Bob Davis. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Foerster, N., ed. Humanism and America. (Ap '30)
Guedalla, P. Missing muse. (My '30)
Lawrence, D. H. Assorted articles. (Ag '30)
Lee, S. Elizabethan. (Ag '30)
Phelps, W. L. Essays on things. (D '30)
Roberts, S. C. Eighteenth-century gentleman. (Ap '30)
Slosson, E. E. Number of things. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Terhune, A. P. Proving nothing. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Trevelyan, G. M. Clio, a muse. (Je '30)
Wilkins, E. H. Above Pompeii. (N '30)
Essays and addresses. Burnet, J. (Ag '30)
Essays in Christian philosophy. Hodgson, L. (Je '30)
Essays in honor of John Dewey. (Ap '30)
Essays in intellectual history. (Ag '30)
Essays in satire. Knox, R. A. (My '30)
Essays on things. Phelps, W. L. (D '30)
Essentials of democracy. Lindsay, A. D. (Ap '30)
Essex, Frances (Howard) Devereux, countess of
Gibbs, P. H. King's favourite. (Je '30)
Esteven, John, pseud. See Shellabarger, S.
Esthetics
Burgum, E. B., ed. New criticism. (D '30)
Ducasse, C. J. Philosophy of art. (Mr '30)
Goldberg, I. Fine art of living. (Ag '30)
Grudin, L. Primer of aesthetics. (S '30)
Kallen, H. M. Indecency and the seven arts. (Je '30)
Parkhurst, H. H. Beauty. (S '30)
Etching
Technique
Strang, D. Printing of etchings and engravings. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Etchings
Clayton, M. Print collector. (My '30)
Davies, A. B. Etchings and lithographs. (Ag '30)
Etchings and lithographs. Davies, A. B. (Ag '30)
Ethan Allen. Pell, J. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Ethical basis of political authority. Willoughby, W. W. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Ethical teachings in the Latin hymns of medieval England. Messenger, R. E. (D '30)
Ethics
Adler, F. Incompatibility in marriage. (Je '30)
Broad, C. D. Five types of ethical theory. (Je '30)
Hobson, J. A. Economics and ethics. (My '30)
Rueff, J. From the physical to the social sciences. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Urban, W. M. Fundamentals of ethics. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Ethics—Continued
Wright, W. K. General introduction to ethics. (S '30)
History
Markun, L. Mrs Grundy. (Ag '30)
Ethics, Jewish
Bernfeld, S., comp. Foundations of Jewish ethics. (Mr '30)
Ethics of Paul. Enslin, M. S. (S '30)
Ethnography. Havemeyer, L. (Ag '30)
Ethnology
Havemeyer, L. Ethnography. (Ag '30)
Africa
Williams, J. J. Hebrewisms of West Africa. (O '30)
Greece
Myres, J. L. Who were the Greeks? (S '30)
Mexico
Redfield, R. Tepoztlan. (O '30)
Nigeria
LoBagola, B. K. A. I. LoBagola. (My '30)
Ethnopsychology
Allier, R. S. P. Mind of the savage. (F '31) (1929 Annual)
Etiquet
Chambers, M. D. Table etiquette. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Webster, D., and Hopkins, M. A., eds. Mrs. Grundy is dead. (Ap '30)
Eugene V. Debs. Coleman, M. (S '30)
Eugenics
Darwin, L. What is eugenics? (My '30)
Jennings, H. S. Biological basis of human nature. (Je '30)
Eulenberg-Hertefeld, Philipp, fürst zu
Haller, J. Philip Eulenberg. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Euripides
Bates, W. N. Euripides. (Ap '30)
Europe
Biography
Sforza, C. Makers of modern Europe. (Je '30)
Civilization
Clark, G. N. Seventeenth century. (Ag '30)
Miller, F. P., and Hill, H. D. Giant of the western world. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
History
Friedell, E. Cultural history of the modern age, v 1. (Ap '30)
Commercial policy
Herriot, E. United states of Europe. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Hutchinson, P. The united states of Europe. (Mr '30)
Description and travel
Buchanan, J. J. Take your own car abroad and find your own Europe. (Je '30)
Cobb, I. S. Both sides of the street. (N '30)
Macmillan, N. Air tourist's guide to Europe. (Je '30)
Newton, A. E. A tourist in spite of himself. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
O'Reiley, M. A. Travel talk. (Je '30)
Parker, C. Watching Europe grow. (S '30)
Risner, H. C. Pinnacles of personality. (Je '30)
Tully, J. Beggars abroad. (N '30)
Economic conditions
Birnie, A. Economic history of modern Europe, 1760-1930. (N '30)
Hutchinson, P. The united states of Europe. (Mr '30)
Rappard, W. E. Uniting Europe. (My '30)
History
Ketelbey, D. M. History of modern times. (O '30)
Outlines, syllabi, etc.
Smith, E. T. New approach to modern European history. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) 476-1492
Liudprandus, bp. of Cremona. Works. (N '30)
1789-1815
Barton, D. P. Amazing career of Bernadotte, 1763-1844. (Mr '30)
Oman, C. Studies in the Napoleonic wars. (O '30)
20th century
Huddleston, S. Europe in zigzags. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
1914-
Benns, F. L. Europe since 1914. (My '30)
Gibbs, P. H. Since then. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
History, Military
Oman, C. Studies in the Napoleonic wars. (O '30)
Politics
Anderson, E. N. First Moroccan crisis, 1904-1906. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
D'Abernon, E. V. Diary of an ambassador; v 2, Rapallo to Dawes, 1922-1924. (Je '30)
De Chaire, S. S. Impending storm. (O '30)
Germany. Auswärtiges amt. German diplomatic documents, 1871-1914; v 2-3. (N, D '30)
Headlam-Morley, J. W. Studies in diplomatic history. (D '30)
Herriot, E. United states of Europe. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Huddleston, S. Europe in zigzags. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Hutchinson, P. The united states of Europe. (Mr '30)
Langer, W. L. Franco-Russian alliance, 1890-1894. (My '30)
Machray, R. Little entente. (D '30)
Nicolson, H. G. Portrait of a diplomatist [Sir Arthur Nicolson]. (N '30)
Rappard, W. E. Uniting Europe. (My '30)
Schmitt, B. E. Coming of the war, 1914. (N '30)
Relations (general) with United States
Miller, F. P., and Hill, H. D. Giant of the western world. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Social conditions
Douglas, N. Good-bye to Western culture. (O '30)
Prescott, D. A. Education and international relations. (O '30)
Europe in zigzags. Huddleston, S. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Europe since 1914. Benns, F. L. (My '30)
Europe: the world's banker, 1870-1914. Feis, H. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
European financial control in the Ottoman empire. Blaisdell, D. C. (Mr '30)
European heritage. Kirkconnell, W. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) European imperialism in Africa. Hoskins, H. L. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
European war, 1914-1918
Clemenceau, G. E. B. Grandeur and misery of victory. (Je '30)
Grant, A. G., comp. Letters from Armageddon. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Halévy, E. World crisis of 1914-1918. (Je '30)
Liddell Hart, B. H. Real war, 1914-1918. (N '30)
Woods, W. S. Colossal blunders of the war. (D '30)
Blockades
Guichard, L. Naval blockade, 1914-1918. (Ap '30)
Campaigns
Liddell Hart, B. H. Real war, 1914-1918. (N '30)
Turkey and the Near East
Mackenzie, C. Gallipoli memories. (My '30)
Western
Aston, G. G. Biography of the late Marshal Foch. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Brooks, A. As I saw it. (O '30)
Miller, H. W. Paris gun. (Ap '30)

Causes

Grattan, C. H. Why we fought. (My '30)
Schmitt, B. E. Coming of the war, 1914. (N '30
Wegerer, A. von. Refutation of the Versailles war guilt thesis. (N '30)

Economic aspects

Dearle, N. B. Economic chronicle of the Great war for Great Britain and Ireland, 1914-1919. (Mr '30)
Kobayashi, U. Basic industries and social history of Japan, 1914-1918. (O '30)
Motherwell, H. Imperial dollar. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Hospitals, charities, etc.

Borden, M. Forbidden zone. (My '30)
Werner, M. R. "Orderly!" (My '30)

Humor, caricatures, etc.

Buranelli, P. Maggie of the suicide fleet. (Je '30)
Niles, J. J., ed. Songs my mother never taught me. (Mr '30)

Influence and results

Barnes, H. E. World politics in modern civilization. (Ag '30)
Gibbs, P. H. Since then. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Literature and the war

Löhrke, E. W., ed. Armageddon. (Ag '30)

Naval operations

Thomas, L. J. Lauterbach of the China sea. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Submarine

Buranelli, P. Maggie of the suicide fleet. (Je '30)
Carr, W. G. By guess and by God. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Personal narratives

Barkley, J. L. No hard feelings! (N '30)
Borden, M. Forbidden zone. (My '30)
Carossa, H. Roumanian diary. (S '30)
Carstairs, C. Generation missing. (S '30)
Crozier, F. P. Brass hat in No Man's Land. (O '30)
Edmonds, C., pseud. Subaltern's war. (O '30)
Ex-private X, pseud. War is war. (Je '30)
Graves, R. Good-bye to all that. (Mr '30)
Housman, L., ed. War letters of fallen Englishmen. (N '30)
Imrey, F., and Palen, L. S. Through blood and ice. (Ag '30)
In spite of all rejoicing. (Je '30)
Kiernan, R. H. Little brother goes soldiering. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
King, D. W. Ten thousand shall fall. (Ap '30)
Monelli, P. Toes up. (O '30)
Mottram, R. H., and others. Three men's war. (My '30)
Purdom, C. B., ed. Everyman at war. (Ag '30)
Sassoon, S. L. Memoirs of an infantry officer. (N '30)
Scapini, J. G. Challenge to darkness. (Mr '30)
Schauwecker, F. Fiery way. (Ap '30)
Thomas, L. J. Lauterbach of the China sea. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Vendel, H. J. Down the red lane. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Voigt, F. A. Combed out. (My '30)
Werner, M. R. "Orderly!" (My '30)

Poetry

Burns, V. G., comp. Red harvest. (Je '30)

Prisoners and prisons

Durnford, H. G. E. Tunnellers of Holzminden. (O '30)
Dwinger, E. E. Prisoner of war. (O '30)
Hall, J. N. Flying with Chaucer. (S '30)
Imrey, F., and Palen, L. S. Through blood and ice. (Ag '30)

Propaganda

Grattan, C. H. Why we fought. (My '30)
Viereck, G. S. Spreading germs of hate. (S '30)

Reparations

Myers, D. P. Reparation settlement. (F '31) (1931 Annual)

Secret service

Aston, G. G. Secret service. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Berndorff, H. R. Espionage! (Je '30)
Johnson, T. M. Our secret war. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Songs and music

Niles, J. J., ed. Songs my mother never taught me. (Mr '30)

Territorial questions

Margalith, A. M. International mandates. (N '30)
Wright, Q. Mandates under the League of nations. (F '31)) (1930 Annual)

Austria

Glaise von Horstenau, E. Collapse of the Austro-Hungarian empire. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Redlich, J. Austrian war government. (Mr '30)

Germany

Wegerer, A. von. Refutation of the Versailles war guilt thesis. (N '30)

Great Britain

Dearle, N. B. Economic chronicle of the Great war for Great Britain and Ireland, 1914-1919. (Mr '30)
Edwards, J. H. David Lloyd George. (Ap '30)
Mallet, C. E. Mr. Lloyd George. (N '30)

Rumania

Carossa, H. Roumanian diary. (S '30)
Mitrany, D. Land & the peasant in Rumania. (N '30)

Scandinavia

Sweden, Norway, Denmark, and Iceland in the World war. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Siberia

Imrey, F., and Palen, L. S. Through blood and ice. (Ag '30)

Turkey

Emin, A. Turkey in the world war. (N '30)

United States

Grattan, C. H. Why we fought. (My '30)
Slosson, P. W. Great crusade and after, 1914-1928. (N '30)

Evangelism. Weber, H. C. (My '30)
Evangelistic work
  Weber, H. C. Evangelism. (My '30)
Evelyn. Dwyer, J. F. (Ap '30)
Even Sara. Bake, G. (Je '30)
Everton, Francis, pseud. See Stokes, F. W.
Every man's story of the New Testament. Nairne, A. (N '30)
Every mother's son. Lindsay, N. (D '30)
Every which way in Ireland. Murphy, A. B. (Ag '30)
Everybody's Boswell. Boswell, J. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Everybody's garden. Waugh, F. A. (Je '30)
Everyday life in Homeric Greece. Quennell, M. and C. H. B. (N '30)
Everyman at war. Purdom, C. B., ed. (Ag '30)
Everyman's book of flying. Kneen, O. H. (O '30)
Evolution
  Baitsell, G. A., ed. Evolution of earth and man. (My '30)
  Bradley, J. H., jr. Parade of the living. (D '30)
  Clark, A. H. New evolution. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Cleland, H. F. Why be an evolutionist? (Je '30)
  Conger, G. P. New views of evolution. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Evolution—Continued
Cowdry, E. V., ed. Human biology and racial welfare. (S '30)
Gruenberg, B. C. Story of evolution. (Mr '30)
Langdon-Davies, J. Man and his universe. (S '30)
Standing, H. F. Spirit in evolution. (N '30)
Thom, B. P. Dust to life. (Ap '30)
Tilney, F. Master of destiny. (Ap '30)
Evolution of earth and man. Baitsell, G. A., ed. (My '30)
Evolution of modern marriage. Müller-Lyer, F. C. (Je '30)
Evolution of publishers' binding styles, 1770-1900. Sadleir, M. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Evolution of the art of music. Parry, C. H. H. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Evolution of truth. Knox, H. V. (D '30)
Evolution of war. Davie, M. R. (My '30)

Examinations
Hamilton, E. R. Art of interrogation. (Mr '30)
Excursion to Tilsit. Sudermann, H. (My '30)
Executive agents in American foreign relations. Wriston, H. M. (Ap '30)

Executive power
Wriston, H. M. Executive agents in American foreign relations. (Ap '30)
Exile. Deeping, W. (My '30)
Exit. Wright, H. B. (O '30)
Exmoor and other days. Fisher, A. O. (D '30)
Expatriates at large. Beadle, C. (Ag '30)
Experience with the supernatural in early Christian times. Case, S. J. (S '30) Experiment of bolshevism. Eng title of: Russian experiment. Feiler, A. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Explorers
Brendon, J. A. Great navigators & discoverers. (Ap '30)
Bridges, T. C., and Tiltman, H. H. More heroes of modern adventure. (Je '30)
Exploring about the North pole of the winds. Hobbs, W. H. (Je '30)
Exploring for plants. Fairchild, D. G. (S '30)
Exploring religion with eight year olds. Sweet, H. F., and Fahs, S. B. (D '30)

Exterritoriality
Adair, E. R. Exterritoriality of ambassadors in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. (N '30)
Exterritoriality of ambassadors in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. Adair, E. R. (N '30)

Extra-curricular activities
Rogers, F. R. Future of interscholastic athletics. (S '30)
Extraordinary adventures of Julio Jurenito. Ehrenburg, I. G. (O '30)
Eye in the museum. Stewart, A. W. (Mr '30)
Eyes through the trees. Keator, M. C. (Je '30)

Eyles, Leonora. See Eyles, M. L.

Fables
Powys, T. F. Fables. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Fabulous Forrest. Moses, M. J. (Ap '30)
Facing the issue squarely. Hall, R. C. (D '30)

Factories

Accounting

Bangs, J. R., jr. Industrial accounting for executives. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Location

Weber, A. Theory of the location of industries. (Je '30)

Factory management
Diemer, H., ed. Wage-payment plans that reduced production costs. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Taylor society. New York. Scientific management in American industry. (My '30)

Factory system
Borsodi, R. This ugly civilization. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Facts of life. Hanemann, H. W. (Ag '30)
Fads, frauds and physicians. Harding, T. S. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Fairy tales
Capuana, L. Golden-feather. (O '30)
Gate, E. M. All the king's trumpets. (Je '30)
Housman, L. Turn again tales. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Howes, E. Long bright land. (Mr '30)
Lebermann, N. New German fairy tales. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Mackenzie, C. Told. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
McMahon, J. Deenie men. (Ag '30)
O'Conor, N. J. There was magic in those days. (D '30)
Olcott, F. J. Wonder tales from Goblin hills. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Starbuck, E. D., and Shuttleworth, F. K., comps. Wonder road. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Wilson, R., pseud. Silver magic. (Mr '30)

Falla, Manuel de
Trend, J. B. Manuel de Falla and Spanish music. (My '30)
False spring. Seymour, B. K. (Mr '30)

Family
Calverton, V. F., and Schmalhausen, S. D., eds. New generation. (Ag '30)
Cowan, E. E., and Thornborough, L., pseud. Psychologist keeps house. (S '30)
Müller-Lyer, F. C. Evolution of modern marriage. (Je '30)
Reed, R. Modern family. (O '30)
The family (Les Péloueyres). Mauriac, F. (N '30)
Family origins. Round, J. H. (N '30)
Family that was. Raymond, E. (O '30)
Famous duels and assassinations. Benjamin, L. S., and Hargreaves, R. (My '30)
Famous families of Massachusetts. Crawford, M. C. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Famous girls of the White House. Sweetser, K. D. (S '30)
Famous speeches by eminent statesmen. Hicks, F. C., comp. and ed. (F '31) (1930 Annual) Far-away bride. Benson, S. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Far Lake. Van Dore, W. (D '30)
Farm export debenture plan. Davis, J. S. (S '30)

Farm life
Burr, W. Small towns. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Farm produce

Marketing

Comish, N. H. Coöperative marketing of agricultural products. (Je '30)
Davis, J. S. Farm export debenture plan. (S '30)
Hedden, W. P. How great cities are fed. (My '30)

Fascism
Page, K., ed. New economic order. (Je '30)

Fashion
Hurlock, E. B. Psychology of dress. (My '30)

Fashoda
Giffen, M. B. Fashoda. (F' 31) (1930 Annual)
Father means well. Kahler, H. M. (N '30)

Fathers of the church
Campbell, J. M. Greek fathers. (Ag '30)
Wheless, J. Forgery in Christianity. (N '30)
Featherland. Garson, E. C. (Je '30)
Federal limitations upon municipal ordinance making power. Walker, H. (Ag '30)

Federal reserve banks
Tippetts, C. S. State banks and the federal reserve system. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Warburg, P. M. Federal reserve system. (Ag '30)
Federal reserve system. Warburg, P. M. (Ag '30)

Feeble-minded
Davies, S. P. Social control of the mentally deficient. (Je '30)
Fellowship [the biography of Clarence H. Howard]. Gilmore, A. F. (Mr '30)
Ferdinand Magellan. Benson, E. F. (Ap '30)

Festivals
Heidel, W. A. Day of Yahweh. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Feuchtwanger, Lion
Dukes, A. Jew Süss. (Ap '30)
Fever pitch. Waters, F. (S '30)

Fiction (books about)

History and criticism

De La Mare, W. J. Desert islands and Robinson Crusoe. (O '30)
Krutch, J. W. Five masters. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Mansfield, K., pseud. Novels and novelists. (D '30)

Fiction (classified according to subject)

Adolescence

Crawford, N. A. Unhappy wind. (D '30)
Fineman, I. This pure young man. (N '30)
Granberry, E. Erl King. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Jouvenel, G. C. de, and Gauthier-Villars, H. Claudine at school. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Laing, A. K. End of roaming. (N '30)
Latimer, M. This is my body. (Ap '30)
Lindsay, N. Every mother's son. (D '30)
Noble, B. Years that take the best away. (Ag '30)
Odoevtzeva, I. Out of childhood. (N '30)
Reid, A. A. Love lies bleeding. (N '30)
Rollins, W. Obelisk. (Ag '30)
Ryerson, F., and Clements, C. C. This awful age. (D '30)
Williamson, H. Dandelion days. My '30)
Winter, J. K. Other man's saucer. (D '30)

Adventure

Acland, B. D. Filibuster. (O '30)
Bailey, G. R. Red Mesabi. (D '30)
Bindloss, H. Man at Willow ranch. (Je '30)
Bruce, M. Mukara. (D '30)
Buchan, J. Castle Gay. (O '30)
Bullard, A. Volcano. (Je '30)
Chisholm, A. M. Red Bill. (N '30)
Colver, A. M. Red-headed goddess. (Mr '30)
Dorrance, J. F. Forbidden range. (O '30)
Ellsberg, E. Thirty fathoms deep. (O '30)
Farnol, J. Over the hills. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Forbes, R. Cavaliers of death.. (O '30)
Forester, C. S. Single-handed. (Mr '30)
Gobineau, J. A. Lucky prisoner. (S '30)
Grove, J., ed. Omnibus of adventure. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Haworth, P. L. Caverns of sunset. (Ag '30)
Hendryx, J. B. Blood on the Yukon trail. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Hutchison, G. S. W plan. (Ap '30)
Jeffries, G. M. Adventures of Blackshirt. (Mr '30)
Leinster, M. Scalps. (O '30)
Mercer, C. W. Blood royal. (Mr '30)
Mundy, T. Cock o' the north. (My '30)
Oteyza, L. de. White devil. (N '30)
Pertwee, R. Pursuit. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Ripley, C. Devil drums. (Je '30)
Roberts, C. Havana bound. (N '30)
Rouquette, L. F. Great white silence. (S '30)
Savage, J. City of desire. (Ag '30)
Seltzer, C. A. Gone north. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Stacpoole, H. de V. S. Island of Lost Women. (D '30)
Thorndike, R. Vandekkers. (Ag '30)
Treynor, A. M. Flaming sands. (My '30)
Treynor, A. M. Hawk of the desert. (F' 31) (1930 Annual)
Vickers, R. The hawk. (Ag '30)
Wren, P. C. Mysterious Waye. (D '30)
Wynnton, P. Strange pursuit. (O '30)

Allegories

Kafka, F. Castle. (O '30)

Americans abroad

Graham, D. Candles in the sun. (Ap '30)

Animal stories

Darling, E. B. Navarre of the North. (N '30)
Grey, Z. Wolf-tracker. (S '30)
Minot, J. C., comp. Best animal stories I know. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Rhys, E., and Scott, C. A., eds. Mainly horses. (Mr '30)
Salten, F. Fifteen rabbits. (N '30)
Terhune, A. P. Lad of Sunnybank. (Mr '30)

Artist life

Sudermann, H. Wife of Steffen Tromholt. (Ap '30)

Aviation

Redman, B. R. Down in flames. (Ap '30)

Biblical stories

Oxenham, J., pseud. Splendour of the dawn. (N '30)
Roberts, C. E. B. Corn in Egypt. (Ap '30)

Birth control

Norris, C. G. Seed. (O '30)

Business

Big business girl. (N '30)
Bloch, J. R. "—& Co." (Mr '30)
Burlingame, R. The heir. (Ag '30)
Cuthrell, F. Office wife. (O '30)
Seaver, E. The company. (Je '30)

Character studies

Arthur, C. Poor faun. (N '30)
Barnes, M. Years of grace. (S '30)
Bartley, N. I. Godfather. (Mr '30)
Beach, J. W. Glass mountain. (D '30)
Bertram, A. The sword falls. (My '30)
Bodenheim, M. Virtuous girl. (Ag '30)
Borden, M. Woman with white eyes. (D '30)
Bottome, P. Tatter'd loving. (O '30)
Bowen, S. Wishbone. (Ap '30)
Bower, M. Glory place. (D '30)
Brinig, M. Anthony in the nude. (Ag '30)
Brooke, H. Mad shepherdess. (Je '30)
Brophy, J. Peter Lavelle. (Mr '30)
Burnett, W. R. Iron man. (Mr '30)
Cournos, J. Wandering women. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Coxon, M. Pilgrim's Ford. (Je '30)
Eiker, M. My own far towers. (N '30)
Evans, C. Nothing to pay. (N '30)
Fineman, I. This pure young man. (N '30)
Fisher, D. C. Deepening stream. (N '30)
Flannagan, R. The whipping. (O '30)
Forbes, R. One flesh. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Fowler, G. Trumpet in the dust. (Je '30)
Fuller, M. W. Golden roof. (D '30)
Gerhardi, W. A. Pending heaven. (Ap '30)
Gilkyson, T. W. Lights of fame. (Je '30)
Goncharov, I. A. Oblomov. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Granger, M. Lucy and three. (Je '30)
Greene, W. Ride the nightmare. (O '30)
Grigs, M. Bid her awake. (O '30)
Irwin, W. A. Days of her life. (Je '30)
James, N. C. To the valiant. (My '30)
Jameson, S. Voyage home. (Ap '30)
Johnston, M. Relentless. (O '30)
Jordan, H. R. Dr. Serocold. (S '30)
Joseph, D. Long bondage. (D '30)
Kennedy, M. Fool of the family. (D '30)
Knoblock, E. Ant heap. (Je '30)
Lambart, D. Shard. (Je '30)
Macaulay, R. Staying with relations. (D '30)
McCloud, D. Wives of men. (O '30)
Mackay, H. While gondolas pass. (S '30)
McKenna, S. Redemption of Morley Darville. (My '30)
Manning-Sanders, G. Third day. (O '30)
Marquand, J. P. Warning Hill. (My '30)
Metcalfe, J. Arm's-length. (Je '30)
Miller, A. Green isle. (N '30)
Moss, G. That other love. (O '30)
Némirovsky, I. David Golder. (N '30)
Noble, B. Years that take the best away. (Ag '30)
Norris, K. Margaret Yorke. (S '30)
O'Brien, H. V. Abandoned woman. (D '30) (1930 Annual)
Oke, R. Frolic wind. (Mr '30)
O'Neill, R. C. Goblin woman. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Oursler, F. Great Jasper. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Parrish, A. Methodist faun. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Parsons, A. John Merrill's pleasant life. (Ap '30)
Piper, W. Son of John Winteringham. (My '30)
Powys, T. F. Kindness in a corner. (My '30)
Richardson, H. H., pseud. Australia felix. (Ap '30)
Richardson, H. H., pseud. The way home. (Je '30)
Rickert, E. Severn woods. (Je '30)
Rollins, W. Obelisk. (Ag '30)
Rølvaag, O. E. Pure gold. (Ap '30)

Fiction—Character studies—Continued
Schmitz, E. Confessions of Zeno. (O '30)
Schmitz, E. The hoax. (My '30)
Sedgwick, A. D. Philippa. (D '30)
Spencer, C. Gallows' orchard. (My '30)
Steen, M. Reluctant madonna. (My '30)
Stout, R. Seed on the wind. (N '30)
Syrett, N. Portrait of a rebel. (O '30)
Temple, J. Crystal tree. (O '30)
Thayer, T. Thirteen men. (S '30)
Thomas, A. E. W. Daggers drawn. (D '30)
Toogood, G. Huntsman in the sky. (Ap '30)
Updegraff, A. Native soil. (Ap '30)
Wadsley, O. Yesterday's tomorrow. (Mr '30)
Wharton, E. N. Hudson River bracketed. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Wiehe, E. M. These generations. (D '30)
Wilde, P. Devil's booth. (My '30)
Williams, J. L. She knew she was right. (Ag '30)
Williamson, H. Dandelion days. (My '30)
Young, E. H. Miss Mole. (N '30)
Young, F. B. The Redlakes. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Charity work

Scott, E. Forgotten image. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Cheerful stories

Benson, T., pseud. The go-between. (My '30)
Casey, R. J. Voice of the lobster. (Je '30)
Emery, S. M. Romance by request. (Ag '30)
Hamilton, D. O. Picaresque. (N '30)
Hatch, E. Romance prescribed. (O '30)
Kahler, H. M. Father means well. (N '30)
Knevels, G. Molly Moonshine. (S '30)
Linklater, E. Poet's pub. (Mr '30)
Lucas, E. V. Down the sky. (D '30)
Olivier, E. Triumphant footman. (S '30)
Partridge, B. Pretty pickle. (O '30)
Weston, G. American marquis. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Wodehouse, P. G. Mr Mulliner speaking. (My '30)
Wodehouse, P. G. Very good, Jeeves. (S '30)

Children, Stories about

Mann, T. Early sorrow. (Ap '30)

Christian church

Mygatt, T. D., and Witherspoon, F. Armor of light. (Je '30)

Circus life

Cooper, C. R. Caged. (Ag '30)
Smith, E. F. Red wagon. (S '30)

Colonial life

Pakenhan, T. C. Rearguard. (D '30)

Community life

Stowell, G. History of Button Hill. (Ag '30)

Crime and criminals

Carroll, L. Wild onion. (N '30)
Coe, C. F. Other half. (N '30)
Hinds, R. W. Man called Eighty-eighty. (Ag '30)
Jenkins, D. E. Emmet Thorpe. (D '30)
Russell, J. Cops 'n robbers. (O '30)
Starr, J. Grapevine. (S '30)
Tully, J. Shadows of men. (Ap '30)

Diplomatic life

Parker, M. Secret envoy. (Je '30)

Divorce

Norris, K. Passion flower. (Ap '30)
Sedgwick, A. D. Philippa. (D '30)

Drunkards

Hoult, N. Closing hour. (Ap '30)

Dual personality

Kyne, P. B. Golden dawn. (Ag '30)

European war

Alverdes, P. Whistlers' room. (Ap '30)
Bartlett, V. Unknown soldier. (S '30)
Benoît, P. Axelle. (Ag '30)
Benstead, C. R. Retreat. (Ap '30)
Blaker, R. Medal without bar. (Je '30)
Cannan, J. Orphan of Mars. (Je '30)
Dawson, C. W. Fugitives from passion. (Ag '30)
Dent, W. R. Show me death! (Ag '30)
Deval, J. Wooden swords. (S '30)
Erskine, L. Y. Comrades of the clouds. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Federn, K. Baron Fritz. (N '30)
Fredenburgh, T. Soldiers march! (N '30)
Frey, A. M. Cross bearers. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Frøisland, F. Man with the X-ray eyes. (Ag '30)
Gibbs, A. H. Chances. (Ag '30)
Godwin, G. S. Why stay we here? (Je '30)
Hamilton, M. A. Three against fate. (Mr '30)
Harrison, C. Y. Generals die in bed. (S '30)
Hašek, J. Good soldier: Schweik. (Ap '30)
Heinz, M. Loretto. (Ag '30)
Hodson, J. L. Grey dawn—red night. (Mr '30)
Horvath, F. H. Captured! (S '30)
Hutchison, G. S. W plan. (Ap '30)
Johannsen, E. Four infantrymen. (Ag '30)
Lee, M. 'It's a great war.' (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Lorenz, H. Sunken fleet. (My '30)
McFee, W. North of Suez. (Je '30)
Mahon, T., ed. Cold feet. (Ag '30)
Morris, W. F. "G. B." (Mr '30)
Morris, W. F. Strange case of Gunner Rawley. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Nason, L. H. Corporal once. (D '30)
Newman, B. Cavalry goes through. (O '30)
O'Flaherty, L. Return of the brute. (Ap '30)
Olden, B. On virgin soil. (My '30)
Paul, E. H. Amazon. (My '30)
Pertwee, R. Pursuit (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Private 19022. Her privates we. (Ag '30)
Rebreanu, L. Forest of the hanged. (D '30)
Redman, B. R. Down in flames. (Ap '30)
Roth, J. Flight without end. (Ag '30)
Sherriff, R. C., and Bartlett, V. Journey's end. (My '30)
Smith, H. Z. Stepdaughters of war. (Je '30)
Springs, E. W. Contact. (O '30)
Stowell, G. History of Button Hill. (Ag '30)
Taboureau, J. Bourru, soldier of France. (Ap '30)
Thompson, E. J. In Araby Orion. (N '30)
Tomlinson, H. M. All our yesterdays. (Mr '30)
War nurse. (Je '30)
Williamson, H. Patriot's progress. (S '30)
Wise, J. C. Great crusade. (S '30)

Family life

Andrews, M. Seventh wave. (Je '30)
Asch, S. Mother. (N '30)
Bartley, N. I. Immediate family. (N '30)
Brinig, M. Singermann. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Carlisle, H. G. Mothers cry. (Mr '30)
Chamson, A. Crime of the just. (Je '30)
Colver, A. M. Hilltop house. (D '30)
Cram, M. Madder music. (Ap '30)
Davis, M. K. Mary's children. (S '30)
Duun, O. Trough of the wave. (Je '30)
Farnham, M. Wild beauty. (N '30)
Fletcher, G. Frankincense. (N '30)
Gauntier, G. Cabbages and harlequins. (Mr '30)
Gibbs, P. H. Hidden city. (Mr '30)
Goddard, G. These lords' descendants. (Mr '30)
Hoult, N. Closing hour. (Ap '30)
Hull, H. R. Asking price. (My '30)
James, N. C. To the valiant. (My '30)
Jameson, S. Voyage home. (Ap '30)
Kantor, M. El goes south. (O '30)
Kennedy, M. Fool of the family. (D '30)
Mayor, F. M. Squire's daughter. (D '30)
Moore, J. C. Dixon's cubs. (D '30)
Noble, B. Years that take the best away. (Ag '30)
Norris, C. G. Seed. (O '30)
Ostenso, M. Waters under the earth. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Piper, W. Son of John Winteringham. (My '30)
Raymond, E. Family that was. (O '30)
Reuter, G. Daughters. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Rice, C. Y. Early reaping. (Mr '30)
Stern, G. B. Mosaic. (N '30)

Troubetzkoy, A. Firedamp. (Ap '30)
Worthington, M. M. Spider web. (Ap '30)

Fantasies

Daniels, J. Clash of angels. (Je '30)
Durkin, D. L. Mr. Gumble sits up. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Hauser, E. Man without a necktie. (Ap '30)
Morley, C. D. Rudolph and Amina. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Rice, E. L. Voyage to Purilia. (My '30)
Salten, F. Hound of Florence. (Ag '30)
T'Serstevens, A. Sentimental vagabond. (D '30)
Vane, S. Outward bound. (Je '30)

Farm life

Cottrell, D. Tharlane. (S '30)
Donovan, J. Black soil. (N '30)
Falkberget, J. Lisbeth of Jarnfjeld. (Je '30)
Freeman, H. W. Down in the valley. (Ap '30)
Jones, N. Oregon detour. (Ap '30)
Rølvaag, O. E. Pure gold. (Ap '30)

Fathers and sons

Burlingame, R. The heir. (Ag '30)
Manning-Sanders, G. Drum and monkey. (Ap '30)
Waugh, A. Three score and ten. (Ag '30)

Feminism

Syrett, N. Portrait of a rebel. (O '30)
Viereck, G. S., and Eldridge, P. Salome, the wandering Jewess. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Foreign legion

Armandy, A. Renegade. (D '30)

Frontier and pioneer life

Beames, J. Army without banners. (My '30)
Boyd, J. Long hunt. (Je '30)
Donovan, J. Black soil. (N '30)
Ferber, E. Cimarron. (My '30)
Johnson, G. W. By reason of strength. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Linderman, F. B. Morning light. (D '30)
Roberts, E. M. Great meadow. (Ap '30)
Roiyat, J. Lily of Fort Garry. (O '30)
Snedeker, C. D. Beckoning road. (My '30)

Future, Novels of the

Wright, S. F. World below. (Ag '30)

Gambling

Byrne, D. Party of baccarat. (Ag '30)

Gypsy stories

Powys, P. Blackthorn winter. (N '30)

Historical novels

Komroff, M. Coronet. (Mr '30)

Arabia

Tietjens, E. S. Romance of Antar. (My '30)

Austria

Schopfer, J. Idyll's end. (O '30)

Brazil

Setubal, P. Domitila. (N '30)

Canada

Constantin-Weyer, M. Half-breed. (S '30)

England

Baring, M. Robert Peckham. (O '30)
Dilnot, F. Lady Jean. (Je '30)
Gaye, P. F. Good Sir John. (O '30)
Kellett, E. E. Conflict. (N '30)
Le Gallienne, R. There was a ship. (My '30)
Meyer, C. F. The saint. (Je '30)
Sabatini, R. King's minion. (D '30)
Sterne, E. G. Loud sing cuckoo. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Walpole, H. Rogue Herries. (My '30)
Wright, S. F. Elfwin. (N '30)

France

Aminoff, C. L. C. Storm. (My '30)
Féval, P. Comrades at arms. (O '30)
Lucas, F. L. Cécile. (N '30)
Mabie, M. L. The saints, the devil & the king. (My '30)
Reynolds, M. J. The terror. (N '30)
Stair, G. Lady of France. (Ag '30)

Germany

Guttmann, B. Ambition. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Paterson, I. Road of the gods. (My '30)

Greece

Cheney, D. M. Son of Minos. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Italy

Neumann, A. Guerra. (Ag '30)

Italy (Florence)

Buntin, S. W. Three half moons. (Ag '30)

Italy (Rome)

Jelusich, M. Caesar. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

New England

Bacheller, I. A. Candle in the wilderness. (Ag '30)

Russia

Krasnov, P. N. Kostia the Cossack. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Lukash, I. S. Flames of Moscow. (D '30)
Marienhoff, A. Cynics. (N '30)

Saxony

Preedy, G., pseud. Prince's darling. (Ap '30)

Scotland

Beck, L. Duel of the queens. (N '30)
Broster, D. K. Flight of the heron. (Je '30)

South Carolina

McCants, E. C. Ninety Six. (Ag '30)

Spanish America

Blasco Ibáñez, V. Knight of the Virgin. (Ag '30)

United States

Chambers, R. W. Painted minx. (Ag '30)
Chambers, R. W. The rake and the hussy. (N '30)
Goddard, G. These lords' descendants. (Mr '30)
Gordon, C. W. The runner. (Mr '30)
Kelland, C. B. Hard money. (S '30)
Roberts, K. L. Arundel. (Ap '30)
Washburn, E. C. Caleb Cutter. (My '30)

Horror tales

Knoblock, E. Ant heap. (Je '30)
Lincoln, V. E. Swan Island murders. (D '30)
Savery, C. Tenthragon. (Je '30)

Hospitals

Patterson, N. Jenny. (Je '30)

Hotels

Bennett, A. Imperial palace. (D '30)

Humor and satire

Belloc, H. Missing masterpiece. (Ap '30)
Brinig, M. Anthony in the nude. (Ag '30)
Burton, C. W. Cap'n Bailey and the Widder Dyer. (D '30)
Crawford, P. Elsie Dinsmore on the loose. (Ag '30)
Dane, C., pseud., and Simpson, H. Author unknown. (My '30)
Daniels, J. Clash of angels. (Je '30)
Deval, J. Wooden swords. (S '30)
Du Bois, T. Devil's spoon. (My '30)
Ehrenburg, I. G. Extraordinary adventures of Julio Jurenito. (O '30)
Erskine, J. Uncle Sam in the eyes of his family. (Je '30)
Fleming, B. Visa to France. (S '30)
Frankau, G. Dance, little gentleman! (Mr '30)
Fuller, H. B. Not on the screen. (Ap '30)
Hamilton, D. O. Picaresque. (N '30)
Heinrich, C. Orphan of eternity. (Ag '30)
King-Hall, L. and M. Well-meaning young man. (Ag '30)
McCardell, R. L. My Aunt Angie. (Je '30)

Fiction—Humor and satire—Continued

McKenna, S. Datchley inheritance. (S '30)
Mackenzie, C. April fools. (S '30)
Markham, F. Archibald. (N '30)
Marquis, D. Off the arm. (Ag '30)
Maugham, W. S. Cakes and ale. (N '30)
Neville, M., pseud. Giving the bride away. (Je '30)
Olivier, E. Triumphant footman. (S '30)
Perelman, S. J., and Reynolds, Q. J. Parlor, bedlam and bath. (O '30)
Sharp, M. Rhododendron pie. (S '30)
Shepard, M. So I said to Mr Morgan. (O '30)
Smith, E. B. Mirror of Kong Ho. (N '30)
Strobel, M. Saturday afternoon. (Je '30)
Waugh, E. Vile bodies. (Ap '30)
Wells, H. G. Autocracy of Mr. Parham. (S '30)
Wilkinson, L. U. Love by accident. (Ag '30)

Immigrants in America

Brinig, M. Singermann. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Sterrett, F. R. Sophie. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Indian tales and legends

Bugnet, G. Nipsya. (Je '30)
Cannon, C. J. Pueblo girl. (Mr '30)
Fitzgerald, P. L. Trail of the Ragged Fox. (Ag '30)
Gillmor, F. Windsinger. (N '30)
Hubbard, R. Queer Person. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

International intrigue

Onions, O., pseud. Open secret. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

International marriages

Benson, W. Foreigner in the family. (Mr '30)
Dufour, Y., pseud. Monique. (D '30)

Inter-racial marriages

Lévy, S. Beloved! [O mon goye]. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Jewish life

Asch, S. Mother. (N '30)
Bloch, J. R. "—& Co." (Mr '30)
Cohen, H. and L. Aaron Traum. (S '30)
Glass, M. M. You can't learn 'em nothin'. (Je '30)
Golding, L. Give up your lovers. (Je '30)
Némirovsky, I. David Golder. (N '30)
Reznikoff, C. By the waters of Manhattan. (O '30)
Stern, G. B. Mosaic. (N '30)

Journalism

Brush, K. Young man of Manhattan. (Mr '30)
Claudy, C. H. Girl reporter. (O '30)
Fowler, G. Trumpet in the dust. (Je '30)
Hart, J. S., and Byrnes, G. D. Scoop. (Ap '30)
Mellett, J. C. Ink. (Je '30)

Labor and laboring classes

Hyde, S. W. Blackleg. (S '30)
Vorse, M. M. Strike! (D '30)

Locality, Novels of Afghanistan

Dekobra, M. Sphinx has spoken. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Africa

Driberg, J. H. People of the small arrow. (Ap '30)
Mackenzie, J. K. Trader's wife. (My '30)
Olden, B. On virgin soil. (My '30)
Vandercook, J. W. Fools' parade. (My '30)
Wallace, E. Mr. Commissioner Sanders. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Wallace, E. Sanders of the river. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Alabama

Vines, H. A river goes with heaven. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Wilson, C. M. Acres of sky. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Alaska

Case, R. O. Yukon drive. (Je '30)
Marshall, E. The missionary. (Je '30)
Rouquette, L. F. Great white silence. (S '30)
Williamson, T. R. The earth told me. (O '30)

Algiers

Riddell, F. House of the Dey. (Ap '30)

Argentina

Frank, W., ed. Tales from the Argentine. (N '30)
Martínez Zuviría, G. A. Strength of lovers. (Je '30)

Arizona

Colver, A. M. Red-headed goddess. (Mr '30)
Lebar, J. Lighted lantern. (Ag '30)

Australia

Cottrell, D. Tharlane. (S '30)
Prichard, K. S. Coonardoo. (Ap '30)
Richardson, H. H., pseud. Australia felix. (Ap '30)
Richardson, H. H., pseud. The way home. (Je '30)

Austria

Karlweis, M. Viennese lover. (S '30)

Austria (Vienna)

Schopfer, J. Idyll's end. (O '30)

Brittany

Hinkson, P. Wind from the sea. (D '30)

Burma

Jesse, F. T. Lacquer lady. (Mr '30)

California (Hollywood)

Graham, C. and G. Queer people. (N '30)

Canada

Beames, J. Army without banners. (My '30)
Constantin-Weyer, M. Half-breed. (S '30)
Cullum, R. Treasure of Big Waters. (N '30)
Grove, F. P. Yoke of life. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Haworth, P. L. Caverns of sunset. (Ag '30)
Macbeth, M., and Conway, B. B. Great fright. (O '30)
Oliver, J. R. Rock and sand. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Rolyat, J. Lily of Fort Garry. (O '30)
Seltzer, C. A. Gone north. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Central America

Macaulay, R. Staying with relations. (D '30)
Wiehe, E. M. These generations. (D '30)

Channel Islands

Mannin, E. E. Children of the earth. (Je '30)

China

Buck, P. S. East wind: West wind. (Je '30)
Ford, J. E. Consequences. (Ap '30)
Hyde, R. Winds of Gobi. (Je '30)
Meagher, M. White jade. (O '30)
Miln, L. Rice. (Ag '30)
Pettit, C. Petal-of-the-Rose. (O '30)
Stone, G. Z. Bitter tea of General Yen. (D '30)

China (Hongkong)

Simpson, B. L. Port of fragrance. (N '30)

Cuba

Roberts, C. Havana bound. (N '30)

Egypt

Grundy, C. W. Egyptian portrait. (S '30)
Morrough, E. R. Temple servant. (Ag '30)

England

Brophy, J. Peter Lavelle. (Mr '30)
Galsworthy, J. On Forsyte 'change. (N '30)
Hamilton, M. A. Three against fate. (Mr '30)
Meyer, C. F. The saint. (Je '30)
Robertson, E. A. Three came unarmed. (Ap '30)
Sackville-West, V. M. Edwardians. (O '30)
Stowell, G. History of Button Hill. (Ag '30)

Tomlinson, H. M. All our yesterdays. (Mr '30)
Wells, H. G. Autocracy of Mr. Parham. (S '30)
Young, F. B. The Redlakes. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

England (Liverpool)

Yates, H. Dim star. (S '30)

England (London)

Bennett, A. Imperial palace. (D '30)
Brooks, C. Prosperity street. (O '30)
Dane, C., pseud, and Simpson, H. Author unknown. (My '30)
Dorthy, R. D. Above and below. (Je '30)
Gibbs, P. H. Hidden city. (Mr '30)
Herbert, A. P. Water gipsies. (D '30)
Hermant, A. Last and first love. (D '30)
Mackail, D. G. Young Livingstones. (O '30)
McKenna, S. Redemption of Morley Darville. (My '30)
North, J. Unmarried life. (My '30)
Priestley, J. B. Angel Pavement. (O '30)
Skelton, G. Charioteer. (O '30)
Swinnerton, F. A. Young idea. (Ap '30)
Waugh, E. Vile bodies. (Ap '30)

England (provincial and rural)

Benson, E. F. Inheritor. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Bindloss, H. Rancher Jim. (N '30)
Bower, M. Glory place. (D '30)
Coxon, M. Pilgrim's Ford. (Je '30)
Edwards, D. Winter sonata. (My '30)
Freeman, H. W. Down in the valley. (Ap '30)
Grant, J. C. Back-to-backs. (D '30)
Hyde, S. W. Blackleg. (S '30)
Jordan, H. R. Dr. Serocold. (S '30)
Kaye-Smith, S. Shepherds in sackcloth. (O '30)
Mackenzie, C. April fools. (S '30)
Mayor, F. M. Rector's daughter. (O '30)
Moore, J. C. Dixon's cubs. (D '30)
Mottram, R. H. Rich man's daughter. (D '30)
Owen, J. Many captives. (N '30)
Phillpotts, E. Three maidens. (S '30)
Pocock, G. N. Mrs. Clutterbuck laughs. (My '30)
Powys, L. Apples be ripe. (Ag '30)
Powys, P. Blackthorn winter. (N '30)
Powys, T. F. Kindness in a corner. (My '30)
Rickert, E. Severn woods. (Je '30)
Sharp, M. Rhododendron pie. (S '30)
Strong, L. A. G. Dewer rides. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Young, E. H. Miss Mole. (N '30)

Finland

Wilhelmson, C. Midsummernight. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Flanders

Timmermans, F. Droll Peter. (My '30)

Florida

Granberry, E. Erl King. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

France

Banks, P. Gentleman from America. (N '30)
Bedford-Jones, H. Cyrano. (Je '30)
Béraud, H. Wood of the hanging Templar (Le bois du Templier pendu). (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Chamson, A. Crime of the just. (Je '30)
Dunois, D., pseud. Natural mother. (Mr '30)
Dwyer, J. F. Evelyn. (Ap '30)
Fleming, B. Visa to France. (S '30)
Gerhardi, W. A. Pending heaven. (Ap '30)
Giono, J. Hill of destiny. (Ap '30)
Jan the romantic. (Mr '30)
Jouvenel, G. C. de, and Gauthier-Villars, H. Claudine at school. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Lovelace, M. H. Petticoat court. (N '30)
Lucas, F. L. Cécile. (N '30)
Stair, G. Lady of France. (Ag '30)
Tellier, A. Magnificent sin. (N '30)
Thomson, V. You don't know Charly! (F '31) (1930 Annual)

France (Paris)

Beadle, C. Expatriates at large. (Ag '30)
Chamberlain, G. A. When beggars ride. (Ag '30)
Gibbs, J. C. French leave. (O '30)
Green, A. The Selbys. (Je '30)
Jouvenel, G. C. de. Mitsou. (S '30)
Salmon, A. Black Venus (La négresse de Sacre-Cœur). (Mr '30)
Stern, G. B. Mosaic. (N '30)
Sutherland, J. Secret places. (S '30)

French Guiana

Niles, B. Free. (Ap '30)

Georgia

Williams, B. A. Great oaks. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Germany

Benoît, P. Axelle. (Ag '30)
Cohn, C. Golden hills. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Feuchtwanger, L. Success. (Ja '31 (1930 Annual)
Frank, L. Clamoring self. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Frank, L. Clamoring self. (Ja '31)
Jacob, H. E. Jacqueline and the Japanese. (Je '30)
Keyserling, E. H. N. von. Man of God. (S '30)
Neumann, R. Flood. (Je '30)
Reuter, G. Daughters. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Sudermann, H. Dance of youth. (O '30)
Wassermann, J. Maurizius case. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Germany (Berlin)

Birkenfeld, G. Room in Berlin. (D '30)
Cohn, C. Woman with a thousand children. (Ag '30)
Schaffner, J. Wisdom of love. (Ap '30)

Germany (Leipzig)

Richardson, H. H., pseud. Maurice Guest. (D '30)

Greece

Cheney, D. M. Son of Minos. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Wilder, T. Woman of Andros. (Ap '30)

Hungary

Móra, F. Song of the wheatfields. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Vance, L. J. Woman in the shadow. (O '30)

Iceland

Gunnarsson, G. Seven days' darkness. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Illinois

Updegraff, A. Native soil. (Ap '30)
Wood, F. G. Gospel Four Corners. (D '30)

Illinois (Chicago)

Big business girl. (N '30)
Bodenheim, M. Virtuous girl. (Ag '30)
Carroll, L. Wild onion. (N '30)
Kantor, M. El goes south. (O '30)
Strobel, M. Saturday afternoon. (Je '30)

India

Mundy, T. Black light. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Mundy, T. Cock o' the north. (My '30)
Myers, L. H. Near and the far. (My '30)
Smith, A. W. Bandar-log. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Indiana

Snedeker, C. D. Beckoning road. (My '30)

Iowa

Donovan, J. Black soil. (N '30)
Hueston, E. For Ginger's sake. (D '30)
Suckow, R. Kramer girls. (Je '30)

Ireland

Blacam, H. de. Flying cromlech. (S '30)
Chauviré, R. Sword in the soul. (Je '30)
Coyle, K. Flock of birds. (Ag '30)
Farrell, M. J. Taking chances. (Mr '30)
Figgis, D. Return of the hero. (S '30)

Italy

Deeping, W. Exile. (Ap '30)
Huna, L. Star of the Orsini. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Masten, R. L. Saint Udo. (Je '30)
Moore, O. Repentance at leisure. (D '30)

Fiction—Locality, Novels of—Italy—Continued

Negri, A. Morning star. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Schmitz, E. The hoax. (My '30)

Italy (Florence)

Buntin, S. W. Three half moons (Ag '30)
Graham, D. Candles in the sun. (Ap '30)

Italy (Venice)

Mackay, H. While gondolas pass. (S '30)

Kansas

Hughes, L. Not without laughter. (O '30)
Ogden, G. W. Wasted salt. (S '30)

Kentucky

Millen, E. M. Bethel. (Mr '30)
Rice, C. Y. Early reaping. (Mr '30)
Roberts, E. M. Great meadow. (Ap '30)
Spivak, J. L. Devil's brigade. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Labrador

Ross, M. H. Hymn to the sun. (Ap '30)

Louisiana (New Orleans)

Whitman, W. Contradance. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Maine

Lesher, S. B. Barrel of clams. (O '30)
Roberts, K. L. Arundel. (Ap '30)
Tarkington, B. Mirthful Haven. (N '30)

Malay Peninsula

Conquest, J. The sale. (My '30)

Manchuria

Benson, S. Far-away bride. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Massachusetts

Paul, E. Governor of Massachusetts. (O '30)

Massachusetts (Boston)

Blodgett, R. R. Wind from the sea. (N '30)
Marble, A. From Boston to Boston. (Ag '30)

Massachusetts (Cape Cod)

Burton, C. W. Cap'n Bailey and the Widder Dyer. (D '30)
Lincoln, J. C. Blowing clear. (D '30)
Stanford, A. B. Flag in the wind. (Ag '30)

Minnesota

Rølvaag, O. E. Pure gold. (Ap '30)

Mongolia

Ripley, C. Devil drums. (Je '30)

New England

Bacheller, I. A. Candle in the wilderness. (Ag '30)
Cannon, C. J. Heirs. (Ap '30)
O'Neill, R. C. Goblin woman. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Parmenter, C. Dusty highway. (Mr '30)

New Mexico

Grey, Z. Sheperd of Guadaloupe. (Ag '30)

New York (city)

Asch, N. Pay day. (Ap '30)
Botkin, G. E. Baron's fancy. (D '30)
Brinig, M. Anthony in the nude. (Ag '30)
Brody, C. West of Fifth. (O '30)
Bromfield, L. Twenty-four hours. (N '30)
Brookes, S. Manhattan fever. (S '30)
Brush, K. Young man of Manhattan. (Mr '30)
Chambers, R. W. Painted minx. (Ag '30)
Cohen, H. and L. Aaron Traum. (S '30)
Corley, D. Fifth son of the shoemaker. (D '30)
Davenport, R. W. Through-traffic. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Ferber, N. J. New York. (My '30)
Glasgow, A. Bright tiger. (Ap '30)
Hart, J. S., and Byrnes, G. D. Scoop. (Ap '30)
Henry, H. Jackdaws strut. (S '30)
Heyward, D. H. Three-a-day. (S '30)
Israels, J. Rebecca the wise. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Maynard, L. M. The pig is fat. (My '30)
Parrott, K. U. Strangers may kiss. (O '30)
Pascal, E. Age for love. (Je '30)
Payne, J. Black sheep. (Je '30)
Poole, E. Car of Croesus. (Je '30)
Reznikoff, C. By the waters of Manhattan. (O '30)
Rothermell, F. Fifth avenue. (My '30)
Seaver, E. The company. (Je '30)
Starr, J. Grapevine. (S '30)
Van Vechten, C. Parties. (O '30)
Vanderbilt, C. Park Avenue. (S '30)
Wilde, P. Devil's booth. (My '30)
Williams, J. L. She knew she was right. (Ag '30)
Worthington, M. M. Spider web. (Ap '30)

New York (state)

Brown, E. A. With trailing banners. (Ag '30)
Edmonds, W. D. Big barn. (N '30)
Wharton, E. N. Hudson River bracketed. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

New Zealand

Acheson, F. O. V. Plume of the Arawas. (N '30)
Devanny, J. Bushman Burke. (D '30)

Normandy

Molony, J. C. Savinelli. (D '30)

North Carolina

Johnson, G. W. By reason of strength. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Vorse, M. M. Strike! (D '30)

Norway

Duun, O. Trough of the wave. (Je '30)
Falkberget, J. Lisbeth of Jarnfjeld. (Je '30)
Garborg, A. Peace. (Mr '30)
Hamsun, K. Vagabonds. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Hoel, S. Sinners in summertime. (O '30)

Oklahoma

Ferber, E. Cimarron. (My '30)

Oregon

Jones, N. Oregon detour. (Ap '30)

Panama

Chambers, W. Navy wives. (Ag '30)

Pennsylvania

Atherton, S. H. Blow, whistles, blow! (Je '30)
Martin, H. Yoked with a lamb. (My '30)

Pennsylvania (Philadelphia)

Toogood, G. Huntsman in the sky. (Ap '30)

Poland

Kelly, E. P. Blacksmith of Vilno. (D '30)

Provence

Locke, W. J. Town of Tombarel. (Je '30)

Riviera

Byrne, D. Party of baccarat. (Ag '30)
Kittredge, B. Crowded solitude. (Ag '30)

Rumania

Istrati, P. Thistles of the Baragan. (Je '30)

Russia

Eggebrecht, A. Pilgrim to the abyss. (My '30)
Ehrenburg, I. G. Love of Jeanne Ney. (Mr '30)
Fadĕev, A. A. Nineteen. (My '30)
Gorky, M., pseud. Bystander. (Je '30)
Kallinikov, I. Women and monks. (D '30)
Krasnov, P. N. Kostia the Cossack. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Kuprin, A. I. Yama [the pit]. (Ap '30)
Marienhoff, A. Cynics. (N '30)
Ossorgin, M., pseud. Quiet street. (N '30)
Panferov, F. Brusski. (O '30)
Sheean, V. Gog and Magog. (N '30)

Sahara Desert

Treynor, A. M. Flaming sands. (My '30)

Scotland

Buchan, A. Day of small things. (N '30)
Buchan, J. Castle Gay. (O '30)
McFadyen, F. All smoke. (N '30)
Mackenzie, A. M. Keith of Kinnellan. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Shepherd, N. Weatherhouse. (My '30)
Spencer, C. Gallows' orchard. (My '30)

Siberia

Johnston, M. Relentless. (O '30)

South Africa

Gardiner, G. Pattern of chance. (Ap '30)
Joelson, A. Dancing girl of Gilead. (My '30)
Millin, S. G. Adam's Rest. (N '30)
Stockley, C. Tagati. (Ag '30)

South America

Gordon, C. G. W. Gringo. (N '30)

South Carolina

Griswold, F. Tides of Malvern. (N '30)
McCants, E. C. Ninety Six. (Ag '30)
Shelby, G., and Stoney, S. G. Po' buckra. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Spain

Hersch, V. Woman under glass. (D '30)
Kelly, E. Spanish holiday. (O '30)
Sitwell, O. Man who lost himself. (Ap '30)

Spanish America

Blasco Ibáñez, V. Knight of the Virgin. (Ag '30)

Sweden

Sylvanus, P. Ten to one in Sweden. (Mr '30)

Sweden (Stockholm)

Siwertz, S. Goldman's. (Je '30)
Söderberg, H. E. F. Martin Birck's youth. (Je '30)

Tennessee

Armstrong, A. W. This day and time. (O '30)

Texas

Rogers, L. W. His own people. (S '30)

Tyrol

Roberts, C. Pamela's spring song. (Ap '30)

United States

Erskine, J. Uncle Sam in the eyes of his family. (Je '30)

United States (middlewestern)

Beede, I. Prairie women. (My '30)
Dahlberg, E. Bottom dogs. (My '30)
Hull, H. R. Asking price. (My '30)
Powell, D. Dance night. (D '30)

United States (southern)

Becker, M. L., ed. Golden tales of the old South. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Chidsey, D. B. Pistols in the morning. (My '30)
Fitzgerald, W. F., jr. Gentlemen all. (N '30)
Glenn, I. Short history of Julia. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Millen, G. Sweet man. (S '30)

United States (southwestern)

Fergusson, H. Footloose McGarnigal. (Ap '30)

United States (western)

Bower, B. M., pseud. Fool's goal. (Ap '30)
Brand, M. Destry rides again. (N '30)
Burnett, W. R. Saint Johnson. (N '30)
Coburn, W. Mavericks. (Mr '30)
Dorrance, J. F. Forbidden range. (O '30)
Evarts, H. G. Shaggy legion. (Ag '30)
Gregory, J. Trail to paradise. (N '30)
Haycox, E. Chaffee of Roaring Horse. (S '30)
Kyne, P. B. Outlaws of Eden. (D '30)
Linderman, F. B. Morning light. (D '30)
Lynde, F. Waters of strife. (D '30)
Mulford, C. E. Deputy sheriff. (Ap '30)
O'Connor, J. Conquest. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Raine, W. M. Rutledge trails the ace of spades. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Tuttle, W. C. Red head from Sun Dog. (O '30)

Vermont

King, B. Break of day. (O '30)

Virginia

Flannagan, R. The whipping. (O '30)

Wales

Davies, R. Rings on her fingers. (O '30)
Evans, C. Nothing to pay. (N '30)
Markham, V. Rogues' road. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Vaughan, H. Her father's house. (O '30)

Washington, D.C.

Fairbank, J. Lions' den. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Keyes, F. P. Queen Anne's lace. (O '30)
Parker, M. Secret envoy. (Je '30)

Yucatan

Willard, T. A. Wizard of Zacna. (Ap '30)

Love stories

Bailey, T. Wild wind. (D '30)
Bamberger, H. R. Golden key. (Je '30)
Barnes, C. D. Beau lover. (O '30)
Benson, T. Anita agrees. (Je '30)
Beresford, J. D. Love's illusion. (Ap '30)
Buchan, A. Day of small things. (N '30)
Burton, B. P. Lovejoy. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Cary, L. One lovely moron. (My '30)
Clark, J. Arrows of desire. (Je '30)
Clark, M. M. They loved too young. (Ag '30)
Cleugh, S. Song-bird. (My '30)
Coleman, S. L. Common problem. (Mr '30)
Cornwallis-West, G. F. M. Two wives. (My '30)
Crawshay-Williams, E. Booby trap. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Cuthrell, F. Make-believe. (D '30)
Dawson, C. W. Fugitives from passion. (Ag '30)
Fox, J. D. What mad pursuit. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Hambledon, P. Paved path. (Je '30)
Jacobs, C. P. Joyous betrayal. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Levin, M. Frankie and Johnnie. (Je '30)
Lévy, S. Beloved! [O mon goye]. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
McHugh, V. Touch me not. (O '30)
Maxwell, W. B. To what green altar? (D '30)
Onions, O., pseud. Open secret. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Panter-Downes, M. Storm bird. (My '30)
Parmenter, C. Dusty highway. (Mr '30)
Patrick, D., pseud. Gather the stars! (Ap '30)
Patrick, D., pseud. Outpost of Arden. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Patterson, N. Gay procession. (O '30)
Pertwee, R. Pursuit. (Ja '31)
Richmond, G. L. High fences. (S '30)
Roberts, C. Pamela's spring song. (Ap '30)
Scott, W. M. Little flat in the Temple. (O '30)
Stribling, T. S. Backwater. (My '30)
Weyant, F. L. Tethered bubble. (D '30)
Wharton, J. B. Marsh wife. (Ap '30)
Widdemer, M. All the king's horses. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Widdemer, M. Loyal lover. (O '30)
Wright, H. B. Exit. (O '30)

Marriage

Keith, K. Crystal icicle. (Ap '30)
Lewisohn, L. Stephen Escott. (My '30)
Pascal, E. Age for love. (Je '30)

Mining

Atherton, S. H. Blow, whistles, blow! (Je '30)
Gordon, C. G. W. Gringo. (N '30)
Grant, J. C. Back-to-backs. (D '30)

Ministers of the gospel

Cooper, L. U. Ship of truth. (Je '30)
Hueston, E. People of this town. (Ap '30)

Fiction—Ministers of the gospel—Continued

Kaye-Smith, S. Shepherds in sackcloth. (O '30)
Marshall, E. The missionary. (Je '30)
Rogers, L. W. His own people. (S '30)

Miscegenation

Millin, S. G. Adam's Rest. (N '30)

Monastic life

Russell, G. S. Monastery by the river. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Mothers

Carlisle, H. G. Mothers cry. (Mr '30)

Mountaineers (mountain whites)

Armstrong, A. W. This day and time. (O '30)
Tarleton, F. Some trust in chariots. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Moving pictures

Graham, C. and G. Queer people. (N '30)
Lea, F. H. Happy landings. (S '30)
Ryan, D. Roman holiday. (Ap '30)

Musicians

Richardson, H. H., pseud. Maurice Guest. (D '30)
Westmacott, M, pseud. Giants' bread. (S '30)

Mystery stories

Abbot, A. About the murder of Geraldine Foster. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Adams, E. L. Gambler's throw. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Adams, H. Crime in the Dutch garden. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Adams, H. Golden ape. (Je '30)
Allen, A. Menace to Mrs Kershaw. (My '30)
Allingham, M. Mystery mile. (Je '30)
Anderson, F. I. Book of murder. (O '30)
Applin, A. Actress. (D '30)
Applin, A. Death mask. (Ap '30)
Armstrong, A., pseud. Trail of the Lotto. (Ap '30)
Arnold, J. What happened at Andals? (Ap '30)
Ashbrook, H. Murder of Cecily Thane. (O '30)
Atkey, B. House of strange victims. (O '30)
Aubrey-Fletcher, H. L. Dying alderman. (D '30)
Austin, A. Avenging parrot. (My '30)
Austin, A. Murder backstairs. (Ag '30)
Bailey, H. C. Garston murder case. (D '30)
Bamberger, R. S. and H. R. Murder at Red Pass. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Barker, E. Redman cave murder. (D '30)
Barry, C., pseud. Avenging ikon. (Je '30)
Beeding, F., pseud. Four armourers. (N '30)
Beeding, F., pseud. League of discontent. (My '30)
Best English detective stories of 1929. (Ag '30)
Biggers, E. D. Charlie Chan carries on. (N '30)
Booth, C. G. Murder at high tide. (My '30)
Brandon, J. G. Nighthawks! (My '30)
Bridges, V. Secret of the creek. (D '30)
Brown, Z. Hammersmith murders. (S '30)
Brown, Z. In at the death. (S '30)
Burge, M. R. K. Corpse guards parade. (Ap '30)
Burge, M. R. K. Half-mast murder. (S '30)
Bush, C. Dead man twice. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Bush, C. Death of Cosmo Revere. (O '30)
Campbell, A. O. Murder in Paris. (S '30)
Carr, J. D. It walks by night. (Ap '30)
Casey, R. J. Secret of the bungalow. (O '30)
Channon, E. M. Chimney murder. (Mr '30)
Charteris, L. The bandit. (Mr '30)
Charteris, L. Last hero. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Charteris, L. White rider. (N '30)
Chesterton, G. K. Four faultless felons. (N '30)
Childers, J. S. Bookshop mystery. (My '30)
Christie, A. Murder at the vicarage. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Christie, A. Mysterious Mr Quin. (Ag '30)
Clausen, C. Gloyne murder. (Ag '30)
Clyde, L. W. Opium murders. (D '30)
Cohen, O. R. Backstage mystery. (N '30)
Cole, G. D. H. and M. P. Berkshire mystery. (Je '30)
Collison, W. Murder in the rain. (Ap '30)
Cournos, J. Grandmother Martin is murdered. (My '30)
Cox, A. B. Piccadilly murder. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Cox, A. B. Poisoned chocolates case. (Mr '30)
Cox, A. B. Wychford poisoning case. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Crawley, R. Valley of creeping men. (S '30)
Crofts, F. W. Sir John Magill's last journey. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Crooker, H. Hollywood murder mystery. (Ag '30)
Dalton, M. Body in the road. (Je '30)
Daly, C. J. Tag murders. (S '30)
Dane, C., pseud., and Simpson, H. Author unknown. (My '30)
Diplomat, pseud. Murder in the embassy. (N '30)
Diplomat, pseud. Murder in the State department. (Je '30)
Doyle, A. C. Complete Sherlock Holmes. (N '30)
Duff, B. Ask no questions. (Je '30)
Dutton, C. J. Shadow of evil. (Ag '30)
Eberhart, M. G. Mystery of Hunting's End. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Eberhart, M. G. While the patient slept. (Ap '30)
Eddington, A. C. and C. B. House of the vanishing goblets. (Je '30)
Elvestad, S. Case of Robert Robertson. (S '30)
Fairlie, G. Muster of the vultures. (My '30)
Falkner, L. Murder off Broadway. (Ap '30)
Farjeon, J. J. Appointed date. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Farjeon, J. J. Following footsteps. (Ag '30)
Ferguson, J. A. Murder on the marsh. (Je '30)
Fitzsimmons, C. Bainbridge murder. (Ap '30)
Fitzsimmons, C. Manville murders. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Fletcher, J. S. Borgia cabinet. (Ap '30)
Fletcher, J. S. Heaven-sent witness. (S '30)
Fletcher, J. S. Perris of the Cherry-trees. (My '30)
Fletcher, J. S. Queen of a day. (My '30)
Fletcher, J. S. South Foreland murder. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Fletcher, J. S. Yorkshire moorland murder. (S '30)
Flynn, B. Murders near Mapleton. (Je '30)
Flynn, B. Mystery of the peacock's eye. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Foley, P. Octagon crystal. (Ap '30)
Footner, H. Anybody's pearls. (Je '30)
Footner, H. Mystery of the folded paper. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Foster, R. F. Moat House mystery. (Ap '30)
Freeman, R. A. Mystery of 31, New Inn. (Ap '30)
Gilbert, A. Mystery of the open window. (Mr '30)
Gilbert, A. Night of the fog. (D '30)
Gluck, S. Blind fury. (D '30)
Goodchild, G. Splendid crime. (N '30)
Gordon, N. Silent murders. (Mr '30)
Gregg, C. F. Body in the safe. (My '30)
Gregg, C. F. Murder on the bus. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Gregg, C. F. Three daggers. (Mr '30)
Greig, I. B. Silver king mystery. (N '30)
Gribble, L. R. Case of the Marsden rubies. (Ag '30)
Gropper, M. H., and Sherry, E. Is no one innocent? (O '30)
Hamilton, B. To be hanged. (S '30)
Hammett, D. Maltese falcon. (Ap '30)
Hammock, C. S. Why murder the judge? (Ag '30)
Hannay, J. O. Wild justice. (Je '30)
Harrison, B. A-100. (D '30)
Hawk, J. It was locked. (My '30)
Haynes, A. Who killed Charmian Karslake? (My '30)
Hill, B. Death in the box. (Ap '30)
Hill, B. I like a good murder. (D '30)

Holdaway, N. A. Man who was there. (Ag '30)
Holt, H. Ace of spades. (S '30)
Hope, F. Mystery of the House of commons. (Ag '30)
Horler, S. Lady of the night. (O '30)
Hosken, C. J. W. Man in the red hat. (O '30)
Hosken, C. J. W. Shadow syndicate. (Ag '30)
Hughes, R. Ladies' man. (Ag '30)
Jeffries, G. M. Adventures of Blackshirt. (Mr '30)
Jeffries, G. M. Through the eyes of the judge. (Je '30)
Jepson, S. I met murder. (D '30)
Jones, C. R. Torch murder. (O '30)
Jordan, E. G. Night club mystery. (My '30)
Jorgenson, N. and G. E. Circle of vengeance. (My '30)
Keator, M. C. Eyes through the trees. (Je '30)
Keeler, H. S. Amazing web. (My '30)
Keeler, H. S. Fourth king. (Ag '30)
Keeler, H. S. Green jade hand. (O '30)
King, R. Murder by latitude. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
King, R. Somewhere in this house. (My '30)
Kitchin, C. H. B. Death of my aunt. (My '30)
Laing, J. Villa Jane. (Ap '30)
Landon, H. Three brass elephants. (My '30)
Landon, H. Voice in the closet. (Ag '30)
Leinster, M. Scalps. (O '30)
Le May, A. One of us is a murderer. (S '30)
Le Queux, W. Crinkled crown. (S '30)
Le Queux, W. Rat trap. (My '30)
Leroux, G. Man of a hundred faces. (Ag '30)
Levine, W. Murder from the grave. (D '30)
Levine, W. Murder on the Palisades. (Je '30)
Lincoln, N. S. Marked cancelled. (Je '30)
Lincoln, V. E. Swan Island murders. (D '30)
Linsingen, F. W. B. von. Pressure gauge murder. (Mr '30)
Livingston, A. Trackless death. (S '30)
Livingston, W. Mystery of Burnleigh manor. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Loban, E. H. Signed in yellow. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Luther, M. L., and Ford, L. C. Card 13. (N '30)
Luther, M. L., and Ford, L. C. Saranoff murder. (D '30)
McAllister, A. Murder on the bridge. (O '30)
MacClure, V. "Crying pig" murder. (My '30)
MacDonald, P. The link. (O '30)
MacDonald, P. The noose. (Je '30)
MacDonell, A. G. Seven stabs. (My '30)
McFarlane, L. Streets of shadow. (Je '30)
MacGrath, H. Blue rajah murder. (O '30)
MacGrath, H. Green complex. (Je '30)
McNeile, H. C. Tiny Carteret. (D '30)
Marfield, D. Mystery of the East Wind. (My '30)
Markham, V. Black door. (Je '30)
Martin, S. Trial of Scotland yard. (O '30)
Martyn, W. Murder in Beacon street. (Je '30)
Mason, Van W. Seeds of murder. (D '30)
Masterman, W. S. Yellow mistletoe. (D '30)
Mavity, N. Case of the missing sandals. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Mavity, N. Other bullet. (S '30)
Meynell, L. W. Mystery at Newton Ferry. (O '30)
Mitchell, G. Mystery of a butcher's shop. (Je '30)
Molony, J. C. Savinelli. (D '30)
Muir, A. Silent partner. (Je '30)
Myers, I. B. Murder yet to come. (Ap '30)
Newell, A. Who killed Cavelotti? (Je '30)
North, W. Secret of the flames. (Ap '30)
Ogburn, D. Ra-ta-plan—! (Ap '30)
Oldfield, C. H. I am Jonathan Scrivener. (O '30)
Oppenheim, E. P. Lion and the lamb. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Oppenheim, E. P. Million pound deposit. (My '30)
Oppenheim, E. P. Slane's long shots. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Packard, F. L. Jimmie Dale and the blue envelope murder. (D '30)
Patterson, I. Eppworth case. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Pearson, D. A. G. Golden stone. (Ap '30)
Perry, T. The owner lies dead. (S '30)
Perutz, L. Master of the day of judgment. (Je '30)
Plum, M. Killing of Judge MacFarlane. (Ap '30)
Procter, A. W. Murder in Manhattan. (S '30)
Propper, M. M. Ticker-tape murder. (Je '30)
Queen, E., pseud. French powder mystery. (O '30)
Radcliffe, G. Flower gang. (S '30)
Raymond, C. S. Men on the dead man's chest. (My '30)
Rees, A. J. Pavilion by the lake. (D '30)
Reeve, C. Toasted blonde. (N '30)
Reilly, H. Thirty-first bullfinch. (S '30)
Renard, M. Snake of Luvercy. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Reynolds, G. M. Stranglehold. (S '30)
Rice, L. By whose hand? (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Rinehart, M. The door. (My '30)
Rohmer, S., pseud. Day the world ended. (O '30)
Rowe, A. Turn of a wheel. (Je '30)
Ryerson, F., and Clements, C. C. Seven suspects. (Ag '30)
Sachs, E. L. The octangle. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Saunders, L. Smoke screen. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Sayers, D. L. Strong poison. (D '30)
Scarlett, R., pseud. Back Bay murders. (N '30)
Scarlett, R., pseud. Beacon Hill murders. (My '30)
Selver, P. Pirate life. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Shaw, J. T. Derelict. (D '30)
Shay, F. Charming murder. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Shellabarger, S. Voodoo. (S '30)
Shore, V. Beauty-mask murder. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Small, A. J. Avenging ray. (O '30)
Small, A. J. Mystery maker. (S '30)
Smith, H. M. Inspector Frost in the city. (D '30)
Smith, T. Did she fall? (O '30)
Snaith, J. C. Unforeseen. (O '30)
Snell, E. White owl. (S '30)
Souza, E., pseud. Blue rum. (Je '30)
Spencer, E. Piccadilly ghost. (S '30)
Starrett, V. Blue door. (N '30)
Stewart, A. W. Eye in the museum. (Mr '30)
Stewart, A. W. Two ticket puzzle. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Stokes, F. W. Murder through the window. (O '30)
Stowell, W. A. Marston murder case. (O '30)
Strahan, K. Death traps. (Je '30)
Strange, J. S. Strangler fig. (N '30)
Street, C. J. C. Peril at Cranbury hall. (Je '30)
Stribling, T. S. Clues of the Caribbees. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Thayer, L. They tell no tales. (Ap '30)
Thomas, A. E. W. Daggers drawn. (D '30)
Torgerson, E. D. Murderer returns. (D '30)
Truss, S. Number naught. (N '30)
Tyson, J. A. Rhododendron man. (S '30)
Vahey, J. G. H. Shop window murders. (Ag '30)
Van de Water, F. F. Alibi. (D '30)
Van de Water, F. F. Still waters. (Ap '30)
Van Dine, S. S., pseud. Scarab murder case. (Ag '30)
Vane, D. White Panthers. (My '30)
Virden, K. Crooked Eye. (D '30)
Virden, K. Thing in the night. (D '30)
Wallace, E. The Black. (My '30)
Wallace, E. Fourth plague. (D '30)
Wallace, E. Green ribbon. (S '30)
Wallace, E. Gunman's bluff. (Mr '30)
Wallace, E. Hand of power. (S '30)
Wallace, E. India rubber men. (Ag '30)
Wallace, E. Red aces. (My '30)
Wallace, E. Silver key. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Walling, R. A. J. Man with the squeaky voice. (Ap '30)
Wells, C. Doomed five. (My '30)
Wells, C. Doorstep murders. (Ag '30)
Wells, C. Ghosts' high moon. (N '30)
Wentworth, P. Coldstone. (O '30)
White, G. M., and Deakin, H. L. Square mark. (S '30)
Whitfield, R. Green ice. (O '30)

Fiction—Mystery stories—Continued
Willett, H. Diamonds of death. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Willett, H. Tragedy in Pewsey Chart. (Mr '30)
Williams, V. Knife behind the curtain. (S '30)
Williams, V. Mysterious Miss Morrisot. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Wilson, R. M. Room with the iron shutters. (Ap '30)
Wilson, R. M. Yellow crystal. (S '30)
Wolff, W. A. Manhattan night. (Ag '30)
Wood, C. Tabloid murders. (O '30)
Woodrow, N. M. Moonhill mystery. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Wren, P. C. Mammon. (Je '30)
Wright, S. F. Case of Anne Bickerton. (N '30)

Negro life
Cohen, O. R. Epic Peters, Pullman porter. (My '30)
Hughes, L. Not without laughter (O '30)
Millen, G. Sweet man. (S '30)
Stanley, M. Gulf stream. (O '30)
Vergani, O. Poor nigger. (Ag '30)
Young, E. G. R. Anastasia arrives. (Mr '30)

Novels in pictures
Gropper, W. Alay-oop. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Nückel, O. Destiny. (My '30)
Ward, L. K. God's man. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Ward, L. K. Madman's drum. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Opium trade
Ford, J. E. Consequences. (Ap '30)

Peasant life
Dunois, D., pseud. Natural mother. (Mr '30)
Garborg, A. Peace. (Mr '30)
Giono, J. Hill of destiny. (Ap '30)
Hamsun, K. Vagabonds. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Istrati, P. Thistles of the Baragan. (Je '30)
Móra, F. Song of the wheatfields. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Panferov, F. Brusski. (O '30)
Wilhelmson, C. Midsummernight. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Physicians
Douglas, L. C. Magnificent obsession. (Mr '30)
Jordan, H. R. Dr. Serocold. (S '30)
Lieferant, H. and S. Doctors' wives. (Ag '30)

Pirates
Bennett, C. M. Buccaneer's log. (Ap '30)
Bennett, C. M. With Morgan on the Main. (Je '30)

Politics
Crowell, C. T. Liquor, loot and ladies. (My '30)
Keyes, F. P. Queen Anne's lace. (O '30)
Paul, E. Governor of Massachusetts. (O '30)

Prehistoric times
Bogoraz, V. G. Sons of the mammoth. (Ap '30)
Schütz, H. When mammoths roamed the frozen earth. (Je '30)

Prison life
Niles, B. Free. (Ap '30)

Prize fighting
Burnett, W. R. Iron man. (Mr '30)
McKenna, E. L. The bruiser. (Ap '30)
Vergani, O. Poor nigger. (Ag '30)

Prohibition
Maynard, L. M. The pig is fat. (My '30)

Prostitution
Kuprin, A. I. Yama [the pit]. (Ap '30)

Pseudo-science
Taine, J. Iron star. (My '30)

Psychic phenomena
Dwyer, J. F. Evelyn. (Ap '30)
Eyles, M. L. Strength of the spirit. (Ag '30)

Psychological novels
Beach, J. W. Glass mountain. (D '30)
Beede, I. Prairie women. (My '30)
Benoît, P. Axelle. (Ag '30)
Birabeau, A. Revelation. (O '30)
Callaghan, M. It's never over. (My '30)
Calverton, V. F. Three strange lovers. (My '30)
Carlisle, H. G. Together again. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Coleman, E. H. Shutter of snow. (O '30)
Dorthy, R. D. Above and below. (Je '30)
Endore, S. G. Man from Limbo. (D '30)
Faulkner, W. As I lay dying. (D '30)
Forrest, C. E. Defendant soul. (Je '30)
Frank, L. Brother and sister. (D '30)
Glenn, I. Short history of Julia. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Green, J. Christine. (My '30)
Gunnarsson, G. Seven days' darkness. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Hall, R. Saturday life. (D '30)
Hamilton, M. A. Three against fate. (Mr '30)
Harris, M. Seventh gate. (My '30)
Hudson, S., pseud. True story. (My '30)
Iliff, R. M. In the red. (O '30)
Jacob, H. E. Jacqueline and the Japanese. (Je '30)
Jenkins, E. Virginia water. (Je '30)
Latimer, M. This is my body. (Ap '30)
Lehmann, R. Note in music. (O '30)
Longer day. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Mahon, T., ed. Cold feet. (Ag '30)
Mann, T. Early sorrow. (Ap '30)
Martin, H. Tender talons. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Moore, O. Repentance at leisure. (D '30)
Morris, W. F. "G. B." (Mr '30)
O'Flaherty, L. Return of the brute. (Ap '30)
Oldfield, C. H. I am Jonathan Scrivener. (O '30)
Owen, J. Many captives. (N '30)
Ritchie, A. Occupied territory. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Roth, J. Flight without end. (Ag '30)
Royde-Smith, N. G. The Island. (N '30)
Sitwell, O. Man who lost himself. (Ap '30)
Sommerfield, J. Death of Christopher. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Steegmüller, F. Musicale. (N '30)
Stein, A. M. Spirals. (My '30)
Stewart, D. Sanatorium. (O '30)
Stribling, T. S. Clues of the Caribbees. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Thomas, E. W. Ella. (Ap '30)
Thurston, E. T. Millennium. (My '30)
Williams, B. A. Touchstone. (My '30)

Publishers and publishing
Marple, A. C. Best seller. (D '30)

Race problems
Grundy, C. W. Egyptian portrait. (S '30)

Railroads
Washburn, E. "The 17." (Ap '30)

Reform schools
Bein, A. Youth in hell. (Je '30)

Religion
Cooper, L. U. Ship of truth. (Je '30)
Millen, E. M. Bethel. (Mr '30)

Religious psychology
Douglas, L. C. Magnificent obsession. (Mr '30)
Garborg, A. Peace. (Mr '30)
Hersch, V. Woman under glass. (D '30)

Roman Catholic faith
Baring, M. Robert Peckham. (O '30)
De La Pasture, E. E. M. Turn back the leaves. (Ap '30)
Dudley, O. F. Masterful monk. (Ap '30)
Glaser, D. Brother Anselmo. (Mr '30)
Masten, R. L. Saint Udo. (Je '30)
Sutton, B. R. Catherine de Gardeville. (S '30)

Romance
Bedford-Jones, H. Cyrano. (Je '30)
Beith, J. H., and King-Hall, S. Middle watch. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Bell, T. Breed of Basil. (Ag '30)
Blacam, H. de. Flying cromlech. (S '30)
Blasco Ibáñez, V. Knight of the Virgin. (Ag '30)
Cauffman, S. H. Adventures of Polydore. (Je '30)
Chambers, R. W. The rake and the hussy. (N '30)
Chidsey, D. B. Pistols in the morning. (My '30)
Colver, A. M. Red-headed goddess. (Mr '30)
Curwood, J. O. Green timber. (Je '30)
Deeping, W. Exile. (Ap '30)
Dell, E. M. Altar of honour. (Ap '30)
Dilnot, F. Lady Jean. (Je '30)
Ehrenburg, I. G. Love of Jeanne Ney. (Mr '30)
Farnol, J. Over the hills. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Féval, P. Comrades at arms. (O '30)
Frank, L. Carl and Anna. (Mr '30)
Fulcher, P. M. Guests of summer. (Je '30)
Gordon, C. W. The runner. (Mr '30)
Haggard, H. R. Belshazzar. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Henry, H. Jackdaws strut. (S '30)
Heyer, G. Beauvallet. (My '30)
Irwin, M. E. F. None so pretty. (My '30)
Jan the romantic. (Mr '30)
Kauffman, R. W. Pirate Jean. (Je '30)
Le Gallienne, R. There was a ship. (My '30)
Markham, V. Rogues' road. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Mercer, C. W. Blood royal. (Mr '30)
Paterson, I. Road of the gods. (My '30)
Savage, J. City of desire. (Ag '30)
Shea, T. E. Durawald. (D '30)
Shiel, M. P. Purple cloud. (Je '30)
Spearman, F. H. Spanish lover. (D '30)
Steuart, J. A. Immortal lover. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Tietjens, E. S. Romance of Antar. (My '30)

School and college life

Cohn, C. Woman with a thousand children. (Ag '30)
Jouvenel, G. C. de, and Gauthier-Villars, H. Claudine at school. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
White, B. I lived this story. (O '30)

Sea stories

Connolly, J. B. Gloucestermen. (My '30)
Dingle, A. E. Seaworthy. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Ellsberg, E. Thirty fathoms deep. (O '30)
Forester, C. S. Single-handed. (Mr '30)
Klitgaard, K. Seven months and seven days. (Je '30)
Lanham, E. M. Sailors don't care. (N '30)
McFee, W. Sailors of fortune. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Martyr, W. Not without dust and heat. (Je '30)
Raabe, H. E. Krakatoa. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Stanford, A. B. Flag in the wind. (Ag '30)
Tomlinson, H. M., ed. Great sea stories of all nations. (S '30)
Townend, W. Once to Tiger Bay. (My '30)

Sex problems

Lewisohn, L. Stephen Escott. (My '30)
Thurston, E. T. Millennium. (My '30)

Short stories

Anderson, F. I. Book of murder. (O '30)
Armstrong, M. D. Fiery dive. (My '30)
Bates, H. E. Seven tales and Alexander. (N '30)
Beck, L. Openers of the gate. (O '30)
Becker, M. L., ed. Golden tales of the old South. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Benét, L. Goods and chattels. (Je '30)
Blumenfeld, J. Shrimps for tea. (O '30)
Bowen, S. Wishbone. (Ap '30)
Boyle, K. Wedding day. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Capek, K. Money. (Je '30)
Chesterton, G. K. Four faultless felons. (N '30)
Child, R. W. Pitcher of romance. (S '30)
Cohen, O. R. Epic Peters, Pullman porter. (My '30)
Connell, R. E. Ironies. (O '30)
Connolly, J. B. Gloucestermen. (My '30)
Davis, E. H. Morals for moderns. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Deeping, W. Stories of love, courage and compassion. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
De la Pasture, E. E. M. Women are like that. (D '30)
Doyle, A. C. Complete Sherlock Holmes. (N '30)
Driberg, J. H. People of the small arrow. (Ap '30)
Erskine, J. Cinderella's daughter. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Fletcher, J. S. Behind the monocle. (O '30)
Fletcher, J. S. Heaven-sent witness. (S '30)
Frank, W., ed. Tales from the Argentine. (N '30)
Gale, Z. Bridal pond. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Gibbs, P. H. Wings of adventure. (N '30)
Glass, M. M. You can't learn 'em nothin'. (Je '30)
Green, J. Christine. (My '30)
Grove, J., ed. Omnibus of adventure. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Held, J., jr. Grim youth. (Je '30)
Huxley, A. L. Brief candles. (Ag '30)
Hyde, R. Winds of Gobi. (Je '30)
Kapustin, H. Crowd your luck on death. (My '30)
Kelly, E. Spanish holiday. (O '30)
Kent, J. Episode in Luxor. (Ag '30)
Lemaître, J. On the margins of old books. (Ap '30)
McFee, W. Sailors of fortune. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Martin, H. Yoked with a lamb. (My '30)
Martyr, W. Not without dust and heat. (Je '30)
Merrick, L. Little dog laughed. (O '30)
Morrough, E. R. Temple servant. (Ag '30)
Munro, H. H. Short stories of Saki. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Neumann, A. King Haber. (Je '30)
O. Henry memorial award. Prize stories of 1929. (Ap '30)
O. Henry memorial award. Prize stories of 1930. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
O'Brien, E. J. H., ed. Best British short stories of 1930. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
O'Brien, E. J. H., ed. Best short stories of 1930. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Oppenheim, E. P. What happened to Forester. (Ag '30)
Parker, D. Laments for the living. (S '30)
Porter, K. A. Flowering Judas. (N '30)
Redman, B. R. Down in flames. (Ap '30)
Rhys, E., and Scott, C. A., eds. Mainly horses. (Mr '30)
Rhys, E., and Scott, C. A., eds. Tales from far and near. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Rothermell, F. Fifth avenue. (My '30)
Russell, J. Cops 'n robbers. (O '30)
Sandburg, C. Potato Face. (Je '30)
Sinclair, M. Tales told by Simpson. (O '30)
Starrett, V. Blue door. (N '30)
Sudermann, H. Excursion to Tilsit. (My '30)
Tomlinson, H. M., ed. Great sea stories of all nations. (S '30)
Train, A. C. Adventures of Ephraim Tutt. (N '30)
Tupper, T. Storm at the crossroads. (Ag '30)
Vandercook, J. W. Fools' parade. (My '30)
Wallace, E. Red aces. (My '30)
Warren, D., comp. Modern galaxy. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Wharton, E. N. Certain people. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Whitaker, M. Frost in April. (My '30)
Williams, V. Knife behind the curtain. (S '30)
Wodehouse, P. G. Mr Mulliner speaking. (My '30)
Wodehouse, P. G. Very good, Jeeves. (S '30)
Wylie, I. A. R. Some other beauty. (S '30)
Young, S. Street of the islands. (D '30)

Slavery

Mackenzie, J. K. Trader's wife. (My '30)

Social conditions and problems

Cannan, J. Orphan of Mars. (Je '30)
Cannon, C. J. Heirs. (Ap '30)

Fiction—Social conditions and problems—Cont.
Dahlberg, E. Botton dogs. (My '30)
Ferber, N. J. Spawn. (D '30)
Frank, L. Clamoring self. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Robertson, E. A. Three came unarmed. (Ap '30)
Sinclair, U. B. Mountain City. (O '30)

Society novels

Banning, M. Prelude to love. (Je '30)
Chamberlain, G. A. When beggars ride. (Ag '30)
Collins, B. Silver swan. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Emerson, D. Regency windows. (Ag '30)
Fleming, B. Visa to France. (S '30)
Gilkyson, T. W. Lights of fame. (Je '30)
Hermant, A. Last and first love. (D '30)
Hichens, R. S. The bracelet. (D '30)
Jenkins, E. Virginia water. (Je '30)
Kahler, W. Smart setback. (D '30)
Kittredge, B. Crowded solitude. (Ag '30)
Oke, R. Frolic wind. (Mr '30)
Roche, A. S. Age of youth. (Ag '30)
Sackville-West, V. M. Edwardians. (O '30)
Smith, W. H. Forgive us our happiness. (Je '30)
Vanderbilt, C. Park avenue (S '30)
Waugh, E. Vile bodies. (Ap '30)
Wilde, P. Devil's booth. (My '30)

Supernatural phenomena

Beck, L. Openers of the gate. (O '30)

Tennis

Tilden, W. T. Glory's net. (S '30)
Tunis, J. R. American girl. (O '30)

Theater and stage life

Ammers-Küller, J. van. Jenny Heysten's career. (O '30)
Applin, A. Actress. (D '30)
Brown, B. Wedding ring. (N '30)
Cleugh, D. Wanderer's End. (My '30)
Cram, M. Madder music. (Ap '30)
Cross, R. Enchantment. (My '30)
Gauntier, G. Cabbages and harlequins. (Mr '30)
Heyward, D. H. Three-a-day. (S '30)
Hobson, C. Joy is my name. (Ap '30)
Spitzer, M. Hungry young lady. (My '30)

Translated stories

Bohemian

Capek, K. Money. (Je '30)
Hasek, J. Good soldier: Schweik. (Ap '30)

Danish

Gunnarsson, G. Seven days' darkness. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Dutch

Ammers-Küller, J. van. Jenny Heysten's career. (O '30)
Ammers-Küller, Jo van. Tantalus. (Mr '30)
Couperus, L. M. A. Arrogance. (My '30)

Flemish

Timmermans, F. Droll Peter. (My '30)

French

Béraud, H. Wood of the hanging Templar (Le bois du Templier pendu). (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Birabeau, A. Revelation. (O '30)
Bloch, J. R. "—& Co." (Mr '30)
Chamson, A. Crime of the just. (Je '30)
Chauviré, R. Sword in the soul. (Je '30)
Cocteau, J. Enfants terribles. (Ag '30)
Dunois, D., pseud. Natural mother. (Mr '30)
Dupont, M. Sealed lips. (S '30)
Féval, P. Comrades at arms. (O '30)
Frondaie, P., pseud. Love at forty. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Galzy, J. Burnt offering. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Gide, A. P. G. Immoralist. (Je '30)
Gide, A. P. G. School for wives. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Giono, J. Hill of destiny. (Ap '30)
Gobineau, J. A. Lucky prisoner. (S '30)
Istrati, P. Thistles of the Baragan. (Je '30)
Jouvenel, G. C. de. Mitsou. (S '30) (1930 Annual)
La Fouchardière, G. de. Poor sap. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Lemaître, J On the margins of old books. (Ap '30)
Mauriac, F. The family (Les Péloueyres). (N '30)
Proust, M. Sweet cheat gone. (My '30)
Ratel, S. Love's not enough. (D '30)
Renard, M. Snake of Luvercy. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Salmon, A. Black Venus (La négresse de Sacre-Cœur]. (Mr '30)
Tabouréau, J. Bourru, soldier of France. (Ap '30)
T'Serstevens, A. Sentimental vagabond. (D '30)

German

Birkenfeld, G. Room in Berlin. (D '30)
Cohn, C. Golden hills. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Cohn, C. Woman with a thousand children. (Ag '30)
Eggebrecht, A. Pilgrim to the abyss. (My '30)
Feuchtwanger, L. Success. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Forbes-Mosse, I. Don Juan's daughters. (My '30)
Frank, L. Brother and sister. (D '30)
Frank, L. Carl and Anna. (Mr '30)
Frank, L. Clamoring self. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Frenssen, G. The anvil. (Ag '30)
Frey, A. M. Cross bearers. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Guttmann, B. Ambition. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Hauser, H. Bitter waters. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Huna, L. Bulls of Rome. (Je '30)
Jabotinsky, V. Judge and fool. (Ap '30)
Jacob, H. E. Jacqueline and the Japanese. (Je '30)
Johannsen, E. Four infantrymen. (Je '30)
Keyserling, E. H. N. von. Man of God. (S '30)
Mann, H. Royal woman. (Ag '30)
Mann, K. Alexander. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Mann, T. Early sorrow. (Ap '30)
Meyer, C. F. The saint. (Je '30)
Michel, R. Christ of the forest. (O '30)
Neumann, A. Guerra. (Ag '30)
Neumann, A. King Haber. (Je '30)
Neumann, R. Flood. (Je '30)
Perutz, L. Master of the day of judgment. (Je '30)
Reuter, G. Daughters. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Roth, J. Flight without end. (Ag '30)
Rothmund, T. Amber bead. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Salten, F. Fifteen rabbits. (N 30)
Sanzara, R. Lost child. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Schaffner, J. Wisdom of love. (Ap '30)
Seghers, A. Revolt of the fishermen. (My '30)
Sudermann, H. Dance of youth. (O '30)
Sudermann, H. Excursion to Tilsit. (My '30)
Sudermann, H. Wife of Steffen Tromholt, (Ap '30)
Wassermann, J. Maurizius case. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Wendler, O. B. Soldiers' women. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Zweig, A. Claudia. (D '30)

Hungarian

Móra, F. Song of the wheatfields. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Italian

Cinelli, D. The trap. (O '30)
Hauser, E. Man without a necktie. (Ap '30)
Negri, A. Morning star. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Schmitz, E. Confessions of Zeno. (O '30)
Schmitz, E. The hoax. (My '30)
Vergani, O. Poor nigger. (Ag '30)

Norwegian

Duun, O. Trough of the wave. (Je '30)
Falkberget, J. Lisbeth of Jarnfjeld. (Je '30)
Frøisland, F. Man with the X-ray eyes. (Ag '30)
Garborg, A. Peace. (Mr '30)

Hamsun, K. Vagabonds. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Hoel, S. Sinners in summertime. (O '30)
Robertson, E. A. Three came unarmed. (Ap '30)
Undset, S. Son avenger. (O '30)
Portuguese
Setubal, P. Domitila. (N '30)
Rumanian
Rebreanu, L. Forest of the hanged. (D '30)
Russian
Ehrenburg, I. G. Extraordinary adventures of Julio Jurenito. (O '30)
Ehrenburg, I. G. Love of Jeanne Ney. (Mr '30)
Fadéev, A. A. Nineteen. (My '30)
Goncharov, I. A. Oblomov. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Gorky, M., pseud. Bystander. (Je '30)
Ilf, I., and Petrov, E. Diamonds to sit on. (O '30)
Kallinikov, I. Women and monks. (D '30)
Krasnov, P. N. Kostia the Cossack. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Kuprin, A. I. Yama [the pit]. (Ap '30)
Lukash, I. S. Flames of Moscow. (D '30)
Marienhoff, A. Cynics. (N '30)
Merezhkovskii, D. S. Michael Angelo. (My '30)
Odoevtzeva, I. Out of childhood. (N '30)
Ossorgin, M., pseud. Quiet street. (N '30)
Panferov, F. Brusski. (O '30)
Spanish
Frank, W., ed. Tales from the Argentine. (N '30)
Martínez Zuviría, G. A. Strength of lovers. (Je '30)
Oteyza, L. de. White devil. (N '30)
Swedish
Elvestad, S. Case of Robert Robertson. (S '30)
Siwertz, S. Goldman's. (Je '30)
Söderberg, H. E. F. Martin Birck's youth. (Je '30)
Wall Street
Train, A. C. Paper profits. (Je '30)
War
Komroff, M. Coronet. (Mr '30)
Wells, H. G. Autocracy of Mr. Parham. (S '30)
Western stories
See Fiction—Locality, Novels of—United States (western)
Women
De la Pasture, E. E. M. Women are like that. (D '30)
Dreiser, T. Gallery of women. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Scott, E. Forgotten image. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Young people
Big business girl. (N '30)
Blodgett, R. R. Wind from the sea. (N '30)
Brophy, J. Peter Lavelle. (Mr '30)
Brush, K. Young man of Manhattan. (Mr '30)
Carman, D. They thought they could buy it. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Deitrick, J. Parade ground. (N '30)
Edwards, D. Winter sonata. (My '30)
Gibbs, P. H. Hidden city. (Mr '30)
Held, J., jr. Grim youth. (Je '30)
Hoel, S. Sinners in summertime. (O '30)
Israels, J. Rebecca the wise. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Kahler, H. M. Father means well. (N '30)
Lambert, D. Shard. (Je '30)
Lindsay, N. Every mother's son. (D '30)
Mackail, D. G. Young Livingstones. (O '30)
North, J. Unmarried life. (My '30)
Payne, J. Black sheep. (Je '30)
Peel, D. Five on parade. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Swinnerton, F. A. Young idea. (Ap '30)
Taylor, G. No goodness in the worm. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Van Vechten, C. Parties. (O '30)
Waugh, A. "Sir!" she said. (N '30)
Waugh, E. Vile bodies. (Ap '30)

Field, David Dudley
Hicks, F. C., ed. High finance in the sixties. (My '30)
Field book of ponds and streams. Morgan, A. H. (O '30)
Fields and methods of knowledge. Piper, R. F., and Ward, P. W. (S '30)
Fiery dive. Armstrong, M. D. (My '30)
Fiery way. Schauwecker, F. (Ap '30)
Fifteen rabbits. Salten, F. (N '30)
Fifth avenue. Rothermell, F. (My '30)
Fifth son of the shoemaker. Corley, D. (D '30)
Fifty famous letters of history. Gentry, C. G., ed. (Ag '30)
Fifty poems. Dunsany, E. J. M. D. P. (My '30)
Fight for programme. Eng title of: Selections; v 2, The Bolshevik party in action, 1904-1914. Lenin, N. (N '30)
Fighting person. Irvine, A. F. (Je '30)
Figures of the revolution. Madelin, L. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Filene cooperative association
La Dame, M. Filene store. (S '30)
Filene store. La Dame, M. (S '30)
Filene's, William, sons company
La Dame, M. Filene store. (S '30)
Filibuster. Acland, B. D. (O '30)
Filibusters
Besson, M., ed. Scourge of the Indies. (Je '30)
Sternbeck, A. Filibusters and buccaneers. (Je '30)
Filibusters and buccaneers. Sternbeck, A. (Je '30)
Finance
Feis, H. Europe: the world's banker, 1870-1914. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Dictionaries
Crowell's dictionary of business and finance. (O '30)
China
Coons, A. G. Foreign public debt of China. (N '30)
France
Haig, R. M., and others. Public finances of post-war France. (S '30)
Ogburn, W. F., and Jaffé, W. Economic development of post-war France. (O '30)
Porto Rico
Clark, V. S. Porto Rico and its problems. (O '30)
Turkey
Blaisdell, D. C. European financial control in the Ottoman empire. (Mr '30)
United States
Corey, L. House of Morgan. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Fine angling for coarse fish. Parker, E., and others. (S '30)
Fine art of living. Goldberg, I. (Ag '30)
Fine art of reading. Rogers, R. E. (Mr '30)
Finger, Charles Joseph
Finger, C. J. Seven horizons. (Je '30)
Fingerfins. Bronson, W. S. (S '30)
Firdausi
Coit, D. Ivory throne of Persia. (Mr '30)
Pavry, B. Heroines of ancient Persia. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Fire (mythology)
Frazer, J. G. Myths of the origin of fire. (Ag '30)
Fire for the night. Deutsch, B. (Je '30)
Fire of youth. Pedler, M. (S '30)
Firecrest (yacht)
Gerbault, A. In quest of the sun. (Je '30)
Firedamp. Troubetzkoy, A. (Ap '30)
Firehead. Ridge, L. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Fireside poems. Hutchinson, V. S., ed. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
First and last. Whitechurch, V. L. (S '30)
First Mrs Fraser. Ervine, St J. G. (Mr '30)
First Moroccan crisis, 1904-1906. Anderson, E. N. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
First picture book. Martin, M. S. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
First poems. Henderson, P. (O '30)
First year of life. Bühler, C. (N '30)

Fisheries
Scotland
Anson, P. F. Fishing boats and fisher folk on the east coast of Scotland. (S '30)
Fishes
Daglish, E. F. Animals in black and white, v 5 & 6. (S '30)
Juvenile literature
Bronson, W. S. Fingerfins. (S '30)
Fishing
Bryden, H. A. Enchantments of the field. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Grey, R. C. Adventures of a deep-sea angler. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Parker, E., and others. Fine angling for coarse fish. (S '30)
Reynolds, W. F. R. Fly and minnow. (N '30)
New England
Bolton, C. K. Real founders of New England. (D '30)
Fishing boats and fisher folk on the east coast of Scotland. Anson, P. F. (S '30)
Fitz-Greene Halleck. Adkins, N. F. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Fitzmaurice, James
Ronan, M. V. Reformation in Ireland under Elizabeth, 1558-1580. (S '30)
Five children. Bland, E. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Five-day week in manufacturing industries. National industrial conference board. (Ap '30)
Five generations. Armstrong, M. N. (Je '30)
500 criminal careers. Glueck, S. S. and E. (Mr '30)
Five masters. Krutch, J. W. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Five on parade. Peel, D. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Five sisters. Kazarine, V. (My '30)
Five types of ethical theory. Broad, C. D. (Je '30)
Flaccus, pseud. See Levy, N.
Flag in the wind. Stanford, A. B. (Ag '30)
Flames of Moscow. Lukash, I. S. (D '30)
Flaming sands. Treynor, A. M. (My '30)
Flemish movement
Clough, S. B. History of the Flemish movement in Belgium. (N '30)
Flight
Barry, M. E., and Hanna, P. R., eds. Wonder flights of long ago. (Ag '30)
Flight of the heron. Broster, D. K. (Je '30)
Flight without end. Roth, J. (Ag '30)
Flights from chaos. Shapley, H. (F '31) (1930 Annual) Floating Island. Parrish, A. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Floating university
Greenbie, S. Educators beyond their depth. (Ja '31)
Flock of birds. Coyle, K. (Ag '30)
Flood. Neumann, R. (Je 30)
Flood. Peake, H. J. E. (Je '30)
Floral decoration
Lamplugh, A. Flower and vase. (Je '30)
Tipton, E. Flowers for every occasion. (Ag '30)
Floriculture
Lamplugh, A. Flower and vase. (Je '30)
Mellen, I. M. Roof gardening. (Je '30)
Flour
Snyder, H. Bread. (Ag '30)
Flour mills
Houssa, A. J. H. Physics and chemistry applied to flour milling. (D '30)
Snyder, H. Bread. (Ag '30)
Flower and vase. Lamplugh, A. (Je '30)
Flower gang. Radcliffe, G. (S '30)
Flowering Judas. Porter, K. A. (N '30)
Flowers
Pool, R. J. Flowers and flowering plants. (S '30)
Quackenbush, A. T. A. Perennials of flowerland. (Mr '30)
Flowers and flowering plants. Pool, R. J. (S '30)
Flowers for every occasion. Tipton, E. (Ag '30)
Flowers of our lost romance. Lummis, C. F. (My '30)
Fly and minnow. Reynolds, W. F. R. (N '30)
Flying cromlech. Blacam, H. de (S '30)
Flying gypsies. Sibour, V. (Je '30)
Flying with Chaucer. Hall, J. N. (S '30)
Foch, Ferdinand
Aston, G. G. Biography of the late Marshal Foch. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Clemenceau, G. E. B. Grandeur and misery of victory. (Je '30)
Folk songs
Maine
Barry, P., and others, eds. British ballads from Maine. (Ap '30)
Virginia
Davis, A. K., jr., ed. Traditional ballads of Virginia. (Ag '30)
Folk tales of a savage. LoBagola, B. K. A. I. (D '30)
Folk tales of all nations. Lee, F. H., ed. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Folklore
Krappe, A. H. Science of folk-lore. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Lee, F. H., ed. Folk tales of all nations. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Africa
LoBagola, B. K. A. I. Folk tales of a savage. (D '30)
Ashanti
Rattray, R. S., comp. and tr. Akan-Ashanti folk tales. (D '30)
Germany
Olcott, F. J. Wonder tales from Goblin hills. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Hawaii
Metzger, B. Tales told in Hawaii. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Jamaica
Beckwith, M. W. Black roadways. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Negroes
Stoney, S. G., and Shelby, G. Black Genesis. (Je '30)
Poland
Gawalewicz, M. Queen of heaven. (My '30)
Polynesia
Metzger, B. Tales told in Hawaii. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
South Carolina
Stoney, S. G., and Shelby, G. Black Genesis. (Je '30
United States
Field, R. L., comp. American folk and fairy tales. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Shay, F. Here's audacity! (D '30)
Folklore, Maori
Howes, E. Long bright land. (Mr '30)
Follow the sun. Ketchum, A. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Following footsteps. Farjeon, J. J. (Ag '30)
Food
Axtell, L. E. Grow thin on good food. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Kebler, L. F. Eat and keep fit. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Food supply
United States
Hedden, W. P. How great cities are fed. (My '30)
Fool of the family. Kennedy, M. (D '30)
Foolishness of preaching. Tittle, E. F. (Ag '30)
Fool's goal. Bower, B. M., pseud. (Ap '30)
Fools' parade. Vandercook, J. W. (My '30)
Footlights across America. Macgowan, K. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
For Ginger's sake. Hueston, E. (D '30)
For Joan of Arc. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

For the defence; the life of Sir Edward Marshall Hall. Marjoribanks, E. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Forbidden doors. Eng title of: Tenthragon. Savery, C. (Je '30)
Forbidden range. Dorrance, J. F. (O '30)
Forbidden zone. Borden, M. (My '30)

Ford hall, Boston
  Lurie, R. L. Challenge of the forum. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Foreign exchange
  Withers, H. Meaning of money. (S '30)
Foreign intervention in the Rio de la Plata, 1838-50. Cady, J. F. (Ag '30)
Foreign public debt of China. Coons, A. G. (N '30)
Foreign securities. Madden, J. T., and Nadler, M. (F '31) (1390 Annual)
Foreigner in the family. Benson, W. (Mr '30)
Forest life and adventures in the Malay archipelago. Mjöberg, E. G. (N '30)
Forest of the hanged. Rebreanu, L. (D '30)

Forests and forestry
  Pack, C. L., and Gill, T. Forests and mankind. (My '30)
Forests and mankind. Pack, C. L., and Gill, T. (My '30)

Forgery
  Carvalho, C., and Sparkes, B. Crime in ink. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Forgery in Christianity. Wheless, J. (N '30)

Forgery of works of art
  Friedländer, M. J. Genuine and counterfeit. (O '30)
Forgive us our happiness. Smith, W. H. (Je '30)
Forgotten clue. Ashton-Wolfe, H. (Ag '30)
Forgotten image. Scott, E. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Form and re-form. Frankl, P. T. (Je '30)

Forms (law)
  Fisher, E. M. Advanced principles of real estate practice. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Llewellyn, K. N. Cases and materials on the law of sales. (O '30)

Forrest, Edwin
  Moses, M. J. Fabulous Forrest. (Ap '30)

Forrest, Nathan Bedford
  Sheppard, E. W. Bedford Forrest. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Fortunes of Richard Mahony. Eng title of Australia felix. Richardson, H. H., pseud. (Ap '30)
42nd parallel. Dos Passos, J. (Ap '30)
Forty years of opera in Chicago. Moore, E. C. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Forty years with dogs. Richardson, E. H. (D '30)

Fouché, Joseph, duc d'Otrante
  Zweig, S. Joseph Fouché. (O '30)
The foundation. Keppel, F. P. (S '30)
Foundations of Jewish ethics. Bernfeld, S., comp. (Mr '30)
Foundations of mental health. Bianchi, L. (My '30)
Four armourers. Beeding, F., pseud. (N '30)
Four contemporary novelists. Cross, W. L. (D '30)
Four faultless felons. Chesterton, G. K. (N '30)
Four infantrymen. Johannsen, E. (Ag '30)
Four studies in Wordsworth. Mead, M. (D '30)
Foursquare. Oliver, J. R. (Ap '30)
Fourteen years of European investments, 1914-1928. Stern, S. (O '30)
14th Street. Shostac, P. (S '30)
Fourth king. Keeler, H. S. (Ag '30)
Fourth plague. Wallace, E. (D '30)

Fox, George
  Jones, R. M. George Fox. (Ag '30)

Fox-hunting
  Bell, I. Foxiana. (Ag '30)
  Frederick, C. E. St J., and others. Fox-hunting. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Foxiana. Bell, I. (Ag '30)

Fraenkel, Knut Hjalmar Ferdinand
  Swedish society for anthropology and geography. Andrée's story. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Fragments of a political diary. Baernreither, J. M. (S '30)
Frail warrior [Robert Louis Stevenson]. Carré, J. M. (Je '30)

France

Army

Artillery

  Brooks, A. As I saw it. (O '30)

Foreign legion

  King, D. W. Ten thousand shall fall. (Ap '30)

Biography

  Bradford, G. Daughters of Eve. (Ap '30)
  Latour, T. L. Princesses, ladies and républicaines of the Terror. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Madelin, L. Figures of the revolution. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Civilization

  Funck-Brentano, F. Old regime in France. (Mr '30)

Court and courtiers

  Campbell, D. de B. Intriguing duchess. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Description and travel

  Arms, D. N. Churches of France. (Ap '30)
  Greene, A. Lighthearted journey. (S '30)
  Harrigan, M. H. Traveling light. (Je '30)
  Henderson, H. W. Cathedrals of France. (Ap '30)
  Newman, E. M. Seeing France. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Economic conditions

  Ogburn, W. F., and Jaffé, W. Economic development of post-war France. (O '30)

Foreign relations

Argentina

  Cady, J. F. Foreign intervention in the Rio de la Plata, 1838-50. (Ag '30)

Russia

  Michon, G. Franco-Russian alliance, 1891-1917. (Ap '30)

History

  Guignebert, C. A. H. Short history of the French people. (My '30)

Henry IV, 1589-1610

  Sedgwick, H. D. Henry of Navarre. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Revolution

  Latour, T. L. Princesses, ladies and républicaines of the Terror. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Madelin, L. Figures of the revolution. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Revolution—Fiction

  Reynolds, M. J. The terror. (N '30)

History, Military

  Weygand, M. Turenne. (S '30)

History, Naval

  Minnigerode, M. Some mariners of France. (S '30)
  Norman, C. B. Corsairs of France. (Mr '30)

Industries

  Ogburn, W. F., and Jaffé, W. Economic development of post-war France. (O '30)

Nationality

  Hayes, C. J. H. France. (Ap '30)
  Siegfried, A. France. (Ap '30)

Navy

  Minnigerode, M. Some mariners of France. (S '30)

Politics and government

  Funck-Brentano, F. Old regime in France. (Mr '30)
  Siegfried, A. France. (Ap '30)

France—Continued
Social life and customs
Carr, P. French at home. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Crump, L. Nursery life 300 years ago. (S '30)
Funck-Brentano, F. Old regime in France. (Mr '30)
France. Hayes, C. J. H. (Ap '30)
France. Siegfried, A. (Ap '30)
Frances Newman's letters. Newman, F. (Ap '30)
Francesco Colonna. Nodier, C. (S '30)
Francis Dana. Cresson, W. P. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Francis Joseph I, emperor of Austria
Ketterl, E. Emperor Francis Joseph I. (D '30)
Tschuppik, K. Francis Joseph I. (Ag '30)
Francis of Assisi, Saint
Drama
Housman, L. Little plays of St. Francis. (S '30)
Francis Rabelais. Nock, A. J., and Wilson, C. R. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual) Franco-Russian alliance, 1890-1894. Langer, W. L. (My '30)
Franco-Russian alliance, 1891-1917. Michon, G. (Ap '30)
François Rabelais. Putnam, S. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Frankie and Johnnie. Levin, M. (Je '30)
Frankie and Johnny. Huston, J. (D '30)
Frankincense. Fletcher, G. (N '30)
Franklin, Benjamin
Fiction
Banks, P. Gentleman from America. (N '30)
Fraudet, René. See Frondaie, P., pseud.
Frawg. Weaver, A. V. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Frederick II, Holy Roman emperor
Wiegler, P. Infidel emperor [Frederick II]. (O '30)
Frederick II, the Great, king of Prussia
Mann, T. Three essays. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Free. Niles, B. (Ap '30)
Free thought
Robertson, J. M. History of freethought in the nineteenth century. (S '30)
Freighters of fortune. Beasley, N. (O '30)
French at home. Carr, P. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
French cookery book. Lucas, E. (My '30)
French cooking for everywoman. Marcellvs.-. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
French fiction
History and criticism
Mille, P. French novel. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
French in North America
Schlarman, J. H. From Quebec to New Orleans. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
French in Sudan
Giffen, M. B. Fashoda. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
French leave. Gibbs, J. C. (O '30)
French literature
Normandy
Watson, P. B. Tales of Normandie. (O '30)
French novel. Mille, P. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
French powder mystery. Queen, E., pseud. (O '30)
Frescoes. Rivera, D. (Ap '30)
Fresh-water fauna
Howell, A. B. Aquatic mammals. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Morgan, A. H. Field book of ponds and streams. (O '30)
Fresh-water flora
Morgan, A. H. Field book of ponds and streams. (O '30)
Friend of Shelley [Edward John Trelawny]. Massingham, H. J. (D '30)
Frolic wind. Oke, R. (Mr '30)
From a new garden. King, L. (S '30)
From Boston to Boston. Marble, A. (Ag '30)
From Chartism to labourism. Rothstein, T. (Ag '30)
From marriage to love. Loebel, J. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
From Orpheus to Paul. Macchioro, V. D. (S '30)
From Quebec to New Orleans. Schlarman, J. H. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
From the physical to the social sciences. Rueff, J. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
From Toulouse-Lautrec to Rodin. Symons, A. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
From trackway to turnpike. Sheldon, G. (My '30)
Frome, David, pseud. See Brown, Z.
Frontier and pioneer life
Banning, W. and G. H. Six horses. (Je '30)
Bechdolt, F. R. Giants of the old West. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Branch, E. D. Westward. (N '30)
Canton, F. M. Frontier trails. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Coates, R. M. Outlaw years. (O '30)
Cole, H. E. Stage coach and tavern tales of the Old Northwest. (O '30)
Gabriel, R. H. Lure of the frontier. (Je '30)
Harris, F. My reminiscences as a cowboy. (My '30)
Henry, S. O. Conquering our great American plains. (Je '30)
Hoyt, H. F. Frontier doctor. (Ap '30)
Laut, A. C. Overland trail. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Lummis, C. F. Flowers of our lost romance. (My '30)
Lyman, G. D. John Marsh, pioneer. (D '30)
Mary Monica, Sister. Cross in the wilderness. (O '30)
Sage, L. Last rustler. (Ag '30)
Sutley, Z. T. Last frontier. (Je '30)
White, O. P. Frontier mother. (Mr '30)
California
Bell, H. On the old west coast. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Buck, F. A. Yankee trader in the gold rush. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Canada
Cooper, C. R. Go north, young man! (Mr '30)
Traill, C. P. Backwoods of Canada. (My '30)
Texas
Dobie, J. F. Vaquero of the brush country. (Ap '30)
Wisconsin
Stewart, L. Pioneer of old Superior [Charles Dean Kimball]. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Frontier doctor. Hoyt, H. F. (Ap '30)
Frontier mother. White, O. P. (Mr '30)
Frontier trails. Canton, F. M. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Frost in April. Whitaker, M. (My '30)
Froude, James Anthony
Dunn, W. H. Froude & Carlyle. (My '30)
Froude & Carlyle. Dunn, W. H. (My '30)
Fruit culture
Abjornson, E. Ornamental dwarf fruit trees. (Je '30)
Fugitives from passion. Dawson, C. W. (Ag '30)
Fulani
Wilson-Haffenden, J. R. Red men of Nigeria. (D '30)
Full fathom five. Shaw, F. H. (D '30)
Fullness of sacrifice. Hicks, F. C. N. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Function of reason. Whitehead, A. N. (Ag '30)
Fundamental problems of Marxism. Plekhanov, G. V. (N '30)
Fundamentals of electrical engineering. Franklin, W. S., and Dawes, L. M. (D '30)
Fundamentals of ethics. Urban, W. M. (F '31) (1930 Annual) Fur trade
Canada
Innis, H. A. Fur trade in Canada. (N '30)
Fur trade in Canada. Innis, H. A. (N '30)
Furniture
History
Bles, A. de. Genuine antique furniture. (Mr '30)
Repairing
Taylor, H. H. Knowing, collecting and restoring early American furniture. (S '30)

Furniture, American
Ormsbee, T. H. Early American furniture makers. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Taylor, H. H. Knowing, collecting and restoring early American furniture. (S '30)
Furniture, English
Blake, J. P., and Reveirs-Hopkins, A. E. Old English furniture for the small collector. (Ag '30)
Furniture, French
Kahle, K. M. Modern French decoration. (S '30)
Future life
Charles, R. H. Resurrection of man. (Ag '30)
Future of drinking. Seldes, G. (S '30)
Future of interscholastic athletics. Rogers, F. R. (S '30)
Future of the German empire. Seeckt, H. von (S '30)

G. A. Studdert Kennedy. Mozley, J. K., ed. (N '30)
"G. B." Morris, W. F. (Mr '30)
Gaelic literature
History
Blacam, A. S. de. Gaelic literature surveyed. (Mr '30)
Gaelic literature surveyed. Blacam, A. de. (Mr '30)
Gallery of women. Dreiser, T. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Gallipoli memories. Mackenzie, C. (My '30)
Gallow's orchard. Spencer, C. (My '30)
Galsworthy, John
Cross, W. L. Four contemporary novelists. (D '30)
Gambler's throw. Adams, E. L. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Gambling
Gardiner, A. Canfield. (Ap '30)
Games
Heaton, K. L. Character building through recreation. (D '30)
Horrigan, O. K. Creative activities in physical education. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Lasker, E. Encyclopedia of games, v 1. (Ag '30)
Potter, E., comp. This way and that. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Gandhi, Mohandas Karamchand
Andrews, C. F. India and the Simon report. (D '30)
Andrews, C. F. Mahatma Gandhi's ideas. (Ap '30)
Gandhi, M. K. Mahatma Gandhi: his own story. (N '30)
Gardening
Waugh, F. A. Everybody's garden. (Je '30)
Gardens
King, L. From a new garden. (S '30)
Waugh, F. A. Everybody's garden. (Je '30)
Gardens, Miniature
Beard, P. Adventures in dish gardening. (N '30)
Garibaldi, Giuseppe
Dumas, A. On board the Emma. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Garland, Hamlin
Garland, H. Roadside meetings. (N '30)
Garram the hunter. Best, H. (My '30)
Garrick, David
Garrick, D. Pineapples of finest flavour; or, A selection of sundry unpublished letters of . . . David Garrick. (S '30)
Garston murder case. Bailey, H. C. (D '30)
Garstons. Eng title of: Garston murder case. Bailey, H. C. (D '30)
Gas analysis. Dennis, L. M., and Nichols, M. L. (My '30)
Gaseous combustion at high pressures. Bone, W. A., and others. (My '30)
Gases
Analysis
Dennis, L. M., and Nichols, M. L. Gas analysis. (My '30)
Gaskell, Mrs Elizabeth Cleghorn (Stevenson)
Sanders, G. De W. Elizabeth Gaskell. (Je '30)
Gaston country, North Carolina
Rhyne, J. J. Some southern cotton mill workers and their villages. (Je '30)
Gastronomy
Macdougall, A. R., ed. Gourmets' almanac. (Ap '30)
Simon, A. L. Art of good living. (N '30)
Gates of the compass. Hillyer, R. S. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Gather the stars! Patrick, D., pseud. (Ap '30)
Gay go up. Fyleman, R. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Gay procession. Patterson, N. (O '30)
General introduction to ethics. Wright, W. K. (S '30)
General sales or turnover taxation. National industrial conference board. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Generals die in bed. Harrison, C. Y. (S '30)
Generalship of Ulysses S. Grant. Fuller, J. F. C. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual) Generation missing. Carstairs, C. (S '30)
Generations of Adam. Wolbarst, A. L. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Genghis Khan
Vladimirtsov, B. IA. Life of Chingis-Khan. (D '30)
Genius
Tucker, B. R. Gift of genius. (S '30)
Genius in love and death. Wiegler, P. (Ap '30)
Gentleman from America. Banks, P. (N '30)
Gentleman in the parlour. Maugham, W. S. (Je '30)
Gentleman rebel [Anthony Wayne]. Preston, J. H. (My '30)
Gentlemen all. Fitzgerald, W. F., jr. (N '30)
Genuine and counterfeit. Friedländer, M. J. (O '30)
Genuine antique furniture. Bles, A. de. (Mr '30)
Geography, Economic
Rugg, H. O. Changing civilizations in the modern world. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Stamp, L. D. Asia. (S '30)
Geography, Historical
Rugg, H. O. Changing civilizations in the modern world. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Geology
Merriam, J. C. Living past. (My '30)
Juvenile literature
Reed, W. M. Earth for Sam. (Ap '30)
Great Britain
Wills, L. J. Physiographical evolution of Britain. (D '30)
Scotland
Peach, B. N., and Horne, J. Chapters on the geology of Scotland. (O '30)
United States
Ver Wiebe, W. A. Oil fields in the United States. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Geophysics
Eve, A. S., and Keys, D. A. Applied geophysics in the search for minerals. (My '30)
George IV, king of Great Britain
Bowman, W. D. Divorce case of Queen Caroline. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
George V, king of Great Britain
Arthur, G. C. A. George V. (My '30)
Dent, R. C. Life story of King George V. (Ap '30)
George Eastman. Ackerman, C. W. (Je '30)
George Eliot. May, J. L. (O '30)
George Fox. Jones, R. M. (Ag '30)
George Washington. v 3. Hughes, R. (Ap '30)
George Washington's country. Andrews, M. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Georges Clemenceau. Martet, J. (Ap '30)
Gerard Manley Hopkins. Lahey, G. F. (N '30)
German diplomatic documents, 1871-1914; v 2-3. Germany. Auswärtiges amt. (N, D '30)
Germans in Austria
Langsam, W. C. Napoleonic wars and German nationalism in Austria. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Germans in Pennsylvania
Weygandt, C. Red hills. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Germany
Army
Artillery
Miller, H. W. Paris gun. (Ap '30)
Colonies
Townsend, M. E. Rise and fall of Germany's colonial empire, 1884-1918. (My '30)
Description and travel
Bullett, G. W. Germany. (Ag '30)
Jais, R. Legendary Germany, Oberammergau and Bayreuth. (D '30)
Laughlin, C. E. So you're going to Germany and Austria! (Je '30)
Marlowe, C. Harz mountains. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Maxwell, G. Old-world Germany of to-day. (Mr '30)
Phillips, H. A. Meet the Germans. (Mr '30)
Schoonmaker, F. Come with me through Germany. (O '30)
Untermeyer, L. Blue Rhine, Black Forest. (Je '30)
Economic conditions
Angell, J. W. Recovery of Germany. (Mr '30)
Luehr, E. New German republic. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Foreign relations
Hoetzsch, O. Germany's domestic and foreign policies. (Je '30)
Koch, E. F. L. Germany in the post-war world. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Great Britain
Germany. Auswärtiges amt. German diplomatic documents, 1871-1914; v 2-3. (N, D '30)
Russia
Saburov, P. A. Saburov memoirs. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
History
Haller, J. Epochs of German history. (N '30)
Nowak, K. F. Kaiser and Chancellor. (Ja '31 (1930 Annual)
20th century
Kessler, H. K. V. Walther Rathenau, his life and work. (Mr '30)
Luehr, E. New German republic. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Revolution
Luehr, E. New German republic. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Politics and government
Hoetzsch, O. Germany's domestic and foreign policies. (Je '30)
Olden, R. Stresemann. (Ag '30)
Scheidemann, P. Making of new Germany. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Seeckt, H. von. Future of the German empire. (S '30)
Social life and customs
Phillips, H. A. Meet the Germans. (Mr '30)
Germany. Bullett, G. W. (Ag '30)
Germany in the post-war world. Koch, E. F. L. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Germany's domestic and foreign policies. Hoetzsch. O. (Je '30)
Germany's women go forward. Puckett, H. W. (S '30)
Gestalt (psychology)
Kohler, W. Gestalt psycholcgy. (F '31) (1929 Annual)
Gettysburg, Battle of, 1863
Barton, W. E. Lincoln at Gettysburg. (My '30)
Gettysburg, Manila, Acoma. Masters, E. L. (O '30)
Ghosts' high noon. Wells, C. (N '30)
Giant of the western world. Miller, F. P., and Hill, H. D. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Giants' bread. Westmacott, M., pseud. (S '30)
Giants in the earth. Job, T. (My '30)
Giants of the forest. Chadwick, W. S. (Ap '30)
Giants of the old West. Bechdolt, F. R. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Gibbon, Edward
Gibbon, E. Gibbon's journal to January 28th, 1763. (My '30)
Gibbon's journal to January 28th, 1763. Gibbon, E. (My '30)
Gift of genius. Tucker, B. R. (S '30)
Girl reporter. Claudy, C. H. (O '30)
Girls
Blanchard, P. M., and Manasses, C. New girls for old. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Eliott, G. L. Understanding the adolescent girl. (Ag '30)
Hatcher, O. L., and others. Rural girls in the city for work. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Reeves, M. Training schools for delinquent girls. (N '30)
Biography
Peters, I. Girls of long ago. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Sweetser, K. D. Famous girls of the White House. (S '30)
Girls of long ago. Peters, I. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Give up your lovers. Golding, L. (Je '30)
Giving the bride away. Neville, M., pseud. (Je '30)
Gladiator. Wylie, P. (My '30)
Gladstone, Mary. See Drew, M.
Glass mountain. Beach, J. W. (D '30)
Gleason, Arthur Huntington
Gleason, A. H. Book of Arthur Gleason. (Ap '30)
Gliders (aeronautics)
Teale, E. W. Book of gliders. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Glimpses of the great. Viereck, G. S. (O '30)
Glory of the Nightingales. Robinson, E. A. (N '30)
Glory place. Bower, M. (D '30)
Glory's net. Tilden, W. T. (S '30)
Gloucestermen. Connolly, J. B. (My '30)
Gloyne murder. Clausen, C. (Ag '30)
The go-between. Benson, T., pseud. (My '30)
Go north, young man! Cooper, C. R. (Mr '30)
Go west—go wise! Harrison, M. (S '30)
Goblin woman. O'Neill, R. C. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
God
England, F. E. Kant's conception of God. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Green, P. Our heavenly Father. (N '30)
Horton, W. M. Theism and the modern mood. (Je '30)
Jones, W. T. Reality of the idea of God. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Mackintosh, H. R. Christian apprehension of God. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Ransom, J. C. God without thunder. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Roberts, R. Christian God. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Trattner, E. R. Autobiography of God. (Ag '30)
God in freedom. Luzzatti, L. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
God without thunder. Ransom, J. C. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Godfather. Bartley, N. I. (Mr '30)
Godlike Daniel. Adams, S. H. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Gods
Mencken, H. L. Treatise on the gods. (Je '30)
God's frozen children. McCracken, H. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
God's man. Ward, L. K. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Goethals, George Washington
Bishop, J. B. and F. Goethals, genius of the Panama canal. (N '30)
Goethals, genius of the Panama canal. Bishop, J. B. and F. (N '30)
Goethe, Johann Wolfgang von
Mann, T. Three essays. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Stawell, F. M., and Dickinson, G. L. Goethe & Faust. (Ap '30)

Goethe & Faust. Stawell, F. M., and Dickinson, G. L. (Ap '30)
Gog and Magog. Sheean, V. (N '30)
Gold
Withers, H. Money. (O '30)
Gold mines and mining
Dutch Guiana
Pedrick, H. A. Jungle gold. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Gold rush days with Mark Twain. Gillis, W. R. (Ag '30)
Golden ape. Adams, H. (Je '30)
Golden asse. Chase, M. E. (Ap '30)
Golden dawn. Kyne, P. B. (Ag '30)
Golden-feather. Capuana, L. (O '30)
Golden goat. Hill, H., and Maxwell, V. (Mr '30)
Golden hills. Cohn, C. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Golden key. Bamberger, H. R. (Je '30)
Golden roof. Fuller, M. W. (D '30)
Golden stone. Pearson, D. A. G. (Ap '30)
Golden tales of the old South. Becker, M. L., ed. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Goldman's. Siwertz, S. (Je '30)
Golf
Martin, H. B. What's wrong with your game? (S '30)
Gondolas pass. Eng title of: While gondolas pass. Mackay, H. G. (S '30)
Gone north. Seltzer, C. A. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Good-bye to all that. Graves, R. (Mr '30)
Good-bye to Western culture. Douglas, N. (O '30)
Good estate of the Catholic church. Halifax, C. L. W. (D '30)
Good gun dogs. Hardy, H. F. H. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Good Sir John. Gaye, P. F. (O '30)
Good soldier; Schweik. Hasek, J. (Ap '30)
Good times for all times. Lamkin, N. B. (S '30)
Goodly fellowship of the prophets. Mackay, W. M. (O '30)
Goods and chattels. Benét, L. (Je '30)
Gordon, Charles George
Gordon, J. My six years with the Black watch, 1881-1887. (Mr '30)
Gospel and its tributaries. Scott, E. F. (Je '30)
Gospel for Main street. Brown, C. R. (N '30)
Gospel Four Corners. Wood, F. G. (D '30)
Gothic North. Sitwell, S. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Gough, John Bartholomew
Morrow, H. W. Tiger! Tiger! [John B. Gough]. (Ap '30)
Gourmets' almanac. Macdougall, A. R., ed. (Ap '30)
Government and railroad transportation. Ellingwood, A. R., and Coombs, W. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Government ownership
Mosher, W. E., and others, eds. Electrical utilities. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Governmental purchasing. Forbes, R. (Mr '30)
Governor of Massachusetts. Paul, E. (O '30)
Grace (theology)
Williams, N. P. Grace of God. (N '30)
Grace Harwar (ship)
Villiers, A. J. By way of Cape Horn. (O '30)
Grace of God. Williams, N. P. (N '30)
Grading and marking (students)
St John, C. W. Educational achievement in relation to intelligence. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Graeme, Bruce, pseud. See Jeffries, G. M.
Graham, R. B. C. See Cunninghame Graham, R. B.
Grain trade
Great Britain
Hurst, A. H. Bread of Britain. (Je '30)
Gramont, Philibert, comte de
Hamilton, A. Memoirs of the Comte de Gramont. (S '30)
Grand Canyon
Smith, D. M. I married a ranger. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Grandeur and misery of victory. Clemenceau, G. E. B. (Je '30)
Grandmother Brown's hundred years, 1827-1927. Brown, H. C. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual) Grandmother Martin is murdered. Cournos, J. (My '30)
Grant, Ulysses Simpson
Fuller, J. F. C. Generalship of Ulysses S. Grant. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Fiction
Corbett, E. F. "If it takes all summer." (Je '30)
Grapevine. Starr, J. (S '30)
Graphology
Brooks, C. H. Your character from your handwriting. (N '30)
Grasses
Bews, J. W. World's grasses. (Ap '30)
Gratz, Rebecca
Gratz, R. Letters. (Mr '30)
Graves, Robert
Graves, R. Good-bye to all that. (Mr '30)
Great apes. Yerkes, R. M. and A. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Great astronomers. Williams, H. S. (Ag '30)
Great awakening in Virginia, 1740-1790. Gewehr, W. M. (My '30)
Great betrayal. Wise, S. S., and De Haas, J. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Great Britain. Constitution
Amos, M. S. English constitution. (O '30)
Great Britain. Simon commission
Andrews, C. F. India and the Simon report. (D '30)
Great Britain
Antiquities, Roman
Collingwood, R. G. Archaeology of Roman Britain. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Army
Gordon, J. My six years with the Black watch, 1881-1887. (Mr '30)
Biography
Feiling, K. G. Sketches in nineteenth century biography. (N '30)
Colonies
Clark, D. M. British opinion and the American revolution. (O '30)
Dewey, A. G. Dominions and diplomacy. (Ap '30)
Hewins, W. A. S. Apologia of an imperialist. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Hoyland, J. S. Case for India. (N '30)
Keith, A. B. Sovereignty of the British dominions. (N '30)
Osburn, A. Must England lose India? (O '30)
Schuyler, R. L. Parliament and the British Empire. (F '31) (1929 Annual)
Sunderland, J. T. India in bondage. (Je '30)
Williamson, J. A. Short history of British expansion. (S '30)
North America
Chatterton, E. K. Seed of liberty. (Je '30)
Commerce
Morse, H. B. Chronicles of the East India company, v 5. (S '30)
Williamson, J. A. Short history of British expansion, v. 1. (S '30)
Commercial policy
Denny, L. America conquers Britain. (Ap '30)
Constitutional history
Muir, R. How Britain is governed. (Ag '30)
Schuyler, R. L. Parliament and the British Empire. (F '31) (1929 Annual)
Court and courtiers
Cust, L. H. King Edward VII and his court. (O '30)
Diplomatic and consular service
Nicolson, H. G. Portrait of a diplomatist [Sir Arthur Nicolson]. (N '30)

Great Britain—Continued

Economic conditions

Dearle, N. B. Economic chronicle of the Great war for Great Britain and Ireland, 1914-1919. (Mr '30)
Denny, L. America conquers Britain. (Ap '30)
Roosevelt, N. America and England? (Ap '30)

Foreign relations

D'Abernon, E. V. Diary of an ambassador; v 2, Rappallo to Dawes, 1922-1924. (Je '30)
Dewey, A. G. Dominions and diplomacy. (Ap '30)
Headlam-Morley, J. W. Studies in diplomatic history. (D '30)
Nicolson, H. G. Portrait of a diplomatist [Sir Arthur Nicolson]. (N '30)

Argentina

Cady, J. F. Foreign intervention in the Rio de la Plata, 1838-50. (Ag '30)

Germany

Germany. Auswärtiges amt. German diplomatic documents, 1871-1914; v 2-3. (N, D '30)

Palestine

Wise, S. S., and De Haas, J. Great betrayal. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Spanish America

Rippy, J. F. Rivalry of the United States and Great Britain over Latin America (1808-1830). (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

United States

Rippy, J. F. Rivalry of the United States and Great Britain over Latin America (1808-1830). (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Genealogy

Round, J. H. Family origins. (N '30)

History

Cambridge history of the British empire; v 1. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Cambridge history of the British empire; v 4, 6. (S, D '30)

Tudors, 1485-1603

Jameson, S. Decline of merry England. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Elizabeth, 1558-1603

Hollis, C. Monstrous regiment. (S '30)

Stuarts, 1603-1714

Jameson, S. Decline of merry England. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

1689-1714

Marlborough, S. C. Memoirs. (S '30)
Trevelyan, G. M. England under Queen Anne; v 1, Blenheim. (N '30)

1760-1789

Namier, L. B. England in the age of the American revolution. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Victoria, 1837-1901

Wingfield-Stratford, E. C. Those earnest Victorians. (N '30)

19th Century

Fremantle, A. F. England in the nineteenth century, 1801-1805. (Mr '30)
Greville, C. C. F. Leaves from the Greville diary. (Je '30)

Moral conditions

Markun, L. Mrs Grundy. (Ag '30)

Parliament

Hewart of Bury, G. H. New despotism. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Schuyler, R. L. Parliament and the British Empire. (F '31) (1929 Annual)

Politics and government

Edwards, J. H. David Lloyd George. (Ap '30)
Fremantle, A. F. England in the nineteenth century, 1801-1805. (Mr '30)
Hewart of Bury, G. H. New despotism. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Hewins, W. A. S. Apologia of an imperialist. Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Muir, R. How Britain is governed. (Ag '30)
Namier, L. B. England in the age of the American revolution. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Ogg, F. A. English government and politics. (Ap '30)
Ponsonby, F. E. G. Side lights on Queen Victoria. (D '30)
Postgate, R. W. That devil Wilkes. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Taylor, G. R. S. English political portraits of the nineteenth century. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Turner, E. R. Cabinet council of England in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. 1622-1784. (N '30)

Princes and princesses

Thornton-Cook, E. Royal Marys. (Ap '30)

Relations (general) with United States

Denny, L. America conquers Britain. (Ap '30)
Roosevelt, N. America and England? (Ap '30)

Religion

Hollis, C. Monstrous regiment. (S '30)

Social conditions

Hammond, J. L. Le B. and B. Age of the chartists, 1832-1854. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Warner, W. J. Wesleyan movement in the industrial revolution. (Ag '30)

Great Britain and the slave trade, 1839-1865. Mathieson, W. L. (Mr '30)
Great crusade. Wise, J. C. (S '30)
Great crusade and after, 1914-1928. Slosson, P. W. (N '30)
Great dipper to Southern cross. Dodd, E. H., jr. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Great experiments in psychology. Garrett, H. E. (O '30)
Great fright. Macbeth, M., and Conway, B. B. (O '30)
Great Jasper. Oursler, F. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Great Lakes

Commerce

Beasley, N. Freighters of fortune. (O '30)

History

Beasley, N. Freighters of fortune. (O '30)

Great meadow. Roberts, E. M. (Ap '30)
Great moments of adventure. David, E. J., ed. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Great navigators & discoverers. Brendon, J. A. (Ap '30)
Great oaks. Williams, B. A. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Great ones of ancient Egypt. (Ag '30)
Great rich man [Sir Walter Scott]. Boas, L. S. (Mr '30)
Great sea stories of all nations. Tomlinson, H. M., ed. (S '30)
Great white silence. Rouquette, L. F. (S '30)

Greece

Church history

Kephala, E. Church of the Greek people. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Description and travel

Dixon, W. M. Hellas revisited. (Mr '30)
Meier-Graefe, J. Pyramid and temple. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

History

Cochrane, C. N. Thucydides and the science of history. (N '30)
Myres, J. L. Who were the Greeks? (S '30)

Religion

Willoughby, H. R. Pagan regeneration. (My '30)

Social life and customs

Butler, A. J. Sport in classic times. (N '30)
Gardiner, E. N. Athletics of the ancient world. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Quennell, M. and C. H. B. Everyday life in Homeric Greece. (N '30)

Greece, Modern
Description and travel
Anderson, I. W. Yacht in Mediterraean seas. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Economic conditions
Mears, E. G. Greece today. (Ap '30)
Social conditions
Mears, E. G. Greece today. (Ap '30)
Greece today. Mears, E. G. (Ap '30)
Greek and Roman bronzes. Lamb, W. (S '30)
Greek church
Kephala, E. Church of the Greek people. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Greek fathers. Campbell, J. M. (Ag '30)
Greek language
History
Myres, J. L. Who were the Greeks? (S '30)
Greek literature
History and criticism
Fairclough, H. R. Love of nature among the Greeks and Romans. (My '30)
Hamilton, E. Greek way. (Ag 30)
Greek tradition in sculpture. Agard, W. R. (N '30)
Greek way. Hamilton, E. (Ag '30)
Greeks
Myres, J. L. Who were the Greeks? (S '30)
Green, Mrs Hetty Howland (Robinson)
Sparkes, B., and Moore, S. T. Hetty Green. (Je '30)
Green complex. MacGrath, H. (Je '30)
Green ice. Whitfield, R. (O '30)
Green Island. Biddle, G. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Green isle. Miller, A. (N '30)
Green jade hand. Keeler, H. S. (O '30)
Green leaf. Macdougal, D. T. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Green magic. Kenly, J. C. (S '30)
Green pastures. Connelly, M. C. (My '30)
Green ribbon. Wallace, E. (S '30)
Green timber. Curwood, J. O. (Je '30)
Greenland
Description and travel
Hobbs, W. H. Exploring about the North pole of the winds. (Je '30)
Kent, R. N by E. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Greville, Charles Cavendish Fulke
Greville, C. C. F. Leaves from the Greville diary. (Je '30)
Grey dawn—red night. Hodson, J. L. (Mr '30)
Greyhounds of the sea. Cutler, C. C. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Grim youth. Held, J., jr. (Je '30)
Gringo. Gordon, C. G. W. (N '30)
Grow thin on good food. Axtell, L. E. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Grow up to fly. George, L., and Gilman, J. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Growing boy. Furfey, P. H. (Je '30)
Growing up in New Guinea. Mead, M. (N '30)
Growing with the West. Stahl, J. M. (Ag '30)
Growth
Blunt, K., and Cowan, R. Ultraviolet light and vitamin D in nutrition. (N '30)
Franzen, R. H. Physical measures of growth and nutrition. (O '30)
Furfey, P. H. Growing boy. (Je '30)
Inskeep, A. L. Child adjustment in relation to growth and development. (S '30)
Measurement of man. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Growth (plants)
Bose, J. C. Growth and tropic movements of plants. (My '30)
Growth and decadence of constitutional government. Smith, J. A. (My '30)
Growth and tropic movements of plants. Bose, J. C. (My '30)
Growth of international thought. Stawell, F. M. (Ag '30)
Growth of the American republic. Morison, S. E., and Commager, H. S. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Guerra. Neumann, A. (Ag '30)
Guests of summer. Fulcher, P. M. (Je '30)
Guide to the best historical novels and tales. Nield, J. (Mr '30)
Guiding the child on the principles of individual psychology. Adler, A., and others, eds. (Ag '30)
The guillotine. Eng title of: The terror. Reynolds, M. J. (N '30)
Gulf stream. Stanley, M. (O '30)
Gunman's bluff. Wallace, E. (Mr '30)
The gunner. Eng title of Gunman's bluff. Wallace, E. (Mr '30)
Gypsy caravan. Pease, H. (D '30)
Gypsy trail, v 2. Goldmark, P. D., and Hopkins, M., comps. (Ag '30)

H. G. Wells. Wells, G. H. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Hacking New York. Hazard, R. (Je '30)
Haeckel, Ernst Heinrich Philipp August
Haeckel, E. H. P. A. Love letters. (Je '30)
Hague, Permanent court of international justice
Jessup, P. C. United States and the world court. (N '30)
Hahtibee, the elephant. Slaughter, C. E. (D '30)
Half-breed. Constantin-Weyer, M. (S '30)
Half gods. Howard, S. C. (Je '30)
Half-mast murder. Burge, M. R. K. (S '30)
Half-way sun. Barton, R. F. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Halleck, Fitz-Greene
Adkins, N. F. Fitz-Greene Halleck. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Hamilton, Alexander
Drama
Smith, C. P. Hamilton. (O '30)
Hamilton, Emma, lady
Flament, A. Private life of Lady Hamilton. (Mr '30)
Hamilton. Smith, C. P. (O '30)
Hammersmith murders. Brown, Z. (S '30)
Hand of power. Wallace, E. (S '30)
Hand-to-mouth buying. Lyon, L. S. (Je '30)
Handbook of American prisons and reformatories. National society of penal information, incorporated. (S '30)
Handbook of chemical microscopy. Chamot, E. M., and Mason, C. W. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Handbook of law for women. Horn, H. H. (F '31) (1930 Annual) Handicraft
Gibbard, M. K. Hobbies for girls. (N '30)
Hall, A. N Big book of boys' hobbies. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Leeming, J. Things any boy can make. (My '30)
Smith, S. C. Made in Mexico. (N '30)
Hanna, Marcus Alonzo
Beer, T. Hanna. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Hannibal
Baker, G. P. Hannibal. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Hansel the gander. Kuebler, K. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Hapgood, Norman
Hapgood, N. Changing years. (D '30)
Happiness
Powys, J. C. In defense of sensuality. (N '30)
Russell, B. A. W. Conquest of happiness. (N '30)
Happy landings. Lea, F. H. (S '30)
Hapsburg, House of
Jaszi, O. Dissolution of the Habsburg monarchy. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Hard money. Kelland, C. B. (S '30)
Harding, Seth
Howard, J. L. Seth Harding. (S '30)
Harding, Warren Gamaliel
Means, G. B. Strange death of President Harding. (Ag '30)
Hardman, Sir William
Hardman, W. Hardman papers. (O '30)
Hardman papers. Hardman, W. (O '30)
Hardy, Thomas
Hardy, F. E. Later years of Thomas Hardy, 1892-1928. (Ag '30)

Harlem, New York (city).
Johnson, J. W. Black Manhattan. (S '30)
Harmony
Cowell, H. New musical resources. (O '30)
Harm's way. Tapley, R. (Je '30)
Harpsicord
James, P. Early keyboard instruments. (D '30)
Harris, Frank
Harris, F. My reminiscences as a cowboy. (My '30)
Harrison, Elizabeth
Harrison, E. Sketches along life's road. (S '30)
Hart, Basil Henry Liddell. See Liddell Hart, B. H.
Harvard university

History
Morison, S. E., ed. Development of Harvard university, 1869-1929. (Ap '30)
Harvesting machinery
Hutchinson, W. T. Cyrus Hall McCormick. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Harz mountains
Marlowe, C. Harz mountains. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Haslette, John, pseud. See Vahey, J. G. H.
Hatfield-McCoy feud

Fiction
Spivak, J. L. Devil's brigade. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Haunting Edinburgh. Grierson, F. (O '30)
Havana bound. Roberts, C. (N '30)
Hawaiian islands

Description and travel
Blanding, D. Hula moons. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Griffiss, T. When you go to Hawaii. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
The hawk. Vickers, R. (Ag '30)
Hawk of the desert! Treynor, A. M. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Hawkins, Sir John
Gosse, P. Hawkins: scourge of Spain. (D '30)
Hawkins: scourge of Spain. Gosse, P. (D '30)
Hay, Ian pseud. See Beith, J. H.
Hayes, Rutherford Birchard
Eckenrode, H. J., and Wight, P. W. Rutherford B. Hayes. (Je '30)
Haym Salomon and the revolution. Russell, C. E. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Health and medical service in American prisons and reformatories. Rector, F. L. (Ag '30)
Health inventory of New York city. Davis, M. M., and Jarrett, M. C. (S '30)
Health surveys
Davis, M. M., and Jarrett, M. C. Health inventory of New York city. (S '30)
Healthful living. Bilik, S. E. (Je '30)
Healthy mind. Elkind, H. B., ed. (Je '30)
Healthy-minded child. Crawford, N. A., and Menninger, K. A., eds. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Hear with your eyes. Good, M. E. (N '30)
Hearn, Lafcadio
Lewis, O. Hearn and his biographers. (N '30)
Hearn and his biographers. Lewis, O. (N '30)
Heart of words. Roberts, G. (Je '30)
Heating
Harding, L. A., and Willard, A. C. Mechanical equipment of buildings. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Heaven. Townshend, F. (N '30)
Heaven and earth. Thomas, O. (Ag '30)
Heaven-sent witness. Fletcher, J. S. (S '30)
Hebrew literature

History and criticism
Booth, H. K. Bridge between the Testaments. (Je '30)
Hebrew religion. Oesterley, W. O. E., and Robinson, T. H. (N '30)
Hebrewisms of West Africa. Williams, J. J. (O '30)
Hebrides

Description and travel
Boswell, J. Everybody's Boswell. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Hedlund, Charles G.
Palen, L. S. Water and gold. (O '30)
Heine, Heinrich
Atkins, H. G. Heine. (My '30)
The heir. Burlingame, R. (Ag '30)
Heirs. Cannon, C. J. (Ap '30)
Hell
What is hell? (My '30)
Hellas revisited. Dixon, W. M. (Mr '30)
Hemlock wall. Frost, F. M. (S '30)
Henri IV, king of France
Sedgwick, H. D. Henry of Navarre. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Henry Irving. Craig, G. (D '30)
Henry James's criticism. Roberts, M. (N '30)
Henry of Navarre. Sedgwick, H. D. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Henry White. Nevins, A. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Her father's house. Vaughan, H. (O '30)
Her privates we. Private 19022. (Ag '30)
Here comes Pancho Villa. Stevens, L. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Heredity
Gates, R. R. Heredity in man. (Je '30)
Hirsch, N. D. M. Twins. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Jennings, H. S. Biological basis of human nature. (Je '30)
Heredity in man. Gates, R. R. (Je '30)
Here's audacity! Shay, F. (D '30)
Here's to Broadway! Perine, E. T. B. (Ap '30)
Hero of Vincennes [George Rogers Clark]. Thomas, L. J. (My '30)
Heroes
Hagedorn, H. Book of courage. (Ag '30)
Heroes of the farthest North and farthest South. Mclean, J. K., and Fraser, C. C. (S '30)
Heroic age of India. Sidhanta, N. K. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Heroine of the prairies. Hargreaves, S. (D '30)
Heroines of ancient Persia. Pavry, B. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Herrick, Myron Timothy
Mott, T. B. Myron T. Herrick. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Hetty Green. Sparkes, B., and Moore, S. T. (Je '30)
"Hey! yellowbacks!" Meyer, E. L. (My '30)
Hickory-goody. Darby, A. C. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Hidden city. Gibbs, P. H. (Mr '30)
High fences. Richmond, G. L. (S '30)
High finance in the sixties. Hicks, F. C., ed. (My '30)
High schools
Johnson, M. H. Dean in the high school. (Mr '30)
High stakes and hair trigger; the life of Jefferson Davis. Winston, R. W. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
High Tartary. Lattimore, O. (D '30)
Hill, Mrs Grace (Livingston). See Lutz, G.
Hill of destiny. Giono, J. (Ap '30)
Hill towns of Italy. Williams, E. R. (O '30)
Hilltop house. Colver, A. M. (D '30)
Himalaya mountains

Description and travel
Bridges, C. Thin air. (S '30)
Hindenburg, Paul von
Goldsmith, M. L., and Voigt, F. Hindenburg. (S '30)
Weterstetten, R., and Watson, A. M. K. Biography of President von Hindenburg. (S '30)
Hinduism
Thomas, W. M. Hinduism invades America. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Hinduism invades America. Thomas, W. M. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Hindus in the United States
Thomas, W. M. Hinduism invades America. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Hine, Muriel. See Coxon, M.
His Excellency and Peter. Harper, T. A., and W. M. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
His glorious body. Norwood, R. W. (Je '30)
His own people. Rogers, L. W. (S '30)
Historical fiction
Bibliography
Nield, J. Guide to the best historical novels and tales. (Mr '30)
History
Round, J. H. Family origins. (N '30)
Addresses, essays, lectures
Bury, J. B. Selected essays. (N '30)
Essays in intellectual history. (Ag '30)
Curiosa and miscellany
Barton, M., and Sitwell, O., eds. Sober truth. (O '30)
Methodology
Cochrane, C. N. Thucydides and the science of history. (N '30)
Philosophy
Sée, H. E. Economic interpretation of history. (Je '30)
History, Ancient
Laistner, M. L. W. Survey of ancient history to the death of Constantine. (Mr '30)
Peake, H. J. E., and Fleure, H. J. Way of the sea. (Ap '30)
Smith, G. E. Human history. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
History, Modern
Gibbons, H. A. Wider horizons. (S '30)
Ketelbey, D. M. History of modern times. (O '30)
History and monuments of Ur. Gadd, C. J. (My '30)
History of Alaska. Clark, H. W. (Je '30)
History of American civilization. Rugg, H. O. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
History of American magazines, 1741-1850. Mott, F. L. (Ap '30)
History of biological theories. Rádl, E. (N '30)
History of Button Hill Stowell, G. (Ag '30)
History of Chinese political thought, during the early Tsin periods. Liang Chi-Chao. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
History of coöperative news-gathering in the United States. Rosewater, V. (O '30)
History of experimental psychology. Boring, E. G. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
History of freethought in the nineteenth century. Robertson, J. M. (S '30)
History of Iberian civilization. Oliveira Martins, J. P. (N '30)
History of modern culture, v 1. Smith, P. (Ag '30)
History of modern times. Ketelbey, D. M. (O '30)
History of music. Buck, P. C. (O '30)
History of music. Wilm, G. (S '30)
History of nationalism in the East. Kohn, H. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
History of science. Dampier-Whetham, W. C. D. (My '30)
History of some scientific blunders. Price, G. M. (O '30)
History of Spanish painting. Post, C. R. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
History of the English Corn laws from 1660-1846. Barnes, D. G. (Je '30)
History of the Flemish movement in Belgium. Clough, S. B. (N '30)
History of the Illinois state federation of labor. Staley, E. (Ag '30)
History of the Jews. Sachar, A. L. (O '30)
History of the modern church. Wand, J. W. C. (My '30)
History of the papacy in the nineteenth century. Bury, J. B. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
History of women's education in the United States. Woody, T. (Ag '30)
Hittite empire. Garstang, J. (N '30)
Hittites
Garstang, J. Hittite empire. (N '30)
Hizzoner Big Bill Thompson. Bright, J. (Je '30)
The hoax. Schmitz, E. (My '30)
Hobbies for boys. Jackson, G. G. (N '30)
Hobbies for girls. Gibbard, M. K. (N '30)
Hobo's hornbook. Milburn, G. (N '30)
Hoby, Margaret (Dakins) Devereux Sidney, lady
Hoby, M. Dairy of Lady Margaret Hoby, 1599-1605. (N '30)
Hoffman, Charles Fenno
Barnes, H. F. Charles Fenno Hoffman. (S '30)
Holiday meadow. Patch, E. M. (Je '30)
Holidays
Sanford, A. P., and Schauffler, R. H., comps. and eds. Little plays for little people. (Je '30)
Hollywood murder mystery. Crooker, H. (Ag '30)
Hollywood plays. Nicholson, K., ed. (D '30)
Holy kabbalah. Waite, A. E. (Mr '30)
Holy Roman empire
History
Wiegler, P. Infidel emperor. (O '30)
Holy Spirit
Roberts, R. Spirit of God and the faith of today. (S '30)
Versteeg, J. M. Perpetuating Pentecost. (S '30)
Home
Cowan, E. E., and Thornborough, L., pseud. Psychologist keeps house. (S '30)
Home economics
Blair, E. Creation of a home. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Friend, M. R. Earning and spending the family income. (O '30)
Shultz, G., and Schenk, B. House that runs itself. (Ap '30)
Home nursing and child care. Turner, C. E., and others. (Je '30)
Home-owner's manual. Olney, D. and J. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Homecraft rugs. Walker, L. Le B. (My '30)
Homer
Quennell, M. and C. H. B. Everyday life in Homeric Greece. (N '30)
Homes of the cavaliers. Scarborough, K. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Homiletical illustrations
Roberts, G. Heart of words. (Je '30)
Honey Holler. MacKaye, K. (O '30)
Honourable pursuit. Eng. title of: Strange pursuit. Wynnton, P. (O '30)
Hooked rug. Kent, W. W. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Hooper dooper! Houston, F. F. B. (O '30)
Hoover, Herbert Clark
Marsh, W. J., jr. Our president Herbert Hoover. (O '30)
Hopi Indians
Forrest, E. R. Missions and pueblos of the old Southwest. (Ap '30)
Hopkins, Gerard Manley
Lahey, G. F. Gerard Manley Hopkins. (N '30)
Horace (Quintus Horatius Flaccus)
Rand, E. K. Walk to Horace's farm. (S '30)
Horace Walpole and Madame du Deffand. De Koven, A. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Horace Walpole's England. Walpole, H. (N '30)
Horizon chasers. Andrews, L. (Ap '30)
Horse racing
O'Connor, W. S. Jockeys, crooks and kings. (O '30)
Page, H. S. Between the flags. (Je '30)
Horses
Legends and stories
Hinkle, T. C. Tornado Boy. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Rhys, E., and Scott, C. A., eds. Mainly horses. (Mr '30)
Hot countries. Waugh, A. (My '30)
Hotel Universe. Barry, P. (D '30)
Hotels, taverns, etc.
England
Burke, T. English inn. (O '30)
United States
Cole, H. E. Stage coach and tavern tales of the Old Northwest. (O '30)

Hotels, taverns, etc.—United States—Continued
Williamson, J. American hotel. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Houdini, Harry
Gibson, W. B. Houdini's escapes. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Houdini's escapes. Gibson, W. B. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Houdon, Jean Antoine
Chinard, G., ed. Houdon in America. (O '30)
Houdon in America. Chinard, G., ed. (O '30)
Houghton, Claude, pseud. See Oldfield, C. H.
Hound of Florence. Salten, F. (Ag '30)
An hour of art. Pach, W. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Hour of American drama. Clark, B. H. (Je '30)
Hour of physics. Andrade, E. N. da C. (O '30)
Hour of the American novel. Overton, G. M. (Mr '30)
Hour on Christianity. Powys, L. (S '30)
Hour with American music. Rosenfeld, P. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Hours of labor
National industrial conference board. Five-day week in manufacturing industries. (Ap '30)

House-boats
Lighty, K. and M. Shanty-boat. (My '30)

House decoration
Frankl, P. T. Form and re-form. (Je '30)
Kahle, K. M. Modern French decoration. (S '30)
Post, E. Personality of a house. (Je '30)
House of Morgan. Corey, L. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
House of strange victims. Atkey, B. (O '30)
House of the Dey. Riddell, F. (Ap '30)
House of the soul. Underhill, E. (Ag '30)
House of the vanishing goblets. Edington, A. C. and C. B. (Je '30)
House on the hill. Putnam, A. (Ag '30)
House that runs itself. Shultz, G., and Schenk, B. (Ap '30)

Housing
Allen, E. L. American housing. (N '30)

Houston, Samuel
Seymour, F. W. Sam Houston, patriot. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
How about Europe? Eng title of: Good-bye to Western culture. Douglas, N. (O '30)
How Britain is governed. Muir, R. (Ag '30)
How great cities are fed. Hedden, W. P. (My '30)
How old am I financially? De Forest, C. M. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
How the derrick works. Jones, W. (Ag '30)
How they carried the mail. McSpadden, J. W. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
How to clean rugs and upholstery fabrics. Hubbard, C. C. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
How to commit a murder. Ahearn, D. (Ag '30)
How to find the right vocation. Kitson, H. D. (Ap '30)
How to fly. Studley, B. (My '30)
How to fly an airplane. White, P. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
How to grow roses. Pyle, R., and others. (S '30)
How to read books. Jones, L. (Je '30)
How to understand the Gospels. Deane, A. C. (My '30)

Howard, Clarence Henry
Gilmore, A. F. Fellowship [the biography of Clarence H. Howard]. (Mr '30)

Hoyt, Henry Franklin
Hoyt, H. F. Frontier doctor. (Ap '30)
Hudson River bracketed. Wharton, E. N. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Hudson Valley

Historic Huoses, etc.

Reynolds, H. W. Dutch houses in the Hudson Valley before 1776. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Hügel, Friedrich, freiherr von
Greene, G. M. Two witnesses. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Hugo, Victor Marie, comte
Escholler, R. Victor Hugo. (Ap '30)

Hula moons. Blanding, D. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Hull House, Chicago
Addams, J. Second twenty years at Hull-house. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Hullabaloo. Arno, P. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Human biology and racial welfare. Cowdry, E. V., ed. (S '30)
Human children. Eipper, P. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Human face. Picard, M. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Human factors in cotton culture. Vance, R. B. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Human history. Smith, G. E. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Human mind. Menninger, K. A. (Ap '30)
Human speech. Paget, R. A. S. (Je '30)

Humanism
Fausset, H. l'A. Proving of psyche. (My '30)
Foerster, N. Toward standards. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Foerster, N., ed. Humanism and America. (Ap '30)
Grattan, C. H., ed. Critique of humanism. (Ag '30)
Horton, W. M. Theism and the modern mood. (Je '30)
Munson, G. B. Dilemma of the liberated. (D '30)
Potter, C. F. Humanism. (Ag '30)
Samson, L. New humanism. (D '30)
Humanism and America. Foerster, N., ed. (Ap '30)
Humanistic logic of the mind in action. Reiser, O. L. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Humor
Anthony, J. Casanova Jones. (O '30)
Benchley, R. C. Treasurer's report. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Bruller, J. 21 delightful ways of committing suicide. (My '30)
Cami, H. Son of the three musketeers. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Cazamian, L. F. Development of English humour. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Chappell, G. S. Through the alimentary canal with gun and camera. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Cobb, I. S. To be taken before sailing. (Ag '30)
Cook, J. True reason why I will not imitate four Hawaiians. (Je '30)
Fishman, J. F. It's still boloney. (S '30)
Ford, C. John Riddell murder case. (N '30)
Goldberg, R. L. Is there a doctor in the house? (Mr '30)
Graham, H. J. C. More ruthless rhymes for heartless homes. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Hahn, E. Seductio ad absurdum. (S '30)
Hanemann, H. W. Facts of life. (Ag '30)
Hankel, W. S., ed. Whither, whither. (N '30)
Herbert, A. P. Misleading cases in the common law. (N '30)
Herold, D. strange bedfellows. (O '30)
King, S. Raspberry tree. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Knapp, C. H. Sob ballads. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Knox, R. A. Essays in satire. (My '30)
Leacock, S. B. Laugh with Leacock. (D '30)
Lord, P. H. Uncle Hosie. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
McCann, R. Cheerful cherub. (D '30)
Meine, F. J., ed. Tall tales of the Southwest. (Je '30)
Priestley, J. B. English humor. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Hums of Pooh. Milne, A. A. (S '30)
Hungary

History

Glaise von Horstenau, E. Collapse of the Austro-Hungarian empire. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Social life and customs

Jacobi, E. P. When I was a girl in Hungary. (O '30)
Hungry young lady. Spitzer, M. (My '30)

Hunt, James Henry Leigh
Blunden, E. C. Leigh Hunt. (N '30)

Hunting
Bryden, H. A. Enchantments of the field. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Africa
Akeley, D. J. Jungle portraits. (My '30)
Chadwick, W. S. Giants of the forest. (Ap '30)
Cron, G. Roaring veldt. (My '30)
Cudahy, J. African horizons. (Ag '30)
Lyell, D. D. Hunting & spoor of Central African game. (Ap '30)

Alaska
Sheldon, C. Wilderness of Denall. (Ag '30)

Arctic regions
McCracken, H. God's frozen children. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

China
Roosevelt, T. and K. Trailing the giant panda. (Ap '30)

England
Fisher, A. O. Exmoor and other days. (D '30)

United States
Somerville, E. A. O. States through Irish eyes. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Hunting & spoor of Central African game. Lyell, D. D. (Ap '30)
Huntsman in the sky. Toogood, G. (Ap '30)
Huron Indians
Fitzpatrick, B. Donjon of demons. (Ag '30)
Hutchinson, Mrs Anne (Marbury)
Augur, H. An American Jezebel [Anne Hutchinson]. (Je '30)
Curtis, E. Anne Hutchinson. (Je '30)
Rugg, W. K. Unafraid [Anne Hutchinson]. (Ap '30)
Huttee Boy of the jungle. Gill, M. S. (Mr '30)
Hydrogen-ion concentration
Grant, J. Measurement of hydrogen ion concentration. (D '30)
Hygiene
Bilik, S. E. Healthful living. (Je '30)
Emerson, W. R. P. Diagnosis of health. (Ag '30)

Addresses, essays, lectures
Winslow, C. E. A. Road to health. (My '30)

History
Downing, E. R. Science in the service of health. (D '30)

Juvenile literature
Turner, C. E. Physiology and health. (Ag '30)

Hymn to the sun. Ross, M. H. (Ap '30)
Hymns, Latin
Messenger, R. E. Ethical teachings in the Latin hymns of medieval England. (D '30

I am Jonathan Scrivener. Oldfield, C. H. (O '30)
I go South. Shumway, H. I. (D '30)
I like a good murder. Hill, B. (D '30)
I lived this story. White, B. (O '30)
I married a ranger. Smith, D. M. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
I met murder. Jepson, S. (D '30)
I saw Booth shoot Lincoln. Ferguson, W. J. (Ag '30)
I spend the summer. Tippett, J. S. (S '30)
I spy. Jenssen, C. (D '30)
Ibsen, Henrik
Zucker, A. E. Ibsen, the master builder. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Ibsen, the master builder. Zucker, A. E. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Iceland
Johnson, S. Pioneers of freedom. (S '30)

Description and travel
Chapman, O. M. Across Iceland. (O '30)

Iconoclast, pseud. See Hamilton, M. A.
Idea of value. Laird, J. (Ag '30)
Idyll's end. Schopfer, J. (O '30)
If I had only one sermon to preach on immortality. Stidger, W. Le R., ed. (My '30)
"If it takes all summer." Corbett, E. F. (Je '30)
Ifugaos
Barton, R. F. Half-way sun. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Iglaome. McCracken, H. (S '30)
Il duce. Kemechey, L. (S '30)
Il'in, Mikhail Andreevich. See Ossorgin, M., pseud.
I'll take my stand. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Illinois state federation of labor
Staley, E. History of the Illinois state federation of labor. (Ag '30)
Illustrations and proofs of the principle of population. Place, F. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Illyria (yacht)
Shurcliff, S. N. Jungle islands. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
I'm alone. Randell, J. (Je '30)
I'm lucky at that. Betts, D. (Ap '30)
Imagist anthology, 1930. (Je '30)
Imagist poetry
Imagist anthology, 1930. (Je '30)
Immediate family. Bartley, N. I. (N '30)
Immigration
Galitzi, C. A. Study of assimilation among the Rumanians in the United States. (S '30)
Gamio, M. Mexican immigration to the United States. (O '30)
Grant, M., and Davison, C. S., eds. Alien in our midst. (S '30)
Immoralist. Gide, A. P. G. (Je '30)
Immortability. McConnell, S. D. (My '30)
Immortal lover. Steuart, J. A. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual) Immortality
Lodge, O. J. Phantom walls. (Ap '30)
McConnell, S. D. Immortability. (My '30)
Mackenzie, W. D. Man's consciousness of immorality. (S '30)
Norwood, R. W. His glorious body. (Je '30)
Stidger, W. Le R., ed. If I had only one sermon to preach on immortality. (My '30)

Poetry
Ripley, S., ed. Beyond. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Immunity
Taliaferro, W. H. Immunology of parasitic infections. (S '30)
Immunology of parasitic infections. Taliaferro, W. H. (S '30)
Impending storm. De Chaire, S. S. (O '30)
Imperial dollar. Motherwell, H. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Imperial federation
Hewins, W. A. S. Apologia of an imperialist. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Keith, A. B. Sovereignty of the British dominions. (N '30)
Imperial palace. Bennett, A. (D '30)
Imperialism
Bukharin, N. I. Imperialism and world economy. (Ap '30)
Hoskins, H. L. European imperialism in Africa. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Nearing, S. Twilight of empire. (Ag '30)
Imperialism and world economy. Bukharin, N. I. (Ap '30)
Impressions of America. Lafond, A. (S '30)
In Araby Orion. Thompson, E. J. (N '30)
In at the death. Brown, Z. (S '30)
In defence of sensuality. Powys, J. C. (N '30)
In quest of the sun. Gerbault, A. (Je '30)
In quest of Virgil's birthplace. Rand, E. K. (Je '30)
In search of America. Hazard, L. L., ed. (Ag '30)
In search of God. Powell, J. W. (My '30)
In search of Scotland. Morton, H. C. V. (Ap '30)
In spite of all rejoicing. (Je '30)
In the Arabian desert. Musil, A. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
In the days of bicycles and bustles. Blumenfeld, R. D. (O '30)
In the land of the lion. Kearton, C. (My '30)
In the picturesque Shenandoah Valley. Gordon, A. C. (S '30)
In the realm of carbon. Deming, H. G. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
In the red. Iliff, R. M. (O '30)

In the Senate. Pepper, G. W. (F '31) (1930 Annual) Incarnation
  Lord of life. (My '30)
Incas
  Bingham, H. Machu Picchu. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Poindexter, M. Ayar-Incas. (O '30)
Income
  Hobson, J. A. Rationalisation and unemployment. (N '30)
  King, W. I., and Epstein, L. National income and its purchasing power. (O '30)
Income tax
  National industrial conference board. State income taxes, v 1 and 2. (N '30)
Incompatibility in marriage. Adler, F. (Je '30)
Incredible Borgias. Henschke, A. (Ap '30)
Incredible marquis, Alexandre Dumas. Gorman, H. S. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual) Indecency and the seven arts. Kallen, H. M. (Je '30)
India
  Netram, J. W. R. Will India become Christian? (O '30)
  Pym, M. Power of India. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Civilization
  Sidhanta, N. K. Heroic age of India. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Description and travel
  Dekobra, M. Perfumed tigers. (N '30)
  Greenbie, S. Romantic East. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Mukerji, D. G. Disillusioned India. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Mukerji, D. G. Visit India with me. (Mr '30)
  Thomas, L. J. India. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Economic conditions
  Anstey, V. Economic development of India. (Mr '30)
History
  Cambridge history of the British empire; v 4. (S '30)
Sepoy rebellion, 1857-1868
  Becher, A. E. Personal reminiscences in India and Europe. (D '30)
Politics and government
  Andrews, C. F. India and the Simon report (D '30)
  Craddock, R. H. Dilemma in India. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Durant, W. J. Case for India. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Hoyland, J. S. Case for India. (N '30)
  Hull, W. I. India's political crisis. (My '30)
  Mukerji, D. G. Disillusioned India. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Osburn, A. Must England lose India? (O '30)
  Sunderland, J. T. India in bondage. (Je '30)
  Thompson, E. J. Reconstructing India. (N '30)
Religion
  Horner, I. B. Women under primitive Buddhism. (S '30)
  Hoyland, J. S. Case for India. (N '30)
  Netram, J. W. R. Will India become Christian? (O '30)
Social conditions
  Douglas, N. Good-bye to Western culture. (O '30)
  Durant, W. J. Case for India. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Emerson, G. Voiceless India. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Osburn, A. Must England lose India? (O '30)
Social life and customs
  Dekobra, M. Perfumed tigers. (N '30)
  Emerson, G. Voiceless India. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Hauswirth, F. Marriage to India. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Mukerji, D. G. Visit India with me. (Mr '30)
  Yeats-Brown, F. C. P. Lives of a Bengal lancer. (N '30)
India. Thomas, L. J. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
India and the Simon report. Andrews, C. F. (D '30)
India in bondage. Sunderland, J. T. (Je '30)
India rubber men. Wallace, E. (Ag '30)
Indian territory
Description and travel
  Hitchcock, E. A. Traveler in Indian territory. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Indian wars of Pennsylvania. Sipe, C. H. (N '30) Indians
Origin
  Poindexter, M. Ayar-Incas. (O '30)
Indians and pioneers. Foreman, G. (O '30)
Indians of Mexico
Religion and mythology
  Braden, C. S. Religious aspects of the conquest of Mexico. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Indians of North America
  Deming, T. Many snows ago. (My '30)
  Forrest, E. R. Missions and pueblos of the old Southwest. (Ap '30)
  Gabriel, R. H. Lure of the frontier. (Je '30)
Art
  Buttree, J. M. Rhythm of the redman. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Captivities
  Rowlandson, M. Narrative of the captivity and restoration of Mrs Mary Rowlandson. (Ag '30)
Dances
  Buttree, J. M. Rhythm of the redman. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Forrest, E. R. Missions and pueblos of the old Southwest. (Ap '30)
Government relations
  Hitchcock, E. A. Traveler in Indian territory. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Legends
  Wright, H. B. Long ago told. (My '30)
Music
  Buttree, J. M. Rhythm of the redman. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Poetry
  Austin, M. American rhythm. (Je '30)
Wars
  Foreman, G. Indians and pioneers. (O '30)
  Hebard, G. R. Washakie. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Sipe, C. H. Indian wars of Pennsylvania. (N '30)
Pennsylvania
  Sipe, C. H. Indian wars of Pennsylvania. (N '30)
Southwest, New
  White, O. P. Frontier mother. (Mr '30)
Indians of South America
  Dyott, G. M. Man hunting in the jungle. (My '30)
Peru
  Poindexter, M. Ayar-Incas. (O '30)
India's political crisis. Hull, W. I. (My '30)
Indictment of prohibition. Auerbach, J. S. (D '30)
Individualism
  Dewey, J. Individualism, old and new. (D '30)
Individualism, old and new. Dewey, J. (D '30)
Individuality
  Wells, G. R. Individuality and social restraint. (S '30)
Individuality and clothes. Story, M. (O '30)
Individuality and social restraint. Wells, G. R. (S '30)
Industrial accounting. Sanders, T. H. (S '30)
Industrial accounting for executives. Bangs, J. R., jr. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Industrial arbitration in Great Britain. Amulree of Strathbraan, W. W. M. (S '30)
Industrial arts
Cooley, R. L., and others. My life work; representative industries. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
History
Neuburger, A. Technical arts and sciences of the ancients. (D '30)
Study and teaching
Schweickhard, D. M. Industrial arts in education. (Mr '30)
Industrial arts in education. Schweickhard, D. M. (Mr '30)
Industrial economics. Kimball, D. S. (S '30)
Industrial electricity and wiring. Moyer, J. A., and Wostrel, J. F. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Industrial revolution
Warner, W. J. Wesleyan movement in the industrial revolution. (Ag '30)
Industrial statistics
Snider, J. L., ed. Business statistics. (S '30)
Industries, Location of Holmes, W. G. Plant location. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Weber, A. Theory of the location of industries. (Je '30)
Industry
Ford, P. Economics and modern industry. (O '30)
Kimball, D. S. Industrial economics. (S '30)
Kraft, C., and Starkweather, L. P. Analysis of industrial securities. (S '30)
Kuznets, S. S. Secular movements in production and prices. (S '30)
Industry and state
Keezer, D. M., and May, S. Public control of business. (D '30)
National industrial conference board. Public regulation of competitive practices. (S '30)
Italy
Haider, C. Capital and labor under fascism. (Ag '30)
Russia
Union of soviet socialist republics. Soviet union looks ahead. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Inedible animal fats in the United States. Zapoleon, L. B. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Infants
Bühler, C. First year of life. (N '30)
Care and hygiene
Turner, C. E., and others. Home nursing and child care. (Je '30)
Infection and infectious diseases
Downing, E. R. Science in the service of health. (D '30)
Oliver, W. W. Stalkers of pestilence. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Taliaferro, W. H. Immunology of parasitic infections. (S '30)
Infidel emperor [Frederick II]. Wiegler, P. (O '30)
Influence of Christ in the ancient world. Glover, T. R. (Mr '30)
Inheritor. Benson, E. F. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Injunctions
Frankfurter, F., and Greene, N. Labor injunction. (Mr '30)
Ink. Mellett, J. C. (Je '30)
Inner history of the Chinese revolution, T'ang Leang-li. (D '30)
Inner sentinel. Jacks, L. P. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Inquisition
Coulton, G. G. The inquisition. (D '30)
Insanity
Oliver, J. R. Foursquare. (Ap '30)
Insect ways. Weed, C. M. (Je '30)
Insects
Hingston, R. W. G. Instinct and intelligence. (F '31) (1929 Annual)
Weed, C. M. Insect ways. (Je '30)
Inside of prohibition. Willebrandt, M. (My '30)
Insomnia
Collins, J. Insomnia. (Je '30)
Laird, D. A., and Muller, C. G. Sleep. (My '30)
Inspector Frost in the city. Smith, H. M. (D '30)
Instigation of the devil. Pearson. E. L. (N '30)
Instinct
Allen, A. H. B. Pleasure & instinct. (S '30)
Hingston, R. W. G. Instinct and intelligence. (F '31) (1929 Annual) Instinct and intelligence. Hingston, R. W. G. (F '31) (1929 Annual) Insurance
Mowbray, A. H. Insurance. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Insurance, Life
Dublin, L. I., and Lotka, A. J. Money value of a man. (S '30)
Insurance, Unemployment
Beveridge, W. H. Unemployment. (D '30)
Carroll, M. R. Unemployment insurance in Germany. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Davison, R. C. Unemployed. (My '30)
Davison, R. C. What's wrong with unemployment insurance. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Intellectual things. Kunitz, S. J. (Ag '30)
Intelligent philanthropy. Faris, E., and others, eds. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Interest and usury
Fisher, I. Theory of interest. (D '30)
Robinson, L. N., and Stearns, M. E. Ten thousand small loans. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Interior electric wiring and estimating. Nelson, A. L., and Dunlap, C. H. (D '30)
International aspect of the missionary movement in China. Wu, C.-K. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
International cooperation
Blakeslee, G. H. Pacific area. (O '30)
Ferrero, G. Unity of the world. (S '30)
Gibbons, H. A. Nationalism and internationalism. (Je '30)
Institute of Pacific relations, 1929. Problems of the Pacific, 1929. (N '30)
Phelps, C. Anglo-American peace movement in the mid-nineteenth century. (D '30)
Potter, P. B. This world of nations. (Mr '30)
Prescott, D. A. Education and international relations. (O '30)
Randall, J. H. World community. (Ag '30)
Rappard, W. E. Uniting Europe. (My '30)
Stawell, F. M. Growth of international thought. (Ag '30)
Stratton, G. M. Social psychology of international conduct. (Ap '30)
International federation
Herriot, E. United states of Europe. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
International law, Private
Humble, H. W. Cases on conflict of laws. (My '30)
International law and relations
Barnes, H. E. World politics in modern civilization. (Ag '30)
Buell, R. L. International relations. (Mr '30)
Butler, N. M. Path to peace. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Gibbons, H. A. Nationalism and internationalism. (Je '30)
Phelps, C. Anglo-American peace movement in the mid-nineteenth century. (D '30)
Potter, P. B. This world of nations. (Mr '30)
Smuts, J. C. Africa and some world problems. (Je '30)
Stratton, G. M. Social psychology of international conduct. (Ap '30)
International mandates. Margalith, A. M. (N '30)
International relations. Buell, R. L. (Mr '30)
International relations of Manchuria. Young, C. W. (Ap '30)
Internationalism
Kaltenborn, H. We look at the world. (S '30)
Interstate commerce
Ellingwood, A. R., and Coombs, W. Government and railroad transportation. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Intimate journal. Sand, G., pseud. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual) Intriguing duchess, Marie de Rohan, duchesse de Chevreuse. Campbell, D. de B. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Introduction to American civilization. Rugg, H. O (Ag '30)
Introduction to cataloging and the classification of books. Mann, M. (Ag '30)
Introduction to child study. Strang, R. M. (S '30)
Introduction to contemporary civilization. Libby, W. (Ag '30)
Introduction to Edwin Arlington Robinson. Cestre, C. (O '30)
Introduction to mental hygiene. Groves, E. R., and Blanchard, P. M. (O '30)
Introduction to philosophy. Maritain, J. (O '30)
Introduction to social anthropology. Wissler, C. (My '30)
Introduction to social research. Odum, H. W., and Jocher, K. C. (Ag '30)
Introduction to sociology. Dawson, C. A., and Gettys, W. E. (Je '30)

Invective
Lunn, H. K., ed. Anthology of invective and abuse. (My '30)
Lunn, H. K., ed. More invective. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Inventions
Chase, S. Men and machines. (F '31) (1929 Annual)
History
Ries, E. H. Mother wit. (Ag '30)

Investment banking. Willis, H. P., and Bogen, J. I. (My '30)
Investment fundamentals. Babson, R. W. (N '30)

Investment trusts
Steiner, W. H. Investment trusts. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Investments
Babson, R. W. Investment fundamentals. (N '30)
Feis, H. Europe: the world's banker, 1870-1914. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Frederick, J. G. Common stocks and the average man. (Ag '30)
Stern, S. Fourteen years of European investments, 1914-1928. (O '30)
Willis, H. P., and Bogen, J. I. Investment banking. (My '30)

Investments, Foreign
Winkler, M. Investments of United States capital in Latin America. (Ag '30)

Investments of United States capital in Latin America. Winkler, M. (Ag '30)
Invincible Jew. Powel, H. W. H. (N '30)
Invitation to renaissance Italy. Taylor, R. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Ireland
Church history
Kenney, J. F. Sources for early history of Ireland, v 1. (N '30)
Ronan, M. V. Reformation in Ireland under Elizabeth, 1558-1580. (S '30)
Description and travel
Colum, P. Cross roads in Ireland. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Murphy, A. B. Every which way in Ireland. (Ag '30)
History
Ronan, M. V. Reformation in Ireland under Elizabeth, 1558-1580. (S '30)
Bibliography
Kenney, J. F. Sources for early history of Ireland, v 1. (N '30)
Sources
Kenney, J. F. Sources for early history of Ireland, v 1. (N '30)
Politics and government
Gwynn, D. R. Daniel O'Connell. (Je '30)
Social life and customs
Colum, P. Cross roads in Ireland. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Irish drama
Collections
Canfield, C., ed. Plays of the Irish renaissance, 1880-1930. (My '30)

Irish literature
History
Blacam, A. S. de. Gaelic literature surveyed. (Mr '30)

Irish poetry
Collections
Morton, D. Renaissance of Irish poetry, 1880-1930. (My '30)
History and criticism
Morton, D. Renaissance of Irish poetry, 1880-1930. (My '30)

Iron dish. Riggs, L. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Iron industry and trade
Berglund, A., and Wright, P. G. Tariff on iron and steel. (Ap '30)

Iron man. Burnett, W. R. (Mr '30)
Iron star. Taine, J. (My '30)
Ironies. Connell, R. E. (O '30)

Ironwork
Bollinger, J. W. Elementary wrought iron. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Geerlings, G. K. Wrought iron in architecture. (My '30)

Irvine, Alexander Fitzgerald
Irvine, A. F. Fighting parson. (Je '30)

Irving, Sir Henry
Craig, G. Henry Irving. (D '30)

Is it safe to work? Bowers, E. L. (O '30)
Is no one innocent? Gropper, M. H., and Sherry, E. (O '30)
Is there a doctor in the house? Goldberg, R. L. (Mr '30)

Isabella I, queen of Castile and Aragon
Walsh, W. T. Isabella of Spain. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Isabella of Spain. Walsh, W. T. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Iskra (newspaper)
Lenin, N. Collected works, v 4. (My '30)

The Island. Royde-Smith, N. G. (N '30)
Island of Lost Women. Stacpoole, H. de V. S. (D '30)

Islands
De La Mare, W. J. Desert islands and Robinson Crusoe. (O '30)

Israel
Ten lost tribes
Godbey, A. H. Lost tribes a myth. (S '30)

It walks by night. Carr, J. D. (Ap '30)
It was locked. Hawk, J. (My '30)
Italian actors of the renaissance. Smith, W. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Italian comedy. Duchartre, P. L. (Mr '30)

Italian drama
History and criticism
Duchartre, P. L. Italian comedy. (Mr '30)

Italian fiction
History and criticism
Vittorini, D. Modern Italian novel. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Italian literature
Gardner, E. G. Arthurian legend in Italian literature. (D '30)

Italian painters of the renaissance. Berenson, B. (S '30)
Italian renaissance. Faure, E. (D '30)

Italy
Antiquities
Saunders, C. Vergil's primitive Italy. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Biography
Papini, G. Laborers in the vineyard. (N '30)
Civilization
Burckhardt, J. C. Civilization of the renaissance in Italy. (Mr '30)

Description and travel
Baedeker, K., firm, publishers. Northern Italy. (D '30)
Eberlein, H. D., and others. Down the Tiber and up to Rome. (Je '30)
Harrigan, M. H. Traveling light. (Je '30)
O'Reiley, M. A. Travel talk. (Je '30)
Rand, E. K. In quest of Virgil's birthplace. (Je '30)
Williams, E. R. Hill towns of Italy. (O '30)

Fascist movement
Haider, C. Capital and labor under fascism. (Ag '30)
Nitti, F. F. Escape. (Ap '30)

'It's a great war.' Lee, M. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
It's never over. Callaghan, M. (My '30)
It's still boloney. Fishman, J. F. (S '30)
Ives, James Merritt
Crouse, R. Mr Currier and Mr Ives. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Ivory throne of Persia. Coit, D. (Mr '30)

J. Ramsay MacDonald. Hamilton, M. A. (Je '30)
Jack-roller. Shaw, C. R., ed. (S '30)
Jackdaws strut. Henry, H. (S '30)
Jackson, Andrew
Jackson, A. Correspondence, v 4. (Ap '30)
Nicolay, H. Andrew Jackson. (Mr '30)
Jacqueline and the Japanese. Jacob, H. E. (Je '30)
Jamaica

Social life and customs
Beckwith, M. W. Black roadways. (F '31) (1929 Annual)

James, Henry
James, H. Letters to A. C. Benson and Auguste Monod. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Roberts, M. Henry James's criticism. (N '30)
James, Will
James, W. Lone cowboy. (O '30)
Jan the romantic. (Mr '30)
Japan

Civilization
Beard, M. Realism in romantic Japan. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Court and courtiers
Sei Shōnagon. Sketch book. (N '30)

Economic conditions
Kobayashi, U. Basic industries and social history of Japan, 1914-1918. (O '30)

Industries
Kobayashi, U. Basic industries and social history of Japan, 1914-1918. (O '30)

Social conditions
Kobayashi, U. Basic industries and social history of Japan, 1914-1918. (O '30)

Social life and customs
Beard, M. Realism in romantic Japan. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Sei Shōnagon. Sketch book. (N '30)

Jaw-breaker's alphabet. Tietjens, E. S. and J. (My '30)
Jazz music
Goldberg, I. Tin pan alley. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Jeanne d'Arc, Saint
Belloc, H. Joan of Arc. (My '30)
For Joan of Arc. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Jeb Stuart. Thomason, J. B. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Jefferson, Thomas
Chinard, G. Thomas Jefferson, the apostle of Americanism. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Chinard, G., ed. Houdon in America. (O '30)
Hollis, C. American heresy. (My '30)
Jefferson, T. Correspondence between Thomas Jefferson and Pierre Samuel du Pont de Nemours, 1789-1817. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Lafayette, M. J. P. R. Y. G. Letters of Lafayette and Jefferson. (S '30)
Jefferson Davis. Cutting, E. B. (D '30)
Jenny. Patterson, N. (Je '30)
Jenny Heysten's career. Ammers-Küller, J. van. (O '30)
Jeremiah the prophet. Calkins, R. (My '30)
Jesuits
Fülöp-Miller, R. Power and secret of the Jesuits. (Je '30)

Missions
Fitzpatrick, B. Donjon of demons. (Ag '30)

Jesus Christ
Baillie, J. Place of Jesus Christ in modern Christianity. (Ap '30)
Bethune-Baker, J. F. Early traditions about Jesus. (S '30)
Fiske, C., and Easton, B. S. Real Jesus. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Lord of life. (My '30)
Page, K. Jesus or Christianity. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Speer, R. E. Some living issues. (O '30)

Biography
Goodier, A. Public life of our Lord Jesus Christ. (D '30)

Birth
Machen, J. G. Virgin birth of Christ. (Ag '30)

Passion
Bundy, W. E. Passion week. (D '30)

Resurrection
Morison, F. Who moved the stone? (Je '30)

Teaching
Dickinson, C. H. Social aims of Jesus. (N '30)
Robinson, B. W. Sayings of Jesus. (D '30)

Words
Gilbert, G. H. Christian content of the Bible. (Je '30)

Jesus or Christianity. Page, K. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Jew Süss. Dukes, A. (Ap '30)
Jewish experiences in America. Lasker, B., ed. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Jews

Biography
Lazaron, M. S. Seed of Abraham. (N '30)

Civilization
Magnus, L. Jews in the Christian era. (Ap '30)

History
Booth, H. K. Bridge between the Testaments. (Je '30)
Godbey, A. H. Lost tribes a myth. (S '30)
Magnus, L. Jews in the Christian era. (Ap '30)
Robinson, B. W. Sayings of Jesus. (D '30)
Sachar, A. L. History of the Jews. (O '30)

Law
Goodenough, E. R. Jurisprudence of the Jewish courts in Egypt. (S '30)

Political and social conditions
Bogen, B. D., and Segal, A. Born a Jew. (S '30)
Lasker, B., ed. Jewish experiences in America. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Religion
Heidel, W. A. Day of Yahweh. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Oesterley, W. O. E., and Robinson, T. H. Hebrew religion. (N '30)

Rites and ceremonies
Heidel, W. A. Day of Yahweh. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Social life and customs
Gold, M. Jews without money. (My '30)

- Jews in Africa
  - Williams, J. J. Hebrewisms of West Africa. (O '30)
- Jews in Germany
  - Levin, S. Youth in revolt. (Je '30)
- Jews in New York (city)
  - Gold, M. Jews without money. (My '30)
- Jews in Russia
  - Burroughs, H. E. Tale of a vanished land. (Ag '30)
  - Kasovich, I. I. Days of our years. (D '30)
  - Levin, S. Youth in revolt. (Je '30)
- Jews in the Christian era. Magnus, L. (Ap '30)
- Jews in the United States
  - Kasovich, I. I. Days of our years. (D '30)
  - Lasker, B., ed. Jewish experiences in America. (Ja '31)
  - Linfield, H. S. Jews in the United States, 1927. (S '30)
  - Powel, H. W. H. Invincible Jew. (N '30)
- Jews in the United States, 1927. Linfield, H. S. (S '30)
- Jews without money. Gold, M. My '30)
- Jim Redlake. Eng title of: The Redlakes. Young, F. B. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
- Jimmie Dale and the blue envelope murder. Packard, F. L. (D '30)
- Joan of Arc. Belloc, H. (My '30)
- Joaquin Miller and his other self. Wagner, H. (My '30)
- Jobs for girls. Cades, H. R. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
- Jock the Scot. Rosman, A. G. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
- Jockeys, crooks and kings. O'Connor, W. S. (O '30)
- Johannes Brahms. Specht, R. (S '30)
- Johannesburg, Transvaal
  - Chilvers, H. A. Johannesburg. (Ag '30)
- Johannesburg. Chilvers, H. A. (Ag '30)
- John Brown. Warren, R. P. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
- John Christian Bach. Terry, C. S. (My '30)
- John Deth. Aiken, C. P. (D '30)
- John Dewey, the man and his philosophy. (S '30)
- John Marsh, pioneer. Lyman, G. D. (D '30)
- John Merrill's pleasant life. Parsons, A. (Ap '30)
- John Riddell murder case. Ford, C. (N '30)
- John Wesley. Wade, J. D. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
- John Wheelwright. Heard, J., jr. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
- Johnson, Andrew
  - Beale, H. K. Critical year. (Ag '30)
  - Bowers, C. G. Tragic era. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
  - Milton, G. F. Age of hate [Andrew Johnson]. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
- Johnson, Samuel
  - Boswell, J. Everybody's Boswell. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  - Roberts, S. C. Eighteenth-century gentleman. (Ap '30)
- Johnson, Samuel, 1696-1772
  - Johnson, S. Samuel Johnson. president of King's college. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
- Johnson, Sir William, bart.
  - Pound, A., and Day, R. E. Johnson of the Mohawks. (Je '30)
- Johnson of the Mohawks. Pound, A., and Day, R. E. (Je '30)
- Johnston, Sir Harry Hamilton
  - Johnston, A. Life and letters of Sir Harry Johnston. (My '30)
- Jonathan Edwards. Parkes, H. B. (N '30)
- Jones, Henry Arthur
  - Jones, D. A. Taking the curtain call; the life and letters of Henry Arthur Jones. (N '30)
- José Antonio Páez. Cunninghame Graham, R. B. (Ap '30)
- Joseph, patriarch
  - Fiction
    - Roberts, C. E. B. Corn in Egypt. (Ap '30)
- Joseph Fouché. Zweig, S. (O '30)
- Josephine, empress consort of Napoleon I
  - Wilson, R. M. Josephine, the portrait of a woman. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
- Josephine, the portrait of a woman. Wilson, R. M. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
- Journal, anno 1639. Tromp, M. H. (N '30)
- Journal of a slave-dealer. Owen, N. (My '30)
- Journal of my other self. Rilke, R. M. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
- Journal of things new and old. Bennett, A. (O '30)
- Journalism
  - Bickel, K. A. New empires. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  - Brennecke, E., and Clark, D. L. Magazine article writing. (S '30)
  - Norton, W. B. Church and newspaper. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  - Rosewater, V. History of coöperative newsgathering in the United States. (O '30)
  - Safley, J. C. Country newspaper and its operation. (O '30)
  - Shaaber, M. A. Some forerunners of the newspaper in England, 1476-1622. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
  - Wilhelm, D. G. Writing for profit. (N '30)
- Journalists
  - Correspondence, reminiscences, etc.
    - Blumenfeld, R. D. In the days of bicycles and bustles. (O '30)
- Journey's end. Sherriff, R. C., and Bartlett, V. (My '30)
- Jouvenel, Mme Gabrielle Claudine (Colette) de. See Colette, pseud.
- Joy and sorrow
  - McCormick, W. P. G. Be of good cheer. (My '30)
- Joy in work. Man, H. de. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
- Joy is my name. Hobson, C. (Ap '30)
- Joyous betrayal. Jacobs, C. P. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
- Judge and fool. Jabotinsky, V. (Ap '30)
- Judith Lankester. Allee, M. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
- Judy of the Whale gates. Burrows, E. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
- Jump! Glassman, D. (Je '30)
- June moon. Lardner, R. W., and Kaufman, G. S. (S '30)
- Jungle babies. Johnson, O. H. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
- Jungle babies. Kaigh-Eustace, E. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
- Jungle gold. Pedrick, H. A. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
- Jungle islands. Shurcliff, S. N. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
- Jungle portraits. Akeley, D. J. (My '30)
- Jungle tide. Still, J. (D '30)
- Junior anthology of world poetry. Van Doren, M., and Lapolla, G. M., eds. (My '30)
- Jurisprudence
  - Frank, J. Law and the modern mind. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
- Jurisprudence of the Jewish courts in Egypt. Goodenough, E. R. (S '30)
- Jury
  - Moley, R. Our criminal courts. (N '30)
- Just normal children. Mateer, F. (Ap '30)
- Justice
  - Poetry
    - Clark, T. C., comp. Poems of justice. (Mr '30)
- Justice, Administration of
  - Moley, R. our criminal courts. (N '30)
  - Pound, R. Criminal justice in America. (O '30)
  - Willoughby, W. F. Principles of judicial administration. (My '30)
- Juvenile delinquency
  - Reckless, W. C. Six boys in trouble. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  - Reeves, M. Training schools for delinquent girls. (N '30)
  - Shaw, C. R. Delinquency areas. (S '30)
  - Shaw, C. R., ed. Jack-roller. (S '30)

Kah-da. MacMillan, D. B. (Ag '30)
Kaiser and Chancellor. Nowak, K. F. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Kamerun
Description and travel
Gide, A. P. G. Travels in the Congo. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Kant, Immanuel
England, F. E. Kant's conception of God. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Kant's conception of God. England, F. E. (F '31) (1930 Annual) Kashmir
Description and travel
Bridges C. Thin air. (S '30)
Kasovich, Israel Isser
Kasovich, I. I. Days of our years. (D '30)
Keats, John
Brandenburg, A. J. Life of John Keats. (Mr '30)
Murry, J. M. Studies in Keats. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Keith of Kinnellan. Mackenzie, A. M. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Kennedy, Milward, pseud. See Burge, M. R. K.
Kenton, Simon
Kenton, E. Simon Kenton. (My '30)
Kentucky
Description and travel
Butler, L. L. My old Kentucky home. (Ag '30)
Keverne, Richard, pseud. See Hosken, C. J. W.
Kidnapped by air. Wallace, D. (Ag '30)
Killigrew, Thomas
Harbage, A. Thomas Killigrew. (My '30)
Killing of Judge MacFarlane. Plum, M. (Ap '30)
Kimball, Charles Dean
Stewart, L. Pioneer of old Superior [Charles Dean Kimball]. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Kindergarten
Harrison, E. Sketches along life's road. (S '30)
Kindness in a corner. Powys, T. F. (My '30)
King Edward VII and his court. Cust, L. H. (O '30)
King Haber. Neumann, A. (Je '30)
King Mob. Notch, F. K., pseud. (Ag '30)
King of Spain's daughter. Huston, M. (Ag '30)
King Spider [Louis XI]. Lewis, D. B. W. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Kingdom lost. Wentworth, P. (S '30)
Kingdom of Saint James. Quaife, M. M. (Ag '30)
Kings and rulers
Bibesco, M. L. Some royalties and a prime minister. (O '30)
Róheim, G. Animism, magic, and the divine king. (D '30)
King's club murder. Eng title of: Silver king mystery. Greig, I. B. (N '30)
King's daughter. Sackville-West, V. M. (D '30)
King's favourite. Gibbs, P. H. (Je '30)
King's minion. Sabatini, R. (D '30)
King's pleasure. Zeitlin, I. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
King's spurs. Carter, R. G. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Kingsmill, Hugh, pseud. See Lunn, H. K., ed.
Kirby, William
Pierce, L. A. William Kirby. (S '30)
Kitchener, Horatio Herbert Kitchener, earl
Ballard, C. R. Kitchener. (N '30)
Klabund, pseud. See Henschke, A.
Knife behind the curtain. Williams, V. (S '30)
Knight of the Virgin. Blasco Ibáñez, V. (Ag '30)
Knowing, collecting and restoring early American furniture. Taylor, H. H. (S '30)
Knowledge, Theory of
Dewey, J. Quest for certainty. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Lewis, C. I. Mind and the world-order. (My '30)
Koch-Weser, E. See Koch, E. F. L.
Kongo
Puleston, F. African drums. (Je '30)
Kongo, Belgian
Akeley, D. J. Jungle portraits. (My '30)
König von und zu Warthausen, Friedrich Karl, freiherr. See Koenig-Warthausen, F. K.
Korea
Drake, H. B. Korea of the Japanese. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Foreign relations
Sands, W. F. Undiplomatic memories. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Social life and customs
Sands, W. F. Undiplomatic memories. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Korea of the Japanese. Drake, H. B. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Kostia the Cossack. Krasnov, P. N. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Krakotoa. Raabe, H. E. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Kramer girls. Suckow, R. (Je '30)
Krupp, Alfred
Krupp, A. Krupp. (S '30)

L. M. 8046; the war diary of a legionnaire. Eng title of: Ten thousand shall fall, King, D. W. (Ap '30)
Labels. Eng title of: Bachelor abroad. Waugh, E. (D '30)
Labor and capital in national politics. Childs, H. L. (S '30)
Labor and laboring classes
Nearing, S. Twilight of empire. (Ag '30)
Watkins, G. S. Labor problems. (O '30)
Poetry
Clark, T. C., comp. Poems of justice. (Mr '30)
Alabama
Shumway, H. I. I go South. (D '30)
Great Britain
Hammond, J. L. Le B. and B. Age of the chartists, 1832-1854. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Rothstein, T. From Chartism to labourism. (Ag '30)
Illinois
Staley, E. History of the Illinois state federation of labor. (Ag '30)
Italy
Haider, C. Capital and labor under fascism. (Ag '30)
North Carolina
Rhyne, J. J. Some southern cotton mill workers and their villages. (Je '30)
United States
Douglas, P. H. Real wages in the United States. (Ag '30)
Dubreuil, H. Robots or men? (S '30)
Patterson, S. H. Social aspects of industry. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Labor banking movement in the United States. Princeton university. Dept. of economics and social institutions. Industrial relations section. (S '30)
Labor exchanges
Beveridge, W. H. Unemployment. (D '30)
Labor injunction. Frankfurter, F., and Greene, N. (Mr '30)
Labor laws and legislation
Great Britain
Hedges, R. Y., and Winterbottom, A. Legal history of trade unionism. (Ag 30)
United States
Frankfurter, F., and Greene, N. Labor injunction. (Mr '30)
Labor problems. Watkins, G. S. (O '30)
Labor speaks for itself on religion. Davis, J. D., ed. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Laborers in the vineyard. Papini, G. (N '30)
Lacquer and lacquering
Smith, S. Cellulose lacquers. (S '30)

Lacquer lady. Jesse, F. T. (Mr '30)
Lad of Sunnybank. Terhune, A. P. (Mr '30)
Ladies' man. Hughes, R. (Ag '30)
Lady Jean. Dilnot, F. (Je '30)
Lady of daylight. Attenborough, G. M. (D '30)
Lady of France. Stair, G. (Ag '30)
Lady of the cromlech. Eng title of: Flying cromlech. Blacam, H. de. (S '30)
Lady of the night. Horler, S. (O '30)
Lady who loved herself; the life of Mme Roland. Young, C. (N '30)
Ladybird. Lutz, G. (Je '30)

Lafayette, Marie Adrienne Françoise (de Noailles) marquise de
McCabe, L. R. Ardent Adrienne. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Lafayette, Marie Joseph Paul Roch Yves Gilbert de Motier, marquis de
Whitlock, B. La Fayette. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Lafitte, Jean
Saxon, L. Lafitte the pirate. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Lafitte the pirate. Saxon, L. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Laighton, Oscar
Laighton, O. Ninety years at the Isles of Shoals. (F '31 (1930 Annual)

Lamballe, Marie Thérèse Louise de Savoie-Carignan, princesse de
Stair, G. Lady of France. (Ag '30)
Laments for the living. Parker, D. (S '30)

Lancaster, Massachusetts

History

Rowlandson, M. Narrative of the captivity and restoration of Mrs Mary Rowlandson. (Ag '30)
Land & the peasant in Rumania. Mitrany, D. (N '30)
Land of the pepper bird: Liberia. De La Rue, S. (Ag '30)
Land of the sun-god. Rydh, H. A. (Je '30)
Land spell. Carroll, G. H. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Land tenure

Rumania

Mitrany, D. Land & the peasant in Rumania. (N '30)
Landlubber's log. Warner, A. (My '30)

Landscape gardening
Ramsey, L. W. Landscaping the home grounds. (S '30)

Landscape painting
Glass. F. J. Composition and expression in landscape painting. (S '30)
Lutz, E. G. Practical landscape painting in oils. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Landscaping the home grounds. Ramsey, L. W. (S '30)

Lang, Anthony, pseud. See Vahey, J. G. H.

Language, Universal
Ferrero, G. Unity of the world. (S '30)

Language and languages
Cline, E. C. Your language. (N '30)

Lansdowne, Henry Charles Keith Petty-Fitzmaurice, 5th marquis
Newton, T. W. L. Lord Lansdowne. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Lanterns in the dusk. Houston, M. B. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Larrimore, Lida, pseud. See Turner, L. L.
Larson, duke of Mongolia. Larson, F. A. (Ag '30)
Last and first love. Hermant, A. (D '30)
Last continent of adventure. Hayward, W. B. (Ag '30)
Last frontier. Sutley, Z. T. (Je '30)
Last full measure. Morrow, H. (O '30)
Last hero. Charteris, L. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Last mile. Wexley, J. (Ag '30)
Last night of Don Juan. Rostand, E. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Last paradise. Powell, H. (Ag '30)
Last rustler. Sage, L. (Ag '30)
Last voyage. Noyes, A. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Later years of Thomas Hardy, 1892-1928. Hardy, F. E. (Ag '30)
Latex. Hauser, E. A. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Lathrop, Mrs Rose (Hawthorne)
Walsh, J. J. Mother Alphonsa. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Latin literature

History and criticism

Fairclough, H. R. Love of nature among the Greeks and Romans. (My '30)

Latin literature, Medieval and modern
Haskins, C. H. Studies in mediaeval culture. (Ag '30)

Latin poetry, Medieval and modern

Translations into English

Waddell, H. J. Mediaeval Latin lyrics. (Je '30)

Laud, William, abp. of Canterbury
Coffin, R. P. T. Laud. (S '30)
Laugh with Leacock. Leacock, S. B. (D '30)

Lauterbach, Julius
Thomas, L. J. Lauterbach of the China sea. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Lauterbach of the China sea. Thomas, L. J. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Law

Addresses, essays, lectures

Beck, J. M. May it please the court. (O '30)

Philosophy

Frank, J. Law and the modern mind. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Egypt

Brinton, J. Y. Mixed courts of Egypt. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Goodenough, E. R. Jurisprudence of the Jewish courts in Egypt. (S '30)

United States

Luce, R. Legislative principles. (D '30)
Morris, R. B. Studies in the history of American law. (My '30)
Law and the modern mind. Frank, J. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
The lawn. Dickinson, L. S. (D '30)

Lawns
Dickinson, L. S. The lawn. (D '30)

Lawrence, David Herbert
Potter, S. D. H. Lawrence. (S '30)
Lay-off and its prevention. National industrial conference board. (F '30) (1930 Annual)
Leacock book. Eng title of: Laugh with Leacock, S. B. (D '30)
League of discontent. Beeding, F., pseud. (My '30)

League of nations
Harris, H. W. League of nations. (Ag '30)
Malin, J. C. United States after the World war. (N '30)
Margalith, A. M. International mandates. (N '30)
Newfang, O. United states of the world. (My '30)
Potter, P. B. This world of nations. (Mr '30)
Rappard, W. E. Uniting Europe. (My '30)
Wright, Q. Mandates under the League of nations. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Stories

Hulbert, W. Cease firing. (My '30)

Leang-li, T'ang. See T'ang Leang-li
Learn or perish. Fisher, D. F. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Learning and scholarship
Foerster, N. American scholar. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Leaves
Macdougal, D. T. Green leaf. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Leaves from the Greville diary. Greville, C. C. F. (Je '30)
Leaves of wild grape. Hoyt, H. (Mr '30)

Lebar, John, pseud. See Wright, G. M.

Le Corbusier, pseud. See Jeanneret-Gris, C. E.

Lee, Robert Edward
Young, J. C. Marse Robert. (Ap '30)

Legacy of Sun Yatsen. Amann, G. (Ap '30)
Legal history of trade unionism. Hedges, R. Y., and Winterbottom, A. (Ag '30)
Legendary Germany, Oberammergau and Bayreuth. Jais, R. (D '30)

Legends
  Barry, M. E., and Hanna, P. R., eds. Wonder flights of long ago. (Ag '30)

America
  Shay, F. Here's audacity! (D '30)

Arabia
  Tietjens, E. S. Romance of Antar. (My '30)

California
  Saunders, C. F., and O'Sullivan, St J. Capistrano nights. (S '30)

Serbia
  Zeitlin, I. King's pleasure. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Legislation
  Luce, R. Legislative principles. (D '30)

Great Britain
  Hewart of Bury, G. H. New despotism. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Legislative principles. Luce, R. (D '30)
Leigh Hunt. Blunden, E. C. (N '30)

Leisure class
  Nickerson, H. American rich. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Lejeune, John Archer
  Lejeune, J. A. Reminiscences of a marine. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Lenin, Nikolai
  Krupskaya, N. K. Memories of Lenin. (N '30)

Léopold I, king of the Belgians
  Lichtervelde, L. de. Léopold First. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Let's be normal! Künkel, F. (Ag '30)

Lettering
  Hewitt, G. Lettering. (D '30)
  Hollister, P., ed. American alphabets. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Letters
  Brooke, D., ed. Private letters, pagan and Christian. (Mr '30)
  Charnwood, D. M. R. Autograph collection. (N '30)
  Gentry, C. G., ed. Fifty famous letters of history. (Ag '30)
  Wild, J. Unpublished letters. (D '30)

Letters and epigrams. Harington, J. (N '30)
Letters and friendships. Spring Rice, C. A. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Letters from Armageddon. Grant, A. G., comp. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Levi Parsons Morton. McElroy, R. M. (Je '30)
Levinrew, Will, pseud. See Levine, W.
Liang & Lo. Wiese, K. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Liber veritatis. Beckford, W. With his The vision. (N '30)

Liberia

Description and travel
  De La Rue, S. Land of the pepper bird: Liberia. (Ag '30)

Liberty
  Bates, E. S. This land of liberty. (O '30)
  Brock, H. L. Meddlers. (Ag '30)
  Laski, H. J. Liberty in the modern state. (N '30)
  Martin, E. D. Liberty. (Ag '30)

Liberty and despotism in Spanish America. Jane, L. C. (S '30)
Liberty in the modern state. Laski, H. J. (N '30)

Liberty of conscience
  Luzzatti, L. God in freedom. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Libraries

Accession department
  Drury, F. K. W. Order work for libraries. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Order department
  Drury, F. K. W. Book selection. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Drury, F. K. W. Order work for libraries. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

United States
  Duffus, R. L. Books. (O '30)

Library administration
  Fargo, L. F. Library in the school. (Je '30)

Library in the school. Fargo, L. F. (Je '30)
Lichee nuts. Masters, E. L. (D '30)

Life
  Bjerre, P. C. Death and renewal. (Ag '30)
  Coster, D. Living and the lifeless. (N '30)
  Joad, C. E. M. Matter, life and value. (My '30)
  Smith, T. V. Philosophic way of life. (My '30)

Life (biology)
  Rignano, E. Nature of life. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Sokolov, B. F. Bio-dynamics. (S '30)
  Warthin, A. S. Creed of a biologist. (O '30)

Life and letters of Henry Arthur Jones. Eng title of: Taking the curtain call. Jones, D. A. (N '30)
Life and letters of Sir Harry Johnston. Johnston, A. (My '30)
Life and mind of Emily Dickinson. Taggard, G. (Ag '30)
Life and the Book. Richardson, H. G. (Mr '30)
Life and voyages of Captain Cook. Eng title of: Captain Cook. Thiery, M. (Je '30)
Life in college. Gauss, C. F. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Life in Elizabethan days. Davis, W. S. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Life of the ant. Maeterlinck, M. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Life of the devil. Coulange, L., pseud. (Je '30)
Life story of birds. Daglish, E. F. (My '30)
Light lady. Thomas, E. F. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Lighted lantern. Wright, G. M. (Ag '30)
Lighthearted journey. Greene, A. (S '30)

Lighting
  Caldwell, F. C. Modern lighting. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Luckiesh, M. Artificial sunlight. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Lights of fame. Gilkyson, T. W. (Je '30)
Lilac culture. Wister, J. C. (Ag '30)

Lilacs
  Wister, J. C. Lilac culture. (Ag '30)

Lily of Fort Garry. Rolyat, J. (O '30)

Lincoln, Abraham
  Barton, W. E. Lincoln at Gettysburg. (My '30)
  Hollis, C. American heresy. (My '30)
  Holmes, F. L. Abraham Lincoln traveled this way. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Lincoln, A. New letters and papers. (Je '30)
  Lockridge, R. F. A. Lincoln. (O '30)
  Ludwig, E. Lincoln. (Ap '30)
  Newcome, L. A. Lincoln's boy spy. (Mr '30)
  Palmer, J. M. Washington, Lincoln, Wilson. (My '30)
  Shaw, A. Abraham Lincoln. (Ag '30 (1929 Annual)

Assassination
  Ferguson, W. J. I saw Booth shoot Lincoln. (Ag '30)

Fiction
  Andrews, M. R. White satin dress. (Je '30)
  Morrow, H. Last full measure. (O '30)

Lincoln at Gettysburg. Barton, W. E. (My '30)
Lincoln's boy spy. Newcome, L. A. (Mr '30)

Lindbergh, Charles Augustus
  Reeves, E. Lindbergh flies on! (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Lindbergh flies on! Reeves, E. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
The link. MacDonald, P. (O '30)
Linnet on the threshold. Raymond, M. T. (O '30)
Lion and the lamb. Oppenheim, E. P. (F '31) (1930 Annual) Lions' den. Fairbanks, J. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Lip reading
  Good, M. E. Hear with your eyes. (N '30)

Lipari islands

Exiles

Nitti, F. Escape. (Ap '30)

Liquor laws
Johnston, H. A. What rights are left. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Liquor, loot and ladies. Crowell, C. T. (My '30)

Liquor problem
Binkley, R. C. Responsible drinking. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Dorr, R. L. Drink: coercion or control? (Mr '30)
Fisher, I., and Brougham, H. B. The "noble experiment." (N '30)

Liquors
Elliott, V., and Stong, P. D. Shake 'em up! (D '30)
Lisbeth of Jarnfjeld. Falkberget, J. (Je '30)

Literary criticism
Buck, P. M. Literary criticism. (My '30)
Burgum, E. B., ed. New criticism. (D '30)
Calverton, V. F. New ground of criticism. (My '30)
Foerster, N. Toward standards. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Tradition and experiment in present-day literature. (Ap '30)
Literary criticism. Buck, P. M. (My '30)
Literary history of England. Groom, B. (Mr '30)

Literature
Orage, A. R. Art of reading. (My '30)

Addresses, essays, lectures

Stoll, E. E. Poets and playwrights. (O '30)
Tomlinson, H. M. Between the lines. (D '30)

Collections

Houston, P. H., and Smith, R. M., eds. Types of world literature. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

History and criticism

Lavrin, J. Studies in European literature. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Read, H. E. Sense of glory. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Rogers, R. E. Fine art of reading. (Mr '30)
Tradition and experiment in present-day literature. (Ap '30)

Literature, Comparative
Gardner, E. G. Arthurian legend in Italian literature. (D '30)
Herrick, M. T. Poetics of Aristotle in England. (S '30)
Sidhanta, N. K. Heroic age of India. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Literature, Immoral
Dennett, M. Who's obscene? (Je '30)

Literature, Modern

History and criticism

Moffatt, J. Day before yesterday. (Ag '30)
Literature and occult tradition. Saurat, D. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Literature and science
Foerster, N. American scholar. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Literature of America, v 2. Quinn, A. H., and others, eds. (Mr '30)

Lithographs, American
Drepperd, C. W. Early American prints. (S '30)
Little America. Byrd, R. E. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Little bear-cub and The dressed-up pig. Moe, L. M. N. P. H. (S '30)
Little brother goes soldiering. Kiernan, R. H. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Little dog laughed. Merrick, L. (O '30)

Little entente
Machray, R. Little entente. (D '30)
Little flat in the Temple. Scott, W. M. (O '30)
Little known England. Eberlein, H. D. (O '30)
Little pilgrim to Penn's woods. Albert, E. (S '30)
Little plays for little people. Sanford, A. P., and Schauffler, R. H., comps. and eds. (Je '30)
Little plays of St. Francis. Housman, L. (S '30)

Little review (periodical)
Anderson, M. My thirty years' war. (Ag '30)
Little theatre in school. Collins, L. F. (N '30)
Little Tooktoo. Stafford, M. A. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Little wooden farmer. Dalgliesh, A. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Lives of a Bengal Lancer. Yeats-Brown, F. C. C. (N '30)
Living and the lifeless. Coster, D. (N '30)
Living mind. Fite, W. (Je '30)
Living past. Merriam, J. C. (My '30)

Livingstone, David
Campbell, R. J. Livingstone. (Mr '30)
Smuts, J. C. Africa and some world problems. (Je '30)

Lloyd George, David
Edwards, J. H. David Lloyd George. (Ap '30)
Mallet, C. E. Mr. Lloyd George. (N '30)

Loans
Madden, J. T., and Nadler, M. Foreign securities. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Robinson, L. N., and Stearns, M. E. Ten thousand small loans. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

LoBagola, Bata Kindai Amgoza ibn
Lo Bagola, B. K. A. I. Lobagola. (My '30)

Local government

Massachusetts

Sly, J. F. Town government in Massachusetts (1620-1930). (Je '30)

United States

Manny, T. B. Rural municipalities. (S '30)
Locked door. Eng title of: It was locked. Hawk, J. (My '30)
Loder, Vernon, pseud. See Vahey, J. G. H.
Log of the Coriolanus. Matson, N. H. (S '30)

Logic
Langer, S. K. Practice of philosophy. (N '30)
Reiser, O. L. Humanistic logic for the mind in action. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Schiller, F. C. S. Logic for use. (My '30)
Snyder, A. D. Coleridge on logic and learning. (Ap '30)
Swabey, M. T. Logic and nature. (O '30)
Logic and nature. Swabey, M. T. (O '30)
Logic for use. Schiller, F. C. S. (My '30)

London, Meyer
Rogoff, H. East Side epic [Meyer London]. (Ap '30)

London

Description

Gaunt, W. London promenade. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Josephy, H., and McBride, M. M. London is a man's town. (S '30)
Shore, W. T. Touring London. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Stapleton, A. London lanes. (D '30)

Historic houses, etc.

Chancellor, E. B. London's old Latin quarter. (O '30)

Social life and customs

Gaunt, W. London promenade. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Hueffer, O. M. Some of the English. (S '30)

Streets

Chancellor, E. B. London's old Latin quarter. (O '30)
Stapleton, A. London lanes. (D '30)
London is a man's town. Josephy, H., and McBride, M. M. (S '30)
London lanes. Stapleton, A. (D '30)
London promenade. Gaunt, W. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
London's old Latin quarter. Chancellor, E. B. (O '30)
Lone cowboy. James, W. (O '30)
Long ago told. Wright, H. B. (My '30)
Long bondage. Joseph, D. (D '30)
Long bright land. Howes, E. (Mr '30)
Long hunt. Boyd, J. (Je '30)
Longer day. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Look to the East. Palmer, F. (S '30)
Loot of the Flying dragon. Kempton, K. P. (Je '30)
Lope de Vega. Flores, A. (Je '30)
Lord Balfour. Malcolm, I. Z. (N '30)
Lord Byron, the story of a passion. Eng title of: Passionate rebel. Edschmid, K. (N '30)
Lord Durham. New, C. W. (Ap '30)
Lord Lansdowne. Newton, T. W. L. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Lord Melbourne. Newman, B. (Je 30)
Lord Nelson. Forester, C. S. (Mr '30)
Lord of life. (My '30)
Lore of the unicorn. Shepard, O. (Je '30)
Lorenzo the Magnificent. Loth, D. G. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Loretto. Heinz, M. (Ag '30)
Lost buffalo. Bacon, L. (My '30)
Lost child. Sanzara, R. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Lost courts of Europe. Bunsen, M. von. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Lost crusade. Eng title of: Pied piper. Muir, D. (O '30)
Lost letters to Harriet. Shelley, P. B. (Je '30)
Lost treasure. Verrill, A. H. (S '30)
Lost tribes a myth. Godbey, A. H. (S '30)
Lost year. McGovern, M. (S '30)
Lotos petals. Der Ling, princess. (D '30)
Lotus of the wonderful law. Saddharmapundarīka. (N '30)
Loud sing cuckoo. Sterne, E. G. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Louis XI, king of France
Lewis, D. B. W. King Spider [Louis XI]. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Fiction

Mabie, M. L. The saints, the devil & the king. (My '30)

Louis XIII, king of France
Crump, L. Nursery life 300 years ago. (S '30)

Louis XVII, king of France
Salomon, G. Shadow-king. (S '30)

Louisiana

History

Schlarman, J. H. From Quebec to New Orleans. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Politics and government

Warmoth, H. C. War, politics and reconstruction. (O '30)

Love
Coster, D. Living and the lifeless. (N '30)
Kagawa, T. Love, the law of life. (My '30)
Müller-Lyer, F. C. Evolution of modern marriage. (Je '30)
Wittels, F. Critique of love. (Ap '30)

Love (theology)
Moffatt, J. Love in the New Testament. (Je '30)
Love and marriage. Hall, W. S. (Ap '30)
Love and the Luxembourg. Aldington, R. (S '30)
Love at forty. Frondaie, P., pseud. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Love by accident. Wilkinson, L. U. (Ag '30)
Love in the machine age. Dell, F. (Je '30)
Love in the New Testament. Moffatt, J. (Je '30)
Love letters. Haeckel, E. H. P. A. (Je '30)
Love lies bleeding. Reid, A. A. (N '30)
Love life of Venus. Miomandre, F. de. (O '30)
Love of Jeanne Ney. Ehrenburg, I. G. (Mr '30)
Love of nature among the Greeks and Romans. Fairclough, H. R. (My '30)

Love poetry
Curtiss, M. K., comp. Olive, cypress and palm. (Ag '30)
Love, the law of life. Kagawa, T. (My '30)
Lovejoy. Burton, B. P. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Love's illusion. Beresford, J. D. (Ap '30)
Love's not enough. Ratel, S. (D '30)
Loyal lover. Widdemer, M. (O '30)

Lubrication and lubricants

Bibliography

Corse, W. M. Bearing metals and bearings. (N '30)

Lucian
Vaughan, A. C. Lucian goes a-voyaging. (Ag '30)
Lucian goes a-voyaging. Vaughan, A. C. (Ag '30)
Lucky prisoner. Gobineau, J. A. (S '30)
Lucy and three. Granger, M. (Je '30)
Lucy Stone. Blackwell, A. S. (N '30)

Lull, Ramón
Peers, E. A. Ramon Lull. (My '30)

Lumbering
Blair, W. A. Raft pilot's log. (Je '30)
Lupe goes to school. Brann, E. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Lure of the frontier. Gabriel, R. H. (Je '30)

Luther, Martin
Febvre, L. P. V. Martin Luther. (My '30)
Mackinnon, J. Luther and the reformation, v 3-4. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Fiction

Molo, W. von. Brother Luther. (Ag '30)
Luther and the reformation. v 3-4. Mackinnon, J. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Lutheran church
Ferm, V. T. A., ed. What is Lutheranism? (S '30)

Luzon

Description and travel

Barton, R. F. Half-way sun. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Lyon, Walter Hastings. See Lyon, H.
Lyric America. Kreymborg, A., ed. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Lysistrata. Aristophanes. (N '30)

Maartens, Maarten, pseud. (Jozua Marius Willem vander Poorten-Schwartz)
Maartens, M., pseud. Letters. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

McCormick, Cyrus Hall
Hutchinson, W. T. Cyrus Hall McCormick. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

McDonagh, John

Fiction

Whitman, W. Contradance. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

MacDonald, James Ramsay
Hamilton, M. A. J. Ramsay MacDonald. (Je '30)

Macfadden, Bernarr Adolphus
Oursler, F. True story of Bernarr Macfadden. (My '30)
Perkins, G. Chats with the Macfadden family. (My '30)
Wood, C. Bernarr Macfadden. (My '30)

Machiavelli, Niccolò
Ferrara, O. Private correspondence of Nicolo Machiavelli. (Mr '30)
Machine made man. Bent, S. (My '30)

Machinery
Beard, C. A., ed. Toward civilization. (Je '30)
Pupin, M. I. Romance of the machine. (Je '30)
Randall, J. H. Our changing civilization. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

History

Chase, S. Men and machines. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Machinery in industry
Bent, S. Machine made man. (My '30)
Chase, S. Men and machines. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Ford, H., and Crowther, S. Moving forward. (D '30)

Machu Picchu, Peru
Bingham, H. Machu Picchu. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Machu Picchu. Bingham, H. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

McKenzie, Robert Tait
Hussey, C. Tait McKenzie. (Ap '30)

Mad Shelley. Ullman, J. R. (Ag '30)
Mad shepherdess. Brooke, H. (Je '30)
Madame de Maintenon. Cruttwell, M. (O '30)
Madame de Staël and the United States. Hawkins, R. L. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Madcap queen; the story of Marguerite of Navarre. Rival, P. (S '30)
Madder music. Cram, M. (Ap '30)
Made in Mexico. Smith, S. C. (N '30)
Madman's drum. Ward, L. K. (Ja '31)
Madol, Hans Roger, pseud. See Salomon, G.
Magazine article writing. Brennecke, E., and Clark, D. L. (S '30)
Magazines and newspapers of today. Campbell, G., and Thomas, R. B. (Je '30)
Magellan, Ferdinand
  Benson, E. F. Ferdinand Magellan. (Ap '30)
Maggie of the suicide fleet. Buranelli, P. (Je '30)
Magic
  Allier, R. S. P. Mind of the savage. (F '31) (1929 Annual)
  Róheim, G. Animism, magic, and the divine king. (D '30)
Magic of books. Sanford, A. P., and Schauffler, R. H., eds. (My '30)
Magic of the book. Orcutt, W. D. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Magic of the stars. Maeterlinck, M. (Je '30)
Magic spades. Magoffin, R. V. D., and Davis, E. C. (Ap '30)
Magill, Marcus, pseud. See Hill, B.
Magnificent illusion. Barrett, E. J. B. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Magnificent obsession. Douglas, L. C. (Mr '30)
Magnificent sin. Tellier, A. (N '30)
Mahābhārata
  Meyer, J. J. Sexual life in ancient India. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Mahatma Gandhi; his own story. Gandhi, M. K. (N '30)
Mahatma Gandhi's ideas. Andrews, C. F. (Ap '30)
Main currents in American thought, v 3. Parrington, V. L. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Maine
Description and travel
  Maine writers research club. Maine, past & present. (Ag '30)
History
  Maine writers research club. Maine, past & present. (Ag '30)
Maine, past & present. Maine writers research club. (Ag '30)
Mainly horses. Rhys, E., and Scott, C. A., eds. (Mr '30)
Maintenon, François d'Aubigné, marquise de
  Cruttwell, M. Madame de Maintenon. (O '30)
Make-believe. Cuthrell, F. (D '30)
Makers of modern Europe. Sforza, C. (Je 30)
Makers of the unwritten constitution. Munro, W. B. (Ap '30)
Making a new China. Park, N. Y. (Mr '30)
Making money in the stock market. Foster, O. D. (S '30)
Making of chemistry. Harrow, B. (My '30)
Making of new Germany. Scheidemann, P. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Malay archipelago
  Mjöberg, E. G. Forest life and adventures in the Malay archipelago. (N '30)
Malory, Sir Thomas
  Vinaver, E. Malory. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Malta, Knights of
  Schermerhorn, E. W. Malta of the knights. (Ap '30)
Malta of the knights. Schermerhorn, E. W. (Ap '30)
Maltese falcon. Hammett, D. (Ap '30)
Mammals
  Howell, A. B. Aquatic mammals. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Mammon. Wren, P. C. (Je '30)
Man
  Baitsell, G. A., ed. Evolution of earth and man. (My '30)
  Cowdry, E. V., ed. Human biology and racial welfare. (S '30)
  Ellis, H. Man and woman. (Ap '30)
Influence of environment
  Hulbert, A. B. Soil. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Huntington, C. C., and Carlson, F. A. Environmental basis of social geography. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Jennings, H. S. Biological basis of human nature. (Je '30)
Origin
  Tilney, F. Master of destiny. (Ap '30)
Man, Prehistoric
  Luquet, G. H. Art and religion of fossil man. (S '30)
  Smith, G. E. Human history. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
South America
  Poindexter, M. Ayar-Incas. (O '30)
Man and his universe. Langdon-Davies, J. (S '30)
Man and social achievement. Babcock, D. C. (S '30)
Man and the stars. Stetson, H. T. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Man and woman. Ellis, H. (Ap '30)
Man at Willow ranch. Bindloss, H. (Je '30)
Man called Eighty-eighty. Hinds, R. W. (Ag '30)
The man Charles Dickens. Wagenknecht, E. C. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Man from Limbo. Endore, S. G. (D '30)
Man hunting in the jungle. Dyott, G. M. (My '30)
Man in the red hat. Hosken, C. J. W. (O '30)
Man of a hundred faces. Leroux, G. (Ag '30)
Man of God. Keyserling, E. H. N. von. (S '30)
Man they couldn't escape. Eng title of: You gotta be rough. Fiaschetti, M. (Mr '30)
Man vs. microbes. Kopeloff, N (Je '30)
Man who lost himself. Sitwell, O. (Ap '30)
Man who was there. Holdaway, N. A. (Ag '30)
Man with the squeaky voice. Walling, R. A. J. (Ap '30)
Man with the X-ray eyes. Frøisland, F. (Ag '30)
Man without a necktie. Hauser, E. (Ap '30)
Man without pity. Eng title of: Number naught. Truss, S. (N '30)
Manchuria
  Young, C. W. International relations of Manchuria. (Ap '30)
Mandate system
  Margalith, A. M. International mandates. (N '30)
  Wright, Q. Mandates under the League of nations. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Mandates under the League of nations. Wright, Q. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Manhattan fever. Brookes, S. (S '30)
Manhattan made. Recht, C. (Je '30)
Manhattan night. Wolff, W. A. (Ag '30)
"Manna-hatin." Manhattan company, New York. (My '30)
Manning, Frederic. See Private, 19022, pseud.
Man's consciousness of immortality. Mackenzie, W. D. (S '30)
Manuel de Falla and Spanish music. Trend, J. B. (My '30)
Manufacturer and his outlets. Haring, C. E. (My '30)
Manufactures
Accounting
  Rautenstrauch, W. Successful control of profits. (O '30)
Costs
  Bangs, J. R., jr. Industrial accounting for executives. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Manus (island)
  Mead, M. Growing up in New Guinea. (N '30)
Manuscripts, Greek
  Westermann, W. L., ed. Upon slavery in Ptolemaic Egypt. (N '30)

Manuscripts, Irish
Kenney, J. F. Sources for early history of Ireland, v 1. (N '30)
Manville murders. Fitzsimmons, C. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Many captives. Owen, J. (N '30)
Many snows ago. Deming, T. (My '30)
Maphaeus Vegius and his thirteenth book of the Aeneid. Vegius, M. (O '30)
Margaret (submarine chaser)
Buranelli, P. Maggie of the suicide fleet. (Je '30)
Margaret Fuller. Bell, M. (D '30)
Margaret Yorke. Norris, K. (S '30)
Marguerite de Valois, queen consort of Henry IV, king of France
Mariejol, J. H. Daughter of the Medicis [Margaret of Valois]. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Rival, P. Madcap queen; the story of Marguerite of Navarre. (S '30)
Marie, grand duchess of Russia
Marie, grand duchess of Russia. Education of a princess. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Marie Antoinette, queen consort of Louis XVI, king of France
Palache, J. G. Marie Antoinette. (My '30)
Marine fauna
Howell, A. B. Aquatic mammals. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Juvenile literature
Butler, E. L. Along the shore. (Ag '30)
Marion, Ohio
Wood, C. W. Passing of normalcy. (Ap '30)
Marionettes. Ackley, E. F. (Mr '30)
Marked cancelled. Lincoln, N. S. (Je '30)
Market organization. Vaile, R. S., and Slagsvold, P. L. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Marketing
Camp, R. O. Story of markets. (My '30)
Murphy, J. A. Merchandising through mergers. (F '30) (1930 Annual)
Vaile, R. S., and Slagsvold, P. L. Market organization. (F '31) (1930 Annual) Markets
Camp, R. O. Story of markets. (My '30)
Marks of an educated man. Wiggam, A. E. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Marlborough, John Churchill, 1st duke of Chidsey, D. B. Marlborough. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Marlborough, Sarah (Jennings) Churchill, duchess of Marlborough, S. C. Memoirs. (S '30)
Marlow, Louis, pseud. See Wilkinson, L. U.
Marlowe, Christopher
Boas, F. S. Marlowe and his circle. (Mr '30)
Marlowe and his circle. Boas, F. S. (Mr '30)
Marriage
Adler, F. Incompatibility in marriage. (Je '30)
Crawley, A. E. Studies of savages and sex. (F '31) (1929 Annual)
Dell, F. Love in the machine age. (Je '30)
Hall, W. S. Love and marriage. (Ap '30)
Loebel, J. From marriage to love. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Müller-Lyer, F. C. Evolution of modern marriage. (Je '30)
Pomerai, R. de. Marriage. (S '30)
Presbyterian church in the U. S. A. General assembly. Twenty-four views of marriage. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Russell, B. A. W. Marriage and morals. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Marriage and morals. Russell, B. A. W. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual) Marriage to India. Hauswirth, F. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Mars. Chartier, E. (N '30)
Marse Robert. Young, J. C. (Ap '30)
Marsh, John
Lyman, G. D. John Mash, pioneer. (D '30)
Marsh wife. Wharton, J. B. (Ap '30)
Marshall-Hall, Sir Edward
Marjoribanks, E. For the defence; the life of Sir Edward Marshall Hall. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Marston murder case. Stowell, W. A. (O '30)
Martin Birck's youth. Söderberg, H. E. F. (Je '30)
Martin Luther. Febvre, L. P. V. (My '30)
Marx, Karl
Plekhanov, G. V. Fundamental problems of Marxism. (N '30)
Sée, H. E. Economic interpretation of history. (Je '30)
Mary, Virgin
Legends
Gawalewicz, M. Queen of heaven. (My '30)
Mary Baker Eddy. Powell, L. P. (D '30)
Mary Gladstone (Mrs Drew) her diaries and letters. Drew, M. (Ag '30)
Mary Pinchot (schooner).
Pinchot, G. To the South Seas. (S '30)
Mary Stuart, queen of Scots
Melville, J. Memoirs. (My '30)
Fiction
Beck, L. Duel of the queens. (N '30)
Maryland
Historic houses, etc.
Scarborough, K. Homes of the cavaliers. (F 31) (1930 Annual)
Mary's children. Davis, M. K. (S '30)
Masaryk, Tomáš Garrigue
Lowrie, D. A. Masaryk: nation builder. (Je '30)
Street, C. J. C. Thomas Masaryk of Czechoslovakia. (S '30)
Masaryk: nation builder. Lowrie, D. A. (Je '30)
Massachusetts
Biography
Crawford, M. C. Famous families of Massachusetts. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Morison, S. E. Builders of the Bay Colony. (Ag '30)
Description and travel
Early, E. And this is Boston! (N '30)
Genealogy
Crawford, M. C. Famous families of Massachusetts. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
History
Colonial period
Morison, S. E. Builders of the Bay Colony. (Ag '30)
Rose-Troup, F. Massachusetts Bay company and its predecessors. (N '30)
Washburn, R. C. Prayer for profit. (N '30)
Colonial period—Fiction
Marble, A. From Boston to Boston. (Ag '30)
Massachusetts Bay company
Rose-Troup, F. Massachusetts Bay company and its predecessors. (N '30)
Massachusetts Bay company and its predecessors. Rose-Troup, F. (N '30)
Massachusetts reformatory, Concord
Glueck, S. S. and E. 500 criminal careers. (Mr '30)
Master of destiny. Tilney, F. (Ap '30)
Master of the day of judgment. Perutz, L. (Je '30)
Master Vergil. Nitchie, E., comp. (D '30)
Masterful monk. Dudley, O. F. (Ap '30)
Mastering a metropolis. Duffus, R. L. (My '30)
Mastication
Holck, H. H. G. Diet and efficiency. (O '30)
Mata Hari (Mrs Margaretha Geertruida Zelle)
Coulson, T. Mata Hari. (My '30)
Mata Hari. Coulson, T. (My '30)
Materials for the life of Shakespeare. Butler, P., comp. (O '30)
Materials for the study of public utility economics. Dorau, H. B. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Materials handling equipment. Tournier, E. J. (My '30)
Materials of life. Parsons, T. R. (S '30)
Matter
Buckingham, J. Matter & radiation. (D '30)
Joad, C. E. M. Matter, life and value. (My '30)
Santayana, G. Realm of matter. (D '30)

Matter & radiation. Buckingham, J. (D '30)
Matter, life and value. Joad, C. E. M. (My '30)
Maurice Guest. Richardson, H. H., pseud. (D '30)
Maurizius case. Wassermann, J. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Mavericks. Coburn, W. (Mr '30)
Max Weber. Cahill, H. (D '30)
Maxims
Characters and observations. (O '30)
May it please the court. Beck, J. M. (O '30)
Mayas
Fiction
Malkus, A. S. Dark star of Itza. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Mayo, Katherine
Douglas, N. Good-bye to Western culture. (O '30)
Mazzini, Giuseppe
Mazzini, G. Letters. (O '30)
Meaning of art. McMahon, A. P. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Meaning of culture. Powys, J. C. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Meaning of money. Withers, H. (S '30)
Meaning of mysticism. Riley, W. (O '30)
Measurement of hydrogen ion concentration. Grant, J. (D '30)
Measurement of man. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Mechanical engineering
Handbook, manuals, etc.
Marks, L. S., ed. Mechanical engineers' handbook. (F '31) (1930 Annual) Mechanical engineers' handbook. Marks, L. S., ed. (F '31) (1930 Annual) Mechanical equipment of buildings. Harding, L. A., and Willard, A. C. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Mechanistic theory of life
Needham, J. Sceptical biologist. (Ap '30)
Medal without bar. Blaker, R. (Je '30)
Meddlers. Brock, H. I. (Ag '30)
Mediaeval Latin lyrics. Waddell, H. J. (Je '30)
Medical ethics
Harding, T. S. Fads, frauds and physicians. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Medical jurisprudence
Oliver, J. R. Foursquare. (Ap '30)
Medici, Lorenzo de', called il Magnifico
Loth, D. G. Lorenzo the Magnificent. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Medicine
Addresses, essays, lectures
Peabody, F. W. Doctor and patient. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Winslow, C. E. A. Road to health. (My '30)
History
Oliver, W. W. Stalkers of pestilence. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Tobey, J. A. Riders of the plagues. (D '30)
Practice
Harding, T. S. Fads, frauds and physicians. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Peabody, F. W. Doctor and patient. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Mediterranean Sea
Description and travel
Anderson, I. W. Yacht in Mediterranean seas. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Waugh, E. Bachelor abroad. (D '30)
Yates, M. Miss Morrow sees the Mediterranean. (Ap '30)
Meet the Germans. Phillips, H. A. (Mr '30)
Meeting the bear market. Munn, G. G. (S 30)
Meggy MacIntosh. Gray, E. J. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Melbourne, William Lamb, 2d viscount
Newman, B. Lord Melbourne. (Je '30)
Mellon, Andrew William
Love, P. H. Andrew W. Mellon. (S '30)
Melville, Lewis, pseud. See Benjamin, L. S.
Memoirs of a murder man. Carey, A. A., and McLellan, H. (S '30)
Memoirs of a social democrat. Eng title of: Making of new Germany. Scheidemann, P. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Memoirs of an infantry officer. Sassoon, S. L. (N '30)
Memoirs of Stephen Escott. Eng title of: Stephen Escott. Lewisohn, L. (My '30)
Memoirs of the Comte de Gramont. Hamilton, A. (S '30)
Memories and vagaries. Munthe, A. M. F. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Memories of Lenin. Krupskaya, N. K. (N '30)
Memories of my life. Westermarck, E. A. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Memory
Phelps, W. L. Memory. (Mr '30)
Men and deeds. Julian, Brother. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Men and machines. Chase, S. (F '31) (1929 Annual)
Men in shirt-sleeves. Sheard, B. (Je '30)
Men on the dead man's chest. Raymond, C. S. (My '30)
Men who found out. Williams-Ellis, A. (S '30)
Menace to Mrs Kershaw. Allen, A. (My '30)
Mennonites
Bibliography
Bender, H. S., comp. Two centuries of American Mennonite literature. (N '30)
Mental development of the child. Bühler, K. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Mental discipline
Orage, A. R., ed. Psychological exercises. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Mental hygiene
Crawford, N. A., and Menninger, K. A., eds. Healthy-minded child. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Mental hygiene and social work. Lee, P. R., and others. (Ag '30)
Mental physiology and hygiene
Bianchi, L. Foundations of mental health. (My '30)
Elkind, H. B., ed. Healthy mind. (Je '30)
Groves, E. R., and Blanchard, P. M. Introduction to mental hygiene. (O '30)
Jastrow, J. Piloting your life. (S '30)
Lee, P. R., and others. Mental hygiene and social work. (Ag '30)
Menninger, K. A. Human mind. (Ap '30)
Williams, F. E. Adolescence. (O '30)
Zachry, C. B. Personality adjustments of school children. (Ap '30)
Mental radio. Sinclair, U. B. (S '30)
Mental tests
Bühler, C. First year of life. (N '30)
Hamilton, E. R. Art of interrogation. (Mr '30)
Hollingworth, H. L. Vocational psychology and character analysis. (Ag '30)
Pintner, R. Educational psychology. (F '31) (1929 Annual)
St John, C. W. Educational achievement in relation to intelligence. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Menus
Axtell, L. E. Grow thin on good food. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Chambers, M. D. Table etiquette. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Merchandising through mergers. Murphy, J. A. (F '31) (1930 Annual) Merchant marine
United States
Cutler, C. C. Greyhounds of the sea. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Meredith, George
Sencourt, R. E. Life of George Meredith. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Mergers in industry. National industrial conference board. (F '31) (1930 Annual) Mesopotamia
Antiquities
Woolley, C. L. Ur of the Chaldees. (Ap '30)
Messalina, Valeria
Stadelmann, H. Messalina. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Metabolism
Stephenson, M. Bacterial metabolism. (D '30)

Metal-work
Cooley, R. L., and others. My life work; building and metal trades. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Metallurgical analysis
Naish, W. A., and Clennell, J. E. Select methods of metallurgical analysis. (Ag '30)
Metallurgy
Thews, E. R. Metallurgy of white metal scrap and residues. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Metallurgy of white metal scrap and residues. Thews, E R. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Meteor. Behrman, S. N. (Ag '30)
Meteorology
Elm, I. E. Weather and why. (O '30)
Hobbs, W. H. Exploring about the North pole of the winds. (Je '30)
Whatham, R. Meteorology for aviator and layman. (S '30)
Yancey, L. A. Aerial navigation and meteorology. (Je '30)
Meteorology for aviator and layman. Whatham, R. (S '30)
Methodism
Warner, W. J. Wesleyan movement in the industrial revolution. (Ag '30)
Methodist Episcopal church, South
Smith, R. G. Politics in a protestant church. (O '30)
Methodist faun. Parrish, A. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Methodology
Bliss, H. E. Organization of knowledge and the system of the sciences. (Mr '30)
Piper, R. F., and Ward, P. W. Fields and methods of knowledge. (S '30)
Spahr, W. E., and Swenson, R. J. Methods and status of scientific research. (D '30)
Methods and status of scientific research. Spahr, W. E., and Swenson, R. J. (D '30)
Metropolis of tomorrow. Ferriss, H. (Ap '30)
Metten of Tyre. Carus, H. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Mexican immigration to the United States. Gamio, M. (O '30)
Mexicans in the United States
Gamio, M. Mexican immigration to the United States. (O '30)
Mexico
Church history
Braden, C. S. Religious aspects of the conquest of Mexico. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
History
Conquest, 1519-1540
Braden, C. S. Religious aspects of the conquest of Mexico. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Revolution, 1910-
Guzmán, M. L. Eagle & the serpent. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Social life and customs
Redfield, R. Tepoztlan. (O '30)
Michael Angelo. Merezhkovskii, D. S. (My '30)
Michelangelo Buonarroti
Ludwig, E. Three Titans. (O '30)
Fiction
Merezhkovskii, D. S. Michael Angelo. (My '30)
Microchemistry
Chamot, E. M., and Mason, C. W. Handbook of chemical microscopy. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Micro-organisms
Kopeloff, N. Man vs. microbes. (Je '30)
Microscope and microscopy
Belling, J. Use of the microscope. (N '30)
Chamot, E. M., and Mason, C. W. Handbook of chemical microscopy. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Middle ages
Sitwell, S. Gothick North. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
History
Cambridge medieval history, v 6. (My '30)
Middle watch. Beith, J. H., and King-Hall, S. (F '31) (1930 Annual Midsummernight. Wilhelmson, C. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Migrations of nations
Peake, H. J. E., and Fleure, H. J. Way of the sea. (Ap '30)
Military history
Liddell Hart, B. H. Decisive wars of history. (My '30)
Oman, C. Studies in the Napoleonic wars. (O '30)
Military service, Compulsory
Meyer, E. L. "Hey! yellowbacks!" (My '30)
Milk
Crumbine, S. J., and Tobey, J. A. Most nearly perfect food. (Mr '30)
Eckles, C. H., and others. Milk and milk products. (Je '30)
Milk and milk products. Eckles, C. H., and others. (Je '30)
Millennium. Thurston, E. T. (My '30)
Miller, Joaquin
Wagner, H. Joaquin Miller and his other self. (My '30)
Millie. Clarke, D. H. (N '30)
Millinery
Brown, C. M. Millinery processes. (D '30)
Millinery processes. Brown, C. M. (D '30)
Million pound deposit. Oppenheim, E. P. (My '30)
Millions in mergers. Toulmin, H. A. (Ap '30)
Milton, John
Tillyard, E. M. W. Milton. (N '30)
Mind and body
Cannon, W. B. Bodily changes in pain, hunger, fear and rage. (Ag '30 (1929 Annual)
Morgan, C. L. Mind at the crossways. (N '30)
Mind and the world-order. Lewis, C. I. (My '30)
Mind at the crossways. Morgan, C. L. (N '30)
Mind of St Paul. Holmes, A. (Ag '30)
Mind of the savage. Allier, R. S. P. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Miniature aircraft. Day, O. H., and Vincent, T. (S '30)
The minion. Eng title of: King's minion. Sabatini, R. (D '30)
Miracles
Caesarius, of Heisterbach. Dialogue on miracles (1220-1235). (Mr '30)
Case, S. J. Experience with the supernatural in early Christian times. (S '30)
Miranda, Francisco de
Robertson, W. S. Life of Miranda. (My '30)
Mirror of Kong Ho. Smith, E. B. (N '30)
Mirthful Haven. Tarkington, B. (N '30)
Misleading cases in the common law. Herbert, A. P. (N '30)
Miss Barrett's elopement. Lenanton, C. M. A. (My '30)
Miss Mole. Young, E. H. (N '30)
Miss Morrow sees the Mediterranean. Yates, M. (Ap '30)
Miss Welby at Steen. Marshall, A. (Ap '30)
Missing Katchina. Moon, G. (N '30)
Missing masterpiece. Belloc, H. (Ap '30)
Missing muse. Guedalla, P. (My '30)
The missionary. Marshall, E. (Je '30)
Missions
China
Wu, C.-K. International aspect of the missionary movement in China. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Missions, Foreign
Fleming, D. F. Ways of sharing with other faiths. (S '30)
Missions and pueblos of the old Southwest. Forrest, E. R. (Ap '30)
Missions to seamen
Gollock, G. A. At the sign of the flying angel. (Je '30)
Mississippi river
Blair, W. A. Raft pilot's log. (Je '30)
Eskew, G. L. Pageant of the packets. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Description and travel
Lighty, K. and M. Shanty-boat. (My '30)

Mississippi river—Continued

Floods

Frank, A. De W. Development of the federal program of flood control on the Mississippi River. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Mississippi valley

History

Riegel, R. E. America moves west. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Schlarman, J. H. From Quebec to New Orleans. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Mr. and Mrs. John Quincy Adams. Bobbé, D. (N '30)

Mr. Commissioner Sanders. Wallace, E. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Mr Currier and Mr Ives. Crouse, R. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Mr. Gumble sits up. Durkin, D. L. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Mr. Lloyd George. Mallet, C. E. (N '30)

Mr Mulliner speaking. Wodehouse, P. G. (My '30)

Mrs. Clutterbuck laughs. Pocock, G. N. (My '30)

Mrs Grundy. Markun, L. (Ag '30)

Mrs. Grundy is dead. Webster, D., and Hopkins, M. A., eds. (Ap '30)

Mrs. Sigourney. Haight, G. S. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Mitsou. Jouvenel, G. C. de. (S '30)

Mixed courts of Egypt. Brinton, J. Y. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Mnemonics

Orage, A. R., ed. Psychological exercises. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Moat House mystery. Foster, R. F. (Ap '30)

Modern A B C book. Falls, C. B. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Modern acting. Chalmers, H. (Ag '30)

Modern American painters. Kootz, S. M. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Modern American poetry. Untermeyer, L., ed (O '30)

Modern architecture. Hitchcock, H. R., jt. (My '30)

Modern architecture. Taut, B. (Ap '30)

Modern attitude to the sex problem. Ingram, K. (Ag '30)

Modern continental plays. Tucker, S. M., ed. (My '30)

Modern conversation. Hall, B. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Modern family. Reed, R. (O '30)

Modern French decoration. Kahle, K. M. (S '30)

Modern galaxy. Warren, D., comp. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Modern Italian novel. Vittorini, D. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Modern lighting. Caldwell, F. C. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Modern parent. Myers, G. C. (N '30)

Modern physics. Wulf, T. (N '30)

Modern picture-houses and theaters. Shand, P. M. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Modern political constitutions. Strong, C. F. (Ag '30)

Modern science. Thomson, J. A. (Ag '30)

Modern theatre in revolt. Brown, J. M. (Ap '30)

Modern theatres and cinemas. Eng title of: Modern picture-houses and theatres. Shand, P. M. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Modern typography & layout. McMurtrie, D. C. (My '30)

Modernism

Hawkins, C. J. Do the churches dare? (Mr '30)

Mogreb-el-Acksa. Cunninghame Graham, R. B. (Ag '30)

Mogul empire

Grenard, F. Baber. (N '30)

Mohammed

Dermenghem, E. Life of Mahomet. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Moisture

Smith, J. W. Effects of moisture on chemical and physical changes. (Ap '30)

Molecular theory

Adam, N. K. Physics and chemistry of surfaces. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Molecules

Lawrence, A. S. C. Soap films. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Ruark, A. E., and Urey, H. C. Atoms, molecules and quanta. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Molière, Jean Baptiste Poquelin

Ashton, H. Molière. (S '30)

Palmer, J. Molière. (O '30)

Molly Moonshine. Knevels, G. (S '30)

Monasteries

Palmer, R. L. English monasteries in the middle ages. (D '30)

Monastery by the river. Russell, G. S. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Monasticism and religious orders

Caesarius, of Heisterbach. Dialogue on miracles (1220-1235). (Mr '30)

Chapman, J. Saint Benedict and the sixth century. (S '30)

Palmer, R. L. English monasteries in the middle ages. (D '30)

Monet, Claude

Clemenceau, G. E. B. Claude Monet. (My '30)

Money

Withers, H. Meaning of money. (S '30)

Withers, H. Money. (O '30)

History

Angell, N. Story of money. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Money. Capek, K. (Je '30)

Money value of a man. Dublin, L. I., and Lotka, A. J. (S '30)

Monfreid, Henri de

Monfreid, H. de. Pearls, arms and hashish. (D '30)

Mongolia

Larson, F. A. Larson, duke of Mongolia. (Ag '30)

Description and travel

Strasser, R. Mongolian horde. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Social life and customs

Strasser, R. Mongolian horde. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Mongolian horde. Strasser, R. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Monhegan. Proper, I. S. (N '30)

Monhegan island

Proper, I. S. Monhegan. (N '30)

Monique. Dufour, Y., pseud. (D '30)

Monopolies

National industrial conference board. Mergers in industry. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Toulmin, H. A. Millions in mergers. (Ap '30)

Monroe doctrine

Jones, C. L., and others. United States and the Caribbean. (My '30)

Monstrous regiment. Hollis, C. (S '30)

Montague, Charles Edward

Elton, O. C. E. Montague. (My '30)

Montautre, Yvonne Dufour. See Dufour, Y., pseud.

Montfort, Simon of, earl of Leicester

Bémont, C. Simon de Montfort. (Je '30)

Moody, Dwight Lyman

Moody, W. R. D. L. Moody. (O '30)

Moon mistress, Diane de Poitiers. Orliac, J. d'. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Moonhill mystery. Woodrow, N. M. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Moore, George

Goodwin, G. Conversations with George Moore. (Ag '30)

Moorhead, Elizabeth. See Vermorcken, E.

Moorland Mousie. Golden Gorse, pseud. (S '30)

Moorside feud. Eng title of: Rancher Jim. Bindloss, H. (N '30)

Moral conditions

Dell, F. Love in the machine age. (Je '30)

Moral education
  Bower, W. C. Character through creative experience. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Cabot, E. Temptations to right-doing. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
  Germane, C. E. and E. Character education. (Ag '30)
  Mason, B. S. Camping and education. (S '30)
Morals for moderns. Davis, E. H. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Mordaunt, Elinor, pseud. See Wiehe, E. M.
More about me. Drinkwater, J. (D '30)
More heroes of modern adventure. Bridges, T. C., and Tiltman, H. H. (Je '30)
More invective. Lunn, H. K., ed. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
More ruthless rhymes for heartless homes. Graham, H. J. C. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
More To and again. Brooks, W. R. (N '30)
Moresby, Louis, pseud. See Beck, L.
Morgan, Sir Henry

Fiction

  Bennett, C. M. With Morgan on the Main. (Je '30)
Morgan, John Pierpont
  Corey, L. House of Morgan. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Winkler, J. K. Morgan, the magnificent. (N '30)
Morgan, J. P., and co.
  Corey, L. House of Morgan. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Morgan, the magnificent. Winkler, J. K. (N '30)
Mormons and Mormonism
  Gates, S., and Widtsoe, L. E. Life story of Brigham Young. (N '30)
  Quaife, M. M. Kingdom of Saint James. (Ag '30)
Morning light. Linderman, F. B. (D '30)
Morning star. Negri, A. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Morocco

Description and travel

  Cunninghame Graham, R. B. Mogreb-el-Acksa. (Ag '30)
  Newman, E. M. Seeing Spain and Morocco. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Foreign relations

  Anderson, E. N. First Moroccan crisis, 1904-1906. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Morris, E. G., pseud. See Goldberg, M. E.
Morrow, Dwight Whitney
  Howland, H. H. Dwight Whitney Morrow. (Ag '30)
  McBride, M. M. Story of Dwight W. Morrow. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Mortgage banks
  Madden, J. T., and Nadler, M. Foreign securities. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Morton, Levi Parsons
  McElroy, R. M. Levi Parsons Morton. (Je '30)
Mosaic. Stern, G. B. (N '30)
Moses
  Grant Watson, E. L. Prophet and his God. (My '30)
Most nearly perfect food. Crumbine, S. J., and Tobey, J. A. (Mr '30)
Mote and the beam. Stiles, P. (N '30)
Mother. Asch, S. (N '30)
Mother Alphonsa, Rose Hawthorne Lathrop. Walsh, J. J. (F '31) (1930 Annual) Mother Goose
  Thomas, K. E. Real personages of Mother Goose. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Mother Goose land. Hall, J. N. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Mother of Washington. Turner, N. B., and Gunn, S. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Mother wit. Ries, E. H. (Ag '30)
Mothers cry. Carlisle, H. G. (Mr '30)
Motor-boats
  Burnham, B. Outboard motor boats and engines. (Je '30)
Mound-builders
  Shetrone, H. C. Mound-builders. (N '30)

Mount Zion. Greene, G. (Ap '30)
Mountain City. Sinclair, U. B. (O '30)
Mountain sheep
  Holzworth, J. W. Wild grizzlies of Alaska. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Sheldon, C. Wilderness of Denali. (Ag '30)
Mountain whites (Southern states)
  Risley, E. Road to Wildcat. (Je '30)
Mountaineering
  Muller, E., jr. They climbed the Alps. (Ag '30)
Mountains are free. Adams, J. (D '30)
Moving forward. Ford, H., and Crowther, S. (D '30)
Moving picture plays
  Pitkin, W. B., and Marston, W. M. Art of sound pictures. (Je '30)
Moving picture theaters
  Shand, P. M. Modern picture-houses and theaters. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Moving-pictures
  Grace, D. Squadron of death. (Mr '30)

Biography

  Brundidge, H. T. Twinkie, twinkle, movie star! (D '30)

Censorship

  Ernst, M. L., and Lorentz, P. Censored. (Je '30)

Moral and religious aspects

  Mitchell, A. M. Children and movies. (Je '30)
Moving pictures, Talking
  Pitkin, W. B., and Marston, W. M. Art of sound pictures. (Je '30)
Mukara. Bruce, M. (D '30)
Mulattoes
  Shannon, A. H. Negro in Washington. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Mulberry square. Turner, L. L. (Ag '30)
Municipal corporations
  Walker, H. Federal limitations upon municipal ordinance making power. (Ag '30)
Municipal employees
  White, L. D. Prestige value of public employment in Chicago. (My '30)
Municipal finance
  Buck, A. E. Public budgeting. (My '30)
  Studensky, P. Public borrowing. (N '30)
Municipal government

United States

  MacDonald, A. F. American city government and administration. (My '30)
Municipal ownership

California

  Bird, F. L., and Ryan, F. M. Public owner ship on trial. (S '30)
Mural painting and decoration
  Rivera, D. Frescoes. (Ap '30)
Murder
  Ashton-Wolfe, H. Thrill of evil. (O '30)
  Carey, A. A., and McLellan, H. Memoirs of a murder man. (S '30)
  Logan, G. B. H. Rope, knife and chair. (S '30)
  Pearson, E. L. Instigation of the devil. (N '30)
Murder at high tide. Booth, C. G. (My '30)
Murder at Pienders. Eng title of: Murder through the window. Stokes, F. W. (O '30)
Murder at Red Pass. Bamberger, R. S. and H. R. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Murder at the vicarage. Christie, A. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Murder backstairs. Austin, A. (Ag '30)
Murder by latitude. King, R. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Murder from the grave. Levine, W. (D '30)
Murder in Beacon street. Martyn, W. (Je '30)
Murder in Manhattan. Procter, A. W. (S '30)
Murder in Paris. Campbell, A. O. (S '30)
Murder in the embassy. Diplomat, pseud. (N '30)
Murder in the rain. Collison, W. (Ap '30)
Murder in the State department. Diplomat, pseud. (Je '30)

Murder of Cecily Thane. Ashbrook, H. (O '30)
Murder off Broadway. Falkner, L. (Ap '30)
Murder on the bridge. McAllister, A. (O '30)
Murder on the bus. Gregg, C. F. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Murder on the marsh. Ferguson, J. A. (Je '30)
Murder on the Palisades. Levine, W. (Je '30)
Murder through the window. Stokes, F. W. (O '30)
Murder yet to come. Myers, I. B. (Ap '30)
Murderer returns. Torgerson, E. D. (D '30)
Murders near Mapleton. Flynn, B. (Je '30)
Murray, Sinclair, pseud. See Sullivan, A.
Music
History and criticism
  Buck, P. C. History of music. (O '30)
  Parry, C. H. H. Evolution of the art of music. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Wilm, G. History of music. (S '30)
Manuals, textbooks, etc.
  Parkhurst, W. Anatomy of music. (O '30)
Theory
  Parkhurst, W. Anatomy of music. (O '30)
Russia
  Freeman, J., and others. Voices of October. (Ag '30)
Spain
  Trend, J. B. Manuel de Falla and Spanish music. (My '30)
United States
  Goldberg, I. Tin pan alley. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Rosenfeld, P. Hour with American music. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
  Sayler, O. M. Revolt in the arts. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Music, Popular
  Goldberg, I. Tin pan alley. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Musical instruments
Makers
  James, P. Early keyboard instruments. (D '30)
Musical meter and rhythm
  Cowell, H. New musical resources. (O '30)
Musicale. Steegmüller, F. (N '30)
Musicians
Correspondence, reminiscences, etc.
  Shaw, M. F. Up to now. (Mr '30)
Musicians, American
  Rosenfeld, P. Hour with American music. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Mussolini, Benito
  Kemechey, L. Il duce. (S '30)
Must England lose India? Osburn, A. (O '30)
Must we have war? Smith, F. B. (My '30)
Muster of the vultures. Fairlie, G. (My '30)
My Aunt Angie. McCardell, R. L. (Je '30)
My friend, Mr Edison. Eng title of: Edison as I know him. Ford H., and Crowther, S. (D '30)
My friend the black bass. Hawes, H. B. (S '30)
My life. Trotsky, L., pseud. (Je '30)
My life of magic. Thurston, H. (My '30)
My life with animals. Morse, G. F. (Ag '30)
My life work; building and metal trades. Cooley, R. L., and others. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
My life work; representative industries. Cooley, R. L., and others. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
My old Kentucky home. Butler, L. L. (Ag '30)
My outrageous cousin. Torrey, M. E. (My '30)
My own far towers. Eiker, M. (N '30)
My reminiscences as a cowboy. Harris, F. (My '30)
My six years with the Black watch, 1881-1887. Gordon, J. (Mr '30)
My story. Athavale, P. (S '30)
My system. Nimzowitsch, A. (Mr '30)
My thirty years' war. Anderson, M. (Ag '30)
My tropical air castle. Chapman, F. M. (Mr '30)
Myron T. Herrick. Mott, T. B. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Myself and the theatre. Kommissarzhevskiĭ, F. F. (Ap '30)
Mysteries, Religious
  Macchioro, V. D. From Orpheus to Paul. (S '30)
  Spence, L. Mysteries of Egypt. (Ag '30)
  Willoughby, H. R. Pagan regeneration. (My '30)
Mysteries of Egypt. Spence, L. (Ag '30)
Mysterious Miss Morrisot. Williams, V. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Mysterious Mr Quin. Christie, A. (Ag '30)
Mysterious Sahara. Khun de Prorok, B. (O '30)
Mysterious universe. Jeans, J. H. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Mysterious Waye. Wren, P. C. (D '30)
Mystery and romance of astrology. Thompson, C. J. S. (O '30)
Mystery at Newton Ferry. Meynell, L. W. (O '30)
Mystery maker. Small, A. J. (S '30)
Mystery men of Wall street. Sparling, E. (S '30)
Mystery mile. Allingham, M. (Je '30)
Mystery of a butcher's shop. Mitchell, G. (Je '30)
Mystery of Burnleigh manor. Livingston, W. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Mystery of Hunting's End. Eberhart, M. G. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Mystery of the East Wind. Marfield, D. (My '30)
Mystery of the folded paper. Footner, H. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Mystery of the House of commons. Hope, F. (Ag '30)
Mystery of the open window. Gilbert, A. (Mr '30)
Mystery of the peacock's eye. Flynn, B. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Mystery of 31, New Inn. Freeman, R. A. (Ap '30)
Mystery of World's end. Bamberger, H. R. (D '30)
Mystic will. Brinton, H. H. (N '30)
Mysticism
  Brinton, H. H. Mystic will. (N '30)
  Misciattelli, P. Mystics of Siena. (My '30)
  Riley, W. Meaning of mysticism. (O '30)
Mystics of Siena. Misciattelli, P. (My '30)
Mythology
  Colum, P. Orpheus. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Frazer, J. G. Myths of the origin of fire. (Ag '30)
Mythology, Norse
  Macculloch, J. A. Eddic [mythology]. (S '30)
Myths of the origin of fire. Frazer, J. G. (Ag '30)

N by E. Kent, R. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Nabonidus, king of Babylonia
  Dougherty, R. P. Nabonidus and Belshazzar. (S '30)
Nabonidus and Belshazzar. Dougherty, R. P. (S '30)
Nadaar, Abu, pseud. See Morrough, E. R.
Nadel, Henri, pseud. See Vendel, H. J.
Nantucket, Massachusetts
Social life and customs
  Macy, W. F. Nantucket scrap basket. (S '30)
Nantucket scrap basket. Macy, W. F. (S '30)
Napoleon I, emperor of the French
  Delteil, J. Once there was a man Napoleon. (My '30)
  Johnston, M. Domination. (O '30)
  Merezhkovskiĭ, D. S. Life of Napoleon. (Ap '30)
Fiction
  Aminoff, C. L. C. Storm. (My '30)
Napoleonic wars and German nationalism in Austria. Langsam, W. C. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Narcissus. Roberts, J. H. (Ag '30)
Narrative history of aviation. Goldstrom, J. (My '30)
Narrative of the captivity and restoration of Mrs Mary Rowlandson. Rowlandson, M. (Ag '30)

Natal
History
Bryant, A. T. Olden times in Zululand and Natal. (O '30)
Nation, Mrs Carry Amelia (Moore)
Asbury, H. Carry Nation. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
National characteristics, American
Haldeman-Julius, E. Big American parade. (Mr '30)
Keyserling, H. A. America set free. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
National characteristics, English
Dibelius, W. England. (My '30)
Hueffer, O. M. Some of the English. (S '30)
National characteristics, French
Hayes, C. J. H. France. (Ap '30)
Siegfried, A. France. (Ap '30)
National civil service reform league
Stewart, F. M. National civil service reform league. (Ap '30)
National gallery, London
Whitley, W. T. Art in England, 1821-1837. (S '30)
National income and its purchasing power. King, W. I., and Epstein, L. (O '30)
National parks and reserves
Faris, J. T. Roaming the Rockies. (Ag '30)
National police gazette
Van Every, E. Sins of New York. (D '30)
Nationalism and internationalism. Gibbons, H. A. (Je '30)
Nationalism and nationality
Ferrero, G. Unity of the world. (S '30)
Flournoy, R. W., jr., and Hudson, M. O., eds. Collection of nationality laws of various countries. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Gibbons, H. A. Nationalism and internationalism. (Je '30)
Kohn, H. History of nationalism in the East. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Native soil. Updegraff, A. (Ap '30)
Natural history
Cherrie, G. K. Dark trails. (D '30)
Pycraft, W. P. Random gleanings from nature's fields. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Juvenile literature
Carr, W. H. Stir of nature. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Patch, E. M. Holiday meadow. (Je '30)
Outdoor books
Rutledge, A. H. Peace in the heart. (O '30)
Scoville, S. Wild honey. (Mr '30)
Panama
Chapman, F. M. My tropical air castle. (Mr '30)
Pennsylvania
Weygandt, C. Wissahickon hills. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Natural mother. Dunois, D., pseud. (Mr '30)
Naturalists
Tracy, H. C. American naturists. (Je '30)
Naturalization
Flournoy, R. W., jr., and Hudson, M. O., eds. Collection of nationality laws of various countries. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Nature
Simpson, J. Y. Nature. (My '30)
Nature (esthetics)
Fairclough, H. R. Love of nature among the Greeks and Romans. (My '30)
Nature in literature
Fairclough, H. R. Love of nature among the Greeks and Romans. (My '30)
Nature in poetry
Goldmark, P. D., and Hopkins, M., comps. Gypsy trail, v 2. (Ag '30)
Nature of life. Rignano, E. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Nature of the physical world. Eddington, A. S. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Naval blockade, 1914-1918. Guichard, L. (Ap '30)
Navarre of the North. Darling, E. B. (N '30)
Navigation of aircraft. Ramsey, L. C. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Navy wives. Chambers, W. (Ag '30)
Near and far. Blunden, E. C. (O '30)
Near and the far. Myers, L. H. (My '30)
Needle in the haystack. Matheson, J. (F '31) (1930 Annual) Needlework
Patterns
Finley, R. Old patchwork quilts. (Mr '30)
Negri, Ada. See Garlanda, A.
Negro in American civilization. Johnson, C. S. (S '30)
Negro in Washington. Shannon, A. H. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Negro literature
Collections
Calverton, V. F., ed. Anthology of American Negro literature. (Je '30)
Negro peasant turns cityward. Kennedy, L. V. (N '30)
Negroes
Johnson, C. S. Negro in American civilization. (S '30)
Economic conditions
Kennedy, L. V. Negro peasant turns cityward. (N '30)
Education
Cooley, R. B. School acres. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Employment
Woodson, C. G. Rural negro. (N '30)
Moral and social conditions
Woodson, C. G. Rural negro. (N '30)
District of Columbia
Shannon, A. H. Negro in Washington. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
New York (city)
Johnson, J. W. Black Manhattan. (S '30)
South Carolina
Woofter, T. J. Black yeomanry. (O '30)
Negroes in Jamaica
Beckwith, M. W. Black roadways. (F '31) (1929 Annual)
Negroes in literature and art
Johnson, J. W. Black Manhattan. (S '30)
Nelson, Horatio Nelson, viscount
Forester, C. S. Lord Nelson. (Mr '30)
Nelson W. Aldrich. Stephenson, N. W. (N '30)
Nero, emperor of Rome
Weigall, A. E. P. B. Nero, the singing emperor of Rome. (D '30)
Nero, the singing emperor of Rome. Weigall, A. E. P. B. (D '30)
Nesbit, E. See Bland, E.
Netherlands
History
Tromp, M. H. Journal, anno 1639. (N '30)
History, Naval
Tromp, M. H. Journal, anno 1639. (N '30)
Neuroses
Adler, A. Problems of neurosis. (Ap '30)
New American literature, 1890-1930. Pattee, F. L. (D '30)
New American prayer book. Chorley, E. C. (Ap '30)
New approach to modern European history. Smith, E. T. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
New approach to poetry. Chapin, E., and Thomas, R. B. (My '30)
New backgammon. Boyden, E. C. (D '30)
New criticism. Burgum, E. B., ed. (D '30)
New despotism. Hewart of Bury, G. H. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
New economic order. Page, K., ed. (Je '30)
New education in Austria. Dottrens, R. (S '30)
New education in Europe. Roman, F. W. (Je '30)
New education in the German republic. Alexander, T., and Parker, B. (My '30)
New education in the Soviet republic. Pinkevich, A. P. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

New empires. Bickel, K. A. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

New England

Biography

Bolton, C. K. Real founders of New England. (D '30)

Church history

Schneider, H. W. Puritan mind. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

History

Proper, I. S. Monhegan. (N '30)

Colonial period

Bolton, C. K. Real founders of New England. (D '30)

Social life and customs

Hopkins, M. Early letters. (Ap '30)

New evolution. Clark, A. H. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

New found land. MacLeish, A. (S '30)

New France

Discovery and exploration

Schlarman, J. H. From Quebec to New Orleans. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

New frontiers of physics. Heyl, P. R. (O '30)

New generation. Calverton, V. F., and Schmalhausen, S. D., eds. (Ag '30)

New German fairy tales. Lebermann, N. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

New German republic. Luehr, E. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

New girls for old. Blanchard, P. M., and Manasses, C. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

New ground of criticism. Calverton, V. F. (My '30)

New Guinea

Social life and customs

Mead, M. Growing up in New Guinea. (N '30)

New Harmony, Indiana

Fiction

Snedeker, C. D. Beckoning road. (My '30)

New humanism. Samson, L. (D '30)

New letters and papers. Lincoln, A. (Je '30)

New levels in the stock market. Dice, C. A. (S '30)

New light on the youth of Dante. Leigh, G. (My '30)

New musical resources. Cowell, H. (O '30)

New preaching. Newton, J. F. (Je '30)

New views of evolution. Conger, G. P. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

New world architecture. Cheney, S. W. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

New world of physical discovery. Darrow, F. L. (Je '30)

New worlds to conquer. Halliburton, R. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

New York. Fleming, E. (Mr '30)

New York (city)

Description

Brock, H. I. New York is like this. (Mr '30)

Duffus, R. L. Mastering a metropolis. (My '30)

Fleming, E. New York. (Mr '30)

Morand, P. New York. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Palmer, G. Shopping guide to New York. (O '30)

Fires and fire prevention

Asbury, H. Ye olde fire laddies. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

History

Abbott, W. C. New York in the American revolution. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Manhattan company, New York. "Mannahatin." (My '30)

Perine, E. T. B. Here's to Broadway! (Ap '30)

Sanitary affairs

Davis, M. M., and Jarrett, M. C. Health inventory of New York city. (S '30)

Streets

Perine, E. T. B. Here's to Broadway! (Ap '30)

New York (state)

Politics and government

Hackenburg, F. L. Solitary parade. (Ag '30)

New Year's eve. Frank, W. D. (Mr '30)

New York. Ferber, N. J. (My '30)

New York. Morand, P. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

New York employing printers' association, inc.

Morgan, C. E. Origin and history of the New York employing printers' association. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

New York in the American revolution. Abbott, W. C. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

New York is like this. Brock, H. I. (Mr '30)

New York school of social work

Lee, P. R., and others. Mental hygiene and social work. (Ag '30)

New Zealand

Economic conditions

Condliffe, J. B. New Zealand in the making. (S '30)

Politics and government

Condliffe, J. B. New Zealand in the making. (S '30)

Social conditions

Condliffe, J. B. New Zealand in the making. (S '30)

New Zealand in the making. Condliffe, J. B. (S '30)

Newer ways with children. O'Shea, M. V. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Newfoundland

History

Cambridge history of the British empire, v 6. (D '30)

Newman, Frances

Newman, F. Frances Newman's letters. (Ap '30)

Newman, John Henry

May, J. L. Cardinal Newman. (Je '30)

Newspapers

Campbell, G., and Thomas, R. B. Magazines and newspapers of today. (Je '30)

Jones, R. W. Editorial page. (O '30)

Norton, W. B. Church and newspaper. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Safley, J. C. Country newspaper and its operation. (O '30)

England

Shaaber, M. A. Some forerunners of the newspaper in England, 1476-1622. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Nigeria

Wilson-Haffenden, J. R. Red men of Nigeria. (D '30)

Night club mystery. Jordan, E. G. (My '30)

Night in the valley. Wister, M. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Night nurse. Macy, D. (S '30)

Night of the fog. Gilbert, A. (D '30)

Nighthawks! Brandon, J. G. (My '30)

Nineteen. Fadfeev, A. A. (My '30)

Nineteenth century

Barton, M., and Sitwell, O., eds. Sober truth. (O '30)

Somervell, D. C. English thought in the nineteenth century. (Je '30)

Wingfield-Stratford, E. C. Those earnest Victorians. (N '30)

Ninety Six. McCants, E. C. (Ag '30)

Ninety years at the Isles of Shoals. Laighton, O. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Nipsya. Bugnet, G. (Je '30)

No goodness in the worm. Taylor, G. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

No hard feelings! Barkley, J. L. (N '30)

No man's land. Eng title of Unknown soldier. Bartlett, V. (S '30)

No popery. Thurston, H. (D '30)

The "noble experiment." Fisher, I., and Brougham, H. B. (N '30)

Noddy goes a-plowing. Baker, M. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

None so pretty. Irwin, M. E. F. (My '30)

The noose. MacDonald, P. (Je '30)

Normandy
  Biography
  Watson, P. B. Tales of Normandie. (O '30)
  Description and travel
  Huddleston, S. Between the river and the hills. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  History
  Watson, P. B. Tales of Normandie. (O '30)
  Social life and customs
  Huddleston, S. Between the river and the hills. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
North Carolina
  Economic conditions
  Hobbs, S. H., jr. North Carolina. (D '30)
  Social conditions
  Hobbs, S. H., jr. North Carolina. (D '30)
  Rhyne, J. J. Some southern cotton mill workers and their villages. (Je '30)
North Carolina. Hobbs, S. H., jr. (D '30)
North of Suez. McFee, W. (Je '30)
North pole
  Swedish society for anthropology and geography. Andrée's story. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Northcliffe, Alfred Charles William Harmsworth, 1st viscount
  Fyfe, H. H. Northcliffe. (N '30)
Northern Italy. Baedeker, K., firm, publishers. (D '30)
Northern Rocky Mountain trees and shrubs. Kirkwood, J. E. (D '30)
Northwest, Canadian
  History
  Innis, H. A. Fur trade in Canada. (N '30)
Norwegians in the United States
  Ræder, O. M. America in the forties. (My '30)
Not on the screen. Fuller, H. B. (Ap '30)
Not so quiet. Eng title of: Stepdaughters of war. Smith, H. Z. (Je '30)
Not without dust and heat. Martyr, W. (Je '30)
Not without laughter. Hughes, L. (O '30)
Notable short stories of today. Knickerbocker, E. Van B., ed. (Ap '30)
Note in music. Lehman, R. (O '30)
Nothing to pay. Evans, C. (N '30)
Novelists
  Cross, W. L. Four contemporary novelists. (D '30)
Novels and novelists. Mansfield, K., pseud. (D '30)
Number. Dantzig, T. (O '30)
Number concept
  Dantzig, T. Number. (O '30)
Number naught. Truss, S. (N '30)
Number of things. Slosson, E. E. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Nursery life 300 years ago. Crump, L. (S '30)
Nursery school procedure. Foster, J., and Mattson, M. L. (Je '30)
Nursery schools
  Dixon, C. M. Children are like that. (S '30)
  Foster, J., and Mattson, M. L. Nursery school procedure. (Je '30)
Nurses and nursing
  Turner, C. E., and others. Home nursing and child care. (Je '30)
Nutcracker of Nuremberg. Dumas, A. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Nutrition
  Blunt, K., and Cowan, R. Ultraviolet light and vitamin D in nutrition. (N '30)
  Crumbine, S. J., and Tobey, J. A. Most nearly perfect food. (Mr '30)
  Rosewarne, D. D. Science of nutrition simplified. (My '30)

O rare content. Lanier, H. W. (S '30)
Obelisk. Rollins, W. (Ag '30)
Oberammergau
  Jais, R. Legendary Germany, Oberammergau and Bayreuth. (D '30)
Objectives and procedures in civic education. Peters, C. C. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Oblomov. Goncharov, I. A. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
O'Brien, Mrs Edward Joseph Harrington. See Wilson, R.
Occult sciences
  Mann, T. Three essays. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
  Saurat, D. Literature and occult tradition. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Spence, L. Mysteries of Egypt. (Ag '30)
Occupations
  Cades, H. R. Jobs for girls. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Cooley, R. L., and others. My life work; building and metal trades. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Cooley, R. L., and others. My life work; representative industries. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Occupied territory. Ritchie, A. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Ocean
  Marmer, H. A. The sea. (N '30)
Ocean parade. Michelson, F., and Byrne, L. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Ochrana. Vasil'ev, A. T. (N '30)
O'Connell, Daniel
  Gwynn, D. R. Daniel O'Connell. (Je '30)
Octagon crystal. Foley, P. (Ap '30)
The octangle. Sachs, E. L. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Off the arm. Marquis, D. (Ag '30)
The office and tomorrow's business. Walker, L. C. (S '30)
Office management
  Walker, L. C. The office and tomorrow's business. (S '30)
Office wife. Cuthrell, F. (O '30)
O'Flaherty, Liam
  O'Flaherty, L. Two years. (N '30)
Ogier the Dane
  Hyde, M. P. Singing sword. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Oil fields in the United States. Ver Wiebe, W. A. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Oils and fats
  Zapoleon, L. B. Inedible animal fats in the United States. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Ol' King David and the Philistine boys. Bradford, R. (My '30)
Old age
  Martin, L. J., and De Gruchy, C. Salvaging old age. (Ap '30)
  Sokolov, B. F. Bio-dynamics. (S '30)
Old Boston (England). Lambert, M. R., and Walker, R. (N '30)
Old China trade. Dulles, F. R. (N '30)
Old Doc Lemmon. Lemmon, R. S. (Ag '30)
Old English furniture for the small collector. Blake J. P., and Reveirs-Hopkins, A. E. (Ag '30)
Old love and the new. Waller, W. W. (S '30)
Old pastures. Colum, P. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Old patchwork quilts. Finley, R. (Mr '30)
Old regime in France. Funck-Brentano, F. (Mr '30)
Old time college president. Schmidt, G. P. (Je '30)
Old watermills and windmills. Eng title of: Old windmills of England. Hopkins, R. T. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Old windmills of England. Hopkins, R. T. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Old-world Germany of to-day. Maxwell, G. (Mr '30)
Olden times in Zululand and Natal. Bryant, A. T. (O '30)
Olive, cypress and palm. Curtiss, M. K., comp. (Ag '30)
Oliver, George. See Onions, O., pseud.
Oliver, John Rathbone
  Oliver, J. R. Foursquare. (Ap '30)
Oman, Carola. See Lenanton, C. M. A.
Omnibus of adventure. Grove, J., ed. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
On board the Emma. Dumas, A. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
On Forsyte 'change. Galsworthy, J. (N '30)

On home soil with Bob Davis. Davis, R. H. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
On Puget Sound. Walkinshaw, R. (Mr '30)
On the margins of old books. Lemaître, J. (Ap '30)
On the old west coast. Bell, H. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
On the trail. Eng title of: My reminiscences as a cowboy. Harris, F. (My '30)
On the up and up. Barton, B. (O '30)
On virgin soil. Olden, B. (My '30)
Once there was a man Napoleon. Deiteil, J. (My '30)
Once to Tiger Bay. Townend, W. (My '30)
One flesh. Forbes, R. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
100,000 years of art. Goldberg, M. E. (D '30)
One Lord, one faith. Johnson, V. C. (Ap '30)
One lovely moron. Cary, L. (My '30)
One of us is a murderer. Le May, A. (S '30)
Only saps work. Terrett, C. (S '30)

Ontology
Santayana, G. Realm of matter. (D '30)
Open road in England. Prioleau, J. (My '30)
Open secret. Onions, O., pseud. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Openers of the gate. Beck, L. (O '30)

Opera
Stories, plots, etc.
Newman, E. Stories of the great operas, v 1-2. (My '30)
Chicago
Moore, E. C. Forty years of opera in Chicago. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Opium murders. Clyde, L. W. (D '30)
Opportunities in aviation. Hinton, W. (My '30)

Orchids
Morris, F., and Eames, E. A. Our wild orchids. (Ap '30)
Order work for libraries. Drury, F. K. W. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
"Orderly!" Werner, M. R. (My '30)
Oregon detour. Jones, N. (Ap '30)

Oregon trail
Laut, A. C. Overland trail. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Page, E. Wagons west. (D '30)
Fiction
Hargreaves, S. Heroine of the prairies. (D '30)
Organization of knowledge and the system of the sciences. Bliss, H. E. (Mr '30)

Oriental literature
Carpenter, F. I. Emerson and Asia. (N '30)
Oriental memories of a German diplomatist. Rosen, F. (O '30)
Origin and development of the University of California. Ferrier, W. W. (S '30)
Origin and history of the New York employing printers' association. Morgan, C. E. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Ornamental dwarf fruit trees. Abjornson, E. (Je '30)
Orphan of eternity. Heinrich, C. (Ag '30)
Orphan of Mars. Cannan, J. (Je '30)

Orpheus
Macchioro, V. D. From Orpheus to Paul. (S '30)
Orpheus. Colum, P. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Orpheus. Reinach, S. (Ag '30)

Ossoli, Sarah Margaret (Fuller) marchesa d'
Bell, M. Margaret Fuller. (D '30)
Other bullet. Mavity, N. B. (S '30)
Other half. Coe, C. F. (N '30)
Other man's saucer. Winter, J. K. (D '30)
Other side of government. Lawrence, D. (Mr '30)
Otto Babendiek. Eng title of: The anvil. Frenssen, G. (Ag '30)
Our America. Coffman, R. (Ag '30)
Our changing civilization. Randall, J. H. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Our cities, to-day and to-morrow. Hubbard, T. and H. V. (Mr '30)
Our criminal courts. Moley, R. (N '30)
Our government. Cain, J. M. (S '30)
Our heavenly Father. Green, P. (N '30)
Our new religion. Fisher, H. A. L. (Ap '30)
Our perfecting world. Mānekjī Nasarvānjī Dhālā. (D '30)
Our president Herbert Hoover. Marsh, W. J., jr. (O '30)
Our secret war. Johnson, T. M. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Our singing strength. Kreymborg, A. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Our times, v 3. Sullivan, M. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Our wants and how they are satisfied. Carroll, M. R. (N '30)
Our wild orchids. Morris, F., and Eames, E. A. (Ap '30)
Out of childhood. Odoevtzeva, I. (N '30)
Out of Erin. Stringer, A. J. A. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Out of nymph—. Robinson, C. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Outboard motor boats and engines. Burnham, B. (Je '30)
Outlaw years. Coates, R. M. (O '30)

Outlaws
Coates, R. M. Outlaw years. (O '30)
Outlaws of Eden. Kyne, P. B. (D '30)
Outline of art. Orpen, W., ed. (O '30)
Outlines of biochemistry. Gortner, R. A. (Je '30)
Outpost of Arden. Patrick, D., pseud. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Outside of the world. Chapin, K. G. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Outward bound. Vane, S. (Je '30)
Over the hills. Farnol, J. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Overland journeys to the Pacific
Banning, W. and G. H. Six horses. (Je '30)
Dickson, A. J. Covered wagon days. (Ap '30)
Laut, A. C. Overland trail. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Manly, W. L. Death Valley in '49. (S '30)
Page, E. Wagons west. (D '30)
Pancoast, C. E. Quaker forty-niner. (Ag '30)
Overland trail. Laut, A. C. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Owen, Caroline Dale, pseud. See Snedeker, C. D.
The owner lies dead. Perry, T. (S '30)

Oxidation, Physiological
Michaelis, L. Oxidation-reduction potentials. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Oxidation-reduction potentials. Michaelis, L. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Oxy-acetylene welder's handbook. Hendricks, M. S. (Ap '30)

Oxyacetylene welding
Hendricks, M. S. Oxy-acetylene welder's handbook. (Ap '30)

Pablo Casals. Littlehales, L. (Ap '30)
Pacific area. Blakeslee, G. H. (O '30)

Pacific coast
Discovery and exploration
Wagner, H. R. Spanish voyages to the northwest coast of America in the sixteenth century. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Pacific Ocean
Institute of Pacific relations. 1929. Problems of the Pacific, 1929. (N '30)
Pacificism in the modern world. Allen, D., ed. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Packets
Eskew, G. L. Pageant of the packets. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Pact of Paris, 1928
Butler, N. M. Path to peace. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Paez, Jose Antonio
Cunninghame Graham, R. B. José Antonio Páez. (Ap '30)
Pagan regeneration. Willoughby, H. R. (My '30)

Page, Evelyn. See Scarlett, R. pseud.
Pageant of the packets. Eskew, G. L. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Painted pig. Morrow, E. (N '30)
Painted minx. Chambers, R. W. (Ag '30)
Painter in history. Short, E. H. (My '30)

Painters
Cortissoz, R. Painter's craft. (My '30)
Short, E. H. Painter in history. (My '30)

Painters, American
Kootz, S. M. Modern American painters. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Painter's craft. Cortissoz, R. (My '30)
Painters of the modern mind. Allen, M. C. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Painting
Allen, M. C. Painters of the modern mind. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Cortissoz, R. Painter's craft. (My '30)
Friedländer, M. J. Genuine and counterfeit. (O '30)
History
Orpen, W., ed. Outline of art. (O '30)
Short, E. H. Painter in history. (My '30)
Technique
Chase, J. C. An artist talks about color. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
United States
Kootz, S. M. Modern American painters. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Painting, Ancient
Swindler, M. H. Ancient painting. (My '30)
Painting, Italian
Berenson, B. Italian painters of the renaissance. (S '30)
Painting, Spanish
History
Post, C. R. History of Spanish painting. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Painting, Venetian
Powers, H. H. Venice and its art. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Paintings
Manning-Sanders, J. Drawings and paintings. (Ap '30)
Paiute Indians
Lee, B. Death Valley. (Ag '30)
Pal. Jenkins, A. C. (S '30)
Paleobotany
Crookall, R. Coal measure plants. (Mr '30)
Paleontology
Bradley, J. H., jr. Parade of the living. (D '30)
Merriam, J. C. Living past. (My '30)
Juvenile literature
Reed, W. M. Earth for Sam. (Ap '30)
Walker, E. B., and Mook, C. C. Tales of the first animals. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Palestine
Description and travel
Holmes, J. H. Palestine to-day and to-morrow. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Meier-Graefe, J. Pyramid and temple. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Race question
Holmes, J. H. Palestine to-day and tomorrow. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Palestine to-day and to-morrow. Holmes, J. H. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Palmer, John Leslie. See Beeding, F., pseud.
Pamela's spring song. Roberts, C. (Ap '30)
Pancho and his burro. Gay, Z. and J. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Panics
Fisher, I. Stock market crash—and after. (Je '30)
Papacy
Bagnani, G. Rome and the papacy. (Ap '30)
Bury, J. B. History of the papacy in the nineteenth century. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Papago Indians
Legends
Wright, H. B. Long ago told. (My '30)
Paper making and trade
Hunter, D. Papermaking through eighteen centuries. (N '30)
Paper profits. Train, A. C. (Je '30)
Papermaking through eighteen centuries. Hunter, D. (N '30)
Parachute. Murphy, C. J. V. (S '30)
Parachutes
Dixon, C. Parachutes for airmen. (N '30)
Glassman, D. Jump! (Je '30)
Hartz, R. S., and Hall, E. E. Airplane mechanics rigging handbook. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Murphy, C. J. V. Parachute. (S '30)
Parachutes for airmen. Dixon, C. (N '30)
Parade ground. Deitrick, J. (N '30)
Parade of the living. Bradley, J. H., jr. (D '30)
Paramount poems. Bishop, M. (Mr '30)
Parasites
Taliaferro, W. H. Immunology of parasitic infections. (S '30)
Paris
Description
Escholier, R. Paris. (S '30)
History
Commune, 1871
Mason, E. S. Paris commune. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Paris. Escholier, R. (S '30)
Paris commune. Mason, E. S. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Paris gun. Miller, H. W. (Ap '30)
Park avenue. Vanderbilt, C. (S '30)
Parker, Seth, pseud. See Lord, P. H.
Parliament and the British Empire. Schuyler, R. L. (F '31) (1929 Annual)
Parlor, bedlam and bath. Perelman, S. J., and Reynolds, Q. J. (O '30)
Parry, Sir Charles Hubert Hastings, bart.
Greene, G. M. Two witnesses. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Parties. Van Vechten, C. (O '30)
Party dress. Hergesheimer, J. (Je '30)
Party government in the United States. Davis, J. W. (S '30)
Party of baccarat. Byrne, D. (Ag '30)
Pascal, Blaise
Chevalier, J. Pascal. (N '30)
Pasma, Henry Kay
Pasma, H. K. Close-hauled [Henry Kay Pasma]. (Ag '30)
Pass, stranger. Mackeson, P. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Passing of normalcy. Wood, C. W. (Ap '30)
Passion flower. Norris, K. (Ap '30)
Passion week. Bundy, W. E. (D '30)
Passionate angel. Fraser, F. L. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Passionate rebel [Lord Byron]. Edschmid, K. (N '30)
Patchwork plays. Field, R. L. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Paterson, William
Hart, F. R. Disaster of Darien. (Ap '30)
Path to peace. Butler, N. M. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Patriot's progress. Williamson, H. (S '30)
Pattern of chance. Gardiner, G. (Ap '30)
Pattern of life. Adler, A. (N '30)
Patty pans. La Ganke, F. (Ap '30)
Paul, Saint
Enslin, M. S. Ethics of Paul. (S '30)
Holmes, A. Mind of St Paul. (Ag '30)
Larrimer, M. Life of Paul of Tarsus. (My '30)
Macchioro, V. D. From Orpheus to Paul. (S '30)
Powel, H. W. H. Invincible Jew. (N '30)
Paul Du Chaillu, gorilla hunter. Vaucaire, M. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Paul Revere. Taylor, E. G. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Paul Robeson, Negro. Robeson, E. G. (S '30)
Pauline, favorite sister of Napoleon. Carlton, W. N. C. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Paved path. Hambledon, P. (Je '30)
Pavilion by the lake. Rees, A. J. (D '30)
Pay day. Asch, N. (Ap '30)
Payment in full. Carfrae, E. (Ag '30)
Peace
Allen, D., ed. Pacificism in the modern world. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Butler, N. M. Path to peace. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Cadman, S. P. Peace. (Mr '30)
Curti, M. E. American peace crusade, 1815-1860. (N '30)

Peace—Continued
Hall, R. C. Facing the issue squarely. (D '30)
MacDonald, J. R. American speeches. (O '30)
Phelps, C. Anglo-American peace movement in the mid-nineteenth century. (D '30)
Smith, F. B. Must we have war? (My '30)
Smuts, J. C. Africa and some world problems. (Je '30)
Union of soviet socialist republics. Soviet union and peace. (N '30)
Poetry
Burns, V. G., comp. Red harvest. (Je '30)
Peace. Garborg, A. (Mr '30)
Peace conference, 1919
Nevins, A. Henry White. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Peace in the heart. Rutledge, A. H. (O '30)
Peace societies
Curti, M. E. American peace crusade, 1815-1860. (N '30)
Pearl diver. Berge, V., and Lanier, H. W. (Mr '30)
Pearl-fisheries
Berge, V., and Lanier, H. W. Pearl diver. (Mr '30)
Pearls, arms and hashish. Monfreid, H. de. (D '30)
Peary, Marie Ahnighito. See Stafford, M. A.
Peasantry
Punjab
Darling, M. L. Rusticus loquitur. (N '30)
Pedagogically speaking. Schelling, F. E. (Ap '30)
Peggy of old Annapolis. Daniel, H. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Pelton, Charles, pseud. See Jacobs, C. P.
Pen names and personalities. Marble, A. (O '30)
Pending heaven. Gerhardi, W. A. (Ap '30)
Penn normal, industrial and agricultural school, St Helena island, S.C.
Cooley, R. B. School acres. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Pennsylvania
History
Sipe, C. H. Indian wars of Pennsylvania. (N '30)
Pentecost
Versteeg, J. M. Perpetuating Pentecost. (S '30)
People of the small arrow. Driberg, J. H. (Ap '30)
People of this town. Hueston, E. (Ap '30)
People vs. Wall street. Floyd, W. (S '30)
People's book of saints. Bouquet, J. A. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Pepys, Samuel
Drinkwater, J. Pepys. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Perennials of flowerland. Quackenbush, A. T. A. (Mr '30)
Perfect zoo. Farjeon, E. (Ap '30)
Perfumed tigers. Dekobra, M. (N '30)
Peril at Cranbury hall. Street, C. J. C. (Je '30)
Periodicals
Campbell, G., and Thomas, R. B. Magazines and newspapers of today. (Je '30)
History
Mott, F. L. History of American magazines, 1741-1850. (Ap '30)
Perpetuating Pentecost. Versteeg, J. M. (S '30)
Perris of the Cherry-trees. Fletcher, J. S. (My '30)
Personal reminiscences in India and Europe, 1830-1888. Becher, A. E. (D '30)
Personality
Denison, J. H. Enlargement of personality. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Künkel, F. Let's be normal! (Ag '30)
Vaughan, R. M. Significance of personality. (S '30)
Walsh, W. S. Cultivating personality. (O '30)
Personality, Disorders of
Menninger, K. A. Human mind. (Ap '30)
Personality adjustments of school children. Zachry, C. B. (Ap '30)
Personality of a house. Post, E. (Je '30)
Personnel service in education
Johnson, M. H. Dean in the high school. (Mr '30)
Peru
Antiquities
Bingham, H. Machu Picchu. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Petal-of-the-Rose. Pettit, C. (O '30)
Peter Lavelle. Brophy, J. (Mr '30)
Peter Pan in Kensington gardens. Barrie, J. M. (Je '30)
Peter Pocket's luck. Justus, M. (D '30)
Peter's city. Moore, T. E. (N '30)
Petroleum
Ver Wiebe, W. A. Oil fields in the United States. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Petticoat court. Lovelace, M. H. (N '30)
The pew preaches. Stidger, W. L., ed. (S '30)
Phantom walls. Lodge, O. J. (Ap '30)
Philine. Amiel, H. F. (Ag '30)
Philip Eulenberg. Haller, J. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Philippa. Sedgwick, A. D. (D '30)
Philippine islands
History
Worcester, D. C. Philippines, past and present. (N '30)
Politics and government
Worcester, D. C. Philippines, past and present. (N '30)
Philippines, past and present. Worcester, D. C. (N '30)
Philo Judaeus
Goodenough, E. R. Jurisprudence of the Jewish courts in Egypt. (S '30)
Philosophers
Wickham, H. Unrealists. (S '30)
Philosophic way of life. Smith, T. V. (My '30)
Philosophy
Dampier-Whetham, W. C. D. History of science. (My '30)
Dewey, J. Quest for certainty. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Dotterer, R. H. Philosophy by way of the sciences. (Ag '30)
Langer, S. K. Practice of philosophy. (N '30)
Maritain, J. Introduction to philosophy. (O '30)
Santayana, G. Realm of matter. (D '30)
Smith, T. V. Philosophic way of life. (My '30)
Addresses, essays, lectures
Burnet, J. Essays and addresses. (Ag '30)
Essays in honor of John Dewey. (Ap '30)
Knox, H. V. Evolution of truth. (D '30)
Philosophy, American
Contemporary American philosophy. (S '30)
Philosophy, Ancient
Field, G. C. Plato and his contemporaries. (O '30)
Warbeke, J. M. Searching mind of Greece. (My '30)
Philosophy, Arabic
Wolfson, H. A. Crescas' critique of Aristotle. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Philosophy, Chinese
Creel, H. G. Sinism. (My '30)
Liang Chi-Chao. History of Chinese political thought, during the early Tsin periods. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Philosophy, French
Hearnshaw, F. J. C., ed. Social and political ideas of some great French thinkers of the age of reason. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Philosophy, Hindu
Rolland, R. Prophets of the new India. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Philosophy, Jewish
Wolfson, H. A. Crescas' critique of Aristotle. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Philosophy, Modern
Grudin, L. Primer of aesthetics. (S '30)
Lovejoy, A. O. Revolt against dualism. (Ag '30)

Malisoff, W. M. Calendar of doubts and faiths. (S '30)
Morgan, C. L. Mind at the crossways. (N '30)
Robertson, J. M. History of freethought in the nineteenth century. (S '30)
Wickham, H. Unrealists. (S '30)

Philosophy and religion
Robertson, J. M. History of freethought in the nineteenth century. (S '30)
Vaughan, R. M. Significance of personality. (S '30)

Philosophy by way of the sciences. Dotterer, R. H. (Ag '30)
Philosophy of art. Ducasse, C. J. (Mr '30)

Philosophy of nature
Simpson, J. Y. Nature. (My '30)

Philosophy of value. Ward, L. R. (Ag '30)

Photochemistry
Griffith, R. O., and McKeown, A. Photo-processes in gaseous and liquid systems. (My '30)

Photoelectric cells
Campbell, N. R., and Ritchie, D. Photoelectric cells. (O '30)

Photographs

Coloring
Frazer, S. W., and Stine, G. F. Treatise on the air brush. (O '30)

Photographs of children
Eipper, P. Human children. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Photography

Apparatus and supplies
Frazer, S. W., and Stine, G. F. Treatise on the air brush. (O '30)

Photography, Artistic
Tilney, F. C. Principles of photographic pictorialism. (N '30)

Photography of animals
Eipper, P. Animal children. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Holzworth, J. M. Wild grizzlies of Alaska. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Kearton, C. In the land of the lion. (My '30)

Photography of birds
Allen, A. A. Book of bird life. (Ag '30)
Berg, B. M. K. To Africa with the migratory birds. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Photogravure
Cartwright, H. M. Photogravure. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Photo-processes in gaseous and liquid systems. Griffith, R. O., and McKeown, A. (My '30)

Photosynthesis
Macdougal, D. T. Green leaf. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Physical education and training
Horrigan, O. K. Creative activities in physical education. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Physical geography
Huntington, C. C., and Carlson, F. A. Environmental basis of social geography. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Great Britain
Wills, L. J. Physiographical evolution of Britain. (D '30)

Physical measures of growth and nutrition. Franzen, R. H. (O '30)

Physicians
Harding, T. S. Fads, frauds and physicians. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Peabody, F. W. Doctor and patient. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Correspondence, reminiscences, etc.
Oliver, J. R. Foursquare. (Ap '30)

Physics
Andrade, E. N. da C. Hour of physics. (O '30)
Jeans, J. H. Mysterious universe. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Wulf, T. Modern physics. (N '30)

History
Darrow, F. L. New world of physical discovery. (Je '30)
Heyl, P. R. New frontiers of physics. (O '30)

Philosophy
Eddington, A. S. Nature of the physical world. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Physics and chemistry applied to flour milling. Houssa, A. J. H. (D '30)
Physics and chemistry of surfaces. Adam, N. K. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Physiognomy
Picard, M. Human face. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Physiographical evolution of Britain. Wills, L. J. (D '30)

Physiological chemistry
Gortner, R. A. Outlines of biochemistry. (Je '30)
Parsons, T. R. Materials of life. (S '30)

Physiology
Elwyn, A. Yourself, inc. (Ag '30)

Juvenile literature
Turner, C. E. Physiology and health. (Ag '30)

Physiology and health. Turner, C. E. (Ag '30)

Pianoforte
James, P. Early keyboard instruments. (D '30)

Picardy

Description and travel
Maskell, H. P. Soul of Picardy. (Je '30)

Picaresque. Hamilton, D. O. (N '30)
Piccadilly ghost. Spencer, E. (S '30)
Piccadilly murder. Cox, A. B. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Picture book of a big city. Bunzel, M. (Je '30)
Picture book of sculpture. Fowler, H. N. and M. Z. (Mr '30)
Picture book of ships. Gimmage, P. (O '30)
Picturesque United States of America, 1811-1813. Svin'in, P. P. (Ag '30)
Pied piper. Muir, D. (O '30)
The pig is fat. Maynard, L. M. (My '30)

Pigments
Chase, J. C. An artist talks about color. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Pilgrim fathers
Washburn, R. C. Prayer for profit. (N '30)

Pilgrim to the abyss. Eggebrecht, A. (My '30)
Pilgrim's Ford. Coxon, M. (Je '30)
Piloting your life. Jastrow, J. (S '30)

Pilsudski, Josef
Landau, R. Pilsudski and Poland. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Pilsudski and Poland. Landau, R. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Pineapples of finest flavour. Garrick, D. (S '30)

Pinero, Sir Arthur Wing
Fyfe, H. H. Sir Arthur Pinero's plays and players. (O '30)

Pink furniture. Coppard, A. E. (O '30)
Pinnacles of personality. Risner, H. C. (Je '30)
Pioneer of old Superior [Charles Dean Kimball]. Stewart, L. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Pioneering on social frontiers. Taylor, G. (O '30)

Pioneers
Bechdolt, F. R. Giants of the old West. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Pioneers of Christian thought. Kershner, F. D. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Pioneers of electrical communication. Appleyard, R. (N '30)
Pioneers of freedom. Johnson, S. (S '30)
Pioneers of justice. Liggett, W. W. (D '30)

Pipe
Walker, J. H., and Crocker, S. Piping handbook. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Pipe and tube bending and jointing. Marks, S. P. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Pipe-fitting
Marks, S. P. Pipe and tube bending and jointing. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Walker, J. H., and Crocker, S. Piping handbook. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Piper's price. Comstock, H. T. (Je '30)

Pipes
- Marks, S. P. Pipe and tube bending and jointing. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Piping handbook. Walker, J. H., and Crocker, S. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Pirate Jean. Kauffman, R. W. (Je '30)
Pirate twins. Nicholson, W. (Mr '30)

Pirates
- Driscoll, G. B. Doubloons. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Pirate's doom. Evans, E. R. G. R. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Pirate's port. Malkus, A. S. (My '30)
Pistols in the morning. Chidsey, D. B. (My '30)
Pitcher of romance. Child, R. W. (S '30)

Pitt, William
- Wilson, P. W. William Pitt, the younger. (My '30)

Place of Jesus Christ in modern Christianity. Baillie, J. (Ap '30)
Plain man looks at life. Elliott, W. H. H. (N '30)

Planets
- Proctor, M. Romance of the planets. (Mr '30)

Plant introduction
- Fairchild, D. G. Exploring for plants. (S '30)

Plant location. Holmes, W. G. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Plants

Irritability and movements
- Bose, J. C. Growth and tropic movements of plants. (My '30)

Plants, Effect of light on
- Macdougal, D. T. Green leaf. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Plato
- Field, G. C. Plato and his contemporaries. (O '30)
- Woodbridge, F. J. E. Son of Apollo. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Plato and his contemporaries. Field, G. C. (O '30)

Play
- Deering, I. E. Creative home. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
- Heaton, K. L. Character building through recreation. (D '30)

Plays for graduation days. Sanford, A. P., comp. and ed. (Je '30)
Plays of the Irish renaissance, 1880-1930. Canfield, C., ed. (My '30)

Pleasure
- Allen, A. H. B. Pleasure & instinct. (S '30)

Pleasure & instinct. Allen, A. H. B. (S '30)
Pleasure house. Hamilton, C. (Je '30)

Plenty-coups, Indian chief
- Linderman, F. B. American. (Je '30)

Plume of the Arawas. Acheson, F. O. V. (N '30)
Po' buckra. Shelby, G., and Stoney, S. G. (F '31) (1930 Annual) Pocahontas. Crane, N. C. R. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Poe, Edgar Allan
- Damon, S. F. Thomas Holley Chivers. (Ag '30)

Poems and A defense of rhyme. Daniel, S. (S '30)
Poems for children. De La Mare, W. J. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Poems of justice. Clark, T. C., comp. (Mr '30)
Poems selected for young people. Millay, E. St V. (Mr '30)
Poetics of Aristotle in England. Herrick, M. T. (S '30)

Poetry
- Bradby, G. F. About English poetry. (S '30)
- Chapin, E., and Thomas, R. B. New approach to poetry. (My '30)
- Lowell, A. Poetry and poets. (Ag '30)
- Mallam, P. Approach to poetry (S '30)
- Saurat, D. Literature and occult tradition. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Collections
- Goldmark, P. D., and Hopkins, M., comps. Gypsy trail, v 2. (Ag '30)
- Ripley, S., ed. Beyond. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
- Van Doren, M., and Lapolla, G. M., eds. Junior anthology of world poetry. (My '30)

History and criticism
- Deutsch, B. Potable gold. (Je '30)

Poetry, Bathetic
- Lewis, D. B. W., and Lee, C., eds. Stuffed owl. (My '30)

Poetry (individual authors)
- Aiken, C. P. John Deth. (D '30)
- Aldington, R. Love and the Luxembourg. (S '30)
- Bacon, L. Lost Buffalo. (My '30)
- Bates, K. L. America the dream. (Ag '30)
- Bates, K. L. Selected poems. (N '30)
- Bishop, M. Paramount poems. (Mr '30)
- Blunden, E. C. Near and far. (O '30)
- Bodenheim, M. Bringing jazz! (S '30)
- Bridges, R. S. Testament of beauty. (Mr '30)
- Buddicom, J. L. M. Compleat workes. (My '30)
- Cane, M. Behind dark spaces. (My '30)
- Carmer, C. L. Deep South. (My '30)
- Chapin, K. G. Outside of the world. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
- Chaucer, G. Canterbury tales. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
- Cline, L. L. After-walker. (S '30)
- Colum, P. Old pastures. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
- Coolbrith, I. D. Wings of sunset. (Je '30)
- Crane, H. The bridge. (Je '30)
- Crane, N. C. R. Pocahontas. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
- Crane, S. Collected poems. (N '30)
- Deutsch, B. Fire for the night. (Je '30)
- Dickinson, E. N. Poems. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
- Dresbach, G. W. Wind in the cedars. (My '30)
- Dunsany, E. J. M. D. P. Fifty poems. (My '30)
- Eberhart, R. Bravery of earth. (Ag '30)
- Eliot, T. S. Ash Wednesday. (O '30)
- Field, R. L. Points east. (Ag '30)
- Flexner, H. This stubborn root. (N '30)
- Foulke, W. D. Earth's generations pass. (O '30)
- Frost, F. M. Hemlock wall. (S '30)
- Frost, R. Collected poems. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
- Gogarty, O. St J. Wild apples. (My '30)
- Gregory, H. Chelsea rooming house. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
- Haste, G. Young land. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
- Henderson, P. First poems. (O '30)
- Heredia, J. M. de. Trophies. (Ap '30)
- Hillyer, R. S. Gates of the compass. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
- Hinkson, K. Collected poems. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
- Hoffenstein, S. Year in, you're out. (S '30)
- Houston, M. B. Lanterns in the dusk. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
- Howe, M. A. de W. Yankee ballads. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
- Hoyt, H. Leaves of wild grape. (Mr '30)
- Jeffers, R. Dear Judas. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
- Knibbs, H. H. Songs of the lost frontier. (Ja '31)
- Kunitz, S. J. Intellectual things. (Ag '30)
- Laidlaw, L. B. Wishing on a comet. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
- Levy, N., and Held, J., jr. Saturday to Monday. (S '30)
- Longstreth, T. M. Sky through branches. (Ag '30)
- McGovern, M. Lost year. (S '30)
- Mackeson, P. Pass, stranger. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
- Maclaren, H. Sailor with banjo. (S '30)
- MacLeish, A. New found land. (S '30)
- Malam, C. Upper pasture. (My '30)
- Masefield, J. Collected poems. (My '30)
- Masters, E. L. Lichee nuts. (D '30)
- Morgan, A. Creator man. (My '30)
- Mullins, H. Balm in Gilead. (Ag '30)
- Norman, C. Bright world. (S '30)
- Noyes, A. Last voyage. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
- Owen, L. Virtuosa. (N '30)
- Payne, A. B. Released. (S '30)
- Pratt, E. J. The Roosevelt and the Antinoe. (Ag '30)
- Quiller-Couch, A. T. Poems. (My '30)
- Recht, C. Manhattan made. (Je '30)

Reese, L. W. White April. (D '30)
Rice, C. Y. Seed of the moon. (My '30)
Ridge, L. Firehead. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Riggs, L. Iron dish. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Rittenhouse, J. B. Secret bird. (Je '30)
Robinson, C. Out of nymph—. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Robinson, E. A. Glory of the Nightingales. (N '30)
Root, E. M. Bow of burning gold. (My '30)
Rutter, O. Song of Tiadatha. (D '30)
Sackville-West, V. M. King's daughter. (D '30)
Scott, E., pseud. Winter alone. (My '30)
Sitwell, E. Collected poems. (D '30)
Sitwell, S. Doctor Donne and Gargantua. (N '30)
Skinner, C. L. Songs of the coast dwellers. (Ag '30)
Stringer, A. J. A. Out of Erin. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Talbott, C. Droll parade. (Je '30)
Townshend, F. Heaven. (N '30)
Turner, N. B. Riband on my rein. (My '30)
Van Dore, W. Far Lake. (D '30)
Weaver, J. V. A. Turning point. (N '30)
Welles, W. This delicate love. (Mr '30)
Winters, Y. Proof. (O '30)
Wister, M. Night in the valley. (Ja '31)
Wolfe, H. Uncelestial city. (D '30)
Poetry and poets. Lowell, A. (Ag '30)
Poetry at present. Williams, C. W. S. (N '30)
Poets, American
Brenner, R. Ten modern poets. (Ag '30)
Poets, English
Brenner, R. Ten modern poets. (Ag '30)
Poets and playwrights. Stoll, E. E. (O '30)
Poet's pub. Linklater, E. (Mr '30)
Points east. Field, R. L. (Ag '30)
Poisoned chocolates case. Cox, A. B. (Mr '30)
Poitiers, Diane de, duchess of Valentinois
Orliac, J. d.' Moon mistress. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Poland
Politics and government
Landau, R. Pilsudski and Poland. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Police
Russia
Vasil'ev, A. T. Ochrana. (N '30)
Political ballads and songs, English
Thomas, K. E. Real personages of Mother Goose. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Political crimes and offenses
Italy
Nitti, F. F. Escape. (Ap '30)
Political ethics
Willoughby, W. W. Ethical basis of political authority. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Political life and letters of Cavour, 1840-1861. Whyte, A. J. B. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Political parties
India
Hull, W. I. India's political crisis. (My '30)
United States
Davis, J. W. Party government in the United States. (S '30)
Political science
Carpenter, W. S. Development of American political thought. (N '30)
Catlin, G. E. G. Study of the principles of politics. (S '30)
Cobban, A. Edmund Burke. (Mr '30)
Ferrero, G. Unity of the world. (S '30)
Florence, P. S. Statistical method in economics and political science. (Mr '30)
Laski, H. J. Dangers of obedience. (Je '30)
Laski, H. J. Liberty in the modern state. (N '30)
Strong, C. F. Modern political constitutions. (Ag '30)
Willoughby, W. W. Ethical basis of political authority. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Collections
Wright, B. F., ed. Source book of American political theory. (Ap '30)
History
Liang Chi-Chao. History of Chinese political thought, during the early Tsin periods. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Stawell, F. M. Growth of international thought. (Ag '30)
Wright, B. F., ed. Source book of American political theory. (Ap '30)
Literary history
Cole, G. D. H. Politics and literature (Mr '30)
Politics and literature. Cole, G. D. H. (Mr '30)
Politics in a protestant church. Smith, R. G. (O '30)
Polynesia
Description and travel
Pinchot, G. To the South Seas. (S '30)
Poor faun. Arthur, C. (N '30)
Poor nigger. Vergani, O. (Ag '30)
Poor sap. La Fouchardière, G. de. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Poorten-Schwartz, Jozua Marius Willem vander. See Maartens, M., pseud.
Pope, Alexander
Sitwell, E. Alexander Pope. (My '30)
The pope is king. Civis romanus, pseud. (Ap '30)
Popes
Thurston, H. No popery. (D '30)
Popular poetry in soviet Russia. Patrick, G. Z. J. (My '30)
Population
Duncan, H. G. Race and population problems. (My '30)
Gini, C., and others. Population. (N '30)
Place, F. Illustrations and proofs of the principle of population. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Robinson, C. Seventy birth control clinics. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Thompson, W. S. Danger spots in world population. (My '30)
Thompson, W. S. Population problems. (F '31) (1930 Annual) Population problems. Thompson, W. S. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Port of fragrance. Simpson, B. L. (N '30)
Porto Rico
Economic conditions
Clark, V. S. Porto Rico and its problems. (O '30)
Social conditions
Clark, V. S. Porto Rico and its problems. (O '30)
Porto Rico and its problems. Clark, V. S. (O '30)
Portrait of a Chinese lady. Hosie, D. (My '30)
Portrait of a diplomatist [Sir Arthur Nicolson]. Nicolson, H. G. (N '30)
Portrait of a dog. De La Roche, M. (D '30)
Portrait of the artist as American. Josephson, M. (Ag '30)
Portrait-painters, American
Lee, C. Contemporary American portrait painters. (Ag '30)
Lee, C. Early American portrait painters. (Ag '30)
Portraits, American
Lee, C. Contemporary American portrait painters. (Ag '30)
Lee, C. Early American portrait painters. (Ag '30)
Portugal
Description and travel
Crockett, W. D. and S. F. Satchel guide to Spain and Portugal. (O '30)
Possession. Oesterreich, T. K. (S '30)
Post mortems of mere mortals. MacLaurin, C (S '30)
Postage stamps
Rothschild, S. I. Stories postage stamps tell. (N '30)
Postal service
McSpadden, J. W. How they carried the mail. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Potable gold. Deutsch, B. (Je '30)
Potato Face. Sandburg, C. (Je '30)

Pottery
Weygandt, C. Red hills. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Poverty
Slater, G. Poverty and the state. (N '30)
Poverty and the state. Slater, G. (N '30)
Power and secret of the Jesuits. Fülöp-Miller, R. (Je '30)
Power of India. Pym, M. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Practical and literary English. Jones, G. M., and Yates, A. (D '30)
Practical handbook for diabetic patients. Rudy, A. (N '30)
Practical landscape painting in oils. Lutz, E. G. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Practice of philosophy. Langer, S. K. (N '30)

Pragmatism
Knox, H. V. Evolution of truth. (D '30)
Prairie women. Beede, I. (My '30)
Pran of Albania. Miller, E. C. (Mr '30)

Prayer
Puglisi Pico, M. Prayer. (My '30)
Strong, S. D., ed. We believe in prayer. (N '30)
Prayer for profit. Washburn, R. C. (N '30)

Preaching
Newton, J. F. New preaching. (Je '30)
Precious and semi-precious stones. Weinstein, M. (Mr '30)

Precious stones
Weinstein, M. Precious and semi-precious stones. (Mr. '30)
Prelude to love. Banning, M. (Je '30)
Present and future of religion. Joad, C. E. M. (Ag '30)
President Masaryk. Eng title of: Thomas Masaryk of Czechoslovakia. Street, C. J. C. (S '30)

Presidents

United States

Smith, B. W. Boyhoods of the presidents. (D '30)

Election

Smith, R. G. Politics in a protestant church. (O '30)

Powers and duties

Wriston, H. M. Executive agents in American foreign relations. (Ap '30)

Presland, John, pseud. See Skelton, G.

Press

United States

Rosewater, V. History of cöoperative newsgathering in the United States. (O '30)
Pressure gauge murder. Linsingen, F. W. B. von. (Mr '30)
Prestige value of public employment in Chicago. White, L. D. (My '30)
Pretty pickle. Partridge, B. (O '30)

Prices
Kuznets, S. S. Secular movements in production and prices. (S '30)
Primer of aesthetics. Grudin, L. (S '30)
Prince of the Pale Mountains. Kyle, A. D. (My '30)
Prince's darling. Preedy, G., pseud. (Ap '30)

Princesses
Thornton-Cook, E. Royal Marys. (Ap '30)
Princesses, ladies and républicaines of the Terror. Latour, T. L. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Principles of electroplating and electroforming (electrotyping). Blum, W., and Hogaboom, G. B. (Je '30)
Principles of elementary education. Horn, J. L. (Mr '30)
Principles of engineering economy. Grant, E. L. (F '31) (1930 Annual) Principles of experimental psychology. Piéron, H. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Principles of judicial administration. Willoughby, W. F. (My '30)
Principles of photographic pictorialism. Tilney, F. C. (N '30)
Principles of woodworking. Hjorth, H. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Print collector. Clayton M. (My '30)

Printing
Orcutt, W. D. Magic of the book. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

History

Haynes, M. W. Student's history of printing. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Morgan, C. E. Origin and history of the New York employing printers' association. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Private presses

Ransom, W. Private presses and their books. (Je '30)

Societies

Morgan, C. E. Origin and history of the New York employing printers' association. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Specimens

McMurtrie, D. C. Modern typography & layout. (My '30)
Meynell, F. Typography of newspaper advertisements. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Printing, Practical
McMurtrie, D. C. Modern typography & layout. (My '30)
Printing of etchings and engravings. Strang, D. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Prisoner in Babylon. Strain, M. D. (S '30)
Prisoner of war. Dwinger, E. E. (O '30)

Prisons
Barnes, H. E. Story of punishment. (O '30)

United States

National society of penal information, incorporated. Handbook of American prisons and reformatories. (S '30)
Rector, F. L. Health and medical service in American prisons and reformatories. (Ag '30)
Private correspondence of Nicolo Machiavelli. Ferrara, O. (Mr '30)
Private letter-books. Scott, W. (D '30)
Private letters, pagan and Christian. Brooke, D., ed. (Mr '30)
Private life. Selver, P. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Private life of Lady Hamilton. Flament, A. (Mr '30)
Private presses and their books. Ransom, W. (Je '30)

Privateering
Norman, C. B. Corsairs of France. (Mr '30)

Privately printed books

Bibliography

Ransom, W. Private presses and their books. (Je '30)
Prize poems, 1913-1929. Wagner, C. A., ed. (Ag '30)
Prize stories of 1929. O. Henry memorial award. (Ap '30)
Prize stories of 1930. O. Henry memorial award. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Probation system
Glueck, S. S. and E. 500 criminal careers. (Mr '30)
Problems of neurosis. Adler, A. (Ap '30)
Problems of providence. Shebbeare, C. J. (Mr '30)
Problems of the Pacific, 1929. Institute of Pacific relations, 1929. (N '30)
Process and reality. Whitehead, A. N. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Producing plays. Purdom, C. B. (Je '30)
Production organization. Black, J. D. and A. G. (S '30)

Profession, Choice of
Cades, H. R. Jobs for girls. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Kitson, H. D. How to find the right vocation. (Ap '30)
Platt, R. H., and McMillin, H. F. You can't fail. (Mr '30)

Progress
Babcock, D. C. Man and social achievement. (S '30)
Beard, C. A., ed. Toward civilization. (Je '30)
Gibbons, H. A. Wider horizons. (S '30)

Progressive party
  Richberg, D. R. Tents of the mighty. (Ag '30)
Progressive teaching. Melvin, A. G. (My '30)
Prohibition
  Asbury, H. Carry Nation. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
  Auerbach, J. S. Indictment of prohibition. (D '30)
  Binkley, R. C. Responsible drinking. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Crowther, S. Prohibition and prosperity. (My '30)
  Dorr, R. L. Drink: coercion or control? (Mr '30)
  Fisher, I., and Brougham, H. B. The "noble experiment." (N '30)
  Johnston, H. A. What rights are left. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Seldes, G. Future of drinking. (S '30)
  Tietsort, F. J., ed. Temperance—or prohibition? (Mr '30)
  Tydings, M. E. Before and after prohibition. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Willebrandt, M. Inside of prohibition. (My '30)
Prohibition and prosperity. Crowther, S. (My '30)
Proof. Winters, Y. (O '30)
Propaganda
  Clarke, E. L. Art of straight thinking. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
  Hayes, C. J. H. France. (Ap '30)
  Viereck, G. S. Spreading germs of hate. (S '30)
Prophecies
  Birkenhead, F. E. S. World in 2030. A.D. (O '30)
Prophet and his God. Grant Watson, E. L. (My '30)
Prophets
  Mackay, W. M. Goodly fellowship of the prophets. (O '30)
  Van Buskirk, W. R. Saviors of mankind. (Mr '30)
Prophets of the new India. Rolland, R. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Prorok, Bryon Khun De. See Khun de Prorok, B.
Prospecting
  Eve, A. S., and Keys, D. A. Applied geophysics in the search for minerals. (My '30)
Prosperity: fact or myth. Chase, S. (S '30)
Prosperity street. Brooks, C. (O '30)
Protestant churches

United States
  Weber, H. C. Evangelism. (My '30)
Protestant ethic and the spirit of capitalism. Weber, M. (O '30)
Protestantism
  Cadoux, C. J. Catholicism and Christianity. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
  Hall, T. C. Religious background of American culture. (O '30)
  Kirk, H. E. Spirit of Protestantism. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Proust, Marcel
  Krutch, J. W. Five masters. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Providence and government of God
  Shebbeare, C. J. Problems of providence. (Mr '30)
Proving nothing. Terhune, A. P. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Proving of psyche. Fausset, H. I'A. (My '30)
Psychical research
  Lodge, O. J. Phanton walls. (Ap '30)
Psychoanalysis
  Adler, A. Case of Miss R. (Mr '30)
  Adler, A. Education of children. (O '30)
  Adler, A. Pattern of life. (N '30)
  Adler, A. Problems of neurosis. (Ap '30)
  Adler, A., and others, eds. Guiding the child on the principles of individual psychology. (Ag '30)
  Freud, S. Civilization and its discontents. (N '30)
  Healy, W., and others. Structure and meaning of psychoanalysis. (Je '30)
  Jones, E. Psycho-analysis. (S '30)
  Künkel, F. Let's be normal! (Ag '30)
  Menninger, K. A. Human mind. (Ap '30)
  Rank, O. Trauma of birth. (Mr '30)
  Weatherhead, L. D. Psychology in service of the soul. (S '30)
  Wittels, F. Critique of love. (Ap '30)
Psychological exercises. Orage, A. R., ed. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Psychologist keeps house. Cowan, E. E., and Thornborough, L., pseud. (S '30)
Psychology
  Bridges, J. W. Psychology, normal and abnormal. (S '30)
  Bühler, K. Mental development of the child. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Denison, J. H. Enlargement of personality. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Mackenzie, J. G. Souls in the making. (Ap '30)

History
  Garrett, H. E. Great experiments in psychology. (O '30)
Psychology, Applied
  Burtt, H. E. Psychology and industrial efficiency. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
  Cowan, E. E., and Thornborough, L., pseud. Psychologist keeps house. (S '30)
  Hollingworth, H. L. Vocational psychology and character analysis. (Ag '30)
  Jastrow, J. Piloting your life. (S '30)
  Man, H. de. Joy in work. (F '31) (1929 Annual)
  Pitkin, W. B. Psychology of achievement. (D '30)
  Webb, E. T., and Morgan, J. J. B. Strategy in handling people. (F '31) (1930 Annual) Psychology, Comparative
  Yerkes, R. M. and A. Great apes. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Psychology, Pathological
  Adler, A. Pattern of life. (N '30)
  Adler, A. Problems of neurosis. (Ap '30)
  Menninger, K. A. Human mind. (Ap '30)
  Williams, F. E. Adolescence. (O '30)
Psychology, Physiological
  Garrett, H. E. Great experiments in psychology. (O '30)
  Inskeep, A. L. Child adjustment in relation to growth and development. (S '30)
  Jastrow, J. Piloting your life. (S '30)
  Piéron, H. Principles of experimental psychology. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

History
  Boring, E. G. History of experimental psychology. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Psychology, Religious
  Charters, J. B. College student thinking it through. (O '30)
  Grensted, L. W. Psychology and God. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Hodgson, L. Essays in Christian philosophy. (Je '30)
Psychology and God. Grensted, L. W. (F '31) (1930 Annual) Psychology and industrial efficiency. Burtt, H. E. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual) Psychology in service of the soul. Weatherhead, L. D. (S '30)
Psychology, normal and abnormal. Bridges, J. W. (S '30)
Psychology of achievement. Pitkin, W. B. (D '30)
Psychology of adolescence. Brooks, F. D. (My '30)
Psychology of childhood. Swift, E. J. (Ag '30)
Psychology of dress. Hurlock, E. B. (My '30)
Psychotherapy
  Weatherhead, L. D. Psychology in service of the soul. (S '30)
Ptolemies, kings of Egypt
  Westermann, W. L., ed. Upon slavery in Ptolemaic Egypt. (N '30)
Public borrowing. Studensky, P. (N '30)
Public budgeting. Buck, A. E. (My '30)
Public control of business. Keezer, D. M., and May, S. (D '30)

Public finances of post-war France. Haig, R. M., and others. (S '30)
Public health
Tobey, J. A. Riders of the plagues. (D '30)
Public life of our Lord Jesus Christ. Goodier, A. (D '30)
Public opinion
Odegard, P. H. American public mind. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Public ownership on trial. Bird, F. L., and Ryan, F. M. (S '30)
Public regulation of competitive practices. National industrial conference board. (S '30)
Public service commissions
Mosher, W. E., and others, eds. Electrical utilities. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Public utilities
Barnes, I. R. Public utility control in Massachusetts. (N '30)
Dorau, H. B. Materials for the study of public utility economics. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Mosher, W. E., and others, eds. Electrical utilities. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Public utilities commissions
Barnes, I. R. Public utility control in Massachusetts. (N '30)
Public utility control in Massachusetts. Barnes, I. R. (N '30)
Publicity
Churches
Leach, W. H. Church publicity. (Je '30)
Norton, W. B. Church and newspaper. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Publishers and publishing
United States
Duffus, R. L. Books. (O '30)
Pueblo girl. Cannon, C. J. (Mr '30)
Puget Sound
Walkinshaw, R. On Puget Sound. (Mr '30)
Punishment
Barnes, H. E. Story of punishment. (O '30)
Punjab
Darling, M. L. Rusticus loquitur. (N '30)
Puppet-plays
Ackley, E. F. Marionettes. (Mr '30)
Everson, F. N. Puppet plays for children. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
McPharlin, P. L., comp. and tr. Repertory of marionette plays. (Je '30)
Puppet plays for children. Everson, F. M. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Pure gold. Rølvaag, O. E. (Ap '30)
Puritan mind. Schneider, H. W. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Puritan principles and American ideals. Saunderson, H. H. (F '31) (1930 Annual) Puritans
Jameson, S. Decline of merry England. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Morison, S. E. Builders of the Bay Colony. (Ag '30)
Saunderson, H. H. Puritan principles and American ideals. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Schneider, H. W. Puritan mind. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Purple cloud. Shiel, M. P. (Je '30)
Pursuit. Pertwee, R. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Pyramid and temple. Meier-Graefe, J. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Q., pseud. See Quiller-Couch, A. T.
Quacks and quackery
Harding, T. S. Fads, frauds and physicians. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Quaker forty-niner. Pancoast, C. E. (Ag '30)
Quantum theory
Ruark, A. E., and Urey, H. C. Atoms, molecules and quanta. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Quebec
Description and travel
Davies, B. Saguenay (Sâginawa) the river of deep waters. (N '30)
Queen Anne's lace. Keyes, F. P. (O '30)
Queen Caroline. Parry, E. A. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Queen of a day. Fletcher, J. S. (My '30)
Queen of heaven. Gawalewicz, M. (My '30)
Queenie. Orton, H. (S '30)
Queens
Thornton-Cook, E. Royal Marys. (Ap '30)
Queer people. Graham, C. and G. (N '30)
Queer Person. Hubbard, R. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Quest for certainty. Dewey, J. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Quest of the ages. Haydon, A. E. (My '30)
Quiet street. Ossorgin, M., pseud. (N '30)

R. D. B.'s diary, 1887-1914. Eng title of: In the days of bicycles and bustles. Blumenfeld, R. D. (O '30)
R.v.R. [Rembrandt]. Van Loon, H. W. (N '30)
Rabbinic literature and Gospel teachings. Montefiore, C. J. G. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Rabelais, François
Nock, A. J., and Wilson, C. R. Francis Rabelais. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Putnam, S. François Rabelais. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Race and population problems. Duncan, H. G. (My '30)
Race problems
Duncan, H. G. Race and population problems. (My '30)
Racing yachts done in cork models. Adams, P. (O '30)
Rackets (game)
Danzig, A. Racquet game. (Ag '30)
Racquet game. Danzig, A. (Ag '30)
Radiation
Buckingham, J. Matter & radiation. (D '30)
Luckiesh, M. Artificial sunlight. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Radio
Codel, M., ed. Radio and its future. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Duncan, R. L., and Drew, C. E. Radio telegraphy and telephony. (Je '30)
Cases
Zollmann, C. F. G. Cases on air law. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Radio and its future. Codel, M., ed. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Radio broadcasting
Bickel, K. A. New empires. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Goldsmith, A. N., and Lescarboura, A. C. This thing called broadcasting. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Radio law. Davis, W. J. (N '30)
Radio laws and regulations
Davis, W. J. Radio law. (N '30)
Zollmann, C. F. G. Cases on air law. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Radio telegraphy and telephony. Duncan, R. L., and Drew, C. E. (Je '30)
Radiotherapy
Luckiesh, M. Artificial sunlight. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Raft pilot's log. Blair, W. A. (Je '30)
Rags. Rohan, J. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Railroad consolidation. Grodinsky, J. (N '30)
Railroad law
Ellingwood, A. R., and Coombs, W. Government and railroad transportation. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Railroads
Consolidation
Grodinsky, J. Railroad consolidation. (N '30)
Models
Coolidge, A. S. Building a model railroad. (D '30)
United States
Grodinsky, J. Railroad consolidation. (N '30)
Railroads and state
United States
Ellingwood, A. R., and Coombs, W. Government and railroad transportation. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Rais, Gilles de Laval, seigneur de
Dix, T. Black baron [Gilles de Rais]. (N '30)
Gabory, E. Alias Bluebeard [Gilles de Raiz]. (S '30)
The rake and the hussy. Chambers, R. W. (N '30)
Rama. Mukerji, D. G. (D '30)
Rāmakrishna
Rolland, R. Prophets of the new India. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Ramayana
Meyer, J. J. Sexual life in ancient India. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Ramon Lull. Peers, E. A. (My '30)
Ranch life
Dobie, J. F. Vaquero of the brush country. (Ap '30)
Rancher Jim. Bindloss, H. (N '30)
Randell, Jack
Randell, J. I'm alone. (Je '30)
Random gleanings from nature's fields. Pycraft, W. P. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Raspberry tree. King, S. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Rat trap. Le Queux, W. (My '30)
Ra-ta-plan—! Ogburn, D. (Ap '30)
Rathenau, Walther
Kessler, H. K. U. Walther Rathenau. (Mr '30)
Rationalisation and unemployment. Hobson, J. A. (N '30)
Rationalism
Robertson, J. M. History of freethought in the nineteenth century. (S '30)
Reading, Psychology of
Pitkin, W. B. Art of rapid reading. (My '30)
Readings in community life. Hill, H. C., ed. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Readings in sociology. Wallis, W. D., and Willey, M. M. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Readings in the economic and social history of the United States. Flügel, F., and Faulkner, H. U., comps. (My '30)
Real estate business
Fisher, E. M. Advanced principles of real estate practice. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Real founders of New England. Bolton, C. K. (D '30)
Real Jesus. Fiske, C., and Easton, B. S. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Real personages of Mother Goose. Thomas, K. E. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Real wages in the United States. Douglas, P. H. (Ag '30)
Real war, 1914-1918. Liddell Hart, B. H. (N '30)
Realism in romantic Japan. Beard, M. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Reality of the idea of God. Jones, W. T. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Realm of matter. Santayana, G. (D '30)
Rear Admiral Byrd and the Polar expeditions. Foster, C. (S '30)
Rearguard. Pakenham, T. C. (D '30)
Reason
Whitehead, A. N. Function of reason. (Ag '30)
Rebecca the wise. Israels, J. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Recall
Bird, F. L., and Ryan, F. M. Recall of public officers. (Ap '30)
Recall of public officers. Bird, F. L., and Ryan, F. M. (Ap '30)
Recidivists
Johnsen, J. E., comp. Baumes law. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Reconstructing India. Thompson, E. J. (N '30)
Reconstruction
Beale, H. K. Critical year. (Ag '30)
Bowers, C. G. Tragic era. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Milton G. F. Age of hate. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Louisiana
Warmoth, H. C. War, politics and reconstruction. (O '30)
Reconstruction (European war)
Europe
Hutchinson, P. The united states of Europe. (Mr '30)
Risner, H. C. Pinnacles of personality. (Je '30)
France
Ogburn, W. F., and Jaffé, W. Economic development of post-war France. (O '30)
Germany
Luehr, E. New German republic. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Reconstruction of India. Eng title of: Reconstructing India. Thompson, E. J. (N '30)
Recovery of Germany. Angell, J. W. (Mr '30)
Rector's daughter. Mayor, F. M. (O '30)
Red aces. Wallace, E. (My '30)
Red Bill. Chisholm, A. M. (N '30)
Red harvest. Burns, V. G., comp. (Je '30)
Red head from Sun Dog. Tuttle, W. C. (O '30)
Red-headed goddess. Colver, A. M. (Mr '30)
Red hills. Weygandt, C. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Red Horse Hill. Meader, S. W. (D '30)
Red man's Luck. Skinner, C. L. (D '30)
Red men of Nigeria. Wilson-Haffenden, J. R. (D '30)
Red Mesabi. Bailey, G. R. (D '30)
Red rust. Kirshon, V. M., and Uspenskiĭ, A. V. (Ap '30)
Red snow. Moxley, F. W. (O '30)
Red star in Samarkand. Strong, A. L. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Red wagon. Smith, E. F. (S '30)
Reddy. Fitler, M. B. (Mr '30)
Redemption of Morley Darville. McKenna, S. (My '30)
The Redlakes. Young, F B. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Redman cave murder. Barker, E. (D '30)
Reed, Thomas Brackett
Robinson, W. A. Thomas B. Reed. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Reformation
Mackinnon, J. Luther and the reformation, v 3-4. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
England
Hollis, C. Monstrous regiment. (S '30)
Marti, O. A. Economic causes of the reformation in England. (My '30)
Ireland
Ronan, M. V. Reformation in Ireland under Elizabeth, 1558-1580. (S '30)
Reformatories
Glueck, S. S. and E. 500 criminal careers. (Mr '30)
Reeves, M. Training schools for delinquent girls. (N '30)
Shaw, C. R., ed. Jack-roller. (S '30)
United States
National society of penal information, incorporated. Handbook of American prisons and reformatories. (S '30)
Rector, F. L. Health and medical service in American prisons and reformatories. (Ag '30)
Reformers
Brock, H. I. Meddlers. (Ag '30)
Refutation of the Versailles war guilt thesis. Wegerer, A. von. (N '30)
Regency windows. Emerson, D. (Ag '30)
Regional planning
Duffus, R. L. Mastering a metropolis. (My '30)
Hubbard, T. and H. V. Our cities, to-day and to-morrow. (Mr '30)
Nolen J., ed. City planning. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Reign of the emperor Francis Joseph, 1846-1916. Eng title of: Francis Joseph I; the downfall of an empire. Tschuppik, K. (Ag '30)
Relativity (physics)
Eddington, A. S. Nature of the physical world. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Released. Payne, A. B. (S '03)
Relentless. Johnston, M. (O '30)

Religion
Cooper, C. C., ed. Religion and the modern mind. (Mr '30)
Halliday, J. F. Robbing youth of its religion. (Ap '30)
Jacks, L. P. Inner sentinel. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
King, B. Adventures in religion. (S '30)
Knox, R. A. Caliban in Grub street. (S '30)
Macon, C. Religion, whence and whither. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Mencken, H. L. Treatise on the gods. (Je '30)
Ross, J. E. Truths to live by. (S '30)
Stidger, W. L., ed. The pew preaches. (S '30)
History
Kirkpatrick, C. Religion in human affairs. (My '30)
Trattner, E. R. Autobiography of God. (Ag '30)
Philosophy
Haydon, A. E. Quest of the ages. (My '30)
Wright, H. W. Religious response. (Ap '30)
Religion, Primitive
Luquet, G. H. Art and religion of fossil man. (S '30)
Religion and science
Burtt, E. A. Religion in an age of science. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Needham, J. Sceptical biologist. (Ap '30)
Ransom, J. C. God without thunder. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Religion and the modern mind. Cooper, C. C., ed. (Mr '30)
Religion in an age of science. Burtt, E. A. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Religion in human affairs. Kirkpatrick, C. (My '30)
Religion in literature
Knox, R. A. Caliban in Grub street. (S '30)
Moffatt, J. Day before yesterday. (Ag '30)
Shuster, G. N. Catholic church and current literature. (Ap '30)
Religion lends a hand. Myers, J. (Ap '30)
Religion of John Burroughs. Osborne, C. H. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Religion, whence and whither. Macon, C. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Religions
Mānekjī Nasarvānjī Dhālā. Our perfecting world. (D '30)
Martin, A. W. Seven great bibles. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Van Buskirk, W. R. Saviors of mankind. (Mr '30)
History
Reinach, S. Orpheus. (Ag '30)
Religious aspects of the conquest of Mexico. Braden, C. S. (F '31) (1930 Annual) Religious background of American culture. Hall, T. C. (O '30)
Religious education
Coe, G. A. What is Christian education? (S '30)
Fox, H. W. Child's approach to religion. (O '30)
Hites, L. T. Effective Christian college. (Ap '30)
Sweet, H. F., and Fahs, S. B. Exploring religion with eight year olds. (D '30)
Winchester, B. S. Church and adult education. (N '30)
Religious liberty
Luzzatti, L. God in freedom. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Religious poetry
Adamson, M. R., comp. Treasury of Middle English verse. (Ag '30)
Religious quests of the Graeco-Roman world. Angus, S. (Mr '30)
Religious response. Wright, H. W. (Ap '30)
Reluctant madonna. Steen, M. (My '30)
Rembrandt Hermanszoon van Rijn
Ludwig, E. Three Titans. (O '30)
Van Loon, H. W. R.v.R. [Rembrandt]. (N '30)
Reminiscences of a marine. Lejeune, J. A. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Renaissance
Italy
Burckhardt, J. C. Civilization of the renaissance in Italy. (Mr '30)
Taylor, R. Invitation to renaissance Italy. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Vaughan, H. M. Studies in the Italian renaissance. (O '30)
Yashiro, Y. Sandro Botticelli. (Mr '30)
Renaissance of Irish poetry, 1880-1930. Morton, D. (My '30)
Renegade. Armandy, A. (D '30)
Reparation settlement. Myers, D. P. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Repentance at leisure. Moore, O. (D '30)
Repertory of marionette plays. McPharlin, P. L., comp. and tr. (Je '30)
Representation and representative government
Luce, R. Legislative principles. (D '30)
Representative modern plays. Cordell, R. A., ed. (Mr '30)
Research
Almack, J. C. Research and thesis writing. (N '30)
Odum, H. W., and Jocher, K. C. Introduction to social research. (Ag '30)
Smith, T. V., and White, L. D., eds. Chicago. (Ap '30)
Spahr, W. E., and Swenson, R. J. Methods and status of scientific research. (D '30)
Research and thesis writing. Almack, J. C. (N '30)
Research in the social sciences. Gee, W., ed. (Ag '30)
Responsible drinking. Binkley, R. C. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Restaurants, lunch rooms, etc.
Allevi, B. Savarin cookbook. (Ap '30)
Restoration tragedy, 1660-1720. Dobrée, B. (Je '30)
Resurrection
Charles, R. H. Resurrection of man. (Ag '30)
Resurrection of man. Charles, R. H. (Ag '30)
Resurrection of Rome. Chesterton, G. K. (D '30)
Retail trade
Bloomfield, D., comp. Selected articles on trends in retail distribution. (N '30)
Guernsey, J. Retailing tomorrow. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Haring, C. E. Manufacturer and his outlets. (My '30)
Nystrom, P. H. Economics of retailing. (S '30)
White, W. L. Cooperative retail buying associations. (F '31) (1930 Annual) Retailing tomorrow. Guernsey, J. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Retreat. Benstead, C. R. (Ap '30)
Retrospect. Balfour, A. J. B. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Return of the brute. O'Flaherty, L. (Ap '30)
Return of the hero. Figgis, D. (S '30)
Reunion of Christendom. Marchant, J., ed. (Ap '30)
Revelation. Birabeau, A. (O '30)
Revere, Paul
Taylor, E. G. Paul Revere. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Revolt against dualism. Lovejoy, A. O. (Ag '30)
Revolt in the arts. Sayler, O. M. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Revolt of the actors. Harding, A. (Ap '30)
Revolt of the fishermen. Seghers, A. (My '30)
Revolutionaries, 1787-1799. Eng title of: Figures of the revolution. Madelin, L. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Reynolds, Sir Joshua
Reynolds, J. Letters. (Ap '30)
Rhetoric
Montague, C. E. Writer's notes on his trade. (O '30)
Rhine river and valley
Letts, M. H. I. Wayfarer on the Rhine. (S '30)
Untermeyer, L. Blue Rhine, Black Forest. (Je '30)
Rhode, John, pseud. See Street, C. J. C.
Rhododendron man. Tyson, J. A. (S '30)
Rhododendron pie. Sharp, M. (S '30)

Rhythm
Austin, M. American rhythm. (Je '30)
Rhythm of the redman. Buttree, J. M. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Riband on my rein. Turner, N. B. (My '30)
Rice. Miln, L. (Ag '30)
Rich man's daughter. Mottram, R. H. (D '30)

Richardson, Samuel
Krutch, J. W. Five masters. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Richelieu, Armand Jean du Plessis, cardinal, duc de
Belloc, H. Richelieu. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Riddell, John, pseud. See Ford, C.
Ride the nightmare. Greene, W. (O '30)
Riders of the plagues. Tobey, J. A. (D '30)
Riders of the winds. Shenton, E. (S '30)
Riley, James Whitcomb
Riley, J. W. Letters. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Ring-a-round. Harrington, M. P., comp. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Rings on her fingers. Davies, R. (O '30)
Rise and fall of Germany's colonial empire, 1884-1918. Townsend, M. E. (My '30)
Rites and ceremonies
Weber, E. A. Duk-Duks. (My '30)
Rivalry of the United States and Great Britain over Latin America (1808-1830.) Rippy, J. F. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
A river goes with heaven. Vines, H. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
River man. Lupton, L. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Rives, Amelie. See Troubetzkoy, A.
Road of the gods. Paterson, I. (My '30)
Road through Spain. Giles, D. (Mr '30)
Road to health. Winslow, C. E. A. (My '30)
Road to Wildcat. Risley, E. (Je '30)

Roads

England
Sheldon, G. From trackway to turnpike. (My '30)

United States
Stacey, M. H. Uncle Sam's camels. (Ap '30)

Roads of Spain. Freeston, C. L. (S '30)
Roadside meetings. Garland, H. (N '30)
Roaming the Rockies. Faris, J. T. (Ag '30)
Roaring veldt. Cron, G. (My '30)
Robbing youth of its religion. Halliday, J. F. (Ap '30)

Robeck, Nesta De. See De Robeck, N.
Robert Peckham. Baring, M. (O '30)
Robeson, Paul
Robeson, E. G. Paul Robeson, Negro. (S '30)
Robin Redbreast. Allingham, W. (O '30)

Robinson, Edwin Arlington
Cestre, C. Introduction to Edwin Arlington Robinson. (O '30)
Robinson, James Harvey
Essays in intellectual history. (Ag '30)
Robots or men? Dubreuil, H. (S '30)
Rock and sand. Oliver, J. R. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Rock garden and alpine plants. Correvon, H. (O '30)

Rock gardens
Correvon, H. Rock garden and alpine plants. (O '30)
Rocklitz. Eng title of: Prince's darling. Preedy, G. P. (Ap '30)
Rocks

Analysis
Hillebrand, W. F., and Lundell, G. E. F. Applied inorganic analysis. (Ap '30)
Rocky mountains
Faris, J. T. Roaming the Rockies. (Ag '30)
Rodd, Ralph, pseud. See North, W.
Roger Williams. Easton, E. (Ag '30)
Rogue Herries. Walpole, H. (My '30)
Rogues and vagabonds
Judges, A. V., ed. Elizabethan underworld. (D '30)
Rogues of the Bible. Black, J. M. (My '30)
Rogues' road. Markham, V. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Roland de la Platière, Mme Marie Jeanne (Phlipon)
Jacquemaire, M. Life of Madame Roland. (O '30)
Young, C. Lady who loved herself; the life of Mme Roland. (N '30)
Rølvaag, Ole Edvart
Job, T. Giants in the earth. (My '30)
Roman Campagna and its treasures. Bagnani, G. (Ag '30)
Roman Catholic church
Barry, W. F. Coming age and the Catholic church. (O '30)
Civis romanus, pseud. The pope is king. (Ap '30)
Cram, R. A. Catholic church and art. (My '30)
Thurston, H. No popery. (D '30)

Biography
Julian, Brother. Men and deeds. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Doctrinal and controversial works
Cadoux, C. J. Catholicism and Christianity. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Caesarius, of Heisterbach. Dialogue on miracles (1220-1235). (Mr '30)
Chesterton, G. K. The thing. (My '30)
Delany, S. P. Why Rome. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Johnson, V. C. One Lord, one faith. (Ap '30)

History
Bagnani, G. Rome and the papacy. (Ap '30)

Hymns
Messenger, R. E. Ethical teachings in the Latin hymns of medieval England. (D '30)
Roman Catholic Church in England
Hollis, C. Monstrous regiment. (S '30)
Marti, O. A. Economic causes of the reformation in England. (My '30)
Roman Catholic church in France
Phillips, C. S. Church in France, 1789-1848. (Ap '30)
Roman Catholic Church in Mexico
Braden, C. S. Religious aspects of the conquest of Mexico. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Roman Catholic literature
Shuster, G. N. Catholic church and current literature. (Ap '30)
Roman holiday. Ryan, D. (Ap '30)
Roman law
Goodenough, E. R. Jurisprudence of the Jewish courts in Egypt. (S '30)
Roman question
Civis romanus, pseud. The pope is king. (Ap '30)
Moore, T. E. Peter's city. (N '30)
Romance by request. Emery, S. M. (Ag '30)
Romance of Antar. Tietjens, E. S. (My '30)
Romance of archaeology. Eng title of: Magic spades. Magoffin, R. Van D., and Davis, E. C. (Ap '30)
Romance of the Borromean islands. Ara, U. (O '30)
Romance of the machine. Pupin, M. I. (Je '30)
Romance of the planets. Proctor, M. (Mr '30)
Romance of the sea. Jackson, G. G. (O '30)
Romance of the submarine. Jackson, G. G. (Ag '30)
Romance prescribed. Hatch, E. (O '30)
Romantic East. Greenbie, S. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Romanticism
Fausset, H. I'A. Proving of psyche. (My '30)
Lavrin, J. Studies in European literature. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Rome

Description
Saunders, C. Vergil's primitive Italy. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

History
Nero
Weigall, A. E. P. B. Nero, the singing emperor of Rome. (D '30)

Rome—Continued

Religion

Willoughby, H. R. Pagan regeneration. (My '30)

Social life and customs

Butler, A. J. Sport in classic times. (N '30)

Rome (city)
Chesterton, G. K. Resurrection of Rome. (D '30)

Antiquities

Platner, S. B. Topographical dictionary of ancient Rome. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Description

Platner, S. B. Topographical dictionary of ancient Rome. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Rome and the papacy. Bagnani, G. (Ap '30)
Roof gardening. Mellen, I. M. (Je '30)

Roof gardens
Mellen, I. M. Roof gardening. (Je '30)
Room in Berlin. Birkenfeld, G. (D '30)
Room of one's own. Woolf, V. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Room with the iron shutters. Wilson, R. M. (Ap '30)

Roosevelt, Theodore
Butt, A. W. Taft and Roosevelt. (O '30)
Einstein, L. D. Roosevelt. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Wister, O. Roosevelt. (S '30)

Roosevelt (steamship)
Pratt, E. J. The Roosevelt and the Antinoe. (Ag '30)
The Roosevelt and the Antinoe. Pratt, E. J. (Ag '30)
Rope, knife and chair. Logan, G. B. H. (S '30)

Rosas, Juan Manuel José Domingo Ortiz de
Cady, J. F. Foreign intervention in the Rio de la Plata, 1838-50. (Ag '30)
Rose garden primer. Holmes, E. (S '30)
Rose manual. Nicolas, J. H. (S '30)
Roseen. Casserley, A. T. (D '30)

Rosen, Friedrich
Rosen, F. Oriental memories of a German diplomatist. (O '30)

Roses
Holmes, E. Rose garden primer. (S '30)
Nicolas, J. H. Rose manual. (S '30)
Pyle, R., and others. How to grow roses. (S '30)

Rothenstein, William
Wilde, O. Sixteen letters. (D '30)

Rouges, Jean Des Vignes. See Taboureau, J.
Rough and tumble on old clipper ships. Ramsay, R. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Roumanian diary. Carossa, H. (S '30)
Roundabout turn. Charles, R. H. (D '30)
Roving commission. Churchill, W. L. S. (D '30)

Royal academy of arts, London
Whitley, W. T. Art in England, 1821-1837. (S '30)

Royal Canadian mounted police
Liggett, W. W. Pioneers of justice. (D '30)
Royal Charles, ruler and rake. Loth, D. G. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Royal inscriptions of Sumer and Akkad. Barton, G. A. (S '30)
Royal Marys. Thornton-Cook, E. (Ap '30)
Royal woman. Mann, H. (Ag '30)

Rubber
Hauser, E. A. Latex. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Rudolph and Amina. Morley, C. D. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Rugs
Hubbard, C. C. How to clean rugs and upholstery fabrics. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Kent, W. W. Hooked rug. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Walker, L. Le B. Homecraft rugs. (My '30)

Ruhr valley

Invasion

D'Abernon, E. V. Diary of an ambassador; v 2, Rapallo to Dawes, 1922-1924. (Je '30)

Rumanians in the United States
Galitzi, C. A. Study of assimilation among the Rumanians in the United States. (S '30)
Runaway countess. Zur Mühlen, H. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
The runner. Gordon, C. W. (Mr '30)
Rural girls in the city for work. Hatcher, O. L., and others. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Rural municipalities. Manny, T. B. (S '30)
Rural negro. Woodson, C. G. (N '30)

Rural schools
Benedict, A. E. Children at the crossroads. (O '30)

Ruskin, John
Ruskin, J. Solitary warrior. (Ap '30)

Russia
Benn, E. J. P. About Russia. (Ag '30)

Civilization

Fletcher, J. G. Two frontiers. (Ap '30)

Commerce

United States

Bron, S. G. Soviet economic development and American business. (S '30)

Court and courtiers

Marie, grand duchess of Russia. Education of a princess. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Description and travel

Dillon, E. J. Russia: today and yesterday. (My '30)

Economic conditions

Bron, S. G. Soviet economic development and American business. (S '30)
Edelhertz, B. Russian paradox. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Farson, N. Black bread and red coffins. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Feiler, A. Russian experiment. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Union of soviet socialist republics. Soviet union looks ahead. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Yugoff, A. Economic trends in soviet Russia. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Economic policy

Bron, S. G. Soviet economic development and American business. (S '30)
Burns, E. Russia's productive system. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Yugoff, A. Economic trends in soviet Russia. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Foreign relations

Fischer, L. Soviets in world affairs. (D '30)
Union of soviet socialist republics. Soviet union and peace. (N '30)

France

Michon, G. Franco-Russian alliance, 1891-1917. (Ap '30)

Germany

Saburov, P. A. Saburov memoirs. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

United States

Cresson, W. P. Francis Dana. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

History

Fletcher, J. G. Two frontiers. (Ap '30)

Revolution, 1917-

Marie, grand duchess of Russia. Education of a princess. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Petrova, N., pseud. Twice born in Russia. (N '30)
Vasil'ev, A. T. Ochrana. (N '30)
Vrangel, P. N. Memoirs. (My '30)

Industries

Union of soviet socialist republics. Soviet union looks ahead. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Politics and government
Chamberlin, W. H. Soviet Russia. (Je '30)
Lenin, N. Selections; v 2, The Bolshevik party in action, 1904-1914. (N '30)
Trotsky, L., pseud. My life. (Je '30)

Social conditions
Chamberlin, W. H. Soviet Russia. (Je '30)
Dillon, E. J. Russia: today and yesterday. (My '30)

Social life and customs
Petrova, N., pseud. Twice born in Russia. (N '30)
Russia: today and yesterday. Dillon, E. J. (My '30)
Russian experiment. Feller, A. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Russian literature
History and criticism
Freeman, J., and others. Voices of October. (Ag '30)
Russian paradox. Edelhertz, B. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Russian poetry
Patrick, G. Z. J. Popular poetry in soviet Russia. (My '30)
Russian theater. Fülöp-Miller, R., and Gregor, J. (Je '30)
Russia's productive system. Burns, E. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Rusticus, pseud. See Jenkins, M.
Rusticus loquitur. Darling, M. L. (N '30)
Rutherford B. Hayes. Eckenrode, H. J., and Wight, P. W. (Je '30)
Rutledge trails the ace of spades. Raine, W. M. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Ryall, William B. See Bolitho, W., pseud.

S. Parkes Cadman. Hamlin, F. (Ag '30)
Sabine mountains, Italy
Rand, E. K. Walk to Horace's farm. (S '30)
Saburov memoirs. Saburov, P. A. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Sacred books
Martin, A. W. Seven great bibles. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Sacred fire. Goldberg, B. Z. (Ag '30)
Sacrifice
Hicks, F. C. N. Fullness of sacrifice. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Sage, Lee
Sage, L. Last rustler. (Ag '30)
Saguenay river
Davies, B. Saguenay (Sâginawa) the river of deep waters. (N '30)
Saguenay (Sâginawa) the river of deep waters. Davies, B. (N '30)
Sahara
Khun de Prorok, B. Mysterious Sahara. (O '30)
Sailor with banjo. Maclaren, H. (S '30)
Sailors don't care. Lanham, E. M. (N '30)
Sailors of fortune. McFee, W. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
The saint. Meyer, C. F. (Je '30)
Saint Augustine. Papini, G. (S '30)
St Augustine's conversion. Simpson, W. J. S. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Saint Benedict and the sixth century. Chapman, J. (S '30)
Saint Catherine of Siena. Curtayne, A. (D '30)
St Helena island, S. C.
Woofter, T. J. Black yeomanry. (O '30)
Saint Johnson. Burnett, W. R. (N '30)
St Lawrence river
Stephens, G. W. St. Lawrence waterway project. (O '30)
St. Lawrence waterway project. Stephens, G. W. (O '30)
St Martin, Ohio. School of Brown county Ursulines
Mary Monica, Sister. Cross in the wilderness. (O '30)
St Peter and the profile. North, J. (O '30)
Saint Udo. Masten, R. L. (Je '30)
Saints
Bouquet, J. A. People's book of saints. (Ja '31 (1930 Annual)
Art
Misciattelli, P. Mystics of Siena. (My '30)
The saints, the devil & the king. Mabie, M. L. (My '30)
Saki, pseud. See Munro, H. H.
Saladin, sultan of Egypt and Syria
Rosebault, C. J. Saladin, prince of chivalry. (Je '30)
Saladin, prince of chivalry. Rosebault, C. J. (Je '30)
The sale. Conquest, J. (My '30)
Sales
Cases
Llewellyn, K. N. Cases and materials on the law of sales. (O '30)
Salmon
Calderwood, W. L. Salmon and sea trout. (Je '30)
Salmon and sea trout. Calderwood, W. L. (Je '30)
Salmon fishing
Reynolds, W. F. R. Fly and minnow. (N '30)
Salome the wandering Jewess. Viereck, G. S., and Eldrige, P. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Salomon, Haym
Russell, C. E. Haym Salomon and the revolution. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Salons
Tornius, V. H. Salons. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Salt, Sarah, pseud. See Hobson, C.
Salvaging old age. Martin. L. J., and De Gruchy, C. (Ap '30)
Salvation army
Nelson, W. H. Blood & fire: General William Booth. (My '30)
Sam Houston, patriot. Seymour, F. W. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Samarkand
Strong, A. L. Red star in Samarkand. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Samson, judge of Israel

Fiction
Jabotinsky, V. Judge and fool. (Ap '30)
Samuel Johnson, president of King's college. Johnson, S. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
San Juan Capistrano mission
Saunders, C. F., and O'Sullivan, St J. Capistrano nights. (S '30)
Sanatorium. Stewart, D. (O '30)
Sand, George, pseud. (Mme Amantine Lucile Aurore [Dupin] Dudevant)
Sand, G., pseud. Intimate journal. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Sand, G., pseud. Letters. (My '30)
Sanders of the river. Wallace, E. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Sandro Botticelli. Yashiro, Y. (Mr '30)
Sanskrit poetry
Sidhanta, N. K. Heroic age of India. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Sante Fé trail
Duffus, R. L. Sante Fe trail. (O '30)
Sapper, pseud. See McNeile, H. C.
Saranoff murder. Luther, M. L., and Ford, L. C. (D '30)
Satchel guide to Spain and Portugal. Crockett, W. D. and S. F. (O '30)
Satire
Knox, R. A. Essays in satire. (My '30)
Saturday afternoon. Strobel, M. (Je '30)
Saturday life. Hall, R. (D '30)
Saturday to Monday. Levy, N., and Held, J., jr. (O '30)
Saunders, Hilary Aidan St George. See Beeding, F., pseud.
Savages
Allier, R. S. P. Mind of the savage. (F '31) (1929 Annual)
Crawley, A. E. Studies of savages and sex. (F '31) (1929 Annual)

Savarin cookbook. Allevi, B. (Ap '30)
Savinelli. Molony, J. C. (D '30)
Saving and thrift
De Forest, C. M. How old am I financially? (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Savings-banks
Sutcliffe, W. G., and Bond, L. A. Savings banks and savings department management. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Savings banks and savings department management. Sutcliffe, W. G., and Bond, L. A. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Saviors of mankind. Van Buskirk, W. R. (Mr '30)
Savonarola, Girolamo Maria Francesco Matteo
Misciattelli, P. Savonarola. (Ap '30)
Roeder, R. Savonarola. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Savoy cocktail book. Craddock, H., comp. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Sayings of Jesus. Robinson, B. W. (D '30)
Scalps. Leinster, M. (O '30)
Scandal sheets. Condé, E. R. (N '30)
Scandinavia
Description and travel
Franck, H. A. Scandinavian summer. (S '30)
Scandinavian literature
Topsøe-Jensen, H. G. Scandinavian literature from Brandes to our day. (Ap '30)
Scandinavian literature from Brandes to our day. Topsøe-Jensen, H. G. (Ap '30)
Scandinavian summer. Franck, H. A. (S '30)
Scapini, J. Georges
Scapini, J. G. Challenge to darkness. (Mr '30)
Scarab murder case. Van Dine, S. S., pseud. (Ag '30)
Sceptical biologist. Needham, J. (Ap '30)
Scheidemann, Philipp
Scheidemann, P. Making of new Germany. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
School acres. Cooley, R. B. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
School attendance
Shaw, C. R. Delinquency areas. (S '30)
School finance
Morrison, H. C. School revenue. (Ag '30)
School for wives. Gide, A. P. G. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual) School in the bush. Murray, A. V. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
School libraries
Fargo, L. F. Library in the school. (Je '30)
School revenue. Morrison, H. C. (Ag '30)
School sports
Rogers, F. R. Future of interscholastic athletics. (S '30)
Schumann-Heink, Ernestine
Ferris, H. J., ed. When I was a girl. (O '30)
Schurz, Carl
Easum, C. V. Americanization of Carl Schurz. (My '30)
Schafer, J. Carl Schurz. (O '30)
Science
Dotterer, R. H. Philosophy by way of the sciences. (Ag '30)
McFee, I. N. Wonderful story of science. (Ap '30)
Randall, J. H. Our changing civilization. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Thomson, J. A. Modern science. (Ag '30)
Addresses, essays, lectures
Millikan, R. A. Science and the new civilization. (My '30)
Saidla, L. E., and Gibbs, W. E., eds. Science and the scientific mind. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Slosson, E. E. Short talks on science. (O '30)
History
Dampier-Whetham, W. C. D. History of science. (My '30)
Ginzburg, B. Adventure of science. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Langdon-Davies, J. Man and his universe. (S '30)
Price, G. M. History of some scientific blunders. (O '30)
Tracy, H. C. American naturists. (Je '30)
Williams-Ellis A, Men who found out. (S '30)
Methodology
Clarke, E. L. Art of straight thinking. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Rueff, J. From the physical to the social sciences. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Saidla, L. E., and Gibbs, W. E., eds. Science and the scientific mind. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Philosophy
Burtt, E. A. Religion in an age of science. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Dewey, J. Quest for certainty. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Eddington, A. S. Nature of the physical world. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Haldane, J. S. Sciences and philosophy. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Lodge, O. J. Phantom walls. (Ap '30)
Malisoff, W. M. Calendar of doubts and faiths. (S '30)
Whitehead, A. N. Process and reality. (Ag '30 (1929 Annual)
Wickham, H. Unrealists. (S '30)
Science and state
Beard, C. A. and W. American leviathan. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Science and the new civilization. Millikan, R. A. (My '30)
Science and the scientific mind. Saidla, L. E., and Gibbs, W. E., eds. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Science in the service of health. Downing, E. R. (D '30)
Science of folk-lore. Krappe, A. H. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Science of nutrition simplified. Rosewarne, D. D. (My '30)
Sciences and philosophy. Haldane, J. S. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Scientific management in American industry. Taylor society, New York. (My '30)
Scientists
Ginzburg, B. Adventure of science. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Williams-Ellis, A. Men who found out. (S '30)
Scoop. Hart, J. S., and Byrnes, G. D. (Ap '30)
Scotch in America
Hart, F. R. Disaster of Darien. (Ap '30)
Scotland
Court and courtiers
Melville, J. Memoirs. (My '30)
Description and travel
Anson, P. F. Fishing boats and fisher folk on the east coast of Scotland. (S '30)
Morton, H. C. V. In search of Scotland. (Ap '30)
Newman, E. M. Seeing England and Scotland. (Ag '30)
Social life and customs
Anson, P. F. Fishing boats and fisher folk on the east coast of Scotland. (S '30)
Scott, Robert Falcon
Gwynn, S. L. Captain Scott. (Ap '30)
Scott, Sir Walter, bart.
Boas, L. S. Great rich man [Sir Walter Scott]. (Mr '30)
Carswell, D. Scott, and his circle. (D '30)
Gwynn, S. L. Life of Sir Walter Scott. (D '30)
Scott, W. Private letter-books. (D '30)
Scott, and his circle. Carswell, D. (D '30)
Scourge of the Indies. Besson, M., ed. (Je '30)
Scudder, Janet
Ferris, H. J., ed. When I was a girl. (O '30)
Sculptors
Casson, S. xxth century sculptors. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Sculpture
Casson, S. xxth century sculptors. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Hussey, C. Tait McKenzie. (Ap '30)
History
Agard, W. R. Greek tradition in sculpture. (N '30)

Juvenile literature
Fowler, H. N. and M. Z. Picture book of sculpture. (Mr '30)
Sculpture, Greek
Agard, W. R. Greek tradition in sculpture. (N '30)
Lawrence, A. W. Classical sculpture. (Ag '30)
Sculpture, Roman
Lawrence, A. W. Classical sculpture. (Ag '30)
The sea. Marmer, H. A. (N '30)
Sea poetry
Maclaren, H. Sailor with banjo. (S '30)
Sea-shore
Butler, E. L. Along the shore. (Ag '30)
Sea stories
Lockhart, J. G. Strange tales of the seven seas. (S '30)
Seafaring life
Barnes, W. M. When ships were ships. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Cooper, V. I. Windjamming to Fiji. (Mr '30)
Jackson, G. G. Romance of the sea. (O '30)
Michelson, F., and Byrne, L. Ocean parade. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Pasma, H. K. Close-hauled [Henry Kay Pasma]. (Ag '30)
Ramsay, R. Rough and tumble on old clipper ships. (Ja '31)
Randell, J. I'm alone. (Je '30)
Sealed lips. Dupont, M. (S '30)
Seamark, pseud. See Small, A. J.

Seamen
Gollock, G. A. At the sign of the flying angel. (Je '30)
Minnigerode, M. Some mariners of France. (S '30)
Searching mind of Greece. Warbeke, J. M. (My '30)
Seaworthy. Dingle, A. E. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Second twenty years at Hull-House. Addams, J. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Secret bird. Rittenhouse, J. B. (Je '30)
Secret cave. Everson, F. M. and H. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Secret envoy. Parker, M. (Je '30)
Secret of the bungalow. Casey, R. J. (O '30)
Secret of the creek. Bridges, V. (D '30)
Secret of the flames. North, W. (Ap '30)
Secret places. Sutherland, J. (S '30)

Secret service
Aston, G. G. Secret service. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Jenssen, C. I spy. (D '30)
Lüdecke, W. Secrets of espionage. (My '30)

Russia
Vasil'ev, A. T. Ochrana. (N '30)
Secret service. Aston, G. G. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Secrets of espionage. Lüdecke, W. (My '30)
Secular movements in production and prices. Kuznets, S. S. (S '30)

Securities
Kraft, C., and Starkweather, L. P. Analysis of industrial securities. (S '30)
Madden, J. T., and Nadler, M. Foreign securities. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Stern, S. Fourteen years of European investments, 1914-1928. (O '30)
Seductio ad absurdum. Hahn, E. (S '30)
See Naples and die. Rice, E. L. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Seed. Norris, C. G. (O '30)
Seed of Abraham. Lazaron, M. S. (N '30)
Seed of liberty. Chatterton, E. K. (Je '30)
Seed of the moon. Rice, C. Y. (My '30)
Seed on the wind. Stout, R. (N '30)
Seeds of murder. Mason, Van W. (D '30)
Seeing England and Scotland. Newman, E. M. (Ag '30)
Seeing France. Newman, E. M. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Seeing red; today in Russia. Eng title of: Black bread and red coffins. Farson, N. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Seeing Spain and Morocco. Newman, E. M. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Seely, John Edward Barnard
Seely, J. E. B. Adventure. (My '30)
The Selbys. Green, A. (Je '30)
Seldes, Gilbert Vivian
Aristophanes. Lysistrata. (N '30)
Select bibliography of modern economic theory, 1870-1929. Batson, H. E., comp. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Select documents in Canadian economic history, 1497-1783. Innis, H. A., ed. (S '30)
Select methods of metallurgical analysis. Naish, W. A., and Clennell, J. E. (Ag '30)
Selected articles on trends in retail distribution. Bloomfield, D., comp. (N '30)
Selections; v 2, The Bolshevik party in action, 1904-1914. Lenin, N. (N '30)
Self-government (in education)
Bowden, A., and Clarke, I. C. Tomorrow's Americans. (D '30)
Sense of glory. Read, H. E. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Sentimental vagabond. T'Serstevens, A. (D '30)
Sequoia
Fry, W., and White, J. R. Big trees. (O '30)
Sermons
Elliott, W. H. H. Plain man looks at life. (N '30)
Newton, J. F. Things I know in religion. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Stidger, W. Le R., ed. If I had only one sermon to preach on immortality. (My '30)
Tittle, E. P. Foolishness of preaching. (Ag '30)
Seth Harding. Howard, J. L. (S '30)
Seth Parker's album. Lord, P. H. (N '30)
Seton, Graham, pseud. See Hutchison, G. S.
Seven days' darkness. Gunnarsson, G. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Seven great bibles. Martin, A. W. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Seven horizons. Finger, C. J. (Je '30)
Seven months and seven days. Klitgaard, K. (Je '30)
Seven nineteenth-century statesmen. Eng title of: English political portraits of the nineteenth century. Taylor, G. R. S. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Seven skies. Guggenheim, H. F. (N '30)
Seven stabs. MacDonell, A. G. (My '30)
Seven suspects. Ryerson, F., and Clements, C. C. (Ag '30)
Seven tales and Alexander. Bates, H. E. (N '30)
"The 17." Washburn, E. (Ap '30)
Seventeenth century
Clark, G. N. Seventeenth century. (Ag '30)
Seventeenth century. Clark, G. N. (Ag '30)
Seventh gate. Harris, M. (My '30)
Seventh wave. Andrews, M. (Je '30)
Seventy birth control clinics. Robinson, C. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Severn woods. Rickert, E. (Je '30)
Sewage disposal
Metcalf, L., and Eddy, H. P. Sewerage and sewage disposal. (S '30)

Sewerage
Metcalf, L., and Eddy, H. P. Sewerage and sewage disposal. (S '30)
Sewerage and sewage disposal. Metcalf, L., and Eddy, H. P. (S '30)
Sewing
Curtis, H. P. When Sally sews. (Je '30)

Sex
Crawley, A. E. Studies of savages and sex. (F '31) (1929 Annual)
Dell, F. Love in the machine age. (Je '30)
Ellis, H. Man and woman. (Ap '30)
Hall, W. S. Love and marriage. (Ap '30)
Ingram, K. Modern attitude to the sex problem. (Ag '30)
Meyer, J. J. Sexual life in ancient India. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Pomeral, R. de. Marriage. (S '30)
Waller, W. W. Old love and the new. (S '30)
Wolbarst, A. L. Generations of Adam. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Sex (psychology)
Wittels, F. Critique of love. (Ap '30)

Sex and religion

Goldberg, B. Z. Sacred fire. (Ag '30)

Sex hygiene

Wolbarst, A. L. Generations of Adam. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Sex instruction

Dennett, M. W. Who's obscene? (Je '30)

Sexual ethics

Russell, B. A. W. Marriage and morals. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Sexual life in ancient India. Meyer, J. J. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Shadow-king [Louis XVII of France]. Salomon, G. (S '30)

Shadow of evil. Dutton, C. J. (Ag '30)

Shadow syndicate. Hosken, C. J. W. (Ag '30)

Shadows of men. Tully, J. (Ap '30)

Shaggy legion. Evarts, H. G. (Ag '30)

Shake 'em up! Elliott, V., and Stong, P. D. (D '30)

Shakespeare, William

Chambers, E. K. William Shakespeare. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Biography

Sources

Butler, P., comp. Materials for the life of Shakespeare. (O '30)

Criticism and interpretation

Knight, G. W. Wheel of fire. (D '30)

Stoll, E. E. Poets and playwrights. (O '30)

Friends and associates

Fripp, E. I. Shakespeare studies. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Homes and haunts

Fripp, E. I. Shakespeare studies. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Songs

Shakespeare, W. Songs. (My '30)

Tragedies

Knight, G. W. Wheel of fire. (D '30)

Shakespeare in fiction, drama, poetry, etc.

Gaye, P. F. Good Sir John. (O '30)

Shakespeare in Wall Street. Warren, E. H. (Ap '30)

Shakespeare studies. Fripp, E. I. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Shambhala. Roerich, N. K. (S '30)

Shanty-boat. Lighty, K. and M. (My '30)

Shard. Lambart, D. (Je '30)

Shaw, Martin Fallas

Shaw, M. F. Up to now. (Mr '30)

She knew she was right. Williams, J. L. (Ag '30)

Sheep

Gilfillan, A. B. Sheep. (Mr '30)

Shelley, Mrs Mary Wollstonecraft (Godwin)

Massingham, H. J. Friend of Shelley [Edward John Trelawny]. (D '30)

Shelley, Percy Bysshe

Massingham, H. J. Friend of Shelley [Edward John Trelawny]. (D '30)

Shelley, P. B. Lost letters to Harriet. (Je '30)

Ullman, J. R. Mad Shelley. (Ag '30)

Shenandoah Valley

Gordon, A. C. In the picturesque Shenandoah Valley. (S '30)

Shepherd of Guadaloupe. Grey, Z. (Ag '30)

Shepherds in sackcloth. Kaye-Smith, S. (O '30)

Sherman, William Tecumseh

Liddell Hart, B. H. Sherman, soldier, realist, American. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Sherman, soldier, realist, American. Liddell Hart, B. H. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Ship models

Adams, P. Racing yachts done in cork models. (O '30)

Ship of truth. Cooper, L. U. (Je '30)

Shipping

United States

Beasley, N. Freighters of fortune. (O '30)

Ships

Smith, C. F. There was a ship. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Juvenile literature

Gimmage, P. Picture book of ships. (O '30)

Shipwrecks

Lockhart, J. G. Blenden Hall. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Shaw, F. H. Full fathom five. (D '30)

Thomas, L. J. Wreck of the Dumaru. (N '30)

Shirt-tail and pigtail. Schroeder, H. A., and Peters, L. A. (My '30)

Shoals, Isles of

Laighton, O. Ninety years at the Isles of Shoals. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Shop window murders. Vahey, J. G. H. (Ag '30)

Shopping

Palmer, G. Shopping guide to New York. (O '30)

Shopping guide to New York. Palmer, G. (O '30)

Shorn lamb. Locke, W. J. (D '30)

Short history of British expansion. Williamson, J. A. (S '30)

Short history of Chinese civilization. Wilhelm, R. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Short history of Julia. Glenn, I. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Short history of the French people. Guignebert, C. A. H. (My '30)

Short stories

Collections

Becker, M. L., ed. Golden tales of the old South. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Frank, W., ed. Tales from the Argentine. (N '30)

Grove, J., ed. Omnibus of adventure. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Knickerbocker, E. Van B., ed. Notable short stories of today. (Ap '30)

O. Henry memorial award. Prize stories of 1929. (Ap '30)

O. Henry memorial award. Prize stories of 1930. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

O'Brien, E. J. H., ed. Best British short stories of 1930. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

O'Brien, E. J. H., ed. Best short stories of 1930. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Rhys, E., and Scott, C. A., eds. Mainly horses. (Mr '30)

Rhys, E., and Scott, C. A., eds. Tales from far and near. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Warren, D., comp. Modern galaxy. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Short stories of Saki. Munro, H. H. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Short talks on science. Slosson, E. E. (O '30)

Shoshoni Indians

Hebard, G. R. Washakie. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Show me death! Dent, W. R. (Ag '30)

Show windows

Kiesler, F. Contemporary art applied to the store and its display. (S '30)

Shrimps for tea. Blumenfeld, J. (O '30)

Shrubs

Kirkwood, J. E. Northern Rocky Mountain trees and shrubs. (D '30)

Shutter of snow. Coleman, E. H. (O '30)

Sibert, William Luther

Clark, E. B. William L. Sibert. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Sick society. Kraus, A. J. I. (S '30)

Side lights on Queen Victoria. Ponsonby, F. E. G. (D '30)

Siena

Misciattelli, P. Mystics of Siena. (My '30)

Signed in yellow. Loban, E. H. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Significance of personality. Vaughan, R. M. (S '30)

Sigourney, Mrs Lydia Howard (Huntley)

Haight, G. S. Mrs. Sigourney. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Siksika Indians

Schultz, J. W., and Donaldson, J. L. Sun god's children. (Ag '30)

Silent murders. Gordon, N. (Mr '30)

Silent partner. Muir, A. (Je '30)

Silver key. Wallace, E. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Silver king mystery. Greig, I. B. (N '30)

Silver magic. Wilson, R., pseud. (Ap '30)

Silver shell. Chase, M. E. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Silver swan. Collins, B. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Silver wings. Whitfield, R. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Silverware
Avery, C. L. Early American silver. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Simón Bolivar. Angell, H. (Ag '30)
Simon de Montfort. Bémont, C. (Je '30)
Simon Kenton. Kenton, E. (My '30)
The simple pass on. Eng title of: Orphan of Mars. Cannan, J. (Je '30)
Since then. Gibbs, P. H. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Sinclair, B. See Bower, B. M., pseud.
Singermann. Brinig, M. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Singing seamen. Crew, H. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Singing sword. Hyde, M. P. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Singing time. Coleman, S. N., and Thorn, A. G. (Mr '30)
Single-handed. Forester, C. S. (Mr '30)
Sinism. Creel, H. G. (My '30)
Sinners in summertime. Hoel, S. (O '30)
Sins of New York. Van Every, E. (D '30)
Sir Arthur Nicolson, bart., first Lord Carnock; a study in the old diplomacy. Eng title of: Portrait of a diplomatist. Nicolson, H. G. (N '30)
Sir Arthur Pinero's plays and players. Fyfe, H. H. (O '30)
Sir Bob. Madariaga, S. de. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Sir Francis Bacon. Steel, B. (My '30)
Sir John Hawkins. Eng title of: Hawkins. scourge of Spain. Gosse, P. (D '30)
Sir John Magill's last journey. Crofts, F. W. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
"Sir!" she said. Waugh, A. (N '30)
Sir Walter. Eng title of: Scott, and his circle. Carswell, D. (D '30)
Siren song. Carse, R. (D '30)

Sitka, Alaska
Willoughby, F. Sitka, portal to romance. (Ag '30)

Sitka, portal to romance. Willoughby, F. (Ag '30)
Six boys in trouble. Reckless, W. C. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Six horses. Banning, W. and G. H. (Je '30)
Sixteen letters. Wilde, O. (D '30)
Sketch books. Sei Shōnagon. (N '30)
Sketches along life's road. Harrison, E. (S '30)
Sketches in nineteenth century biography. Feiling, K. G. (N '30)

Skis and ski running
Jessup, E. H. Skis and skiing. (Ap '30)

Skis and skiing. Jessup, E. H. (Ap '30)
Sky farm. Blake, C. (N '30)
Sky high. Hodgins, E., and Magoun, F. A. (Mr '30)
Sky through branches. Longstreth, T. M. (Ag '30)
The sky's the limit. Tomlinson, D. W. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Skyways. Mitchell, W. (Ag '30)
Slane's long shots. Oppenheim, E. P. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Slave-trade
Mathieson, W. L. Great Britain and the slave trade, 1839-1865. (Mr '30)
Owen, N. Journal of a slave-dealer. (My '30)

Slavery in America
Mathieson, W. L. Great Britain and the slave trade, 1839-1865. (Mr '30)

Slavery in Egypt
Westermann, W. L., ed. Upon slavery in Ptolemaic Egypt. (N '30)

Sleep
Collins, J. Insomnia. (Je '30)
Laird, D. A., and Muller, C. G. Sleep. (My '30)

Slovak poetry

Translations into English
Manning, C. A., and others, eds. Anthology of Czechoslovak poetry. (My '30)

Slowbags and Arethusa. Alington, A. (Ap '30)
Small rain. Eng title of: They loved too young. Clark, M. M. (Ag '30)
Small towns. Burr, W. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Small years. Kendon, F. (S '30)
Smart setback. Kahler, W. (D '30)

Smith, Mrs Amelia Abigail (Adams)
Roof, K. M. Colonel William Smith and lady. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Smith, Edith Freelove. See Smith, Freelove

Smith, John, 1580-1631

Fiction
Fraser, G. White Captain. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Smith, William Stephens
Roof, K. M. Colonel William Smith and lady. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Smoke screen. Saunders, L. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Snake of Luvercy. Renard, M. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
So I said to Mr Morgan. Shepard, M. (O '30)
So you're going to Germany and Austria! Laughlin, C. E. (Je '30)

Soap
Lawrence, A. S. C. Soap films. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Soap-bubbles
Lawrence, A. S. C. Soap films. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Soap films. Lawrence, A. S. C. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Sob ballads. Knapp, C. H. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Sober truth. Barton, M., and Sitwell, O., eds. (O '30)
Social aims of Jesus. Dickinson, C. H. (N '30)
Social and economic views of Mr. Justice Brandeis. Brandeis, L. D. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Social and political ideas of some great French thinkers of the age of reason. Hearnshaw, F. J. C., ed. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Social aspects of industry. Patterson, S. H. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Social conditions
Addams, J. Second twenty years at Hull-House. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Hill, H. C., ed. Readings in community life (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Social control of the mentally deficient. Davies, S. P. (Je '30)

Social democratic party (Germany)
Scheidemann, P. Making of new Germany. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Social ethics
Florence, P. S. Sociology and sin. (S '30)

Social organization. Bushee, F. A. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Social problems
Brandeis, L. D. Social and economic views of Mr. Justice Brandeis. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Lundberg, G. A. Social research. (My '30)
Slater, G. Poverty and the state. (N '30)
Wallis, W. D., and Willey, M. M. Readings in sociology. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Watkins, G. S. Labor problems. (O '30)

Social psychology
Notch, F. K., pseud. King Mob. (Ag '30)
Samson, L. New humanism. (D '30)
Stratton, G. M. Social psychology of international conduct. (Ap '30)
Thomas, D. S., and others. Some new techniques for studying social behavior. (My '30)
Wallis, W. D., and Willey, M. M. Readings in sociology. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Wells, G. R. Individuality and social restraint. (S '30)
Young, K. Social psychology. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Social psychology of international conduct. Stratton, G. M. (Ap '30)
Social research. Lundberg, G. A. (My '30)

Social sciences
Florence, P. S. Sociology and sin. (S '30)
Odum, H. W., and Jocher, K. C. Introduction to social research. (Ag '30)
Rueff, J. From the physical to the social sciences. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Spahr, W. E., and Swenson, R. J. Methods and status of scientific research. (D '30)

Social sciences—Continued

Addresses, essays, lectures

Gee, W., ed. Research in the social sciences. (Ag '30)

Dictionaries

Encyclopaedia of the social sciences, v 1. (Ap '30)
Encyclopaedia of the social sciences, v 2. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Study and teaching

Billings, N. Determination of generalizations basic to the social studies curriculum. (Ag '30)
Pierce, B. L. Civic attitudes in American school textbooks. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Social service
Lee, P. R., and others. Mental hygiene and social work. (Ag '30)
Warner, A. G., and others. American charities and social work. (N '30)
Williamson, M. A. Social worker in group work. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Social surveys
Lundberg, G. A. Social research. (My '30)
Odum, H. W., and Jocher, K. C. Introduction to social research. (Ag '30)
Smith, T. V., and White, L. D., eds. Chicago. (Ap '30)
Social teaching of the church. Inge, W. R. (N '30)
Social work of the churches. (N '30)
Social worker in group work. Williamson, M. A. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Socialism
Laidler, H. W., and Thomas, N. M., eds. Socialism of our times. (Je '30)
Page, K., ed. New economic order. (Je '30)

Socialism in France
Mason, E. S. Paris commune. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Socialism in Great Britain
Rothstein, T. From Chartism to labourism. (Ag '30)

Socialism in the United States
Rogoff, H. East Side epic [Meyer London]. (Ap '30)
Socialism of our times. Laidler, H. W., and Thomas, N. M., eds. (Je '30)

Socialist party (United States)
Painter, F. K. That man Debs and his life work. (O '30)

Society, Primitive
Crawley, A. E. Studies of savages and sex. (F '31) (1929 Annual)
Róheim, G. Animism, magic, and the divine king. (D '30)
Weber, E. A. Duk-Duks. (My '30)

Sociology
Babcock, D. C. Man and social achievement. (S '30)
Bushee, F. A. Social organization. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Dawson, C. A., and Gettys, W. E. Introduction to sociology. (Je '30)
Kirkpatrick, C. Religion in human affairs. (My '30)
Kraus, A. J. I. Sick society. (S '30)
Lundberg, G. A., and others, eds. Trends in American sociology. (My '30)
Peters, C. C. Objectives and procedures in civic education. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Samson, L. New humanism. (D '30)
Wallis, W. D., and Willey, M. M. Readings in sociology. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

History

Mānekjī Nasarvānjī Dhālā. Our perfecting world. (D '30)

Sociology, Christian
Dickinson, C. H. Social aims of Jesus. (N '30)
Inge, W. R. Christian ethics and modern problems. (N '30)
Inge, W. R. Social teaching of the church. (N '30)
Kirkpatrick, C. Religion in human affairs. (My '30)
Myers, J. Religion lends a hand. (Ap '30)
Wagner, D. O. Church of England and social reform since 1854. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Sociology, Rural
Hatcher, O. L., and others. Rural girls in the city for work. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
McLaughlin, H. W., ed. Country church and public affairs. (O '30)
Woodson, C. G. Rural negro. (N '30)
Sociology and sin. Florence, P. S. (S '30)
Soil. Hulbert, A. B. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Soils
Hulbert, A. B. Soil. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Soldiers march! Fredenburgh, T. (N '30)
Soldiers' women. Wendler, O. B. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Solitary parade. Hackenburg, F. L. (Ag '30)
Solitary warrior. Ruskin, J. (Ap '30)

Solomon, king of Israel
Fleg, E. Life of Solomon. (Mr '30)

Solution (chemistry)
Hammett, L. P. Solutions of electrolytes. (Ap '30)
Solutions of electrolytes. Hammett, L. P. (Ap '30)

Solvents
Durrans, T. H. Solvents. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Solving life's everyday problems. Gilkey, J. G. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Some fascinating women of the renaissance. Portigliotti, G. (Je '30)
Some folks won't work. Calkins, C. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Some forerunners of the newspaper in England, 1476-1622. Shaaber, M. A. (Ag '30)
Some living issues. Speer, R. E. (O '30)
Some mariners of France. Minnigerode, M. (S '30)
Some new techniques for studying social behavior. Thomas, D. S., and others. (Ap '30)
Some of the English. Hueffer, O. M. (S '30)
Some of us. Cabell, J. B. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Some other beauty. Wylie, I. A. R. (S '30)
Some royalties and a prime minister. Bibesco, M. L. (O '30)
Some southern cotton mill workers and their villages. Rhyne, J. J. (Je '30)
Some Spanish-American poets. Blackwell, A. S., comp. and tr. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Some trust in chariots. Tarleton, F. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Somerset, Robert Carr, earl of
Gibbs, P. H. King's favourite. (Je '30)

Fiction

Sabatini, R. King's minion. (D '30)
Somewhere in this house. King, R. (My '30)
Son avenger. Undset, S. (O '30)
Son of Apollo. Woodbridge, F. J. E. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Son of China. Sheng-Cheng. (Je '30)
Son of John Winteringham. Piper, W. (My '30)
Son of Minos. Cheney, D. M. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Son of the forests. Curwood, J. O. (D '30)
Son of the three musketeers. Cami, H. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Song-bird. Cleugh, S. (My '30)
Song of the wheatfields. Móra, F. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Song of Tiadatha. Rutter, O. (D '30)
Songs. Shakespeare, W. (My '30)
Songs for Johnny-Jump-Up. Farrar, J. C. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Songs my mother never taught me. Niles, J. J., ed. (Mr '30)
Songs of science. Shortridge, V., comp. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Songs of the coast dwellers. Skinner, C. L. (Ag '30)
Songs of the lost frontier. Knibbs, H. H. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Sons of the mammoth. Bogoraz, V. G. (Ap '30)
Sophie. Sterrett, F. R. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Soto, Hernando de
Maynard T. De Soto and the conquistadores. (Ag '30)
Soul of Picardy. Maskell, H. P. (Je '30)
Souls in the making. Mackenzie, J. G. (Ap '30)
Soup to nuts. Carey, N., pseud. (D '30)

Source book in astronomy. Shapley, H., and Howarth, H. E. (My '30)
Source book of American political theory. Wright, B. F., ed. (Ap '30)
Sources for early history of Ireland, v 1. Kenney, J. F. (N '30)
South
Civilization
Odum, H. W. American epoch. (D '30)
Description and travel
Risley, E. Road to Wildcat. (Je '30)
Economic conditions
I'll take my stand. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Vance, R. B. Human factors in cotton culture. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Social conditions
I'll take my stand. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Odum, H. W. American epoch. (D '30)
Vance, R. B. Human factors in cotton culture. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
South Africa
History
Chilvers, H. A. Johannesburg. (Ag '30)
South African war, 1899-1902
Personal narratives
Reitz, D. Commando. (Ap '30)
South America
Jones, C. F. South America. (N '30)
Description and travel
Cherrie, G. K. Dark trails. (D '30)
Cobb, I. S. Both sides of the street. (N '30)
Grubb, K. G. Amazon and Andes. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Halliburton, R. New worlds to conquer. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Rothery, A. E. South America. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Stevenson, F. J. Traveller of the sixties. (O '30)
South America. Rothery, A. E. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
South Foreland murder. Fletcher, J. S. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
South Pole
Byrd, R. E. Little America. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
South Sea islands
Description and travel
Shurcliff, S. N. Jungle islands. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Southcote, George, pseud. See Aston, G. G.
Southwest
Coates, R. M. Outlaw years. (O '30)
Duffus, R. L. Sante Fe trail. (O '30)
Forrest, E. R. Missions and pueblos of the old Southwest. (Ap '30)
Description and travel
Stacey, M. H. Uncle Sam's camels. (Ap '30)
History
Foreman, G. Indians and pioneers. (O '30)
Lummis, C. F. Flowers of our lost romance. (My '30)
Sovereignty
Hawtrey, R. G. Economic aspects of sovereignty. (Ag '30)
Sovereignty of the British dominions. Keith, A. B. (N '30)
Soviet economic development and American business. Bron, S. G. (S '30)
Soviet Russia. Chamberlin, W. H. (Je '30)
Soviet union and peace. Union of soviet socialist republics. (N '30)
Soviet union looks ahead. Union of soviet socialist republics. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual) Soviets in world affairs. Fischer, L. (D '30)
Space and time
Eddington, A. S. Nature of the physical world. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Spain
Madariaga, S. Spain. (S '30)
Civilization
Oliveira Martins, J. P. History of Iberian civilization. (N '30)
Colonies
Jane, L. C. Liberty and despotism in Spanish America. (S '30)
Simpson, L. B. Encomienda in New Spain. (S '30)
Description and travel
Aulnoy, M. C. J. de B. Travels into Spain. (D '30)
Crockett, W. D. and S. F. Satchel guide to Spain and Portugal. (O '30)
Freeston, C. L. Roads of Spain. (S '30)
Giles, D. Road through Spain. (Mr '30)
Newman, E. M. Seeing Spain and Morocco. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Peers, E. A. Spain. (Ag '30)
Praz, M. Unromantic Spain. (My '30)
History
Peers, E. R., ed. Spain. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Spain. Peers, E. A. (Ag '30)
Spain. Peers, E. A., ed. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Spanish America
Description and travel
Halliburton, R. New worlds to conquer. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Economic conditions
Winkler, M. Investments of United States capital in Latin America. (Ag '30)
Foreign relations
Great Britain
Rippy, J. F. Rivalry of the United States and Great Britain over Latin America (1808-1830). (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
United States
Jones, C. L., and others. United States and the Caribbean. (My '30)
Rippy, J. F. Rivalry of the United States and Great Britain over Latin America (1808-1830). (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
History
Jane, L. C. Liberty and despotism in Spanish America. (S '30)
Politics
Jane, L. C. Liberty and despotism in Spanish America. (S '30)
Spanish-American poetry
Collections
Blackwell, A. S., comp. and tr. Some Spanish-American poets. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Translations into English
Blackwell, A. S., comp. and tr. Some Spanish-American poets. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Spanish holiday. Kelly, E. (O '30)
Spanish literature
Peers, E. A., ed. Spain. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Spanish lover. Spearman, F. H. (D '30)
Spanish missions of Arizona
Forrest, E. R. Missions and pueblos of the old Southwest. (Ap '30)
Spanish missions of New Mexico
Forrest, E. R. Missions and pueblos of the old Southwest. (Ap '30)
Spanish succession, War of, 1701-1704
Trevelyan, G. M. England under Queen Anne; v 1, Blenheim. (N '30)
Spanish voyages to the northwest coast of America in the sixteenth century. Wagner, H. R. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Sparky-for-short. Bruère, M. S. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Spawn. Ferber, N. J. (D '30)
Speaking of women. Vance, L. J. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Special providence. Eng title of: Three against fate. Hamilton, M. A. (Mr '30)

Spectrum, Infra-red
Buckingham, J. Matter & radiation. (D '30)
Speculation
Floyd, W. People vs. Wall street. (S '30)
Foster, O. D. Making money in the stock market. (S '30)
Frederick, J. G. Common stocks and the average man. (Ag '30)
Kelly, F. C. Why you win or lose. (D '30)
Munn, G. G. Meeting the bear market. (S '30)
Sparling, E. Mystery men of Wall street. (S '30)
Warshow, R. I. Story of Wall Street. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Speech
Paget, R. A. S. Human speech. (Je '30)
Sphinx has spoken. Dekobra, M. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Spice and the devil's cave. Hewes, A. D. (N '30)
Spider web. Worthington, M. M. (Ap '30)
Spies
Berndorff, H. R. Espionage! (Je '30)
Jenssen, C. I spy. (D '30)
Johnson, T. M. Our secret war. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Lüdecke, W. Secrets of espionage. (My '30)
Spirals. Stein, A. M. (My '30)
Spirit in evolution. Standing, H. F. (N '30)
Spirit of God and the faith of today. Roberts, R. (S '30)
Spirit of Protestantism. Kirk, H. E. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Spiritual life
Greene, G. M. Mount Zion. (Ap '30)
Underhill, E. House of the soul. (Ag '30)
Spiritualism
Doyle, A. C. Edge of the unknown. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Splendid crime. Goodchild, G. (N '30)
Splendour of the dawn. Oxenham, J., pseud. (N '30)
Sport in classic times. Butler, A. J. (N '30)
Sports
Butler, A. J. Sport in classic times. (N '30)
Krout, J. A. Annals of American sport. (Je '30)

Greece

Gardiner, E. N. Athletics of the ancient world. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Spreading germs of hate. Viereck, G. S. (S '30)
Spring dust. Wadsley, O. (S '30)

Spring Rice, Sir Cecil Arthur
Spring Rice, C. A. Letters and friendships. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Squadron of death. Grace, D. (Mr '30)
Square mark. White, G. M., and Deakin, H. L. (S '30)

Squash rackets (game)
Danzig, A. Racquet game. (Ag '30)
Squiggles. Aldis, D. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Squire's daughter. Mayor, F. M. (D '30)

Staël, Anne Louise Germaine (Necker) baronne de
Hawkins, R. L. Madame de Staël and the United States. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Stage coach and tavern tales of the Old Northwest. Cole, H. E. (O '30)

Stahl, John Meloy
Stahl, J. M. Growing with the West. (Ag '30)
Stalkers of pestilence. Oliver, W. W. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Stamford, Connecticut

History

Sherwood, H. F. Story of Stamford. (S '30)

Stammering
Johnson, W. Because I stutter. (Je '30)
Star of the Orsini. Huna, L. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Stars
Maeterlinck, M. Magic of the stars. (Je '30)
Stars to-night. Teasdale, S. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

State, The
Strong, C. F. Modern political constitutions. (Ag '30)
Willoughby, W. W. Ethical basis of political authority. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
State banks and the federal reserve system. Tippetts, C. S. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
State income taxes, v 1 and 2. National industrial conference board. (N '30)
State rights
Hollis, C. American heresy. (My '30)
States through Irish eyes. Somerville, E. A. O. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Statesmen
Sforza, C. Makers of modern Europe. (Je '30)
Statesmen, British
Taylor, G. R. S. English political portraits of the nineteenth century. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Statistical method in economics and political science. Florence, P. S. (Mr '30)
Statistics
Florence, P. S. Statistical method in economics and political science. (Mr '30)
Lovitt, W. V., and Holtzclaw, H. F. Statistics. (N '30)
Snider, J. L., ed. Business statistics. (S '30)
Staying with relations. Macaulay, R. (D '30)
Steamboat navigation

Mississippi river

Blair, W. A. Raft pilot's log. (Je '30)
Steamboats
Eskew, G. L. Pageant of the packets. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Steaming up! Vauclain, S. M., and May, E. C. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Steel, Byron, pseud. See Steegmüller, F.
Steel industry and trade
Berglund, A., and Wright, P. G. Tariff on iron and steel. (Ap '30)
Steichen, Edward
Sandburg, C. Steichen, the photographer. (Ap '30)
Steichen, the photographer. Sandburg, C. (Ap '30)
Stendhal. Kayser, R. (My '30)
Stepdaughters of war. Smith, H. Z. (Je '30)
Stephen Escott. Lewisohn, L. (My '30)
Stepsisters. Clarke, I. C. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Stevenson, Robert Louis
Carré, J. M. Frail warrior [Robert Louis Stevenson]. (Je '30)
Still waters. Van de Water, F. F. (Ap '30)
Stir of nature. Carr, W. H. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Stock exchange
Dice, C. A. New levels in the stock market. (S '30)
Fisher, I. Stock market crash—and after. (Je '30)
Foster, O. D. Making money in the stock market. (S '30)
Kelly, F. C. Why you win or lose. (D '30)
Munn, G. G. Meeting the bear market. (S '30)
Stock market crash—and after. Fisher, I. (Je '30)
Stock-ranges
Gilfillan, A. B. Sheep. (Mr '30)
Stock transfer
Christy, F. T. Transfer of stock. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Stocks
Dice, C. A. New levels in the stock market. (S '30)
Fisher, I. Stock market crash—and after. (Je '30)
Foster, O. D. Making money in the stock market. (S '30)
Frederick, J. G. Common stocks and the average man. (Ag '30)
Munn, G. G. Meeting the bear market. (S '30)
Stone, Lucy (Mrs Henry B. Blackwell)
Blackwell, A. S. Lucy Stone. (N '30)
Storage batteries
Vinal, G. W. Storage batteries. (D '30)

Stories of love, courage and compassion. Deeping, W. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Stories of the great operas, v 1-2. Newman, E. (My '30)
Stories postage stamps tell. Rothschild, S. I. (N '30)
Storm, Lesley, pseud. See Clark, M. M.
Storm. Aminoff, C. L. C. (My '30)
Storm at the crossroads. Tupper, T. (Ag '30)
Storm bird. Panter-Downes, M. (My '30)
Story of a surgeon. Bland-Sutton, J. (N '30)
Story of Dwight W. Morrow. McBride, M. M. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Story of evolution. Gruenberg, B. C. (Mr '30)
Story of markets. Camp, R. O. (My '30)
Story of money. Angell, N. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Story of punishment. Barnes, H. E. (O '30)
Story of religions in America. Sweet, W. W. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Story of Stamford. Sherwood, H. F. (S '30)
Story of Wall Street. Warshow, R. I. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Story-telling
  Miller, G. T. Story-telling to live wire boys. (D '30)
Story-telling to live wire boys. Miller, G. T. (D '30)

Strang, James Jesse
  Quaife, M. M. Kingdom of Saint James. (Ag '30)
Strange bedfellows. Herold, D. (O '30)
Strange case of Gunner Rawley. Morris, W. F. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Strange death of President Harding. Means, G. B. (Ag '30)
Strange pursuit. Wynnton, P. (O '30)
Strange tales of the seven seas. Lockhart, J. G. (S '30)
Strangers may kiss. Parrott, K. U. (O '30)
Stranglehold. Reynolds, G. M. (S '30)
Strangler fig. Strange, J. S. (N '30)

Strategy
  Liddell Hart, B. H. Decisive wars of history. (My '30)
Strategy in handling people. Webb, E. T., and Morgan, J. J. B. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Stratford-upon-Avon
  Fripp, E. I. Shakespeare studies. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Street lighting
  Harrison, W., and others. Street lighting practice. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Street lighting practice. Harrison, W., and others. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Street of the islands. Young, S. (D '30)
Streets of shadow. McFarlane, L. (Je '30)
Strength of lovers. Martínez Zuviría, G. A. (Je '30)
Strength of the spirit. Eyles, M. L. (Ag '30)

Stresemann, Gustav
  Olden, R. Stresemann. (Ag '30)
Stricken deer; or, The life of Cowper. Cecil, E. C. D. (Je '30)
Strictly dishonorable. Sturges, P. (My '30)
Strike! Vorse, M. M. (D '30)

Strindberg, August
  McGill, V. J. August Strindberg. (Je '30)

Strindberg, Nils
  Swedish society for anthropology and geography. Andrée's story. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

String figures
  Haddon, K. Artists in string. (O '30)
Strong poison. Sayers, D. L. (D '30)
Structure and meaning of psychoanalysis. Healy, W., and others. (Je '30)

Stuart, James Ewell Brown
  Thomason, J. B. Jeb Stuart. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Studdert-Kennedy, Geoffrey Anketell
  Mozley, J. K., ed. G. A. Studdert Kennedy. (N '30)

Students
  Charters, J. B. College student thinking it through. (O '30)
  Gauss, C. F. Life in college. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Little, C. C. Awakening college. (Je '30)
  Michigan. University. Dept. of Sociology. Study in undergraduate adjustment. (O '30)
Student's history of printing. Haynes, M. W. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Studies in diplomatic history. Headlam-Morley, J. W. (D '30)
Studies in European literature. Lavrin, J. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Studies in Keats. Murry, J. M. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Studies in literature; third ser. Quiller-Couch, A. T. (Ap '30)
Studies in Matthew. Bacon, B. W. (D '30)
Studies in mediaeval culture. Haskins, C. H. (Ag '30)
Studies in the Chinese drama. Buss, K. (O '30)
Studies in the history of American law. Morris, R. B. (My '30)
Studies in the Italian renaissance. Vaughan, H. M. (O '30)
Studies in the Napoleonic wars. Oman, C. (O '30)
Studies of savages and sex. Crawley, A. E. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Study in undergraduate adjustment. Michigan University. Dept. of Sociology. (O '30)
Study of assimilation among the Roumanians in the United States. Galitzi, C. A. (S '30)
Study of the principles of politics. Catlin, G. E. G. (S '30)
Study of the student homes of China. Milam, A. B. (O '30)
Stuff. Beery, P. G. (S '30)
Stuffed owl. Lewis, D. B. W., and Lee, C., eds. (My '30)
Stunt flying. Duncan. R. (O '30)
Stunts of all lands. Miller, C. A. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Suárez, Inés
Fiction
  May, S. Conqueror's lady, Ines Suarez. (D '30)
Subaltern's war. Edmonds, C., pseud. (O '30)

Submarine boats
  Jackson, G. G. Romance of the submarine (Ag '30)

Submarine warfare
  Jackson, G. G. Romance of the submarine. (Ag '30)

Success
  Davis, J. J., and Wright, J. C. You and your job. (D '30)
  Pitkin, W. B. Psychology of achievement. (D '30)
Success. Feuchtwanger, L. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Successful control of profits. Rautenstrauch, W. (O '30)

Sudan, Egyptian
History
  Giffen, M. B. Fashoda. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Gordon, J. My six years with the Black watch, 1881-1887. (Mr '30)

Suffrage
United States
  McCulloch, A. J. Suffrage and its problems. (My '30)
Suffrage and its problems. McCulloch, A. J. (My '30)

Sugar
  Haworth, W. N. Constitution of sugars. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Sugimoto, Etsu (Inagaki)
  Ferris, H. J., ed. When I was a girl. (O '30)

Sulphuric acid
  Auden, H. A. Sulphuric acid and its manufacture. (My '30)
Sulphuric acid and its manufacture. Auden, H. A. (My '30)

Sumerians
  Woolley, C. L. Ur of the Chaldees. (Ap '30)
Sun god's children. Schultz, J. W., and Donaldson, J. L. (Ag '30)

Sun Yat Sen
  Amann, G. Legacy of Sun Yatsen. (Ap '30)

Sunday schools
  Sweet, H. F., and Fahs, S. B. Exploring religion with eight year olds. (D '30)

Sunken fleet. Lorenz, H. (My '30)
Superior, Wisconsin
Stewart, L. Pioneer of old Superior [Charles Dean Kimball]. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Supernatural
Case, S. J. Experience with the supernatural in early Christian times. (S '30)
Superstition
Beckwith, M. W. Black roadways. (F '31) (1929 Annual)
Supreme book of mankind. McClure, J. G. K. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Survey of American foreign relations, 1928-1929. (My '30)
Survey of ancient history to the death of Constantine. Laistner, M. L. W. (Mr '30)
Suss-Oppenheimer, Joseph
Drama
Dukes, A. Jew Süss. (Ap '30)
Sutley, Zachary Taylor
Sutley, Z. T. Last frontier. (Je '30)
Svevo, Italo, pseud. See Schmitz, E.
Svin'in, Paul Petrovich
Svin'in, P. P. Picturesque United States of America, 1811-1813. (Ag '30)
Swan Island murders. Lincoln, V. E. (D '30)
Sweden, Norway, Denmark, and Iceland in the World war. (Ja '31)
Sweet cheat gone. Proust, M. (My '30)
Sweet man. Millen, G. (S '30)
Swift, Jonathan
Van Doren, C. C. Swift. (D '30)
Swift, Julian, pseud. See Applin, A.
Switzerland
Description and travel
Guiton, P. Switzerland, western and southern. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Harrigan, M. H. Traveling light. (Je '30)
Switzerland, western and southern. Guiton, P. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
The sword falls. Bertram, A. (My '30)
Sword in the soul. Chauviré, R. (Je '30)
Syria
Antiquities
Garstang, J. Hittite empire. (N '30)
Systems of wage payment. National industrial conference board. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Szechwan, China
Description and travel
Roosevelt, T. and K. Trailing the giant panda. (Ap '30)

Table etiquet
Chambers, M. D. Table etiquette. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Table etiquette. Chambers, M. D. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Tabloid murders. Wood, C. (O '30)
Taft, William Howard
Butt, A. W. Taft and Roosevelt. (O '30)
Duffy, H. S. William Howard Taft. (O '30)
Taft and Roosevelt. Butt, A. W. (O '30)
Tag murders. Daly, C. J. (S '30)
Tagati. Stockley, C. (Ag '30)
Tait McKenzie. Hussey, C. (Ap '30)
Take your own car abroad and find your own Europe. Buchanan, J. J. (Je '30)
Taking chances. Farrell, M. J. (Mr '30)
Taking the curtain call: the life and letters of Henry Arthur Jones. Jones, D. A. (N '30)
Tal. Cooper, P. F. (My '30)
Tale of a vanished land. Burroughs, H. E. (Ag '30)
Tale of little pig Robinson. Potter, B. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Tale of Tom Tiddler. Farjeon, E. (O '30)
Tales, Basque
Carpenter, F. Tales of a Basque grandmother. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Tales, Chinese
Der Ling, princess. Lotos petals. (D '30)
Tales, Indic
Roerich, N. K. Shambhala. (S '30)
Tales from far and near. Rhys, E., and Scott, C. A., eds. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Tales from the Argentine. Frank, W., ed. (N '30)
Tales of a Basque grandmother. Carpenter, F. (F '31) (1930 Annual) Tales of a grandmother. Sand, G., pseud. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Tales of Normandie. Watson, P. B. (O '30)
Tales of the first animals. Walker, E. B., and Mook, C. C. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Tales told by Simpson. Sinclair, M. (O '30)
Tales told in Hawaii. Metzger, B. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Tall tales of the Southwest. Meine, F. J., ed. (Je '30)
Tantalus. Ammers- Küller, Jo van. (Mr '30)
Tapestry
Candee, H. C. Weaves and draperies. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Tarbeaux, Frank
Tarbeaux, F. Autobiography. (Ag '30)
Tariff
United States
Berglund, A., and Wright, P. G. Tariff on iron and steel. (Ap '30)
Tariff on iron and steel. Berglund, A., and Wright, P. G. (Ap '30)
Tatter'd loving. Bottome, P. (O '30)
Taxation
Comstock, A. P. Taxation in the modern state. (Mr '30)
Egypt
Westermann, W. L., ed. Upon slavery in Ptolemaic Egypt. (N '30)
France
Haig, R. M., and others. Public finances of post-war France. (S '30)
United States
National industrial conference board. General sales or turnover taxation. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Taxation in the modern state. Comstock, A. P. (Mr '30)
Tea time tales. Fyleman, R. (Je '30)
Teachers
Fisher, D. F. Learn or perish. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Teaching
Melvin, A. G. Progressive teaching. (My '30)
Teaching in college and university. Good, C. V. (Ap '30)
Technical arts and sciences of the ancients. Neuburger, A. (D '30)
Technique of teaching typewriting. Clem, J. E. (Je '30)
Television
Yates, R. F. A B C of television. (D '30)
Tell, William
Fiction
Adams, J. Mountains are free. (D '30)
Telling on the trout. Hewitt, E. R. (S '30)
Temperance
Binkley, R. C. Responsible drinking. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Dorr, R. L. Drink: coercion or control? (Mr '30)
Morrow, H. W. Tiger! Tiger! [John B. Gough]. (Ap '30)
Tietsort, F. J., ed. Temperance—or prohibition? (Mr '30)
Temperance—or prohibition? Tietsort, F. J., ed. (Mr '30)
Temple-Ellis, N. A., pseud. See Holdaway, N. A. (Ag '30)
Temple servant. Morrough, E. R. (Ag '30)
Temptations to right-doing. Cabot, E. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Ten modern poets. Brenner, R. (Ag '30)
Ten thousand shall fall. King, D. W. (Ap '30)
Ten thousand small loans. Robinson, L. N., and Stearns, M. E. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Ten to one in Sweden. Sylvanus, P. (Mr '30)
Tender talons. Martin, H. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Tennis
Danzig, A. Racquet game. (Ag '30)
Tenthragon. Savery, C. (Je '30)
Tents of the mighty. Richberg, D. R. (Ag '30)
Tepoztlán, Mexico
Redfield, R. Tepoztlán. (O '30)
Tepoztlán. Redfield, R. (O '30)
Teresa of Jesus, Saint
Wortham, H. E. Three women. (My '30)

Fiction

Hersch, V. Woman under glass. (D '30)
Terhune, Albert Payson
Terhune, A. P. To the best of my memory. (Je '30)
The terror. Reynolds, M. J. (N '30)
Testament of beauty. Bridges, R. S. (Mr '30)
Tethered bubble. Weyant, F. L. (D '30)
Texas (battleship)
Schubert, P. Come on, Texas. (O '30)
Texas rangers
Dobie, J. F. Vaquero of the brush country. (Ap '30)
Textbooks
Pierce, B. L. Civic attitudes in American school textbooks. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Textile fibers
Bray, H. A. Textile fibers, yarns, and fabrics. (My '30)
Textile fibers, yarns, and fabrics. Bray, H. A. (My '30)
Textile industry and fabrics
Bray, H. A. Textile fibers, yarns, and fabrics. (My '30)
Candee, H. C. Weaves and draperies. (Ja '31) (1930 Anual)
Thackeray alphabet. Thackeray, W. M. (Je '30)
Tharlane. Cottrell, D. (S '30)
That devil Wilkes. Postgate, R. W. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
That man Dawes. Leach, P. R. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
That man Debs and his life work. Painter, F. R. (O '30)
That other love. Moss, G. (O '30)
That worthless fellow Platonov. Chekhov, A. P. (My '30)
Theater
Brown, J. M. Modern theatre in revolt. (Ap '30)
Kommissarzhevisktī, F. F. Myself and the theatre. (Ap '30)

Little theater movement

Macgowan, K. Footlights across America. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Yearbooks

Mantle, B., ed. Best plays of 1928-29; and, The year book of the drama in America. (Ap '30)
Mantle, B., ed. Best plays of 1929-30. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

China

Buss, K. Studies in the Chinese drama. (O '30)

England

Eaton, W. P. Drama in English. (O '30)
Nungezer, E. Dictionary of actors. (Mr '30)

Italy

Smith, W. Italian actors of the renaissance. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

London

Beerbohm, M. Around theatres. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

New York (city)

Skolsky, S. Times Square tintypes. (D '30)

Russia

Freeman, J., and others. Voices of October. (Ag '30)
Fülöp-Miller, R., and Gregor, J. Russian theater. (Je '30)
Kommissarzhevisktī, F. F. Myself and the theatre. (Ap '30)

United States

Anderson, J. Box office. (Mr '30)
Brown, J. M. Upstage. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Coad, O. S., and Mims, E. American stage. (My '30)
Eaton, W. P. Drama in English (O '30)
Macgowan, K. Footlights across America. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Sayler, O. M. Revolt in the arts. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Wood, P. Actors—and people. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Theaters
Urban, J. Book of theatres. (Ap '30)

Lighting

Hartmann, L. Theatre lighting. (O '30)

Stage-setting and scenery

Purdom, C. B. Producing plays. (Je '30)
Theatre guild
Eaton, W. P. Theatre guild. (Ap '30)
Theatre lighting. Hartmann, L. (O '30)
Theism
Horton, W. M. Theism and the modern mood. (Je '30)
Theism and the modern mood. Horton, W. M. (Je '30)
Theologians
Kershner, F. D. Pioneers of Christian thought. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Theology
Brunner, H. E. Theology of crisis. (S '30)
James, E. O. Christian faith in the modern world. (N '30)
Snowden, J. H. What do present day Christians believe? (F '31) (1930 Annual)

History

Kershner, F. D. Pioneers of Christian thought. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Theology, Practical
Mackenzie, J. G. Souls in the making. (Ap '30)
Theology of crisis. Brunner, H. E. (S '30)
Theory of interest. Fisher, I. (D '30)
Theory of the location of industries. Weber, A. (Je '30)
There was a ship. Le Gallienne, R. (My '30)
There was a ship. Smith, C. F. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
There was magic in those days. O'Connor, N. J. (D '30)
These generations. Wiehe, E. M. (D '30)
These lords' descendants. Goddard, G. (Mr '30)
They climbed the Alps. Muller, E., jr. (Ag '30)
They die young. Eng title of: Death of Christopher. Sommerfield, J. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
They loved too young. Clark, M. M. (Ag '30)
They tell no tales. Thayer, L. (Ap '30)
They thought they could buy it. Carman, D. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
They told Barron. Barron, C. W. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Thin air. Bridges, C. (S '30)
The thing. Chesterton, G. K. (My '30)
Thing in the night. Virden, K. (D '30)
Things any boy can make. Leeming, J. (My '30)
Things I know in religion. Newton, J. F. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Things seen in Belgium. Holland, C. (D '30)
Third day. Manning-Sanders, G. (O '30)
Thirteen men. Thayer, T. (S '30)
Thirteen-month calendar, Johnsen, J. E., comp. (My '30)
Thirty fathoms deep. Ellsberg, E. (O '30)
Thirty-first bullfinch. Reilly, H. (S '30)
Thirty tales & sketches. Cunninghame Graham, R. B (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
This aviation business. Dichman, E. W. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
This awful age. Ryerson, F., and Clements, C. C. (D '30)
This day and time. Armstrong, A. W. (O '30)
This delicate love. Welles, W. (Mr '30)
This human nature. Duff, C. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
This is my body. Latimer, M. (Ap '30)
This land of liberty. Bates, E. S. (O '30)
This man and this woman. Stauffer, D. (My '30)

This pure young man. Fineman, I. (N '30)
This stubborn root. Flexner, H. (N '30)
This thing called broadcasting. Goldsmith, A. N., and Lescarboura, A. C. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
This ugly civilization. Borsodi, R. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
This way and that. Potter, E., comp. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
This world of nations. Potter, P. B. (Mr '30)
Thistles of the Baragan. Istrati, P. (Je '30)

Thomas à Becket, Saint, abp. of Canterbury

Fiction

Meyer, C. F. The saint. (Je '30)

Thomas Aquinas, Saint
D'Arcy, M. C. Thomas Aquinas. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Thomas B. Reed. Robinson, W. A. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Thomas Chatterton. Ellinger, E. P. (S '30)
Thomas Holley Chivers. Damon, S. F. (Ag '30)
Thomas Jefferson, the apostle of Americanism. Chinard, G. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Thomas Killigrew. Harbage, A. (My '30)
Thomas Masaryk of Czechoslovakia. Street, C. J. C. (S '30)

Thompson, William Hale
Bright, J. Hizzoner Big Bill Thompson. (Je '30)
Those earnest Victorians. Wingfield-Stratford, E. C. (N '30)
Those were the days. Milne, A. A. (Mr '30)

Thought and thinking
Clarke, E. L. Art of straight thinking. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Thought transference
Sinclair, U. B. Mental radio. (S '30)
Three-a-day. Heyward, D. H. (S '30)
Three against fate. Hamilton, M. A. (Mr '30)
Three brass elephants. Landon, H. (My '30)
Three came unarmed. Robertson, E. A. (Ap '30)
Three daggers. Gregg, C. F. (Mr '30)
Three essays. Mann, T. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Three half moons. Buntin, S. W. (Ag '30)
Three maidens. Phillpotts, E. (S '30)
Three masters. Zweig, S. (Je '30)
Three men's war. Mottram, R. H., and others. (My '30)
Three personal records of the war. Eng title of Three men's war. Mottram, R. H., and others. (My '30)
Three score and ten. Waugh, A. (Ag '30)
Three strange lovers. Calverton, V. F. (My '30)
Three Titans. Ludwig, E. (O '30)
Three virgins of Haworth. Romieu, E. and G. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Three women. Wortham, H. E. (My '30)
Thrill of evil. Ashton-Wolfe, H. (O '30)
Through blood and ice. Imrey, F., and Palen, L. S. (Ag '30)
Through the alimentary canal with gun and camera. Chappell, G. S. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Through the eyes of the judge. Jeffries, G. M. (Je '30)
Through-traffic. Davenport, R. W. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Thucydides
Cochrane, C. N. Thucydides and the science of history. (N '30)
Thucydides and the science of history. Cochrane, C. N. (N '30)

Thurston, Howard
Thurston, H. My life of magic. (My '30)
"Thy servant a dog." Kipling, R. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Thyroid gland
Kendall, E. C. Thyroxine. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Thyroxine. Kendall, E. C. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Tiber river
Eberlein, H. D., and others. Down the Tiber and up to Rome. (Je '30)

Tibet

Description and travel

Roerich, N. K. Shambhala. (S '30)

Ticker-tape murder. Propper, M. M. (Je '30)
Tides of Malvern. Griswold, F. (N '30)
Tidewater Virginia. Wilstach, P. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
The Tiger: Georges Clemenceau, 1841-1929. Adam, G. (Je '30)
Tiger! Tiger! [John B. Gough]. Morrow, H. W. (Ap '30)
Timber line. Malkus, A. S. (Mr '30)
Time, gentlemen! time! Eng title of: Closing hour. Hoult, N. (Ap '30)
Times square tintypes. Skolsky, S. (D '30)

Tin
Mantell, C. L. Tin. (My '30)
Tin pan alley. Goldberg, I. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Tiny Carteret. McNeile, H. C. (D '30)

Tlingit Indians
Willoughby, F. Sitka, portal to romance. (Ag '30)
To Africa with the migratory birds. Berg, B. M. K. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
To be hanged. Hamilton, B. (S '30)
To be taken before sailing. Cobb, I. S. (Ag '30)
To market! to market! Brock, E. L. (O '30)
To the best of my memory. Terhune, A. P. (Je '30)
To the gods of Hellas. Erskine, H., ed. (S '30)
To the South Seas. Pinchot, G. (S '30)
To the valiant. James, N. C. (My '30)
To what green altar? Maxwell, W. B. (D '30)
To-day's daughter. Ruck, B. (D '30)
Toasted blonde. Reeve, C. (N '30)

Tobacco jars
Myer, R. Chats on old English tobacco jars. (O '30)
Toes up. Monelli, P. (O '30)
Together again. Carlisle, H. G. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Told. Mackenzie, C. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Tolstoi, Leo Nikolaievich, count
Mann, T. Three essays. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Tolstaia, S. A. Countess Tolstoy's later diary; 1891-1897. (Ap '30)
Tom and moT. Trell, M. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Tomorrow's advertisers and their advertising agencies. Phelps, G. H. (Je '30)
Tomorrow's Americans. Bowden, A., and Clarke, I. C. (D '30)
Tong war! Gong, E. Y., and Grant, B. (S '30)
Topographical dictionary of ancient Rome. Platner, S. B. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Topographical drawing
Sloane, R. C., and Montz, J. M. Elements of topographical drawing. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Torch murder. Jones, C. R. (O '30)
Tornado Boy. Hinkle, T. C. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Tortured China. Abend, H. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Touch me not. McHugh, V. (O '30)
Touchstone. Williams, B. A. (My '30)

Toulouse-Lautrec Monfa, Henri Marie Raymond de
Symons, A. From Toulouse-Lautrec to Rodin. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Touring London. Shore, W. T. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
A tourist in spite of himself. Newton, A. E. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Toutou in bondage. Coatsworth, E. J. (Mr '30)
Toward civilization. Beard, C. A., ed. (Je '30)
Towards a new education. Boyd, W., and Mackenzie, M. E., eds. (S '30)
Town crier of Gevrey. Kerr, E. M. (Ag '30)
Town government in Massachusetts (1620-1930). Sly, J. F. (Je '30)
Town of Tombarel. Locke, W. J. (Je '30)

Toys
Leeming, J. Things any boy can make. (My '30)
Trackless death. Livingston, A. (S '30)

Trade and professional associations
Foth, J. H. Trade associations. (O '30)
Trade associations. Foth, J. H. (O '30)

Trade unions

Great Britain

Hedges, R. Y., and Winterbottom, A. Legal history of trade unionism. (Ag '30)

United States
Harding, A. Revolt of the actors. (Ap '30)
Trader's wife. Mackenzie, J. K. (My '30)
Trading east. Smith, F. (Ja '31 (1930 Annual)
Tradition and experiment in present-day literature. (Ap '30)
Tradition of Virgil. Morgan, J. S., and others. (O '30)
Traditional ballads of Virginia. Davis, A. K., jr., ed. (Ag '30)
Traditional methods of pattern designing. Christie, A. H. (D '30)
Tragedy in Pewsey Chart. Willett, H. (Mr '30)
Tragic era. Bowers, C. G. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Trail of the Lotto. Armstrong, A., pseud. (Ap '30)
Trail of the Ragged Fox. Fitzgerald, P. L. (Ag '30)
Trail to paradise. Gregory, J. (N '30)
Trailing the conquistadores. Inman, S. G. (O '30)
Trailing the giant panda. Roosevelt, T. and K. (Ap '30)
Training schools for delinquent girls. Reeves, M. (N '30)
Traitor! Traitor! Kerkhoff, J. D. (N '30)
Tramping through Africa. Roome, W. J. W. (D '30)
Tramps
Kerr, L. Back door guest. (Je '30)
Poetry
Milburn, G. Hobo's hornbook. (N '30)
Tranquilina's paradise. Smith, S. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Transfer of stock. Christy, F. T. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
The trap. Cinelli, D. (O '30)
Traprock, Walter E., pseud. See Chappell, G. S.
Trauma of birth. Rank, O. (Mr '30)
Travel
Collins, F. L. Vacation travelcharts and travel chats. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Travel talk. O'Reilly, M. A. (Je '30)
Traveler in Indian territory. Hitchcock, E. A. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Traveling light. Harrigan, M. H. (Je '30)
Traveller of the sixties. Stevenson, F. J. (O '30)
Travels in the Congo. Gide, A. P. G. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Travels into Spain. Aulnoy, M. C. J. de B. (D '30)
Treasure of Big Waters. Cullum, R. (N '30)
Treasure trove
Driscoll, G. B. Doubloons. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Treasurer's report. Benchley, R. C. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Treasury of Middle English verse. Adamson, M. R., comp. (Ag '30)
Treaties
Flournoy, R. W., jr., and Hudson, M. O., eds. Collection of nationality laws of various countries. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Treatise on the air brush. Frazer, S. W., and Stine, G. F. (O '30)
Treatise on the gods. Mencken, H. L. (Je '30)
Treaty veto of the American Senate. Fleming, D. F. (My '30)
Trees
Davies, T. F. Charm of trees. (S '30)
Wilson, E. H. Aristocrats of the trees. (Ag '30)
Rocky Mountains
Kirkwood, J. E. Northern Rocky Mountain trees and shrubs. (D '30)
California
Fry, W., and White, J. R. Big trees. (O '30)
Trelawny, Edward John
Massingham, H. J. Friend of Shelley [Edward John Trelawny]. (D '30)
Trends in American sociology. Lundberg, G. A., and others, eds. (My '30)
Trial of Scotland yard. Martin, S. (O '30)
Trials
Kavanagh, M. A. You be the judge. (Ag '30)
Marjoribanks, E. For the defence; the life of Sir Edward Marshall Hall. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Trials (murder)
Pearson, E. L. Instigation of the devil. (N '30)
Triumphant footman. Olivier, E. (S '30)
Trophies. Heredia, J. M. de. (Ap '30)
Tropics
Waugh, A. Hot countries. (My '30)
Trotsky, Leon, pseud. (Lev Davidovich Bronshtein)
Trotsky, L., pseud. My life. (Je '30)
Trough of the wave. Duun, O. (Je '30)
Trout
Calderwood, W. L. Salmon and sea trout. (Je '30)
Hewitt, E. R. Telling on the trout. (S '30)
Trout fishing
Hewitt, E. R. Telling on the trout. (S '30)
Reynolds, W. F. R. Fly and minnow. (N '30)
Trudeau, Edward Livingston
Hallock, G. T., and Turner, C. E. Edward Livingston Trudeau. (S '30)
True reason why I will not imitate four Hawaiians. Cook, J. (Je '30)
True story. Hudson, S., pseud. (Je '30)
True story of Bernarr Macfadden. Oursler, F. (My '30)
Trumpet in the dust. Fowler, G. (Je '30)
Trust and corporation problems. Seager, H. R., and Gulick, C. A. (Je '30)
Trusts, Industrial
Keezer, D. M., and May, S. Public control of business. (D '30)
Murphy, J. A. Merchandising through mergers. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
National industrial conference board. Mergers in industry. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
National industrial conference board. Public regulation of competitive practices. (S '30)
Seager, H. R., and Gulick, C. A. Trust and corporation problems. (Je '30)
Toulmin, H. A. Millions in mergers. (Ap '30)
Truth about Wagner. Hurn, P. D., and Root, W. L. (My '30)
Truths to live by. Ross, J. E. (S '30)
Tuberculosis
Hallock, G. T., and Turner, C. E. Edward Livingston Trudeau. (S '30)
Tubes
Marks, S. P. Pipe and tube bending and jointing. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Tufts, Henry
Tufts, H. Autobiography of a criminal. (Ag '30)
Tulips
Hall, A. D. Book of the tulip. (Je '30)
Tundra. Edington, A. C. and C. B. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Tunnellers of Holzminden. Durnford, H. G. E. (O '30)
Turenne, Henri de La Tour D'Auvergne, vicomte de
Weygand, M. Turenne. (S '30)
Turkestan
Description and travel
Lattimore, O. High Tartary. (D '30)
Turkey
Description and travel
Gérard de Nerval. Women of Cairo. (My '30)
Economic conditions
Emin, A. Turkey in the world war. (N '30)
History
Halidah Adib. Turkey faces west. (O '30)
Politics and government
Emin, A. Turkey in the world war. (N '30)
Social conditions
Emin, A. Turkey in the world war. (N '30)

Turkey—Continued

Social life and customs

Ekrem, S. Unveiled. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Turkey faces west. Halidah Adib. (O '30)
Turkey in the world war. Emin, A. (N '30)
Turn again tales. Housman, L. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Turn back the leaves. De La Pasture, E. E. M. (Ap '30)
Turn of a wheel. Rowe, A. (Je '30)
Turner, Josie, pseud. See Crawford, P.
Turning point. Weaver, J. V. A. (N '30)
Twelve against the gods. Bolitho, W., pseud. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Twentieth century
Gibbons, H. A. Wider horizons. (S '30)
Twentieth-century poetry. Drinkwater, J., and others, eds. (Mr '30) xxth century sculptors. Casson, S. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Twenty-four hours. Bromfield, L. (N '30)
Twenty-four views of marriage. Presbyterian church in the U. S. A. General assembly. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Twenty-one Americans. Busch, N. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
21 delightful ways of committing suicide. Bruller, J. (My '30)
Twenty thousand miles in a flying-boat. Cobham, A. J. (O '30)
Twice born in Russia. Petrova, N., pseud. (N '30)
Twilight of Christianity. Barnes, H. E. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Twilight of empire. Nearing, S. (Ag '30)
Twilight of magic. Lofting, H. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Twinkle, twinkle, movie star! Brundidge, H. T. (D '30)
Twins
Hirsch, N. D. M. Twins. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Two boys in South-American jungles. Jekyll, G. B. (Mr '30)
Two centuries of American Mennonite literature. Bender, H. S., comp. (N '30)
Two frontiers. Fletcher, J. G. (Ap '30)
200 years of Charleston cooking. Rhett, B. S. (S '30)
Two ticket puzzle. Stewart, A. W. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Two witnesses. Greene, G. M. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Two wives. Cornwallis-West, G. F. M. (My '30)
Two years. O'Flaherty, L. (N '30)
Tynan, Katherine. See Hinkson, K.
Type and type-founding
McMurtrie, D. C. Modern typography & layout. (My '30)
Meynell, F. Typography of newspaper advertisements. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Orcutt, W. D. Magic of the book. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Types of world literature. Houston, P. H., and Smith, R. M., eds. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Typewriting
Clem, J. E. Technique of teaching typewriting. (Je '30)
Typical plays for young people. Webber, J. P., and Webster, H. H., eds. (Je '30)
Typography of newspaper advertisements. Meynell, F. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Ultraviolet light and vitamin D in nutrition. Blunt, K., and Cowan, R. (N '30)
Ultra-violet rays
Blunt, K., and Cowan, R. Ultraviolet light and vitamin D in nutrition. (N '30)
Unafraid [Anne Hutchinson]. Rugg, W. K. (Ap '30)
Uncelestial city. Wolfe, H. (D '30)
Uncle Hosie. Lord, P. H. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Uncle Sam in the eyes of his family. Erskine, J. (Je '30)
Uncle Sam's attic. Davis, M. L. (O '30)
Uncle Sam's camels. Stacey, M. H. (Ap '30)
Uncle Vanya. Chekhov, A. P. (S '30)
Under the pig-nut tree. Hader, B. and E. (S '30)
Under the tree. Roberts, E. M. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Understanding the adolescent girl. Elliott, G. L. (Ag '30)
Undiplomatic memories. Sands, W. F. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Unemployment
Beveridge, W. H. Unemployment. (D '30)
Calkins, C. Some folks won't work. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Carroll, M. R. Unemployment insurance in Germany. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Davison, R. C. Unemployed. (My '30)
Hobson, J. A. Rationalisation and unemployment. (N '30)
McMurry, D. Le C. Coxey's army. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
National industrial conference board. Lay-off and its prevention. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Slater, G. Poverty and the state. (N '30)
Unforseen. Snaith, J. C. (O '30)
Unhappy wind. Crawford, N. A. (D '30)
Unicorn
Shepard, O. Lore of the unicorn. (Je '30)
Union Pacific railroad
Hebard, G. R. Washakie. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
United States. Bureau of home economics
Betters, P. V. Bureau of home economics. (D '30)
United States. Bureau of the census
Holt, W. S. Bureau of the census. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
United States. Congress. Senate
Fleming, D. F. Treaty veto of the American Senate. (My '30)
Pepper, G. W. In the Senate. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
United States. Constitution
Munro, W. B. Constitution of the United States. (O '30)
United States. Constitution. 18th amendment
Johnston, H. A. What rights are left. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
United States. Marine corps
Lejeune, J. A. Reminiscences of a marine. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
United States

Antiquities

Shetrone, H. C. Mound-builders. (N '30)

Army

Palmer, J. M. Washington, Lincoln, Wilson. (My '30)

Recruiting, enlistment, etc.

Meyer, E. L. "Hey! yellowbacks!" (My '30)

Biography

Busch, N. Twenty-one Americans. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Darrow, F. L. Builders of empire. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Dictionary of American biography, v 3-5. (1930 Annual)
Van Doren, M., ed. Autobiography of America. (Ap '30)

Church history

Hall, T. C. Religious background of American culture. (O '30)
Sweet, W. W. Story of religions in America. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Civilization

Borsodi, R. This ugly civilization. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Counts, G. S. American road to culture. (O '30)
Dewey, J. Individualism, old and new. (D '30)
Fletcher, J. G. Two frontiers. (Ap '30)
Haldeman-Julius, E. Big American parade. (Mr '30)
Hazard, L. L., ed. In search of America. (Ag '30)
Huddleston, S. What's right with America. (Ag '30)
Keyserling, H. A. America set free. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Miller, F. P., and Hill, H. D. Giant of the western world. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Mims, E. Adventurous America. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Notch, F. K., pseud. King Mob. (Ag '30)
Odegard, P. H. American public mind. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Parrington, V. L. Main currents in American thought, v 3. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Saunderson, H. H. Puritan principles and American ideals. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Commerce

Durand, E. D. American industry and commerce. (D '30)
Lyon, L. S. Hand-to-mouth buying. (Je '30)
Mazur, P. M. America looks abroad. (Je '30)

China

Dulles, F. R. Old China trade. (N '30)

Russia

Bron, S. G. Soviet economic development and American business. (S '30)

Commercial policy

Denny, L. America conquers Britain. (Ap '30)
Mazur, P. M. America looks abroad. (Je '30)

Constitutional history

Munro, W. B. Makers of the unwritten constitution. (Ap '30)
Newfang, O. United States of the world. (My '30)
Smith, J. A. Growth and decadence of constitutional government. (My '30)

Constitutional law

Beck, J. M. May it please the court. (O '30)
Brandeis, L. D. Social and economic views of Mr. Justice Brandeis. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Holmes, O. W. Dissenting opinions of Mr Justice Holmes. (Ap '30)
Walker, H. Federal limitations upon municipal ordinance making power. (Ag '30)
Willoughby, W. W. Constitutional law of the United States. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Description and travel

Huddleston, S. What's right with America. (Ag '30)
Kerr, L. Back door guest. (Je '30)
Lafond, A. Impressions of America. (S '30)
Ræder, O. M. America in the forties. (My '30)
Somerville, E. A. O. States through Irish eyes. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Svin'in, P. P. Picturesque United States of America, 1811-1813. (Ag '30)
Vernon, P. E. Coast to coast by motor. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Economic conditions

Brookings, R. S. Economic democracy. (Ap '30)
Chase. S. Prosperity: fact or myth. (S '30)
Crowther, S. Prohibition and prosperity. (My '30)
Denny, L. America conquers Britain. (Ap '30)
Durand, E. D. American industry and commerce. (D '30)
Fisher, L. Stock market crash—and after. (Je '30)
Flügel, F., and Faulkner, H. U., comps. Readings in the economic and social history of the United States. (My '30)
Hunt, E. E. Audit of America. (Je '30)
King, W. I., and Epstein, L. National income and its purchasing power. (O '30)
Lyon, L. S. Hand-to-mouth buying. (Je '30)
Malin, J. C. United States after the World war. (N '30)
Mazur, P. M. America looks abroad. (Je '30)
Motherwell, H. Imperial dollar. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Patterson, S. H. Social aspects of industry. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Roosevelt, N. America and England? (Ap '30)
Rugg, H. O. History of American civilization. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Rugg, H. O. Introduction to American civilization. (Ag '30)
Snider, J. L., ed. Business statistics. (S '30)
Watkins, G. S. Labor problems. (O '30)
Wood, C. W. Passing of normalcy. (Ap '30)

Exploring expeditions

Stacey, M. H. Uncle Sam's camels. (Ap '30)

Foreign population

Grant, M., and Davison, C. S., eds. Alien in our midst. (S '30)

Foreign relations

Curti, M. E. American peace crusade, 1815-1860. (N '30)
Fleming, D. F. Treaty veto of the American Senate. (My '30)
Jessup, P. C. United States and the world court. (N '30)
Kaltenborn, H. We look at the world. (S '30)
Malin, J. C. United States after the World war. (N '30)
Motherwell, H. Imperial dollar. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Nevins, A. Henry White. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Survey of American foreign relations, 1928-1929. (My '30)
Wriston, H. M. Executive agents in American foreign relations. (Ap '30)

Argentina

Cady, J. F. Foreign intervention in the Rio de la Plata, 1838-50. (Ag '30)

Great Britain

Rippy, J. F. Rivalry of the United States and Great Britain over Latin America (1808-1830). (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Russia

Cresson, W. P. Francis Dana. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Spanish America

Jones, C. L., and others. United States and the Caribbean. (My '30)
Rippy, J. F. Rivalry of the United States and Great Britain over Latin America (1808-1830). (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

History

Branch, E. D. Westward. (N '30)
Fletcher, J. G. Two frontiers. (Ap '30)
Hollis, C. American heresy. (My '30)
Morison, S. E., and Commager, H. S. Growth of the American republic. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Rugg, H. O. History of American civilization. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Van Doren, M., ed. Autobiography of America. (Ap '30)

Colonial period

Chatterton, E. K. Seed of liberty. (Je '30)
Morgan, J. Birth of the American people. (N '30)

Revolution

Abbott, W. C. New York in the American revolution. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Morgan, J. Birth of the American people. (N '30)
Van Tyne, C. H. War of independence. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)

Revolution—Campaigns and battles

Frothingham, T. G. Washington, commander in chief. (D '30)

Revolution—Causes

Clark, D. M. British opinion and the American revolution. (O '30)

Revolution—Fiction

Chambers, R. W. Painted minx. (Ag '30)
Roberts, K. L. Arundel. (Ap '30)

Revolution—Finance

Russell, C. E. Haym Salomon and the revolution. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Revolution—Foreign public opinion

Clark, D. M. British opinion and the American revolution. (O '30)

United States—History—Continued
Revolution—Naval operations
Howard, J. L. Seth Harding. (S '30)
Civil war
Winston, R. W. High stakes and hair trigger. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Civil war—Campaigns and battles
Fuller, J. F. C. Generalship of Ulysses S. Grant. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Civil war—Personal narratives
Chesnut, M. B. Diary from Dixie. (Ag '30)
Newcome, L. A. Lincoln's boy spy. (Mr '30)
1898-
Sullivan, M. Our times; v 3. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
1913-
Malin, J. C. United States after the World war. (N '30)
Slosson, P. W. Great crusade and after, 1914-1928. (N '30)
History, Juvenile
Coffman, R. Our America. (Ag '30)
History, Military
Palmer, J. M. Washington, Lincoln, Wilson. (My '30)
Industries
Brookings, R. S. Economic democracy. (Ap '30)
Durand, E. D. American industry and commerce. (D '30)
Ford, H., and Crowther, S. Moving forward. (D '30)
National industrial conference board. Five day week in manufacturing industries. (Ap '30)
Patterson, S. H. Social aspects of industry. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Rugg, H. O. Introduction to American civilization. (Ag '30)
Intellectual life
Foerster, N., ed. Humanism and America. (Ap '30)
Josephson, M. Portrait of the artist as American. (Ag '30)
Mims, E. Adventurous America. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Parrington, V. L. Main currents in American thought, v 3. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Manufactures
National industrial conference board. Five day week in manufacturing industries. (Ap '30)
Moral conditions
Markun, L. Mrs Grundy. (Ag '30)
Politics and government
Bates, E. S. This land of liberty. (O '30)
Beale, H. K. Critical year. (Ag '30)
Beard, C. A. and W. American leviathan. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Bowers, C. G. Tragic era. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Cain, J. M. Our government. (S '30)
Carpenter, W. S. Development of American political thought. (N '30)
Davis, J. W. Party government in the United States. (S '30)
Hill, H. C., ed. Readings in community life. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Hollis, C. American heresy. (My '30)
Laski, H. J. Dangers of obedience. (Je '30)
Lawrence, D. Other side of government. (Mr '30)
Luce, R. Legislative principles. (D '30)
Milton, G. F. Age of hate. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Munro, W. B. Makers of the unwritten constitution. (Ap '30)
Nickerson, H. American rich. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Odegard, P. H. American public mind. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Pepper, G. W. In the Senate. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Richberg, D. R. Tents of the mighty. (Ag '30)
Smith, J. A. Growth and decadence of constitutional government. (My '30)
Addresses, essays, lectures
Hicks, F. C., comp. and ed. Famous speeches by eminent statesmen. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Sources
Wright, B. F., ed. Source book of American political theory. (Ap '30)
Race question
Johnson, C. S. Negro in American civilization. (S '30)
Shannon, A. H. Negro in Washington. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Relations (general) with Europe
Miller, F. P., and Hill, H. D. Giant of the western world. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Relations (general) with Great Britain
Denny, L. America conquers Britain. (Ap '30)
Roosevelt, N. America and England? (Ap '30)
Religion
Fry, C. L. U. S. looks at its churches. (O '30)
Hall, T. C. Religious background of American culture. (O '30)
Sweet, W. W. Story of religions in America. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Scientific bureaus
Beard, C. A. and W. American leviathan. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Social conditions
Brock, H. I. Meddlers. (Ag '30)
Chase, S. Prosperity: fact or myth. (S '30)
Cobb, I. S. Both sides of the street. (N '30)
Dewey, J. Individualism, old and new. (D '30)
Flügel, F., and Faulkner, H. U., comps. Readings in the economic and social history of the United States. (My '30)
Haldeman-Julius, E. Big American parade. (Mr '30)
Keyserling, H. A. America set free. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Nickerson, H. American rich. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Odegard, P. H. American public mind. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Patterson, S. H. Social aspects of industry. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Richberg, D. R. Tents of the mighty. (Ag '30)
Rugg, H. O. History of American civilization. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Rugg, H. O. Introduction to American civilization. (Ag '30)
Slosson, P. W. Great crusade and after, 1914-1928. (N '30)
Wood, C. W. Passing of normalcy. (Ap '30)
Social life and customs
Armstrong, M. N. Five generations. (Je '30)
Cole, H. E. Stage coach and tavern tales of the Old Northwest. (O '30)
Crouse, R. Mr Currier and Mr Ives. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Lafond, A. Impressions of America. (S '30)
Somerville, E. A. O. States through Irish eyes. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Van Doren, M., ed. Autobiography of America. (Ap '30)
Colonial period
Warwick, E., and Pitz, H. C. Early American costume. (Ap '30)
Territorial expansion
Gabriel, R. H. Lure of the frontier. (Je '30)
Paxson, F. L. When the West is gone. (My '30)
United States after the World war. Malin, J. C. (N '30)
United States and the Caribbean. Jones, C. L., and others. (My '30)
United States and the world court. Jessup, P. C. (N '30)
U. S. looks at its churches. Fry, C. L. (O '30)
United states of Europe. Herriot, E. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
The united states of Europe. Hutchinson, P. (Mr '30)

United states of the world. Newfang, O. (My '30)
Uniting Europe. Rappard, W. E. (My '30)
Unity of the world. Ferrero, G. (S '30)
Universe, Destruction of
  Dennis, G. P. End of the world. (D '30)
Universities; American, English, German. Flexner, A. (F '31) (1930 Annual) University debaters' annual. Phelps, E. M., ed. (Je '30)
Unknown soldier. Bartlett, V. (S '30)
Unknown Washington. Corbin, J. (Je '30)
Unmarried life. North, J. (My '30)
Unpublished letters. Wild, J. (D '30)
Unrealists. Wickham, H. (S '30)
Unromantic Spain. Praz, M. (My '30)
Unveiled. Ekrem, S. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Up to now. Shaw, M. F. (Mr '30)
Upon slavery in Ptolemaic Egypt. Westermann, W. L., ed. (N '30)
Upper pasture. Malam, C. (My '30)
Upstage. Brown, J. M. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Ur, Chaldaea
  Gadd, C. J. History and monuments of Ur. (My '30)
  Woolley, C. L. Ur of the Chaldees. (Ap '30)
Ur of the Chaldees. Woolley, C. L. (Ap '30)
Use of the microscope. Belling, J. (N '30)

Vacation travelcharts and travel chats. Collins, F. L. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Vagabond dreams come true. Vallée, R. (My '30)
Vagabond in Barbary. Foster, H. La T. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Vagabonds. Hamsun, K. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Vaino. Adams, J. (Mr '30)
Valdivia, Pedro de
Fiction
  May, S. Conqueror's lady, Ines Suarez. (D '30)
Vallée, Rudy (Hubert Prior Vallée)
  Vallée, R. Vagabond dreams come true. (My '30)
Valley of creeping men. Crawley, R. (S '30)
Vālmiki
  Mukerji, D. G. Rama. (D '30)
Value
  Dublin, L. I., and Lotka, A. J. Money value of a man. (S '30)
  Laird, J. Idea of value. (Ag '30)
Vanamee, Parker
  Vanamee, M. C. Vanamee. (Ap '30)
Vandekkers. Thorndike, R. (Ag '30)
Vaquero of the brush country. Dobie, J. F. (Ap '30)
Variation (biology)
  Jennings, H. S. Biological basis of human nature. (Je '30)
Vatican (city)
  Moore, T. E. Peter's city. (N '30)
Vatican council, 1869-1870
  Bury, J. B. History of the papacy in the nineteenth century. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Butler, E. C. Vatican council. (Ag '30)
Vauclain, Samuel Matthews
  Vauclain, S. M., and May, E. C. Steaming up! [autobiography of S. M. Vauclain]. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Vega Carpio, Lope Félix de
Fiction
  Flores, A. Lope de Vega. (Je '30)
Venezuela
History
  Cunninghame Graham, R. B. José Antonio Paéz. (Ap '30)
Venice
Description
  Okey, T. Venice and its story. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
History
  Okey, T. Venice and its story. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  Powers, H. H. Venice and its art. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Venice and its art. Powers, H. H. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual) Venice and its story. Okey, T. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Ventilation
  Harding, L. A., and Willard, A. C. Mechanical equipment of buildings. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Ventilations. Pearson, H. (My '30)
Venus (goddess)
  Miomandre, F. de. Love life of Venus. (O '30)
Verdi, Giuseppe
  Bonavia, F. Verdi. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Verdun, Battle of, 1916
  Pétain, H. P. B. O. Verdun. (S '30)
Verdun. Pétain, H. P. B. O. (S '30)
Vergil's primitive Italy. Saunders, C. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Verney family
  Verney, M. M., ed. Verney letters of the eighteenth century. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Verney letters of the eighteenth century. Verney, M. M., ed. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Versailles, Treaty of, 1919
  Clemenceau, G. E. B. Grandeur and misery of victory. (Je '30)
  Wegerer, A. von. Refutation of the Versailles war guilt thesis. (N '30)
Vertebrates
Anatomy
  Howell, A. B. Aquatic mammals. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Very good, Jeeves. Wodehouse, P. G. (S '30)
Victor Hugo. Escholier, R. (Ap '30)
Victoria, queen of Great Britain
  Ponsonby, F. E. G. Side lights on Queen Victoria. (D '30)
  Victoria, queen of Great Britain. Letters; v 1. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Viebig, Clara. See Cohn, C.
Vienna
Description
  Mahan, J. A. Vienna, yesterday and today. (Ap '30)
Vienna, yesterday and today. Mahan, J. A. (Ap '30)
Viennese lover. Karlweis, M. (S '30)
Viking civilization. Olrik, A. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Vikings
  Olrik, A. Viking civilization. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Vile bodies. Waugh, E. (Ap '30)
Villa, Francisco
  Guzmán, M. L. Eagle & the serpent. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Stevens, L. Here comes Pancho Villa. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Villa Jane. Laing, J. (Ap '30)
Village book. Williamson, H. (D '30)
Villages
Great Britain
  Gras, N. S. B. and E. Economic and social history of an English village. (S '30)
Vincennes, Indiana
  Thomas, L. J. Hero of Vincennes. (My '30)
Vinlana. Berry, C. W. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Virgil (Publius Virgilius Maro)
  Vegius, M. Maphaeus Vegius and his thirteenth book of the Aeneid. (O '30)
  Morgan, J. S., and others. Tradition of Virgil. (O '30)
  Nardi, B. Youth of Virgil. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  Rand, E. K. In quest of Virgil's birthplace. (Je '30)
  Saunders, C. Vergil's primitive Italy. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Poetry
  Nitchie, E., comp. Master Vergil. (D '30)
The virgin and the gipsy. Lawrence, D. H. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Virgin birth of Christ. Machen, J. G. (Ag '30)

Virginia
Biography
Bruce, P. A. Virginia Plutarch. (Ap '30)
Church history
Gewehr, W. M. Great awakening in Virginia, 1740-1790. (My '30)
Description and travel
Andrews, M. George Washington's country. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Wilstach, P. Tidewater Virginia. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Historic houses, etc.
Andrews, M. George Washington's country. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Wilstach, P. Tidewater Virginia. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
History
Bruce, P. A. Virginia Plutarch. (Ap '30)
Virginia Plutarch. Bruce, P. A. (Ap '30)
Virginia water. Jenkins, E. (Je '30)
Virtuosa. Owen, L. (N '30)
Virtuous girl. Bodenheim, M. (Ag '30)
Visa to France. Fleming, B. (S '30)
The vision; Liber veritatis. Beckford, W. (N '30)
Visit India with me. Mukerji, D. G. (Mr '30)
Visiting teacher at work. Culbert, J. F. (Je '30)
Visiting teachers
Benedict, A. E. Children at the crossroads. (O '30)
Culbert, J. F. Visiting teacher at work. (Je '30)
Vitamines
Blunt, K., and Cowan, R. Ultraviolet light and vitamin D in nutrition. (N '30)
Vivekânanda, swâmi
Rolland, R. Prophets of the new India. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Vocational education
Schweickhard, D. M. Industrial arts in education. (Mr '30)
Vocational psychology and character analysis. Hollingworth, H. L. (Ag '30)
Voice in the closet. Landon, H. (Ag '30)
Voice of the lobster. Casey, R. J. (Je '30)
Voiceless India. Emerson, G. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Voices of October. Freeman, J., and others. (Ag '30)
Volcano. Bullard, A. (Je '30)
Voltaire, François Marie Arouet de
Brandes, G. M. C. Voltaire. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Torrey, N. L. Voltaire and the English deists. (S '30)
Vulliamy, C. E. Voltaire. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Voltaire and the English deists. Torrey, N. L. (S '30)
Voodoo. Shellabarger, S. (S '30)
Voyage home. Jameson, S. (Ap '30)
Voyage to Purilia. Rice, E. L. (My '30)
Voyagers unafraid. Anthony, I. W. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Voyages and travels
Andrews, L. Horizon chasers. (Ap '30)
Anthony, I. W. Voyagers unafraid. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Berge, V., and Lanier, H. W. Pearl diver. (Mr '30)
Cooper, V. I. Windjamming to Fiji. (Mr '30)
Dodd, E. H., jr. Great dipper to Southern cross. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Fairchild, D. G. Exploring for plants. (S '30)
Kent, R. N by E. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Matson, N. H. Log of the Coriolanus. (S '30)
Pinchot, G. To the South Seas. (S '30)
Villiers, A. J. By way of Cape Horn. (O '30)
Waugh, A. Hot countries. (My '30)
Voyages around the world
Gerbault, A. In quest of the sun. (Je '30)
Ketchum, A. Follow the sun. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Warner, A. Landlubber's log. (My '30)
Vrangel, Petr Nikolaevich, baron
Vrangel, N. E. Memoirs. (My '30)
W plan. Hutchison, G. S. (Ap '30)
Wade, Henry, pseud. See Aubrey-Fletcher, H. L.
Wage-payment plans that reduced production costs. Diemer, H., ed. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Wages
Diemer, H., ed. Wage-payment plans that reduced production costs. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
National industrial conference board. Systems of wage payment. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
United States
Douglas, P. H. Real wages in the United States. (Ag '30)
Dublin, L. I., and Lotka, A. J. Money value of a man. (S '30)
Wagner, Frau Cosima (Liszt)
Du Moulin-Eckart, R. M. F. Cosima Wagner. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Wagner, Richard
Du Moulin-Eckart, R. M. F. Cosima Wagner. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Hurn, P. D., and Root, W. L. Truth about Wagner. (My '30)
Wagner family
Du Moulin-Eckart, R. M. F. Cosima Wagner. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Wagons west. Page, E. (D '30)
Wales
Description and travel
Davies, W. W. Wayfarer in Wales. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Walk to Horace's farm. Rand, E. K. (S '30)
Walking stick. Scoggins, C. E. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Wall street
Barron, C. W. They told Barron. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Floyd, W. People vs. Wall street. (S '30)
Sparling, E. Mystery men of Wall street. (S '30)
Warshow, R. I. Story of Wall Street. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Wallie, the walrus. Wiese, K. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Walpole, Horace, 4th earl of Orford
De Koven, A. Horace Walpole and Madame du Deffand. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Walt Whitman. Morris, H. S. (Ap '30)
Walther Rathenau. Kessler, H. K. U. (Mr '30)
Wanamaker, John
Appel, J. H. Business biography of John Wanamaker. (Ap '30)
Wanda and Greta at Broby farm. Palm, A. (N '30)
Wanderer (ship)
Masefield, J. Wanderer of Liverpool. (D '30)
Wanderer of Liverpool. Masefield, J. (D '30)
Wanderer's End. Cleugh, D. (My '30)
Wandering women. Cournos, J. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Wanderings in Central Africa. Campbell, D. (Ag '30)
War
Chartier, E. Mars. (N '30)
Davie, M. R. Evolution of war. (My '30)
Hall, R. C. Facing the issue squarely. (D '30)
Hawtrey, R. G. Economic aspects of sovereignty. (Ag '30)
Smith, F. B. Must we have war? (My '30)
Poetry
Burns, V. G., comp. Red harvest. (Je '30)
War (International law)
Spaight, J. M. Air power and the cities. (Ag '30)
War and religion
Smith, F. B. Must we have war? (My '30)
War breaks down doors. Greely, J. N. (Ap '30)
War is war. Ex-private X, pseud. (Je '30)
War letters of fallen Englishmen. Housman, L., ed. (N '30)
War nurse. (Je '30)
War of independence. Van Tyne, C. H. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
War, politics and reconstruction. Warmoth, H. C. (O '30)

War-songs, American
Niles, J. J., ed. Songs my mother never taught me. (Mr '30)
Ward, Arthur Sarsfield. See Rohmer, S., pseud.
Ward, Frederick Townsend
Cahill, H. Yankee adventurer [Frederick Townsend Ward]. (D '30)
Warning Hill. Marquand, J. P. (My '30)
Washakie, Shoshoni chief
Hebard, G. R. Washakie. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Washington, George
Andrews, M. George Washington's country. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Corbin, J. Unknown Washington. (Je '30)
Frothingham, T. G. Washington, commander in chief. (D '30)
Hughes, R. George Washington, v 3. (Ap '30)
Palmer, J. M. Washington, Lincoln, Wilson. (My '30)
Washington, Mrs Mary (Ball)
Turner, N. B., and Gunn, S. Mother of Washington. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Washington, D.C.

History

Kochka, M. M. Washington. (O '30)
Washington, D. C. White House
Sweetser, K. D. Famous girls of the White House. (S '30)
Washington (state)

Description and travel

Walkinshaw, R. On Puget Sound. (Mr '30)
Washington. Kochka, M. M. (O '30)
Washington, commander in chief. Frothingham, T. G. (D '30)
Washington, Lincoln, Wilson. Palmer, J. M. (My '30)
Washington picture-book. Lenski, L. (S '30)
Wast, Hugo, pseud. See Martínez Zuviría, G. A.
Wasted salt. Ogden, G. W. (S '30)
Watching Europe grow. Parker, C. (S '30)
Water and gold. Palen, L. S. (O '30)
Water gipsies. Herbert, A. P. (D '30)
Water-marks
Hunter, D. Papermaking through eighteen centuries. (N '30)
Water power
United States
Voskuil, W. H. Economics of water power development. (S '30)
Water rights
Voskuil, W. H. Economics of water power development. (S '30)
Water-supply engineering
Babbitt, H. E., and Doland, J. J. Water supply engineering. (My '30)
Water supply engineering. Babbitt, H. E., and Doland, J. J. (My '30)
Waterloo bridge. Sherwood, R. E. (Ap '30)
Waters of strife. Lynde, F. (D '30)
Waters under the earth. Ostenso, M. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Waterways
Stephens, G. W. St. Lawrence waterway project. (O '30)
Wave mechanics
Sommerfeld, A. J. W. Wave-mechanics. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
The way home. Richardson, H. H., pseud. (Je '30)
Way of the sea. Peake, H. J. E., and Fleure, H. J. (Ap '30)
Wayfarer in Bavaria. Baker, S. St. B. (S '30)
Wayfarer in Wales. Davies, W. W. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Wayfarer on the Rhine. Letts, M. K. I. (S '30)
Wayne, Anthony
Preston, J. H. Gentlemen rebel [Anthony Wayne]. (My '30)
Ways of sharing with other faiths. Fleming, D. F. (S '30)
We believe in prayer. Strong, S. D., ed. (N '30)
We look at the world. Kaltenborn, H. (S '30)
Weale, Putnam, pseud. See Simpson, B. L.
Wealth, Ethics of
Weber, M. Protestant ethic and the spirit of capitalism. (O '30)
Weather
Elm, I. E. Weather and why. (O '30)
Weather and why. Elm, I. E. (O '30)
Weatherhouse. Shepherd, N. (My '30)
Weaves and draperies. Candee, H. C. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Weaving
Candee, H. C. Weaves and draperies. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Weber, Max
Cahill, H. Max Weber. (D '30)
Webster, Daniel
Adams, S. H. Godlike Daniel. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Carey, R. L. Daniel Webster as an economist. (Mr '30)
Fuess, C. M. Daniel Webster. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Wedding day. Boyle, K. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Wedding ring. Brown, B. (N '30)
Wee men of Ballywooden. Mason, A. (Ja '30)
Welding
Johnson, J. B. Airplane welding. (Je '30)
Well-meaning young man. King-Hall, L. and M. (Ag '30)
Wells, Herbert George
Cross, W. L. Four contemporary novelists. (D '30)
Wells, G. H. H. G. Wells. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Wesley, John
Wade, J. D. John Wesley. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Wesleyan movement in the industrial revolution. Warner, W. J. (Ag '30)
West, Geoffrey, pseud. See Wells, G. H.
West
Stahl, J. M. Growing with the West. (Ag '30)

Biography

Bechdolt, F. R. Giants of the old West. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Description and travel

Dickson, A. J. Covered wagon days. (Ap '30)
Laut, A. C. Overland trail. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Pancoast, C. E. Quaker forty-niner. (Ag '30)

History

Branch, E. D. Westward. (N '30)
Paxson, F. L. When the West is gone. (My '30)
Riegel, R. E. America moves west. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
West Indies
Inman, S. G. Trailing the conquistadores. (O '30)
West of Fifth. Brody, C. (O '30)
Westermarck, Edvard Alexander
Westermarck, E. A. Memories of my life. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Westward. Branch, E. D. (N '30)
Wharton, Anthony. pseud. See McAllister, A.
What do present day Christians believe? Snowden, J. H. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
What happened at Andals? Arnold, J. (Ap '30)
What happened to Forester. Oppenheim, E. P. (Ag '30)
What is Christian education? Coe, G. A. (S '30)
What is eugenics? Darwin, L. (My '30)
What is hell? (My '30)
What is Lutheranism? Ferm, V. T. A., ed. (S '30)
What mad pursuit. Fox, J. D. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
What rights are left. Johnston, H. A. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
What's right with America. Huddleton, S. (Ag '30)
What's wrong with unemployment insurance. Davison, R. C. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
What's wrong with your game? Martin, H. B. (S '30)

- Wheat
  - Snyder, H. Bread. (Ag '30)
  - Swanson, W. W., and Armstrong, P. C. Wheat. (D '30)
- Wheel of fire. Knight, G. W. (D '30)
- Wheelwright, John
  - Heard, J., jr. John Wheelwright. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
- When beggars ride. Chamberlain, G. A. (Ag '30)
- When I was a girl. Ferris, H. J., ed. (O '30)
- When I was a girl in Hungary. Jacobi, E. P. (O '30)
- When I was a harvester. Yates, R. L. (O '30)
- When mammoths roamed the frozen earth. Schütz, H. (Je '30)
- When Sally sews. Curtis, H. P. (Je '30)
- When ships were ships. Barnes, W. M. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
- When the West is gone. Paxson, F. L. (My '30)
- When you go to Hawaii. Griffiss, T. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
- Where the East begins. Armstrong, H. F. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
- Whetham, William Cecil Dampier. See Dampier-Whetham, W. C. D.
- While gondolas pass. Mackay, H. (S '30)
- While the patient slept. Eberhart, M. G. (Ap '30)
- The whipping. Flannagan, R. (O '30)
- Whistler, James Abbott McNeill
  - Laver, J. Whistler. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  - Pennell, E. Whistler, the friend. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
- Whistler, the friend. Pennell, E. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
- Whistlers' room. Alverdes, P. (Ap '30)
- White, Mrs Catherine Payne
  - White, O. P. Frontier mother. (Mr '30)
- White, Henry
  - Nevins, A. Henry White. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
- White, Mrs Thaddeus C. See Der Ling, princess
- White April. Reese, L. W. (D '30)
- White Captain. Fraser, G. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
- White devil. Oteyza, L. de. (N '30)
- White heron feather. Robinson, G. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
- White jade. Meagher, M. (O '30)
- White mountains
  - Anderson, J., and Morse, S. Book of the White mountains. (O '30)
- White owl. Snell, E. (S '30)
- White Panthers. Vane, D. (My '30)
- White rider. Charteris, L. (N '30)
- White satin dress. Andrews, M. R. (Je '30)
- Whither Christianity. Hough, L. H., ed. (Ap '30)
- Whither, whither. Hankel, W. S., ed. (N '30)
- Whitman, Walt
  - Morris, H. S. Walt Whitman. (Ap '30)
- Who killed Cavelotti? Newell, A. (Je '30)
- Who killed Charmian Karslake? Haynes, A. (My '30)
- Who moved the stone? Morison, F. (Je '30)
- Who were the Greeks? Myres, J. L. (S '30)
- Who's obscene? Dennett, M. W. (Je '30)
- Why be an evolutionist? Cleland, H. F. (Je '30)
- Why English sounds change. Aiken, J. (My '30)
- Why murder the judge? Hammock, C. S. (Ag '30)
- Why Rome. Delany, S. P. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
- Why stay we here? Godwin, G. S. (Je '30)
- Why we fought. Grattan, C. H. (My '30)
- Why you win or lose. Kelly, F. C. (D '30)
- Wider horizons. Gibbons, H. A. (S '30)
- Wife of Steffen Tromholt. Sudermann, H. (Ap '30)
- Wild apples. Gogarty, O. St J. (My '30)
- Wild beauty. Farnham, M. (N '30)
- Wild grizzlies of Alaska. Holzworth, J. M. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
- Wild honey. Scoville, S. (Mr '30)
- Wild justice. Hannay, J. O. (Je '30)
- Wild onion. Carroll, L. (N '30)
- Wild wind. Bailey, T. (D '30)
- Wilde, Oscar
  - Wilde, O. Sixteen letters. (D '30)
- Wilderness of Denali. Sheldon, C. (Ag '30)
- Wiley, Harvey Washington
  - Wiley, H. W. Autobiography. (Ag '30)
- Wilkes, John
  - Postgate, R. W. That devil Wilkes. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
  - Sherrard, O. A. Life of John Wilkes. (O '30)
- Will India become Christian? Netram, J. W. R. (O '30)
- Willa Cather. Rapin, R. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
- William II, German emperor (abdicated 1918)
  - Haller, J. Philip Eulenberg. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
  - Nowak, K. F. Kaiser and Chancellor. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
- William Howard Taft. Duffy, H. S. (O '30)
- William Kirby. Pierce, L. A. (S '30)
- William L. Sibert. Clark, E. B. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
- William Pitt, the younger. Wilson, P. W. (My '30)
- William Shakespeare. Chambers, E. K. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
- Williams, Roger
  - Easton, E. Roger Williams. (Ag '30)
- Wilson, Mrs Desemea (Newman). See Patrick, D., pseud.
- Wilson, Woodrow
  - Hollis, C. American heresy. (My '30)
  - Palmer, J. M. Washington, Lincoln, Wilson. (My '30)
- Wind from the sea. Blodgett, R. R. (N '30)
- Wind from the west. Hinkson, P. (D '30)
- Wind in the cedars. Dresbach, G. W. (My '30)
- Wind without rain. Sedgwick, S. (N '30)
- Windfall's eve. Lucas, E. V. (My '30)
- Windjamming to Fiji. Cooper, V. I. (Mr '30)
- Windmills
  - Hopkins, R. T. Old windmills of England. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
- Winds of Gobi. Hyde, R. (Je '30)
- Windsinger. Gillmor, F. (N '30)
- Wine and wine making
  - Berry, C. W. Viniana. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  - Simon, A. L. Art of good living. (N '30)
- Wings around the world. Koenig-Warthausen, F. K. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
- Wings of adventure. Gibbs, P. H. (N '30)
- Wings of sunset. Coolbrith, I. D. (Je '30)
- Winter
  - Wolfe, H., ed. Winter miscellany. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
- Winter alone. Scott, E., pseud. (My '30)
- Winter miscellany. Wolfe, H., ed. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
- Winter sonata. Edwards, D. (My '30)
- Wisdom of love. Schaffner, J. (Ap '30)
- Wishbone. Bowen, S. (Ap '30)
- Wishing on a comet. Laidlaw, L. B. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
- Wissahickon creek
  - Weygandt, C. Wissahickon hills. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
- Wissahickon hills. Weygandt, C. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
- Witch hunting and witch trials. Ewen, C. L., ed. (Je '30)
- Witchcraft
  - Coulange, L., pseud. Life of the devil. (Je '30)
  - Ewen, C. L., ed. Witch hunting and witch trials. (Je '30)
- With Morgan on the Main. Bennett, C. M. (Je '30)
- With trailing banners. Brown, E. A. (Ag '30)
- Wives of men. McCloud, D. (O '30)
- Wizard of Zacna. Willard, T. A. (Ap '30)
- Wolf-tracker. Grey, Z. (S '30)
- Wolfe, James
  - Webster, J. C. Wolfe and the artists. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
- Wolfe and the artists. Webster, J. C. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
- Wolsey, Thomas, cardinal
  - Belloc, H. Wolsey. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
  - Pollard, A. F. Wolsey. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
- Woman
  - Ellis, H. Man and woman. (Ap '30)
  - Macy, J. A. About women. (Je '30)
  - Biography
    - Bradford, G. Daughters of Eve. (Ap '30)
    - Ferris, H. J., ed. When I was a girl. (O '30)

Latour, T. L. Princesses, ladies and républicaines of the Terror. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Peters, I. Girls of long ago. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Portigliotti, G. Some fascinating women of the renaissance. (Je '30)
Sweetser, K. D. Famous girls of the White House. (S '30)
Wortham, H. E. Three women. (My '30)

Employment

Cades, H. R. Jobs for girls. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Hatcher, O. L., and others. Rural girls in the city for work. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Pinchbeck, I. Women workers and the industrial revolution, 1750-1850. (Je '30)

History and condition of women

Puckett, H. W. Germany's women go forward. (S '30)

Legal status, laws, etc.

Horn, H. H. Handbook of law for women. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Social and moral questions

Blanchard, P. M., and Manasses, C. New girls for old. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Hatcher, O. L., and others. Rural girls in the city for work. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Wellington, A. Women have told. (Ap '30)
Woman in the shadow. Vance, L. J. (O '30)
A woman is dead. Eng title of: Somewhere in this house. King, R. (My '30)
Woman of Andros. Wilder, T. (Ap '30)
Woman under glass. Hersch, V. (D '30)
Woman with a thousand children. Cohn, C. (Ag '30)
Woman with white eyes. Borden, M. (D '30)
Women and monks. Kallinkov, I. (D '30)
Women are like that. De la Pasture, E. E. M. (D '30)
Women as authors
Wellington, A. Women have told. (Ap '30)
Woolf, V. Room of one's own. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Women have told. Wellington, A. (Ap '30)
Women in China
Hosie, D. Portrait of a Chinese lady. (My '30)
Women in England
Woolf, V. Room of one's own. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Women in Germany
Puckett, H. W. Germany's women go forward. (S '30)
Women in India
Athavale, P. My story. (S '30)
Horner, I. B. Women under primitive Buddhism. (S '30)
Meyer, J. J. Sexual life in ancient India. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Women in literature and art
Wellington, A. Women have told. (Ap '30)
Women of Cairo. Gérard de Nerval. (My '30)
Women under primitive Buddhism. Horner, I. B. (S '30)
Women workers and the industrial revolution, 1750-1850. Pinchbeck, I. (Je '30)
Wonder flights of long ago. Barry, M. E., and Hanna, P. R., eds. (Ag '30)
Wonder road. Starbuck, E. D., and Shuttleworth, F. K., comps. (F '31) (1930 Annual) Wonder tales from Goblin hills. Olcott, F. J. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Wonderful story of science. McFee, I. N. (Ap '30
Wood, Peggy (Mrs John V. A. Weaver)
Wood, P. Actors—and people. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Wood engravings
Ward, L. K. God's man. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Ward, L. K. Madman's drum. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Wood of the hanging Templar (Le bois du Templier pendu). Béraud, H. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Wooden swords. Deval, J. (S '30)
Woodfill, Samuel
Woodfill, S. Woodfill of the regulars. (Ap '30)
Woodfill of the regulars. Woodfill, S. (Ap '30)
Woodwork (manual training)
Hjorth, H. Principles of woodworking. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Word shadows of the great. Madigan, T. F. (Je '30)
Words
Weekley, E. Adjectives—and other words. (Je '30)
Wordsworth, William
Mead, M. Four studies in Wordsworth. (D '30)
Work
Davis, J. J., and Wright, J. C. You and your job. (D '30)
Man, H. de. Joy in work. (F '31) (1929 Annual)
Workmen's compensation
Bowers, E. L. Is it safe to work? (O '30)
World below. Wright, S. F. (Ag '30)
World community. Randall, J. H. (Ag '30)
World crisis of 1914-1918. Halévy, E. (Je '30)
World in 2030 A.D. Birkenhead, F. E. S. (O '30)
World of the blind. Villey, P. (N '30)
World politics
Barnes, H. E. World politics in modern civilization. (Ag '30)
De Chaire, S. S. Impending storm. (O '30)
Feis, H. Europe: the world's banker, 1870-1914. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Ferrero, G. Unity of the world. (S '30)
Fischer, L. Soviets in world affairs. (D '30)
Gibbons, H. A. Wider horizons. (S '30)
Hawtrey, R. G. Economic aspects of sovereignty. (Ag '30)
World politics in modern civilization. Barnes, H. E. (Ag '30)
World's aeroplanes and airships. Jackson, G. G. (D '30)
World's economic dilemma. Patterson, E. M. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
World's grasses. Bews, J. W. (Ap '30)
Worst journey in the world. Cherry-Garrard, A. G. B. (Ag '30)
Worth
Joad, C. E. M. Matter, life and value. (My '30)
Laird, J. Idea of value. (Ag '30)
Ward, L. R. Philosophy of value. (Ag '30)
Wrangel, Petr Nikolaevich. See Vrangel, P. N.
Wreck of the Dumaru. Thomas, L. J. (N '30)
Wright, Orville
McMahon, J. R. Wright brothers. (Je '30)
Wright, Wilbur
McMahon, J. R. Wright brothers. (Je '30)
Wright brothers. McMahon, J. R. (Je '30)
Writer's notes on his trade. Montague, C. E. (O '30)
Writing

Identification

Carvalho, C., and Sparkes, B. Crime in ink. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Writing for profit. Wilhelm, D. G. (N '30)
Wrought iron in architecture. Geerlings, G. K. (My '30)
Wycherley, William
Connely, W. Brawny Wycherley. (My '30)
Wychford poisoning case. Cox, A. B. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Wynne, Anthony, pseud. See Wilson, R. M.
Wynne, Pamela, pseud. See Scott, W. M.

X-ray technology. Terrill, H. M., and Ulrey, C. T. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
X-rays
Terrill, H. M., and Ulrey, C. T. X-ray technology. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Xaverian brothers
Julian, Brother. Men and deeds. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Xenophon
Jacks, L. V. Xenophon. (Ag '30)
Xerxes

Fiction

Couperus, L. M. A. Arrogance. (My '30)

Yacht in Mediterranean seas. Anderson, I. W. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Yacht racing
Stone, H. L. America's cup races. (S '30)

Yachts and yachting
Adams, P. Racing yachts done in cork models. (O '30)

Yale one-act plays. Baker, G. P., ed. (O '30)
Yama [the pit]. Kuprin, A. I. (Ap '30)
Yankee adventurer [Frederick Townsend Ward]. Cahill, H. (D '30)
Yankee ballads. Howe, M. A. De W. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Yankee notions. Bailey, H. T. (Mr '30)
Yankee trader in the gold rush. Buck, F. A. Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Yates, Dornford, pseud. See Mercer, C. W.
Ye olde fire laddies. Asbury, H. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Year in, you're out. Hoffenstein, S. (S '30)

Yearbooks
Morley, C. D., comp. Book of days. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Years of grace. Barnes, M. (S '30)
Years that crown. Clear, G. F. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Years that take the best away. Noble, B. (Ag '30)

Yeats-Brown, Francis Charles Claypon
Yeats-Brown, F. C. C. Lives of a Bengal Lancer. (N '30)

Yellow crystal. Wilson, R. M. (S '30)
Yellow mistletoe. Masterman, W. S. (D '30)
Yermak the conqueror. Krasnov, P. N. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Yesterday's tomorrow. Wadsley, O. (Mr '30)
Yoke of life. Grove, F. P. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Yoked with a lamb. Martin, H. (My '30)
Yorkshire moorland murder. Fletcher, J. S. (S '30)
You and your job. Davis, J. J., and Wright, J. C. (D '30)
You be the judge. Kavanagh, M. A. (Ag '30)
You can't fail. Platt, R. H., and McMillin, H. F. (Mr '30)
You can't learn 'em nothin'. Glass, M. M. (Je '30)
You don't know Charly! Thomson, V. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
You gotta be rough. Fiaschetti, M. (Mr '30)

Youmans, N. O., pseud. See Marple, A. C.

Young, Brigham
Gates, S., and Widtsoe, L. E. Life story of Brigham Young. (N '30)

Young and secret. Rosman, A. G. (S '30)
Young heroes of the Bible. Stoddard, A. (O '30)
Young idea. Swinnerton, F. A. (Ap '30)
Young land. Haste, G. (F '31) (1930 Annual)
Young Livingstones. Mackail, D. G. (O '30)
Young man of Manhattan. Brush, K. (Mr '30)

Young women
Blanchard, P. M., and Manasses, C. New girls for old. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)

Your character from your handwriting. Brooks, C. H. (N '30)
Your language. Cline, E. C. (N '30)
Yourself, inc. Elwyn, A. (Ag '30)

Youth
Halliday, J. F. Robbing youth of its religion. (Ap '30)

Youth dares all. (O '30)
Youth in hell. Bein, A. (Je '30)
Youth in revolt. Levin, S. (Je '30)
Youth of Virgil. Nardi, B. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Yukon drive. Case, R. O. (Je '30)

Yunnan, China (province)

Description and travel

Roosevelt, T. and K. Trailing the giant panda. (Ap '30)

Zhabotinskiĭ, Vladimir Evgen'evich. See Jabotinsky, V.

Zionism
Holmes, J. H. Palestine to-day and to-morrow. (Ag '30) (1929 Annual)
Wise, S. S., and De Haas, J. Great betrayal. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Zoological specimens

Collection and preservation

Buck, F., and Anthony, E. Bring 'em back alive. (D '30)

Zoology

Juvenile literature

Carr, W. H. Stir of nature. (Ja '31) (1930 Annual)
Daglish, E. F. Animals in black and white, v 5 & 6. (S '30)

Africa

Akeley, D. J. Jungle portraits. (My '30)
Chadwick, W. S. Giants of the forest. (Ap '30)
Kearton, C. In the land of the lion. (My '30)
Lyell, D. D. Hunting & spoor of Central African game. (Ap '30)

Malay archipelago

Mjöberg, E. G. Forest life and adventures in the Malay archipelago. (N '30)

Panama

Chapman, F. M. My tropical air castle. (Mr '30)

South Sea islands

Shurcliff, S. N. Jungle islands. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Zoroastrianism
Mānekjī Nasarvānjī Dhālā. Our perfecting world. (D '30)

Zululand

History

Bryant, A. T. Olden times in Zululand and Natal. (O '30)

Zulus
Bryant, A. T. Olden times in Zululand and Natal. (O '30)

Zur Mühlen, Herminia
Zur Mühlen, H. Runaway countess. (F '31) (1930 Annual)

Directory of Publishers

A. L. A. American Library Association, 520 N Michigan Av, Chicago

Abingdon Press, 150 5th Av, N.Y.; 581 Boylston St, Boston; 105 5th Av, Pittsburgh; 30 Elizabeth St, E. Detroit, Mich.; 420 Plum St, Cincinnati; 740 Rush St, Chicago; 1121 McGee St, Kansas City, Mo.; 7 City Hall Av, San Francisco; 304-313 Artisans Bldg, Portland, Ore.

Adelphi Co., 160 5th Av, N.Y.

Am. Child Health Assn, 370 7th Av, N.Y.

Am. Foundation for the Blind, Inc., 125 E 46th St, N.Y.

Am. Photographic Pub. American Photographic Publishing Company, 428 Newbury St, Boston (17) [Cable Address: Amphoco]

Am.-Scandinavian Foundation, 25 W 45th St, N.Y. [Cable Address: Scanfoun]

Am. Tech. Soc., Drexel Av & 58th Street, Chicago

Agents for all the publications of the Am. School of Correspondence

Am. Unitar. American Unitarian Association (The Beacon Press, Inc) 25 Beacon St, Boston; 105 S Dearborn St, Chicago; 285 Madison Av, N.Y.; 2416 Allston Way, Berkeley, Calif.

Appleton. D. Appleton & Company, 29-35 W 32d St, N.Y.; 34 Bedford St, London, WC 2; Lawyers Cooperative Pub. Co, 430 Rizal Av, Manila, P.I.; United Bk. & Stationery Co, 78 Nanking Road, Shanghai [Cable Address: Hilandero, New York] Canadian Agent, Ryerson Press (Trade Bks)

Assn. for the Study of Negro Life. Association for the Study of Negro Life & Culture, Inc., 1538 9th St, N.W. Washington, D.C.

Books also sold by Associated Pubs.

Assn. Press. Association Press (Nat. Council of the Y.M.C.A.), 347 Madison Av, N.Y.

Badger. Richard G. Badger (The Gorham press) 100 Charles St, Boston [Cable Address: Dyxpress]

Purchased the business of Vinal

Baker, Voorhis. Baker, Voorhis & Company, 119 Fulton St, N.Y.

Bankers Pub. Bankers Publishing Company, 71 Murray St, N.Y.

Banta. George Banta Publishing Company (The Collegiate Press) 450 Ahnaip St, Menasha, Wis.

Baptist S.S. Bd. Baptist Sunday School Board (Southern Baptist Convention) 161 8th Av, N, Nashville, Tenn.; Depositories at the Baptist Bk. Stores of Birmingham, Ala.; Little Rock, Ark.; Jacksonville, Fla.; Atlanta, Ga.; DuQuoin, Ill.; Louisville, Ky.; Shreveport, La.; Baltimore, Md.; Jackson, Miss.; Kansas City, Mo.; Raleigh, N.C.; Albuquerque, N.Mex.; Oklahoma City, Okla.; Columbia, S.C.; Dallas, Tex.; and Richmond, Va.

Barnes, A. S. & Co., 67 W 44th St, N.Y.; Pacific Coast Agency, California School Book Depository, 149 New Montgomery St, San Francisco; Southwestern Agency, Hoover Bros, 922 Oak St, Kansas City, Mo.; Canadian Agency, Geo. M. Hendry Co., Ltd., 129 Adelaide St, W, Toronto

Barrows. M. Barrows & Company, Huntington Chambers, Boston (17)

Barse & Co., 21-39 Division St, Newark, N.J.

Beacon Press. See American Unitarian Association

Beckley-Cardy. Beckley-Cardy Company, 17 E 23d St, Chicago

Benziger. Benziger Bros., 36-38 Barclay St, N.Y.; 205 W Washington St, Chicago; 429 Main St, Cincinnati; 49 4th St, San Francisco

Blakiston. P. Blakiston's Son & Co., 1012 Walnut St, Philadelphia; Pacific Coast Depository, Wagner, Harr [Cable Address: Blakiston]

Bobbs. Bobbs-Merrill Company, 724 N Meridian St, Indianapolis, Ind.; 185 Madison Av, N.Y. [Cable Address: Bobbs, Indianapolis] Agent for Ind. Hist. Soc.

Boni. Albert & Charles Boni, Inc., 66 5th Av, N.Y. [Cable Address: Bonibooks]

Boni, C. Charles Boni, 80 5th Ave, N.Y.

Bowker. R. R. Bowker Company, 62 W 45th St, N.Y.; David H. Bond, 407 Bank Chambers, Chancery Lane, London

Office of The Publishers' Weekly

Brentano's, 5th Av, & 27th St, N.Y.; 63 E Washington St, Chicago; 37 Avenue de l'Opéra, Paris

Brewer. Brewer & Warren, Inc., 6 E. 53d St, N.Y. [Cable Address: Paysoclark] Canadian Agent, Ryerson Press

Formerly Payson & Clarke, Ltd.

Brookings. Brookings Institution, 26 Jackson Pl, NW., Washington, D.C.

Brown, N. L. Nicholas L. Brown, 123 Lexington Av, N.Y. [Cable Address: Browniclas]

Some of N. L. Brown old publications formerly published by Frank-Maurice are now available from Mr Brown

Bruce Pub. Bruce Publishing Company, 407 E Michigan St, Milwaukee, Wis.; 342 Madison Av, N.Y.; 66 E S Water St, Chicago

Burt. A. L. Burt Company, Inc., 114-120 E 23d St, N.Y. [Cable Address: Burbooks]

Callaghan. Callaghan & Company, 401 E Ohio St, Chicago

Cape. Jonathan Cape & Harrison Smith, Inc., 139 E 46th St, N.Y. [Cable Address: Capajon]

Carnegie Inst. Carnegie Institution of Washington, 16th & P St, NW, Washington, D.C.

Carrier & Isles. Louis Carrier & Alan Isles, Inc,

Out of business

Century. Century Company, 353 4th Av, N.Y.; 10 Essex St, London

Publishers for Am. Inst. of Accountants

Chemical Catalog Co. Chemical Catalog Company, Inc., 419 4th Av, N.Y.; English Agency, A. F. Bird

Christopher. Christopher Publishing House, 1140 Columbus Av, Boston (20)

Clark, A. H. Arthur H. Clark Company, Glendale, Calif.

Clode. Edward J. Clode, 156 5th Av, N.Y.

Coggins, F. Heath, 2117 N. Charles St, Baltimore

Cokesbury Press, 810 Broadway, Nashville, Tenn. [Cable Address: Cokesbury]

See also Pub. House M.E. Ch. So.

Columbia Univ. Press, 2960 Broadway, N.Y.; English Agent, Oxford

Commonwealth Fund. Commonwealth Fund, Division of Publications, 41 E 57th St, N.Y.

Copeland. Lewis Copeland Co., Inc., 119 W 57th St, N.Y.

Cosmopolitan Bk. Cosmopolitan Book Corporation, 572 Madison Av., N.Y.

Council on foreign relations, 25 W 43d St, N.Y.

Covici. Covici, Friede, Inc., 386 4th Av, N.Y.

Coward-McCann, Inc., 425 Fourth Av, N.Y.

Crofts. F. S. Crofts & Co., 41 Union Sq, N.Y.

Crowell. T. Y. Crowell Company, 393 4th Av, N.Y.

Day. John Day Co., Inc., 386 4th Av, N.Y.
De La Mare. A. T. De La Mare Company, Inc., 448 W 37th St, N.Y.
Derrydale press, 127 E 34th St, N.Y.
Dial Press (Lincoln MacVeagh) 152 W 13th St, N.Y.; Canadian Agent, Longmans, Toronto [Cable Address: Dialpubco]
Dodd. Dodd, Mead, & Company, Inc., 443-449 4th Av, N.Y.; 215 Victoria St, Toronto [Cable Address: Dodd New York]
Doran. George H. Doran Company. See Doubleday, Doran
Dorrance. Dorrance & Company, Inc., Drexel Bldg, 5th & Chestnut St, Philadelphia
Doubleday, Doran. Doubleday, Doran & Company, Inc. (Country Life Press) Garden City, N.Y. [Cable Address: Doubledor New York] Doubleday, Doran & Gundy, Ltd, 120 University Av, Toronto
A consolidation of Doubleday, Page & Co, George H. Doran Co, Nelson Doubleday, Inc, and Garden City Pub. Co.
Drake, F. J. Frederick J. Drake & Co., Inc., 179 N Michigan Av, Chicago [Cable Address: Draco]
Duffield. Duffield & Company, 200 Madison Av, N.Y.
Duke Univ. Durham, N.C.; Agents, Stechert, Cambridge Univ. Press, Edward Evans & Sons, Ltd, Shanghai, J. Lajouane & Co, Buenos Aires, Argentina; Philippine Educ. Co.
Address Duke Univ. Press
Dutton. E. P. Dutton & Co, Inc, 286-302 4th Av, N.Y. [Cable Address: Yardfar]

Edwards Bros, 310 State St, Ann Arbor, Mich.

Farrar. Farrar & Rinehart, Inc., 12 E 41st St, N.Y.
Faxon. F. W. Faxon Company, 83 Francis St, Back Bay, Boston (17); English Agent, Grafton & Co.
Federal Council. Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, Inc., 105 E 22d St, N.Y. [Cable Address: Fedcil]
Food Research Inst., Stanford University, Cal.; Agents, King, Nijhoff
Forbes. B. C. Forbes Publishing Company, 120 5th Av, N.Y.
Fountain Press, Inc., 522 5th Av, N.Y.
Franklin & Charles, 510 Race St, Lancaster, Pa.; Constable & Co., Ltd., 10-12 Orange St, Leicester Sq, London, WC 2
French. Samuel French, Inc., 25 W 45th St, N.Y.; Fine Arts Bldg, Los Angeles [Cable Address: Theatrical] 26 Southampton St, Strand, London, WC 2
Friendship Press. See Missionary Educ. Movement
Funk. Funk & Wagnalls Company, 354-360 4th Av, N.Y.; 14 Salisbury Sq, London, E.C.

Garrett & Massie, inc., Richmond, Va.
Ginn. Ginn and Company (Athenaeum Press) 15 Ashburton Pl, Boston; 2301-2311 Prairie Av, Chicago; 70 5th av, N.Y.; 165 Luckie St, NW, Atlanta, Ga.; 1510 Young St, Dallas, Tex; 199 E Gay St, Columbus, Ohio; 45 2d St, San Francisco; 7 Queen Sq, Southampton Row, London, WC 1
Goodheart-Willcox. The Goodheart-Willcox Company, Inc., 2009 S Michigan Av, Chicago
Greenberg, Publisher, Inc., 160 5th Av, N.Y.
Gregg. Gregg Publishing Company, 270 Madison Av, N.Y.; 2500 Prairie Av, Chicago; 20 Providence St, Boston; Phelan Bldg, San Francisco; 57 Bloor St, W, Toronto; Kern House, 36 Kingsway, London, WC 2; 4 Nithsdale St, Sydney, Australia

Hale. Hale, Cushman & Flint, Inc., 857 Boylston St, Boston; 489 5th Av, N.Y.; 5 S Wabash Av, Chicago [Cable Address: Halcuflint]
Absorbed the Medici Soc. of Am.
Harcourt. Harcourt, Brace & Company, 383 Madison Av, N.Y.; for high school texts only; 161 Erie St, Chicago, California School Book Depository, 149 New Montgomery St, San Francisco; Canadian Agent, George McLeod, 266 King St, W, Toronto [Cable Address: Harbrace New York]
Harper. Harper & Brothers (Pleiad Press Imprint) 49 E 33d St, N.Y. 35 Great Russell St, London, WC 1
Harvard Univ. Press, Randall Hall, Cambridge, Mass.; English Agent, Oxford
Heath. D. C. Heath & Company, 285 Columbus Av, Boston; 231-245 W 39th St, N.Y.; 1815 Prairie Av, Chicago; 29 Pryor St, NE, Atlanta, Ga.; 1911 Bryan St, Dallas, Tex.; 182 2d St, San Francisco
Hebberd. Wallace Hebberd, 129 El Paseo de la Guerra, Santa Barbara, Cal.
Henkle. Rae D. Henkle, Publisher, 381 4th Av, N.Y.
Henley. Norman W. Henley Publishing Company, 2 W 45th St, N.Y. [Cable Address: Norhenle]
Hitchcock. Frederick H. Hitchcock (The Grafton Press), 105 W 40th St, N.Y.
Hoeber. Paul B. Hoeber, Inc. (Medical Publishers) 76 5th Av, N.Y. [Cable Address. Formed]
Holt. Henry Holt & Co., Inc., 1 Park Av, N.Y.; for educational books only: 2626 Prairie Av, Chicago; 6 Park St, Boston; 149 New Montgomery St, San Francisco [Cable Address: Aytchot New York]
Houghton. Houghton Mifflin Company (Riverside Press, Cambridge) 2 Park St, Boston; 386 4th Av, N.Y.; 931 Public Ledger Bldg, Philadelphia; 1117 Clark Bldg, Pittsburgh; 2500 Prairie Av, Chicago; 210 W 8th St, Kansas City, Mo.; 612 Howard St, San Francisco; 715 Browder St, Dallas, Tex.; 4100 Arcade Sq, Seattle, Wash. [Cable Address: Mulier, Boston] Canadian Agent, Thomas Allen, 266 King St, W, Toronto; English Agent, Constable

Indiana Univ., Bloomington, Ind.
Indiana university Studies and Bulletins of the School of Education are sold by Ind. Univ. Bookstore, Bloomington, Ind.
Inquiry. The Inquiry, 129 E. 52nd St, N.Y.
Inst. of Social & Religious Research, 230 Park Av, N.Y. [Cable Address: Insorel]
Int. Press, 106 7th Av, N.Y.
Int. Pub. International Publishers Co., Inc., 381 4th Av, N.Y. [Cable Address: Interbook]

Jewish Pub. Jewish Publication Society of America, 219 N Broad St, Philadelphia; 1600 Broadway, N.Y.
Johns Hopkins. Johns Hopkins Press, Homewood, Baltimore; English Agent, Oxford (1928-1930 Books)
Jones, Marshall. See Marshall Jones
Judd. Orange Judd Publishing Company, 15 E 26th St, N.Y.; English Agent, Routledge

Kahoe & Co, Yellow Springs, Ohio
Formerly Kahoe & Spieth
Kenedy. P. J. Kenedy & Sons, 44 Barclay St, N.Y.
Kennerley. Mitchell Kennerley, 489 Park Av, N.Y.
King, A. H. Alfred H. King, 432 4th Av, N.Y.
Knopf. Alfred A. Knopf, 730 5th Av, N.Y.; 37 Bedford Pl, London, W.C. 1 [Cable Address: Knopf]

Laidlaw Bros. Laidlaw Brothers, Inc., 36 W 24th St, N.Y.; 2001 Calumet Av, Chicago
Successors to Laird & Lee, Inc.
Lippincott. J. B. Lippincott Company, 227-231 E Washington Sq, Philadelphia; 1257 S Wabash Av, Chicago; 201 Unity Bldg, Montreal; 16 John St, Adelphi, London, WC 2; Canadian Agent, Copp
Little. Little, Brown & Company, 34 Beacon St, Boston [Cable Address: Brownlit]
Publishers for Atlantic Monthly Press Publications
Liveright. Horace Liveright, Inc., 61 W 48th St, N.Y.
Formerly Boni & Liveright
Longmans. Longmans, Green & Company, 55 5th Av, N.Y.; Tremont Temple, Boston; 128 University Av, Toronto; 39 Paternoster Row, London, EC 4; 53 Nicol Road, Bombay; for school books only: 221 E 20th St, Chicago [Cable Address: Freegrove New York]
Lothrop. Lothrop, Lee & Shepard Company, 275 Congress St, Boston

Macmillan. The Macmillan Company, 60 5th N.Y.
McBride. Robert M. McBride & Company, 7 W 16th St, N.Y. [Cable Address: Brideco] Canadian Agent, George J. McLeod, Ltd, 266 King St, W, Toronto
McClelland. McClelland & Stewart, 215 Victoria St, Toronto
McGraw. McGraw-Hill Book Company, Penn Terminal Bldg, 370 7th Av, N.Y.; 6-8 Bouverie St, London, E.C. 4
Acquired the book division of A. W. Shaw Co.
McKay. David McKay, 604-608 S Washington Sq, Philadelphia
McKee. Walter V. McKee, Inc., (Mazarin Press) 56 W 45th St, N.Y.
Macmillan. The Macmillan Company, 60 5th Av, N.Y.; 2459 Prairie Av, Chicago; Ross & Akard Sts, Dallas, Tex.; 240 Newbury St, Boston; 500 Spring St, Atlanta, Ga.; 350 Mission St, San Francisco; St Martin's House, 70 Bond St, Toronto, 2; 10 St Martin's St, Leicester Sq, London, WC 2; 276 Hornby Road, Bombay; Georgetown, Madras, India; 294 Bow Bazar St, Calcutta; 32 Flinders St, Melbourne, Australia [Cable Address: Packamac New York]
Macrae Smith Co., 1712 Ludlow St, Philadelphia [Cable Address: Masco]
Manual Arts Press, 237 N Monroe St, Peoria, Ill.; English Agent, Batsford
Marshall Jones. Marshall Jones Company, 212 Summer St, Boston
Meador. Meador Publishing Company, 27 Beach St, Boston
Midwest Co, 1645 Hennepin Av, Minneapolis, Minn.
Minton. Minton, Balch & Company, 2 W 45th St, N.Y.
Missionary Educ. Movement (Friendship Press) 150 5th Av, N.Y. [Cable Address: Movement] Canadian Agent, United Church of Canada, Dept. of Missionary Education, Toronto
Mitchell. Edwin Valentine Mitchell, 23 Lewis St, Hartford, Conn.
Modern lib. Modern Library, Inc, 20 E 57th St, N.Y.
Purchased the Sun Dial Lib. series of Garden City Pub. Co.
Morehouse. Morehouse Publishing Company, 1801 Fond du Lac Av, Milwaukee, Wis. [Cable Address: Morehouse] Canadian Agent, General Bd. of Religious Education, 604 Jarvis St, Toronto
Morrow. William Morrow & Co., Inc., 386 4th Av, N.Y. [Cable Address: Wilmorrow]
Mosby. C. V. Mosby Company, Medical Publishers, 3523 Pine St, St Louis
Mystery League, Inc. 11 W 42d St, N.Y.

Nat. Bur. of Economic Research, Inc, 51 Madison Av, N.Y.
Nat. Industrial Conf. Bd., 247 Park Av, N.Y.
Nat. Municipal League, 261 Broadway, N.Y.
Neale. Walter Neale, 37 E 28th St, N.Y. [Cable Address: Walneale]
Nelson. Thomas Nelson & Sons, 381-385 4th Av, N.Y.; 77 Wellington St, W, Toronto; Parkside Works, Edinburgh; 25 rue Denfert-Rocherau, Paris; (incorporating T. C. & E. C. Jack, Ltd.) 35 Paternoster Row, London, EC
Nervous & Mental Disease Pub. Nervous & Mental Disease Publishing Company, 3617 10th St, NW, Washington, D.C.
New Republic. New Republic, Inc., 421 W 21st St, N.Y.
Norman, Remington Co., 347 N Charles St, Baltimore
Norton. W. W. Norton & Company, Inc., 70 5th Av, N.Y. [Cable Address: Seagull] Canadian Agent, George J. McLeod, Ltd, 266 King St, W, Toronto

Ohio State Univ., Columbus, O.
Open Ct. Open Court Publishing Company, 337 E Chicago Av, Chicago; 86 Strand, Cecil Chambers, London, W.C. 2
Oxford. Oxford University Press, 114 5th av, N.Y.; 128 University Av, Toronto [Cable Address: Frowde New York] (Imprints of Clarendon Press, and Humphrey Milford) Amen House, London, EC 4; 100 Princess St, Edinburgh; Store Kongensgade 40 H, Copenhagen; Barthels Hof, Market 8 Leipzig, C 1; Pavilion 205 Flinders Lane, Melbourne, Australia; 44 Peking Road, Shanghai; B.I. Bldg, Nicol Road, Bombay

Page. L. C. Page & Company (St Botolph Soc) 53 Beacon St, Boston [Cable Address: Pagecones]
Parker, Stone. Parker, Stone & Baird Co., 341 E 4th St, Los Angeles, Cal.
Payson & Clarke, Ltd. See Brewer
Penn. Penn Publishing Company, 925 Filbert St, Philadelphia
Pitman. Sir Isaac Pitman & Sons, 2-6 W 45th St, N.Y.; 70 Bond St, Toronto; Pitman House, Kingsway, London; 497 Collins St, Melbourne, Australia; A. H. Wheeler & Co, Calcutta; Pitman Press, Bath, England
Pollak Foundation. Pollak Foundation for Economic Research, Newton 58, Mass.
Prentice-Hall, Inc., 70th 5th Av, N.Y.
Press of the Univ. of Pa., 3438 Walnut St, Philadelphia; English Agent, Oxford
Princeton Univ. Press, Princeton, N.J.; English Agent, Oxford
Putnam. G. P. Putnam's Sons. (Knickerbocker Press), Putnam Bldg, 2-6 W 45th St, N.Y.; 24 Bedford St, Strand, London [Cable Address: Putnam New York]

Rand. Rand McNally & Company, 536 S Clark St, Chicago; 270 Madison Av, N.Y. 125 E 6th St, Los Angeles, Calif; 559 Mission St, San Francisco; Agent, Hopkins [Cable Address: Ranally Chicago]
Random House, Inc. (Fountain Press and Spiral Press Imprints) 20 E 57th St, N.Y.
Reilly & Lee. Reilly & Lee Company, 536 Lake Shore Drive, Chicago
Revell. Fleming H. Revell & Company, 158 5th Av, N.Y.; 851 Cass St, Chicago; English Agent, Oliphants
Review of Reviews. Review of Reviews Corporation, 55 5th Av, N.Y.
Ronald. Ronald Press Company, 15 E 26th St, N.Y.
Rudge. W. E. Rudge, 475 5th Av, N.Y.; 9 Bradford Rd, Mt. Vernon, N.Y.; English Agent, Studio
Ruralist press, 713 Glenn, S W, Atlanta, Ga.
Russell Sage Foundation, 130 E 22d St, Cor, Lexington Av, N.Y.
Ryerson Press (United Church Pub. House) Queen & John Sts, Toronto 2; Agents for Appleton, Brewer; Cupples, Rockwell; Sully, Vir. Pub; World Syndicate

Sanborn. Benjamin H. Sanborn & Company, 131 Clarendon St, Boston; 221 E Cullerton St, Chicago; 185 Madison Av, N.Y.; depositories at California School Bk. Depository, 149 New Montgomery St, San Francisco; J. K. Gill, 5th & Stark Sts, Portland, Ore.: Lone Star School Bk. Depository, 707 Browder St, Dallas, Tex.; J. W. Graham Co., 707 Sprague Av, Spokane, Wash.; Georgia School Bk. Depository, Atlanta, Ga.
Science Press, 3941 Grand Central Terminal, N.Y.
Scribner. Charles Scribner's Sons, 597 5th Av, N.Y.; 168 Regent St, London, W 1; for school books only: 320 E 21st St, Chicago
Sears. Sears Publishing Co., 114 E 32d St, N.Y.
  Formerly J. H. Sears & Co.
Shaw, A.W. A. W. Shaw Company. See McGraw
Silver. Silver, Burdett & Company, 41 Union Sq, W, N.Y.; 221 Columbus Av, Boston; 221 E 20th St, Chicago; 39 Division St, Newark, N.J.; 149 New Montgomery St, San Francisco
Simon & Schuster. Simon & Schuster, Inc., 386 4th Av, N.Y.
Smith, R.R. Richard R. Smith, Inc., 12 E 41st St, N.Y. [Cable Address: Richsmith]
  Acquired most the religious book titles of Doubleday, Doran & Co., formerly published by George H. Doran Company
Southwest Press, 2007 Bryan St, Dallas, Tex.; Eastern Agent, Hopkins
Stanford Univ. Press, Stanford University, Cal. [Cable Address: Sunipress]; English Agent, Oxford
State Hist. Soc. of Wis., Madison, Wis.
States Hist. Co. The States History Company, Inc., 156 5th Av, N.Y.
Stokes. Frederick A. Stokes Company, 443-449 4th Av, N.Y. [Cable Address, Stokesco]
Stratford. Stratford Company, 289 Congress St, Boston (9)
Sully. George Sully & Company, 114 E 25th St, N.Y. [Cable Address: Gesulco] Canadian Agent, Ryerson Press

Teachers College, Columbia University, 525 W 120th St, N.Y.
Textile Pub. Co, 239 W 39th St, N.Y.
  also publish as Dry Goods Economist
Theatre Arts, Inc., 119 W 57th St, N.Y.
Thomas. Charles C. Thomas, Publisher, 300 E Monroe St, Springfield, Ill. [Cable Address: Thomas Springfield], Agents, Bailliere, London; Beutelspacher et Cia, Sarmiento 815, Casilla de Correo 415, Buenos Aires, Argentina
Tuttle, Morehouse & Taylor, 123 Temple St, New Haven, Conn.

Univ. of Calif., Berkeley, Calif: English Agent, Cambridge Univ. Press, London
  Address University of California Press, California Hall, Berkeley
Univ. of Chicago Press, 5750 Ellis Av, Chicago; Georgia School Bk. Depository, 424 W Peachtree St, NW, Atlanta, Ga.; California School Bk. Depository, 149 New Montgomery St, San Francisco; Lone Star School Bk. Depository, Dallas, Tex.; Canadian Agent, Macmillan Co. of Canada, 70 Bond St, Toronto; English Agent, Cambridge Univ. Press
Univ. of Minn., Minneapolis, Minn.
  Address The University of Minn. Press
Univ. of N.C. Press, Chapel Hill, N.C.; English Agent, Oxford
Univ. of Tex., Austin, Tex.
Univ. of Toronto Press, Toronto
  Books formerly imprinted Univ. of Toronto Lib. are now pub. by the Press
Univ. of Wash. Bk. Store, 4326 University Way, Seattle, Wash.

Van Nostrand. D. Van Nostrand Company, 250 4th Av, N.Y. [Cable Address: Bowline]
Vanguard Press, Inc, 100 5th Av, N.Y.; English Agent, W. T. Colyer, 15 S Hill Park Gardens, London, W 3
Viking Press, Inc., 18 E 48th St, N.Y.
Vinal. H. Vinal, Ltd, 100 Charles St, Boston
  Acquired by Badger, R.G.

Wagner, Harr. Harr Wagner Pub. Co., 609 Mission St, San Francisco
Warne. Frederick Warne & Co, Inc, 381 4th Av, N.Y.; 1 Bedford Court, Bedford St, Strand, London; Agent for Fitzgerald
Warwick & York. Warwick & York, Inc., 10 E Center St, Baltimore
Washburn. Ives Washburn, Inc., 119 W 57th St, N.Y.; Canadian Agent, McLean & Smithers, Toronto
Washburn, E. C. Edwin Chapin Washburn, Englewood, N.J.
Washburn & Thomas, Box 131, Cambridge, Mass.
Watt, G. Howard, 1819 Broadway, N.Y.
West. West Publishing Company, 50 W 3d St, St Paul, Minn.
Whittlesey House (McGraw-Hill Book Co) 370 7th Av, N.Y.
Wilde. W. A. Wilde Company, 131 Clarendon St, Boston
Wiley. John Wiley & Sons, Inc, 440 4th Av, N.Y.; depository at Tech. Bk. Co. 525 Market St, San Francisco [Cable Address: Jonwile New York] Canadian Agent, Renouf Pub; English Agent, Chapman
Willett. Willett, Clark & Colby, 440 S Dearborn St, Chicago; Eastern Agent, Hopkins & Son, 200 Fifth Av, N.Y.
Williams & Wilkins. The Williams & Wilkins Company, Mt Royal & Guilford Avs, Baltimore; depositories at Baker & Taylor; Chicago Med; A. W. Isca, 210 S 7th St, Minneapolis, Minn.; L. S. Matthews & Co, 3554 Olive St, St Louis; J. W. Stacey, 236 Flood Bld, San Francisco; J. A. Majors Co, 1301 Tulane Av, New Orleans, La.; J. A. Majors Co, Medical Arts Bldg, Dallas, Tex.; Wm. Dawson & Sons, 91 Queen St, E, Toronto [Cable Address: Wilco Baltimore] English Agent, Bailliere
Wilson, H.W. H. W. Wilson Company, 958-972 University Av, N.Y. [Cable Address: Wilsondex]; British Agent, W. & R. Holmes, Glasgow, Scotland
Winston. John C. Winston Company, 1006-1016 Arch St, Philadelphia; 625 S Wabash Av, Chicago [Cable Address: Winston Philadelphia]
World Peace Foundation, 40 Mt Vernon St, Boston (9); Am. Agents for the Publications of the International Labor Office, and the League of Nations

Yale Univ. Press, 143 Elm St, New Haven, Conn.; 386 4th Av, N.Y.; English Agent, Oxford